14. Function of the public prosecutor summed up.—It is not the object of the Counsel for the prosecution to get a conviction at any price. It is his duty to see that the case against the prisoner is brought out in all its strength, but it is not his duty to conceal or in any way to diminish the importance of its weak points. His function is not to inquire into the truth but to put forward with all possible candour and temperance, that part of it which is unfavorable to the prisoner.—Harris Principles of Criminal Law. p. 418. 8 C. 121
15. Duty of prosecution to call search witnesses.—The fact that the prosecution believed that some persons who were present at a search had formed an opinion unfavourable to the prosecution story regarding it, is no reason why those persons should not be called by the prosecution, in as much as what those persons would be required to state in their depositions was what they observed and not what they thought. The prosecution is in duty bound to call such persons, unless it is of opinion that they would misrepresent facts and would misstate what happened—2 C. N. 438.
16. Prosecution is not entitled as of right to examine additional witnesses.—Where a witness is not examined by the Crown before the committing Magistrate, nor under the supplementary powers of S. 219, the Crown cannot demand as of right that such witness shall be examined at the Sessions trial—14 A. 212

(2) Procedure in Examination.

17. Examination should be oral.—The examination alluded to in the section means oral examination of the witnesses present (except in cases where evidence is taken by commission, or in any case where a witness is deaf or dumb). Such oral examination is therefore, the general rule, and it is of the utmost importance that the rule should be followed in all cases, where the witness is present to be examined. If a witness before a Magistrate was not true in important particulars he may not be able to repeat the same statement, and may omit something important mentioned in his former evidence, or may deny on oral examination that he did make a particular statement before the Magistrate. The demeanour of the witness may be important for the assessor or Judge towards

W. J. in 9 M. S. 8 & W. R. 11

18. [Note.—It is extremely objectionable, in a Sessions trial to read to the prosecution witnesses their depositions before the committing Magistrate and to ask if what was there recorded was not true. [2 Weir 364. 7 A. S. 2 N. P. 100. O. S. 86. 5 C. P. 33. W. R. (p.) 135.] In a Sessions trial it is not sufficient even with the consent of the parties to put in the deposition taken by the Committing Magistrate, and to allow the witnesses to be cross-examined thereon [9 M. 63]. In the latter case, the attorney for the accused, suggested the procedure for expediting the trial and to this course both the Government prosecutor and the Court consented. The High Court did not interfere as there had not been any failure of justice.—See 13 W R 10.]

Witnesses must be examined donovo—In every Sessions trial, no matter how often the case has been before the Court, the witnesses must be examined donovo in the same manner as if the case were entirely new, and the witnesses had not been examined before. To read to a witness his deposition in a former trial is not an examination of the witness in the presence of the accused.

19. [Note—In 13 W R 10, the High Court declined to interfere, as the irregularity of procedure was not one by which the prisoners had been prejudiced the evidence having been read over and used at the request of the prisoner. This view is directly opposed to that taken in the leading case 12 C N 140 [See also 9 B R 356] which lays down that “except where the law expressly permits waiver, the rights of an accused person should not be held to be lost by his consent to a procedure or to the admission of evidence which the law does not authorise.”]

19A. Evidence of “Gosha ladies”—The deposition of Gosha ladies examined before the Committing Magistrate in the presence of the accused are not admissible in the evidence at the trial before the Sessions Court without examining those ladies in the latter Court—4 M. 11 (ppix) xv.

20. The order in which witnesses ought to be examined.—Witnesses should be called up in such order as will make the evidence as much as possible one unbroken narrative—7 M S D 765.

21. Can a Sessions Judge decline to examine prosecution witnesses.—In a trial before a Court of Session, the Judge refused to examine 11 and of 17 witnesses produced on behalf of the prosecution. Held, on appeal by the Government that it was such an irregularity as was likely to have caused a failure of justice and it was therefore necessary that further proceedings more regularly conducted should be taken [(‘86) A. N 68]

22. Judge cannot “stop a case”—In a trial before the Court of Sessions, the Judge after having examined five prosecution witnesses out of seven, and there being no further direct evidence of the offence, asked the jury whether they wished to hear any more evidence, and on their stating that they did not believe the evidence, and wished to stop the case, the Judge recorded a verdict of acquittal. Held, that the procedure adopted was not warranted by law. The Judge was bound to examine the two remaining witnesses for the prosecution. No hind opinion as to the reliability or otherwise of the evidence ought to have been arrived at by the Judge or Jury until the evidence is before them and has been considered.—[20 M. 415]

23. Judge cannot reject witnesses sent up by committing Magistrate—It is the duty of the Sessions Court to examine all the witnesses sent up by the Committing Magistrate. That Court is not justified in rejecting any of the witnesses so sent up unless it has good reason to believe that such witness came into the Court-house with a predetermined intention of giving false evidence.—15 A G

24. Investigating officer should be examined.—In all important cases and especially in cases of murder and dacoity, the police officer making the investigation should be examined as a witness regarding the circumstances of the investigation. It is generally important to the trying authority to know why, where and when the accused persons were arrested. It is often important to ascertain what the witnesses said when they were first questioned by the police, and whether such statements agree with those subsequently made by the witness in Court.—Rat 173

the Committing Magistrate's Court, and such witness was thereupon placed in the witness-box by the counsel for the defence, it was held that counsel for the defence was not entitled to commence his examination of the witness by questioning him as to what he had deposed to the Magistrate's Court. Questions as to his previous deposition were under the circumstances only admissible by way of cross-examination, with the permission of the Court if the witness proved himself a hostile witness.—20 A. 155

27. Cross-examination cannot be reserved.—There is no provision of law which authorises, at a Sessions trial, the Judge to allow the witnesses for the prosecution to be examined one day and to permit the cross-examination of these witnesses to be reserved at a subsequent date.—2 Weir 381

28. Witness cannot be turned out before cross-examination is finished.—A Sessions Judge cannot stop the cross-examination of a witness and turn him out of the box before his examination is finished, because in the Judge's opinion he was not speaking the truth.—(‘00) A. N 144

29. Undefended cases.—Where an accused person is not defended, the Court should, in the interests of justice, test the statements of the witnesses for the prosecution by questions in the nature of cross-examination.—Per, Pattison C. J., in 7 A. 160.

(3) The Record in sessions trial.

30. Record of evidence.—The depositions of witnesses should be recorded in the first person and not in the third person.—S B. L. (1p) 21.
31. How to maintain and arrange the record.—The principal documents in a Sessions case should be put in a prominent place on the record, and should not be buried in a mass of paper. [8 W R 30 57] There ought to be only one Sessions record which should be continuous and should contain accurately and consecutively the whole of the proceedings in the trial, including examination of the accused [14 W R 46] A Sessions nuthee should contain the record of the defence set up by the prisoners in the Sessions Court [15 W R. 10] In cases of gravity such as murder and especially as regards confessions the records should be in plain and legible writing [Rat 837]

32. Material Exhibits.—When there are a number of persons under trial and a number of articles in evidence great care and precision are called for in recording the evidence so as to show how the different articles are connected with the different accused.—10 C P 23
33. Petitions.—On every petition made before him, the Judge should make an order granting or refusing it. An order merely to file it is improper.—See 6 C N 548

4. Attestation.—The Magistrate's attestation at the foot of the examination, when duly recorded in the terms of S 205 (=364) is sufficient prima facie evidence of such examination unless the [Rat 687] and he append the certificate required by S 364 (2) Cr P C in full. It is necessary to see that such statement has been deliberately made and recorded that after being recorded it has been shown or read to the accused and that the examination has been attested by the Magistrate, following a certificate to be given under his own hand [15 W R 83 20 W. H. 50 7 W R 49 23 W R 28] Mere initials is not sufficient [15 W R 83 21 W R 5]

Note.—Under the old Code, the certificate need not have been in the Magistrate's own handwriting.—See 8 W R. 55 But See 7 W R 49 23 W R 28]

6. When the examination has not been recorded in full.—When the examination of the prisoner by the Magistrate has not been recorded in full so as to include the questions as required by S 205 (= S 364) Cr P C it cannot be given in evidence at the trial before the Court of Sessions under S 366 (= 287) without further proof.—2 B H 395 2 B H 421 1 Jhoy 2 B H 422 Ganu Bapu 2 B H 422 7 B H 50 But See 12 C L 120

Note.—Where a Committing Magistrate failed to record the examination of the prisoners or to attest it as required by S 205 C P (= S 364) and the Sessions Judge refused to admit in evidence and also to postpone the case for the purpose of summoning the Magistrate and taking his evidence the High Court refused to interfere.—12 W R 41

7. Non-compliance with the provisions of S. 364.—Where the provisions of S 205 Cr P C (= S 364) are not observed and there is no certificate by the Magistrate that the examination of the accused was taken in the hearing and in the presence of that officer and there is no statement that that examination contains the whole statement of the accused, a Sessions Judge acts rightly in rejecting the evidence and not allowing it to go to the jury.

12 W R 44 11 W R 10.

5. The attestation should be in the Magistrate's handwriting.—See S 364 (2) Cr P C infra ("such Magistrate or Judge shall certify under his own hand") It is not necessary for the validity of the examination that it should have been taken down in the Magistrate's own hand; it is enough if the examination is conducted in his immediate presence and careful control

8. Signature of the accused.—The signature of the accused person to a statement made under S 361 Cr. P. C. should be made in the immediate presence and under the careful control of the Magistrate himself. To take the signature of the accused in an adjoining room before a clerk, and not in the immediate presence of the Magistrate is not sufficient compliance with the section [1st 687]. A confession which has not been signed by the accused is inadmissible in evidence against him [10 B R 166].
9. Admissions by a co-accused.—The admission of an accused person cannot be taken to be corroborative evidence or any evidence at all against any body other than himself. 8 W. R. 35. 2 N P 316. See 13 W. R. 14. 23 W. R. 24. 25 W. R. 43. 10 B. 319.
10. Confession by a co-accused.—If the confession of a co-accused is unsupported by other evidence its evidentiary value (against the other accused) is of the weakest kind.—*Per fourth C J in 4 C 483 (F. 11. Evidentiary value of a confession of a co-accused.—It has been held that the confession of an accused can be only taken into consideration against the other accused and cannot be evidence against them under S. 30 of the Indian Evidence Act [15 B 66; 7 M H. (sp) xv]. Though the confession of a co-accused is evidence against the other accused, it can only be used in corroboration of other independent evidence. It cannot by itself be the basis of the conviction, and when supported by circumstantial evidence, the latter must be sufficient, standing by itself to support the conviction [24 W. R. 42; 4 C. 483 (F. B.); 1 A 664. 675. 10 B 319. 11 B 475. 11 B H. 196; See 1 M. 163. 13 W. R. 14].
12. Court has no option.—It is not optional with the prosecution to place on the record, the confessional statements of persons treated as accused [15 M. 352]. The examination of the accused before the Magistrate should be put in as evidence in the sessions trial, whether it told for or against the prisoner [13 W. R. 63].
13. Statement of the accused must be taken in its entirety.—If the statement made by the accused is to be used against him, it must be taken in its entirety [8 W. R. 38. 25 W. R. 15. 25 W. R. 23. 1 Bar S 324. 1 Bar. S 327. Cr R. 19 of 1888. See 7 W. R. 327. 7 W. R. 3. 10 B L. 332. 18 A 78; 9 M. T 316]. A confession must be considered as a whole, but where there is evidence to contradict the extenuating portion it may not be considered [1 P R 1472. See Per v. Hargrave (1829) 1 C and P 403. See 1. Stebbins (1830) 1 C and P 397. See 1. Clive (1830) 4 C and P 221. 40 C 873. Rat 370; 21 W. R. 50].
14. Confession by itself may be basis of conviction.—The statement of a prisoner, whether taken as confession or examination, may be received as evidence [5 W. R. 1]. A voluntary and genuine confession is legal and sufficient proof of guilt [7 W. R. 41]. A prisoner may be convicted on his own uncorroborated confession [6 W. R. 73].
15. Approver who has forfeited pardon.—It is doubtful whether the deposition of an approver, taken before the Committing Magistrate may be used as evidence against his accomplices on their trial before the Sessions Court, the conditional pardon of the approver having been withdrawn. 7 C. L. 66. 13 C. L. 326; See 22 C 30.
16. Proof of identity.—A deposition by an accused person is inadmissible in evidence against him in another proceeding, without proof of his identity [11 C 540; (3d. 100) L. R. 70; see 21 W. R. 5]. But where the accused has admitted the charge both in his examination and in his defence, the conviction would not be illegal for want of evidence of identity [3 L. B. 208 (209)].
17. Illegal pardon makes the statement inadmissible.—Where the statement is made by an accused person to whom an illegal pardon has been tendered his deposition cannot be used against him—2 A. 260. 23 B 213; 5 N. P. 217. See 1 B. 610.
18. Meaning of the term committing Magistrate. The phrase "Committing Magistrate" in ss. 297 and 298 is merely a comprehensive way of referring to the Magistrate or Magistrates who held the preliminary enquiry on which the committal was made.—31 M. 40.
19. When the examination cannot be said to be duly recorded.—Where an accused person was induced by the police to make a confession of having taken part in commission of an offence, and the Committing Magistrate admitted it in evidence and examined the accused with respect to it and the accused admitted it, held that the accused being examined about a confession which was not admissible in evidence, the questions and answers to them could not be said to be duly recorded and were therefore legally inadmissible in evidence under S 287 Cr. P. C.—1 L. R. 244.
20. Accused making a statement to the Jail Superintendent.—A statement was made by an accused person to the Superintendent of a District Jail with a request that it might be placed on record. (He had previously to this said to the Magistrate in answer to the question if he wished to make a statement that he did not wish to do so) The statement was held to be admissible in evidence, under S. 287 Cr. P. C. as evidence of intention relevant to a charge under S 124-A.—32 M. 3 (15).
21. Time for tendering the examination.—The examination of the accused should be put in before the accused is called upon to enter upon his defence—2 Wm 361. See Madras Criminal Rules of Practice, Rule No 241.
22. Procedure.—Before examinations are received in evidence under Ss 287, 509 Cr. P. C. or S 33 of the Evidence Act, care must be taken to see that they are in proper form and duly attested or otherwise strictly proved. Such examinations when not so received are to be detached from the proceedings in the preliminary enquiry and annexed to the record of the trial.—Wilkins 114

23. Statement need not be read out to the prisoner.—It is not necessary for a Sessions

Judge to read out to prisoners confessions made by them before a Magistrate, and ask them if they have any objection to the reception of these confessions. The examination of prisoners before a Magistrate is to be received in evidence, and the attestation of the Magistrate is prima facie proof of the circumstances.—14 W R 9

288. The evidence of a witness duly taken in the presence of the accused before the committing Magistrate may, in the discretion of the presiding Judge, if such witness is produced and examined, be treated as evidence in the case.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 288 of the said Code

(i) For the words "duly taken in the presence of the accused before the committing Magistrate" the words "duly recorded in the presence of the accused under Chapter VIII" shall be substituted,

(ii) After the words "as evidence in the case," the words "for all purposes" shall be added

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object of the Section.

1. Object of the Section.—This section is intended to provide for the contingency that may arise when a witness, who is produced before the Court of Session, holds back information and evidence and tells a different story to that which he gave in the preliminary inquiry before the Magistrate. It is only in extreme cases of delay or expense that the personal attendance of a witness before the Court of Session should be dispensed with and the evidence given by him before the committing Magistrate referred to. 2 A 610 See 7 W R 8

2. Scope of the section.—This section applies to all witnesses examined before a Magistrate.

and may be referred to the statement made by him at the trial, but a statement made on any other occasion cannot be used except to corroborate or contradict the evidence given by him at the trial. 22 M J 270

[Note For example, statements made by witnesses to Advocates or Pleaders in their chambers.—5 Bar T 38]

(2) S. 288 does not lay down the value or weight to be attached to statements admitted under the Section.

3. There is nothing in the Section which prescribes the value or weight to be attached to the evidence admitted (under the section). Once admitted, the power given by this section in respect of the evidence is exhausted, the discretion of the Judge extending only to the question whether the former evidence is to be treated as evidence in the case. Once admitted it is on the same footing with all other evidence in the case, that is to say it is to be considered by the jury or by the assessors and the Judge, according to the nature of the trial, as part of the material upon which the verdict or the finding is to be given. The value of the previous evidence is a matter entirely beyond the scope of the Section, as it is also of the Evidence Act. Its value is a question in the particular case for the jury or for the assessors, subject to the directions of the Judge in summing up or for the Judge, in cases where he is a Judge of the fact. Whether any portion or the whole of the evidence thus admitted is entitled to credit and if so to such a degree that a conviction may be based upon it wholly or in part, are very important questions for the jury, or assessors, or for the Judge as the case may be, but they are in no way affected by this Section.—Per Phoenix J in 51 P. R. 1857.

(3) The object of the Legislature in framing the Section.

4. "It appears to me that the Legislature in framing this enactment desired merely to authorize the Court to take a particular statement made by a witness before the Committing Magistrate as the true statement, notwithstanding that it was denied, or a statement inconsistent therewith was made by the witness before the Court itself, if the Court could see from the evidence of that same witness before itself, or of other witnesses before itself, that the original statement was worthy of belief, not that the Court should disregard wholly the testimony of witnesses given before it, and have recourse to the testimony of the same persons which was given elsewhere before another judicial officer on the occasion of making the investigation preliminary to final trial. The discretion which is conferred by the passage 'if the Court thinks fit' in S. 249 (—S. 288) is to be exercised upon substantial materials rightly placed before the Court and reasonably sufficient to guide the judgment of the Court to the truth of the matter and not as, was the case here upon mere speculation and conjecture."—Per Phoenix J in 12 B. L. (appx)-15.

(4) Scope of the Section.

5. S. 288 is not intended to be used for the purpose of enabling the Court to take a witness' deposition bodily from the committing Magistrate's record and to treat it as evidence before itself. 7 A. 662; (85) A. N. 376; 28 A. 683; 21 A. 111; 10 N. 49; 12 B. L. (app) 15; 27 C. 293; 37 P. R. 1917; 12 M. 123.

[Note.—A Court of Session is not at liberty to ground its judgment on the depositions taken by the Magistrate without taking the examinations of the witnesses afresh.—21 W. R. 11.]

6. Conviction cannot be based on statements before committing Magistrates alone.—S. 284 Cr. P. C. allows evidence taken before the committing Magistrate to be treated as evidence in the case but a conviction based on such evidence alone will not be justified.—21 A. 211; Rat 891; 12 M. 123; 21 W. R. 11; 21 W. R. 61.
7. Evidence admitted under S. 288 Cr. P. C. in corroboration of a retracted confession.—Evidence brought in under S. 288

Cr. P. C. cannot be accepted as a proper corroboration of a confession made to a Magistrate and retracted at the Sessions trial, especially when the confession was not voluntary.—27 C. 293; 21 W. R. 49; 7 C. N. 315; 12 M. 123; 10 M. 295; 15 P. W. 1915; But see 19 B. 728; 23 B. 316; 20 A. 133; 21 M. 53.

(5) Application of the Section.

8. S. 288 does not apply to statements recorded under S. 164 Cr. P. C.—Statements of witnesses recorded under S. 164 Cr. P. C. are admissible under the provisions of ss. 115 and 155 of the Evidence Act for the purpose of contradicting the statements made by them in Court but they are not admissible for any other purpose. They are not statements to which the provisions of S. 288 Cr. P. C. apply.—17 O. C. 363; 15 P. W. 1915. See 23 C. 361; 7 W. R. 8.
9. S. 288 does not apply to statement before investigating officer.—Where a witness makes a statement to a police officer or to an investigating Magistrate, it is no evidence against the accused, even if the statement before the investigating Magistrate he made in the presence of the accused; for S. 284 Cr. P. C. does not apply to the case as it is not made before a committing Magistrate or a Magistrate holding an enquiry under Ch. XVIII Cr. P. C. A direction by the Judge to the jury that such a statement is strong evidence against the accused is misdirection.—31 M. 127; 12 B. R. 663.
10. "....."

S. 288, in the Sessions trial, because, though an accomplice, he is none the less a witness for the purposes of that section.—14 P. R. 1691; 15 M. 332; See 16 C. N. 669; 8 S. 203.

11. Evidence taken on commission.—Evidence taken on commission issued by the Chief Presidency Magistrate during the course of an enquiry cannot be used as evidence at the High Court Sessions under S. 507 Cr. P. C. or S. 33 of the Evidence Act.—19 C. 113.
12. The section does not apply to pro-.....
13. (6) Legitimate use of the powers under the section.

14. Value to be attached to depositions admitted under section 288.—Such depositions are on the same footing as the other evidence on record [25 A. 613 : 51 P. R. 1857]. The deposition of a witness taken before the committing magistrate if admitted at the sessions trial under S. 258 Cr. P. C. can be read as substantive evidence in the case. Such evidence may be used as much in favour of the defence as in support of the prosecution.—21 M. 414
15. Legitimate use of the powers under the section.—There can be no question that previous statements of witness may be admitted in evidence to contradict him, but the use of such a statement as substantive evidence of the facts alleged by the witness on the prior occasion is fraught with the greatest evil and could never have been intended by the Legislature.—22 A. 415 : 10 C. N. cxliii : Rat 720 But See 6 O. L. 53
16. When the Sessions Judge is bound to enquire.—Great caution is enjoined on the part of the Sessions Judges before acting under S. 258 Cr. P. C. It is improper to bring on the record without further enquiry the evidence of a witness before the committing Magistrate who says that his evidence in the Lower Court was given under pressure and threat by the police.—4 C. N. 49 : 7 O. N. 345.
17. Statement of witnesses in a different case.—S. 258 does not apply to former statements made by witnesses in a different case incriminating the accused in his absence. They can be used

18. The words "duly taken" in S. 288.—Where the committing Magistrate refused to allow any cross examination of prosecution witnesses during the judicial enquiry in his Court before commitment—Held that their depositions could not be treated as evidence at the sessions trial under S. 258 Cr. P. C. in as much as they were not duly taken within the meaning of that section.

21 C. 612 But See 12 O. N. 1014.

19. The application of S. 288 is in the discretion of the Session Judge.—The purpose of S. 219 Cr. P. C. (—258) is to make depositions given before Magistrates in the preliminary enquiry evidence for the purposes of the trial in the Court of session only when the Sessions Judge determines, in the exercise of his discretion, that they are to be used in this way. But we think the exercise of his discretion considering it as a matter of fact or law is open to review by the Court of appeal. When the case is under trial in a Court of Session, the Sessions Judge has the depositions given in the Magistrate's Court before him. If he finds that the statements of the witnesses in his own Court differ materially from those previously made by the same witnesses, it is his duty to examine them as to discrepancies and this is more especially his duty when the prisoners are undefended and contradictory testimony is given for the prosecution. But if he thus examines the witnesses he ought (See Taylor on Evidence ss. 1300 and 1301 and the Indian Evidence Act S. 155) in ordinary cases to make the depositions upon which he has examined evidence in the case. . . . If the Sessions Judge has omitted to examine witnesses on obvious and important discrepancies in their statements this Court will in general, direct that such examination be made." —Per West J in 11 B. H. 281.

II. RULES FOR ADMISSION IN EVIDENCE OF STATEMENTS BEFORE COMMITTING MAGISTRATES.

(1) Conditions precedent for admission.

20. (1) The evidence must have been recorded in the presence of the accused by the Committing Magistrate.—35 A. 260 : 21 A. 111 : 3 P. R. 1904 : 21 W. R. 5 : 23 C. 361 : Rat 725.

[Note.—When the witness was again examined

21. (2) The witness whose evidence is sought to be put in— the Court

23 P. R.

[Note.—But when the witness was again examined by the Committing Magistrate in the presence of the accused and admitted his former statement recorded in the absence of the accused as true, it might be regarded as incorporated in the record—35 A. 260]

22.

23. (1) The particular passage or passages in the previous deposition with which it is sought to contradict the witness must be put to him.—7 A. 802 : 4 C. N. 49 : See 31 C. 142 (F. B.).

(2) Evidence of all witnesses examined by the Magistrate cannot be admitted in a lump.

24. The section does not authorize a Judge to admit the evidence, before the Magistrate, of all the witnesses or a number of them together, thereby causing a complete change of the course and practice of law especially laid down in S. 258 Cr. P. C. [9 M. 83]. The section applies to individual witnesses each case itself [ibid].

(3) Opportunity of explanation must be given to witness.

25. The Judge is bound to put to the witnesses, whom he proposes to contradict by their statements made before the committing Magistrate, the whole or such portions of their depositions so as to afford them an opportunity of explaining their meaning or denying that they had made such statements and so forth.—7 A 862 4 C N 19 See 31 C. 112 (F.B.).

(4) The rules illustrated and explained.

26. Where the witness did not refile from his statements made before the committing Magistrate.—The admission of such deposition by the Sessions Judge under S 295 Cr P C was improper—4 C N 48.
27. Great exercise of caution necessary.—

committing Magistrate was given under pressure and threat by the police, the Sessions Judge will be acting discreetly if he first makes some enquiry by examining the police officer as to the restraint, which the prisoner alleged to have been used in obtaining the statement.—4 C N 49 Rat 960 7 C N 315; See 21 A 175. 22 A, 145 27 C 295

28. Procedure to be followed in admitting statements of witnesses under S. 288. See V Procedure (2).
29. Discretion of the Judge.—Depositions of witnesses taken before the committing Magistrate may in the discretion of the Judge be admitted in evidence at the trial of the accused in the Sessions Court.—28 A, 683
30. Depositions taken by the committing Magistrate.—cannot be admitted in evidence without examining the witnesses afresh by the Sessions Judge—21 W. R. 11; 30 M. 159

31. Admission of statement of approver made before the committing Magistrate.—A case having been committed to the sessions, the approver totally repudiated his statement before the committing Magistrate—held—that his repudiation did not prevent the Sessions Court from considering the evidence of the approver under the provisions of S. 288 Cr. P. C.—21 A 175 G C. L. 53.
32. Deposition must have been taken in the presence of the accused.—The confession of a witness in the shape of a former deposition can be used as evidence against a prisoner only on the condition prescribed by S. 219 Cr. P. C. (—S 285), that is it must have been duly taken by the committing officer in the presence of the accused. The certificate of the Magistrate is a prima facie evidence, under S. 80 of the Evidence Act of the circumstances mentioned with reference to the facts necessary to render the deposition admissible under S. 219 Cr. P. C.—21 W. R. 5
33. What the word 'examined' in S. 293. means.—S 285 appears to contemplate that a witness shall be first examined and that after that his evidence before the committing Magistrate may be treated as evidence at the sessions. It cannot be said that the mere examination of a witness as to whether he made the deposition before the Magistrate is an 'examination' within the meaning of S. 289. The section does not authorise a Judge to admit the evidence, before the committing Magistrate of all the witnesses or a number of them together even with the consent of both the parties—9 M. 83; See 8 B. R. 638.
34. Portions of depositions sought to be brought on the record must be put to the witness.—The Judge is bound to put to the witnesses whom he proposes to contradict by their statements made before the committing Magistrate, the whole or such portions of their depositions as he intends to rely upon in his decision, so as to afford them an opportunity of explaining their meaning or denying that they had made any such statements and so forth.—7 A 862; See 11 B. H. 281 [Per West J.]

III. USE OF STATEMENT MADE BEFORE COMMITTING MAGISTRATES.

(1) Evidence brought on record under S. 288 is substantive evidence.

35. Evidence brought on the record under S 288 Cr. P. C. must be treated as substantive evidence and there is nothing illegal in basing the conviction on not think on such support it. ceedingly dangerous"—Per Scott Smith and Bramley J. [Note—The evidence can be read as substantive evidence and may be used as much in favour of the defence as in support of the prosecution—21 A. 411.]

36. In corroboration of retracted confession.—Evidence brought in under S 284 Cr P C cannot be accepted as proper corroboration of a confession made to a Magistrate and subsequently retracted.—37 P. R. 1917; 12 M. 123; 2 Weir 609 (72-92) L. B. 497 (195) 27 C. 295.

37. Sessions Court but transferred under S. 288 Cr. P. C. to the record of the Sessions Court, have no evidentiary value at all—15 P. W. 1915; 22 A. 415; 12 M. 123; Rat 960. 12 B. L. (ap) xv.
38. Conviction based on repudiated statement.—A conviction based solely on evidence given by the witnesses before the committing Magistrate and retracted by them at the trial is unsustainable.—51 P. R. 1857; 17 P. R. 1810. 21 A. 111; 25 A. 683; Rat 601; See Rat 833; Rat 966 21 W. R. 49; 12 M. 123; 2 Weir 374; 7 A. 862. See 21 A. 175; 10 C. N. cxxliii.

[Note.—Where the statement of a witness before the committing Magistrate was brought on the record as evidence under S. 288 Cr. P. C. by the Sessions Judge, it is not admissible in evidence at the trial.]

could be relied on, held—that the Sessions Judge did not show a proper discretion in allowing the former statement to be treated as evidence—7 C. N. 345]

9. Repudiated statement must be corroborated in material particulars before being acted on.—The evidence given by a witness before the committing Magistrate and the Coroner as having actually seen the accused murdering the deceased was wholly retracted and repudiated before the Court of Sessions and the witness averred that the former statement was given under threat and coercion. Held, that the evidence before the Magistrate could not be treated as substantive evidence under the section and without corroboration on all material particulars, the accused could not be convicted.—10 C. N. cxxlv [22 A. 445 Fl.]

(3) Rules for using statements under S. 288 Cr. P. C.

10. By counsel for the accused.—Rules.—The counsel for the prisoner, in a sessions trial, is not entitled to refer to the depositions given before the committing Magistrate for the purpose of contradicting the witnesses in the sessions trial without having drawn their attention to the alleged contradictions in their depositions before the committing Magistrate and without giving them an opportunity of explaining.—Per Princep O C J 31 C. 142 (F. B.) [overruling 6 C. L. 390] See Rat 343 11 B. II. 281, Con 5 W. R. 54

41. The evidence must be that of a witness.—The evidence of a person taken in the presence of the accused, who, being found implicated in the crime is committed along with the accused to the Sessions cannot be used under S. 288 in as much as the person is not a person produced and examined as a witness in the trial within the meaning of S. 288—23 P. R. 1883.

42. Preference over statements made at the trial.—The testimony of a witness given before the committing Magistrate may by special provisions of S. 288 Cr. P. C. be accepted as substantive evidence if he is examined at the trial before the Sessions Court, and may be preferred to the statement made on any other occasion by him, but cannot be used except to corroborate or contradict the evidence given by him at the trial—36 M. 150

43. Statement may be used by Judge in favour of the defence.—Such evidence may be used as much in favour of the defence, as of the prosecution and the power of the Court is not restricted to permitting the production of the evidence before the committing Magistrate for the sole purpose of contradicting the witness at the sessions trial—24 M. 414 14 P. R. 1891 See 3 P. R. 1904

43A. Preference to statements without making them exhibits.—A Sessions Judge having read to the jury deposition of witnesses taken before the committing Magistrate, which did not appear to have been ever read over to them, and were not recorded in the Sessions trial, the High Court draw his attention to S. 145 of the Evidence Act and asked him to note for his future guidance that when he admits such statements he should record them as exhibits in his own proceedings.—Rat 924

44. Use of the statement in appeal.—Unless the appellant shows that the evidence taken before the Magistrate had been used in evidence in the Sessions trial, the evidence cannot be referred to in appeal.—S. B. L. (199) 130

IV. PROCEDURE.

(1) When the witness is absent.

45. General Rule.—It is only in extreme cases of

45A. Dead witness.—When it is proposed to read as evidence the deposition of a witness alleged to be dead, the death of the witness should first strictly be proved unless it is admitted on the other side and the reading of the deposition not objected to.—S. B. L. (27) 50

(2) Procedure preliminary to admission of statements under S. 288 Cr. P. C.

46. When a Session Judge admits a deposition of a witness taken before the committing Magistrate as evidence in the trial before a Sessions Court under S. 288 Cr. P. C., he should in his proceedings distinctly note that he has done so and give the de-

Note.—The deposition of an absent witness is only admissible when the prisoner has had the right and opportunity to cross-examine. [21 W. R. 12] A Sessions Judge acts improperly—in excusing the attendance of a material witness on the ground that his attendance could not be procured without an expense of Rs 500 (which he

to a previous deposition, the parts thereof to which the cross-examination is directed should be set out in the Judge's minute of the proceedings the deposition itself, need not in such a case, be made a portion of the evidence in the Sessions Court unless the Government pleader desires that it should be so recorded or the Sessions Judge adopts it under S. 288 Cr. P. C.—Rat 343.

(3) Procedure when the statements are introduced into the record by the defence.

47. The pleader or counsel for the defence of the accused may introduce, as part of his own evidence a previous deposition made by a witness and in that case, the depositions must be numbered and translated in the minute of the proceedings.—The prosecuting counsel or pleader has a right in such a case to question the witness as to the apparent discrepancies and contradictions between the two statements.  A witness may be cross-examined on evidence previously given by him without the introduction of the previous deposition as evidence by the cross-examining counsel. But before contradicting the witness in this way, his attention is to be called to the part of the writing that is to be used for this purpose. The Judge may require production of the document and then use it at his discretion. A cross-examination is necessary in order to introduce the alleged contradictory writing.—Rat 343 (Bhagwan) Rat 343 (Goranthan); Rat 720.

(4) General.

48. Question as to admissibility should be determined immediately on tender.—When the evidence of a witness given before the committing Magistrate is tendered in evidence, the Sessions Judge should consider and determine the question of its admissibility then and there. If he admits the same, he should record his reasons.—1 B R 156
49. Comparison of the two statements.—The Sessions Judge should compare the deposition given before the Magistrate with the deposition given before him, so as to enable him to put questions in cross examination, the answers to which might clear up discrepancies or possibly elicit facts favourable to the prisoner. 5 W. R 54
50. A retracting witness is not necessarily hostile.—The mere facts that at a sessions trial, a witness tells a different story from that told by him before the Magistrate does not make him necessarily hostile. The proper inference to be drawn from contradictions in the whole texture of the story is not that the witness is hostile, to this side or that, but that the witness is one who ought not to be believed unless supported by other satisfactory evidence.—13 C 33

51. Witness must be regularly examined.—To read a previous deposition of a witness and then ask him if it was true, instead of regularly examining him, is irregular. Such a procedure amounts to putting a leading question to the witness, and also is an implied intimation that the same story is expected from him again.—5 C. P. 33. 2 N. P. 100; O. S. 86. W. R. (sp) 35-13; 1. Sec 5 W. R. 11.
52. Judge should intimate his desire to admit a previous deposition to the prosecution and the defence.—Before a Judge presiding at a Criminal trial can use, as evidence, on which in whole or in part to form his judgment the deposition of a witness taken before the committing Magistrate, he is bound to let it be known to the accused and the prosecution in order to afford the accused and the prosecution an opportunity for testing such statement by cross-examination or otherwise dealing with such statement as part of the case which may be taken into consideration by the judge. Otherwise it is impossible for the prosecution or the defence to deal with the matters which may influence the Judge's mind in coming to a decision.—(186) A. N. 236
53. Depositions not to be referred to till after the witness has been examined.—The former deposition of the witness cannot be read before taking his evidence. After taking the fresh evidence, the former deposition may be referred to to refresh the witness' memory; to obtain his explanation of the discrepancies or to contradict his present testimony.—[1 W. R. 14]. The deposition of a witness before the committing Magistrate, ought not to be referred to in his examination in chief [13 W. R. 19. See 24 W. R. 11; 54 P. R. 1883]
54. Right of - - - - - writing used upon which a witness inspect a benefit of the facts. (2) to check the use of improper documents and (3) to compare his oral testimony with his written statement but I doubt whether he is entitled except for their particular purpose to question the witness as to other and independent matter contained in the same series of writings.—Per Field J in S. C. 739.

289. (1) When the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution and the examination

Procedure after examination of witnesses (if any) of the accused are concluded, the accused shall be asked whether he means to adduce evidence.

(2) If he says that he does not, the prosecutor may sum up his case; and, if the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, it may then, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, record a finding, or, in a case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

(3) If the accused, or any one of several accused, says that he means to adduce evidence, and the Court considers that there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence, the Court may then, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, record a finding, or, in case tried by a jury, direct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

(f) If the accused, or any one of several accused, says that he means to adduce evidence, and the Court considers that there is evidence that he committed the offence, or if, on his saying that he does not mean to adduce evidence, the prosecutor sums up his case and the Court considers that there is evidence that the accused committed the offence, the Court shall call on the accused to enter on his defence.

Notes.

S. 289 S. 251 (1872) S. 372 (1861)

1. Omission to examine the accused.—It is not obligatory for the Sessions Judge to examine the accused under S 312 Cr P C, more specially when the accused has not challenged the evidence S 289 of the Code makes such examination optional with the Judge, not imperative.

the accused and that they should not rely upon the admissions made by him in the course of the trial, for convicting him—24 M J 329 Reg v. Bechtold 4 Moore P. C. (N. S.) 460 10 Cox C. C. 616 2 C 23 12 W R 3 16 W R 69, 23 W R 59; 18 M. J. 330. 9 M 83 26 B 50.

- 2A. Hearsay evidence.—The moment a witness commences giving evidence which is inadmissible, e.g. hear say evidence, he should be stopped by the Court. It is not safe to rely on a subsequent exhortation to the jury, to reject the hear say evidence and on the legal evidence alone—7 W. R 25.

3. Gap in prosecution evidence cannot be filled by statements by accused. It has been held that in a prosecution for libel, the must affirmatively prove that the defendant published the libel complained of. Admission as to publication cannot be used to fill a gap in the prosecution evidence [36 M 157] A gap in the evidence of the prosecution cannot be filled up by any statement made by the accused in his examination. [27 M 237; 29 M 372 20 C 19] A Sessions Judge failed to notice certain damaging statements of the accused made by him before the committing Court and the Judge upon other evidence acquitted the accused, held that the order of acquittal could not be interfered with by the Chief Court. [16 P R 1884]

4. Previous conviction.—An examination of an accused person in respect of previous convictions which it may be necessary or permissible for the prosecution to prove is without legal warrant or justification. —per Jacob J. in 24 B 120 (110) 28 C 630.

- 4A. Conviction on evidence adduced by co-accused.—An accused person, in the absence of evidence on prosecution side against him, should not be convicted on the evidence given against him by the witness called by the co-accused in his defence 5 M T 75.

5. When a Court may acquit. It is only in a case in which there is no evidence that the accused committed the offence that a Court can acquit under S 289 Where there was direct evidence, which if believed, would establish the offence, the fact that the Judge did not himself believe the evidence was no ground for withdrawing it from the consideration of the assessors or from the jury.—2 Weir 382

6. Meaning of the expression "there is no evidence."—The words "there is no evidence" in S 289 should not be extended so as to mean "an unsatisfactory, trustworthy or conclusive evidence." The meaning of the third paragraph of S 289, is that if at a certain stage of a sessions of assessors has no such power because only he considers the evidence unsatisfactory, untrustworthy or inconclusive. A Court acting in this way, acts without jurisdiction and its order in discharging the accused is illegal—10 A 114; (88) A N 153 16 W R 20 16 B. 114; O. S. 271 1 O C 84 9 C. P. 24 See 9 C. 875; 24 M 523.

7. Duty of the Judge when there is no evidence. Where there is no evidence against a prisoner, the Judge ought to charge the Jury for an acquittal and not leave the jury to say whether the prisoner is guilty or not 7 W. R 304 16 W. R 19
8. Judge is not to supplement the evidence by summoning additional witnesses.—Although a Sessions Judge has a discretion to summon a necessary witness who has not been sent up, it is not for him, as a general rule, to supplement a defective inquiry on the part of the Magistracy and Police 2 Weir 382.
9. Judge cannot allow cross-examination to be reserved. There is no provision of law which authorises, at Sessions trial, the Judge to allow the witnesses for the prosecution to be examined one day and to permit the cross-examination of these witnesses to be reserved to a subsequent date—2 Weir 381.

10. As to the duty of the prosecution to call evidence.—See Notes under S. 286 Supra.

11. When the public prosecutor may sum up.—This should be done only in exceptional cases, such as when erroneous statements have been introduced into the record or the evidence given differs from the instructions or that which the prosecutor had led the jury to expect in his opening speech—See R. 1. Holchester 10 Cox C. C. 225.

12. Opinion of Jury cannot be taken before prosecution evidence is closed.—Where in a trial of a person for the offence of larceny, the Sessions Judge after examining five out of seven witnesses for the prosecution, asked the Jury whether they wished to hear any more evidence and on their stating they did not wish to hear any more evidence, and that they did not believe the evidence and wished to stop the case, he recorded a verdict of an acquittal held that the procedure adopted was illegal and that the Magistrate should have examined all the prosecution witnesses before recording the verdict.—20 M 445

13. " " " " " "

Jury then express an opinion that the evidence is incredible and the Judge agrees with them, it is not necessary for him to go through the formality of summing up the case to the Jury—ibid.

14. Finding of "Not proven".—There is no legal warrant for a finding of "not proven". In such case the Judge should enter a judgment of acquittal before discharging the prisoner.—2 Weir 381

15. Sec. 289 does not cover a case in which the charge is improper.—Where the Court considers that there is no evidence to lay before the assessors, the usual procedure is for the Court itself to record a finding under S. 289, to that effect. But this section applies only when there is no evidence and would not cover a case where the charge was in itself improper.—12 A. 551.

16. Opinion of assessors need not be recorded.—When a judgment of acquittal is recorded under S. 372 of the Cr. P. C. (=S. 289), it is not necessary to take and record the opinions of the assessors [7 B. II. (C. C.) 82]. In 1 A. 610 and 10 A. 414 however it has been held that it is a serious irregularity not to take the opinion of the assessors before recording a finding of not guilty.

formality but is an essential part of a Criminal trial, and when that has been wanting, it is difficult to say that the omission has not occasioned failure of justice. The defect cannot be cured by S. 537. To allow a jury to pronounce their verdict before the accused is so called upon is, in effect a misdirection, though the Judge omits to give any direction to the Jury as to the law or facts [23 C. 252. See 2 Weir 342; 10 W. R. 7; But see 16A. J. 41]. The accused was convicted of murder and sentenced to death by the Sessions Court. The record did not show that he had been examined or called on to enter on his defence. Held that the omission was not cured by S. 537 [2 L. B. 115]

[Note.—The question whether the accused has any evidence to adduce is one which should be put to the accused himself and not to his pleader and the question and answer should be recorded as required by S. 364 post—See Madras Cr Rules p. 242]

18. Time when the accused should be called upon to make his defence.—Under S. 372 C. P. (=S. 289) the accused should be asked at the end of the case for the prosecution, to produce his evidence; and it is at that point the duty of the Sessions Court to ascertain who the witnesses are whom the prisoner desires to examine in his defence—12 W. R. 22; 13 W. R. 15.

19. When the accused should not be called upon to make his defence.—The Court ought not to adjudge a criminal case on mere probabilities, as if it were a civil action, or contravene the principle of law that the burden of proof lies on the Crown, not at all on the accused, and

20. Absence of witnesses.—Where on being asked under S. 289 Cr. P. C. an accused person has stated that he means to adduce evidence but on further consideration does not do so, the Court is not at liberty to draw a presumption adverse to the accused from the circumstance that he has not adduced evidence. [10 C. 140] A prisoner is at liberty to offer evidence or not and no inference, unfavourable to him, can be drawn if he takes one course in preference to another. [ibid: See 8 C. 121 (125); 14 C. N. 576].

[Note.—It is not proper to comment on the ab-

21. Procedure when defence witnesses are absent.—If an accused person has not his witnesses present, the Judge should, if he sees grounds for proceeding, first call upon him for his defence and then postpone the case.—23 W. R. 58-6 B. L. (appx) lxxviii

22. Witnesses for the defence should not accused was not prejudiced by this course in this particular case, the conviction was not set aside]—4 C. L. 318; 13 W. R. 15. See also Note No. 23 below.

23. Examination of prosecution witness after the accused has made his defence.—An accused person should be called upon to enter upon his defence as it produces his evidence when the case for the prosecution has been brought to a close. Where there is one witness for the prosecution, it was decided after the prisoner had made his defence, and the prisoner had no opportunity of calling evidence to rebut the evidence of the witness, the High Court quashed the conviction and ordered a new trial [6 B. L. 63 (N) 13 W. R. 15]. This can be allowed to be done only to correct a mistake or error on the part of the prisoner [3 N. P. 271] where the prisoner had full notice of the evidence to be given by such witness and made his defence in allusion to the evidence of the witness, the High Court refused to interfere [13 W. R. 35]. It would be improper in such a case to refuse to summon witnesses proposed to be called by the accused, to meet the fresh evidence [S-6 C. 714].
24. Nature of the evidence should be noted in the minutes.—The Section provides that the accused is to be called on to enter upon his defence and to produce his evidence. If he makes any statement in defence, it should be recorded. If he does not voluntarily make any statement and declines to answer any question put by the Court, the fact should be noted, and when there is nothing else to show the nature of the defence, a note of the address to the Court, if any (under the following section) should be recorded. The record is not complete unless it shows the nature of the defence set up—15 W. R. 16.

25. Written statement.—There is nothing in the law which prohibits a written defence. If presented it should be received—2 A. 336. See 16 W. R. 53. But See (3) A. N. 1.
26. Cross-examination of witnesses by Court.—It is not intended that under S. 115 of the Evidence Act a Judge should have power to cross-examine witnesses for the prosecution; and as general rule witnesses should be left by the Court to a pleader to be dealt with as laid down in S. 135 of the Act, if not being the province of the Court to examine witnesses, unless the pleaders on either side have omitted to put some material question or questions.—6 C. 279.
27. Threatening of witnesses by Court.—It is illegal on the part of a Court to threaten witnesses with the penalties of the law unless they are evidently giving wilfully false evidence, or persistently refusing to give evidence of facts which must be within their knowledge—14 A. 212.

290. The accused or his pleader may then open his case, stating the facts or law on which he intends to rely and making such comments as he thinks necessary in the examination and re-examination (if any) may sum up his case.

Notes.

- Duty of the Defence Counsel.—The duty of the defence counsel is to act as an advocate and not to any extent as Judge. He has before him as his object the acquittal of the accused. He is to put himself in the place of the accused and so is not under any obligations which the accused would not be under. Thus he is not obliged to divulge facts with which he may be acquainted but which are unfavourable to the prisoner.—Harris Prin of Cr Law p. 419.
- Counsel in opening should state only facts which he proposed to prove.—It is contrary to the administration and practice of the criminal law that a defence counsel should state to the jury as alleged existing facts matters which the prisoner may be have told them by way of instructions, but which they do not propose to prove by leading evidence. See R v. Shannon 15 Cox C. C. 122. Archbold p. 222.
- Nature of defence should be noted in the minutes.—See Note No. 24 under S. 289.
- Accused not bound to account for his movements.—Unless there has been prima facie sufficient legal evidence to convict an accused of an offence, he would not be bound to account for his movements at or about the time of the commission of the offence. [10 C. 970]. An accused person being merely on the defensive owes no duty to any one but himself. He cannot be convicted merely because he has not tried to explain the circumstances appearing in evidence against him [Rat 686 Rat 5]. The accused in a criminal case is merely on the defensive and unless there is any positive admission of a fact by him omission on his part to explain what indeed can be explained without his explanation should not be pressed against him. [28 B. 333].

- No adverse inference can be drawn on failure of accused to produce his witnesses.—See Note No. 20 under S. 289 above.
- Accused entitled to examine witnesses.—An accused person is entitled to have the witnesses named in his defence examined [2 W. R. 6 3 W. R. 35]. It is illegal to examine the witnesses for the defence in the absence of the accused, [1 B. L. (S. N) 8]. The conviction will be quashed if the accused is not allowed an opportunity to examine material witnesses [3 W. R. 21, 21 W. R. 60].
- Refusal to examine defence witnesses present in Court.—There is no misdirection in a case of false evidence if a Judge points out to the jury the contrast between the evidence for the prosecution and the course followed by the prisoner (namely, a simple denial of the charge coupled with a refusal to examine the witnesses in attendance), so long as the Judge left it to the jury to decide between the opposing statements and to credit whichever they thought most worthy of belief.—2 W. R. 60.

8. Accused person may cross-examine witnesses called by co-accused.—An accused person must be allowed to cross-examine witnesses called by another co-accused for his defence if the case of the other is adverse to that of former—21 C. 401.

9. English Law.—In England an accused person defended by counsel, is not allowed to make a statement in addition to the defence of counsel except under very special circumstances [Reg. v. Rider 8 Car and P. 531.] Nor can a prisoner so defended reserve the right to address the jury [Reg. v. White 2 Camp. 28.]

10. Trial before day fixed is illegal.—The trial of the accused in the absence of the witnesses for the defence and before the day fixed in their summons, is a serious miscarriage of justice or at all events is an irregularity sufficient to prejudice the accused in his defence. In such a case conviction will be reversed and a new trial ordered.—M. H. C. Pro. 1882.

11. Plea of private defence urged by pleader.

—If the accused pleads not guilty, and does not admit the act, but his pleader advances in his argument the plea of private defence the duty of the court is to accept the plea if it appears upon the evidence either from the prosecution or from defence that the act was done by the accused in self-evidence.—1 C. N. 545.

12. Reference to well-known treatises.—

A court will exercise a wise discretion in allowing a well-known treatise such as Taylor on Medical Jurisprudence to be referred to in cases depending upon medical evidence.—10 C. 140; 12 C. L. 80.

291. The accused shall be allowed to examine any witness not previously named by him, if such witness is in attendance; but he shall not, except as provided in sections 211 and 231, be entitled of right to have any witness summoned, other than the witnesses named in the list delivered to the Magistrate by whom he was committed for trial.

Notes.

1. Accused's right to have witnesses named in the list summoned.—Under S. 363 Cr. P. C.

(=S. 291) a prisoner is entitled as a matter of right, to have any witness named in the list, summoned and examined [23 W. R. 66; 15 W. R. 34; 13 W. R. 1; 12 W. R. 22; 2 N. P. 148; See 2 W. R. 6; 3 W. R. 21; 5 W. R. 65.] It is for the accused person and not for the Judge to say what amount of evidence is proper to be placed before the jury in order to establish his case. A Judge cannot refuse to enforce the attendance of certain witnesses on the ground that there is ample evidence on the point. [7 C. N. 156]

2. Right to enforce attendance.—A party has a right to call upon the Court to compel the attendance of witnesses who had been summoned but had neglected to attend—6 C. N. 348; 10 C. 931; Rat 594; See 4 M. 329

3. Adjournments for enforcing attendance.—When process has once been granted against certain witnesses for the defence, the Court is bound to assist the prisoner in causing their attendance, if they fail to appear on the day of hearing. The Court acts arbitrarily in refusing to adjourn the case for the purpose—2 Weir 383; 10 C. 931; Rat 594; 4 B. R. 939; See 12 W. R. 44; 15 W. R. 34; 18 W. R. 20; 23 W. R. 58.

Note.—When the accused has not his witnesses in attendance, the Judge should call on the accused to state the grounds of his defence, and if necessary postpone the case to give time to the accused to produce his witnesses [23 W. R. 68].

4. Witnesses not forthcoming.—Where it was not shown that there were any witnesses forthcoming other than those whom the

Sessions Judge did examine, the High Court refused with reference to S. 363 Cr. P. C. (= S. 291) to interfere with the Sessions Judge's proceeding—12 W. R. 73

5. Witnesses for defence who go against the accused.—When a prisoner makes a distinct statement or any part of it—11 W. R. 9.

6. Witnesses implicated in the charge.—An accused person is entitled to have his witnesses summoned and examined, even if those witnesses were named as implicated in the offence with which the accused is charged.—6 B. L. (np) 65.

7. Witnesses other than those named in the list.—When the accused has refused to give a list of his witnesses, to the committing Magistrate, the Sessions Judge is not obliged to summon any at the trial unless he is satisfied that their evidence is material [19 A. 502] The summoning of the witnesses by the accused person through the Sessions Judge is not a matter of "right" [3 W. R. 29] But a Sessions Judge has an inherent power, if he thinks proper, to summon other witnesses than those named in the list delivered to the committing Magistrate—[6 A. 665]

8. Witness refused by the pleader for the accused.—It is no part of the Judge's duty to examine a prisoner's witness, when his pleader has refused to do so.—(83) A. N. 189.

292. If the accused, or any of the accused, adduces any evidence, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 292 of the said Code, for the words "adduces any evidence" the words "examines any witness under the provisions of section 290" shall be substituted, and the following proviso shall be added to the section, namely:—

"Provided that the prosecutor may in any case, with the leave of the Court, be heard in reply on a point of law."

Notes.

1. The change in the Law.—"We have restored this clause substantially to the form which it had in the Code of 1872 and in the High Court's Cr P Act 1875. We think that the right of reply should depend on the fact whether the accused does or does not produce evidence"—Sol. Com. Rep. The following will show the change in law as between the Codes of 1882 and 1898.

Code of 1882.

If the accused, or any of the accused have stated when asked under S 289 that he means to adduce evidence the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

Code of 1898.

If the accused, or any of the accused, adduces any evidence, the prosecutor shall be entitled to reply.

2. Effect of the change.—Under the Code of 1882, it was ruled that the prosecution was entitled to reply only when the accused had stated, in reply to the question put to him under S 289 of the Code, that he meant to adduce evidence. If during the cross-examination of witnesses for prosecution an accused person put in documentary evidence to support his defence before he had been asked under S 289, whether he meant to adduce evidence the prosecution would have no right of reply [See (190) 17 C 130 (190) 14 B 136 (86) 14 C 215 (84) 10 C 1024 But See (88) 11 M 339 (92) 11 A 212 (93) 16 A 88 the three latter rulings laying down that the Crown had the right of reply, if documentary evidence had been put in by the accused during the examination of witnesses for the Crown, i.e. before the stage of S 289 had been reached]. The words "when asked under S 289" do not appear in the Code of 1898, and there is a conflict of judicial opinion as to the scope of the amended section. For example, the view taken in the rulings in (1906) 30 B. 421 (1906) 10 C N CCLXVII (1907) 4 L B 5 (7), (1904) 8 C N CCIX and (1902) 6 C N CCCIII is the same as that in (88) 11 M 339 and (92) 11 A 212 and (93) 16 A 88 and is in conflict with (1916) 43 C 426 63 P L 1811 (1910) 7 L B 84 (1909) 11 B R 177 and (01) 31 C 1050.

3. Proposed change of Law.—It has been proposed in the Bill to further amend the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898 (No 20 of 1917), to substitute for the words "adduces any evidence" in S 292, the words "examines any witness under the provisions of section 290." The effect of the change will be to settle, once for all, the question whether, the putting in of documentary evidence as exhibits during the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses is adducing evidence within the meaning of S 292.

4. The law as expounded by Beaman J.—"Merely putting in papers through a witness which the accused can fairly get in to his own advantage by cross-examination while the case is in the hands of the prosecution deprives him of his right to the last word. But documentary matter which ought properly to come in as evidence in rebuttal, ought not to be put in during the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution."—11 B R 177

5. Sanderson C. J. on the rule as to right of reply.—"S 292 must be read in connection with S 289 and must be construed accordingly. Reading the two sections together, the right to

for the prosecution is concluded (S 289) The accused does not lose his right of reply, if he gets certain documents exhibited in the case by putting them in, during the cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution" [43 C 426]

6. The Judge's discretion.—"When evidence oral or documentary is adduced by the defence through the mouths of the prosecution witnesses, it is for the Court to decide in each particular case, whether that evidence is such as to take the prosecution by surprise, and to assign the right of reply accordingly, but the Court must exercise its discretion cautiously and sparingly in such circumstances. S 292 is intended to give the right of reply to the prosecution, whenever at any stage, evidence is recorded for the defence, of which prosecution cannot be deemed to have had notice and the prosecution must be presumed to have had notice of all relevant facts with the knowledge of its witnesses.—Per R. Knight Fagure in 1 S 91 [30 B 421 10 C 140 10 C N, eleven R & Holchester 10 Cox 226 R]

Note.—This view is disapproved by Beaman J.,—in 11 B R 177]

7. Hartnoll J. per curiam.—"I am of opinion that it is doubtful as to what meaning should be attached to S 292.—It may have been intended that it should stand in a time relation to S 289, in which case the fact that the defence has put into evidence documentary evidence during the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses would not take away the right to the last word of the defence; on the other hand, it may have been intended that, if the accused produced documentary evidence at any stage of the trial, the prosecutor should be entitled to reply. I incline to the latter view but I consider the matter doubtful. That being so, I am of opinion, that the benefit of the doubt should be given in favour of the accused"—7 L. B. 18.

[Note.—1 L. B. 5 in which the defence was held to have lost the right of reply because the counsel for the accused had put in a newspaper report as an exhibit during the cross examination of defence witnesses was dissented from]

8. Previous statements put in under S 288

Cr. P. C.—In a trial at the High Court Sessions, the accused put in a statement under S. 162 made by him to a police-constable during the cross-examination of a witness and immediately after the case for the prosecution was closed and before he was asked by the Court whether he meant to adduce evidence, put in depositions of certain witnesses for the prosecution taken by the committing Magistrate, for the purpose of contradicting their evidence as given in the Sessions trial Held (Per Gendt J.), that the statement as well as the depositions formed part of the evidence.

B. When some of several accused call evidence.—The law formerly was that where two or more prisoners were charged with distinct offences in the same indictment, the calling of evidence on behalf of one, does not give the Crown a right of reply as against the others [2 Hyd 247. See R. v. Truitt 15 Cox 289 Archbold pp. 223 224; Halsbury's Law of England Vol. IX p. 369 (footnote)] The rule is however thus laid down in 15 B. 361: "Where one of the accused tried jointly, adduces evidence, but the other accused do not, they must all follow one another in their defence under S 290, and the prosecutor will be entitled under S. 292 to reply generally on the whole case."

[Note.—In England, the rule laid down in 15 B. 360; would apply, when the evidence given applies equally to the case of all the accused—See R. v. Hayes 2 Mand Rob 155. R. v. Durr 17 T. L. R. 161].

10. The Reason of the rule.

—Where the defence calls no witnesses, the prosecutor ought not, principle that where the defendant adduces evidence only as to his character, the right of reply, though allowed by law, is in practice never exercised [See Archbold p. 223 Henderson's Cr. Pro p. 661]

11. When the rule applies.

—The right of reply would seem to depend not on what may be said but on what is done, and if no evidence is produced, there should be no right of reply by the Prosecutor.—Rat 938.

12. Private prosecutor's right.

—Their Lordships of the Full Bench hearing a case on review from the Sessions allowed a private prosecutor to reply, he having appeared originally before the Sessions—S C. N. 278.

293. (1) Whenever the Court thinks that the jury or assessors should view the place in which View by jury or assessors. the offence charged is alleged to have been committed, or any other place in which any other transaction material to the trial is alleged to have occurred, the Court shall make an order to that effect, and the jury or assessors shall be conducted in a body under the care of an officer of the Court, to such place, which shall be shown to them by a person appointed by the Court.

(2) Such officer shall not, except with the permission of the Court, suffer any other person to speak to, or hold any communication with, any of the jury or assessors, and, unless the Court otherwise directs, they shall, when the view is finished, be immediately conducted back into Court.

Notes.

1. "Whenever".—But not after the opinion of the assessors or the verdict of the jury has been recorded. If, in the Sessions trial, the Judge should think it necessary or desirable to visit the place of the alleged occurrences, he should give due notice to the parties and should proceed thither with the assessors before the case is closed. [1 C. L. 143]. Once the assessors gave their opinions, it only remained for the Judge to give judgment under 309, subsection 2—[9 Bur T. 133]

2. Observation of the locality by the Judge alone.—It is not competent to the Sessions Judge to take into account any observations of the locality made by him alone after the assessors had given their opinions. If at an earlier stage, he thinks that the assessors should view the place, he may order them to do so.

3. The jury at the view.

up, to view the locus in quo.—Archibold p 221. See R. v. Martin 12 Cox C 201.

4. Judge should not delegate examination of witnesses on the spot to assessors.—In case of a view of the scene of an alleged offence, it is the duty of the officer conducting the jury or assessors to the spot not to suffer any person to speak to them. The Judge therefore cannot delegate to the assessors his own function of examining witnesses on the spot.—5 W. R. 59.
5. If the Jury receives evidence in the absence of the Judge.—Where it is alleged that the jury upon the view have received evidence in the absence of the Judge and of the prisoner, it is for the Court before which the trial takes place to investigate the facts and ascertain whether the alleged irregularity has occurred.—r. v. Martin: L. R. 1 C. C. R 378

6. Object of inspection.—A Court cannot take a view of the locality for any purpose other than that of understanding the evidence adduced in Court. The Court ought, in every case, in which it has held a local inspection, to acquaint the parties with the opinion it has formed.—[Per Woodroffe J] A Court may inspect the locus in quo in cases where he cannot follow or understand the evidence without himself seeing the features of the land, and he does not by merely so doing, disqualify himself from trying the case.—[Per Chatterjee J] in 37 C 310.

294. If a juror or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant fact, it is his duty to inform the Judge that such is the case, whereupon he may be sworn, examined, cross-examined and re-examined in the same manner as any other witness.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—S 294 provides that, if a juror or assessor is personally acquainted with any relevant facts, he must be examined and cross-examined as a witness.—37 C 340
2. Trying Judge as witness.—A person having time. A Sessions Judge is a competent witness

295. If a trial is adjourned, the jury or assessors shall attend at the adjourned sitting, and at every subsequent sitting, till the conclusion of the trial.

Notes.

1. When a trial should be adjourned.—See Note No under S. 291 Supra. As to traversing the case. See Note No. 2 under S. 253 supra.
2. Analogous Law.—Where a prisoner has been put upon his trial, given in charge to the jury, and after the case has been opened, some of the witnesses are found not to be present owing to some unforeseen accident it may be proper to adjourn the trial generally, but where the witnesses are absent owing to some mistake, for example, as to the date of trial, the proper practice is to adjourn the case for reasonable time for the prisoner to be tried by the same jury.—R v. Lewis 22 Cox C 141. See also S. 115 N. Y. Cr Pro Code
3. Continuation of trial commenced before the predecessor.—The Code of Criminal Procedure does not empower a Sessions Judge to try a case partly on evidence not recorded by but, as it is only where a Sessions Judge gave judgment on evidence recorded partly by himself and partly by his predecessor, the High Court pronounced the proceedings void on the ground that the Cr P Code provides specially that a Magistrate may pronounce judgment on evidence recorded by his predecessor and partly by himself, but there is no such provision in the case of Sessions Judges. [3 M 112 21 W R 59 21 W. R 47 W R (Sp) 32 1 P R 1490 7 C P 1]

296. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules as to keeping the jury together during a trial before such Court lasting for more than one day, and subject to such rules, the presiding Judge may order whether and in what manner the jurors shall be kept together under the charge of an officer of the Court, or whether they shall be allowed to return to their respective homes.

Notes.

1. Bombay Rules.—"In every case involving the punishment of death or of transportation for life in which the trial lasts for more than one day, the jury shall be kept together during the trial by the Sheriff or Deputy Sheriff or such other officer as the presiding Judge may appoint for that purpose, and in every other case in which the trial shall last for more than one day, it shall be in the discretion of the presiding Judge whether the jury shall be kept together in manner aforesaid or shall be allowed to return to their respective homes"—Bomb Gaz 1875 pt. I p. 653.

2. Practice before Penal Code came into operation.—By the practice of the Supreme Court at Bombay, before the Penal Code came into operation, on a trial for treason or felony, the Jury (as in England) was kept together during the night under the charge of the officer of the Court, but on a trial for misdemeanour, it was in the discretion of the Judge, whether they should be kept together, or allowed to return to their homes for the night, the latter being generally ing whether the offence under trial would by old, law, have been a felony or misdemeanour.—3 B H 20

3 The English practice.—If the jurors separate without leave, the jury must be discharged and a new trial had.—R. v. Kinnear 3 B. and Ald 452 R. v. Ward 10 Cox 573.

4. American Law.—(1) Jury mingling with the populace.—Where the Jury separated and mingled with the populace during the pendency of the trial owing to the hotel in which they put up at night being destroyed by fire, in a capital case, but the accused refused to assent or waive any right resulting to him from the separation, held that the accused was entitled to a new trial.—Early v. State 28 Am Rep 409. (2) Where no communication is possible.—Where the jury were permitted after the case was submitted to them, to go to a privy 75 yards distant unattended by an officer, but it was not shown that any person did or could communicate with them held that there was no error in procedure.—State v. State 60 Am Rep 70

5. If the accused objects too late.—Even in capital cases if the Court permits the jury to separate before submission of the case and the defendant does not object until after the verdict there is a waiver and the irregularity will be overlooked.—See Henning v. State—65 Am. Rep 756.

F.—Conclusion of Trial in Cases tried by Jury.

297. In cases tried by jury, when the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply (if any) are concluded, the Court shall proceed to charge the jury, summing up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided

Duty of Judge

298. (1) In such cases it is the duty of the Judge—

(a) to decide all questions of law arising in the course of the trial, and especially all questions as to the relevancy of facts which it is proposed to prove, and the admissibility of evidence or the propriety of questions asked by or on behalf of the parties, and, in his discretion, to prevent the production of inadmissible evidence, whether it is or is not objected to by the parties;

(b) to decide upon the meaning and construction of all documents given in evidence at the trial;

(c) to decide upon all matters of fact which it may be necessary to prove in order to enable evidence of particular matters to be given;

(d) to decide whether any question which arises is for himself or for the jury, and upon this point his decision shall bind the jurors.

(2) The Judge may, if he thinks proper, in the course of his summing up, express to the jury his opinion upon any question of fact, or upon any question of mixed law and fact, relevant to the proceeding

Illustrations.

(a) It is proposed to prove a statement made by a person not being a witness in the case, on the ground that circumstances are proved which render evidence of such statement admissible

It is for the Judge, and not for the jury, to decide whether the existence of those circumstances has been proved.

(b) It is proposed to give secondary evidence of a document the original of which is alleged to have been lost or destroyed.

It is the duty of the Judge to decide whether the original has been lost or destroyed.

Duty of jury.

299. It is the duty of the jury—

(a) to decide which view of the facts is true and then to return the verdict which under such view ought, according to the direction of the Judge, to be returned ;

(b) to determine the meaning of all technical terms (other than terms of law) and words used in an unusual sense which it may be necessary to determine, whether such words occur in documents or not ;

(c) to decide all questions which according to law are to be deemed questions of fact ;

(d) to decide whether general indefinite expressions do or do not apply to particular cases, unless such expressions refer to legal procedure or unless their meaning is ascertained by law, in either of which cases it is the duty of the Judge to decide their meaning.

Illustrations.

(a) As is tried for the murder of B :

It is the duty of the Judge to explain to the jury the distinction between murder and culpable homicide, and to tell them under what views of the facts A ought to be convicted of murder, or of culpable homicide, or to be acquitted.

It is the duty of the jury to decide which view of the facts is true and to return a verdict in accordance with the direction of the Judge, whether that direction is right or wrong, and whether they do or do not agree with it,

(b) The question is whether a person entertained a reasonable belief on a particular point—whether work was done with reasonable skill or due diligence.

Each of these is a question for the jury.

Retirement to consider.

300. In cases tried by jury, after the Judge has finished his charge, the jury may retire to consider their verdict.

Except with the leave of the Court, no person other than a juror shall speak to, or hold any communication with, any member of such jury

Delivery of verdict.

301. When the jury have considered their verdict, the foreman shall inform the Judge what is their verdict, or what is the verdict of a majority.

302. If the jury are not unanimous, the Judge may require them to retire for further consideration. After such a period as the Judge considers reasonable, the jury may deliver their verdict, although they are not unanimous.

303. (1) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, the jury shall return a verdict on all the charges on which the accused is tried, and the Judge may ask them questions as are necessary to ascertain what their verdict is.

Verdict to be given on each charge.
Judge may question jury

Questions and answers to be recorded. (2) Such questions and the answers to them shall be recorded.

304. When by accident or mistake a wrong verdict is delivered, the jury may, before or immediately after it is recorded, amend the verdict, and it shall stand as ultimately amended.

305. (1) When in a case tried before a High Court the jury are unanimous in their opinion, or when as many as six are of one opinion and the Judge agrees with them, the Judge shall give judgment accordance with such opinion.
 Verdict in High Court when to prevail.

(2) When in any such case the jury are satisfied that they will not be unanimous, but six of them are of one opinion, the foreman shall so inform the Judge.

(3) If the Judge disagrees with the majority, he shall at once discharge the jury.
 Discharge of Jury in other cases.

(4) If there are not so many as six who agree in opinion, the Judge shall after the lapse of such time as he thinks reasonable, discharge the jury, 306 (1) When in a case tried before the Court of Session the Judge does not think it necessary to express disagreement with the verdict of the jurors or of a majority of the jurors, he shall give judgement accordingly.

 Verdict in Court of Session when to prevail

(2) If the accused is acquitted, the Judge shall record judgment of acquittal. If the accused is convicted the Judge shall pass sentence on him according to law.

307. (1) If in any such case the Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jurors, or of a majority of the jurors, on all or any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, and is clearly of opinion that it is necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court, he shall submit the case accordingly, recording the grounds of his opinion, and, when the verdict is one of acquittal, stating the offence which he considers to have been committed,
 Procedure where Session Judge disagrees with verdict

(2) Whenever the Judge submits a case under this section, he shall not record judgment of acquittal or of conviction on any of the charges on which the accused has been tried, but he may either remand the accused to custody or admit him to bail

(3) In dealing with the case so submitted the High Court may exercise any of the powers which it may exercise on an appeal, and subject thereto it shall after considering the entire evidence and after giving due weight to the opinions of the Session Judge and the jury, acquit or convict the accused of any offence of which the jury could have convicted him upon the charge framed and placed before it, and, if it convicts him, may pass such sentence as might have been passed by the Court of Session.

4.—Re-trial of Accused after Discharge of Jury.

308. Whenever the jury is discharged, the accused shall be detained in custody or on bail (as the case may be), and shall be tried by another jury unless the Judge considers that he should not be re-tried, in which case the Judge shall make an entry to that effect on the charge, and such entry shall operate as an acquittal.
 Re-trial of accused after discharge of jury

Proposed amendment to the section.—In sub-section (2) of section 308 of the said Code, after the word "shall," where it occurs for the second time, the words "unless he proceeds in accordance with the provisions of section 562" shall be inserted

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 307 of the said Code—

(1) In sub-section (1) —

(i) For the words 'the accused' the word, "any accused person" shall be substituted

(ii) After the words "to submit the case," the words "in respect of such accused person" shall be inserted

I. GENERAL RULES OF PROCEDURE.

(1) General Remarks as to procedure.

1. Plea of insanity.—A Judge in his charge to the jury told them that in his judgment the accused was at the time of the trial exhibiting symptoms of unsoundness of mind, and he directed them to find whether the accused was insane at the time he committed the offence Held, that the issue as to whether the accused was of unsound mind at the time of the trial and incapable of properly making his defence, was a preliminary issue to that put by the Judge and should have been first submitted to the jury.—19 W. R. 26. See 19 W. R. 45.

2. Examination of witnesses after the Jury has gone.—It is not competent to a Sessions Judge to examine witnesses in a Jury trial after the Jury has gone and in the absence of the accused, with a view to determine whether he should or not differ from the jury and refer the matter to the High Court.—7 B R 979
3. When the conviction is set aside on the ground of misdirection.—The accused is entitled to have his case retried by a jury and as a matter of procedure and in justice to the accused, this course should be followed.—14 C N 493 4 C N 576 Con 10 M J 147
4. Failure to consult jury on point of evidence is fatal.—In a case of murder, the Sessions Judge after considering the evidence discredited the confession and all the evidence and discharged the prisoner, not considering it necessary that the case should go before a Jury. Held that the Sessions Judge had no right to withdraw the case from the jury and to discharge the accused without taking their opinion as to the weight to be given to the evidence.—16 W. R. 20 See 10 A. 414
5. Identification of stolen property.—A Judge does not misdirect in omitting to enter into details regarding the identification of stolen property.—1 W R 22.
6. Jurisdiction of High Court to send prisoner to jail beyond Presidency town.—In hearing a case under S 307 Cr. P. C. the High Court does not exercise original jurisdiction, but it hears the cases as a court of reference in the exercise of the jurisdiction vested in it by cl 28 of the Charter, and if the accused is convicted and sentenced, he may be ordered to be imprisoned in a jail within the limits of its appellate jurisdiction and beyond the Presidency town.—29 C 256
7. Common law must be warily used. [19 B 719] Under S 263 Cr. P. Code, the functions both of the Judge and of the jury are cast upon the High Court, and this differentiates its position very widely from that of the Courts of England [1 B 10] It is more than doubtful whether the English authorities were present to the mind of the Indian Legislature, when enacting the provisions of the Cr. P. C., specially adopted in India relating to trials by jury [15 B. 452 Per Candy J]

(2) Questioning the Jury (S. 303).

8. Question cannot be put when verdict is unanimous and unambiguous.—The Indian authorities preponderate against questioning jury, where the verdict is general and has been delivered without ambiguity and without impleteness, and where there is no reason to suppose a misconception or disobedience of the law.—Rat 244; 8 C. 751. 9 C 53. 5 C 7 W. R. 22; 19 B 735; 6 B R. 258; Ra 2 A J. 475; 11 Cr. 557 (C); 7 L. B. 140; 2 829 (C). There is no provision in the Code empowers the Judge to question the jury their reasons for an unanimous verdict, there is nothing ambiguous in the verdict and no lurking uncertainty in the minds of the jury themselves regarding it [28 B 412 469. 13 Cr. 556 (M); 36 M. 555. 23 M. J 21 W. R. 1 6 B R 258].

9. Questions as to grounds of verdict.—Law does not prevent a Sessions Judge from asking the jury regarding the grounds of the verdict and such a course is desirable in the interest of justice.—Per Princep J and Garth C J. (A 1 Contra) [21 W. R. 1; 1 C. L. 275; Con 1 R 50]
10. Scope of S. 303 Cr. P. C.—Although S. 303 Cr. P. C. empowers a Judge to ask a jury questions as are necessary to ascertain what verdict is, it was never contemplated that from it, he should proceed as directed by S. 10 C. 140. See Rat 412

11. They find themselves in difficulties which have to be resolved in that way.—Rat 259
12. The law as to questioning the jury.—present law in India is, like that of England designed to secure a certain and complete decision on the matter in issue at the trial; and both Judge and jury have a duty as regards certainty and completeness S. 303 Crim. Pro. Code enacts the doctrine of the English law which is thus stated by Blackburn J in Wainman v. The Queen, (1866) 1 Q. B. 289 (315) "It is the duty of the Judge to take care that the verdict of the jury is perfect, and if the jury have completely failed to answer the questions left to them, he ought to point out the omission and to have it corrected. When, however, the Judge receives an imperfect, the judge has no right to question the jury and to ask them the reason for the jury's verdict. The Court in a reference under S. 307 lean to regard the answers to questions propounded after delivery of the complete verdict [Per Justice J.] The questions referred to in § 303 are only such as are necessary to ascertain what the verdict is. In the absence of any express provision of the law to the contrary, a clear and concise finding of the jury on the main facts should be allowed even though a verdict of not guilty has been delivered.—[Canby J.] in (1890) 15 B 542

13. When the Judge ought to question the Jury.—Where a jury returned a verdict of not guilty of culpable homicide, the Sessions Judge ought to have required them to find expressly whether or not the accused was guilty of any minor offence [2 B R 374 See 12 C N 530, 6 B L (App.) 86 Rat 942] In the case of an ambiguous verdict, it is the duty of the Judge to ask the jury such questions as are necessary to ascertain what the Jury really meant by such verdict. The provisions of § 303 empower him to do so [7 C N. 135 See 30 M 469, 13 Cr. 506 (V), 3 L B. 75] when a special verdict is ambiguous or defective in regard to matters forming part of the offence e.g. intention, knowledge etc it is the duty of the Judge to ascertain its meaning by questioning the jury—[Rat 710] Where it is not clear of which of the several offences with which the prisoner is charged the jury find him guilty, the Judge can put questions to the jury to find this out [8 B L 537]

14. Verdict of "guilty of murder under grave and sudden provocation."—The verdict was in terms a verdict of murder as it did not find that the provocation had destroyed the power of self-control. It is not a necessary consequence of anger or other emotion that the power of self-control should be lost. Whether there was a destruction of the power of self-control should have been ascertained by the Judge by questions addressed to the jury—20 B 215.

15. Questioning with a view to bring out points of variance is improper.—A Sessions Judge is not at liberty to put questions to the jury with a view to bring on record, the points on which his opinion is at variance with the jury—Rat 442 20 B 215 15 B 452 14 B 115

- 15A. juror opposed me of each of 695.

- 15B. Questions and answers must be recorded.—The questions put to the jury and the answers given must be recorded in the exact language used and not merely their substance—S O 739 See 9 M T 315

(3) Miscellaneous rules.

16. Swearing of Jurors.—"The Jurors, shall be sworn under the Indian Oaths Act 1873." See 21 Cr P C.

[Note.—The ruling in 3 B. H. 56 to the contrary was overruled by the Legislature by enacting Sec 281 in the Cr. P Code of 1882—10 B 359; See also 20 W R 119]

17. Failure to consult the jury on a point of evidence before discharging the prisoner.—vitiates the order of discharge. The Sessions Judge has no right to pronounce his own judgment on the credibility of the evidence and to withdraw it from the consideration of the jury—16 W. R. 20 See 6 B R. 671.

18. prisoners with jury or assessors, even, if one of the charges, is not triable by a Court of Session—13 W R 59

19. When Jury are not unanimous.—The Judge is not bound to summon a new jury.—1 W. R. 41

20. When a District ceases to belong to a Division to which Jury trial has been extended.—Jury trial in that district ceases.—8 W R 39 8 W R 53

21. Commissioner of Cooch Behar.—The Commissioner of Cooch Behar has no power to hold a trial by jury in the Goalpara District—8 W R 39 8 W R 53

22. Power of Government.—The Government has power to order that certain person charged with a certain class of offences should not be tried by jury but by the Judge with the aid of assessors—23 M 632

23. Traversing a case.—Where in a Sessions trial the defence asks for a postponement for non-attendance of a summoned witness, the Judge cannot discharge the jury in the middle of the trial and to traverse the case, to be tried by a fresh jury at the following sessions—4 B R 439

II. JUDGE'S DUTY—WITH REGARD TO FACTS.

(1) His duty defined.

24. (1) The Judge must leave the discussion upon questions of facts entirely to the jury
4 C N 196 14 M. T 412 1 W R. 21 21 W R. 72 (86).
25. (2) It is not incumbent upon a judge, to read the whole of the deposition of the witness to the jury
30 C 281. See Rat 580
26. (3) It is the duty of the Judge to sum up the evidence as recorded before him and to state his own reasons for considering a prisoner guilty

7 W R. 25. 13 W. R 34

[Note.—But he must always add that it is for the jury to form their own opinion

10 C 970 25 C 230 Cr R 15 of '65 W R (8p) 5 4 C N 196 34 C 678 35 C. 531 10 C N. 151 7 M 191 M Cr. A 592 of 1905

27. (4) Where there is no evidence.—The Judge ought to charge the jury for an acquittal and not leave the jury to say whether the prisoner is guilty or not—7 W. R. 39. 16 W. R. 19.

28. (7) Judge should avoid expressing any decided opinion upon the facts

1 W. R. 2 1 W. R. 25 W. R. (Sp) 5; 7 C. J. 215

29. (6) Evidence before the Committing Magistrate, unless contradictory of the evidence of the same witness at the Sessions, should not be put to the jury—7 W. R. 72 16 W. R. 19.

(2) Presentation of facts.

30. Presentation of facts—In charging a jury it is the duty of the judge to present the facts in their natural aspect and not to suggest far-fetched explanations of any point—[9 M. J. 380] The Judge should call the attention of the jury to the facts and then leave to them to consider, whether from those facts they conclude that a particular criminal act has been done, and if they so conclude, to direct them that the case comes within a particular section of the Code—[4 C. N. 193]

31. Amplification—If the necessary points in the case are more or less dealt with in the Judge's charge, the mere fact that some of them were not amplified as they might have been, does not amount to misdirection—27 B. 327.

32. What the judge may say—[11 C. N. 115.]

531 34 C. 698 10 C. 970. 25 C. 230

33. Child's evidence—Whether or not the child witness was competent to give evidence within the meaning of S. 14 Act II. of 1853, was a question for the Judge and not for the jury, the jury's duty being confined to a finding as to how much credit is to be given to his evidence—8 W. R. 60.

- 33A. Duty to point out presumptions to be drawn from facts—It is a serious misdirection for a Judge to fail to point out to the jury that recent possession of the murdered man's jewels is a fact from which a presumption may be drawn that the accused is not merely the thief or recover of the stolen property but may also be the murderer.—17 C. N. 1077.

(3) Discussion of evidence etc.

34. How the evidence should be discussed. The duty of the Judge is to point out fairly and candidly the main and salient features of the case from the point of view of the prosecution and of the defence respectively. And in so doing he is entitled to take into consideration the speeches made upon both sides by the crown and the prisoner's counsel in considering his presentation of the evidence to the jury. But he is not bound to discuss every little particular or detail of the evidence on either side—1 Pat. J. 317.

35. Statements of witnesses taken under S. 164 Cr. P. C.—The Judge ought to tell the jury that the evidence of witnesses taken under S. 164 Cr. P. C. must be accepted with caution. He ought to point out that it is not always proper for the police to get such statements recorded for the purpose of pinning down the witnesses to some statement, especially at a time when they are not free from police influence—7 C. J. 240.

36. Police custody—It is the duty of the judge not of the jury to decide the point whether an accused person while making a confession was or was not in the custody of the police—31 M. 127.

37. Verdict on each head of charge—In a trial by a jury, the Sessions Judge ought to call on the jury to return a verdict on each head of a charge. If the trial is for the murder of two persons and the jury return a verdict of guilty, the judge should ascertain whether the verdict relates to the murder of one person or the other or of both. Rat 746

III. JUDGE'S DUTY WITH REGARD TO LAW.

(1) Meaning of "lay down the law."

38. What is meant by laying down the law—Where the Sessions Judge, both before and after summing up the evidence, placed, certain questions of fact before the jury, and directed them that, if they found certain facts proved, they were to convict, and that if on the contrary they found certain other facts proved they were to acquit. Held (Per For C. J. and Robinson J.; Ormond J. dissenting), there was no laying down of the law as required by S. 297, that the essential elements of the offence with which the accused was charged ought to have been explained and that there was a grave misdirection which would not be cured by S. 537.

39. Duty of the Judge in laying down the law—It is not sufficient for a Judge merely to read to the Jury the definition of the offence and to leave it to them to find out whether the evidence made out the case against the accused. It is the duty of the Judge to call the attention of the jury to the different elements constituting the offence and to deal with the evidence by which it is proposed to make the accused liable. Failure to do so amounts to misdirection.—25 C. 711. 25 C. 736. 4 C. N. 193. See 30 M. 4. 8 C. 739. 7 C. N. 188. 6 B. R. 258. 5 L. B. 149. 7 Bur. T. 20.

- 39A. Duty of Judge is to explain the application of the law to the facts—"It is for the Jury to say whether and how far the evidence is to be believed, and if the facts as to which evidence is given are such that from them a further inference of fact may be legitimately drawn, it is for the Jury to say whether that inference is to be drawn or not. But it is for the Judge to determine, subject to review, as a matter of law whether from those facts that further inference may be legitimately drawn"—Lord Blackburn in Metropolitan Ry. Co. v. Jackson (1877) 3 A. C. 193; See 19 C. N. 653 (F. B.)

40. Judge's responsibility.—Where a Sessions Judge in charging the jury under S. 297 Cr. P. C. said: "The accused are charged with offences under Ss. 147, 323 with S. 149, 325 with 149 and 304 with 149. The law bearing on the case has been placed before you more than once in the addresses delivered by the learned pleaders on either side. I need not go into detail as to the law therefore." Held that it was immaterial how much or how often the Jury may have been addressed by the pleaders on both sides upon the law. The responsibility of laying down the law for the guidance of the Jury rested entirely with the Judge and a verdict arrived at by the Jury in the absence of any direction on the law for their guidance by the Judge was invalid.—29 C. 379 19 C. N. 653 (F. B.)

- 40A. Judge should avoid discussion of complicated legal topics.—Where a trial for culpable homicide is proceeding before a Jury, it is not an appropriate mode of laying down the law to discourse on all branches and departments of the complicated topic of crime to do so, I think calculated to confuse the Jury and possibly to direct their deliberations into channels that have nothing to do with the case. The duty of the Judge is to lay down the law in reference to the case presented to the Court and the facts of the case and not to perplex the minds of the Jury with considerations that are outside the legitimate scope of the enquiry. It is I think the duty of the Judge to keep the Jury with proper limits, and for this purpose to simplify as far as he can the issues fairly and properly before the court and direct the minds of the Jurors to those issues and those issues alone.—Per Jenkins C. J. in 19 C. N. 653 (F. B.)

(2) His duty to lay down the law.

41. It is the duty of the Judge in all cases to point out the law to the Jury.—21 W. R. 69 6 B. R. 258. 5 L. B. 149. 29 C. 379 25 C. 736 27 B. 644.

Note.—In doing so, the Judge should adhere to the words of the particular section of the Penal Code with which he has to deal and not substitute phraseology of his own [13 C. N. 754]. But merely reading the sections of the Code which are applicable is not a sufficient explanation.—[4 C. N. 193. 25 C. 736. 25 C. 361. 15 B. 369]

42. Judge should not discuss points of law. A Judge should not discuss points of law in summing up to the jury and he should avoid all extraneous and unnecessary argument, merely summing up the evidence and showing how the law applies to it.—[14 W. R. 87 19 W. R. 71 (79)] But he should give the jury an explanation of the law sufficiently comprehensive to enable them to decide the particular issue [8 C. 739]
43. Construction of Documents.—A Judge ought to explain to the jury the legal construction to be put on a document relied on by the prosecution.—3 W. R. 69

44. Effect of omission to lay down the law.—The omission of the Judge to lay down the law by which the jury are to be guided is usually described as misdirection. But it is something more than that. It is a failure to comply with an express provision of the law and S. 537 is not applicable in such a case.—30 M. 44 8 M. T. 82 5 L. B. 149 25 C. 561.

45. Effect of omission to lay down the law.—The omission of the Judge to lay down the law by which the jury are to be guided is usually described as misdirection. But it is something more than that. It is a failure to comply with an express provision of the law and S. 537 is not applicable in such a case.—30 M. 44 8 M. T. 82 5 L. B. 149 25 C. 561.

46. Effect of omission to lay down the law.—The omission of the Judge to lay down the law by which the jury are to be guided is usually described as misdirection. But it is something more than that. It is a failure to comply with an express provision of the law and S. 537 is not applicable in such a case.—30 M. 44 8 M. T. 82 5 L. B. 149 25 C. 561.

offence—2 B. R. 334.

47. Admissibility of confessions.—It is the duty of the Judge, not of the jury to decide the point whether an accused person, while making a confession was or was not in the custody of the police as it is a matter of fact which is necessary to be proved in order to enable the confession to be admitted in evidence. See S. 298 cl. (b). 31 M. 127 18 M. J. 250 26 M. 38 Sec. R. v. Joyce (1909) 72 J. P. 193.

(3) Laying down the law in respect of specific offences.

48. Distinction between murder and culpable homicide.—Where a prisoner is on his trial upon a charge of murder, it is the duty of the Judge to point out to the jury accurately the difference between murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and to direct the attention of the jury to the evidence and leave them to find the facts (under the direction of the Judge as regards the law) of what offence the prisoner is guilty.—9 W. R. 61; 5 W. R. 80 15 W. R. 17 Cr. R. 30 of 1895. 2 B. R. 334.

49. Both parts of S. 304 should be explained.—A Sessions Judge in summing up should draw the attention of the jury to both parts of S. 304 L. P. C. and ask them to say explicitly under what part they find the accused guilty.—Rat 530 6 B. L. (up) 86 Cr. R. 4 of 1895.

50. Grave and sudden provocation.—In charging a jury on the point of provocation in a case of culpable homicide, the Judge should tell the jury, that to bring the case within the exception to S. 300 L. P. C. the prisoner must have been deprived of the power of self-control by grave and sudden provocation and that there ought to have been sufficient cause for such loss of self control and that the provocation was not voluntarily provoked by the prisoner as an excuse for doing harm.—9 W. R. 72 Cr. R. 30 of 1895. 20 B. 215

51. Intention.—A Sessions Judge in a case of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, omitted to tell them that they must come to a conclusion as to whether in causing the death of the deceased, the accused had the intention of causing death or such injury as was likely to cause death or of the knowledge that he was likely to cause death. Held that such omission was a clear misdirection.—35 C 531.

52. In cases under S. 411 I. P. C.—It is the duty of the Judge to direct the jury to find—(1) whether the property was stolen (2) whether it was dishonestly retained and (3) whether the accused knew or had reason to believe the same to be stolen property [15 B 369. 25 C 711] In a trial by jury of a person charged with dishonest receipt of stolen property, the attention of the Jury should be drawn to the necessity of satisfying themselves that the possession of the stolen property is clearly traced to the accused and that it could not have been placed in the accused's house where it was found by other members of his family [0 B 731 See 21 M 53] But it is not necessary to enter into details regarding the identification of the stolen property. [1 W R 22 (F. B.).]

53. Unlawful assembly.—Although the common object of an unlawful assembly is stated in the charge, the Sessions Judge ought in commenting upon the provisions of S. 149 I. P. C. to draw the attention of the jury expressly to the common object.—29 C 379 34 C 698. 30 M 44

54. Dacoity.—A Judge should explain to the jury what is necessary to constitute the offence of robbery. Where the Judge merely said "the accused are charged with dacoity, dacoity is committed when any number of persons not less than 3 conjointly committed robbery." Held, that there was an omission to lay down the law as required by S 297 and the whole trial was a nullity.—30 M 44. See 1 Weir 446 2 Weir 519

(4) Law as to reception of evidence.

55. Admissibility of retracted confessions. In a trial by jury, it is the duty of the Sessions Judge to determine whether confessions retracted at the trial are admissible. If he finds them irrelevant under S. 24 of the Indian Evidence Act, he should so direct the jury. If there is no evidence on the record showing that they are invalid by reason of any improper inducement or threat, they should go to the jury with a direction that in the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed that they are inadmissible.—Rat 842; 1 W. R. 1 23 B 316 21 M. 83 8 M. 7 372. 20 A. 133.

Note.—When the case hinged solely upon a retracted confession, held there was misdirection in not pointing out to the jury that it was unsafe to rely upon a retracted confession unless corroborated in material particulars. See Weir 507; 509. 510 18 A 78.

56. Hearsay evidence.—The evidence of a person stating, before the jury upon oath, facts which constitute the charge against the prisoner but which he does not know of his own observation and which the jury themselves have to enquire into in order to arrive at their verdict, ought not to be allowed to go to the jury.—10 W. R. 57.

- 56A. For a detailed treatment of the subject See IV. Admission and Relevancy of Evidence (post).

(5) Miscellaneous.

57. Large number of rulings should not be cited before the Jury.—The duty of a Judge in charging the jury in a criminal case, is to tell what the law is as succinctly and clearly as he can. But to cite to the jury a large number of cases which the jury cannot possibly understand is calculated to confuse them and lead to a miscarriage of justice.—1 C. J. 159. 16 C N. 46

- 57A. Hypothetical defence.—It would be a most undesirable practice for a Judge to put his hypoth before the jury.
953 (F. . .)

58. Law as to abetment.—When in a trial by Jury one of the charges against the accused is of abetment, and the Judge omits to direct the jury as to the evidence of abetment and to explain the law on the subject, his omission amounts to misdirection.—21 Cr 775 (C).

59.

60. Where jury settle verdict by casting lots.—Where it is alleged that the verdict of the Jury was arrived at by casting lots and the Sessions Judge held an enquiry into the matter in the course of which he examined, besides all other persons all the jurors.

Held that the statement of a juror as to what happened in the jury room is inadmissible.—40 C. 693.

IV. ADMISSION AND RELEVANCY OF EVIDENCE.

(1) Rejection and admission of evidence.

61. Rejection of defence evidence.—Rejection of important evidence for the defence and admission of evidence without the prisoner having an opportunity of examining an admittedly important witness, vitiates the trial by the jury and the conviction will be quashed.—21 W. R. 18.
62. Reference to documents not legally proved.—Where a Sessions's Judge allowed certain document to go upon the record, which were not proved, for the purpose of comparison of handwriting, and left it to the jury to form their opinion whether the accused wrote the disputed signature, the High Court held that there was no such irregularity as to warrant an interference.—11at 152.

63. Judge to exclude inadmissible evidence.—In trials by jury it is the duty of the Judge to see that evidence which is not admissible in itself should not be allowed to go in, to the prejudice of the accused, whether or not it is objected to on his behalf.—25 C 736.

64. Admission of illegal evidence.—The admission of illegal evidence, in a trial by jury should be dealt with by the Appellate Court on the same principles as a misdirection or omission to give a proper direction [6 B 117]. Where part of the evidence which has been on the record or to quash the verdict and order a new trial 19 B 749. But See 10 L W 379.

[Note.—The fact that the Judge told the jury to put the evidence out of their minds entirely will not cure the verdict.—46 C 895]

(2) Evidence which may or may not go to the jury.

65. Wife's evidence against the husband.—In a criminal trial in the absence of the evidence of a wife is admissible for or against her husband or a person charged jointly with him. B L (Sup) 11 7 B H 50.
66. Hearsay evidence and anonymous letter.—Where a Judge, in his charge to the jury admitted as receivable evidence a hearsay statement against the accused and also an anonymous letter which was put in without an attempt to show how or by whom it was sent, held that the jury had been misdirected [Retrial ordered].—24 W R 77.
67. Hearsay evidence—or evidence which the witness does not give of his own observation should not be allowed to go to the jury specially when the evidence is presented to them in the form of written deposition.—10 W R 57 18 M J. 250.
- 67A. Inadmissible evidence obtained on commission.—Where such evidence is allowed to go to the jury but it did not appear that the accused was prejudiced—the High Court upheld the verdict.—Cr R 11 of '95.
68. Statements not admitted by witnesses.—In a trial for murder, the Judge read to the Jury statements purporting to have been taken under S. 364, but which had not been admitted in the course of their depositions by G. and M. the two principal prosecution witnesses, (to whom pardon had been given under S 337 Cr P C) Held that the improper reception of such evidence constituted a decision erroneous in point of law calculated to prejudice the prisoner 17 C 612. See 27 B 626.

69. Admission of Documentary evidence without legal proof.—Where in order to meet the defence of alibi set up by the prisoner the prosecution put in and the Court admitted in evidence two endorsements by a stamp vendor on two pieces of stamp-paper, although no evidence was adduced to prove that the prisoner had signed them, held that the documents should not have been received in evidence and the Judge in directing the Jury to consider the effect of the endorsements had clearly misdirected them.—3 B L 43.
70. The words "in any case."—The words "in any case" in S 167 Evidence Act are wide and include criminal trials by jury 19 B 749.
71. Bare statements of prisoners.—Bare statements of prisoners are not admissible in and ought not to be alluded to by the Judge as evidence. Nor evidence taken before the Magistrate unless contradictory of the evidence of the same witnesses as given before the Sessions Court is evidence in the trial or proper to be put to the jury 7 W R 72.
72. Evidence before committing Magistrate.—A Judge should not refer to evidence before the committing Magistrate without making the depositions exhibits in his own proceedings. Rat 924.
73. Reference by the judge statements not admitted in evidence in charge to the jury.—Improper reception of such evidence by the jury constitutes an erroneous decision in point of law.—17 C 612 27 B 626.
74. Dying declaration subsequently retracting.—Where the complainant retracted after making a dying declaration and in her subsequent examination at the trial denied that she recognized her assailant held that it was a previous misdirection to allow the dying declaration to go to the jury.—21 Cr 183 (C).

V. THE SUMMING UP OF THE EVIDENCE.

(1) Evidence to be set out in detail.

75. Evidence to be set out in detail.—A Sessions Judge, in summing up to the jury should be careful to set out the evidence fully and should record in his charge what evidence he does read to them [Rat 919 820 5 B H (C C) 85 9 W R 51]. Where the Sessions Judge did not sum up the evidence to the jury calling their attention to the material facts in it, leaving them to form their opinion on it, but only treated it generally and called it "very poor evidence" which "standing alone amounted to nothing" held that the charge was defective [23 B 316].

Note. But in omission to read material portions of the evidence is not in itself sufficient for the reversal of a verdict of the jury if such omission has not prejudiced the accused.—5 B H 257 19 B 719 74 12 14 W R 66 10 B C 197 27 B 626 (GB) Rat 614 86 38 102.

76. Extraneous matters should not be discussed.—A Judge should not discuss points of law in summing up to the jury, and he should avoid all extraneous and unnecessary arguments, merely summing up the evidence, and showing how the law applies to it.—8 W R 87.

77. Evidence on both sides to be placed.—The Judge is bound to sum up the evidence for the defence as well as for the prosecution, this being essential to a proper charge to the jury. [Rat 720.] A Judge in summing up should give a full and detailed statement of the evidence on both sides; he should point out its legal bearing and what weight the jury ought to attach to several parts.—5 B. H. (C. C.) 85, 19 B. 711, Rat 748, 806, 13 W. R. 23, 14 W. R. 66; 10 W. R. 7.

(2) When the summing up may be shortened.

78. Where rival contentions have been put before jury with elaboration and skill by the advocates on both sides.—The Judge may shorten his summing up but he cannot omit reference to matters of prime importance especially if they favour the accused, merely because they have been discussed by the advocate. 27 B. 626; 27 B. 644, 3 S. 102, 29 C. 379.

(3) Object of summing up.

79. Object of summing up.—The C. P. does not contemplate the reception of a verdict from the jury without their having the assistance of a summing up by the judge, since a careful summing up may often change the hasty and superficial impression of a jury.—Rat 268.
- 79A. Maturity of understanding of the accused.—The omission to refer the question of the maturity of understanding of an accused to the jury as ground for setting aside a conviction.—Rat 27.

(4) Judge should refrain from expressing decided opinion.

81. Evidence how to be placed.—In charging a jury a judge can express his opinion as to the evidence but in doing so, he must always add that it is for the jury to form their own opinion [10 C. 970, 25 C. 320, 13 C. N. 153, 7 C. J. 246; 7 C. J. 589, 4 C. N. 186, W. R. (sp) 5].
82. A Judge in charging the jury should avoid expressing any decided opinion.
83. When the Judge should charge for acquittal.—Where there is no evidence against a prisoner the Judge ought to charge the jury for an acquittal, and not leave the jury to say whether the accused is guilty or not.—7 W. R. 39.
84. The Judge may state his own impression jury on questions of fact and may tell the jury the impression which the evidence has made upon his own mind. [13 W. R. 31, 4 C. N. 186].

(5) Judge's duty with regard to the evidence.

85. — in arranging the jury in the witness-box should have put to the jury, was pronounced defective, and a verdict founded thereon was set aside [10 W. R. 7].
86. Circumstantial evidence.—In cases of very serious offences and where the evidence is merely circumstantial, it should be read over in extenso to the jury.—5 B. H. 85.
- [Note.—But where the trial is a long one, the Sessions Judge does not act illegally in reading to the jury only the important testimonies at the trial.—[Rat 850].
87. In cases where there are several accused.—It is of the utmost importance in cases where several accused persons are being tried together, on evidence which is not identical, that the evidence affecting each individual accused should be clearly and carefully placed before the jury and their attention should be prominently drawn to the considerations by which they may properly be guided in estimating the value of such evidence as against each accused.—29 C. 782.
88. In capital cases.—In capital cases, and all cases of a serious or complicated nature, the Judge ought to read over the evidence in extenso to the jury.—5 B. H. 85.
89. Absence of evidence.—Where the judge omitted to point out the absence of evidence very material to the case of the prosecution and directed the jury to attribute an undue importance to the statements and excuses made by the prisoner in the explanation of certain documents, the High Court set aside the verdict. 23 W. R. 21.
90. Evidence of character.—Evidence of character and previous conduct of a prisoner, being matters of prejudice and not direct evidence of facts relevant to the charge against the prisoner ought not to be allowed to go to the jury. 10 W. R. 17, 10 W. R. 39; 6 B. L. (ap) 105, 19 W. R. 16, 2 B. R. 125.
91. Statements of witnesses under S. 164.—In a trial by jury the Judge ought to tell the jury that the evidence of witnesses taken under S. 164 of the Cr. P. C. must be accepted with a great deal of caution. He ought to point out that it is not always proper for the police officer to get such statements recorded for the purpose of pinning the witnesses down to some statement, especially at a time when they are not free from police influence.—7 C. J. 246.
- 91A. Plea of alibi.—Omission by the Judge to refer to the plea of alibi of the accused and to the serious Judge in summing up, is bound to advise a care, accept it with the greatest caution, consider it in the light of the circumstances in which it is given and in the light of all the other circumstances in the case of which evidence is legally admissible. Then if you believe it, act on it even if there is no corroboration in the strict sense of the word. If you do not believe it, reject it"—See 9 A. 328 (F. B.); 1 M. 394; 27 M. 271. See also Taylor's Evidence (10th Ed.) § 967; Phillips Ev. L. 32; Archibald p. 156; Russell on Crimes (7th Ed.) pp. 228 & 229; Halsbury's Laws of England Vol. IX, 408.

[Note.—This view follows the dictum of Edge C. J. in 9 A. 328 (F. B.)]

"A Judge would advise the jury that it would be unsafe to act upon, in other words believe the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, as he would advise the jury not to act upon the evidence of any other witness whose evidence might from any cause be open to suspicion. But in either case, he would tell the jury that if they believed the evidence, they might legally convict the prisoner."

100. The English Law.—A Judge should direct a jury to acquit if the evidence of the accomplice is not corroborated.

See R. v. d P. 272: In case there is a failure to do so will be a ground for quashing the conviction.

[R. v. Tate (1935) 2 K. B. 680; R. v. Beuchamp (1907) 73 J. P. 224.] But where there is in fact corroboration, the failure of the Judge to enjoin the jury is not fatal [R. v. Warren (1909) 73 J. P. 359]. Where there is a doubt if the witness is an accomplice or not, the Judge should direct the jury that his evidence should be carefully scrutinized. [R. v. Kirk (1910) 73 J. P. 406].

101. The question of identity.—"A man who has been guilty of a crime himself will always be able to relate the facts of the case, and if the confirmation be only on the truth of that history without identifying the persons, there is really no corroboration at all" [R. v. Fuller (1837) 5 C. and P. 106. 12 O. C. 418; 12 Cr. 537 (1) 2 Weir 796]

102. What amounted to misdirection:—

(1) Where the Judge while warning the jury not to convict upon the evidence of G. H. if they believed him to be an accomplice, expressed a strong opinion that he was not an accomplice—17 C. 642 (F. B.)

(2) Where the Judge while warning the jury in his summing up, said that the evidence of the accomplice had been corroborated by a fact which was no corroboration at all—See 29 C. 752; 5 W. R. 80 [F. B.] (45); 8 W. R. 19 (17); 8 C. 970; 17 C. 642; 2 C. N. 672; 10 Cr. 567 (W)

(3) Where the Judge incorrectly laid down the law as to corroboration—11 B. H. 196; 1 B. 475; 10 B. 231; 14 B. 331; 25 C. 339; 23 W. R. 24; 19 W. R. 57; 15 C. J. 323; 5 A. 120 (137)

103. If the Jury convict upon uncorroborated testimony.—It is no doubt the practice of the Judges, when the testimony of an accomplice is not confirmed, to recommend the jury not to give credit to his testimony. At the same time it is to be observed that if the Jury notwithstanding the recommendation believes the testimony of the accomplice, the want of corroboration, is no legal objection to the verdict—3 Knapp 349 (359) have finished addressing the jury.—36 M. 585.

105. Method to be followed.—In charging a jury a Judge is not bound to do more than lay carefully and plainly before them, the evidence as recorded by him, noting the discrepancies, and inconsistencies and pointing out generally the way in which it is favourable or unfavourable to accused—25 W. R. 51 importance in favour of the accused must be placed before the jury.—6 B. R. 31; 6 W. R. 72.

106. Charge in the mofussil.—In reviewing the charge of a Judge to a jury in the mofussil, it is sufficient to see whether the tendency of the charge, taken as a whole has given a correct or incorrect direction to the mind of the jury and it is not correct to apply to such charge the criticism which would apply to a charge of a Judge in England—12 W. R. 80; See 4 C. N. 196; 10 B. H. 75

107. Mode of charging the Jury.—In charging a jury, a Judge is not bound to do more than lay carefully and plainly before them the evidence as recorded by him, noting discrepancies and inconsistencies, and pointing out generally the way in which it is favourable or unfavourable to the accused.—[25 W. R. 54; See 10 B. L. (ap) 35] It is the duty of the Judge in charging the jury to give a narrative and history of the case and to place the facts and evidence in a clear manner before the jury, so as to enable them to grasp the details and come to a right decision. All the facts of prime importance in favour of the accused must be placed before the jury. [6 B. R. 31; 23 C. N. 633] It is the duty of the Judge to state to the jury what are the principal points in the evidence and how they bear for or against the prisoner in short to render the jury every assistance in his power towards coming to a right conclusion [6 W. R. 72] A Sessions Judge in charging a jury should endeavour to speak in a simple and direct manner. The charge to the Jury should not be involved and the language should not be extravagant so that the jury may not experience any difficulty in appreciating its true intention and meaning.—11 Cr 538 (C)

107A. When the Judge should charge for an acquittal.—Where there is no evidence against a prisoner the Judge ought to charge the jury for an acquittal and not leave the jury to say whether the prisoner is guilty or not.—7 W R. 39

107 B. Charge should contain facts pro and con.—A charge should contain a statement of the evidence Pro and Con with a running commentary as to its agreement or disagreement with the other facts of the case.—1 W R. 25 1 W R. 2.

[Note.—Where a Judge's charge to a jury is calculated to confuse them, the verdict of the jury cannot be allowed to stand.—21 Cr 829 (C)]

108. Instance of a wholly insufficient charge.—A Sessions Judge charged the jury "You have heard the evidence. Do you find the accused guilty or not." Held that the charge was wholly insufficient and the accused was to be tried again before another jury.—(102) A N 201

109. Duty of the Judge in a protracted trial.—Where a trial by the Jury has lasted over several days, the record must show that the Sessions Judge read over the testimonies in extenso in his charge to the Jury.—Rat 850

110. Charge not to be of involved nature understand is calculated to confuse them and to lead to a miscarriage of justice.—1 C J 159

111. Far-fetched explanation.—In charging a jury the Judge should not suggest far-fetched explanations. He should call attention to the facts as they stood in their natural aspect.—3 M 1 350. See 4 C N 193 4 C N 196

(2) Duty of the Judge in joint trial of accused.

112. It is of the first importance in cases where several accused persons are being tried together on evidence which is not identical that the evidence affecting each individual should be clearly and carefully placed before the jury and that their attention should be primarily drawn the considerations by which they may properly be guided in estimating the value of the evidence as against each accused.—29 C 782 2 Weir 517 See 11 Cr 538 (C) 17 Cr. 19 (M)

Note.—In a joint trial of two persons if the Judge in summing up the case to the jury does not properly distinguish between the evidence against each, the conviction will be set aside.—See 2 Weir 509; R v. Beauchamp (1899) 73 J. P. 223

113. Different trials in respect of the same crime.—Where different trials are held at different times and against different prisoners in respect of the same crime, a new charge specifying the particulars required by circular order

20 A 133 2 Weir 507 509 510

115. Admissibility of confessions.—In a trial by jury, it is the duty of the Judge to direct the jury to disregard confession which he finds to be irrelevant under S 24 of the Indian Evidence Act to be presumed that they are inadmissible.—Rat 842 6 C 272 25 C 711 6 B H. (CC) 10 See 11 B H 137. 20 W R 35

115 A. Confessions.—It is a misdirection for a Judge to leave the Jury to decide whether certain statements or confessions made by the accused and how much thereof are admissible in evidence. It is for the Judge to admit or exclude evidence in accordance with the law on the subject and for the Jury to weigh and value the evidence admitted.—Leannon J in 45 C. 557.

115 B Confession's of co-accused.—Where the Judge omits to invite the Jury to consider carefully the statement of the accused with reference to the charge framed against him, and also when the Judge omits to advise the Jury as to the attitude to be taken towards a retracted confession against a co-accused, there is misdirection. [21 Cr 775 (C)] 18 M J 250 25 C 711 6 B H (C) 10 5 W R 80 See 1 B R 784 15 B R 975 Rat 108 10 B H (CC) 497 1 A 664 22 A 415.

It is the duty of the Judge when there is no other evidence than the confession of a co-accused to warn the jury that it should not be acted upon and tell them to acquit the accused. Omission to do is misdirection.—4 C 183 (F.B.) 15 B R 975 33 M 16 1 M 163 7 M H (appx) 15 5 M T 375 See 15 B 66 38 C 559

(4) The charge in relation to specific offences.

116. Forgery.—The Judge, in the case of an offence S 473 and 475 P C after stating that the documents were admitted by the defence to be forgeries, told the jury that the only issue they had to decide was whether the forged documents were in the possession of the accused and if they found this issue in the affirmative they must find the accused guilty. Held that the charge was defective and misleading and was in violation of the requirements of S 207 16 B 165.

117. Case of dacoity.—In a case of dacoity, the Judge should direct the jury to convict only if they find that all the prisoners had the intention of committing wrongful loss to the prosecutor.—M. R. (1) 8.

118. In trials for murder.—The offence of murder being highly important, the Judge in discharge to the jury should discuss the evidence fully.

In capital cases, and all cases of a serious and complicated nature the Judge ought to read over the evidence in extenso to the jury—5 B. II. 85.

- 118 A. Murder.—In the case of murder the Judge is bound to point out the difference between murder and culpable homicide not amounting to murder and to direct the attention of the jury to the evidence and to leave them to find the facts and say in the light of his direction, of what offence the prisoner is guilty.—9 W. R. 51. Cr. R. 30 of '95 See Rtt 530

119. Illustration (a) to Sec. 209.—The illustration (a) to S. 209 is not to be taken as an express enactment laying down any substantive proposition of the law [3 L B 75 (overruled)] where the facts in the case are consistent only with an intention to cause death or to cause bodily injury sufficient intention. It is only in doubtful cases that the Judge would be bound to explain the law as to the minor offence as well as the major offence—8 L B. 306 (F. B.).

120. Criminal Breach of trust.—A Judge is bound to expressly tell the jury that the test they were to apply was whether the circumstances of the case showed an intention of causing wrongful gain or wrongful loss and what those circumstances—7 Bar T 20

121. False evidence.—In a case of false evidence the Judge need not in his charge show how the false statements, even if made intentionally, are material to the case.—6 W. R. 84. See 10 C L 4.

122. Abetment of forgery.—As to how a Judge ought to charge the jury in the case of abetment of forgery by presence—See 5 W. R. 65

123. Habitual theft.—The Judge should in this charge put clearly to the jury the following—(1) The need of proof of association (2) the need of proving that the association was for the purpose of habitual theft and (3) habit must be proved by an aggregate of acts

6 M II 120

124. Riot.—"In a case of riot it is essentially necessary to mention what an unlawful assembly is. The jury are not experts in law. They might not be able to distinguish between a collection of five or more men without a common object and a collection of the same number of men with a common object"—17 Cr. 62 (C)

125. Trespass.—A Judge in charging a jury in a case of criminal trespass ought to explain to them the distinction between Civil and Criminal trespass. An omission to do so amounts to misdirection.—11 C. 102.

126. Unlawful assembly.—The Session Judge should in commenting upon the provisions of S. 114 draw the attention of the jury to the common object.—24 C. 179.

(5) Special directions in the charge.

127. Recommendation to mercy.—A Judge ought not to introduce into his direction to the jury, any question as to recommending a prisoner to mercy, but should leave that entirely to the jury—14 W. R. 46.

128. The benefit of the doubt.—A Judge is bound to qualify his remarks as to the absence of defence evidence by pointing out to the jury that the defence was not bound to call any evidence and that if they entertained any reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the accused, they were entitled to have the benefit of the doubt and should be acquitted 11 Cr. 577 (C); 2 Weir 500 See R. v. Tynning 2 B. and Ald 386. Re Hobson 1 Lew C C 261 Re Bland 18 St Tr. 1180; 11 C. N. 1065; 21 Cr 601 (C); 1 M T. 350.

- 128B. Absconding of the accused.—The Judge should point out to the Jury that absconding is a matter which is equally consistent with innocence as with guilt and that it could be considered only in connection with the rest of the evidence and that it is itself the circumstances of no weight—11 Cr. 557 (C)

129. Chemical Examiner's Report.—A Sessions Judge is bound to warn the jury that before using the Chemical examiner's report, they must be satisfied on the evidence that the substances examined were in fact what they were said to be—18 C N. 180

130. Insanity.—Where in the opinion of the Judge the accused was exhibiting symptoms of insanity at the time of the trial, the Judge should in his charge, place the question whether the accused was capable or not of making his defence as a preliminary issue.—19 W. R. 26.

131. Provocation.—The Judge ought to tell the jury that to bring the case within the exception to S. 300. P. O. (1) the prisoner must have been deprived of the power of self control by grave and sudden provocation (2) that there ought to have been sufficient cause for such loss of self-control and (3) that the provocation was not voluntarily provoked by the prisoner as an excuse. 9 W. Search.—The omission to bring to the notice of the jury the fact that the police to mis- of the clearly o the accused and satisfying themselves that it could not have been placed in the house by the other members of the family, [6 B R 731.] It is unfair for the Judge in his charge to the jury to charge a constable with breach of police regulations without examining him about it and where it was not alleged that his body was not examined before the search.—21 M. 83.

133. Omission to Examine a eye-witness.—The Judge should point out to the jury that from the omission to examine the eye-witness (the only witness who could give direct evidence of the crime) in a case in which the evidence is wholly circumstantial they would be justified in drawing an inference adverse to the prosecution. If he fails to do so, he misdirects, the Jury 21 C. N. 1152. [8 C. 121 Fd.]

(1) Duty of the Jury defined.

145. (1) It is in the province of the jury to weigh the evidence as to the truth or falsity of evidence and to judge of the intention—3 W R 58 2 Weir 346 14 M T 412

146. (2) The function of the jury is to ascertain the facts upon the evidence before them and for that purpose to be guided by the law which is applicable and which had been pointed out to them by the Judge.—21 W. R. 69

147. (1) The jury should take the law from the Judge. They cannot resort to a commentary on the law during their mutual consultation about the verdict, 6 B R 278

148. (1) The question of proof of previous conviction is one of fact and must be determined by a jury, —21 W R 19

(2) Sufficiency of evidence.

149. Child-witness.—The jury is not competent to decide whether a child is competent to give evidence or not. They can only decide what amount of credit is to be given to his statements

8 W. R. 60.

150. Maturity of understanding of the accused is a question to be decided by the jury. The omission to refer the matter to the jury is a serious defect.—Rat 27.

151. Proof of facts.—It is for the jury and not the Judge to say what facts are or are not proved—
4 C N. 576 4 C N. 196.

152. Thumb-impressions.—The question as to the identity of thumb impressions is eminently a matter for the jury and not for the Judge
1 C J 385

A Jury is not bound to accept, the opinion of an expert upon thumb-impressions without corroboration of their own intelligence as to the reasons which guided him to his conclusions—32 C. 759

153. To form independent opinion.—The law requires a jurymen to exercise his own understanding on the case submitted to him. He should not follow blindly the opinion of his fellows. Where this is not done, the verdict is vitiated [25 W. R. 4 5 C 875]

153A. Duty of the jury to come to a definite conclusion as to the guilt of the accused.—Before the jury convict an accused of the offence with which he is charged, they must come to a certain conclusion on the matters brought before them. These matters must appear to them to leave no reasonable doubt, and prove with certainty that the accused and the accused alone could have been the man who committed the offence. By "certainty" is not meant that juries are not to act upon evidence unless it puts them in the position of having actually seen the thing done, but that they have to be satisfied upon the whole evidence beyond reasonable doubt—Per Fox C J in 13 Cr 329 (L B)

154. As to their decision.—Jurors are expected to give the best of their brains to the consideration of the matters brought before them and to give a sound and honest decision. Before the jury convict the accused of the offence with which he is charged, they must come to a certain conclusion on the matters brought before them 12 Cr. 329 (L B).

155. Verdict against each individual accused.—The Jury have to give their verdict on the facts as against each accused severally for they are not like the Judge in charge of the entire case as a whole—16 C N. 909.

(3) Distinction between function of Judge and Jury.

156. The Jury should take the law from the Judge.—In cases tried at the Sessions the jury are not entitled to resort to a commentary on the law during their consultation about the verdict. The duties of the Judge and the jury are made clear in 8s 298 and 249 Cr. P C. The jury should take the law from the Judge.—6 B. R. 238. See R v Parish 8 C and P 94 Gregory v Tuffs 1 C M. and R. 310. also Jayath Singh 14 C 164

157. Distinction between the functions of the Judge and jury with regard to evidence.—The question what the jury are to receive is for the Judge what they are to believe is for the jury. [Rat 452] It is the province of the jury to weigh the evidence as to its truth or falsity and to judge of the intention with which the offence is committed [3 W. R. 568] "what a Judge says to a jury upon the law is an absolute and binding direction on them. What he addresses to them upon the facts are only such observations as he thinks necessary and proper in assisting them to arrive at a conclusion upon the evidence which is wholly in their province to deal with as they think"—Per Markby J. [20 W. R. 41]

VIII. POWERS OF THE JURY.

(1) The Province of the Jury.

158. The provinces of the Jury.—It is in the province of the jury to decide the credibility of witnesses. It is for them to decide the question of intention. 25 W. R. 25. 3 W. R. 58

159. Finding of guilty of a lesser offence.—The Jury may ignore the grave charges and find the accused guilty of a lesser offence on the evidence. 3 W. R. 41 22 W. R. 51. 23 W. R. 61

Note.—In a trial for robbery it is competent to the jury if they disbelieve the evidence as to the assault to bring in a verdict of theft [2 W. R. 13] or in a case of murder, a verdict of culpable homicide not amounting to murder [20 B 215. See Rat 982] or in a case of decency, return a verdict of guilty as regards charge of theft involved in that of decency. [10 B R 632] A Jury is competent to convict the accused of the offence of attempt to commit rape, after holding that the charge of rape had not been established against the accused [13 O. C. 225]

(2) Special verdict.

160. (1) Grave and sudden provocation.—Although the charge was only one of murder, the jury had a right to bring in a verdict of culpable homicide, if there was grave and sudden provocation so as to deprive the prisoner of self-control.—20 B 215

(2) To add to a verdict.—The Jury have the right to add words to their verdict after it is delivered in order to bring out its meaning. The Judge has no power to stop them if they attempt to do so—30 C 485

161. Special verdict.—The Jury may return a special verdict. It is optional with them to do so. If they chose to do so it should be on naked facts.—15 B. 512. 19 B 735; Rat 710. 20 B 215

(3) Miscellaneous.

162. The jury may refuse to answer questions put them by the judge.—15 B 152

68. Power to convict of offence other than charged.—The jury is competent to return a verdict of guilty with respect to an offence with which the accused was not formally charged—[13 O O 235]
34. Finding accused guilty of an offence other than charged.—A Jury is not competent to convict on accused charged with an offence under S. 397 I. P. C. of offences under S 380 and 459 I. P. C. and abetment thereof as the latter offences are not minor offences within the meaning of S. 215 Cr P C.—Rat 211
- 34A. Physical condition of the accused as belying the prosecution case.—In a case under Ss 147 and 325, some prosecution witnesses proved that the accused had given order to beat. The accused put in a written statement saying that he was 75 years of age, infirm and old and physically incapable of participating in a riot. The Jury saw the physical condition of the accused and came to a conclusion that he was incapable of taking part in the riot and declared him not guilty. held that the verdict of the jury was to be preferred to the testimony of the witness. It is competent to the jury to decide whether a person of the accused's physical condition was capable of taking part in a riot—6 C J 253

IX. MISDIRECTION AND NON-DIRECTION.

(1) Misdirection Defined.

65. The expression misdirection as used in the Criminal Procedure Code included not only an error in laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided but also an error in summing up the evidence, for a defective summing up of evidence is an infringement of S 247 Cr P C and therefore a mistake of law—3 S 102 25 C 501, See 5 B R 85 27 B 544 jury as regards, such statements, held that this amounted to a misdirection—25 C 711

(3) Omission to direct the attention of the jury.

(2) Non-direction is not necessarily misdirection.

66. As a general rule, non-direction, by the Judge does not amount to misdirection and the High Court will not interfere unless the circumstances were such as to make the non-direction amount to misdirection. Rat 644 22 B 528 (P.C.) 21 Cr 33 (F.B.) 3 S 102, 20 W, R. 41, See 25 C 561, 1 Pat J 317.

168. Omission to explain the law.—Where a Sessions Judge did not explain to the jury as to what was meant by theft but asked them to decide whether the accused was at the place of theft and whether he was there with an honest dishonest intention, held—there was misdirection and the verdict ought to be set aside—6 M T. 321 See 31 C 698 25 C 561 8 C 739, 5 L B. 149 2 Weir 500

Note.—A non-direction is not a misdirection unless it is on a matter of prime importance, and especially if it tells in favour of the accused—[3 S 102] "Mere non-direction is not necessarily misdirection. Those who allege misdirection must show that something wrong was said or that something was said which would make wrong that which was left to be understood. Every summing up must be regarded in the light of the conduct of the trial and the questions which have been raised by the prosecution and defence respectively." Per Lord Alverstone C J in R v Stoddart 25 T. L. R 612

67. When non-direction amounts to misdirection.—When the Judge omitted to direct the jury that the discovery of blood stained ornaments belonging to the deceased in the room of the accused, if believed, was a fact from which the Court might presume not merely theft or receipt of stolen property but also murder with which the accused was charged. Held that this was a serious omission detracting materially from the value of the verdict [17 C N 1077] Statements made by some of the accused persons if they do not amount to confessions and which do not in any way incriminate the persons making them, are not admissible in evidence against any person other than those making them. Where a Judge gave no such direction to the

169. Omission to explain the exceptions to S. 300 I. P. C.—Where the Judge did not explain to the jury in clear terms, the exceptions 1, 2 and 4 to S 300 I. P. C. and as to whether any of the intentions mentioned in the section were established against any of the accused—held there was misdirection. 9 B R 153 See 35 C 531.

170. Omission to refer to the plea of alibi—and the evidence bearing on the plea, in the charge to the Jury, is misdirection—18 M J 541, 3 S 125

171. Omission to warn the jury that statement of one prisoner is not evidence against others. The omission of the Sessions Judge to warn the jury that the statement of one prisoner is not evidence against his fellow prisoners is a material error and a misdirection fatal to the trial, notwithstanding that the Sessions Judge dealt with the evidence against each of the prisoners separately. 10 C N 153 [6 B R 10 (Ed.) 18 M J 250 Cr R 24 of 13 6, 89 G W R. 17 [Note For other cases See 22 C N. 572]

172. Omission to refer to "benefit of the doubt"—Omission to tell the jury that if they had a reasonable doubt in every point the accused was entitled to the benefit of that doubt, is a misdirection 31 C 698 See Note No 125 above

173. Omission to explain medical evidence.—In a case of grievous hurt the omission of the Judge to refer to the medical evidence that the injuries were not dangerous to life in the case of a man of ordinary health is misdirection. [110]

174. Failure to caution re confessions.—Where the Judge does not caution the jury that the confession of an accomplice should be corroborated in material particulars before it could be accepted,—held—this amounted to a misdirection—33 M 46 2 Weir 307 2 Weir 519. 8 W. R 19 6 W. R. 44 27 M 271. 21 Cr 775 (C).

175. Failure to warn the jury.—That the case of each individual accused must be considered separately and that a confession by one accused involving himself alone could not be used against the others, amounts to misdirection—18 M T. 250. See 10 C N 153 6 B H 10

175A. Failure to explain what is robbery.—Where the judge did not explain to the Jury what is necessary to constitute the offence of robbery held—there was misdirection, and S 637 did not cure—30 M 14. 8 M T. 82.

176. Omission to refer to enmity between the parties.—Where the Judge omitted to place before the jury the evidence of enmity between the parties and to ask them to consider whether they could draw any inference from it against the prosecution case, held there was misdirection—2 L W 933 was committed was found in the house of the first accused's father but the first accused had stated that he did not live there but in the house of his mother-in-law (2) the common nature of the article and the extreme difficulty of identifying it (3) that the weapon was stained with marmalade blood which was not necessarily human and that the defence was under no obligation to adduce evidence on the point, held, there was misdirection—(15) M N 544.

177. Omission to state that the accused was found in the house of the first accused's father but the first accused had stated that he did not live there but in the house of his mother-in-law (2) the common nature of the article and the extreme difficulty of identifying it (3) that the weapon was stained with marmalade blood which was not necessarily human and that the defence was under no obligation to adduce evidence on the point, held, there was misdirection—(15) M N 544.

178. Omission to draw attention to important facts in favour of the defence.—Where the Sessions Judge in his charge to the jury, did not give a correct representation of facts appearing in the evidence and omitted to draw the attention of the jury to important facts in favour of the defence in the deposition of prosecution witnesses, held that the charge to the jury was defective and the conviction must be set aside.—21 Cr 670 (C)

179. Omission to point out weakness of prosecution evidence.—The omission of a Judge to point out to the jury the weakness of the evidence against the accused and the possibility of other persons being the guilty parties does not amount to a positive misdirection—5 W R 13.

180. Omission to refer to the fact that the accused were not named in the P. I.—Omission to state that four out of seven accused were not named in the first information amounts to misdirection—11 C 10. See 4 C N. 190.

181. Omission to read material portions of the evidence to the jury—is not in itself sufficient for the reversal of the verdict of a jury. In each case, the question will be—has the accused been prejudiced? If he has not been, the non-direction would not amount to misdirection—5 B R. 207: 27 B. 627.

182. Omission to tell the jury that they are sole judges of fact, is misdirection.—Omission to tell the jury that they were at liberty to form their own opinion in regard to facts placed before them and about which the Judge expressed his own, is a misdirection.—34 C 699. 35 C 531 10 C N. 153.

(4) Misdirection on evidence.

183. Retracted confessions.—The Judge misdirects the jury when he tells the jury, the law is that you are to look for corroboration in independent evidence; as there is no rule of law that a retracted confession cannot be treated as evidence unless it is corroborated in material particulars—23 B 316: 2 Weir 307. 2 Weir 509 (Kursetti). 2 Weir 509 (Sokkan).

183A. What amounts to misdirection.—

(1) Where the charge to the Jury places prominently before them all the circumstances that go against the accused, and does not call attention to any of those that are in their favour, held that there was been a misdirection sufficient to vitiate the trial—4 C. N. 196

(2) The omission of the Judge to tell the Jury that it was for them to consider whether upon the evidence adduced, the offence was established. 25 C. 230. 10 C 970 Cr. R. 15 of '95.

184. Conduct of the accused.—This is no misdirection in a case of false evidence if the Judge points out to the jury the contrast between the evidence for the prosecution and the course followed by the accused viz., a simple denial of the charge coupled with a refusal to examine the witnesses in attendance—2 W. R. 60.

185. Omission to state that the accused was found in the house of the first accused's father but the first accused had stated that he did not live there but in the house of his mother-in-law (2) the common nature of the article and the extreme difficulty of identifying it (3) that the weapon was stained with marmalade blood which was not necessarily human and that the defence was under no obligation to adduce evidence on the point, held, there was misdirection—(15) M N 544.

expressed concurrence,—held that there was no misdirection to the jury.—7 W. R 22 See 13 C N 754

Note.—In 13 C N 754 the Judge expressed definite opinion and it was held that there was misdirection.

186. Telling the jury there was no force in defence argument.—It is misdirection to tell the jury that there is no force in the argument that the accused may not have foreseen and may not have intended that a decoy should take place—7 M T 191.

187. Telling the Jury.—“no reason to disbelieve” a particular witness.—It is a misdirection for the Judge to say that he sees no reason to disbelieve a particular witness. He ought to leave the question of believing or disbelieving to the jury—7 C. J 246

188. Dogmatic expression of opinion.—Where it is doubtful whether the isolated passages in which the Judge warned the jury that on questions of fact they were not bound by any opinion of his, were sufficient to outweigh the fact that throughout the charge he had expressed

- his own opinions in terms too dogmatic and unqualified, held that the charge was vitiated by misdirection.—14 C. N. 150
189. Evidence of accomplices.—Where the evidence of an accomplice is uncorroborated, the correct practice requires a Judge not merely to tell the jury that it is unusual to convict on such evidence, but that he should also tell them that it is unsafe and contrary both to prudence and practice to do so, yet that his omission to state this does not amount to an error in law—6 B. H. 57: 5 W. R. 80: G. W. R. 91: 8 W. R. 19: 3 B. H. (O.C.) 57: Rat 848: See 10 C. 970: 29 C. 782: 21 Cr. 773 (C): 21 Cr. 802 (C): 27 M. 271 (277): 1 M. 391
190. Travelling beyond the charge.—Where a Sessions Judge in his charge to the jury said that there were two possible common objects of an unlawful assembly, while the accused were charged with only one of them, held that in as much as it was common with such a charge, consequently they had not an opportunity of meeting. The conviction was therefore set aside and a retrial ordered.—22 C. 276
191. Reference to matters outside the record.—Where the Judge invited the jury to act on the evidence of certain witnesses who named the accused at the time of the inquest, disregarding the absence of anything in the evidence of 2 out of 3 witnesses that they did so and the fact that the Inquest Report was not exhibited in the case—held—that there was misdirection on a material point.—2 L. W. 333
192. Statements of witnesses before a police officer or an investigating Magistrate.—does not come within the purview of S. 268 Cr. P. C. A direction by the Judge that such statement is strong evidence against the accused is misdirection.—31 M. 127
193. When the Judge charges the jury to consider whether the approver's story is corroborated on material points or not but does not direct them to consider whether it is confirmed not only as to the offence, but as to the identity of the individual prisoner, as having participated in the offence, is to misdirect the jury.—29 C. 782: See 10 B. 319: 1 B. 175: 3 B. H. (O.C.) 57: 1 A. J. 110: 8 A. 306: 509.
194. Charge liable to misinterpretation.—Where the Judge instead of saying to the jury that if they disbelieved the witnesses on whose testimony the case hinged with regard to any one of the accused that was a circumstance to be carefully weighed by them in estimating the credibility of the testimony in so far as it affected the other accused also, merely said that the witnesses had deposed falsely against one of the several accused,—held—that the language being capable of being understood in a contrary sense, amounted to misdirection.—2 Weir 501
195. Remarks against a witness not examined on the point referred to.—It is wrong for a Judge in charging the jury to say that a constable committed a breach of the Police Regulations in that he had a loose shirt on in conducting a search when he was not examined about it—2 Weir 503: See 8 M. T. 372.

196. Defence evidence which is not trustworthy.—Omission to call the Jury's attention to defence evidence where such evidence is untrustworthy, is not material misdirection.—7 C. 42.
197. Abandonment of witnesses named in F.I.—A Judge commits misdirection in not directing the attention of the jury to the fact that witnesses named in the First Information had not been examined and entirely new witnesses have been called.—34 C. 325.
198. Reference to documents improperly admitted in evidence is misdirection.—3 B. L. 43: 15 B. 189.
199. Reference to previous proceeding.—Where in his summing up to a Jury, the Judge considers it necessary to refer to previous proceedings against the accused, he ought to deal with them in such a manner as to avoid, if possible, the minds of the Jury being affected by the result of the proceedings. It is his duty to warn the jury to pay no attention to the result of those proceedings, and his omission to so warn the jury amounts to a misdirection sufficient to vitiate the trial.—21 Cr. 534 (C): 8 v. 21 C. N. 1011: 9 C. J. 380
- 199A. Reference to previous trials.—It is misdirection for the Judge to tell the jury that the High Court had come to a certain finding in the previous case, and they were to consider that if they had any reason to come to a different conclusion.—9 C. J. 350
- (5) Misdirection on law.
200. Incorrect statement of the law.—In a trial by jury, the Judge in charging the jury said "If you hold it proved that the three accused all set upon G. H. with the intention of beating him and one of them struck the fatal blow, you will be justified in finding them all guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, even if there is no evidence to show which of the three struck the blow and then read and explained to them the provisions of S. 31 I. P. C. Held, that the Judge misdirected the Jury in stating that any of the accused might be found guilty of culpable homicide even though his individual intention and the common intention was merely to beat, [3 B. 127] When a Sessions Judge charged the jury as follows "It is a rule of law that where a person confesses a crime and implicates himself, if he implicates the other persons who have been tried along with him to the same extent as he implicates himself, then, if you accept his statement as being true and voluntary given as against himself, you can safely accept it as true, as against the other persons." Held that as the Judge did not caution the jury that such confessions should be corroborated before it can be accepted, it amounted to a misdirection.—[4 Cr. 404 (M): As to the law See 4 C. 483 (F.B.): 2 C. N. 719: G. W. R. 44: 10 B. 319: Rat 495: Rat 495: Rat 848: (35-00) 1 B. 298: 7 M. H. (177) xv: 1 M. 163: 12 M. 195: 1 A. 164: 1 A. 675: 8 v.

- 17 C. 642. But See 27-M 271 [Per Bhagyan Anyangar J.] In a murder case the Sessions Judge charged the jury thus: "See 302 The murder of M. Murder defined Punishment. The only question here, in view of the statements made by the prisoners is, did the prisoners, any or all of them, inflict these injuries on the deceased. If they did they are guilty of murder." Held that the jury should have been asked to find as to the intention of the accused persons and their attention should have been told to return a verdict as to the exact guilt of each of the accused persons. [1 B. R. 784]
201. As to the offence with which the accused are charged.—Where the Judge said that if the Jury found that the remaining accused conspired with the first accused to commit criminal trespass, then if absent, they would be guilty of abetment, and if present of the substantive offence, but omitted to notice that the substantive offence was not one of criminal trespass but of voluntarily causing grievous hurt—Held there was misdirection.—16 C. N. 209
202. Case of forgery.—Where the accused in a suit against them to recover possession of certain throwing of the onus on the accused to prove the genuineness of the document, amounted to misdirection.—8 C. L. 512
203. Offence under S. 411 P. C.—Where the Judge in his charge merely directed the jury to find whether the property was stolen and whether it was retained by the accused—Held—it amounted to misdirection. He ought to have directed them to find—(1) whether the property was stolen (2) whether it was dishonestly retained and (3) whether the accused knew or had reason to believe the same to be stolen property.—15 B. 369. 25 C. 711
204. Note.—It is the duty of the Judge to give direction upon the law to the jury so as to make them understand the law as bearing upon the facts and if he does not give them an explanation of the law sufficiently comprehensive to enable them to decide the particular issue, there is a misdirection. 8 C. 739 See 7 C. N. 188
205. Wrong definition of dacoity.—If the Judge instead of saying that dacoity is robbery committed by five or more persons says dacoity is robbery committed by more than five persons—held this was a misdirection and the conviction was set aside. 9 Cr. 311 (M).
206. Unlawful assembly.—Omission to explain to the jury what would be the effect if they found there was no unlawful assembly—held—it was a serious misdirection.—31 C. 694; See 4 C. N. 196
207. Wrong explanation of the term "wrongful loss".—The Judge in charging the jury said: If the jury find that the accused removed the box to put the owner to trouble that is causing wrongful loss to the women and the act is theft.—held—that it amounted to misdirection is as much as to move a thing in order to put the owner to trouble does not necessarily and in every case, involve the causing of wrongful loss.—25 C. 416
208. Right of private defence.—It was not misdirection on the part of the Judge in not calling attention of the jury to Cls 1 and 2 of S. 100 P. C. when he particularly called their attention to Cl 6 of that section.—17 W. R. 45
209. Forgery—misdirection as to onus of proof.—Where the Judge said in his charge of jury that under S. 103 of the Evidence Act the onus lay on the accused to show that the deed in respect of which he was charged with forgery is genuine—Held—that the Judge had taken an erroneous view of the law and had misdirected the jury.—4 C. N. 576; 8 C. L. 542.
210. Du. W. 37. int used as genuine, an offence punishable under S. 474 I. P. C." and the Sessions Judge told the jury that the only issue they had to decide was whether the forged documents were in possession of the accused, ignoring altogether the question of knowledge combined with intention which is so absolutely requisite to justify a conviction under S. 474,—held—there was a misdirection.—16 B. 165
211. Statements not amounting to confession.—Judge's failure to give a direction to the jury that statements not amounting to confession which are self-exculpatory are inadmissible against the accused other than the persons making them, amounts to misdirection.—25 C. 711; See 6 B. R. 10
- 211A. Confession to the Police.—A Sessions Judge misdirects the jury in telling them that confession to the police if followed by the production of stolen property is admissible.—18 M. T. 250
- 211B. Guilty knowledge and intention.—When the Judge on the basis of papers wrongly admitted in evidence, stated to the jury that they were relevant to the question of guilty knowledge and intention—held—there was a misdirection which prejudiced the accused.—15 B. 189 See 22 W. R. 77

(7) Expression of definite opinion.

214. Expression of definite opinion without leaving option to the jury.—Where in a charge of rape the judge in his charge to the jury said: "You will observe that this sexual intercourse was against the girl's will and without her consent etc." instead of saying as he ought to have done, "you will have to determine upon the evidence in the case whether the intercourse was against the girl's will etc." and wound up by saying, "you have seen the witnesses and I have no doubt that you will return a just verdict"—held—that this was clear misdirection as the Judge instead of leaving to the jury to decide what in their opinion was proved, stated in definite terms what had been proved and laid down the facts so positively as to leave no option to them for taking a different view—See 25 C 230 10 C 970 13 C N 751 10 C N 153 Rnt 748 1 W R 2 1 W R 25 W R (Sp) 5 13 W R 34

215. Misleading nature of the summing up.—Where the summing up of the judge is calculated to produce an impression on the mind that he wished the jury to give a verdict which they would not have given on a correct presentation of the facts—held—that the Judge had misdirected the jury.—4 M T 131

215A. Charge so framed as to leave no option.—When the charge is framed in such a way as to leave no option to the jury but to adopt the view taken by the Judge, it amounts to a misdirection. So, where in a case under S 366 I. P. C. the Judge said, "when a man carries off a young girl at night from her father's house, the presumption is that he did so with the intent (to force or seduce her to illicit intercourse),"—held that the way in which the question of intent was put to the jury, left them no option [14 A 25] Where a Judge says to the jury that the finding of the stolen property with the accused two months after the commission of the offence, was after "so short" a time, as to justify the conviction of the accused for larceny itself, held that the question whether the possession was recent or not should not have been put to the jury in the positive way which the Judge adopted [26 M 467 45 C 557 See 2 Weir 515]

Note. But where the view taken by the judge is warranted by law and no other view can legally be taken, it will not amount to misdirection—[See 5 W R 3 17 W R 45]

(8) What is not misdirection.

216. (1) Presumption against the accused.—It is no misdirection for a Judge to tell the jury that if the prisoner could not prove how he became possessed of certain articles (however small in value and common in use they may have been) it was their duty to convict him, for the presumption in such a case was legally valid that he knew that the property had been unlawfully acquired—5 W R 3

217. (2) Pointing out that the defence cannot be true.—Where O deposed that he and R were 4 days in company at M, and the Judge charged the jury that if they found that R was not in company with O, during these 4 days at M, but was at N, it did not matter where O was, because, it was clear that he could not have been in company with R at M and must have therefore given false evidence, when he said that during these 4 days he was in such company at M—Held [Seton-Karr J dissenting] that there was no misdirection—7 W R 105 (F.B.)

218. (3) Failure to amplify defence evidences.—Where in charging a Jury, the Sessions Judge deals with all the points of importance urged on behalf of the accused, the mere fact that some of the points were not amplified as they might have been does not amount to misdirection—27 B 626

219. A slight error not prejudicing the accused does not amount to misdirection.—5 W R 1 6 B R 47 7 W R 105 (F.B.)

220. Expressions misunderstood by bystanders or counsel in a case.—do not constitute misdirection if they ought to have been understood by any reasonable man, having regard to what was proved in the case—10 C 1079

(9) Effect of misdirection.

221. Effect setting aside a verdict on the ground of misdirection.—When a case has been tried before a jury and the conviction has been set aside on the ground of misdirection the accused is entitled to have his case retried by a jury, and as a matter of procedure, and in justice to the accused, this course should be adopted—4 C N 576 14 C N 493

222. Material misdirection.—A material misdirection by a Judge to the jury is not covered by S, 537 Cr P C 4 C N 576

223. High Court may, in case of misdirection, make an independent estimate of evidences.—When a misdirection is of such a character as would lead to a failure of justice, the High Court may weigh the truth of the evidence against the accused, and may then convict or acquit him according to the view it takes of the evidence or may if it thinks fit, direct a retrial—26 M 1

X. THE VERDICT Ss. 300, 301.

(1) Meaning of the term "verdict."

224. The "verdict" in S. 423 Cl (1) Cr. P. C. means the entire verdict on all the charges framed in cases of a trial for various offences as provided by S. 236 Cr. P. C. The term is not limited to a verdict on a particular charge on which the accused is convicted and the conviction which is appealed against—[22 C 377]—By the term "verdict" it should be understood the collective opinion of the jury as a body arrived at after mutual consultation and ascertained and announced by the foreman—[26 M 585]

224A. No form prescribed.—The law does not prescribe any special form in which the jury are to return their finding; they are at liberty to deliver it in any form they like, and if that finding is not exhaustive as to the facts in issue which go to make up the charge, it is the duty of the Judge to put such questions as shall elicit a complete finding.—8 B L 557.

(2) Special verdict.

225. The Cr. P. C. does not permit the recording of what is known in English law as a "special verdict"—i.e. where the jury state their findings on the facts themselves, leaving it to the Judge to apply the law to those facts and himself find the prisoner guilty or not guilty.—13 Cr 586 (N) 8 B L 557 See Rat 442

Contra—15 B 452. 19 B 735: Rat 710 20 B 215

226. [Note per contra.—In (1895) 20 B 215 it was held that the jury were not to find a simple verdict of guilty or not guilty. They may find a special verdict, a string of facts to which the Judge applies the law. The option is theirs, not his. In (94) 19 B 735 the jury in a trial for rape, returned a verdict that the prisoner did the act with consent—held that the verdict was a special verdict and it was the option of the jury to return a verdict in that form. The Judge was bound to record the verdict and apply the law thereto].

227. Jardine J. on special verdicts.—"In England the jury may find either a general verdict on the whole matter in issue or a special verdict on the particular facts. They may refuse to answer questions. The option is that of the jury, not of the Judge. If the jury chooses to return a special verdict, it must be on the naked facts; it must state positively the facts themselves and not merely the evidence adduced Judge. Whether the findings of fact were sufficient and clear, was often a question raised afterwards. So in general verdicts there might occasionally be ambiguity or the jury might exceed their function. It is the office of the Judge to instruct the jury on points of law, and of the jury to decide on matters of fact"—[15 B 472]. In the absence of any express provision of the law to the contrary a clear and concise finding of the jury on the main facts should be allowed even though a verdict of not guilty has been delivered. [Per Candy J. in ibid].

(3) Construction of the verdict.

228. To constitute an offence under S 326 of the Penal Code, the act must have been done voluntarily. This is the very essence of the offence. Where the Jury returned a verdict of guilty "but not voluntarily" under S 326, held that the verdict was in effect one of "not guilty" and the accused was entitled to acquittal. [12 C N. 530]. The finding of a jury that, although the accused killed the deceased, the crime was not murder, not because it fell under any of the exceptions allowed by law but because the accused had no object in killing him is not a legal finding, and does not amount to a conviction of culpable homicide not amounting to murder [1 W. R. 50]. Where a prisoner charged under S. 304, 325 and 323 I. P. C. was found guilty by the jury under S. 335, held that he was not acquitted of grievous hurt but was found guilty of the offence under S. 322 with the extenuating circumstances which would confine the punishment within the limits of S 335 [23 W. R. 61]. Where the prisoners were tried under 328 read with S 149 I. P. C. and the jury held that no case of rioting had been made out and convicted the accused under S. 326, held that the verdict was practically one of acquittal [16 C N. 1077. 31 C. 69. 41 C. 662].

(4) Procedure.

229. Verdict should be on each head of charge. The Sessions Judge ought to call on the jury to return a verdict on each one of the heads of charge. If the trial is for murder of two persons and the jury return a verdict of guilty, the Sessions Judge ought to ascertain whether the verdict relates to killing of one or the other or both.—Rat 746

230. Verdict when not to be accepted.—Whenever trial by jury exists, the verdict of the jury must be accepted unless it is manifestly and certainly wrong. A verdict based on voluntary confessions, is just as good as a verdict based on the testimony of creditable witnesses. It is the province of a jury to decide the credibility of witnesses.—25 W. R. 25; Cr. R. 64 of 1886

231. Judge cannot control verdict.—When a that the Judge had no power to control the jury in this manner, but that he should have recorded the finding on the first count as the verdict in the case and sentenced the prisoner accordingly.—7 W. R. 22; See Cr. R. 62 of 1894.

232. Verdict should not be recorded partially.—A Sessions Judge acts illegally in stopping the foreman of the jury from adding the words, "the land and the crops are all theirs" (meaning that they belonged to the accused) to their verdict of guilty on a charge of rioting in connection with the land and the crops. The words were very material as showing that the case for the prosecution was not regarded as established or true by the Jury.—30 C. 485.

233. Individual opinions not to be disclosed.—In cases of disagreement among the jury, the individual opinions of members are never intended to be disclosed.—30 M. 585.

234. Based on confessions.—A verdict based on voluntary confessions is just as good as a verdict based on the testimony of creditable witnesses, 25 W. R. 25; See Cr. R. 64 of '80.

235. Verdict cannot be set aside on exceptions allowed by the law, applied—1 W. R. 50
236. Fairness and impartiality.—Where the District Magistrate and the Sessions Judge emphatically express their belief that it would be next to impossible to obtain a fair and impartial trial if the case be heard before a Jury, an order for transfer must be immediately made. It would be inexpedient to let the trial go on before such a jury because an erroneous verdict may in the end be set right by High Court.—25 C 727.
237. Questions to the Jury.—See.—(1) General Rules of Procedure.
238. The Jury must give their verdict upon the whole of the evidence recorded. 6 B R 31

239. Judge cannot himself supply omissions. In dealing with a special verdict, the Judge is confined to the facts positively stated in the verdict and cannot of himself, supply by intendment or implication any defect in the statement—Rat 710

(5) When a verdict is final.

210. to record [8 B 200]
241. When a verdict is final within the meaning of S. 418 Cr. P. C.—S 418 Cr. P. C gives finality to the verdict of a jury when there has been no error of law or misdirection and when the Judge has concurred with a majority of the jury—Cr R 58 of 1804

XI. WRONG VERDICT DUE TO MISTAKE (S. 304).

242. Scope of the terms "by accident or mistake".—Where a Sessions Judge questioned the jury as to their reasons for returning a unanimous verdict of not guilty, "and such questioning led two of the jurymen to say that they had been misled as to some of the evidence by the notes of the foreman and that they would like to reconsider their verdict"
- Held*—that the case was not one in which a wrong verdict was delivered by "accident or mistake" within the terms of S 304
- 22 M J 355 See Rat 952 30 C. 485
- [Note. But where a verdict of acquittal by a majority is by mistake pronounced by the foreman to be "unanimous," the Court is not entitled to order a retrial and is bound to acquit—See R v Wooley, 18 R. 402
243. How far it can be corrected.—When in a trial for offences of murder, culpable homicide and causing grievous hurt, the jury, at first acquitted the accused of murder but found him guilty on other counts, but on being questioned by the Judge about the grounds for their verdict, they revised it into one of guilty of murder, held that the Judge under the circumstances should have entered the verdict of the jury as one of guilty of murder—21 W R 1.
244. Note.—But where the Judge's question was directed to find out merely of which part of the offence under S 304 P C the jury considered the accused guilty, and the latter thereupon changed their verdict to one under S 302 P C—held—that they were not entitled to do so as the Judge had not asked them to reconsider their first verdict under S 302 Cr. P C.—Rat 952

a recommendation of mercy—Held, that the second verdict could not be sustained, as the Judge did not require the jury to reconsider their verdict, nor gave them any fresh direction nor explained to them that a finding that the woman consented was tantamount to an acquittal

19 B 735

- (2) Where the jury in a trial for murder, returned at first a verdict of murder under grave and sudden provocation but upon the Judge saying that he could not accept a qualified verdict and required them to find the accused either guilty or not guilty, they returned a second verdict of not guilty—held that the procedure was wrong. The Jury have the power to return a special verdict on a string of facts to which the Judge applies the law. They are not simply to find a verdict of guilty or not guilty—20 B 215
246. Power under S. 301 when to be exercised.—The power of amendment of a verdict provided by S 301 Cr P C must be exercised before or immediately after the verdict is recorded and cannot be exercised after the jurors have dispersed 6 P R 1913 (F.B.) See R v Parkin 1 Mood 45
247. English Law.—According to the precedents, a verdict may be amended even after the defendant has been discharged out of the dock. [See R v Toller 6 Cox C C 225 Archbold p 231]
- Upon a discovery some days after the discharge of the accused, that the verdict of acquittal delivered by the foreman was really only the verdict of a majority and not an unanimous verdict as wrongly declared by the foreman, it was held that the Judge could not set it aside and direct a retrial. (R v Winder 18 R R 402)
248. Foreman's announcement by mistake that the verdict was unanimous.—Where the foreman publicly announced a verdict of "not guilty" as the unanimous verdict of the jury in the hearing of all the jurors without dissent on

(1) in a trial for rape the jury returned the verdict that the prisoner did the act with consent. The Judge thereupon required the jury to say whether the accused was guilty or not. The Jury again retired and brought a verdict of guilty with the part of any one of them, the Court has no jurisdiction in consequence of the subsequent statement of the foreman that the verdict was not in fact unanimous, to set aside a verdict given in open Court. 6 P R. 1913 (F. B.).

249. Misconception of law.—Where a jury found an accused person guilty of murder but refused to convict him because there was no eye-witness to the crime, held—that in charging the jury a second time, the Judge ought to have explained to the jury that the testimony of eye-witnesses was not necessary to the establishment of a charge of murder, and that the jury if they had no doubt of the guilt of the accused, were bound to give effect to the conclusion at which they had arrived. 23 W R. 36 See 28 B. 412. 19 B. 735; 6 B. R. 238; 21 W. R. 1.

XII. RECONSIDERATION OF VERDICT [S. 302 AND 304].

251. Where jury is unanimous.—Where the jury is unanimous their verdict must be received. Unless it is contrary to law, the Court is not competent in such a case to direct it to reconsider its verdict.—5 C 871. 9 C 53. 10 C 140; 19 B 735. 30 M 595

252. Where a reconsideration is essential.—Where in a murder case the jury returned the following verdict "We have no doubt that the prisoner killed N, we think N gave no provocation, but we do not think it murder, because the prisoner had no object in killing him, held that the verdict could not be received and the Jury were properly directed to retire for reconsideration.—[1 W R 50] Where the Jury appear to be confused and to have failed to understand the remarks of the Judge, he does not act improperly in telling them to reconsider the verdict. [2 Weir 514]

253. Further direction on law.—The Judge is bound to explain the law again when the Jury on being asked about their verdict show by their conduct that they were not able to follow his summing up [See ('11) M N 190] Where the Jury are not unanimous it is open to the Judge to further direct them on matters of law at the time of requiring them to retire for further consideration [6 B R. 258]

against each prisoner on which evidence had been offered and the names of the witnesses whose testimony bore on each count, held that his procedure was not objectionable.—2 Weir 514

254. English Law.—A Judge is not bound, to receive at once the first verdict which the jury brings in. He may direct them to reconsider it if their verdict is meaningless or inconsistent he may refuse to accept it. If however they insist on a general verdict of guilty or not guilty, the Judge must accept it.—R v Meany 9 Cox 23. Archbold p 231 Halsbury's Laws of England Vol IX p 373.

255. In the case of a special verdict.—Where the jury give their findings only on facts leaving it to the Judge to apply the law to those facts, the Judge is empowered to require the Jury to return a verdict of 'guilty' or not 'guilty'. 13 Cr. 556 (M) But see 19 B 735. R v Meany 9 Cox 23.

256. Jury cannot bring a second verdict in direct contradiction of the first.—Where a Jury has returned their verdict in accordance with the express direction of the Judge and it was

982] Where a Jury had in a case of rape returned a verdict that 'the prisoner did not act

257. What does not really amount to a second verdict.—In a case in which the accused was tried on charges of murder, culpable homicide and causing grievous hurt, the jury acquitted him of murder but convicted him on the other counts. The Judge thereupon questioned the jury as to the grounds of their verdict and the jury eventually intimated their willingness to convict of murder. Held that there could be no final verdict until the last of the questions put by the Judge to the jury was answered and as it appeared from the answers of the jury that their findings of fact disclosed that the verdict ought to have been one of guilty on a charge of murder, the Judge should have entered the verdict of the jury as one of guilty of murder. The first verdict was not a final verdict and the Judge need not have referred the case to the High Court at all.—see 21 W. R. 1.

258. Stage at which the Judge may ask the jury to reconsider.—After the verdict has been actually delivered by the jury, the Sessions Judge cannot under the provisions of S 302 Cr. P. C. require them to retire for further consideration. He can do so after ascertaining that the verdict is not unanimous but only before it has been actually delivered.—7 L B 140

XIII. VERDICT WHEN TO PREVAIL.

(1) In High Court (S. 305.)

250. S. 305 is mandatory.—"S. 305 Cr P. C. is mandatory. If the Judge agrees with the opinion of the majority of the Jury, he shall give judgment in accordance with such opinion. On a verdict of murder being given, it is certainly not competent to the Court to take any verdict on the lesser charge of culpable homicide"—Per Holmes J. 19 C. N. 653 (F. B.)

260. Judge bound to accept a unanimous verdict.—Under S. 305 Cr. P. C. the Judge is bound to accept a unanimous verdict of the Jury. It is only when the verdict is not unanimous that it lies with the Judge to take one of the courses specified in the section—3 L. B. 75 (F. B.) 8 Bor. T. 247 (F. B.)

261. Verdict obtained by duress.—The Jury after retiring for the whole day, sent word to the Judge that they could not agree. The Judge sent back word to the Judge that he did not believe it yet and suggested that they had better agree that night, as he was going away that night and would not be back till the day after and they would not be discharged till he returned. The verdict was returned within an hour. Held that it must be set aside as obtained by duress. Pierce v. Pierce, 35 Mich. 412

(2) In the Sessions Court (S. 306.)

262. Judge after accepting verdict cannot refer.—It is not open to a Sessions Judge when he has once accepted the verdict of the jury and has postponed the case for passing sentence, to reconsider his order and refer the case to the High Court under S. 307, but he must pass sentence on the person awaiting sentence on the verdict—4 C. N. 683. See 25 C. 655
263. Does the verdict of the jury cover the whole indictment?—In a case in which two persons were tried for murder but acquitted and it was alleged that the murder was the outcome of a conspiracy between those two persons and the present accused who was tried on the same indictment in a supplementary case, and it was argued that the charge having failed in the first case the trial ought not to go on, it was held that the opinion of the jury in this country does not necessarily cover the whole of the indictment and has the same sacrosanct character as a verdict has in England. "The repugnance in the verdict of a Jury in India is not in itself sufficient to justify the quashing of a conviction and that the technicalities which are borrowed from the English Law and founded on ideas as to the sacred character of a verdict by a Jury whose findings of fact are unknown, cannot be imported so as to give such a character which by the express provisions of the law does not attach to Jury verdicts in this country"—18 C. N. 108. 18 C. N. 580

264. Jury's verdict must be recorded.—Where the verdict of the jury has been delivered, the Sessions Judge is bound to say and record what they agreed with the verdict or not. 15 W. R. 40
265. Conviction and acquittal.—When the finding is one of guilt, the Court is bound to pass sentence however nominal [2 Weir 306]. But he cannot refrain from passing an adequate sentence merely because he does not agree with the opinion of the Jury [3 W. R. (Let) 16. Mad. H. C. Pro 8 11 '66]. The prisoner is entitled to be discharged from custody immediately on judgment of acquittal being pronounced and further detention is illegal [5 M. H. (app) H.]

XIV. DISCHARGE OF JURY AND RETRIAL AFTER DISCHARGE [S. 305 (2), 308].

266. Scope of S. 308.—Where the accused was indicted on five charges,—112—302 31 I. P. C., 302 114 I. P. C., 302 109 I. P. C., 302 304 I. P. C. and the jury returned a unanimous verdict of 'not guilty' on the 1st and 4th counts and disagreed on the other 3 counts in the proportion of 5 to 4. The Judge took the verdict of acquittal on the 1st and 4th counts and discharged the jury under S. 305 Cr. P. C. and ordered a retrial on the three remaining counts under S. 308 Cr. P. C. The retrial came up before another special jury and the counsel for the accused took the preliminary plea of autrefois acquit. Held, that for the purposes of S. 403 Cr. P. C. the accused was tried again. The Queen v. [unclear] jury and the process might continue until a verdict is passed on all the counts without the accused being "tried again" under S. 403 Cr. P. C. Per Stephen J. 41 C. 1072. See Rev. v. Banks (1911) 2 K. B. 1095

267. Procedure before discharging the Jury.—Where the Jury were divided in opinion in the proportion of six to three and the presiding Judge without ascertaining what the opinion of the majority was, discharged the jury and ordered a retrial. Held (on an objection being taken to the retrial before another Judge and jury), that the Judge not having ascertained the opinion of the majority, could not be said either to agree or disagree with the verdict within the meaning of cl. (1). The Court as composed of the Judge and the jury at the first trial must be held to have a legal session of the case and no other Court therefore could try the case. 8 C. N. 181.

[Note.—To get rid of the difficulty a nolle prosequi was entered by the Advocate General following the precedent in 2 C. N. 181 and 7 C. N. 221.]

268. Promature verdict owing to misapprehension.—In a sessions trial, the Sessions Judge being of opinion that the prosecution evidence was worthless asked the jury at the conclusion of the prosecution case if they wished to go on further and hear the defence of the prisoners, the reply of the public prosecutor and his own summing up. The Jury misunderstanding the object of the question replied that they found certain of the accused guilty and the others not guilty. The Judge thereupon dismissed the jury and ordered a retrial. Held that the action of the Judge in recommending the trial without a fresh jury was not authorized by law. The proper course for the Judge was to have explained to the jury that he had misinterpreted the purpose of the question and to have directed them that it was their duty to hear the defence of the prisoners before expressing any opinion one way or the other. 2 Weir 47

XV. TRIAL BY JURY OF CASE TRIABLE WITH THE AID OF ASSESSORS.

(1) Appeal on facts.

269. No appeal lies on matters of fact where an

by jury.—Per Jenkins C. J.

270. Appeal lies on facts.—The trial by a jury of an offence triable with the aid of assessors is not invalid on that ground, but the accused has a right of appeal on facts, as if the case were tried with assessor 3 C 765; 18 W. R. 59 24 W. R. 18
Rat 961 26 M. 243 [Per Benson J; Bhaskaran
Ayyangar J Contra] See 26 M. 243 (Foot note)

271. Trial of Cases to which the Govt. has not extended trial by jury is not invalid merely on the ground that a trial by jury has been held in the case. In such a case the charge may be treated as a judgment and the appeal may be heard on facts.—24 W. R. 30, See 6 M. J. 14.

(2) Where some of the charges are triable by jury.

272. (1) and others with the aid of assessors, but all the charges are tried by jury, the Judge is not competent to treat the trial so far as regards the latter charges as having been made with the aid of assessors—1 C. L. 405; See 25 C. 555-23 B
696 But See 7 B R 979. 9 B. R. 1057. 26 M.

(2) In a trial for offences some of which are triable by jury and others by assessors and the Judge treats the jurors as assessors, he should take the opinion of all the assessors and not of only two of them. Failure to do so is fatal and S 577 cannot cure it 26 M 598 21 M. J. 520

273. Legality of conviction not affected by mistake.—The legality of a conviction will not be affected by the fact that the charge which was triable with the aid of assessors had been tried by a jury—24 W. R. 18 11 W. R. 32. See Rat 600
21 B 696; 25 C 555.

(3) Procedure.

274. How to record the verdict in case coming within S. 269 (3).—Where a Sessions
Judge tried by jury an accused on two charges, one of which was not triable by jury, and dissenting from the verdict referred the case to the High Court, held, that he should first have recorded the opinion of the jury as assessors regarding the charge not triable by jury, and should not have referred the whole case to the High Court, (He should have made reference only with regard to the charge triable by jury.—Rat 600 8 B
R 529; See 21 B. 696)

275. No distinction as regards Procedure.—
The law makes no distinction as to the procedure at the trial, between a trial by a jury and one with the aid of the assessors except as to the summing up in the case of the former and the manner in which the verdict in the former and the opinion of the assessors in the latter are respectively taken. It is at this latter point that there is a departure of ways and if the accused who is tried does not intervene at that crucial point and get the procedure applicable to trial with the aid of assessors enforced, he cannot afterwards be allowed to complain.—33 B 423.

276. Procedure when the mistake is found out.—Where the case which ought to have been tried with the aid of assessors is tried by jury and the jury return their verdict, it is not competent to the Judge, on finding out his mistake or if he differs from them, to treat the verdict of the jury as opinion of assessors. He is bound to proceed either under S 306 or 307 Cr. P. C. [The trial is not invalid.—See S. 536 Cr P C.] 25 C
555; 9 M. 12

277. Where the case is partly triable by jury and partly with the aid of assessors the Judge is bound to constitute all the members of the jury as assessors for trying the non-jury offences. He cannot select only two out of five jurymen for the purpose.—26 M 598-21 M T 520

(4) Where a trial cannot be held by jury.

278. (1) District being transferred to a different Sessions Division.—Trial by jury ceases in a district on the District itself ceasing to belong to a division to which trial by jury has been extended.—8 W. R. 39-8 W. B. 63

279. (2) District not coming within the jury notification.—The Commissioner of Cochin
Behar has no power to hold a trial by jury in the Gowalpara District—8 W. R. 53; 8 W. R. 38.

280. (3) Withdrawal of trial by Jury in class of offences.—A particular class of offences was generally triable by jury. On account of some reasons the Government ordered that certain person charged with these offences should be tried not by jury but by the Judge with the aid of assessors. Held that it was competent to the Government to pass the order it did.—23 M 632

281. Offence under S. 91 of the Registration Act 1868.—An offence under S. 91 of the Registration Act ought not to be tried with the assistance of a jury. Where however such offence was tried by a jury and the Sessions Judge accepted then unanimous verdict of guilty and convicted the accused, the High Court considered it unnecessary to quash the proceedings—14 W. R. 32. See
23 B 696

(5) The verdict in a trial by Jury of case partly triable by assessors.

281A. Where charges, some of them triable by jury and others with the aid of assessors are tried by jury, and the Jury return by a majority, a verdict of "not guilty" on all the charges, the Judge is not competent to treat the trial, so far as regards the latter charges, as having been held with the aid of assessors, and convict the accused concerning with the minority. The Judge could either give judgment in accordance with the verdict under S 306 or submit the case for order of the High Court under S 307—1 C L 403 25 C 555 See 23 B 696.

[Note.—The reference under S 307 can only be with reference to the charges triable by Jury, Rat 600]

- 282. Sessions Judge cannot arbitrarily treat jurors as assessors.—The prisoners were charged with dacoity and murder. The Jury returned a verdict of guilty on both charges. The Sessions Judge overlooked the provisions of S 269 Cr P C and treated the jury as assessors in regard to the charge of murder and acquitted them of murder. Held that the irregularity on the part of the Court could not deprive the jury of their power or their opinion of its proper legal effect.

9 M 42

- 283. Jury finding accused guilty of an offence triable with the aid of assessors.—The accused was charged with offences under Ss 392 and 397 I P C (both offences being triable by Jury) but found the accused guilty of voluntarily causing grievous hurt (S 321 I P C) - an offence triable by assessors. Held (Per Benson J) that the Judge in the circumstances was justified in treating the finding of the jury in regard to grievous hurt as the opinion of assessors. An appeal therefore lay on the facts of the case. Held (Per Bhagya Ayyangar J) The effect of S 248 Cr P C is to invest a jury trying an offence triable by jury with authority to find as an incident to such trial that certain facts only are proved in the trial which constitute a minor offence, and return a verdict of guilty of such offence, though it may not be triable by jury. * * If they deem fit to do so, that is, return a verdict of guilty on a cognate or minor offence, while returning a point of law [26 M 213]

XVI. REFERENCE TO THE HIGH COURT (S. 307).

(1) Definition of terms.

- 284. What is not a perverse verdict.—A verdict ought to be considered proper and not perverse if it is one which reasonable men might find on the facts in evidence—[1 S 8]. The mere fact that another jury might have on the same facts come to a different conclusion will not justify the interference of the High Court [See 2 C L 518 13 B L (sp) 19]

- 285. Scope of the term "dissent" as used in the old Codes.—When a Court of sessions merely differs in opinion from the verdict of the jury, it is bound to submit the case to the High Court under S 263 of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the word "dissent" used in clause 4 of S 263 (=S 307) means a "complete dissent" such as to lead the Court to consider it necessary for the ends of justice to submit the case to the High Court—2 B 523

- 286. The expression "the opinion of the Sessions Judge and the Jury"—in Cl (3) of S 307 Cr. P. C. is equivalent to opinion of the Sessions Judge and the verdict of the Jury [18 C J 522]. There is nothing in Cl (3) of the section warranting the interpretation of the term 'opinion' in it to mean other than the respective conclusion of the jury and the Judge, and the term is not used there to denote the reasons for such decisions [29 M 91]

(2) Effect of Reference under S. 307.

- 287. Effect of reference under S. 307 Cr. P. C.—No trial can be legally speaking, concluded until the judgment and sentence are passed, and the trial of a case referred by sessions judge to the High Court under S 307 Cr. P. C. remains open for the High Court to conclude and complete, either by maintaining the verdict of the jury and causing judgment of acquittal to be recorded or by setting aside the verdict of acquittal and causing conviction and sentence to be entered against the accused [9 A 120]. In a case referred to the High Court under S 307, there is no conviction or acquittal in the Sessions Court. It is the High Court which in such cases acquits or convicts and it is not until after conviction by the High Court that the accused can be asked to plead to the prior conviction under S 310 [30 M 141]

- 287A. Object of S. 307.—S 307 provides the only way in which the miscarriage of justice by a perverse verdict of a jury can be remedied by the High Court—13 M 313

(3) Practice and Procedure.

- 288. Procedure when the Judge partly disagrees. Where the Judge is not prepared to accept the (unanimous) verdict of a jury in its entirety, he cannot refer the whole case. He is bound to give effect to that part of it which he accepts, and pass sentence accordingly. — [12 C 749]

Note per contra : If the Jury return a verdict of not guilty on all the charges and the Judge agrees with the verdict with reference to some of them and disagrees with reference to the others, he should, instead of accepting the verdict on some counts, refer the whole case to the High Court. By accepting the verdict of the jury on these charges, he ties the hand of the Court and precludes it from considering the whole of the evidence that was placed before the jury. 21 C N 315

- 289. Verdict need not be shown to be necessarily perverse and unreasonable.—It is not necessary to show that the verdict of the jury is perverse and manifestly unreasonable

Court is bound to consider the facts and come to its own conclusion, giving due weight to the opinions of the Judge and of the jury. The High Court cannot refuse to go into the facts merely because it might appear on a perusal of the letter of Reference and the Judge's charge to the jury that the verdict was not unreasonable.

316. The whole case is thrown open on reference.—In hearing a case which is referred to the High Court under S. 307 Cr. P. C. the High Court is not confined to the points of difference between the Judge and the jury; but the whole case is thrown open to the Court and it must be decided after giving due weight to the opinions of the Judge and the jury.—10 B. R. 632 29 M 91 29 C 128 36 C 629 9 C J 432 7 Bar T 290

317. Procedure when the two Judges differ.—In 13 B 452, Jardine and Candy J. J. differed in opinion in a case referred by a Sessions Judge under S. 307 Cr. P. C. The case was directed to be laid before a third Judge.

318. Power of the High Court.—Under S. 307, the High Court has power to form its own opinion as to the evidence recorded by the lower Court and act upon it, but in so doing due weight will be given to the opinion of the Sessions Judge and the jury who had the opportunity of observing the demeanour of witnesses examined before them [1 B 10 10 B 197 9 C 53 1 C. L. 275 11 B. L. (ap) 2 13 B. L. (ap) 19 21 W. R. 4 20 W. R. 70. 10 B. L. (ap) 20 15 C 269 Bar 140]

319. The wide discretion of the High Court.—In instance, and the decision in each case submitted must depend upon its peculiar circumstances. But the High Court will not set aside the verdict of a jury unless it be perverse and patently wrong, first on the constitutional ground of taking the decision of the case as little out of the hands of to which it has been primarily assigned by the Legislature and secondly because any undue interference may tend to diminish the sense of responsibility.—1 C. L. 275 See 20 W. R. 70; 11 C. N 715

320. Provisions of S. 307 not controlled by Ss. 418 and 423 Cr. P. C.—The provisions of S. 307 Cr. P. C. are not in any way cut down by Ss. 418 and 423 and the High Court has power under S. 307 Cr. P. C. to interfere with the verdict of the jury, when it is perverse or obtuse and the ends of justice require that such perverse finding should be set right. The power of the High Court is not limited to interference on questions of law—i.e. misdirection by the Judge or misapprehension by the jury of the Judge's directions on points of law.—(1 A. 420

321. High Court will not interfere with a verdict unless it is shown to be clearly and manifestly wrong. It should not take upon itself the responsibility of deciding differently from those to whom the decision was primarily entrusted by the law.

[Note.—High Court has to consider whether from the evidence it was so convinced that the jury ought to have convicted.—[Rat 626] It is a well recognised principle that the Courts of England will not set aside the verdict of a jury unless it be perverse and patently wrong or may have been induced by an error of the Judge. The High Court is bound to follow this principle and the verdict of the jury will not be set aside unless a proper case is made out.—1 B. 10. 15 B. 452. See 19 B. 749]

322. Power of High Court not restricted to perverse verdict.—It cannot be said that as a general principle the High Court will not in a reference under S. 307 Cr. P. C. disturb the verdict of a jury if such verdict is not perverse or clearly or manifestly wrong. 9 C. J. 432 29 C. 128. But see 9 C 53; 20 B 215; 10 B. 497.

323. High Court to accept opinion of the jury.—In a case referred to the High Court under S. 307 Cr. P. C. the High Court is bound to accept the opinion of the jury unless it is clearly and manifestly wrong.

41 C 662] The High Court is to give due weight not to the opinion of the Jury alone but to that of the Sessions Judge as well.—[17 C. N. 1077]

324. The High Court, on a reference being made, exercises all the powers of an Appellate Court.—13 B. L. (ap) 20 9 A. 420; 1 C. L. 275; 15 C. 269 See 2 C. L. 1; 20 W. R. 16; 15 W. R. 46; 11 B. L. 14.

325. Procedure before the High Court.—The High Court should ordinarily give due weight to the opinion of the Judge and the jury.—[15 C 269. 11 C. N 715] But when the verdict is erroneous it may set aside the verdict and exercise the function of both Judge and jury.—15 B. 452 See 20 W. R. 16. 29 M. 91. 1 B. 10.

326. High Court will not interfere merely because it is of a different opinion.—The mere fact that upon consideration of all the evidence before the Court, a Judge would have arrived at a conclusion different from that arrived at by the jury would not justify the High Court in interfering with their unanimous verdict.—2 A. J. 475. 9 C. 53.

327. The amendment to S. 307.—In reference to the procedure laid down under S. 310 Cr. P. C. follows the ruling in,—30 M. 131. See 25 B. 40

328. Appellate right to be heard.—The High Court is not bound to accept the opinion of the jury unless it is clearly and manifestly wrong.

19 W. R. 38

329. High Court cannot act under S. 307.—when the Judge has approved of a verdict on certain charges and finally acquitted and discharged the accused. The High Court acting under

- S 307 cannot convict the accused on the same charges. That section contemplates a reference by the Session Judge of the whole case without recording any order of acquittal or conviction—29 W. R. 73.
330. Duty of the High Court defined.—In a reference under S. 307 Cr. P. C., it is the duty of the High Court to consider whether the verdict of the jury is erroneous or perverse, on the case presented to them at the trial—27 C. 235.
331. Nature of the proceedings before the High Court.—In a reference under S. 307 Cr. P. C., the proceedings before the Division Bench cannot be considered a trial de novo by the High Court.—29 C. 246.
332. Conviction by jury contrary to the charge of the Judge.—was not set aside by the High Court although it occurred with the Judge in thinking that the verdict of the jury was not correct—18 W. R. 45 18 W. R. 46.
333. S. 537 does not empower High Court with similar powers to S. 307.—S. 537 Cr. P. C. does not authorise the High Court, in cases in which it finds that the Judge has misdirected the jury to go into the evidence and to decide upon the fact whether or not the accused has been rightly convicted. The only course it can adopt is to order a retrial—21 C. 955 25 C. 230 (233).
334. No appeal lies to the High Court from its own judgment passed under S. 307 Cr. P. C.—Rat. 691.

XVII. REVIEW UNDER THE LETTERS PATENT.

335. Nature of the Jurisdiction.—“And we do further ordain that on such point or points of law being so reserved as aforesaid (See cl 25), or on its being certified by the said Advocate General that, in his Judgment, there is an error in the decision of a point or points of law decided by the Court of original criminal jurisdiction, or that a point or points of law which has or have been decided by the said Court shall be further considered, the said High Court shall have full power and authority to review the case or such part of it as may be necessary and finally determine such point or points of law, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction, and to pass such Judgment and sentence as to the said High Court shall seem right”—See cl 25, of the Letters Patent.
336. Scope of the Review.—At a hearing of a review under cl 25, Letters Patent, it is not open to the accused to argue any question of law not raised in the certificate of the Advocate General, cl 25 of the Letters Patent does not open up the whole case as though on appeal—35 M. 397 (F. B.); Fd. in 8 Bur. T. 217 (F. B.) [under S. 12 of the Lower Burma Courts Act] The words “review the case” in cl 25 of the Letters Patent must be read with the words that follow viz., “or such part of it as may be necessary and finally determine such point or points of law.” Under cl 25, the Court is at liberty to review the case or parts of the case for the purpose of determining the point or points of law that are either reserved for the High Court’s opinion or are certified by the Advocate General to be wrongly decided—Per Dutt J., in 9 B. R. 789 (F. B.).
337. High Court may proceed in case of misdirection on points of law. In case of a misdirection to the jury on a point of law (e. g., failure to warn the jury that the evidence of an accomplice should not be accepted without corroboration on material points) and the improper reception of evidence resulting therefrom, the High Court ought to exercise its powers of review under clause 25 of the Letters Patent—17 C. 612.
338. Object of clauses 25 and 26. It is obvious that the intention (of clauses 25 and 26) is that the case should be finally decided on review, and not remitted for retrial. It has also been ruled that when the Court on review holds on the point of law in favour of the accused, it is competent to the Court to consider the whole case on the evidence and to pass such sentence as shall seem right. * * * The Court may decide the questions of law in favour of the accused. Yet upon a review of the whole case and an examination of the merits affirm the conviction—Per Moonjee J., in 21 C. N. 31 (F. B.) See 2 B. 61 32 B. 111, 9 B. 11, 358.
339. Effect of the Certificate granted by the Advocate General.—A certificate granted by an Advocate General under clause 25 of the Letters Patent should reflect his judgment and not minimise it should be granted in the interests of justice after a careful consideration of all available materials it should be in conformity, and not in conflict, with the statement of the Judge who presided at the trial and it should formulate and give effect to the accused’s real grievances. The certificate of an Advocate General is entitled to respect and whether he grants it after a careful consideration of all available materials or without doing so, once it is granted, the Court has to deal with the case—Per Jenkins C. J., in 19 C. N. 651 (F. B.).
340. The statement of the trial Judge is conclusive.—It is well settled that when the Court is called upon to review a case under cl 25 of the Letters Patent it will accept as unquestionable the statement of the trial Judge as to what took place before him—30 C. N. 651 (F. B.) 10 B. 11 75; R v. Gould (1844) 6 B. and Ad. 1041 Turnell v. Yoncho (1843) 4 B. and Ad. 681 Gutter v. Pike (1842) 4 B. and W. 371 R v. Hutton (1858) 7 Cox. C. C. 154.
341. Duty of counsel for prosecution to take down notes of the summing up.—“Before I conclude my judgment, I desire to refer again to the fact that there were no notes of the learned Judge’s summing up taken by the learned Junior Counsel for the prosecution. In my judgment it is most desirable that in these cases, especially in an important case like this, the learned Counsel for the prosecution should take a note of the summing up of the learned Judge.”—See Jenkins C. J., in 21 C. N. 429 (F. B.).

II—Conclusion of Trial in Case tried with Assessors.

309. (1) When, in a case tried with the aid of assessors, the case for the defence and the prosecutor's reply (if any) are concluded, the Court may sum up the evidence for the prosecution and defence, and shall then require each of the assessors to state his opinion orally, and shall record such opinion.

(2) The Judge shall then give judgment, but in doing so shall not be bound to conform to the opinions of the assessors.

(3) If the accused is convicted, the Judge shall pass sentence on him according to law.

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 309 of the said Code—

(i) In sub section (1), for the words "and shall then require each of the assessors to state his opinion orally, and shall record such opinion" the following shall be substituted, namely—

"and the assessors shall then state their opinions on all the charges on which the accused has been tried, and the Judge may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their opinions are. All such questions and the answers to them shall be recorded"

(ii) In sub-section (3) after that the word 'shall' the words "unless he proceeds in accordance with the provisions of section 562" shall be inserted

1. Object of trial with the aid of assessors.—The real object of appointing assessors is to assist the Court, and the discussion and statement of points by a Judge sitting with assessors, cannot be said to be otherwise than in furtherance of the object of getting the best assistance for a proper adjudication of the case—15 W. R. 25.

2. "The assessors shall then state their opinions on all the charges on which the accused has been tried, and the Judge may ask them such questions as are necessary to ascertain what their opinions are. All such questions and the answers to them shall be recorded"

(2) The Summing up.

3. The provision as to summing up is new.—The older Codes had no provision for a summing up to the assessors. It was however laid down by Norman J. that "although the Cr P Code did not expressly provide for a summing up of the evidence in trials with the aid of assessors, there was nothing in the Code to prevent a Judge from summing up the evidence, which is in fact only a mode of going through and discussing it with the assessors"—[7 B L 63]. The enabling provision was first introduced by the Code of 1852

4. Summing up is optional.—A summing up of the evidence is not required in a case tried with the aid of assessors—11 W. R. 39

5. The object and effect of the summing up.—The effect of summing up, under the provisions of § 309, the evidence in a case tried with assessors, is to enable the Sessions Judge, to place the evidence in a long or intricate case in an intelligible form so as to assist the assessors in arriving at a reasonable conclusion.—9 C. 875

6. The Judge in summing up should refrain from expressing any decided opinion.—A Judge is not to express his opinion in emphatic terms upon the evidence as such a course is very likely to be embarrassing to assessors in coming to an independent opinion in face of the very decided opinion expressed by the Judge [9 C 875]. It is of importance that the opinions of assessors, whether good, bad or indifferent, wise or foolish, should be recorded as they are expressed, without any influence from the Judge, except such as may be reasonably exercised in the course of his summing up [(50) A. N. 22]

7. Case cannot be reopened after once summing up and recording assessors' opinion.—Where the Sessions Judge allowed the Inspector of Police to depose that "the defendant first confessed before me" and after once summing up the case to the assessors and taking their opinion, reopened the matter and pressed upon their attention a part of the accused's confession which appeared damaging, in order to induce them to revise their opinions, held that the procedure was illegal.—(56) A. N. 22.

8. Duty in cases of rioting etc.—In a case of rioting where the dispute arises over the possession of a piece of land and the Crown admits the possession of the accused and the accused themselves urge the plea of private defence, it is the duty of the Sessions Judge to explain to the offence of rioting been proved against any of the accused," are utterly insufficient—3 Pat J. 651.

(3) How to take the assessor's opinion.

8. Assessors should be invited to state grounds of opinion.—Assessors should be invited and encouraged to state briefly the ground of their opinion as well as the conclusions [2 B. R. 322; 2 B. R. 323]. Assessors ought to give the grounds of their opinion, particularly when they differ in opinion from the Judge. [3 W. R. 21 See 14 W. R. 8.]
10. Why the grounds should be recorded.—When a Judge differs from assessors, the grounds of each assessor's opinion should be distinctly noted. The assessor's opinion is not a verdict and is not binding on the Judge; hence its weight depends solely on the reason and sense by which it is supported. [3 W. R. 6 21 19 P. R. 1005]
11. Where there are more than one head of charge.—The assessors, in a case in which the accused is tried on two charges, should give a definite opinion whether the prisoner is guilty of either or both of the charges preferred against him—[2 W. R. 34 15 W. R. 3 See 10 A. 114 16 B. 414.]
12. Form of record.—"The record of the opinion of each assessor should appear at the commencement of the judgment of the Sessions Judge. It is not sufficient that this record should contain a mere verdict of guilty, or not guilty, or proven or not proven, what is required is not only the result arrived at by each assessor sitting on a sessions trial, but, if possible, the reason by which assessor arrived at that result, i.e. the grounds of his opinion. While avoiding prolixity, a sessions Judge should be careful to be intelligible, and precise in recording such opinions.—Wilkins 116 see Madrus Cr. Rules of Practice, ss. 243-245 Punjab Cr. Ch. XLIV. p. 239 Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 13]
13. Opinion should be taken on the whole of the case.—No legal conviction can take place unless the opinion of the assessors is taken on the whole of the evidence in a case—[5 W. R. 3, 2 Shorne 33.]
14. When and how a Judge may question the assessors.—The cross examination of the assessors is entirely contrary to law. S. 309 of the Code of Cr. P. gives the Judge no power to question the assessors until they have delivered their opinions orally and he has recorded such opinions orally and he has recorded such opinions. If there is anything obscure in their opinion there is no objection to the Judge asking questions to clear up such obscurity; but he is bound to allow the assessors to express their own opinions independently in their own words on the whole case, before interfering with them in any way or asking them any question whatever except "what is your opinion?"—[40 C. 164]
15. Individual opinions should be recorded.—The opinion of assessors should be taken individually and not through one of them [9 C. 875 95 P. R. 1887]. The opinion of each assessor shall be given orally and shall be recorded in writing by the Court. [Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 13] It is irregular to take a joint opinion [11 P. R. 1887]

10. One Assessor concurring with another.—Where one of the two assessors says that he thinks it proved that a war was waged against the Queen, that there was a conspiracy to carry on the war, and that the prisoner is guilty of all the acts charged and the other assessors concur with him, it cannot be said that they have given no reason for their opinion—[7 B. L. 63.]
[Note.—But where one of the assessors merely found the accused not guilty of the offence charged and the other concurred with him, held, that such opinion could not be of any assistance to the Sessions Judge at the trial or to the High Court on appeal—[2 B. R. 323]]
17. Imperfect record of opinion.—Where it appeared from the record in a sessions case, that there were the following defects, (1) that the record showed that the opinion of the assessors was that the accused were guilty while their manifest intention was to acquit them (2) that the minutes of the evidence was not made as the examination of those witnesses proceeded, held, that—the provisions of ss. 309, 326 Cr. P. C. had not been complied with and there should be a retrial—[91 A. N. 145]
18. Mode of recording.

stated orally and not in writing or in the form of a judgment under S. 307 of the Code [39 C. 119] But allowing the assessors to give their opinions in the form of a joint statement instead of separately as required by S. 309 Cr. P. C. is an irregularity covered by S. 537 in no way prejudicing the accused or vitiating the proceedings [41 P. R. 1887]

19. Procedure in trials on charges partly triable by assessors and partly by Jury.—In such a trial the opinion of all the jurors as assessors should be taken and not merely of two of them with respect to the charges triable only by assessors

(4) When the assessor's opinion need not be recorded.

20. When the assessor's opinion need not be recorded.—The opinion of the assessors need not be recorded as the acquittal is a matter of right to the accused whatever the opinions of the assessors might be. Rat 307
[Note.—When the prisoner has pleaded not guilty and the Public Prosecutor does not offer evidence the Judge ought to instruct the assessors that they are bound to find the prisoner not guilty.—4 M. 11 (up) 39]
21. When there is no evidence within the meaning of S. 289, Clauses (2) and (3).—When a judgment of acquittal is recorded under S. 372 Cr. P. C. (- S. 289), it is not necessary to take or record the opinion of assessors.—[Rat 35 = 7 B H (C. C.) 82 2 Weir 391] But when there is evidence, the Judge cannot record a finding of not guilty without taking the opinion of the assessors merely because such evidence is not satisfactory, trustworthy or conclusive.—10 A 414 16 B 414. 9 C P. 24. See 1 A. 610; 24 M. 623.

(5) Failure to record opinion vitiates the trial.

22. Admission of guilt after close of prosecution evidence.—The accused at a trial pleaded not guilty and the trial proceeded on that footing. At the close of the prosecution evidence the accused, when asked, admitted the offence. The Judge then proceeded without taking the opinion of the Judge to proceed with the trial as provided in S 309 and hear the defence and take the opinion of the assessors on the case

7 B. R 731. 2 Weir 334

23. Where the plea of guilty is qualified.—Where the prisoner admitted before the Court of Sessions that he had killed his wife but pleaded that he was not in his right mind at the time, held the Sessions Judge was altogether wrong in accepting such plea and convicting the accused without trying the case with the aid of assessors [5 N P 110 See Rat 698].

24. Effect of the failure to record opinion.—If a Judge should decide a case, without inviting the opinion of the assessors, he virtually holds the trial without the aid of assessors and his finding or sentence cannot be regarded as one passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction.—24 M 523 (535) See 10 A. 414 22 W. R 34 9 C. 875. 2 Weir 391; 26 M. 598 21 M. J. 520 Con f A 610

25. Where the accused is convicted of offence other than charged.—Where in a Sessions trial the evidence shows that the accused did not commit the offence or offences with which he has been charged, but some other offence, he cannot properly be convicted of the latter offence with which he has not been charged and on which the assessor's opinion has not been taken.—2 Weir 301 334

26. Judge cannot override the provisions of S. 309 because one of the charges is triable by Jury.—“The circumstances that in this case the accused is charged in the same trial with another offence triable by Jury [See 269 clause (3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure] that the Judge disagrees with the verdict of the jury on that charge and desires to make a reference under S 307 Cr. P. C., do not, in our opinion, absolve the Sessions Judge from complying with the requirements of S 309, as regards the offence tried by him with assessors.—36 M. J. 152.

(6) Opinion of assessors not binding on the Judge.

27. In a Sessions Case, the Assessors are not judges of questions of fact.—The Code of Criminal Procedure does not invest them with the power of appreciating the evidence so as to bind the Judge. Regard must be paid to their opinion, but after all it is the Judge who is to decide the case on the facts as well as law.

14 B R 710. See 24 M. 523 (Per Bhaskaran Ayyangar J.).

28. Opinion of assessor derived from personal knowledge.—The opinion of an assessor derived from personal knowledge, and unsupported by evidence on record, should not be imported by the Judge into his judgment.—24 W. R. 38.

(7) Practice and Procedure.

29. Opinion of the Committing Magistrate not to be referred to in judgment.—The Sessions Judge in a case tried with the aid of assessors, is bound to form his own opinion on it aided by assessors, but quite independent of any expression of opinion on the part of the Committing Magistrate.—22 C. 805

30. Successor cannot convict on opinion recorded by predecessor.—After the assessors had given their opinion, the Judge, without recording his finding or judgment left the district. His successor, after considering the evidence recorded, convicted the accused, held, that the conviction was bad.—21 W. R 47. 8 C J 59

31. Duty of the Judge after recording opinion.

- (1) To record a judgment.—The omission to record a judgment in a case tried with the aid of assessors is an irregularity, but it is covered by S 537 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 392 Cp. 9 W. R. 61. 10 W. R. 7

N. A. 1111

charge to the jury is not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of the Section.—Rat 420. But See 6 B H. (C C) 55

- (2) As to previous conviction.—The record should invariably show that the reference to the previous conviction was not made until the subsequent offence was found proved against the accused.—12 C. L. 555

32. A Sessions Judge cannot take further evidence after discharge of the assessors. In a Sessions trial with the aid of assessors, a Sessions Judge has no power to take evidence after the assessors have been discharged and if he does so, the trial is vitiated [22 Cr 127 (A)] Where in a trial for murder held with assessors, the Court relied on a statement made by the deceased and the evidence necessary to prove such statement was not recorded until after the close of the trial and the discharge of the

to, or does not, answer such question, the jury or the Court and the assessors (as the case may be) shall then hear evidence concerning such previous conviction and in such (where the trial is by jury) it shall not be necessary to swear the jurors again,

Proposed amendments to the section—For section 310 of the said Code, the following section shall be substituted, namely —

"310 In the case of a trial by a jury or with the aid of assessors, when the accused is charged with an offence and further charged that he is by reason of a previous conviction liable to enhanced punishment, or to punishment of different kind, for such subsequent offence, the procedure prescribed by the foregoing provisions of this Chapter shall be modified as follows, namely:—

(a) Such further charge shall not be read out in Court and the accused shall not be asked to plead thereto, nor shall the same be referred to by the prosecution, or any evidence adduced thereon, unless and until,

(i) he has been convicted of the subsequent offence, or

(ii) the jury have delivered their verdict, or the opinions of the assessors have been recorded, on the charge of the subsequent offence.

(b) In the case of a trial held with the aid of assessors, the Court may, in its discretion, proceed or refrain from proceeding with the trial of the accused on the charge of the previous conviction."

Notes.

(1) General Remarks.

1. The difficulty in cases referred to High Court under S. 307.—S. 310 requires to be amended, so as to allow the Sessions Judge, in a case under S. 307 after the Jury has given its verdict, to record the plea of the accused in regard to prior convictions charged against him, and if necessary, to take evidence in regard thereto, before reporting the case for the orders of the High Court.—[30 M. 134] But where the accused was tried by a Court of Sessions on the charge of theft and acquitted by the Jury, and the Sessions Judge disagreed with this verdict but owing to this verdict of jury, could not ask the accused whether he was previously convicted; the High Court on reference, remanded the case with a direction to the Sessions Judge to proceed to finish the trial by applying the procedure of S. 310 Cr. P. C.—[25 B. 40]

[Note.—In the Bill to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure 1899 (No. 20 of 1917) it has been proposed to add the following words after "considers to have been committed (in S. 307)": "and in such case, if the accused is further charged under the provision of section 310, shall proceed to try him on such charge, as if such verdict had been one of conviction"]

2. All reference to previous conviction must be rigorously excluded before conviction.—In a sessions trial a witness was allowed to state that "he had heard that the accused was an old convict and that he did no work in the village." It appeared from the mode in which the plea of the accused was taken both in reference to the substantive charge under S. 340 and in reference to the previous conviction under S. 75 I. P. C. that the jury were aware of the previous conviction before they gave their verdict. It was not attempted to use the previous conviction as part of the substantive proof on the charge under S. 340. Held that the irregular statement of the witness that the accused was an old convict and the knowledge possessed by the jury before they gave the verdict might have improperly influenced the jury and the safest course would be to set aside the verdict.

3. Reference to previous conviction in the course of the trial is illegal.—It is most important for the Judges to bear in mind that they are not to allow a previous conviction to influence the mind of themselves or the assessors in determining the guilt of a person on his trial unless it has been proved and is relevant under S. 54 of the Evidence Act and that such previous conviction is not to be put to the accused and his plea taken to it until after he has been convicted. [S. A. 14] Where a Judge informed the jury before he took their verdict on the substantive offence, that the accused was charged as an offender, held that he acted in direct violation of S. 310 Cr. P. C. [2 Weir 393]. Previous convictions are to be used only after conviction in determining the measure of punishment. [3 W. R. 38: See (1866) A. N. 47] Reading charge relating to previous conviction during the trial, will amount to a positive misdirection. [3 C. 768, 10 W. R. 39]
4. Does S. 310 override the provisions of the Evidence Act? "S. 310 seems to require an amendment with reference to the question whether a previous conviction can be proved as relevant evidence of the subsequent offence. As the amendments proposed will prevent a previous conviction being proved in order to mere prejudice an accused person, it will be safe to provide that nothing in S. 310 Cr. P. C. is intended to exclude the evidence of a previous conviction when such evidence is relevant under the Indian Evidence Act 1872. The result will be that, an accused person is charged with an offence committed after a previous conviction, the previous conviction will be relevant to prove guilty knowledge or intention and also to rebut evidence of good character produced by the accused."—See Statement of Objects and Reasons, Act III of 1931—See S. 311 post Field on Evidence 5th Ed. p. 354.

(2) Procedure.

5. What the record must show.—In a trial by jury or with the aid of assessors, the record should invariably show that reference to a previous conviction has not been made until the subsequent offence has been found proved against the accused.—12 C L 557
6. Question by Judge before conviction.—Where a Sessions Judge had at one and the same examination of the prisoner, after the evidence for the prosecution had been taken, enquired from him what he had to say on the charge of theft and also on the charge of having been previously convicted, held that the irregularity could not affect the conviction of the accused, if it had not occasioned a failure of justice.—13 C L 110
7. Previous conviction must be formally charged.—The fact of the previous conviction must be stated in the charge.—See (83) A N 110 9 M 241 19 W R 41. 21 W R 10 Cr R 1-8-71 Cr R 214-73 Rat 52]
8. Form of the charge.—"Care should always be taken to clearly and accurately state the section—of the Penal Code, and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment or transportation for—years"—[Per Straight J in (81) A N 141 See Cal G. R. and Cr. O p 29] But a charge alleging previous conviction need not show the extent of the former punishment [4 M. H. (appx) x] It is not however sufficient to state in the charge that the accused is an old offender. [2 Weir 266]

9. Previous conviction is a question of fact.—The question is one of fact and ought to go to the jury and must be determined by a jury.—21 W R 40
10. Judge charging the jury that previous conviction was proved amounts to misdirection.—Where in a Sessions case, the Judge told the Jury that certain alleged prior convictions against the accused were proved instead of leaving it to them to decide whether they were proved or not Held (1) that it amounted to a misdirection (2) that the misdirection did not affect the conviction of the accused, as the question of prior conviction can be gone into only after the Jury returns their verdict, and (3) that, though it affected the question of sentence, the Court was not prepared to interfere, seeing that the sentences passed were not too severe. [10 Cr 11 (N)]

11. Proof of previous conviction.

- (1) Proof of identity.—If the accused denies the charge, his identity must be proved by the evidence of the juror or some person.—[Rat 52 (00) A N 51] The identity must be proved in the regular way, a mere kayal is no evidence whatever [15 W R 52 6 B L (1p) 15]
- (2) Extracts from Jail Register etc.—The extract from a calendar, recording a previous conviction is not evidence of the conviction without proof of identity and in no case will it amount to proof of alleged earlier convictions [2 Weir 391] A mere kayal from the record office is not sufficient to prove a former conviction against a prisoner. There should be sworn testimony to the fact and also to the identification of the prisoner with the person previously convicted.—6 B L (1p) 15 See (81) A N 141]
- (3) Copies of Judgments etc.—Previous conviction of an accused should have regard to S. 91 of the Evidence Act and S. 511 Cr P. C. be proved by copies of judgments or extracts from judgments or by any other documentary evidence of the fact of such previous convictions, and an examination of an accused person in respect of these convictions having regard to S 342 Cr. P. C. is without legal warrant or justification.—5 C. N. 670 28 C 649
- (4) Admission by the accused.—If during the trial, an accused person admits previous conviction and such admission duly appears on the record, a Judge is justified in proceeding to pass sentence upon the accused under S 310 Though such procedure is irregular, the sentence will not be set aside if the procedure has not prejudiced the accused.—5 C N 670 28 C 649
12. Accused must be asked to plead.—The filing of a certificate of the kind required by S 511(b) is not by itself proof of a previous conviction. The accused should be asked to plead to the previous conviction, and if necessary evidence should be taken under the last clause of S. 511.—2 L R 53
13. What the record must show.—When an enhanced sentence is passed in consequence of previous conviction the Sessions Judge or Magistrate shall state in his judgment, the date of and the sentence for the previous conviction and the particular offence charged.—Cal G. R. and Cr. O, Rule 39 (a) p 29
14. Previous conviction out of British India cannot be taken into consideration.—7 C P 24 (Cr)
15. Previous conviction under local and special Laws.—are not to be proved under this section.—See 1 Cr 1041
16. Sessions Judge cannot refuse to proceed under S. 310 Where a Sessions Judge refused to admit evidence of previous convictions under S 310 on the ground that the accused had already to suffer a long term of imprisonment, Held that he had acted illegally.—Cr R 17 of 25-6-95.

311. Notwithstanding anything in the last foregoing section, evidence of the previous conviction may be given at the trial for the subsequent offence, if the fact of the previous conviction is relevant under the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872

Note.—See Note No 4 Under S. 310.

(2) Regard shall be had, in the preparation of the latter list, to the property, character and education of the persons whose names are entered therein.

(3) No person shall be entitled to have his name entered in the special jurors' list merely because he may have been entered in the special juror's list for a previous year.

Notes.

- 1. Discretion of the Clerk of the Crown.—The drawing up of the list of special jurors is entirely in the discretion of the Clerk of the Crown and the Court will not interfere.—See Sham Chand Jitter 1 I J (N. S.) 106.
- 2. Rules framed under S. 313.—By the High Court of Allahabad (See L' P. and Oudh Gaz. 1902

- 3. Exemption by Government.—See Notification exempting certain officers of Government from service as jurors or assessors—Burma Gaz. 1902 Pt. I p. 637; Fort St. G. Gaz 1890 Pt. II 507.

314. (3) If, during the continuance of any sessions, it appears that the number of persons so summoned is not sufficient, such number as may be necessary of other persons liable to serve as aforesaid shall be summoned for such sessions.

Proposed amendment to the section—In sub-section (1) of section 315 of the said Code for the word "in each presidency-town" the words "in the town which is the usual place of sitting of each High Court" shall be substituted, and for the words "at least twenty-seven of those who are liable to serve on special juries, fifty-four of those who are liable to serve on common juries," the word "as many of those who are liable to serve on special or common juries respectively as the Clerk of the Crown considers necessary" shall be substituted.

316. Whenever a High Court has given notice of its intention to hold sittings at any place outside the presidency-towns for the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, the Court of Session at such place shall, subject to any direction which may be given by the High Court, summon a sufficient number of jurors from its own list, in the manner hereinafter prescribed for summoning jurors to the Court of Session.

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 316 of the said Code for the words "presidency-towns" the word "town which is the usual place of sitting of each High Court" shall be substituted.

317. (1) In addition to the persons so summoned as jurors, the said Court of Session shall, if it thinks needful, after communication with the Commanding Officer, cause to be summoned such number of commissioned and non-commissioned officers in Her Majesty's Army resident within ten miles of its place of sitting as the Court considers to be necessary to make up the juries required for the trial of persons charged with offences before the High Court as aforesaid.

(2) All officers so summoned shall be liable to serve on such juries notwithstanding anything contained in this Code; but no such officer shall be summoned whom his Commanding Officer desires to have excused on the ground of urgent military duty, or for any other special military reason.

318. Any person summoned under section 315, section 316 or section 317, who, without lawful excuse, fails to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Judge, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court after being ordered to attend, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt and be liable, by order of the Judge, to such fine as he thinks fit, and, in default of payment of such fine, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months in the civil jail until the fine is paid.

Provided that the Court may in its discretion remit any fine or imprisonment so imposed.

Notes.

1. Qualifications of a juror.—In forming a jury, a Sessions Judge should endeavour to seek for persons of an independent condition in life, men of judgment and of experience—23 W R 35.
2. Area fixed by local Government.—In Madras the following persons are exempt:—(1) All persons residing outside the radius of 20 miles when there is no railway communication or 50 miles when there is railway communication and (2) In Kistna, Godavery and Malabar all persons residing outside 40 miles when canal communications exist—[See G O No 1734 dated 10th December 1909 superseding G O No 2062 Judl dated 17th Nov 1884] In Burma (British) all persons living at a distance of more than 10 miles from Sessions-stations—See Bur. 321. (1) The Sessions Judge, and the Collector of the district or such other officers as the Local Government appoints in this behalf, shall prepare and make out in alphabetical order a list of persons liable to serve as jurors or assessors and qualified in the judgment of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid to serve as such, and not likely to be successfully objected to under section 278, clauses (b) to (h) both inclusive.

(2) The list shall contain the name, place of abode and quality or business of every such person; and, if the person is an European or an American, the list shall mention the race to which he belongs.

Notes.

1. As to Jurors.—See Note No. 1. Under S 319 As to assessors. See Notes nos. 6-9 under S. 264 Supra.
2. Sessions Judge cannot arbitrarily grant exemptions.—It is not open to the Sessions Judge or Deputy Commissioner to arbitrarily exclude from the list any person who is liable and qualified to serve as a juror or assessor and who is not likely to be successfully objected to under S 276 cl (b) to (h) both inclusive. Special exemption from liability to serve can be granted only by the Local Government under cl (1) of S. 320.—C. P. Cr. Cir Pt II No 33.
3. Assessors can be chosen only from the list.—The Sessions Judge of Kanara asked the High Court for special permission to hold his court at Sirsi, instead of at Karwar for the session of Sept 1886. Held that assessors could be chosen only from the list prepared under S 321 which can be revised only once a year under S 323 Cr. P. C. The Court therefore declined to grant the permission asked for, there being no assessors available for sessions at Sirsi. Rat 304.

4. List to be carefully revised.—All Collectors should exercise great care in the revision of the juror's list so as to include all qualified persons of intelligence who are liable to serve and to exclude unfit persons [See Mad. G. O No 474 dated 16th March 1889]. The list should show again each person the language or languages understood by him. [See C. P. Cr. Cir Pt. II No 33]

322. Copies of such list shall be stuck up in the office of the Collector or other officer as Publication of list aforesaid, and in the court-houses of the District Magistrate and of the District Court, and extracts therefrom in some conspicuous place in the town or towns in or near which the persons named in the extract reside.

323. To every such copy or extract shall be sub-joined a notice stating that objections to the Objections to list. list will be heard and determined by the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid, at the sessions court-house, and at a time to be mentioned in the notice

324. (1) For the hearing of such objections the Sessions Judge shall sit with the Collector or Revision of list. other officer as aforesaid, and shall, at the time and place mentioned in the notice, revise the list and hear the objections (if any) of persons interested in the amendment thereof, and shall strike out the name of any person not suitable in their judgment to serve as a juror, or as an assessor, or who may establish his right to any exemption from service given by section 320 and insert the name of any person omitted from the list whom they deem qualified for such service.

(2) In the event of a difference of opinion between the Sessions Judge and the Collector or other officer as aforesaid, the name of the proposed juror or assessor shall be omitted from the list.

(3) A copy of the revised list shall be signed by the Session Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid and sent to the Court of Session.

(4) Any order of the Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid in preparing and revising the list shall be final.

(5) Any exemption not claimed under this section shall be deemed to be waived until the list is next revised.

Annual revision of list. (6) The list so prepared and revised shall be again revised once in every year.

(7) The list so revised shall be deemed a new list and shall be subject to all the rules heretofore contained as to the list originally prepared

325 In the case of any district for which the Local Government has declared that the trial of certain offences shall, if the Judge so direct, be by special jury, the Sessions Judge and the Collector of such district or other officer as aforesaid shall prepare, in addition to the revised list hereinbefore prescribed, a special list containing the names of such jurors as are borne on the revised list and are, in the opinion of such Sessions Judge and Collector or other officer as aforesaid, by reason of their possessing superior qualifications in respect of property, character or education, fit persons to serve as special jurors: Provided always that the inclusion of the name of any person in such special list shall not involve the removal of his name from the revised list nor relieve him of his liability to serve as an ordinary juror in cases not tried by special jury.

326. (1) The Sessions Judge shall ordinarily, seven days at least before the day which he may District Magistrate to summon jurors from time to time fix for holding the sessions, send a letter to the and assessors District Magistrate requesting him to summon as many persons named in the said revised list or the said special list as seem to the Sessions Judge to be needed for trials by jury and trial with the aid of assessors at the said sessions, the number to be summoned not being less than double the number required for any such trial

(2) The names of the persons to be summoned shall be drawn by lot in open Court excluding those who have served within six months unless the number cannot be made up without them; and the names so drawn shall be specified in the said letter.

Notes.

- 1. Scope of S. 326.—Ss. 326 and 327 of P. C. contemplate as the ordinary or normal procedure that all assessors should be summoned on the first day on which a criminal Sessions commences, however many trials it may be proposed to hold in the course of that sessions—17 Cr. 17 (A).
- 2. Effect of trial with the aid of a non-summoned assessor.—See Notes Nos 3 to 5 A under S. 284 Supra.
- 3. Trial by Jurors not summoned.—Where owing to the fact that only three jurors attended the Court, the Judge summoned jurors from among the residents of the town on the day fixed for the trial Held that the jury as constituted was not a proper jury and the fact that the Judge instead of selecting jurors from among those who were summoned in accordance with the provisions of S. 326, chose persons specially selected (a thing which the Legislature has taken special pains to render impossible) was a serious irregularity which could not be cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—7 Cr. N. 188.
- 4. The duty cannot be performed by a subordinate Judge "in charge."—The duty of issuing a precept which is imposed on a Court of sessions by S. 326 cannot be performed by a subordinate Judge in temporary charge of the current duties of the Court of Sessions—Rat 148.

- 5. Procedure.—The letter to the District Magistrate is to be in Form No 32 Sch. V. and is technically known as a "precept". On receiving a precept a Magistrate "has simply to issue summons to each person specified in the precept of the Sessions Judge, requiring him to attend at the time and place specified in the summons"—Smyth p 133
- 6. Summons how to be served.—A summons for attendance as a juror could not outside a Presidency town be properly served by leaving it with a servant of the person whose attendance was required as juror [(99) A N 13]. Where the summons was served by fixing the duplicate on the door of the juror's house in his absence and he had no knowledge of such service of the summons, held that he could not be fined for non-attendance [6 Cr. N. 857]. The issue of a summons by registered letter is illegal [See 1 Cr. N. cxvi]

327. The Court of Session may direct jurors or assessors to be summoned at other period than the period specified in section 326, when the number of trials before the Court renders the attendance of one set of jurors or assessors for a whole session oppressive or whenever for other reasons such direction is found to be necessary.

328 Every summons to a juror or assessor shall be in writing, and shall require his attendance Form and contents of summons as a juror or assessor, as the case may be, at a time and place to be therein specified.

Note—For forms—See Sch. V Nos XXXII and XXXIII

329 When any person summoned to serve as a juror or assessor is in the service of Government or of a Railway Company, the Court, to serve in which he is so summoned, may excuse his attendance if it appears on the representation of the head of the office in which he is employed that he cannot serve as a juror or assessor, as the case may be, without inconvenience to the public.

330 (1) The Court of Session may, for reasonable cause excuse any juror or assessor from attendance at any particular session

(2) The Court of Session may, if it shall think fit, at the conclusion of any trial by special jury, direct that the jurors who have served on such jury shall not be summoned to serve again as jurors for a period of twelve months.

331. (1) At each session the said Court shall cause to be made a list of names of those who have List of jurors and assessors attending attended as jurors and assessors at such session.

(2) Such list shall be kept with the list of the jurors and assessors as revised under section 324.

(3) A reference shall be made in the margin of the said revised list to each of the names which are mentioned in the list prepared under this section

332 (1) Any person summoned to attend as a juror or as an assessor who, without lawful excuse, fails to attend as required by the summons, or who, having attended, departs without having obtained the permission of the Court, or fails to attend after an adjournment of the Court, after being ordered to attend, shall be liable by order of the Court of Session to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

(2) Such fine shall be levied by the District Magistrate by attachment and sale of any movable property belonging to such juror or assessor within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court making the order.

(3) For good cause shown, the Court may remit or reduce any fine so imposed

(4) In default of recovery of the fine by attachment and sale, such juror or assessor may, by order of the Court of Session, be imprisoned in the civil jail for the term of fifteen days, unless such fine is paid before the end of the said term.

Notes.

1. No fine can be imposed if the summons has not been legally served.—See (90) A. N. 13 G. C. N. 867; 1 C. N. xvi

2. Order under the section is not appealable.—The order of a Sessions Judge under S. 354 Cr. P. C. = (S. 332) fining an assessor is not appealable.—8 W. R. 63

3. Order made in absence.—The Sessions Judge fined an assessor Rs. 30, as he had not attended at the proper hour. The order was made in his absence. Held that the order was bad, and the assessor should have been given an opportunity of explaining his absence.—Cr. R. 4 of 2023

4. Imprisonment cannot be ordered before actual default.—An order for imprisonment can be made only in default of recovery of fine by attachment and sale. [Held also that imprisonment in default cannot be less than 15 days]—Ibid.

5. Native sentiments to be respected.—A Sessions Judge summoned a gentleman of considerable rank and status to serve as an assessor. He until it is known that he is willing to act as such, as native sentiment upon this point is rightly or wrongly against such nomination.—(36) A. N. 167

L.—Special Provisions for High Courts.

333. At any stage of any trial before a High Court under this Code, before the return of the verdict, the Advocate General may, if he thinks fit, inform the Court on behalf of Her Majesty that he will not further prosecute the defendant upon the charge; and thereupon all proceedings on such charge against the defendant shall be stayed, and he shall be discharged of and from the same. But such discharge shall not amount to an acquittal unless the presiding Judge otherwise directs.

Notes.

1. Where a nolle prosequi would be entered.—In Nunai Kanta Ray's case (41 C 1072) the Advocate General entered nolle prosequi under S 333 Cr P.C. In this case the Jury in the first trial returned a unanimous verdict of not guilty on the main charge of murder. (S. 302) and were divided in the proportion of 5 to 4 on other counts. In the second trial on the remaining counts (ordered under S 308 Cr P.C.) the Jury returned a verdict of not guilty by a majority of seven to two. The Judge disagreed with the verdict. The accused was brought up again before the learned Judge "to be dealt with according to law. The Advocate General thereupon appeared and entered nolle prosequi. Nolle prosequi has also been entered to avoid technical difficulties standing in the way of a discharge or acquittal where it was clear that the indictment was not sustainable against the prisoner [See 2 C. N. 481, 7 C. N. xxvi; 8 C. N. xlviii]

2. The English practice.—In England a nolle prosequi is usually entered, where in a case of misdemeanour a civil action is depending for the same cause: [R. v. Fielding 2 Bur 719] or where any improper or vexatious attempt has been made is not sustainable against the prisoner. [See Archbold pp 143-146 Halsbury Vol V, pp 250-351] or to enable one defendant to give evidence for the Crown against his co-defendants [ibid.].

3. Stage at which it is to be entered.—A nolle prosequi may be entered by the leave of the Attorney-General at the instance of either the prosecutor or the defendant at any time after the bill of indictment is found and before judgment—R. v. Dunn 1 C. and K. 730.

4. The power of the Advocate General not subject to control by the Court.—On the analogy of the English practice, according to which the power is not subject to any control by the Courts [See R. v. Comptroller of Patents (1899) 1 Q B 908-914] the words "if he thinks fit" in the section indicate that the power is invested solely in the Advocate General.

5. Discharge under S. 333 does not amount charges before a Deputy Magistrate, held that the Magistrate was bound to adjudicate on the charges properly laid before him against the accused (40 C 71 29 C. 726 R.). In England also a nolle prosequi is distinct from and has not the same effect as offering no evidence and submitting to acquittal [Elworthy v. Bud—2 Bing 258]. A nolle prosequi merely puts an end to the prosecution but does not operate as a bar to a second trial [See Goddard v. Smith 6 Mod 261; R. v. Allen 1 Band S. 850 R. v. Mitchell 3 Cox 93].

334. For the exercise of its original criminal jurisdiction, every High Court shall hold sittings on such days and at such convenient intervals as the Chief Justice of such Court from time to time appoints.

335. (1) The High Court shall hold its sitting at the place at which it now holds them, or at such other place (if any) as the Governor General in Council in the case of the High Court at Fort William, or the Local Government in the case of the other High Courts, may direct..

(2) But it may, from time to time, in the case of the High Court at Fort William with the consent of the Governor General in Council, and in all other cases with the consent of the Local Government, hold sittings at such other places within the local limits of its appellate jurisdiction as the High Court appoints,

(3) Such officer as the Chief Justice directs shall give notice before-hand in the local official Gazette of all sittings intended to be held for the exercise of the original criminal jurisdiction of the High Court.

5 The High Court may direct that all European British subjects and persons liable to be of trial of European British tried by it under section 214, who have been committed for trial by it within certain specified districts or during certain specified of the year, shall be tried at the ordinary place of sitting of the Court, or direct that they be tried at a particular place named.

6.—In Burma, See Lower Burma Courts Act XI of 1859 S 37 (4), for similar powers of the Chief Court.

IX. Miscellaneous.

13. The effect of the word "such offence," in S. 338,—in S. 338 in to restrict the scope of the section to the offences referred to in S. 837 112, offences treble exclusively by a Court of Session or the High Court. A Sessions Judge cannot tender a pardon to an accused under S. 338 Cr. P. C. when the offences for which he has been committed are not triable exclusively by the Court of Sessions.—10 M. J. 147 (F. B.).

14. Scope of S. 339.—S 339 contemplates a pardon being forfeited under it, but neither in it or in any other part of the Code, is it enacted that the forfeiture of pardon depends on the opinion of the Judge or Magistrate trying a case in which the occasionally pardoned accomplice has agreed to make a full and true disclosure.—30 B. 611.

15. Approver asserting that his former statement was induced by coercion.—It is very doubtful if S 349 (=S 340) was intended to be applied to the case of an approver who withdraws his statement, alleging that it was not a voluntary statement.

(¹81) A N. 74 (¹82) A N. 31.

- 16. Object of Subs (3) S. 339 Cr. P. C.—The object of Subs 3 appears to be to safeguard persons, whose pardons have been withdrawn.

would be defeated if a Sessions Judge is competent to try such a person forthwith upon a withdrawal of the pardon without any independent consideration by the superior tribunal of the propriety of the proceedings taken against him.

42 P. R. 1884.

17. Object of Subs (2) of S. 339.—Cl 2 was no doubt introduced into S. 339 Cr P C in order to make it clear that a statement made by a person who accepted an offer of pardon is not governed by S. 24 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872) and can be used against him in evidence when the pardon has been forfeited.—11 N 59 5A J. 691: 38 174

II. WHO CAN TENDER PARDON.

21. Local Government cannot.—A Local Government in British India has not authority to tender conditional pardon to an accomplice for the purpose of being examined as a competent witness against persons who are being tried for an offence of which the accomplice himself is guilty. Such power is given only to Magistrate of certain classes and Session Judges.—33 C. 1373; 21 Cr. 509 (P) 12 P R 1902; 4 Cr 282 (P) 10 C N. 847; 5 C J 224. Con. 21 P R 1904 neighbouring district of Etah and managed to obtain pardon from the latter—held—the Magistrate of Etah was not competent to tender the pardon and his action was not covered by S 529.

[Note.—But where an accused person retracted a statement made by him under promise of pardon, which so far from being corroborated by any other evidence, was contradicted in material particulars, held that a conviction on such statement was bad.—6 P. W. 1916. 30 P. R. 1914]

18. The necessity of keeping the strictest faith with the approver.—It is a matter of great importance which cannot be too emphatically insisted upon, that the strictest faith should be kept with a person to whom an offer of pardon has been made, and by whom it has been accepted, under the Code, even through the statement made by him under the pardon tendered may reveal him to be one of the vilest of criminals. - The mere failure of his evidence to procure conviction of 321: 32 M. 173. 7 M. T. 121.

19. Case of approver who absconds before cross examination.—“The Legislature has not expressly provided for the case of an approver who after being examined for the prosecution, absconds without submitting himself to cross-examination, and the reason no doubt is that such a case is nearly impossible where the provisions of S 337 (3) [which were disregarded in the case] are duly complied with. But I think it is clear that S. 339 must be strictly construed, and that according to the provisions of that section he has not forfeited his pardon”—Per Thomson J. in 8 L B 357.

20. Change in the Law.—There is no provision in any of the sections of the Code for cancelling revoking or withdrawing a pardon. S 339 of the earlier Code Act X of 1882 as amended by Act V of 1898 no longer contains the word "undrawn" It contemplates a pardon being forfeited under that section, and the question whether there has been a forfeiture or not must be enquired into and decided at the trial before he can be tried on the original charge.—30 B 611: 7 N 65.

23. Session Judge or the High Court etc. may tender pardon with a view to obtain the evidence of the approver. Sec 538

[N. B.—But this power can be exercised only in respect of an offence exclusively triable by a Court of Session (or a Magistrate especially empowered under S 30)]—10 C 936: 10 M J. 147 (F. B.). ('93-00) L. B. 642

24. A Magistrate in Lower Burma—can tender pardon to a person accused of dacoity which is triable by the District Magistrate as well as the Sessions Court.—1 Bur 566.

25. (after the judgment has been pronounced)
300. 191.

26. Mamlatdar.—Under the Criminal Procedure Code, judicial pardon can be tendered only in certain cases and by officers of rank higher than the Mamlatdar.—14 B. 331.
27. The Police.—The mere fact that an accused person although arrested by the Police has not been sent up will not take him out of the category of an accused person and S 337 would not apply to such a case.—21 Cr 599 (P) 12 P R 1902 4 Cr 252 (P) : Con. 21 P. R. 1904. 21 Cr 769 (N).

37A. District Magistrate.—If a District Magistrate can sanction the grant of the pardon although he is not making the inquiry himself, a factum, he can himself grant a pardon in a case where the inquiry is made by himself. 5 S 174.

28. Executive pardon.—The circumstances under which an executive pardon, granted by the Local Government outside the provisions of S. 337 C. P., can be properly cancelled must be taken to be the same as those under S 330 C. P.

III. PROCEDURE IN RELATION TO GRANT OF SANCTION.

(1) Effect of the pardon.

29. Effect of pardon.—When an accused person is tendered and accepts a pardon under S 337 or

See 33 C 1353

[Note.—He must be discharged by a written order before he can cease to be an accused person.—33 C 1353 21 Cr 599 (P)]

30. Accused (pardoned) must be discharged.—At the termination of the trial, in which the pardon is given, the accomplice must be discharged by the Court.—30 B 611
31. Re-arrest of the pardoned accomplice.—A pardoned accomplice may be arrested at the instance of the Crown and proceeded against for the offence in respect of which he was given a conditional pardon. When put on his trial he may plead to a competent Court his pardon in bar. [Ibid].
32. Approver not realising that pardon had been withdrawn.—Any statement made by a person in consequence of the promise of pardon, is inadmissible in evidence against him, so long as it did not appear that he had realised that the tender of pardon had been finally withdrawn. 30 P. R. 1895.
33. Pardon unless withdrawn was a bar to the trial of the approver.—A person charged before a Magistrate at Benares with offences punishable under Ss 471 472 and 474 Cr P O was sent in custody to Calcutta and charged before a Magistrate with offences under Ss 467 473 and 475 along with other accused. The facts of the two cases were closely connected and mixed up. He was granted a pardon and examined as a witness at Calcutta. But the case fell through as his evidence was not sufficiently corroborated. There was nothing to show that the Magistrate was dissatisfied with the prisoner's statement or considered that he had not complied with the conditions on which the pardon was tendered. Held.—that by the terms of the conditional pardon granted to the accused by the Calcutta Magistrate which were satisfied, as was shown by the fact that it had not been withdrawn, the accused was protected from trial at Benares. 11 A 74

34. Informal pardon.—A person to whom the Police Inspector, investigating the case, makes a promise of pardon under the orders of the District Superintendent of Police and who is therefore not sent up, is not a person who may be examined as an approver under S 337 Cr. P. C. [See 21 Cr. 599 (P) 21 Cr 769 (N)] But he may be examined as a witness on the general principle that a person separately tried is a competent witness against his accomplice. Ss 312 and 313 are no bar to such procedure. [21 Cr 769 (N) : See 45 C. 720 31 C 1353 (1357) 16 B 601 38 P R 1887 : (Per Plowden J) 21 Cr. 599 (P) : 12 P R. 1902 : 1 Cr 252 (P)]

(2) When pardon can be tendered.

35. Offence must be triable by the Court of Session.—A Magistrate has no power to tender a pardon in a case which he tries himself but only under S 209 Cr P C (S 337) in the case of an offence triable by the Court of Session.—3 B. H. 59 3 M H (tp) 1 : 101 P L. 1902 3 M H (ap) 2 : 7 P R 1573
36. Pardon tendered to an accused who had pleaded guilty. An accused person who had pleaded guilty was granted pardon, removed from the dock and examined as a witness for the crown. Held that he was a competent witness and an oath could be administered to him 25 M 61 (F. H.) (Dues J dissenting)
37. In cases not contemplated by S. 337, — a Magistrate is not competent to tender a pardon to the accused or to examine him as a witness.—2 A 290 10 B 190 : S. Cr R 18 of '89
38. Before trial. A pardon may be granted at the instance of the Sessions Judge after commitment but before judgment. It is therefore competent to him to direct a Magistrate to tender pardon under the section even before trial. The ruling in 7 W R 78 (110) has been superseded. S. (81) A N 147 6 W R (Cr 1st) 5.

(3) Procedure in relation to grant of pardon.

39. Pardon at the close of the trial.—Two persons were brought to the trial of a murder before the Sessions Judge. After the case for the prosecution had been closed the defence of the accused had been found an ill-governed man and the accused relied before the Sessions Judge on his former plea that the case against one of the two accused was a factum pardon to the other and examined him as a witness. Held that the procedure was irregular, if not positively illegal, but as the accused, had not been prejudiced thereby, there being ample evidence besides, the sentence was not disturbed—(84) A. N. 147.

40. Approver keeping back material evidence—within his knowledge need not necessarily be examined as a witness in the Sessions trial—24 M 319 7 M T. 121

41. When an accused person can be made a witness.—It is illegal for a Magistrate to convert an accused person into a witness, except when a pardon has been lawfully granted under S 347 (=S 337).

1 B 610 2 A. 260 Rat 224 461. But See 25 M 61 (F. B.) 21 P. R. 1904. 16 B 661.

42. Magistrate should warn the accused.—The Court, should when it tenders a pardon to a person, explain to him the conditions which accompany the tender. If he refuses, the trial will proceed as if no such tender had been made. If he accepts, it is the duty of the Court to examine him as a witness in the case and then, if the Court be of opinion that he had not complied with the conditions, the Court may commit him or direct him to be committed for trial upon the charge in respect of which the pardon was tendered—4 B. L. (appx) 50.

43. The sanction.—Where the Magistrate concerned took oral sanction of the District Magistrate before tendering pardon—held that the tender of pardon though irregular was legal—(66) A. N. 259

44. Examination of the approver compulsory.—An accused accepting a pardon must under S 337 (2) be examined as a witness and then dealt with under S. 339 if necessary.—31 M. 272

45. Recording of reasons.—S. 337 requires a Magistrate who tenders a pardon to record his reasons for so doing. Where however, the facts which led up to the tender appear on the record, the omission to state the reasons is not only not an illegality but not even an irregularity which vitiates the proceedings

5 C. J. 224 : 36 C. 629 : 13 Cr. 558 (A).

46. Magistrate with special powers granting pardon must not try the case himself.—Where a Deputy Commissioner with special powers tries a case exclusively triable by the Court of Sessions, and if he tenders conditional pardon to one of the accused, he is precluded by S 337 (4) from trying the case himself.

10 C. N. 847 : 2 A. 260.

IV. FORFEITURE OF PARDON.

(1) Who can direct forfeiture of pardon.

48. Sessions Judge—has no power to pass an order directing the forfeiture of pardon granted to the accused by the Committing Magistrate.

30 B 611.

- 47 General Principle.—The Criminal Procedure Code does not specify by whom a pardon may be withdrawn. Ordinarily the authority, which makes an offer, has the power of withdrawal. The proper authority therefore to withdraw a pardon is the authority which granted it even after the trial has been held in the Sessions Court.

21 M. 321. 19 P. R. 1901.

49. Pardon granted by Magistrate 1st class withdrawn by the District Magistrate.—A Magistrate of the First Class enquiring into a charge of murder, granted a conditional pardon to one B said to be an accomplice in the murder and sent him as a witness to the Sessions Court. In the Sessions Court his evidence was considered to be false. After the trial the District Magistrate revoked the pardon granted to B and committed him to the sessions for trial.—Held that the commitment was bad, in as much as the District Magistrate had no power after the trial was concluded, to revoke the pardon.—(95) A. N. 163 : But see 665 P. L. 1901.

(2) Effect of forfeiture.

50. It is doubtful whether the deposition of an approver—taken before the committing Magistrate may be used as evidence against his accomplices on their trial before the Sessions Court, the conditional pardon of the approver having been withdrawn.—7 C. L. 66 : 13 C. L. 326.

51. Pardon withdrawn before the close of examination.—Where pardon tendered to one of the two accused persons by a Magistrate was withdrawn before the close of his examination—held that the evidence thus given was inadmissible in the Sessions Court.—(91) A. N. 184 575 P. L. 1902

52. Opinion of the Court withdrawing pardon not conclusive.—The opinion of the app the —2

53. Prosecution for giving false evidence as opposed to original charge.—The High Court declined to interfere in a case, where the Deputy Magistrate who had granted the pardon to the accused and who had retracted his statements at the sessions, committed him for trial on a charge of giving false evidence instead of the original charge—23 W. R. 12

54. Statement made by approver may be used against him.—The statement by an approver, who has forfeited the pardon is admissible against him, although he has not been examined as a witness under S. 337 (2) S. 339 (2) contains merely the words "who has accepted the tender of pardon" and the words "accused who has been examined as a witness in the case should not be imported into it—41 P. R. 1905 (F.B.) Per Chatterjee, Johnstone and Clarke J. J. Reid and Kensington J. J. dissenting. See 5 A. J. 691 : Con 10 B 190.

55. Note.—The Statement made before the committing Magistrate which is subsequently withdrawn at the trial, is admissible against the approver under S. 289 Supra [21 A. 175. 14 P. R. 1894-24 P. R. 1902; 15 M. 352; But See 22 A. 445] But it is very doubtful whether such a statement is evidence against the accomplices of the approver after the conditional pardon has been withdrawn. [7 C. L. 66. 22 C. 50 See 5 N. P. 217].
56. Statement of person illegally pardoned. A Magistrate is not empowered to convert an accused person into a witness except when a pardon has been lawfully granted under S. 337. Evidence given by a person who has been illegally granted pardon in respect of an offence not exclusively triable by a Court of Sessions is irrelevant.—See 1 B. 610. 10 B. 190. 3 B. 11 (C) 59; Rat 224 461. 10 C. 936 10 C. L. 553; 6 W. R. 91; 3 P. R. 1897 12 P. R. 1902 21 P. R. 1904. 9 P. R. 1906.

(3) Meaning and Scope of the term "forfeited."

57. The word "forfeited" was substituted in the Code of 1893 in the place of the word "withdrawn" of the Code of 1882. As the law now stands, the question is whether the accused has forfeited his pardon by some act of his own and not whether the Magistrate has validly withdrawn it. The question is one of fact on which it is clear that the Magistrate may hold one opinion and the Sessions Judge another. The Sessions Court has to determine for itself on the evidence before it, whether the pardon has been forfeited, for if not the accused who has accepted such pardon cannot be tried.—25 B. 675
58. The use of the word forfeited in S. 339 Cr. P. C. shows that the approver's failure to make a full and true disclosure is a condition for subsequent determining or forfeiting the pardon. It is for the prosecution to prove that the pardon has been forfeited.—32 M. 173
59. Distinction between "forfeiture" and "withdrawal" of pardon.—The word "withdrawn" in the former Code has been replaced by the word "forfeited" and so the accused cannot be tried even if the pardon has been withdrawn if he has not forfeited it (that is to say that the accused had not by concealing evidence forfeited it)—25 B. 675. 60 C. 236. 30 B. 611 7 N. 65
60. Withdrawal under S. 339 Cr. P. C.—There is no necessity of withdrawing the pardon and the withdrawal has no effect.—32 M. 173 60 C. 236
61. Authority which might take action under S. 339.—Under the Code of 1882 the conditional pardon could be withdrawn only by the authority which granted it and not by the High Court or the Sessions Judge [See 24 C. 492 24 M. 321 19 P. R. 1901. 30 C. 191] It was however held in 149 P. L. 1901 that a District Magistrate trying a case is competent to withdraw pardon, granted to the accused by an additional Magistrate during the course of the enquiry.

(4) Circumstances justifying forfeiture.

62. Approver refusing to make any statement.—An accused person, after accepting pardon refused to make any statement saying that he knew nothing. The Magistrate revoked the pardon and committed him to the Court of Sessions.—Held that the commitment was perfectly legal (66) A. N. 254
63. Circumstances justifying forfeiture.—The mere failure of the evidence of an accomplice to procure conviction of his alleged associates in crime is plainly insufficient in itself to justify a summary order for the withdrawal of the pardon and the trial of the deponent. Some definite evidence to show wilful concealment or the giving of false evidence should be required before his commitment for trial is considered justifiable.—30 P. R. 1895.
- 63A. Conditions precedent to forfeiture.—

a man (a) before a true disclosure of all he knows about the crime. And his pardon may be forfeited by his failure to comply with these two conditions in two corresponding ways: (1) first by concealing some material fact, that is to say by not making a full disclosure or (2) by giving false evidence, that is by not making a true disclosure. The words "false evidence" must be read subject to limitations of their context, as defining one of the modes of non-compliance with the conditions of the pardon and not in their literal sense.—Per Benman J in 30 B. 611

64. Wilful concealment of a material fact.—An accused person who accepts a pardon, forfeits his pardon by wilfully concealing a material fact or by giving false evidence.—(97) U. B. 7.
65. Approver unwilling to give evidence.—Where an approver after accepting grant of pardon, shows an intention of not giving evidence which he has led the prosecution to expect, he
- 66.

on a pardon under S. 339 he accepted the pardon, and when examined as a witness in the case, made a full and true disclosure of what was known to him in connection with that offence. But a few days afterwards while he was examined in another case connected with the same transaction he made a statement totally contradictory of the evidence given by him in the previous case. It was contended that his resiling from his first statement in the second case would not work a forfeiture of the pardon as the condition on which the pardon was granted was fulfilled in the first case. Held, that a witness who after accepting a tender of pardon makes a full and true disclosure, is not at liberty to subsequently contradict his statement or deny its truth without any fear of forfeiting his pardon and the recommitment at a later stage amounted to giving false evidence within the meaning of S. 339 and worked a forfeiture of the pardon.—7 J. 121. 32 M. 173

VII. SANCTION BY THE HIGH COURT.

95. High Court's powers under S. 339 (3) Cr. P. C.—Action can be taken by the High Court under S. 339 (3) against an approver in respect of a statement made by him which is pura facie false, even though the approver has not been examined as a witness in the case in connection with which he made his statement. The High Court can sanction the prosecution of an approver for an offence under S. 197 or S. 194 P. C. in respect of such statement.

96. Necessity of motion before High Court.

If the sanction S. 339 (3) Cr. P. C. is sought on behalf of the approver, an application should be made to the High Court, not by a letter of reference [24 C. 192 10 P. R. 1904. 175 P. L. 1912 (97) A. N. 12].

97. What must be proved before the High Court.—The person moving the High Court must be in a position to place before it, the tender of pardon and the evidence given in consequence of such tender and to satisfy the High Court that there is pura facie reason to suppose that the persons who accepted the tender of pardon had wilfully concealed an essential thing or given false evidence.—12 P. R. 1884.

98. When a Sanction must be obtained.—The sanction under Subs. (3) to prosecute for false evidence, must be obtained before and not after the commencement of the prosecution. [10 B. 190 11 B. H. (C. C.) 34].

99. Locus Penitentiae.—A witness who is in any way induced to make a false statement in connection with a capital charge should be allowed every possible locus penitentiae. The Sanction to prosecute him should not be given merely on the ground that he contradicted himself before the committing Magistrate.—11 A. J. 964.

100. Want of sanction required by Subs. (3) is not a mere irregularity curable by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—27 C. 137 12 P. R. 1884.

101. When the High Court will quash

when a pardon was tendered him, the commitment of all the accused must be quashed and fresh enquiry held at which the approver should be examined as required by S. 337 (2) Cr. P. C.—31 M. 272.

VIII. ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE OF A PARDONED ACCOMPLICE.

102. Definition of "accomplice."—An accomplice is one who confesses himself a criminal. No man ought to be treated as an accomplice on mere suspicion unless he confesses that he had a conscious hand in the crime or he makes admission of such facts which show that he had such hand [11 B. R. 1153]. The term "accomplice" signifies a guilty associate in crime or when the witness sustains such a relation to the criminal act that he could be jointly indicted with the accused, he is an accomplice.—[Per Subahanna Ayar J in 27 M. 271.] A person who gives bribes is an accomplice of the person who receives them. [26 B. 183 (197) 14 B. 331 26 M. 1].

103. "Accomplice" and "spy" distinguished—Spies and informers, who with a view to lay down a trap for a suspected person, suggest to him the commission of crime and supply him with means of committing it are themselves accomplices [19 B. 361]. But a spy who supplies a marked coin to a suspect and lies in wait till the offence has been committed is not an accomplice. [19 B. 363.] A person, who as a spy or detective associates with criminals solely for the purpose of discovering and making known their crimes, and who acts throughout with this purpose and without any criminal intent is not an accomplice, and it is immaterial that he encouraged or aided the commission of the crime. [11 Cr. 500 (C).]

104. The distinction explained.—"Where a witness has made himself an agent for the prosecution before associating with the wrongdoers or before the actual perpetration of the offence, he is not an accomplice, but he may be, if he extends no aid to the prosecution until after the offence is committed. A mere detective or decoy is not therefore an accomplice, nor an original confederate who betrays before the crime was committed. Yet an accessory after the fact would be an accomplice, if he had, before betrayal, rendered himself liable as such.—Per Mookerjee J. in 16 C. N. 1103 (S. B.). See R. v. Mullins 3 Cox 526; R. v. Buckley 73 J. P. 239.

105. A spies' evidence need not be corroborated like an accomplice's.—The law and practice as to the corroboration of accomplices do not extend to the case of a police spy or agent provocateur. See R. v. Mullins 3 Cox 526. R. v. Buckley 73 J. P. 239; See 11 Cr. 500 (C); 19 B. 363.

106. The Law as to corroboration.—The presumption allowed by ill (b) of S. 114 that an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless he is corroborated in material particulars has become a rule of practice of almost universal application. Judge now in their charge usually tell a jury that, under ordinary circumstances, it is unsafe to convict on such evidence without the substantial corroboration of independent evidence. A Judge who combines the function of a Judge and jury is equally bound to scrutinize accomplice evidence with great care and to consider whether there is any corroborating evidence when the main evidence is of an accomplice character.—Per Boddam J. in 27 M. 271.

Note.—See the following rulings—9 W. R. 29; 3 B. H. (C. C.) 57; 6 B. H. (C. C.) 57; 10 B. 319.

(2) Any person against whom proceedings are instituted in any such Court under Chapters X, XI, XII or under section 552 may, if he so desires be examined as a witness in such proceedings."

S 310—S 186 paras 1 and 2 (1872)—S. 432 (1861)

Notes.

1. Pleader.—For definition See § 4 (f) Supra and the notes under that clause.
2. The term "accused".—The term "accused" in S 340 Cr. P. C. applies to a person liable under S 121 Cr. P. C. to imprisonment in default of giving security for good behaviour [See 27 C 650 10 N 797] Although a person, who is called upon to furnish security for good behaviour is not accused of an offence, yet he is an accused person as the word "accused" means a person over whom the Magistrate or other Court is exercising jurisdiction [23 C 103 15 P R 1900 25 A 376 (377) See 21 A 107 42 P R 1905 2 L B 80 con 27 C 662 9 C N 983] It has been held that a person called upon to show cause against an order under S 107 Cr. P. C. is an accused person [See 1 C L 452 36 C 163.] It is doubtful if the term "accused" includes a person against whom proceedings have been taken under S 488 Cr. P. C. [16 C 781 18 B 165 17 C. P. 127 (125)]. As to a person against whom proceedings under S 133 Cr. P. C. are taken—See 9 C N 983.
3. Person against whom complaint has been filed but no process issued.—A person complained against does not become an accused person until it has been decreed to issue process against him under Ch. XVI Cr. P. C. S 340 does not therefore entitle a person complained against, to be represented by a pleader during the preliminary enquiry held under S 292 (1) Cr. P. C. 4 N 81 See 10 C L 553. 16 B. 661 (665) 8 B R 202; But See 1 S 125.
4. The person against whom enquiry is held under S. 476 Cr. P. C. by a Civil Court.—A Civil Court holding an enquiry under S 476 Cr. P. C., is a Civil and not a Criminal Court S 310 therefore does not cover such a case. But as a rule of general practice it is usual to hear pleaders on behalf of persons proceeded against under S 476—S 3 J. 247.
5. Limits of the right of representation.—There is no general rule of law that entitles every person to be represented by a pleader before public officers. The claim must, in each and every case, be referred to some express provision of law. The right of a person, ordered to furnish security under S 114 Cr. P. C. to be represented in the subsequent proceedings relating to the fitness of sureties offered under S. 122 is entirely within the discretion of the Court—4 S 19.
6. Magistrate cannot act arbitrarily.—A Magistrate has no power under S 112 Cr. P. C. (S 340) to forbid a duly qualified pleader to appear for the accused [Rat 25]
7. The privilege under the Section is a matter of right and not indulgence.—It is an elementary principle of law that no order should be made to a man's prejudice, especially in a criminal case, without hearing him. The very object of the Legislature in allowing to be represented at trials by a counsel is is

ask

8. Magistrate must not interpose between the accused and his pleader.—A Magistrate is bound to afford the accused and his every opportunity of making his defence, should not personally interpose in any way. It is highly improper for an investigating Magistrate to refuse to allow the pleaders by the accused's wife to defend the accused to have interview with him or to appear in Court.—1 B R. 856
9. All facilities to be given to engaged prisoners.—The fullest opportunity should be given to prisoners to execute vakalatnamas to whom they please, and without reference to the in, or the circumstances by which they influenced to do so (1 B II 16)
10. Access to prisoners in jail.—Prisoners in the custody of the Police before being produced before a Magistrate are at liberty, at any time of the day, to see a pleader, due precautions taken against escape. The access to prisoners in jails by pleaders is a matter for the Magistrate in charge of the jail to decide.—Mad Tol p 95 Note
11. Discretion of Magistrates.—Every Magistrate has a discretion to permit a person, in a pleader, not otherwise authorised to appear in his Court, to appear for a person before the Court. The discretion, should not be exercised judicially and persons should be sparingly given and in such a case the Magistrate or presiding officer considers it is for the interest of the accused that it be given.—(16) C. B. II. 121.
12. Mukhtears and agents.—Under the Act of 1861, S 132, the Court was bound to hear a person authorised by the prisoner to act as an agent in any Criminal Court. [See Rat 1. 6 B 11 1 M. 301] But under the present practice, a Mukhtear can only plead with the permission of the presiding officer in a Criminal Court [4 S 115. 7 M. II. (a) xxxvi; 2 Weir 314] In the leading case Isahn (Shanida Bhat) (18 C 458) it has been held that "the terms of S. 310 do not warrant any general rule for the exclusion of mukhtears in all cases, but only allows exercise by Magistrates of a discretion in each case as it arises. The Magistrates are expected not to deprive parties of legal aid when they frequently obtain at moderate cost, by indiscriminate exclusion of persons who are invested by law with a distinct professional status in criminal trials." [See also 2 Weir 400 401 1 W. R. 34]

13. Magistrates must not arbitrarily interfere with the conduct of the case by the pleader. A Criminal Court has no right to tell the pleader to sit down in the middle of his cross-examination because he is asking irrelevant questions. It can only rule a particular question irrelevant and refuse to allow it to be put and order the pleader to proceed with another question. It has no right to refuse to allow the pleader to cross-examine some witnesses because he has not purged himself of the contempt shown towards it, or to allow him to cross-examine witnesses there after called, only if he apologised for his previous contumacious behaviour. The Court has no power to tell the accused to defend himself by a plea, as the pleader, as the defendant did not know

14. Court must not threaten a pleader.—A pleader is bound to call witnesses whose evidence he wishes to submit to the Court, even though he suspects their evidence. It is for the Court to determine the value of such testimony. Any threatening on the part of the Court to report to the High Court the conduct of the pleader in calling such witnesses is improper.—3 B. R. 562
15. Adjournment for opportunity to engage pleader.—A Magistrate acts arbitrarily in refusing to allow an accused person an adjournment of his case for securing the services of a pleader whom he wants to engage for the purpose of cross-examining the prosecution witnesses.

14 P. W. 1916.

16. Admissions by pleader.—Admissions made by a prisoner's solicitor in formal matters of law which can be better trusted to him are evidence against the prisoner [Cr. R. 60 of '94; 34 of '95]. But as a general rule an admission on a matter of fact cannot be so used [17 W. R. 49]. The position of a pleader appointed by the Court to defend a prisoner accused of murder is not the same as that of a pleader authorised by the accused to act for him. The admissions made by the former are not binding on the prisoner [2 B. R. 751]. If a counsel says "admitting for the sake of argument that there was a dacoity the prisoner is not proved to have been present," held that was no admission at all [Rat 606].

that the order of the District Magistrate went beyond the terms of the High Court Circular, * * * The High Court Circular did not preclude a Magistrate except in exceptional cases, from exercising his discretion by allowing private vakils of good character to appear in a case.—12 M. T. 290]; See Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) Sch II, Art 10.

341. If the accused, though not insane, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the inquiry or trial; and, in the case of a Court other than a High Court, if such inquiry results in a commitment, or if such trial results in a conviction, the proceedings shall be forwarded to the High Court with a report of the circumstances of the case, and the High Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit.

Notes.

(1) Application of the section.

1. Scope of the section.—In a case coming within the terms of S. 341, the Magistrate should, on conviction merely report the case to the High Court for orders. He cannot pass an order under S. 362 Cr. P. C.—11 M. T. 401.

2. Application of the Section.—Before a Magistrate can act under S 341 Cr P C he ought to hold an enquiry into the question whether the accused is a lunatic at the time of the trial or at the time of the commission of the alleged offence. If he finds that the accused is not a lunatic on either of the occasions, he will then as required by S 341 Cr P C, try the accused or commit him to the Sessions Court for trial. If he convicts him, he will then make a report to the High Court under S 343 Cr P C.—[11 M T 24 See Rat 536] If the accused is found to be of unsound mind, the procedure provided in Chap XXXIV, infra must be followed [Rat 832 151 5 B 262 ('00) A N. 47] The section is intended to provide for cases in which the accused person is deaf and dumb, or from ignorance of the language of the country and the want of an interpreter, is unable to understand or make himself understood.—[5 B. 262]
3. The Section does not apply where the

Where the accused showed by his demeanour that he understood what he was charged with, the Magistrate's finding must be accepted as final, and the provisions of the section would not apply [19 W R 37]

4. Criminal responsibility of deaf mutes—“The law in England appears to be that though great caution and diligence are necessary in the trial of a deaf and dumb person, yet if it be shown that such person had sufficient intelligence to understand his criminal acts, he is liable to punishment [Russell on Crimes Vol I p 62: Archbold's Criminal Practice p 11 and Re v Steel (1757) 1 Leach C C 451] The rulings in 22 W. R 35 22 W R 72 Rat 696 are authorities to communication by signs or otherwise. In modern practice, want of capacity either in the understanding or memory, is but only a difficulty in the means of communicating knowledge. The Law in India certainly does not expressly provide for a sane deafmute, who has never been instructed being exempted from punishment. If his mind is sound, his inability to hear and speak will not excuse him [(10) U B 4 Q 57. See 93 P. R. 1855-139 P R 1850]

5. Every presumption must be made in favour of the deaf-mute.—The only evidence against deafmute accused was that a week after the theft he was caught by the guard walking past his quarters and wearing a suit of pyjamas which formed part of the stolen property. Held that the presumption authorised by S 114 (a) of the Evidence Act in the case of an ordinary individual should not be applied. It was impossible to draw such an inference because the accused's infirmity prevented him from putting forward any explanation.—(11) M. S. 821.

(2) Practice and Procedure.

6. Magistrate or Judge cannot himself pass orders in doubtful case.—When the Magistrate is uncertain whether the accused understood the proceedings, he should not convict and sentence the accused but proceed under this section 2 Weir 403 (1910) U. B. I. 57 See 11 M. T. 401
7. Serious cases.—In serious cases reported under S 341 Cr. P. C. it is usually the practice to refer the matter to the Local Government.—21 Cr. 621 (P). 13 P R 1911 : 37 P. R. 1889
8. Attempt should be made to communicate with the prisoner.—Where a dumb person is placed on his trial, some means of communicating with him should be adopted. The

[(10) U. B. I 57 : 8 B. R. 849]

9. Reference should not be made in the midst of the trial.—Sec 341 Cr. P. C. requires that the Court shall proceed to the end of the trial and then report the result to the High Court if a conviction follows. It does not empower a Magistrate to make the report in the midst of the trial.—4 B R 825. Rat 836 : 879. 180 : 2 Weir 403. 27 C 368
10. What the Section contemplates.—In a case referred under S 311, the Legislature seems to have contemplated that there should be a
11. Points to be ascertained before reference.—In submitting a case to the High Court, under S 341 Cr. P. C the Magistrate must state his view of the conduct of the accused and must take some evidence regarding the previous history and habits of the accused. [Rat 696 (697) : 8 B R. 849] He should decide on the evidence whether the accused is capable of understanding the proceedings or not, and even if he is found incapable, the Magistrate is to proceed with the inquiry and report to the High Court, if he convicts or commits the accused. A mere expression of an opinion by the Court that the accused is guilty does not amount to a conviction [Rat 879 27 C. 364]
12. Petty offences.—Where the offence is very petty, the deaf mute accused will ordinarily be discharged.—See 21 Cr. 621 (P) : 22 W. R. 35 : 34 P. R. 1895.
13. Summary trial.—Where the accused is a deaf and dumb man, it is inconvenient to try him summarily, even if the offence is summarily triable.—8 B. R. 849.
- (3) The High Court.
14. The wide discretion of High Court.—Where a Magistrate commits a deaf-mute to the Sessions on a charge of murder, and then forwards the proceedings under S. 341 to the High Court, it does not necessarily follow that the Sessions trial shall take place. It is discretionary with the High Court in such cases of commitment, to order whether the trial should proceed or not, and it should consider whether any benefit will likely to result especially to the accused by such trial—[27 C. 368]. Under this Section the discretion vested in the High Court is very wide, though according to the principles of English Common Law proceedings conducted when the accused is unable to understand, do not constitute them a fair and proper trial, still the High Court can, under special circumstances, if it thinks fit, treat the proceedings of the lower Court as a sufficient trial and pass sentence on the prisoner, according to the facts which seemed to be established in the course of and as the result of those proceedings—[22 W. R. 35. See (10) C. B. I. 57].

15. When the High Court will discharge the accused.—Where a person accused of theft being dumb cannot be made to understand the proceedings against him, and it becomes impossible to say whether he knew the nature of the act committed or that he acted with dishonest intention therein, he must be acquitted and discharged [1 B. R. 290]. Where the offence is of a petty nature, and the deaf and dumb accused cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may order that he be committed to prison.

When the accused was a boy of 15 or 16 years, the High Court directed him to be made over to his father to be looked after.—[7 N. P. 131].

16. Remand.—The High Court, though it may believe in the guilt of the prisoner, may give him a further opportunity of being heard in the matter of the charge—[22 W. R. 35. See 22 W. P. 72].

342. (1) For the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, the Court may, at any stage of any inquiry or trial without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the Court considers necessary, and shall, for the purpose aforesaid, question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence.

(2) The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment by refusing to answer such questions, or by giving false answers to them; but the Court and the jury (if any) may draw such inference from such refusal or answers as it thinks just.

(3) The answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such inquiry or trial, and put in evidence for or against him in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answers may tend to show he has committed.

(4) No oath shall be administered to the accused.

I. GENERAL REMARKS ON EXAMINATION OF ACCUSED PERSON.

1. The Sections dealing with statements made by an accused person are—164, 209, 242, 244, 245, 253, 256 (2), 257, 259, 342 and 364. Ss. 164, 242, 244, 256 (2) relate to voluntary statements. S. 257 only renders admissible in the Sessions Court the statement which has already been recorded under S. 209, Sections 209, 259, 342, 245, 253 provide for examination of the accused while under trial. S. 209 is applicable to inquiries preliminary to commitment. S. 259, to trials before the High Court and Court of Session; S. 245 to trials of summons cases and S. 253 to those of warrant cases, while S. 342 is of general application to all kinds of trial.—The scope of examination (viz. for the purpose of enabling accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him) is not indicated in Section 259, 245 or 253—It is possibly owing to the absence of words of limitation in these Sections that the necessity arises for reminding Judges and Magistrates that the examination of the accused should be restricted to the purpose indicated in S. 342.

2. S. 364 indicates the manner in which the examination of the accused should and its power to record statements which the accused offers to make. The Court can question the accused only under the conditions laid in S. 342 which, however, does not apply to voluntary statements made by him.

II. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

(1) Legislative history of the Section.

3. "In the earlier Acts, the examination of the accused person was discretionary with the Court: vide S. 373 of Act XXV of 1861 and Act VIII of 1869. In Act X of 1872 while the discretionary nature of the examination was retained so far as inquiries and trials of cases other than Sessions cases were concerned, it was made compulsory for Sessions trials. Section 250 of that Act, occurred in the Chapter relating to Sessions trials and ran as follows: "The Court may, from time to time at any stage of the trial, examine the accused person and shall question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence." In 1882 the provisions relating to the examination of an accused person which was scattered in different Chapters in the previous Acts, were removed from those Chapters and brought under one Chapter headed "General provisions relating to enquiries and trials." S. 250 of the Act X of 1872 was, therefore, removed from the Chapter relating to Sessions trials, but its provisions were embodied in their entirety in S. 342 of the Code of 1882 as well as 1898. The object of the examination of the accused person being to enable him to explain any circumstance appearing in evidence against him, Sec. 250 of the Code of 1872 in the Chapter relating to Sessions trials conferred upon the accused person a right of being examined after the witnesses for the prosecution were examined and before he was called on for his defence. Such a vested right could not be taken away from the accused person without any express provision to that effect in the subsequent legislation of 1882 and 1898. Far from there being any indication to divest an accused person of this right, the Codes of 1882 and 1898 seem to expressly confirm it by S. 342—Jural Person J. in 5 Pat J. 430.

(2) Difference between the older Codes and the Present Code.

4. Though the Code of 1872 and older Codes contained no express limitations of the nature or time of examination such as those laid down in Section 342 of the Codes of 1882, and 1898, yet the rulings under the Code of 1872 disapproved anything in the nature of cross-examination of the accused. Only two rulings seem to suggest that cross-examination is permissible. [See Footnote below].

Rulings under the old Codes.

"The discretion given by the law for questioning a prisoner has not been allowed for the purpose of driving him to make statements incriminatory of himself. This discretion can, we think, only properly be used for ascertaining from the prisoner how he may be able to meet facts in evidence appearing against him, so that those facts should not stand against him unexplained. It is declaredly within the competence of the accused to decline answering any question, while of course the Court is at liberty to weigh his answers whether they tell for him or against him."—1 M. H. 199; See 1 C. L. 436; 6 C. L. 431; 3 B. H. 51.

Footnote.—(1) 3 M. H. App. 2; 5 C. L. 238.

(3) The Scope of examination of the accused was limited for the first time in the Code of 1882.

5. The reasons for the change are thus set forth in the Select Committee's Report "we think that the present law gives too great a latitude to the Courts with regard to the examination of an accused person, the object of such an examination is to give the accused an opportunity of explaining any circumstances which may tend to incriminate him and thus to enable the Court, in cases where the accused is defended to examine the witnesses in his interest. It was never intended that the Court should examine the accused with a view to elicit from him some statement which would lead to his conviction. We have, therefore, limited the power of interrogating the accused by adding to the first paragraph of S. 342 the words "for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him."

(4) The Law as explained in rulings under the old Codes.

6. (a) The real object of S 250 (corresponding to S 312 of the Code of 1896) is to enable a Judge to ascertain from time to time from the prisoner, particularly if he is undefended, what explanation he may desire to offer regarding any facts stated by the witnesses, or after the close of the case, how he can meet what the Judge may consider damning evidence against him"—6 C 90 (102) 16 W R 21
7. (b) "A Magistrate should not examine an accused if the evidence adduced by the prosecution discloses no proper subject of a criminal charge against him 1 B L (App) XVI
8. (c) "It is competent to the Magistrate to put questions to the accused. The answers given to those questions, if any are given, will generally have a great effect upon the question as to the witnesses necessary to be examined on the part of the prosecution and if, after the complainant has been examined, questions put to the accused elicit answers which leave no doubt as to the commission of the offence, there seems to be no reason why the Magistrate should not then frame the charge and call upon the accused to plead"—3 M. H. App. 2

9. (d) In the case reported at 5 C L 278, it appears that the first step taken by the committing Magistrate when the accused came before him was to examine the accused.

(5) Obsolete ruling under the old Codes

10. A confession recorded by a Magistrate having jurisdiction is to be treated as an examination under S. 193 Code of 1872 (=S 312 of the present Code), notwithstanding that the prisoner may have been brought before the Magistrate before the conclusion of the Police investigation, —5 C. 934 (F. B.)

III. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object of the Section.

11. (a) The object of S 342 Cr P C is not to fill up a gap in the evidence for the prosecution but to enable the prisoner to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him—2 C 49 13 A 345. 14 A. 212 27 M. 238. 1 L B 292 4 N 103.

The Legislature did not intend that under colour of an examination under S 342 an accused person should make statements such as he might make if he were being examined as an approver.—6 C C 204

12. (b) This section is expressly designed to secure that the Court, in the interests of strict justice should, by the form of its questions, perform a double duty, viz, that it should (i) communicate to the accused what is alleged against him in the evidence for the prosecution and (ii) ascertain from him what explanation or defence in law or fact he wishes to put forward in respect thereof, and so far as legal defences are concerned the most liberal construction should be put on the language of an ignorant accused—17 C P 113 (118) Ser (1872-92) L B 320 20 Cr 12 (N).

[Note.—It is not sufficient compliance with the provisions of S 312 to put a general question such as: "Have you anything more to say in this case?" or "You have heard the prosecution witnesses against you, what have you to say?"—20 Cr 12 (N).

13. (c) The real object of the power granted by the section is to ascertain from time to time from the prisoner, particularly if he is undefended, what explanation he may offer regarding any fact stated by a witness; or after the close of the case, how he can meet what the Judge may consider to be damning evidence against him.

14. Intention of the Legislature.—It is not that under the colour of an examination under S. 342 Cr P. C. the accused person should be made to make statements such as might be made by him had he been examined as an approver—6 C C 204.

(3) Application of the section.

15. Statements offered by accused and not made in answer to Magistrates' questions.—S 342 does not seem to apply to statements offered by the accused. It applies only to answers to questions put by the Magistrate. A Magistrate may record a statement of the former kind made at the commencement of the enquiry but he should be very careful in doing so, since it is usually one of confession and the accused comes fresh from the hands of the Police—(84) A. N. 84.
16. "The proceedings are not to be taken as evidence against the accused."—(84) A. N. 84.

[Note.—See 312 applies to cases under the Burma Gambling Act—11 Cr 746 (L. B.)]

17. Bombay Gambling Act overrides S. 342.—S. 10 Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act (1887) implies that the Magistrate has power to examine as witnesses persons arrested and brought before him under S. 6. The whole procedure of the Gambling Act is a special procedure and overrides the general law of procedure as enacted in S. 342 Cr P. C. wherever there is any inconsistency between the two. It is simply an instance of "generalia specialibus non derogant."—88, 309
18. Summary trials.—S 263 does not give the Magistrate discretion whether he will examine the accused or not. This is governed by S. 342. It gives the accused the right to refuse to say anything if he chooses. But there must be examination in all warrant cases—41 C 743.
19. Application of the Section.—The examination of the accused person for which the section provides is an examination touching the matter on which he is being tried. It does not apply an examination in another case in which the person who is being examined is not himself an accused person. Where A is the principal offender and B his abettor, A is competent witness if B is being tried separately, and S. 342 is no bar to such a procedure.—20 A. 426; See 23 B. 213.

(3) Definition and meaning of terms.

"Accused."

20. (a) The term "accused" in S. 342 means a person over whom the Magistrate or other Court is jurisdiction.—16 B. 661; 23 C. 493; 15 C. P. 112; 12 P. R. 1905; 21 P. R. 1901; Contra 9 C. N. 983.
21. (b) The word "accused" does not mean and include any person over whom a Magistrate or other Court is exercising jurisdiction—A party to a proceeding under S. 133 Cr. P. C. is not an accused person within the meaning of S. 342 of the Code. Subsection (i) S. 342 applies only to persons liable to punishment. 9 C. N. 983.
22. (c) The word "accused" in Cl. (4) S. 342 means the accused then under trial and under examination by the Court. It cannot include an accused over whom the Court is exercising jurisdiction in another trial. 23 B. 213; See 3 B. R. 347; 31 C. 1353; 4 L. B. 302.
23. (d) Accused may appear by pleader who may answer questions put to the accused under this section. 6 S. 206.
24. (e) A Serang charged with incompetency or misconduct and tried under Act VI of 1881 (Indian Steam Vessels) is an accused within the meaning of S. 342.
Tinker's case 1 East P. C. 351.
25. (f) Even when a person is arrested, so long as he is not brought before a Magistrate or Court, he is not an accused within the meaning of this Section.—16 B. 661.
26. (g) A person who has been arrested by the Police as concerned in a crime but who, owing to certain disclosures made concerning his accomplices, has been discharged by the Police without being brought before a Magistrate, is not an accused person, through the discharge by the Police was illegal.—Ibid.

27. (h) An informer is not an accused person. 39 P. R. 1857.
28. (i) A person, who was implicated in a case under S. 161 I. P. C. but the prosecution against whom was withdrawn, could not be regarded as a accused with the meaning of this section. 18 B. R. 206.
29. (j) The accused numbering nine persons, were put up for trial on a charge of dacoity. Two of them pleaded guilty and were at once convicted but their sentences were postponed till the end of the trial. The remaining seven were taken from the dock and examined as witnesses. Held by Fullon, that they were still accused under trial and an oath could be administered to them under this section.—3 B. R. 477.
30. (k) A grant of pardon does not alter the position of an accomplice as an accused person. It continues to be an accused and no oath can be administered to him. 9 P. R. 1900; But see 2 P. R. 1901.

"Taken into consideration."

31. (a) In a case when two persons were jointly tried on a charge of murder, the Judge examined each of the accused in the absence of the other, in order that neither of them might hear what the other said, held that the statement made by each prisoner could not be taken into consideration against any other.—6 B. 124.
31. (b) It is not easy to define what is meant by the words "taking into consideration."—At all events it must mean that they are not to have the force of sworn evidence and a conviction solely based upon it would be bad in law.—(43) A. N. 169.

IV. EXAMINATION OF THE ACCUSED.

(1) Examination at the commencement or before recording evidence illegal.

32. (a) It is improper if not actually illegal to examine an accused person at the commencement of the enquiry or trial, often with a view to extract damaging admissions from him.—(81) A. N. 106.
33. (b) The Court should not begin the proceedings of a case with the examination of the accused. It is illegal and opposed to the provisions of this section to question the accused, when there is no evidence on record which he can be asked to explain.—(52) A. N. 106. See 5 C. N. 161.
34. (c) It is illegal to take the statement of an accused person three weeks prior to the commencement of the Magisterial enquiry proper and before a word of evidence has been heard.—(40) A. N. 234.
35. (d) The only purpose that can be served by examining the accused before any evidence is recorded is to force the accused to confess his guilt or assist the prosecution by admitting facts which may go to incriminate him.—2 C. N. 702.

36. (e) Before recording any evidence in the case Magistrate not justified in putting any question at all to him, since it is only for the purpose of prosecution witnesses is completed, is contrary to law and unfair to the accused.

1 O. J. 238; 1 P. W. 1010. See 11 Cr 746 (L. B.).

39. Voluntarily statement inadmissible.—Though the accused should not be examined when there is no evidence to convict him of the offence with which he is charged, still a statement made freely or voluntarily by him cannot be rejected as inadmissible on account of this irregularity of procedure.—Rat. 679.

(2) By whom may the accused be examined.

40. (a) The Section allows the Court—but never the complainant—to put questions to the accused.

10 M. 121 (123)

41. (b) Special Bench constituted under Act XIV of 1908.—In a trial before the Special Bench an accused may be given an opportunity of explaining the circumstances appearing against him and a truthful explanation coming from the accused cannot injure him, innocent as he is presumed to be.—19 O. N. 923

(3) Accused cannot be examined when there is no evidence against him.

42. (a) Where there is no evidence on the record

9 M 224; 10 M 205. See 10 M. 121; 27 M. 238; Reg. 1, Berriman 6 Cox C O 338; 10 W. R. 25; (15) M. N. 413

43. (b) "The case was not a warrant case and not a a person against whom he has issued process, for the purpose of afterwards treating them as evidence in the case and Chapter XXI of the Code gives no countenance to any such procedure.

13 A. 315.

(4) Accused may be examined any time.

44. A Magistrate is empowered at any time and without any previous warning to put question to the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him.—16 O. J. 161

But see Note No. 42 34 of 11

(5) Scope of the examination.

45. Object to allow accused to explain and not to incriminate himself.

(a) The object of examination is not to obtain incriminating statements from the accused but is only to enable him to explain circumstances appearing against him. 2 C N 702; 7 O N 345; 5 A J 605; See 21 C 642; 1 Bur R. 320; 16 W. R. 21; 1 C L 436; 6 C. 196; 6 C. 279; 10 C 140; 1 M H 199

46. (b) A Judge examining a prisoner under S. 342 ought not to cross-examine him. The only permissible question are such as will enable the examiner to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him.—10 C. 140

47. (c) "We think it well to point out in reference to S. 342 and 361 of the new Code that it is not intended to empower Magistrates to cross examination persons charged before them—5 A. 253; 17 C. N. 354; 1 P. W. 1910.

48. (d) "It is not for the purpose of ascertaining what witnesses the accused intends to call or what evidence they will give or what his evidence is, that the Court is justified or authorised in examining an accused under that section (342)."—Evidence as used in S. 342 means the evidence already given at the trial.—14 A. 242 (253). 1 P. W. 1910.

49. (e) The examination of the accused should not be of an inquisitorial nature conducted in the

what is prima facie proved against him but on every circumstance appearing in evidence against him.—4 N. 107.

50. Section intended for accused's protection.

"I have no doubt that the Legislature intended to protect an accused person from the ordeal of examination as a witness and to render him capable, therefore, of being punished for the making of false statements or oath or otherwise, so long as his case is subjudice."—19 A. 200; 12 M 451.

51. Examination for the purpose of supplementing evidence is not permissible.—It is not competent for the Court to examine the accused for the purpose of filling up gaps in, or supplementing the evidence for the prosecution. Thus, in a charge of defamation, when the prosecution is unable to prove that the accused made and published the defamatory matter, it is illegal to examine him to supply this defect and prove the publication. It is so even in an irregularity and mistake conclusion.—27 M 248; 29 C 49.

52. Irregular examination may be cured.—

When a person charged with having given false evidence admitted both in his examination and in his defence that he made the statement which was false, held that the conviction was not necessarily illegal by reason of the fact that no evidence as to the identity of the accused with the person who made the false statement was adduced. Irwin J remarked that even if the question of the Magistrate asking the accused whether he had made the alleged false statement, is not warranted by the terms of S 342, it is only an irregularity cured by S 537 infra 3 L B 204. But See 26 C 49

53. The following remarks of Prinsep J decide the principles underlying the examination of the accused under S. 342—"We regret to have to notice the manner in which the examination of the accused has been conducted.—In permitting a Sessions Judge to examine an accused person from time to time during a trial, the law does not contemplate that he should commence a trial with a strict examination of a prisoner after the manner of the cross-examination of an adverse witness by counsel. The Court has already pointed out on more than one occasion that by exercising the power, allowed by S 250 (corresponding to S 342) the Sessions Court is not to establish a Court of Inquisition and to force a prisoner to convict himself by making some exonerating admissions, after a series of searching questions, the exact effect of which he may not readily comprehend. The real object is to enable a Judge to ascertain from time to time from a prisoner, particularly if he is undefended, what explanation he may desire to offer regarding any fact stated by a witness, or after the close of the case, how he can meet what the Judge may consider to be damatory evidence against him. In one of these cases now before us, we observe that the Judge was engaged during the whole of the first day in examining the accused. In like manner in the second case he examined the accused at considerable length before the case for the prosecution was opened. Such proceedings appear to us to be an abuse of the power given under the law"—6 C 96 at p 102

54. Magistrate not precluded from eliciting information from accused by independent enquiry.—

Except where an accused person is being examined under S 342, a Magistrate is not precluded from eliciting information by independent inquiry, so long as the information is voluntarily given.—37 C 467.

55. When accused cannot be examined about previous statements.

(a) A Magistrate is not justified in examining accused as to certain previous statements made by him when such statements had not been made legal evidence in the case or brought on the record.—9 M. 224

(b) The examination should not be directed towards obtaining from accused explanation in regard to matters which he had previously mentioned in his confession subsequently retracted nor should an attempt be made to elicit further information in regard to a statement made by a witness.

7 C. N. 345,

56. Magistrate should examine accused about retracted confession.

(a) Where a confession is retracted and there is no evidence against the accused, except the retracted confession, it is a grave omission if the Judge does not ask him to explain why he made the confession. M H. C Pro. 29 1-56.

(b) Where the only circumstance appearing in evidence against the accused was his retracted confession and as to this, he was not questioned at all in the Sessions Court, held that the procedure was contrary to that prescribed in S 312.

2 Weir 507.

56A. Accused cannot be examined about inadmissible confession.—

The accused can not be examined about a confession which is inadmissible and if he is examined about such a confession, the questions and the answers to them are not admissible in evidence against him.—4 L B 211.

put to an accused person which elicited a statement of a confessional nature—held that such examination was wholly inadmissible.

58. Irrelevant questions inadmissible.—

The Court is not authorised to put questions irrelevant to the matters in issue.—10 C. 110.

58A. An accused may not be asked who were with him in the commission of the offence.—

58. When can accused be questioned about previous conviction.

(a) This section does not justify the Court in questioning the accused about previous convictions. The Magistrate should place on the record a copy of the previous judgment or other documentary evidence of the fact of such previous conviction as required by S 91 of the Evidence Act or S 511 Cr P. C.

(c) The accused should not be asked in his examination concerning a previous conviction of which there is no evidence

1 L B 8.

(d) In a case of previous conviction, it is not necessary that the identity of the accused with the person previously convicted should be conclusively established before the accused is questioned. The moment there is some evidence of identity, accused may be asked to explain it.

4 N. 163.

If the accused on being asked to plead to previous conviction, admits it, further proof is not necessary.—2 L B 53

(6) Questions in the nature of Cross-Examination.

59. A Judge cannot put questions in the nature of cross examination to the accused. No attempt should be made to induce the accused to incriminate himself. 17 C N 354 5 M T 216 18 Cr 911 (L B); 7 C N 315 6 O 279 6 C L 431 1 P. W. 1910.
60. Questions ought not to be directed.—towards obtaining from the accused any explanation of any statement made by him in a previous confession retracted by him at the trial

61. Cross-examination of an accused is very improper.—5 C N 864 10 C 110. 5 C. P. U.
62. S. 342 does not permit a Magistrate to submit the accused to an embarrassing and cruel series of questions intended rather to puzzle the accused, than to elucidate the case or to enable the accused to furnish an explanation as to the circumstances appearing in evidence against him. 6 B. 63. Questions of an inquisitorial nature.—A Magistrate is not justified in putting to the accused questions of an inquisitorial nature

1 O J. 163.

(7) Examination how far compulsory.

64. Examination when compulsory.—

(a) The term "shall" makes it incumbent on the Court to question the accused after the prosecution witnesses have been examined and before he is called on for his defence. The provisions of this section are mandatory. Even in cases tried summarily, a Magistrate is bound to record a summary of the accused's examination.—9 B R 356. 10 B R. 201; 2 Weir 105; See 17 B R 892. Rat 625. 710. 720; 9 M. 224 (244). 19 C N. 1043 (1917) 3 U. B. 18; 1 O J. 163. 21 Cr. 705 (Pat). Or R 5 of 1886; 9 W. R. 62. See Note No 86 below.

65. (b) Trial at the sessions.—The proposition laid down in 9 B R. 356 proceeds on the assumption that S 342 applies to the case of an accused tried before the Sessions Judge, even when he has been questioned generally by the Committing Magistrate "That is a proposition which seems to be open to serious doubt but it has been asserted in the ruling referred to and before that, it has been asserted on several occasions by the Benches of this Court.—9 B R 730. 9 C. J. 55; Con—(73) A N. 1. 9 B R. 356. 17 B R. 692; 2 Weir 405; 9 M. 224 (244); 19 C N 1043; (1917) 3 U. B. 18; 21 Cr. 705 (Pat)

[Note Per Contra.—The examination of an accused person is obligatory in sessions trial—See Notes no. 72 post]

66. (c) Warrant Cases.—In all warrant cases there must be an examination of the accused as laid down in S 342.—1 C 741
67. Discrepancy between S. 239 and 342 reconciled.—It is time that S 239 supra refers to the examination (if any) of the accused, as if it were optional with the Court to examine the accused or not. This is in conflict with S 342

but the apparent discrepancy may be explained by the fact that S 239 contemplates cases in which there are no circumstances for the accused to explain.—2 L B 115

68. When examination is optional.—Where it appears from the record that the accused left the case entirely in the hands of his legal advisers, the Judge need not, after the conclusion of the case for the prosecution, ask the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in evidence against him.—2 Weir 105
69. When the pleader may be examined instead of the accused.—When the accused has been exempted from personal appearance (S. 205), the provisions of this Section are complied with if his pleader is examined on his behalf. Appearance by pleader involves the performance of all acts which devolve upon the accused in the course of the trial such as answering the examination of the Court under S 342 or pleading or refusing to plead to the charge.—6 S. 206.

(8) Effect of Omission to examine the accused.

70. Where the record did not show.—that the accused had been examined or called on to enter on his defence—held—that the omissions were not cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—2 L B. 115; See (1917) 3 U B 18

71. Omission which is fatal.—

- (a) Omission to examine the accused is fatal to the validity of the trial. The provisions of S 342 are imperative and failure to comply with them is not a mere irregularity curable under S 537 Cr. P. C.—(17) 3 U. B. 18
- (b) A failure to give the accused an opportunity of explaining points against him is an illegality vitiating the whole trial.—17 B R 892.
- (c) —

- (d) Non-compliance with the express provisions of law, would not be cured by waiver or consent of the prisoner.—25 W. R. 57.

72. Omission by Sessions Court to examine the accused.—The examination of an accused person is obligatory in Sessions trial, [21 Cr. 705 (Pat) (73) A N. 1. 9 B R 356 9 B R. 730; 17 B R 892. 2 Weir 405. 9 M 224 (244). 19 C N 1043; (1917) 3 U. B. 18. 1 O J. 163. 1 O J. 163 Con—(73) A N. 1. 55] The omission to do so is a fatal defect and is not curable by the provisions of S 537 Cr. P. C. [(17) 3 U. B. 18. 17 B R. 892; See 25 M 61 (P.C.)]

73. Cases of omission in which High Court will interfere.—The language of S 342 is mandatory and the omission to comply with its provisions is not a mere error of form. There may of course be circumstances in which the omission could not reasonably be held to have prejudiced the accused and in which, therefore the interference of the High Court may be discretionary. But where there are grounds for thinking that the omission on the part of the Court to question the accused operated to produce a non-disclosure of the case for the defence and the withholding of evidence material for it, the High Court would interfere—2 Weir 405

74. When the High Court will not interfere.—Though a trial in which the accused is not examined is bad still it is not incumbent on the High Court to set aside the order when the aggrieved person does not move the Court to do so—1 L. B. 143.

(9) Refusal to answer questions.

75. Effect of refusal.—The practice of refusing to answer questions in the Sessions Court and of putting in a written statement is a very pernicious practice. The refusal to answer may be attended with great risk to the accused, for the Court is bound to question him and a refusal to answer may involve an adverse inference against him—19 C. N. 1043.

76. Presumption arising from refusal.—The Court may presume that if a man refuses to answer a question which the law does not compel him to answer, the answer, if given, would be unfavourable to him.—III (b) to S. 114 Indian Evidence Act

V. USE OF STATEMENT MADE BY ACCUSED DURING EXAMINATION.

(1) Filling up a gap in the evidence.

77. A gap in the evidence for the prosecution cannot be filled up by any statement made by the accused in his examination under S 342. An omission to prove the making and publishing of an alleged libel cannot be made up by statements made by the accused in answer to questions put to him under S 342—26 C. 19 : 27 M. 234 : See 10 M 295 5 C P. 11.

(2) Inadmissibility of document proved by accused's statement irregularly obtained.

78. When the statement of accused is recorded in violation of the terms of the Section, it is illegal to ask the Jury to consider as evidence against the accused a document purporting to be proved by such statement—26 C. 49

(3) Admissibility of answers given by accused.

79. The answers which the accused gives to questions by the Magistrate may be used in evidence against him. The admissibility of the accused's statements—

80. Inadmissibility of answers irregularly obtained.—

(a) If a Magistrate questions the accused even when there is no evidence against him, any statement elicited from the accused during such irregular examination is inadmissible in evidence against him (15) M. N. 413 : See 26 C. 19

(b) When the accused answers a question about inadmissible confession his answer is inadmissible in evidence against him—1 L. B. 244

Note.—But if some of the questions are of an inquisitorial nature, that does not make the whole statement inadmissible.—9 C. J. 55.

(4) Privilege attaching to statements.

81. Accused's statements privileged.—Statements of a defamatory character made by accused during the course of his examination are absolutely privileged, so as to secure immunity for punishment under S. 439 I.P.O.—36 M. 216 (F.B.)

82. Accused's statement protected—

(a) "The accused is not bound to answer any question which may put him in a position of self-incrimination."

put to him—19 M. 207

- (b) The protection afforded to accused is limited to statements made by accused in answer to questions which are for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him.—12 O. C. 308 : See 10 C 433.

VI. WRITTEN STATEMENT FILED BY ACCUSED.

83. Written statement not authorised by the Code.—I know of no authority in the Code of Criminal Procedure authorising a written defence to be put in at the trial of cases before the Court of Session—Such written statement most certainly cannot be allowed to take the place of examination of the accused which S 342 imperatively orders to be made"—(33) A. N. 1 But See 16 W. R. 53.

84. The practice of filing written statements condemned.—"The practice of refusing to answer questions in the Sessions Court and of putting in a written statement which, it may be said, has now become almost universal in the Province, but which is largely a growth of recent years, is a very pernicious practice and in my opinion, the sooner it is put an end to, the better. There is no provision in the Code for the making of a written statement by an accused and the obvious object of the practice in many cases is to defeat the provisions of S 342, Criminal Procedure Code, probably based on some idea of the legal advisers of the accused that he may give himself away. That section, if intelligently used by Judicial Officers, is of great use to accused persons for whose benefit the section was enacted. A written statement drafted by an accused's legal adviser, can never have the same value as answers coming directly from the accused's mouth, and it cannot anticipate the points on which the presiding officer considers explanation desirable. It frequently happens that verbal explanation is refused and the promised written statement never filed. The refusal to answer questions may be attended with great risk to the accused, for the Court is bound to question him and a refusal to answer may involve a adverse inference against him.—Per Beachcroft J. in 19 C. N. 1043

85. Mookerjee J. on written statements.—

"A question has been raised as to the propriety of the procedure adopted by the Sessions Judge when he accepted written statements from the accused and our attention has been drawn to Emperor v. Anusuya [(1903) A. N. 1]. It is sufficient to state that no objection was taken by the Crown in the Court below when the statements were tendered and received. The procedure followed in this case is in accordance with what we believe is the universal practice in the Courts of this province, and we do not feel pressed by the doubt suggested in the case mentioned. But it is desirable to state that such a written statement does not take the place of evidence nor of such examination of the accused as is contemplated by the Code"—Per Mookerjee J. in 42 C. 937

(1) General Rules.

86. Examination of the accused imperative.

—S. 312 is imperative and not merely permissive as it is a means of enabling the accused to explain what appears against him.—[Cr. R. 50 of '92]. The term "shall" in S. 312 of the Code of Criminal Procedure makes the duty imposed on must be presumed to seriously prejudice the accused—1 P. R. 1918; 9 B. R. 356; 17 B. R. 892; Rat 625; 710; 720 Cr. R. 5 of '86; 2 Weir 405; 9 M. 221; 20 Cr. 12 (N); 5 Pat J. 430; 21 Cr. 793 (Pat) 19 C. N. 1043; 10 J. 163; (1917) 3 U. B. 18; See 10 C. L. 54

87. Sessions trials.—It is doubtful whether S. 312 Cr. P. C. applies to the case of an accused person tried in the sessions Court even when he has been questioned on the case generally by the committing Magistrate.

9 B. R. 730; 9 C. J. 55; But See notes no 63 and 72 supra.

88. Difference of procedure between Ss. 164 and 342.—Under S. 164 a Magistrate is entitled to record any voluntary statement made by the accused, but he is not entitled to examine the accused in respect of the evidence recorded against him.

5 C. N. 861

VII. PROCEDURE.

89. Plea of guilty.—The Magistrate should take down the plea of guilty in the form of question and answer and in the exact words used by the accused in answer to the charge.—5 B. R. 999

90. Examination how to be recorded.—The statements made by the accused during his examination should be recorded in the manners indicated in S. 364—[4 B. R. 401. See (83) A. N. 243; 2 C. N. 702 (713)]

The examination of an accused person should be taken down in the language in which it is delivered, and as far as possible in the words used by him. 24 W. R. 54; 20 W. R. 50; Cr. R. 1 of '84. Rat 633; 9 Bur. R. 86.

[N. B.—The certificate need not be in the magistrate's handwriting. It is sufficient if it is signed by him.—8 W. R. 55]

92. No oath can be administered to the accused.—No oath or affirmation can be administered to accused who cannot therefore be examined as a witness till he is convicted or discharged.—1 B. 610.

93. When oath can be given to a person accused of an offence.—An accused person actually under trial cannot be sworn as a witness, and if two or more persons are being jointly tried none of them is a competent witness for or against the others. But this exception to the general rule goes no further and has no application

94. The Law Stated.—"Section 312 in its widest interpretation only authorises an objection that the person offered as a witness answers to the description of the accused person in the enquiry or the trial, as the case may be, in which he is presented as a witness"—Per Flinders J. in 38 P. R. 1887.

95. Accused illegally discharged.—A person arrested and illegally discharged by the police is not an accused person within the meaning of S. 312 (4) and may be examined as a witness against the other accused.—16 B. 691; 15 C. P. 112.

98. Accused examined as witness after conviction.—The accused numbering nine persons, were put up for trial on a charge of dacoity. Two of them pleaded guilty and were at once convicted, but their sentences were postponed till the end of the trial. Held by Candy J. [Patten J. contra] that they were competent witnesses as they were no longer accused persons within the meaning of S. 312 (1) but convicts — 3 B R 437.

97. Illegal conditional pardon.—"One possible effect of S. 313 may be noticed. If a conditional pardon is tendered under S. 337 in violation of the terms of S. 313, the pardon would be an illegal pardon and the question would then arise whether the person so pardoned is a competent witness. If he was being jointly tried, he would not cease to be an accused person within the meaning of S. 312 (4)." — Per Mathia A. J. C. in 21 Cr 760 (N).

(3) Miscellaneous Rules of Practice.

98. The "evidence" referred to in S. 342 Cr P. C. is the evidence already given at the trial at the time when the Court puts questions to the accused. 13 A. 315; 14 A. 212; 1 N. 163; 2 C N 702.

99. Effect of irregular procedure.—Although it is improper to examine an accused person otherwise than as permitted by S. 342 the statements actually made, cannot if apparently, freely and voluntarily given be rejected as inadmissible merely on account of the irregularity of procedure. Rat 679.

100. When the evidence does not disclose any proper subject of criminal charge—against the prisoner, the magistrate if he thinks so, need not examine the accused. 10 W. R. 23.

101. Before an accused person is put on his defence he must be examined by the Court under S. 342 Cr P. C. Cr R. 5 of '66; Cr. R. 50 of '92. 9 W. R. 62.

102. Questions put to the accused by the Court.—Must be strictly limited to the purpose of enabling him to explain any circumstances appearing in evidence against him. 14 A. 212; 5 C. P. 9; 1 Bur 329; 14 C 140.

103. Question at any stage after prosecution evidence has been recorded.—While it is not intended to empower Courts to cross-examine an accused person they are nevertheless authorised to put any questions which may appear necessary at any stage of the inquiry and particularly when all the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined for the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances in evidence against him — 5 A. 253.

104. Refusal to examine.—It is not competent to a Court to refuse to allow the accused to make a statement or refuse his offer to be examined — 10 C. L. 34.

105. Committal without examination—of the accused to the sessions is not illegal.

2 W. R. 50.

108. Supplementing the case against the accused.—This Section does not enable the Magistrate to supplement the case for the prosecution against the accused.

10 M. 295; See 5 C. P. 11.

(4) English Cases.

107. Where a Magistrate before any evidence was given, questioned an accused who was brought before him under arrest and then remanded to make the questions and answers were held inadmissible.—

Petit v. R. — 4 Cox. C. C. 164.

108. Where a woman was indicted for concealing the birth of her child and stated to the Magistrate that she had nothing to say, and the Magistrate before committing her, asked her where she had put the body of the child.—Held by Frie J. "The question ought never to have been put and it would be very unfair towards the prisoner to receive in evidence an answer so irregularly elicited."

Berriman v. R. — 6 Cox. C. C. 388.

343 Except as provided in sections 337 and 338, no influence, by means of any promise or No influence to be used to induce threat or otherwise, shall be used to an accused person to induce disclosures him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—The accused G. a subordinate Judge was charged with an offence under S. 161 I. P. C. in respect of a bribe offered to and accepted by him from one N. The case was split up into two charges and prosecution was started against G. and N. jointly in respect of one of the charges. N. subsequently received an assurance from the District Magistrate that if he gave truthful evidence, the charge in the second case against him will also be dropped. N. was discharged under S. 194 Cr P. C. and was examined as a witness against G. An objection was taken under S. 313 Cr. P. C. — Held [Per Bachelor

J.] "That section provides that except as enacted in certain sections dealing with the tender of pardon to accomplices, 'no influence by means of any promise or threat or otherwise shall be used to an accused person to induce him to disclose or withhold any matter within his knowledge.' The Section does not declare what would be the consequences if an accused person did make a statement under inducement. * * *". [Pir Shah J.] "It is not necessary however for the purposes of this case to express any definite opinion on the applicability of S. 313 to the circumstances under which N. came to be examined in this case."

'There are no words in the section to show that the prohibition contemplated by the section refers to the Court and not to any other person, and that an accused person within the meaning of the Section is the accused under examination and trial—18 B. R. 256 [25 B. 422 R.]

2. Inducement by a Police Officer.—Where one of the members of a criminal conspiracy was induced by promise of pardon by the investigating Police Inspector to agree to depose against the other accused [and was therefore never arrested and brought up for trial] Held that he was a competent witness, although he might have been sent up as a co-accused and tried jointly under S. 239 Cr. P. C. and he was not an accused person within the meaning of S. 343 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 769 (N.). See 15 C. P. 112 16 B. 661 (72-92) L. B. 246, 248, 252

8. Where the accused is pardoned illegally.

—A person in the position of an accused, cannot be converted into a witness unless (1) he is acquitted, discharged or convicted or (2) he is pardoned under S. 347 Supra. Where the pardon is illegally tendered, it would be unlawful for the Magistrate to examine the accused as a witness. [See 1 B. 610 2 A. 260 10 B. 190 10 C. 936, 12 P. R. 1902, 52 P. L. 1902 100 P. L. 1902, But See 10 M. J. 147 (F. B.)]

4. Improper Inducement.—See Notes under S. 163 supra. It is improper for a Magistrate to hold out promises to prisoners as an inducement to confess [1 W. R. 24 See Ss. 24, 28, 29 of the Evidence Act (I of 1872)] But a statement is not inadmissible, because the Magistrate failed to caution the prisoner against the consequences [See 5 M. H. (1905) vi]

344. (1) If, from the absence of a witness, or any other reasonable cause, it becomes necessary to postpone or adjourn proceedings, or it is advisable to postpone the commencement of, or adjourn any inquiry or trial, the Court may, if it thinks fit, by order in writing, stating the reasons therefor, from time to time, postpone or adjourn the same on such terms as it thinks fit, for such time as it considers reasonable, and may by a warrant remand the accused if in custody.

Provided that no Magistrate shall remand an accused person to custody under this section for a term exceeding fifteen days at a time

(2) Every order made under this section by a Court other than a High Court shall be in writing signed by the presiding Judge or Magistrate

Explanation.—If sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the accused may have committed an offence, and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by a remand, this is a reasonable cause for a remand

VI. Miscellaneous.

1. SCOPE AND OBJECT.

(1) Object of the Section.

1. The intention of the Code is that a trial before a Court of Session should proceed and be dealt with continuously from its inception to its finish. Occasions may arise when it is necessary to grant adjournments but such adjournments should be granted only on the strongest possible grounds and for the shortest possible period. 10 A. J. 471

(2) Scope of the Section.

2. Powers under the Section must not be exercised arbitrarily.—Magistrates should understand that the power conferred by this section is a power which is only to be exercised in cases which come really within the terms of that section. It is not a power to be exercised arbitrarily and not according to rule. 9 B. L. 351

3. Application of the Section.—This Section relates to proceedings in enquiries and trials and has nothing to do with Police investigation and it contemplates a remand to jail and not to Police custody. 23 B. 32 (31)
4. Magistrate should make free use of the provisions in the cause of justice.—A Chap XXI of the Code contains no provisions corresponding to S 270 sup a, which applies to Sessions trials, a Magistrate will have to make a free use of the provisions of the present section and S 519 infra than would be proper in a Court of Session. It is the Magistrate's business to find out the truth and to correct the mistakes in the case either of the prosecution or defence by adjourning the proceedings and summoning material witnesses. 3 L. B. 128.

II. ADJOURNMENT.

(1) The inherent power of the Court.

1. Power to adjourn.—A Court of Justice has inherent jurisdiction to stay proceedings in a case before it and S 311 empowers it to adjourn an inquiry or trial for any reasonable cause.

4 P. W. 1916.

(2) What are reasonable grounds of adjournment.

2. Absence of defence witnesses.—When the trial was going on at the sessions, two defence witnesses were absent and the accused prayed for an adjournment but the Judge refused the prayer.

He

19 M. 375.

3. For preparation of accused's defence.—A Sessions Judge should allow adjournment to allow the accused to prepare his defence though he delayed to take copies of the evidence of the witnesses before the Magistrate—12 O. N. exli
4. For producing witnesses.—Trial may be adjourned for the purpose of allowing the accused to secure the attendance of his witnesses, 16 W. R. 21 See 5 M. H. (App) xxvii.
5. When witnesses were examined by the committing Magistrate in the absence of the accused.—If in the course of the trial the Sessions Judge is of opinion that the prosecution has not laid a basis for the reception of the deposition taken before the committing Magistrate in the absence of the accused, it would be a reasonable ground for adjournment.—12 C. L. 120.
6. Time should be allowed to accused to cross-examine new witness.—If a witness not examined before the Committing Magistrate is tendered as a witness for prosecution and the accused objects that the examination of that witness will be a surprise to him, this is a reasonable ground for adjournment—1 P. R. 1849
6. A. Reasonable Cause defined.—Reasonable cause is some cause which will enable the Court to have before it all the materials relevant for the enquiry or trial—(95) A. N. 254.
7. Defence of accused.—If a witness in another subsequent case,—6 M. T. 90.

8. Absence of accused's counsel owing to engagement at another place.—The fact that the accused's advocate has to fulfil a long-standing engagement at another place is prima facie a reasonable cause for adjournment—4 Bar T. 213.

9. Adjournment cannot be granted when case not within the terms of the section. Where there was not the absence of a witness or other reasonable cause rendering it necessary or advisable to adjourn the enquiry the case can not be adjourned. The power conferred by S 224 Cr P. C. (=S 311) can only be exercised in cases which come really within the terms of that section.—17 W. R. 65 See 24 W. R. 26; 23W. R. 8

Note.—(1) The Judge remarked,—"There was not any evidence taken which could be made the foundation of a charge; and the Magistrate

10. Reasons must be clearly recorded.—When a Magistrate defers the examination of witnesses and adjourns the enquiry and remands the prisoner under S. 104 Cr P C he is bound to express clearly on the record the reasonable cause owing to which it becomes necessary or advisable to do so.—6 M. 63.

(3) What are not reasonable grounds.

11. Absence of the accused.—Where the accused was absent at the date of hearing and he was not represented by pleader or counsel, the adjournment of the case is altogether unnecessary, since the Court could not proceed with the trial or record evidence in the absence of the accused. 6 P. R. 1906
12. Absence of some of the accused.—Where a number of persons are accused of having committed an offence, the absence of some of them is not a reasonable ground for adjourning the trial—18 W. R. 100

13. Against ground for adjournment.—Where the proceedings have been completed against an accused person, the decision of the case or his commitment to the Court of Session should not be deferred merely because the principal offenders have not been arrested.

3 W. R. (Cr. Let) 21.

III. CONDITION OF ADJOURNMENT—PAYMENT OF COSTS.

(1) Rules governing award of costs.

26. Scope of the words "on such terms as it thinks fit."—The words "on such terms as it thinks fit" in the section are wide enough to cover an order making the payment of costs by one party to another a condition of granting an adjournment. The power to grant conditional adjournment can be exercised in a case initiated by a Police report.—40 M. 1130

27. The Rule as laid down by the Calcutta High Court.—Where "the accused was not entitled to the adjournment asked for and it was only made conditionally on his paying the costs of the other side, we think it was in the discretion of the Magistrate to make the order in question and that his action was justified by the terms of S 344 and was under the circumstances not unreasonable.—9 C. N 18 (24) But see N W. P. H. C. Rer Misc. No. 217 of 1896.

[N B—There is no real conflict between the two cases last quoted. In 9 C. N. 18 the postponement was discretionary under Sec. 344, while in the N W P. case, the application was made under S 526 (5) and postponement was imperative.]

28. Costs to be ordered only in exceptional cases.—The Criminal Procedure Code does not make a special provision for costs in the course of a criminal trial, and one thing seems to me to be perfectly clear, and it is this, that if Section 344 is to be regarded as justifying an order as to costs, it can only be where the circumstances are exceptional and where for some reason or another the ordinary method of conducting criminal cases must be departed from. I say this because I feel sure that if our criminal law intended orders as to costs to be a normal part of our criminal proceedings, it would be clearly provided for.—Per Houton J. in 42 B 254.

29. Judicious grant of costs will prevent useless adjournments.—S. 344 expressly empowers a Magistrate to adjourn an enquiry upon such terms as he thinks fit. It entitles the Court to award costs to a party who has been put to unnecessary expense by the conduct of the other side. A judicious exercise of the power would have the effect of preventing many useless adjournments. 23 A 207 9 C. N 18 followed. See 28 A 209.

30. Order for costs against the informant in a Government case.—The order for costs can be made against the person who is the informant to the Police, although the prosecution may be conducted by Government.—41 M. 1131.

31. Costs to accused and witness.—A complainant may be directed to pay the costs of an adjournment to the accused and a witness. 9 A. J. 170.

31A. Case postponed owing to illness of complainant.—Cost may be given to an accused whose case is postponed owing to the illness of the complainant.—20 P. R. 1901.

32. Grant of costs no indication of bias.—The Criminal Procedure Code does not authorise Magistrates to give compensation whenever they think proper by way of costs for adjournments, and the passing of such an order against a party does not disclose any prejudice on the part of the Magistrate and is not a valid ground for the transfer of the case to another Magistrate.—2 Pat W. 215.

(2) When costs cannot be awarded.

33. When costs cannot be ordered.

(1) Costs cannot be ordered on an application being made under S. 526 Cr. P. C.

8 P. W. 1911.

(2) Costs cannot be awarded on the adjournment of an appeal.—21 Cr. 201 (1); (02) A N. 59

34. Costs against Government.—A Court of criminal appeal cannot, on granting a motion for an adjournment made by the Public Prosecutor, order that the successful applicant (Government) should pay the costs of the adjournment. (02) A. N 59.

35. Costs cannot be awarded against absent accused.—Costs of adjournment must not be awarded against an absent accused, as it is entirely opposed to the spirit of conducting criminal trials to impose such terms on the accused, even while granting adjournments for his benefit.—As the adjournment was absolutely necessary, the question of imposing terms for adjournment does not arise.—6 P. R. 1906.

36. Costs against Government under S.

IV. REMAND TO CUSTODY

(1) Change in the Law.

37. Change in the Law.—Under the old law, a Magistrate could not order a person to be remanded to custody unless he was a habitual offender. Under the new law, a Magistrate can order a person to be remanded to custody if he is a habitual offender. See 4 B. L. (App) 1. (obsolete).

Note.—Other obsolete rulings under the old law.

(a) The Magistrate has no authority to detain accused in custody, without some reason made manifest to him either in the shape of sworn testimony given before him or some other form which can be put upon the record.

20 W. R. 23 : 11 B. L. (App) 8 (18).

- (b) When there are witnesses ready for examination but the Magistrate is of opinion that it is advisable to wait for further evidence before commencing the enquiry, the examination of witnesses present may be deferred.—6 M. 63
- (c) Before remanding an accused to Jail, the Magistrate is bound to see that upon the evidence some case is made out against the prisoner.—1 B L (App) 1 (4).
- (d) A Magistrate is not justified in remanding the accused when there is no evidence at all which could be the foundation of a charge. 9 B L 351 (363)
38. (b) Current Law.—Under the present Code there is no necessity for such evidence but no remand without a hearing can last for a longer period than 15 days.—5 B H. 31

(2) Distinction between detention under S. 167 and remand to custody under S. 344.

39. Under S. 167 supra, a Magistrate on a mere perusal of the entries in the police diaries relating to the case, may from time to time authorise the detention of the accused in custody for a term not exceeding 15 days on the whole. Thereafter he can under S. 344 by a warrant remand an accused for any term not exceeding 15 days, at a time if sufficient evidence has been obtained to raise a suspicion that the accused may have committed an offence and it appears likely that further evidence may be obtained by such remand.—36 C 166

(3) Procedure

40. The general rule.—Remands to custody should not ordinarily be ordered under S. 344 C. P. C. without first recording some evidence, where such is already available to show that good ground exists for believing the accused person to have committed a non-bailable offence. The ordinary course is to examine a Police Officer to ascertain that the Police possess information which they believe to be trustworthy, that an offence has been committed and that the accused person was concerned in its commission. When after one remand the accused is again brought up, some direct evidence of the guilt of the accused should be required to justify the refusal of bail and with each remand the necessity for producing such evidence increases.—1 N 162 [5 M. 69 Fd.]
41. Remand can not be granted in the absence of the accused.—To remand is to recommit to custody and since the first commitment requires the presence of the accused, recommitment also requires his presence.—2 Weir 409
- 41A. Prisoner must be produced before the Court.—The prisoner must be brought before the Court before it can remand him to custody on Police application.—(67) P R 39
42. Remand must be to jail.—S. 344 relates to proceedings in enquiries and trials and has nothing to do with Police investigation. It contemplates a remand to jail and not to Police custody.—23 B. 32

43. Remand should not be allowed for the purpose of obtaining further information.—This section "does not empower the Magistrate to remand an accused person in the custody of the Magistrate to Police custody for the purpose of obtaining information with regard to the offences which the accused is alleged to have committed.—4 B R 878.
44. Confessing accused cannot be remanded.—There the accused had already made a confession, he cannot be remanded "in order to get from him a confessional statement"—2 Weir 414
45. Detention of accused under trial—is not intended to be penal but its object is to secure attendance. The gravity of the offence and some evidence of its perpetration by the accused will however justify detention.—36 C 174.
46. Condition precedent to remand.—A Magistrate must have reason to suppose that further evidence is likely to be obtained before remanding a prisoner.—17 P R 1872.

without examining any witnesses.—When a Magistrate defers the examination of witnesses, adjourns the enquiry and remands the prisoner, he is bound to express clearly on the record the reasonable cause from which such action became necessary or advisable. 6 M. 63.

Note.—This is a ruling under the Code of 1861 and is now obsolete in so far as it requires the examination of witnesses as a condition precedent to remand.

48. What is sufficient cause for remand.—When a Police officer of superior rank has been examined and swears that he has evidence which
certain evidence goes and that there is in the possession of the Police incriminating correspondence connecting them with a secret society in Calcutta, a remand will not be unreasonable.—36 C 166
49. Power of remand—is expressly limited to 15 days. The order of a Magistrate sanctioning the detention by the Police of an accused person for an indefinite period is illegal. 5 B H 31.
50. Magistrate liable in damages for unreasonable detention.—A Magistrate who without reasonable cause, delays proceeding with the trial of persons, whom he keeps in jail is liable, notwithstanding Act XVIII of 1870 to an action in damages, if the prisoners are eventually acquitted.—11 W R 19

V. REVISION OF ORDER BY SUPERIOR COURTS.

51. Power of revision should be freely used by the High Court.—The High Court has power to revise an order made under S. 344 and to use the power freely for the very reason that the words are so wide.—49 M 1131.

52. (1) High Court will not as a general rule interfere.—If a Magistrate on a consideration of all the circumstances exercises his discretion and either stays a criminal case pending the disposal of a civil suit relating to the same matter or declines to do so, the High Court as a Court of Revision will not as a general rule interfere with the exercise of such discretion.—2 Weir 415.

53. (2) When a Magistrate in the exercise of his discretion refused to proceed with a criminal charge pending a civil action in respect of the same matter, a mandamus will not be granted to compel the hearing of the charge.—1 M. H. 66.

54. (3) When the witnesses of the accused not being in attendance, he applies for adjournment and summonses, and the Magistrate refuses to comply with it the High Court will not interfere unless the accused is prejudiced.—11 W. R. 15.

55. When the High Court will countermand a remand order.—When a Magistrate had adjourned an enquiry for a cause not contemplated by this section (i.e. his being busy with executive work), the High Court set aside the order of remand.—3 B. L. 331.

56. Unreasonable orders will be interfered with.—When the Magistrate directs an accused who has applied under sec 526 for a transfer to pay the costs of an adjournment, the High Court will set aside the order in revision.—8 P. W. 1911.

Orders for costs.

57. Order made by consent of parties will not be set aside.—When the complainant got a benefit which he was not entitled to and there upon consented to pay a sum by way of compensation to the opposite side for the expenses they had been put to, the order made by the consent of parties should not be set aside in revision.—(15) A. N. 257.

58. High Court will not interfere with a reasonable order for costs.—When the accused asks for an adjournment to which he is not entitled and the Court makes an order of adjournment conditionally on his paying the costs of the other side, the High Court will not disturb the order if it is not unreasonable.—9 C. N. 18 (24)

59. Postponement sine die in S. 145 proceedings.—Where a Magistrate attached the disputed land under S. 145 (1) Cr. P. C. but postponed the proceedings sine die,

Held—that the postponement sine die did not operate as a withdrawal of the order of attachment, which continued to be in force till the disposal of the case.—13 C. N. 601

60. Verbal order of adjournment—is good (But the Section itself requires that the order should be in writing).—See 5 M. H. App. xc.

61. Judge cannot discharge jury on adjournment.—When a Sessions trial is adjourned owing to the absence of a witness, the Judge is not competent to discharge the jury and direct fresh trial.—4 B. R. 937

62. Court's discretion in granting adjournment.—It is discretionary with the Court to adjourn the enquiry or trial under this section.—7 B. L. 344.

345. (1) The offences punishable under the section of the Indian Penal Code described in the Compounding offences first two columns of the table next following may be compounded by the persons mentioned in the third column of that table :—

Offence,	Section of Indian Penal Code applicable,	Persons by whom offence may be compounded,

Insult intended to provoke a breach of the peace	504	The person insulted
Criminal intimidation, except when the offence is punishable with imprisonment for seven years	506	The person intimidated

(2) The offences of causing hurt and grievous hurt, punishable under section 324, section 325, section 335, section 337 or section 338 of the Indian Penal Code, may, with the permission of the Court before which any prosecution for such offence is pending, be compounded by the person to whom the hurt has been caused.

(3) When any offence is compoundable under this section, the attempt to commit such offence (when such attempt is itself an offence) may be compounded.

(4) When the person who would otherwise be competent to compound such offence is a minor, an idiot or a lunatic, any person competent to contract may compound such offence.

(5) When the accused has been committed for trial or when he has been convicted and an appeal is pending, no composition for the offence shall be allowed without the leave of the Court to which he is committed, or, as the case may be, before which the appeal is to be heard.

(6) The composition of an offence under this section shall have the effect of an acquittal of the accused.

(7) No offence shall be compounded except as provided by this section.

Proposed amendments to the section—In section 345 of the said Code,—

(i) In sub-section (1), for the word "described" the word "specified" shall be substituted

(ii) For sub-section (2) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely —

"(2) The offences punishable under the sections of the Indian Penal Code specified in the first two columns of the table next following may, with the permission of the Court before which any prosecution for such offence is pending, be compounded by the persons mentioned in the third column of that table —

(iii) After sub-section (3), the following sub-sections shall be inserted, namely —

(1a) Where the person who would be otherwise competent to compound an offence under sub-sections (1) and (2) is a person to whom the proviso to section 198 would apply, the offence may be compounded by any other person who would be competent to file a complaint on his or her behalf.

(4) Any person making a complaint of an offence other than an offence specified in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) may, with the permission of the Court before which any prosecution for such offence is pending, compound such offence if it is not punishable with death or transportation or imprisonment for a period exceeding six months."

(ii) Sub-section (1) shall be omitted.

(v) In sub-section (6), after the word "accused" the words "with whom the offence has been compounded" shall be added.

Offence	Sections of the Indian Penal Code applicable.	Persons by whom offence may be compounded.
Voluntarily causing hurt by dangerous weapons or means.	324	The person to whom hurt is caused
Voluntarily causing grievous hurt.	325	Ditto
Voluntarily causing grievous hurt on grave and sudden provocation.	335	Ditto.
Causing hurt by doing an act so rashly and negligently as to endanger human life or the personal safety of others.	337	Ditto.

In those cases, the operation of the composition is necessarily suspended until the Court sanctions it. But in other cases, no such permission is needed and no reason is apparent to me or has been suggested why the Legislature, having permitted certain classes of offences to be compounded by the parties themselves without any reference to the Court should insist that the composition should be arrived at after the person alleged to have committed the offence has been brought before the Court.—Per Abdur Rahim J. in 11 M 653.

(3) Rules for application of the section.

3. Non-compoundable warrant case cannot be compromised.—In a warrant case in respect of a non-compoundable offence, it is not competent to the Magistrate on a private complainant's offering to withdraw from the prosecution, to enter an order of acquittal. The only sections of the Code which contemplate the termination of criminal prosecution by private arrangement are Ss. 248 and 345 S. 245 occurs in chapter XX of the Code, and that chapter deals only with the trial of summons cases by Magistrates. S. 345 refers only to the compounding of offences which by law are allowed to be compounded. As a prosecution under S. 406, is not covered by either section, the Magistrate could not make an order of acquittal under S. 253 Cr. P. C.—37 B 369 4 B R 718 See 1 B 64 Rat 330, 7 S 200 3 A 253, Cr. R 79 of 8 12 '03

4. Magistrate acts ultra vires in permitting non-compoundable case to be compounded.—A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to allow a non-compoundable offence to be compounded on the ground that it would probably be better for the complainant to do so, that the accused also wished for the compromise and that it was probable that in the end the case might turn out to be a compoundable offence. Such an order is ultra vires.

5. The principle to be followed.—The general principle of the law of England that felonies and serious misdemeanours shall not be compounded is embodied in S. 345 Cr. P. C. which says that no offence shall be compounded except as provided by that section. "The accused was charged with furious driving and knocking down a woman who died a few days after the injuries were received. It was held that the offence might be culpable homicide or the one defined in S. 304-A, none of which are compoundable in law. In the absence of any evidence, the Magistrate could not treat the offence as one under S. 345 Cr. P. C. and it was his duty to decide on the evidence that a compoundable offence had been committed before allowing a compounding.—Rat 639 See 1 L. B 349 7 S 200

6. Magistrate cannot go on with the case after a compoundable case has been compromised.—Where the parties have compromised an offence compoundable under S. 345, and have filed a notation of compromise, a Magistrate

7. Distinction between private and public property.—The Distinction is made (so far usage, permitting a complainant to withdraw or compromise is a judicial power the exercise of which is vested in the Magistrate by Ss. 240 and 185 (—S. 345) Cr. P. C.—Rat 91.

8. Distinction between private and public property.—The Distinction is made (so far

9. The fact that the case has been sent up by the police—cannot prevent the offence which is legally compoundable from being compromised. 10 C. 531, (4) A. N. 256.

10. Where accused is charged with two offences—one of which is compoundable and the other not and the complainant puts in a petition before the Magistrate for compounding the former the Magistrate has no option but to allow it to be compounded.—(8) A. N. 256.

11. Subs (7) lays down that no offence shall be compounded except as provided by S. 345.—Before the passing of Cr. P. C.

12. Duty of the appellate Court.—Where a person convicted of a non-compoundable offence is on appeal acquitted but convicted of a compoundable offence, held, that he should be convicted of the latter offence without giving the accused an opportunity of electing, if possible, a composition of the offence.—30 C 314

II. PROCEDURE IN RELATION TO COMPOUNDING OF OFFENCES.

(1) Practice and Procedure.

13. Compoundable case can be compromised out of Court.—There is no necessity for the composition to be effected in Court in the Criminal trial any more than in a Civil Suit. The Section of the Criminal Procedure Code does not imply any such necessity at any rate in cases which can be compounded without the sanction of the Magistrate.—21 C 103 6 S 284, 79 M 946 See 22 P. L. 1910

14. Onus.—When an accused person alleges that an offence which he is charged with, has been compounded, so as to take away the jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts to try it, the onus is on him to show that there was a composition valid in law.—21 C 103

(2) Power of Magistrate to enquire into the authenticity.

15. Power to enquire.—It is competent to the Court in which the charge is pending to take evidence as to whether there was in fact a composition outside the Court, when one of the parties to it refuses to abide by it when the case comes on afterwards for hearing. [21 C 103 Fd.]—18 M T 602.

16. When Magistrate is justified in refusing to give effect.—A Magistrate is entitled to question the complainant in order that he may be satisfied that the application filed, is in fact, one for composition and not for withdrawal. Where on questioning the complainant, the Magistrate is satisfied that the petition alleged to be one of compromise is in fact one of withdrawal and the application is filed in a warrant case he is justified if he thinks proper, in not giving effect to the petition. The trial does not come to an end on the presentation of such a petition. 1 Pat W. 21.

17. What proof may be asked for.—"Unless it appears that the parties were free from influence of every kind and were aware fully of their respective rights, it would be impossible to give effect to a so-called arrangement or composition"—Trevelyan J. in 21 C 103.

18. Consideration for compromise.—The compounding of an offence signifies that the person against whom the offence has been committed has received some gratification, not necessarily of a pecuniary character, to act as an inducement for his desisting to abstain from the prosecution. [Per Prinsep J.] Compounding an offence is more than a mere promise to withdraw a prosecution. It supposes an arrangement by which the parties have settled their differences and in the more usual acceptance of the term implies that the prosecutor has received some consideration or gratification for dropping the prosecution. [Per Trevelyan J.]—[21 C 103, See 9 P R 1896 28 16]. The composition spoken of in S 345 is in the nature of a contract but it does not require monetary consideration [Per Abdur Rahim J. in 18 M. T 602].

19. Once the Magistrate is satisfied he is bound to accept.—Where on the filing of a petition of compromise, in respect of a compoundable offence, the Magistrate examines the complainant and satisfies himself as to her understanding the same, it is his duty to accept the compromise and to dismiss the case and acquit the accused. He is wrong in ordering the petition to be put up with the record. 3 C N. 322 3 C N. 518.

20. Can the complainant have the matter reopened after effecting compromise?—Where the complaint was under Rs 448, 325 and 143 I. P. O but the Magistrate issued summons under S. 325 only and the complainant put in a petition of compromise, in the course of the hearing, compounding the whole matter, held that in as much as the Magistrate sanctioned the compromise of the offence of voluntarily causing hurt (S 325) which was the only offence being tried by him, (the parties being entitled to compound the offence under S 114 without such sanction), the complainant was not entitled to reopen the matter on the ground that the terms of the compromise had not been carried out—17 C. N. 918 See 22 P. L. 1910

21. Bona fide petition cannot be resiled from.—Where a bona fide petition of compromise withdrawing a case has been filed, the complainant cannot subsequently withdraw the compromise and insist upon the case being tried—3 C N 322; 3 C N. 518; 29 P. R 1911 (F. B.)

22. Charge already drawn up and proceed to try the case.—When a charge has been drawn up and presented to the Court, and the case has been read has been pleaded to, that Court should, upon the presentation to it of a petition of composition by a person mentioned in the last column in the table in S 345 at once accept the petition and acquit the accused, and has no power to alter the charge already drawn up and proceed to try the case—29 P. R. 1911 (F. B.)

23. Limits of the power of scrutiny.—When the trial relates to an offence which can be compounded without the permission of the Court and the parties have put in a writing signed by them, in which the complainant says that she does not wish to proceed and that the case has been compounded, the Court cannot call upon the parties to prove that the case was compounded—16 B R. 939

24. Bombay Government circular explained.—Para 6 of the Resolution of Government in relation to do so should only be recorded when a composition is actually offered by the accused and accepted by the complainant, "refers to cases where the permission of the Court is needed in order that the case may be compounded—16 B. R 939

25. Intervening party.—When a person is intervening even though he may not have received any money or even a direct apology from the accused, and the Court is not concerned to enquire into the nature or value of the consideration 28 16

(3) Who may compound the offence.

26. The aggrieved party.—The person to whom hurt (as defined by S. 323 I. P. O) is caused is the person by whom the offence may be compounded and not the person who causes the hurt.—15 A. J. 467.

27. The widow.—An offence under S 323 I. P. C. is no doubt compoundable with permission of the Court but it is compoundable by the person to whom the hurt was caused. A case cannot be compounded, when the person to whom the hurt was caused is dead, by his widow—37 A. 419 2 Weir 418.
28. Co-complainant.—A person to whom an injury is caused is the only person who can compound a case. When there was a fight between two sets of persons and one man in one set died in consequence of the injuries received, held that the other members in the same set could not compromise the case on behalf of the deceased even though the hurt which resulted in his death was a simple hurt—6 A. J 682 31 A 606
29. Minors.—The effect of reading S 345 Cr P C with S. 3 of the Majority Act 1875 is that a person under the age of 18 years cannot lawfully compound the offences mentioned in the first portion of S 345.—17 P R 1891.
30. Wife in a defamation case.—Where the husband lodged a complaint for defamation of his wife (by imputation of unchastity to her) it was held that the wife might lawfully compound the offence without the consent of her husband and even contrary to his wish—14 M 379
31. The husband.—It has been held that a husband is a person aggrieved within the meaning of S 194 in a case in which an imputation of unchastity is made and published in respect of his wife [See 25 B 151 (F. B.) 15 M J 224] It follows therefore that he may lawfully compound the case of defamation so brought by him—[See the proposed subsection (3a)]
32. Relations.—One S was alleged to have been killed in the course of a fight. The relations of the deceased put in a compromise, which was accepted by the trying Magistrate as a compromise of an offence under S 325, and the accused were acquitted. Held that the acquittal should be set aside—7 S. 200. See Cr. R. 77 of 20-11-03.

(4) Powers and Duties of the Magistrate.

33. When a case is compoundable.—If a case is compoundable, the Court is not concerned to enquire into the nature or value of the consideration, and if the complainant considers that the grievance is redressed by the fact of respectable persons intervening, even though he may not have received any money payment or even a direct apology from the accused, the complainant is at full liberty to compound the prosecution—2 S 16 See Note No. 21 above
34. Petition not disposed of by Magistrate.—A petition of compromise withdrawing a case and which the Magistrate has satisfied himself was made bonafide and with full knowledge of the facts, puts an end to the case, and the complainant cannot subsequently change his mind and insist that the case should proceed simply because the petition of compromise has not been disposed of by the Magistrate.

35. Orders should be passed at once.—Where a petition either for compromise of, or for withdrawal from the case is put in, the Court should at once make an order either granting or refusing the application, and should not be allowed to stand over for consideration at the close of the trial

3 C. N 548 3 C N 322

36. Duty to enquire when accused pleads composition.—Where the accused pleads a composition out of Court, the Magistrate must enquire into the plea, and if composition be proved, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to go on with the trial. There is no necessity for the composition to be effected in Court

6 S. 284 See 21 C. 203

(5) Stage at which a case may be compounded.

37. At any time before the judgment is pronounced.—A case may be compounded under S. 323 at any time before the judgment is pronounced.

38. After conviction.—The composition of an offence is permissible only up to the time of the judgment, and not after. After conviction there can be no composition without the leave of the Court, and to require which the conviction of the accused—11 B. 351.

39. Retrial ordered by Appellate Court.—Where an accused person is charged with a compoundable offence and is convicted by a Magistrate but on appeal the conviction is set aside and a retrial is ordered, it is open to the complainant and the accused to compound the case without the leave of the Court (190) A N 200

40. In appeals. The power of an Appellate Court to grant sanction to compromise a case arising under S 323 Cr P C is given to it under cl (5) of S 345 Cr P C 11 A J 13

41. Can an offence be compounded in revision proceedings? The law on the subject is laid down thus by Madhoo J. It is an elementary rule of the statutes that when a special provision obviously exhaustive in its scope has been made for a special purpose as in S 345 the scope thereof cannot be indirectly enlarged by reference to a general provision such as that contained in S 323 (d) * * *. The position then is that S 345 Cr P C empowers a Court of Revision not to exercise all the powers of an Appellate Court, as is sometimes loosely expressed, but only such powers as are conferred by ss 195, 421 426 427 and 428, that the power to sanction composition of an offence is conferred on a Court of Appeal not by S 323 (d) or any of the other sections just mentioned but by S 345 cl (5) and that consequently S 139 which defines the powers of the Court of Revision, does not confer on it, the power to sanction the composition of offences—43 O. 1143; 18 C. N. 1212; 29 M. J 521 35 P. R. 1918; 37 A. 127; 21 Cr. 447 (A). See 11 A. J. 13; 67 P. L. 1904. Con. 32 A. 153; 13 O. C 161. 17 O. C. 92. 252 P. L. 1904.

III. DISTINCTION BETWEEN WITHDRAWAL AND COMPOSITION.

43. Explained.—Withdrawal of complaint is the act of only one party to the proceeding,—viz—the complainant, whereas the composition of an offence, obviously requires the co-operation of both the parties, for a person is said to compound an offence when he forbears to prosecute the offender in consideration of some reward or advantage for his forbearance. It is quite intelligible, therefore why in the former case, namely, the withdrawal of a complaint, the Legislature should have imposed the necessity of obtaining the permission of the Magistrate. Held if such a restriction had not been imposed, a person might be harassed by a perfectly venacious criminal proceeding from which the complainant having put the accused to as much inconvenience and degradation as he could, might then calmly withdraw and prevent the Court from punishing him (the complainant) for abuse of process under S 250 Cr. P. C. and other provisions of the law. But the case of composition stands on totally different grounds. In the latter case the Legislature has, in the case of certain offences, which concerns the individual as opposed to the public at large, allowed the cases to terminate by the act of both the parties and therefore there is no abuse of process to be guarded against as in the case of simple withdrawal. The act of composition is thus quite irrespective of any Magisterial decision.—19 P. R. 1888; See 1 Pat W. 21; 14 M. 379 21 O. 103.

[Note.—Cl. (5) was introduced for the first time in 1898 to meet the effect of the decision in Emp. v. Thompson 2 A. 339].

42. After commitment.—The composition can be effected only with the permission of the Court of Session.—See cl (5). The ruling in 2 W. R. 67 to the contrary is obsolete.

44. Withdrawal may be allowed in non-compoundable cases.—Although an offence under the latter portion of S 500 P. C. viz. a threat to cause death etc. cannot be legally compounded under S 345 Cr. P. C. yet a withdrawal from the prosecution may be allowed in a proper case.—Rat 330.

45. Withdrawal of compoundable case.—Where a charge of a compoundable offence was withdrawn by the complainant it was held—that under S. 188 C. P. it had the effect of an acquittal.—22 W. R. 26

IV. EFFECT OF COMPOSITION OF OFFENCES.

(1) Scope of the Composition.

46. Composition with some only of the accused.—The composition of an offence with one of several accused persons under S 345 Cr. P. C. does not have the effect of an acquittal of all the accused persons.—41 M. 323 [7 C. N. 176 D]. 21 Cr. 437 (P) Con 20 Cr. 824 (Pat)—1 Pat T 32
47. The effect of compounding is an withdrawal of the whole case.—If in the case of a compoundable offence, the complainant intimates to the Court that he has compounded it and desires to withdraw the complaint, the order by the Magistrate allowing the withdrawal is in respect to the offence, and not solely in regard to the person actually under trial at the time. In so providing, the law contemplates that all the accused persons should be under trial at the same time, except in special circumstances, such as sickness, absconding etc.—7 C. N. 176 [Ed in 1 Pat T 32] Con 41 M. 323 21 Cr. 437 (P)

C.) coupled with the forcible rescue of cattle punishable under S 24 of Act I of 1871, the latter being a non-compoundable charge, and the parties effect a compromise in respect of the former offence, the Magistrate is entitled to deal with the compromise as a withdrawal of the complaint in respect of the alleged offence under the Cattle Trespass Act.—21 Cr. 305 (A).

64. Reopening a compromise once effected.—The accused was accused of committing house trespass causing grievous hurt and being member of an unlawful assembly, but was summoned only under S. 325 P. C. and the offence under that section was compromised with the leave of the Court. The complainant subsequently filed another complaint and sought to revive the case alleging that the terms of the compromise had not been carried out.

Held—the petitioner could not again be prosecuted either for grievous hurt or house-trespass or for being member of an unlawful assembly, the common object being to commit offences which had been compromised. 17 C. N. 918 See Rat 519 and prove his complaint, the Magistrate ordered his prosecution under S. 211 I P C. 346. (1) If, in the course of an inquiry or a trial before a Magistrate in any district outside the Presidency towns, the evidence appears to him to warrant a presumption that the case is one which should be tried or committed for trial by some other Magistrate in such district, he shall stay proceedings and submit the case, with a brief report explaining its nature, to any Magistrate to whom he is subordinate or to such other Magistrate, having jurisdiction, as the District Magistrate directs.

(2) The Magistrate to whom the case is submitted may, if so empowered, either try the himself, or refer it to any Magistrate subordinate to him having jurisdiction, or commit the accused for trial.

Notes.

(1) Preliminary.

1. Procedure embodied in Ss. 346, 347 and 349.—The powers of a Magistrate, who has taken a warrant case on his file for trial, are as follows: He may try it himself if he has jurisdiction, he may, if he thinks he cannot inflict a proper sentence, act under S. 346 or S. 349 and send it to a higher Magistrate, or he may, if he thinks fit it is a proper case for sessions, commit the accused under S. 347 or if he has no power to commit, send it to another Magistrate to commit under section 346—Per Napier J. in 42 M. 63.

2. The Section does not apply where the Magistrate himself has power to commit—A Magistrate of the first class, who is holding an enquiry in a case of dacoity has jurisdiction either to commit the accused to the Court of Sessions or to discharge him. He has no authority to make over the case to a District Magistrate, who is a Deputy Commissioner specially empowered under S. 30 to try such cases. But the High Court did not interfere as the accused had not been prejudiced by the trial [7 C. N. 457]

3. S. 346 applies to European British subjects.—There is nothing in ch. XXXIII. of the Crim Pro Code which excludes the application of the Code to European British subjects—7 N. 93 See Prinsep's Cr P C. 14th Ed. p. 419.

4. Duty of subordinate Courts.—Magistrates should note that it is an evasion of law to treat an aggravated offence as an ordinary offence, and thus introduce a different jurisdiction or a lower scale of punishment. When the evidence discloses a circumstance of aggravation, which makes the offence one cognisable by a higher Court, it becomes the duty of the trying Magistrate to use the proper procedure for sending the case to the higher Court.

13 B 502 19 B 340 (348) See 2 Weir 421-420 21 5 W R 65 1 C L 434.

Note.—If a second class Magistrate trying a theft case finds in the course of the trial, aggravating circumstances (eg breaking of a closed receptacle) converting it into an offence which he is not competent to try or requiring severer punishment than he can inflict it is his duty to submit the case to the Magistrate to whom he is subordinate under this section or S. 349. He cannot properly clutch at jurisdiction by dealing with theft alone.—2 Weir 120

5. Where the trial will not be set aside.—If a Court had power to try the offence of which it had convicted the accused, it is not necessary to quash the conviction, merely because the fact disclose a more serious offence, which the Court was not competent to try, unless the accused has been prejudiced or the sentence is inadequate—25 M. J. 181 13 B 502; 1 B R. 207 24 M. 675. 2 M. T. 495.

6. Previous conviction.—In a charge of stealing after conviction of similar offences, to establish the full charge and to maintain a conviction, it is necessary that previous conviction be proved. The Magistrate in such cases, will be justified in taking action under S. 346 Cr P C—(14) A N. 200

7. Magistrate, not competent to try, cannot discharge the accused.—Where a Magistrate finds that he has no jurisdiction to try a case he should not discharge the accused, but should send him before a Magistrate having jurisdiction

2 Weir 323.

8. Submission after charge.—It is not irregular for a second or third class Magistrate to frame a charge against an accused person in a case which he has jurisdiction to try, though at the

D. 55.

(2) Procedure on receiving the record.

9. Case should be tried de novo.—When a case is transferred from the file of a Magistrate who is not competent to try it under S. 346 Cr P. C. there must be a trial de novo of the whole case, and the whole of the prosecution evidence must be recorded afresh. In such a case, the accused have no power to waive their right to a trial de novo. The evidence recorded by the Magistrate from whose file a case is transferred under this section, having been recorded by a Magistrate who was not qualified to record it, cannot be taken into consideration by the Magistrate who actually tries the case. The failure to hold the trial de novo in such a case is an illegality which vitiates the trial and not merely an irregularity covered by S. 537 Cr P C—5 Pat W 40 106 P L 1905. 91 P L 1905 25 P. R. 1905 17 C P. 159: See 25 M. 61 (P.C.) 2 N P 468: But See 12 C N 136 Rat 472

10. The General Rule.—The general rule is that the decision as to the innocence or guilt of an accused person must be by the Judge who has heard all the evidence—1 N. 187 12 N 146. 19 Cr 657 (N)

11. Case cannot be returned.—A case having been submitted by a second class Magistrate to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate under S. 346 Cr P C, the Sub-Divisional Magistrate held that the case was within the second class Magistrate's jurisdiction and returned the papers to the second class Magistrate. Held, that a Magistrate having jurisdiction to whom a case is submitted under S 346 Cr. P. C. is bound to dispose of the case in one of the ways prescribed by that section. Rat 551. Rat 499. See 4 M 327.

12. Commitment without fresh evidence.—Commitment made to the sessions by a Magistrate acting under the powers conferred by this section is not illegal simply because he has failed to examine de novo the witnesses examined by the Magistrate submitting the case—12 C. N. 136. Rat 472. But See Note No 9 above.

347. (1) If in any inquiry before a Magistrate, or in any trial before a Magistrate before signing judgment, it appears to him at any stage of the proceedings that the case is one which ought to be tried by the Court of Session or High Court, and if he is empowered to commit for trial, he shall stop further proceedings and commit the accused under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

(2) If such Magistrate is not empowered to commit for trial, he shall proceed under section 346.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub section (1) of section 347 of the said Code, the words "stop further proceedings and" shall be omitted.

Notes.

1. Object of the section.—The section applies only to those enquiries or trials which have been started by the Magistrate with the intention of concluding them himself and then at some stage he becomes satisfied that the original intention was inappropriate and that the case was one which ought to be tried by a Court of Session. The words "stop further proceedings" cannot be availed of to shorten proceedings commenced under chapter XVIII, but obviously refer to proceedings in a trial which the Magistrate has started with a view to try them himself—6 L. B. 129 (F. B.) [Robinson J per contra—S. 347 applies to all inquiries whatever.]

2. Scope of the term "ought to be tried."—The words "ought to be tried" in Ss 207 and 347 Cr. P. C. it has been held, must be read with S 234 of the Code. Thus a case which the Magistrate is competent to try should be committed also one in which in the opinion of the Magistrate he cannot inflict adequate punishment [4 B. R. 85 20 Cr. 97 (N)]. A Magistrate who is competent to commit to the Court of Session can commit to that Court both cases triable exclusively by that Court and cases which in his opinion ought to be tried by that Court. Therefore, a case may be committed to a Court of Session by a Jury or with the aid of assessors. 12 M. 83 [3 C. 495 1 M. 289 Fd. 24 C. 429 (OG) A. N. 28 6 A. J. 989 Diss.]

3. Note.—It has been repeatedly held that when a case is well within the power of the Magistrate to punish adequately, a commitment to the Sessions is illegal [406 A. N. 28 6 A. J. 989, 24 C. 429 8 S. 23 11 B. R. 18 13 P. R. 1017]. But a case may be committed on the ground that the opposite party having been committed already the two cases against the two sets of rioters ought to be tried by the same Court to avoid a conflict of decisions [13 P. R. 1017] where the complaint refers to distinct offences some of which (as against some accused) are triable exclusively by the Magistrate and others triable (as against the remaining accused) by a Court of Session, a Magistrate has a discretion to commit the whole case [21 Cr. 791 (S)] on the analogy of the cases reported in 11 C. 91 39 M. 503.]

4. S. 347 does not enable Magistrates to deprive the accused of his rights.—A Magistrate cannot treat the offence complained of as a minor offence up to the stage of reserving his judgment and then turn round and commit the case on a grave charge after depriving the accused of any of the rights conferred on him by Chapter XVIII, [15 Cr. 304 (M) 6 L. B. 129 (F. B.)] A Magistrate acts ultra vires in trying a case prima facie triable by a Court of Sessions and in inflicting punishment on a minor charge—[1 C. L. 141 Rat 382 10 C. 85; 9 W. R. 5.]

5. Scope of the term "at any stage."—A second Class Magistrate who took cognizance of a case under S 370 and 511 P. C. after hearing the evidence of the prosecution witnesses, framed a charge under S 341 P. C. took the accused's plea, allowed the prosecution witnesses to be cross-examined and heard the evidence for the defence according to the procedure prescribed is not illegal merely because the committing Magistrate is himself empowered under S 330 Cr. P. C. to try the case [20 Cr. 97 (N)] S 347 Cr. P. C. does not restrict the grounds on which a Magistrate should arrive at his opinion to commit a case to want of jurisdiction in himself or to his inability in his own opinion to sentence the accused adequately. Even where he can inflict the maximum sentence for the offence, he may still commit the accused to the Court of Session or the High Court on such grounds as complicated questions of law arising or the case being a fit case to be

3. Second class Magistrate.—Where the accused had several times been previously convicted of offences under Chapter XII or Chapter XVIII P. C., a second class Magistrate passed upon him sentence of six months rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 200 or in default one month's rigorous imprisonment. On a reference by the District Magistrate held that although the sentence passed by the Magistrate was inadequate, he had full discretion under S 315 (=S 314) and no new trial should be ordered.—Rat 70 : ('82) A. N. 215

[Note.—This ruling must be held at a discount in view of the amendments introduced into the section by the Code of 1898. See also 2 Weir 423, 4 L B 282]

4. Provisions of S. 348 to be strictly followed.—Where a person is charged with an offence and the Magistrate is of the opinion that the sentence which he is empowered to pass is inadequate, he may refer the case to the District Magistrate specially empowered under S 30, or if he is empowered to commit to Sessions, follow the procedure of Ch XVIII, of the Code for enquiry into cases triable by the Court of Sessions—[4 L B 282 9 Bur. T 213. See 2 L B. 285] Where the Presidency Magistrate convicted under Ss 457 and 350 I. P C an accused whom he found to be an old offender, held that the Magistrate should have acted under S. 314 Cr P C, and committed the accused to the High Court [Rat 704]

5. Cases against old offenders should be

6. Proceedings against old offenders should be supra, the trial must be commenced de novo [1: O P 60. 2 Weir 422]

7. Low value of stolen property no ground for refusing to take action.—Where the accused with two previous convictions was committed to the sessions on a charge of the theft of property valued at Re 1. and the Sessions Judge remarking that the Magistrate himself might have adequately punished for the offence, sentenced him to one year's rigorous imprisonment the High Court, in revision, held that the fact that the property was small was no reason why so small a sentence has been passed, that the case was one which was properly committed and altered the sentence to one of five years' rigorous imprisonment—('82) A N 194.

8. S. 75 I. P. C. must be oftener resorted to.—The Government of India has noticed the comparatively small extent to which the provisions of S 75 I P C. are used in the case of habitual convicts. It has been remarked that the sentence of transportation for life is peculiarly appropriate in the case of persons habitually guilty of offences against property, for whom jail life in India appears to have no terrors, but who might possibly be reformed if removed from the scene of their crimes. The Judicial Commissioner therefore, suggests a more extensive use of the power conferred by S. 75 I P C.—Oudh Cr Dig p 14.

9. Previous conviction must be stated in the charge.—See 19 W R. 41 21 W R 40.

10. Superior Magistrate cannot remit the case but must dispose of himself.—A Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom a case is submitted under S 314 Cr P C cannot send it back to the Magistrate for disposal. He must himself pass such judgment as he thinks fit.—Rat 479

— Weir 422

349. (1) Whenever a Magistrate of the second or third class, having jurisdiction, is of opinion, after hearing the evidence for the prosecution and the accused, that the accused is guilty, and that he ought to receive a punishment different in kind from, or more severe than, that which such Magistrate is empowered to inflict, or that he ought to be required to execute a bond under section 106, he may record the opinion and submit his proceedings and forward the accused, to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate to whom he is subordinate.

(2) The Magistrate to whom the proceedings are submitted may, if he thinks fit, examine the parties and recall and examine any witness who has already given evidence in the case, and may call for and take any further evidence, and shall pass such judgment, sentence or order in the case as he thinks fit, and as is according to law

Provided that he shall not inflict a punishment more severe than he is empowered to inflict under sections 32 and 33.

Proposed amendment to the section.—After sub-section (1) of section 340 the following sub-section shall be inserted namely, —

“(In) When more accused than one are being tried together and the Magistrate considers it necessary to proceed under sub-section (1) in regard to any of such accused, he shall forward all the accused who are in his opinion guilty to the District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate.”

Notes.

(1) Preliminary.

Magistrate takes up a case in which it is obvious from the outset that he will be unable to pass an adequate sentence if the accused is guilty and simply with the intention of making over the case to the District Magistrate for enhanced punishment. Such cases would more properly be taken up in the first instance by a First Class Magistrate. But when circumstances of aggravation came to light in the course of a case, a subordinate Magistrate may proceed with the case (provided that in such cases, it is usually he is of the opinion that he should forward the case to the District Magistrate to be dealt with in the manner prescribed by the second paragraph of this section.—Punjab C. C. No 21-3620 (1. of 1890)

1. A. Scope of the term “order”.—“The Section goes on to direct that the superior Magistrate “shall pass such judgment, sentence or order in the case as he deems proper, and as is according to law.” By the ordinary rule of legal construction, the general word “order” following the particular and specific words “judgment and sentence” ought to be presumed to be restricted to the same terms as those words, and to comprehend only such orders as are final in their nature; and this construction seems warranted by other parts of the Code in which the word “order” is used in combination with the words “judgment and sentence” and in which it seems to be a mere expletive equivalent to one word or the other” [Per Mr Melville J. Pinkey J. and Sergeant C. J. concurring]—4 B 240 (F.B.); 1 M. 289 (F. B.) 1 L. B 124 26 A 311

2. The term “order” includes an order of commitment to the Sessions.—A District Magistrate can pass in a case submitted under S 349, such order as he thinks fit and as is in accordance with law, and he can consequently commit the accused to the Sessions—13 C 305 4 B 210 (F. B.) 1 M. 289 (F. B.) 2 Weir 428.

3. Magistrate to whom the case is referred must dispose of it himself.—A Magistrate, to whom proceedings are submitted under S 349 is not at liberty to return the case to the submitting Magistrate but must dispose of it himself. He has the power to commit to sessions if necessary. 6 C. L. 276: 4 B 240 (F.B.). 10 B 196 9 M. 377. 2 Weir 424: 26 A. 311 Rat 479: 1 L. B 124: 141 C 10 W. R. 50. 14 C 355. 1 M. J. 252.

[Note.—He cannot return the case on the ground that the subordinate Magistrate himself has power to punish adequately (Rat 479) or that the referring Magistrate should himself commit the case to the Sessions 9 M. 377. Rat 222, 479, 908 See 6 C. L. 276.

(2) The referring Magistrate.

4. (1) Cannot himself commit.—Under the older Codes of 1872 and 1882, it was held that the Magistrate to whom the case is referred by a subordinate Magistrate may direct the subordinate Magistrate himself to commit the case and that a committal by the latter, under such circumstances is legal (See (76) 1 M. 289 (F.B.): (87) 14 C. 355: (85) 2 Weir 485). In (85) Rat 222: (89) Rat 479: (97) Rat 914, it has been held that a committal by the subordinate Magistrate under the circumstances is illegal. The laws explained in the rulings cited in notes nos 1, 2 and 3 above, favours the latter interpretation

5. (2) Can himself charge the accused.—It is not irregular or illegal for a Magistrate of the first class to frame a charge against he has jurisdiction of frame of opinion the proceed. Magistrate

T 213 Rat 940]. But he cannot try a case which includes a complaint of wrongful confinement and extortion, but should follow the rule laid down in this section [3 W. R. 29]

6. (3) Cannot convict the accused.—A Magistrate of the second or third class in submitting his proceedings to another Magistrate for a severer punishment than he can himself inflict, is required to record his opinion only, but cannot legally convict the accused. It is the duty of the Magistrate to whom a case is referred, to pass judgment according to law—Rat. 357.

7. (4) Reference in part.—Where there are several accused persons and the Magistrate is of opinion that only some of them deserve an enhanced punishment he is not bound to proceed against all the accused under S 349, though it is desirable that he should do so [2 Weir 428 2 Weir 429]

(3) Powers and Procedure of the superior Magistrate.

8. (1) Discretion of the Magistrate.—A Superior Magistrate, who deals with the accused under S 349 is not precluded from acting on the evidence recorded by the subordinate Magistrate or from adopting his opinion. It is in the discretion of the superior Magistrate to re-examine witnesses already examined by the Subordinate Magistrate and to take further evidence. Although the latter cannot record a judgment against the accused who are sent up for enhanced punishment, yet he is entitled to record his opinion, and

9. (2) Bound to form his own opinion.—A Divisional Magistrate to whom the case has been referred under S. 277 (=S 349) is bound to form his own opinion and judgment—(71) 2 Weir 421 4 M 233. 9 M. 377

Note.—A Head Assistant Magistrate to whom an accused is sent up for enhancement of punishment has no power to send the case for enquiry to another Magistrate.—(81) 2 Weir 424.

10. (1) District Magistrate is competent to receive the District Magistrate was competent to receive the proceedings for supplying the omission [2 Weir 426] But he cannot refer the case back so that the Magistrate may take the defence of an accused who has pleaded guilty. If there is any need to take the defence the superior Magistrate must do it himself [3 L B 279]

11. (4) Cannot direct the subordinate Magistrate to submit the case.—It is in the discretion of a subordinate Magistrate to send up the case under the section and the superior Magistrate cannot direct the subordinate Magistrate to send up the case to him [2 Weir 427]
12. (5) Whole case is reopened.—Where proceedings are sent up to a Magistrate under S. 349, the whole case is opened up for him to deal with it according to law [Rat 350, 945 20 Mys 235]
13. (6) Cannot transfer the case.—S 328 has no application to proceedings submitted to a subdivisional Magistrate under S. 349—38 B 719
14. (7) Cannot send the case back for disposal by another Magistrate.—S 349 cl 2 of the Code means that the Magistrate to whom a reference is made may pass such final orders as he thinks fit. He cannot in his turn dispose of the case by sending it back to another Magistrate.—16 M 470 4 M 233 See 6 M 11 (app) n 2 Weir 124 Cr R 7 of 14 2 06
15. Who can act under S. 349 (3). It is only the District Magistrate or the Subdivisional Magistrate who has jurisdiction to exercise the powers mentioned in part 2 of S. 349 i.e. to pass such judgment, sentence or order in the case as he thinks fit.—18 B 719
16. Procedure in S. 349 is unsuitable to cases triable summarily.—The procedure prescribed in S. 349 is unsuitable to cases tried summarily and that section does not authorize any Bench of Magistrates to refer a case for higher punishment—4 L B 277

17. Procedure in submitting a case for an order under S. 108 Cr. P. C.—If a Magistrate of the second or third class be of opinion that it is necessary for the accused in a case to be bound down under S. 106 Cr. P. C., he must refer the whole case to the proper authority for him to pass the sentences. It is not open to such Magistrate to pass any part of the sentence himself. 35 C 1093 11 Cr. 170 (C) 21 C 622: See 35 C 434 21 P R 1905: 6 P. R. 1907: 7 P R 1909
18. District Magistrate cannot act under S. 349 (2) on appeal.—The accused person was sentenced by a second class Magistrate to a fine of Rs 25 on each of the two counts under Ss 147 and 325 I P C. On appeal the District Magistrate altered the conviction to one under S 147 only, reduced the fine but ordered under S 349 that each of the accused should execute a bond under S. 106 Cr. P. C. to keep the peace for 3 years. Held that in the circumstances he was not competent to make the summary order allowed by S. 349 (2) Cr. P. C.—7 P R. 1909.
19. Duties of the Superior Magistrate.—Where a Magistrate of the second or third class submits a case to the District Magistrate with his opinion, the District Magistrate should not confine himself to considering whether the Magistrate's decision is manifestly opposed to the evidence, but should consider the whole evidence and pass a judgment stating the points for determination and the reasons for his decision. [Rat 636] He cannot quash the proceedings of the subordinate Magistrate, but should report the proceedings to the High Court under S. 438 Cr. P. C. [14 P R 1906] But when a Magistrate acts irregularly under S. 349, it is open to the District Magistrate to take the case on his own file or to transfer the case to that of some first class Magistrate, the proceedings in either case being taken de novo [2 Weir 122]
- (4) Miscellaneous Rules.
20. Reference by a Magistrate not empowered to deal with the case.—A second class Magistrate convicted the accused under S. 406 I P C. and submitted the case to the District Magistrate under S. 349 Cr. P. C. Held that the latter was not competent to accept the trial as legal after having come to the conclusion that the offence committed was one under S. 491 I P C. He should have held that the second class Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try the accused for that offence and should have treated the whole proceedings as void under S. 539 Cr. P. C. [11 B R 27] Where however the accused was convicted under Ss. 406 and 417 I P C. by the Assistant Magistrate who submitted the case under S. 349 and the District Magistrate held that the offence was one properly triable under S. 421 it was held that the proceedings were not wholly without jurisdiction as the Assistant Magistrate could commit the case to the Sessions and the District Magistrate should if he thinks fit, himself commit the case.—13 C. 305 [1 M. 259 (F. B.) R]

21. Reference must be for one of the reasons specified by the Section.—A case was submitted by a third class Magistrate not because he could not pass a severe sentence but because one of the parties was a Mr. Ostosh and he thought it advisable that the District Magistrate should himself deal with the matter, held that the reference was illegal as neither S. 346

he is clearly competent to inflict a severer sentence than he proposed. [(81) A. N. 90; See 12 P. R. 1903]

22. The provisions subject to S. 348 Cr. P. C.—The provisions of this section are subject to the express provision of S. 348 supra. When the accused is an old offender, a second class Magistrate trying the offender should commit him to the sessions, unless he thinks that he can himself punish adequately. [2 Weir 423]

23. Proceedings not authorised by the section.—If a Magistrate not duly empowered passes a sentence under S. 349 on proceedings recorded by another Magistrate, his proceedings shall be void [See 530 ct. (1)] A first class Magistrate cannot make a reference under this section, though the District or subdivisional Magistrate may call for the record under S. 435 infra [7 A. H. (F. B.) See 7 A. 553] And the section would not apply when the Magistrate the act

ings of the Magistrate to whom a case referred under the section is sent for enquiry is void under S. 530 (c) infra [(105) U. R. 33]

24. When a District Magistrate may... such judgment, sentence or order in the case he deems proper and as is according to law has no power to order a new trial by a Court Session or any other Court, unless he considers that an offence has been committed which was not within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate whom the trial was held [Itat 130].

25. ... new before the Magistrate to whom the case referred under this section, such proceeding being, in fact, a continuation of the proceeding before the referring Magistrate [7 W. R. 88] The right exists although the superior Magistrate do not examine the parties or recall or examine a witness, who may have deposed in the case, inasmuch as he is at liberty to contend that no case has been made out against him and the superior Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, pass an order of discharge or acquittal [7 B. H. (C. C.) 31]

26. Appeals.—An accused person dealt with under S. 349 (2) is a "person convicted on a trial" let by the Magistrate within the meaning of S. 40 Cr. P. C. [See M. H. C. P. 20-5-67] When a District Magistrate invested with special powers under S. 30 supra, passes a sentence of 5 years B. 53

350 (1) Whenever any Magistrate, after having heard and recorded the whole or any part

Conviction or commitment on evidence partly recorded by one Magistrate and partly by another, of the evidence in an inquiry or a trial, ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein and is succeeded by another Magistrate who has and who exercises such jurisdiction, the Magistrate so succeeding may act on the evidence so recorded by his predecessor, or partly recorded by himself; or he may re-summon the witnesses and recommence the inquiry or trial

Provided as follows :—

(a) in any trial the accused may, when the second Magistrate commences his proceedings, demand that the witnesses or any of them be re-summoned and re-heard,

(b) the High Court or, in cases tried by Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate, the District Magistrate may, whether there be an appeal or not, set aside any conviction passed on evidence not wholly recorded by the Magistrate before whom the conviction was held, if such Court or District Magistrate is of opinion that the accused has been materially prejudiced thereby, and may order a new inquiry or trial.

(2) Nothing in this section applies to cases in which proceedings have been stayed under section 346.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In sub-section (2) of section 350 of the said Code, after the figures "346" the words "or in which proceedings have been submitted to a superior Magistrate under section 349" shall be added, and after the same sub-section, the following sub-sections shall be added, namely:—

"(3) When a case is transferred under the provisions of this Code from one Magistrate to another, the former shall be deemed to cease to exercise jurisdiction therein and to be succeeded by the latter within the meaning of sub-section (1).

(4) The provisions of this section shall apply, so far as may be, to proceedings before any Bench of Magistrates constituted under section 15, whenever the Magistrates sitting together in any proceeding are not the same as those who were sitting together at the last hearing thereof."

Notes.

1. Object of the Section.

1. Object.—The right of claiming a trial de novo on the transfer of a Magistrate is given to an accused person in order that he may have the very great

2. The Section should be strictly interpreted.—The general rule is that the decision as to the innocence or guilt of an accused person must be by the Judge who has heard all the evidence — [23 W R 59 23 C 104 1 N 187 12 N 146 (18) 3 C B 118] S 350 Cr P C introduces an exception to this general rule and the exception should not receive a more extended interpretation

2. Application of the Section.

Meaning and Scope of "ceases to exercise jurisdiction".—

3. (a) Transfer of the case under S. 528.—

4. (b) Case withdrawn and referred to another Magistrate.—

When a Magistrate withdraws a case and refers it to another Magistrate, the former ceases to exercise jurisdiction, and the latter takes up the case. The accused is entitled to counsel for the accused, appointed another Magistrate to try the case. Held that S 350 Cr. P. C. applied to proceedings before the latter — 39 C. 781. Con. 1 L. B. 301

5. Retransfer of the case.—

6. Retransfer of the Magistrate before disposal by the successor.—When on the transfer of a Magistrate, a criminal case pending before him is taken up by another Magistrate and the trial is started de novo, the proceedings which had already taken place before the Magistrate who has been transferred are wiped out and Sec 350 of the Criminal Procedure Code gives no jurisdiction to such Magistrate on his retransfer to the district to proceed with the trial from the point where he had left it.

1 Pat T 32 2) Cr 638 (Pat)

7. Power to try after making over charge.—A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try a case after having made over charge of his duties to his successor. 14 Cr 230 (A) Sec 3 A 233 (F.B.) 19 A 114 15 C P 15 or warrant case, to have the witnesses recalled and reheard. [21 Cr. 102 (M)]. S. 350 Cr. P. C. is in its terms wide enough to cover every trial or enquiry under the Code, and the proceedings under S. 145 is an enquiry, because in it the Magistrate's duty is to enquire who is in possession of the disputed area. [37 C. 812. 13 C. N. 120]

[Note.—Rulings to the same effect under the old Codes are: (79) 4 C. L. 152. 23 W. R. 62. 24 W. R. 52.]

10. The Section does not apply to Bench of Magistrates.—S. 350 does not apply to cases tried by Benches of Magistrates. There is no provision of law which provides for a change in the constitution of Benches of Magistrates, and in the absence of any such provision, it must be held that only those Magistrates who have heard the whole of the evidence can decide the case. 8 L. B. 463; 12 C. 558. 20 C. 870; 23 C. 194 (18) 3 U. B. 116; 15 M. 394. See 18 C. N. 394. 13 C. L. 212

11. Note per contra.—when a case is thus referred back under this rule (Rule no. 6 framed by the Bengal Government. See Not 950—A dated 30.1.14) to the Sub divisional officer, the provisions of S. 350 Cr. P. C. apply to the case, so that the Magistrate does not act without jurisdiction if in the absence of any demand for a de novo trial on the part of the accused he hears arguments and passes judgments without holding a de novo trial.—19 Cr. 312 (C) See 41 A. 116; 17 O. C. 112

12. This section does not apply to Sessions Judges.—A Sessions Judge cannot act on evidence recorded by his predecessor in office. On

[Note.—A Sessions Judge hearing a case in one Division is not competent on transfer to another Division to pronounce judgment.—20 P. R. 1679]

13. The section has no application to further enquiry ordered under S. 437 Cr. P. C.—Where a further enquiry is ordered to be made under S. 437 Cr. P. C. by the Magistrate who has already tried the case, he is entitled to act upon the evidence already recorded by him, but when the case is taken up by the District Magistrate himself or sent to another Magistrate the evidence already recorded cannot be treated as evidence in the further enquiry such a Magistrate ought to take up the enquiry from the very beginning. If he omits to do so the irregularity cannot be cured by the consent of the accused.—7 Bar R. 198. 60 C. 192; See 6 A. 367

14. S. 350 applies even when no evidence was recorded by the predecessor.—A Magistrate who succeeds another Magistrate in his office has power under S. 350 Cr. P. C. to try a case in which his predecessor has issued process and has granted a formal adjournment but has no recorded any evidence. In a case begun by a Magistrate continued by his successor, the latter has power under S. 191 (1) and (b) Cr. P. C. to issue process for the arrest of an accused person against whom no process was issued by the predecessor.—Rat 672

15. The scope enlarged by the Code of 1882.—Under the old Codes, (S. 324 of the Code of 1872) it was held that the section applied only when the evidence was partly (and not wholly) recorded by the predecessor. [See 24 W. R. 12. 23 W. R. 69; See also 7 P. R. 1854. The Code of 1882 added the words "the whole or any part of the evidence" to meet the effect of those rulings.

(3) Practice and Procedure.

16. Is it necessary for the Magistrate to ask the accused.—S. 350 confers the right on the accused person to demand that the witnesses be recalled and the trial be held de novo and does not actually prescribe that the Magistrate should ask the accused if he wished to exercise it. Where there was no refusal but only an omission to enquire from the accused whether he wished to exercise the right reserved by proviso (i) to S. 350 and the accused had not been materially prejudiced nor was a failure of justice occasioned by the omission, the error in procedure was held to be cured by S. 337 Cr. P. C.—(12) U. B. 151. 3 P. R. 1903. 6 P. R. 1854. 13 C. N. 550. 24 W. R. 12. 40 A. 307; 1 S. 115

17. [Note per contra.]—"Is it the duty of the Magistrate as a matter of practice to warn the accused and to record in the proceedings the fact that they have been so informed ([87-01) U. B. 1. 87] Although the law does not specifically require it, yet in the case of accused persons who are undefended and who are probably ignorant of their strict rights, it is desirable that the Magistrate who continues a trial under S. 350 Cr. P. C. should inform the accused of their right under that section and should record the fact that he had done so and the reply of the accused [1 L. B. 248; 2 L. B. 257.]

18. De novo trial must be held on demand.—Where an accused demands that all the witnesses be summoned and reheard the second Magistrate must adopt the second alternative course and recommence the inquiry or trial. 2 L. B. 17; 9 L. B. 92. 3 P. R. 1901.]

19. Right of accused confined to trials only.—A "register case" or preliminary inquiry into an accusation of an offence triable exclusively by a Court of Session is not a trial before the charge is framed, but an inquiry, and therefore not provided for by proviso (i) to S. 350.—32 M. 218; 14 P. R. 1903

20. Refusal to recall witness is illegal.—An accused person cannot be said to have lost his right of having the case heard de novo under proviso (a) because an interlocutory application for enforcing the attendance of certain witnesses has been made and granted before the trial, in as much as such interlocutory order cannot be said to have been made at the trial but before the trial and with a view to the trial. The proper time for the accused to make such an application is as soon as the trial commences before the Magistrate. * * * S 337 Cr. P. C. cannot cure the defect in the proceedings by reason of the Magistrates' refusal to recommence and rehear the witnesses in contravention of S 350 proviso (a)—25 C 683

21. De novo trial must be held on transfer under S. 348.—Where a case is transferred from the file of a Magistrate who is not competent to try it under S 316 Cr. P. C. there must be a trial de novo of the whole case, and the whole of the evidence must be recorded afresh. In such a

22. Meaning of de novo trial.—A de novo trial means a trial in which the proceedings are commenced from the very beginning. It is therefore no compliance with the provisions of this section to merely read out to the witnesses the statements made by them to the first Magistrate and to permit them to be further cross-examined. A fresh charge must be framed and the accused must be examined over again by the succeeding Magistrate [9 L B 92 12 C N 139 See 12 Bat T. 55 13 W R 40]

23. Magistrate who elects to recommence enquiry cannot act under S. 203 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate examined the complainant and sent the case for enquiry to the police, who after investigation sent up the case for trial. The Magistrate then examined the prosecution witnesses and the accused, framed a charge, took the defence of the accused and issued processes for the attendance of the witnesses for the defence. He was then succeeded by another Magistrate who elected to recommence the trial under S. 350 Cr. P. C. Held, that having done so, he was not at liberty to regard the case as having been brought down to the stage contemplated by S. 203 Cr. P. C. and to dismiss the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C. He was bound to resummon the witnesses and re-commence the trial as provided by S. 350 Cr. P. C.—7 C P 36 See 14 P R. 1903 38 M 585, 2 L W 1214

24. Process fee.—S 350 gives the accused an absolute right to have the witnesses recalled and re-examined. No condition is imposed, and it is not within the competence of the Magistrate to require him to pay process fees. The rules for

p. 137 of Vol II of the Lower Burma Courts Manual—8 Bur T. 43

25. When no de novo trial is held former proceedings must not be ignored.—When all the witnesses already examined are not recalled and re-examined, then the second Magistrate takes up the case from the point at which the predecessor left it and he is bound by his predecessor's acts up to that point. [2 L R 17] When a Magistrate accepting a complaint issued process upon it and examined certain witnesses for the prosecution his successor in office would not be entitled to ignore what the former has done and to refer the case to the police for enquiry and report under S. 202 Cr. P. C. [9 M. 282]

of charge already framed. An order of discharge therefore after such de novo trial amounts to an acquittal—[38 M 585 2 L W 1214] Where

R 1903]

27. Commitment based on evidence recorded by predecessor.—S. 350 Cr. P. C. enables a commitment to be made by a Magistrate, who succeeds to the jurisdiction of another Magistrate on evidence recorded by that Magistrate. In such a case it is not necessary that the Magistrate actually making the order of commitment should have himself recorded any evidence or the statement of the accused—[31 M. 10 see Rat 472] He may commit the accused on a charge of murder although the transferring Magistrate had been of opinion that the principal offence of any was the lesser form of culpable homicide [12 N. 140, 11 C N 29 of 1880 12 C N 130]
28. Judgment written by the predecessor but not delivered.—It has been held in 21 C. N. 755 that a "judgment purporting to have been written and signed by a Magistrate who had proceeded a leave and had ceased to exercise jurisdiction is no judgment at all." In 10 M 109 it was ruled that "it is in the discretion of a Magistrate to adopt and deliver a judgement written and signed by his predecessor in office but not pronounced or to grant a de novo trial under S. 350 Cr. P. C. There is no specific provision in the Criminal Procedure Code corresponding to Order XX r 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, under which it might be argued that the second Judge was merely a mouthpiece of the first.

Note.—He may, if he chooses, date, sign, and pronounce the judgement as if it were his own—40 M 108 12 M 3 187

29. When the proceedings will be set aside.—The proceedings before the succeeding Magistrate and his judgment and order will as a rule be set aside when a failure of justice has been occasioned by the omission to proceed lex. The fact that the accused consented to or acquiesced in the omission, will be no bar to setting it aside [See 13 C. N. 50 12 C N 138 12 C N. 140 60 C 102 3 P R 187 1st S. 18 115]

Note.—Should the former trial be set aside and a new trial ordered, the Magistrate will not be justified in referring to the former record as a whole, but may refer to particular depositions which are specially put in evidence [7 C. L. 193].

30. As to the power under provis (b) of District Magistrate to set aside proceedings irregularly held by first class Magistrates purporting to act under proviso (a) = See 9 L. 100; 8 M. 18 (F. B.). 12 C. 173 (F. B.); 7 A. 853

351. (1) Any person attending a Criminal Court, although not under arrest or upon a summons, Detention of offenders attending may be detained by such Court for the purpose of inquiry into Court. or trial of any offence of which such Court can take cognizance and which from the evidence, may appear to have been committed, and may be proceeded against as though he had been arrested or summoned.

(2) When the detention takes place in the course of an inquiry under Chapter XVIII or after a trial has been begun, the proceedings in respect of such person shall be commenced afresh, and the witnesses reheard.

Notes.

E. 351=S. 104 (1872)=S. 206 (1891).

1. Scope of S. 351 Cr. P. C.—S. 351 Cr. P. C. is self contained and complete in itself and quite independent of the provisions of S. 100 and necessarily of S. 191 of the Code; for the accused against whom action is taken under this section has full information as to the source and particulars of the material upon which the Magistrate takes action. He can if he so chooses, destroy by argument or counter-evidence the probative effect of those materials in so far as they affect him injuriously. He therefore labours under no difficulty in combating the effect of the suspicious circumstances operating upon the mind of the Magistrate and influencing his judgment, as he would if cognizance were taken under S. 190 (1) (c) Cr. P. C.—5 N. 113; 4 S. 258; 3 C. N. 323. See however 1 O. N. 105 below.

2. Proceedings against a witness.—A Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence against a witness in a case which is pending before him, upon the facts disclosed by the evidence of another witness does so under S. 191 cl (c) and not under S. 351 Cr. P. C.—1 C. N. 105.

3. S. 351 does not apply unless the person proceeded against is actually in attendance.—Where the police in sending up the accused was instigated by him may be red. Held against A under S. 351 Cr. P. C. as he was not in attendance in his Court—5 S. 1.

4. Scope of subs (2).—S. 351 cl 2. empowers a Magistrate to join as a co-accused any person attending his Court, who seems to him to be implicated in the case under trial. A Magistrate acting under this section, if he has already taken cognizance of the offence on a complaint or police report is not acting under S. 190 (c).

5. The principle embodied in the section.

—One L. was challanged by the Police After Magistrate had taken cognizance of the offence as charged against him. Held that the principle embodied in the section was done in regard to any person who might be proved by the evidence to be concerned in the offence under enquiry. "This principle seems to have been expressly embodied Magistrate took cognizance of S's offence under cl. (b) and not cl. (c) of subs (1) of S. 190 Cr. P. C. and was consequently not bound to act under S. 191". —9 N. 65 [32 P. R. 1804; 4 C. N. 337; 20 C. 786 Relied on]

6. Scope of the Section under the Code of 1861.—A Magistrate is not justified by S. 206 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (=S. 351) in taking a person, without any previous notice or summons, from among the audience or attendant witnesses in open Court placing him in the dock to be immediately tried upon a charge which has already been commenced to be entertained against other prisoners, and on which evidence has already been given. That section applies to investigations preliminary to commitment for a subsequent trial and not to cases where the trial is being actually proceeded with.—14 W. R. 20

Note.—The change introduced since—See subs. (2)]

352. The place in which any Criminal Court is held for the purpose of inquiring into or trying Courts to be open. any offence shall be deemed an open Court, to which the public generally may have access, so far as the same can conveniently contain them :

Provided that presiding Judge or Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, order at any stage of any inquiry into, or trial of, any particular case, that the public generally, or any particular person shall not have access to, or be or remain in the room or building used by the Court.

Notes.

1. Trial held at the private residence of the Magistrate.—The practice was condemned in Surendra Nath Binerjee 10 C. N. 1062; See Cal Rules and Orders p. 1. [dated 21.4.69]
2. Trial held in Jail.—In the absence of anything to show that admittance was refused to any one who desired it or that the prisoners were unable to communicate with their friends or counsel, the whole trial in Jail is not vitiated by reason of the provisions of S 352 Cr P. O. But such trials are usually undesirable as it is no doubt difficult to get counsel to appear in the Jail.—21 P. W. 1917.
3. Exclusion of the investigating Police officer.—A Police officer who investigated the case should not be allowed to be present in the Court-house, when the Magistrate records a confession made by the accused.—(85) A.N. 221 (221).
4. The English practice.—It is the practice in England to exclude females and boys when cases involving indecent details are called on for trial.—See Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol IX, p. 362-363 Archbold; p. 217.
5. "Gosha" women.—evidence of Gosha women should only be taken in cases where the ends of justice cannot be otherwise attained. The Court must adjourn to some place where she can come; and examine her behind a curtain, in the presence of the accused, the Judge taking such precautions as he can to secure her identity.—2 Weir 432.

CHAPTER XXV.

OF THE MODE OF TAKING AND RECORDING EVIDENCE IN INQUIRIES AND TRIALS

353. Except as otherwise expressly provided, all evidence taken under Chapters XVIII, XX, XXI, XXII, and XXIII shall be taken in the presence of the accused; or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with in presence of his pleader.

Notes.

1. Scope of the words "all evidence"—The words "all evidence" in S 353 include the evidence for the defence as well as for the prosecution. [12 U B 1 q 152]
2. When the presence of the accused may be dispensed with.—Unless and until a Magistrate has good reason to believe that there is a strong likelihood of the charge being proved, an accused person, if she really be a pardah lady of good position should not ordinarily be compelled to appear in person in the first instance. [21 P. W. 1918. G A 59. 21 C 588. 5 P W 1919]
3. Illhealth of the accused. The High Court has power under the provisions of S 353 Cr P C to dispense with the attendance of an accused person during his trial before it in the Sessions on the ground of ill-health.—11 R E 296.
4. Evidence for the prosecution.—All depositions of witnesses in criminal cases should be taken and attested in the presence of the accused and a few apt words should be used on the face of the deposition to make it appear that this has been done. [10 A 74] Under S 191 (- S 353), it is not enough to read over the deposition of the complainant in the presence of the accused person. The examination must take place in his presence. Rat 24. See 21 W R 14. 1 Bar 8 (309). When the witnesses are not examined in the presence of the accused the conviction is bad. [2 N P. 49]
5. Note.—But when, the evidence given by a witness in a previous trial was admitted at the request and on the agreement of the accused, the prosecutor, the counsel, in fact all the parties concerned, the High Court refused to interfere, in the absence of prejudice. [13 W R 49. See 9 A 704]
6. Pardah witnesses.—A pardah lady was placed in a passage screened from direct view of the Judge who sat close by. A sworn interpreter, a member of the family to which the lady belonged, was so stationed as to be able to see the lady all the time. The lady's voice could be heard perfectly. It was held that the mode of examination was virtually a hearing of the evidence in the presence of the accused.—41 P R 1867; 43 P E 1869. See 2 Weir 432.
7. Note.—a pardah lady has a right, as a witness in a criminal case, to be exempted from personal attendance at Court and to be examined on commission—[4 C. 20; See 21 C. 551. 12 A. 69] It has even been held that the exemption would apply even if she herself is the complainant—[2 Wei. 679 10 P. R. 1856. Con 5 A. 92]

7. Medical evidence.—Before the deposition of a medical witnesses taken by a committing Magistrate can under S 309 Cr. P. C. be given in evidence, it must be appear from the Magistrate's record or be proved by the evidence of witnesses to have been taken and attested in the accused's presence—9 A. 720. 10 A. 174 8 C. 739 18 C 129 4 C. N 49. See. Rat 81.

8. Evidence for the defence.—Where the evidence for the prosecution was recorded in the presence of the accused, but he disappeared when his own witnesses were called and his personal attendance was not dispensed with either under S 205 or S 306 (2) Cr P. C, and the Magistrate, recorded the evidence of the defence witnesses in the accused's absence and committed them. Held that S 353 applied and the words of the section were clear and peremptory. The procedure adopted was illegal and the irregularity could not be cured under S 537 even though it had not led to miscarriage of justice.—(12) U. B 4—q 152.

9. Hearing of which the prisoner was not present by merely reading them over and getting the witness to affirm the truth of the same. The consent of the prisoner under trial or his pleader will not cure this irregularity for such a course cannot give the look or manner of a witness, his hesitation, his doubts his variation of language or his precipitancy his calmness or consideration. It is the deadbody of evidence, without the spirit which is supplied when given openly and orally by the ear and eye of those who receive it.—3 B L (ap) 20; 1 B L (p) 37; See 8 W. R. 87. 7 W. R. 8; 15 W. R. 6; W. R. (Gap) 1, 38; 1 W. R. 36.

10. Commitment on evidence not recorded in the presence of the accused.—Where one of the accused was wounded by a gun shot and could not appear either before the committing Magistrate or the Sessions Judge a commitment on evidence recorded in the presence of the remaining accused and conviction on the basis of the same is altogether illegal—260 P. L. 1913.

354. In inquiries and trials (other than summary trials) under this Code by or before a Magistrate (other than a Presidency Magistrate) or Sessions Judge, the evidence of the witnesses shall be recorded in the following manner

Note.

1. Evidence to be recorded legible.—Difficultly having been frequently experienced in the paper only, a margin of one fourth of the sheet being left blank. In the case of records of trials forwarded to the High Court, in which from any cause, the evidence has been indistinctly or illegibly recorded, copies of such evidence should be submitted with the record of the case.—Wilkins 116.

355 (1) In summons-cases tried before a Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate, and in cases of the offences mentioned in sub-section (1) of section 260, clauses (b) to (m), both inclusive when tried by a Magistrate of the first or second class and in all proceedings under section 514 (if not in the course of a trial), the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the substance of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds.

(2) Such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate with own hand, and shall form part of the record.

(3) If the Magistrate is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to do so, and shall cause such memorandum to be made in writing from his dictation in open Court, and shall sign the same, and such memorandum shall form part of the record.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section—S. 355.—Merely prescribing a briefer record in summons cases and other cases which may be tried summarily when they are as a matter of fact tried regularly—3 L. R. 3 See 21 Cr. 23 (A)

2. Application of the Section.—In the case of theft combined with a charge of previous conviction, the Magistrate should not record the evidence in the form of a memorandum, as such offence is not triable summarily.—2 Weir 432 ('68) 2 Weir 433; See 21 Cr. 28 (A).
3. Magistrate bound to make a memorandum.—A Magistrate proceeding under this section is bound to make a memorandum, as the examination of the witness proceeds and not after the examination has been concluded, from the recorded deposition of the witness.—See Ag S C Cr. No. 13 of 1866; No. 18 of 1865
4. When the deposition should be recorded in full.—When, during the investigation of a case coming within the provisions of S 355, it appears to the Magistrate that a witness is giving false evidence, so that criminal proceedings against such witness are likely to be necessary, the Magistrate shall, in that case, under S 358 infra, take down the evidence of the particular witness at length in the manner prescribed in S 356 or S 357 infra as the case may be.—Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 22
5. Record to show that evidence was taken in the presence of the accused.—See Note No 4 under S 353 Supra.
6. What is not compliance with the provisions of this section.—Where a Judge merely recorded "of four witnesses to character, two give the defendant a bad character one says he knows nothing and one gives him a good character"—Held that this was not such a memorandum as was contemplated by this Section [Ag Niz Ad. 29 G '62. p 127] The direction that "the Magistrate shall make a memorandum of the evidence of each witness as the examination of the witness proceeds" is not complied with by a mere statement that a witness "deposes as the last".—[1 B. H. 91; See W. R. (Gap) 18]

7. Procedure in maintenance cases.—In proceedings under Chap XXXVI of the Code, evidence ought not to be recorded as in summary trials under Ch XXII of the Code but in the manner provided by S 355.—20 C 351 (352).
8. Effect of omission to read over the deposition.—In summons cases, the reading over of the recorded deposition is not prescribed by law and its omission cannot therefore per se be regarded as a fatal defect.—[2 Weir 433]
9. When re-affirmation is unnecessary.—Where a witness is recalled shortly after the close of his first deposition, the further statement may be deemed to be made under the original affirmation.—2 Weir 433
10. Memorandum in English.—There is no provision of law which renders it illegal for a native second class Magistrate to record the memorandum
11. Change in the Law.—It should be noted that the words "otherwise than at a summary trial" in the corresponding S 333 of the Code of 1872 have not been retained in S 355 of the present Code. The words "and in the case of offences mentioned in Subsection 1 of section 260 clauses (b) to (m) clearly indicate that the procedure in S 355 applies to warrant cases of the description mentioned therein been occasioned thereby.—19 M 269

356. (1) In all other trials before Courts of Session and Magistrates (other than Presidency Magistrates), and in all inquiries under Chapters XII and XVIII the evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the language of the Court by the Magistrate or Session Judge, or in his presence and hearing and under his personal direction and superintendence and shall be signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge.

(2) When the evidence of such witness is given in English the Magistrate or Sessions Judge may take it down in that language with his own hand, and unless the accused in familiar with English, or the language of the Court is English, an authentic translation of such evidence in the language of the Court shall form part of the record

(3) In cases in which the evidence is not taken down in writing by the Magistrate or Session Judge he shall, as the examination of each witness proceeds, make a memorandum of the substance of what such witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Sessions Judge with own hand and shall form part of the record

(4) If the Magistrate or Session Judge is prevented from making a memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of his inability to make it

Notes.

1. Application of S 356 (3) Cr. P. C. The provisions of S 356 (3) apply only to cases in which the evidence recorded for the first time is not taken down by the Magistrate or land. The provisions of the first subsection are imperative, and therefore where only a memorandum has been made of the evidence in a proceeding under S 145 Cr. P. C. the non-compliance with S 356 (1) is fatal.—42 C. 381.

2. Vernacular Record.—Where a Magistrate omits to prepare a vernacular record of the evidence as required by S 356 of the Cr. P. C. he commits an irregularity which vitiates the trial.—21 Cr. 28 (1) (80) A. N. 164 (165).
3. Proceedings under Chapter XII.—In proceedings under Ch XII, the evidence must be recorded under S 334 and the following Sections of the Code (=Ss 356, 357, 358). The omission to do so is a material error sufficient to vitiate the proceeding.—[11 B. L. (ap) 15 See 30 C. 504]
4. Memorandum.—A memorandum by a Judge [See Subs (3)] that certain witnesses had deposed the same as the former witnesses is not in accordance with the requirements of S 195 Cr. P. C. (Code of 1861)=S 356. [W. R. (Gap) 16; See 1 B. H. 91 (92). It is not sufficient compliance with the Code, to record that one witness corroborates another, because it is a deduction from the comparison of the depositions. The evidence of each witness must be recorded as it is given.—[100/02] L. B. 235 (241)]
5. In sessions trial.—In every Sessions trial, no matter how often the case has been before the Court, the witnesses must be examined de novo in the same manner as if the case was entirely new and the witnesses had not been examined before.—W. R. (Gap) 1 and 13

6. Record of evidence.—The Judge's notes should be notes of evidence taken from the mouth of witnesses and orders recorded at the time they are issued, not abstracts made afterwards. The notes must be legible, complete and properly arranged, and must attest the presence of the witness at the time, and mark every postponement and change of time or scene at the trial of the case, so that their bona fide character may be apparent.—Andh Cr. Dig p. 21.
7. Use of typewriters.—Sessions Judges, Additional Sessions Judges and First Class Magistrates may use a typewriter instead of a pen for the purpose of recording depositions and memoranda of evidence, but every sheet of any judgment deposition or memorandum so recorded must be signed.—Bomb. H. C. Cr. Ctr p. 31.
8. Medical evidence.—The testimony of a medical witness, especially in a case of murder, ought, when he is present, to be taken fully, and not supplemented by reading over his testimony given elsewhere and recording an answer that the earlier testimony is true.—Rat 782.
9. Effect of irregularities.—Where the Judge failed to comply with the requirements of S 356, the High Court held that they could not act on the evidence on the record, and ordered a new trial.—1901/1 N. 115 But where the accused d him on informa- conviction

357. (1) The Local Government may direct that in any district or part of a district, or in Language of record of evidence proceedings before any Court of Session or before any Magistrate or class of Magistrates the evidence of each witness shall, in the cases referred to in section 356, be taken down by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate with his own hand and in his mother-tongue, unless he is prevented by any sufficient reason from taking down the evidence of any witness, in which case he shall record the reason of his inability to do so and shall cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court.

(2) The evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Sessions Judge or Magistrate, and shall form part of the record.

Provided that the Local Government may direct the Sessions Judge or Magistrate to take down the evidence in the English language, or in the language of the Court, although such language is not his mother-tongue.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—The authority conferred on an officer under S 196 Cr. P. C. (=S. 357), is personal to that officer and is in force only so long as he remains in the particular district in which it has been conferred.—5 M. H. (app) iv.
2. Magistrate taking down evidence in his

another district, his authority remains in force so long as he remains in the district in which it has been conferred. But if after such transfer he takes down depositions in his own hand-writing and makes a commitment, the commitment although irregular, is valid unless the accused has been prejudicial thereby.—2 Weir 431

3. Special Magistrates.—Sessions Judges and Deputy Commissioners shall, with all due courtesy, impress upon special Magistrates, that they must comply with the requirements of the law in regard to recording evidence in their own handwriting. It is not necessary that they should take up cases at all, but it is necessary that if they do, they should conform to the provisions of S 357 of the Code, viz., that they take down the evidence of witnesses with their own hand, unless they be prevented by sufficient reason from doing so, in which case they should record the reason, and cause the evidence to be taken down in writing from their dictation in open court — Order Cr. Dig pp 21, 22.

4. Language in which the plea is to be recorded.—The language in which the plea is to be recorded is the language in which it is conveyed by the interpreter to the court — S O. 826

358. In cases of the kind mentioned in section 355, the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, take down the evidence of any witness in the manner provided in section 356, or, if within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Magistrate the Local Government has made the order referred to in section 357, in the manner provided in the same section

Option to Magistrate in cases under section 355

359. (1) Evidence taken under section 356 or section 357 shall not ordinarily be taken down in the form of question and answer, but in the form of a narrative.

(2) The Magistrate or Sessions Judge may, in his discretion, take down, or cause to be taken down any particular question and answer.

Notes.

- 1. How to take down in the evidence.—Though the deposition cannot always be taken down in the exact words of the witness, Judges should, as far as possible adhere to the words actually used either in the question or in the answer. It is not a compliance with the law to record a more or less accurate paraphrase of the evidence [11 Bur R 8] The ordinary and proper and convenient way of recording evidence is to take it down in the first person, exactly as spoken by the witness [8 B L (apps) 21]
- 2. "Shall not ordinarily take down in the form of question and answer."—It is in the discretion of the Judge to take down in the form of question and answer, if either side specially request him to do so — 11 Bur R 8

- 3. Interference by the Judge with cross examination.—Under this section, the cross examination is to be ordinarily taken down in the form of a narrative. A Judge should not therefore under s 163 of the Evidence Act which gives him the right to ask any question at any time, try to anticipate questions or interpose his own questions as that would break the thread of the cross-examination and tend to destroy its effect — See Ibid

360. (1) As the evidence of each witness taken under section 356 or section 357 is completed, it shall be read over to him in the presence of the accused if in attendance or of his pleader if he appears by pleader and shall, if necessary, be corrected

Procedure in regard to such evidence when completed

Note.—If depositions of witnesses taken before a Magistrate be used in appeal, it should be shown either in the depositions or elsewhere, that the evidence was read over or interpreted to the respective witnesses—14 W. R. 13.

2. Scope of the Section.—The provisions of S 199 of the Code of 1861 (=S. 360) do not apply to the examination of an accused—12 W. R. 44.

(2) The effect of informalities.

3. General remarks.—There is a marked conflict of judicial opinion as regards the effect of a failure to observe the strict provisions of this section. A tendency is seen in some of the later rulings to disregard an informality or irregularity which, however patent, is not calculated, to throw doubt upon the authenticity of the deposition. Where however all the guarantees of authenticity which the law prescribes, have been violated, there is a consensus of opinion that the deposition will not be accepted in evidence by the Court, before which the witness is later on arraigned on a charge of perjury.

(3) Irregularities held to be fatal.

4. (1) Where the deposition after being recorded, was handed over to the witness, and was not read over to him in the presence of the accused, held that there had not been a sufficient compliance with the provisions of S 360 snbs (1) Cr. P. C. and it was therefore inadmissible in evidence.—42 C. 210.

5. (2) A Sessions Judge refused to read over to the witness his deposition on the ground that it would involve a great waste of time to do it. He said, "the section seems to me to be directory and not obligatory. If the witness detects a mistake, he can come back and say so. This is the universal practice in Sessions Courts, my experience extending to six such Courts. Optima est legum interpretatio consuetudo" Held that S. 360 Cr. P. C. is mandatory and not merely directory. Depositions of witnesses should be read over to them in the presence of the accused or his pleader as required by S 360. A custom to the contrary cannot alter the plain words of the Act.—[Per Jenkins C. J. and Caspers J.]. 30 C. 957. 42 C. 957. 6 C. 762. 12 C. N. 845. (17) Pat 294; 54 P. R. 1857.

6. (3) Where the witness was taken aside by the clerk and his evidence was read over to him in a place where neither the Judge nor the Vakils were present and the witness signed the deposition, held that the deposition not having been taken in accordance with law could oral evidence be taken when the deposition was read over to him. Con 10 L.B.

7. (1) Where the deposition of a witness was read over to him by a clerk in the verandah of the Court-house, though both the witness and the clerk were in view of the accused and his advocate, held that the procedure was a gross infraction of the plain provisions of S 360 Cr. P. C. and the deposition was one which was not taken in accordance with law.—(12) U. B. 1-q. 123. 11 Bur T. 202; 11 Bur R. 8.

(4) Irregularities held not to be fatal.

8. (1) Where the alleged false statements were given in a deposition in a case in which there were twenty-seven accused persons and it was proved that it had been read over in the presence of the pleader of one of them. Held that the deposition was undoubtedly admissible in evidence as against the accused, and was therefore also admissible against the witness on his trial for perjury. S 360 Cr. P. C. had not been contravened. [Per Jenkins C. J. and Moclherjee J.].—36 C. 604; See 25 P. R. 1600.

9. (2) A deposition irregularly recorded without compliance with the provisions of S. 360 Cr. P. C. is not necessarily to be treated as a nullity for all purposes, even as against the man who made it and who has admitted that it represents what he said. If the deposition has been read over to the witness and he has admitted it to be correct, a conviction for perjury may be upheld, though the reading over was not in the presence of the Judge, the accused and the pleaders on both sides.—20 M. J. 913.

10. (c) Objection being taken to the admissibility of a deposition on the ground that while it was being read to the accused, another witness was being examined, held that the deposition was admissible, as the provisions of S. 360 Cr. P. C. had been complied with both literally and in the spirit.—21 M. J. 411; Con 2 Weir 435.

11. (7) Where the deposition of the witness was found not to have been read over to him in the presence of the accused or his pleader as required by S. 360 Cr. P. C., held, that the deposition should not have been treated as a nullity merely because of the irregularity in not reading it over to the deponent in the presence of the accused or his pleader. It could be proved by other evidence as e.g., by evidence that the witness admitted it to be correct when it was read over to him and the evidence of the Judge who recorded it.—10 L. B. 16; 45 C. 525.

(c) In summons cases the reading over of the recorded deposition is not prescribed by law and its omission is not therefore, not per se a fatal defect.—2 Weir 433.

12. Peremptory exclusion of deposition.—where in a Session case, it was sought to contra-over to witnesses, held that the Sessions Judge was wrong in not giving the party producing them an opportunity to call the Magistrate and to prove that the requirements of S 360 had been complied with.—13 C. 121.

(5) Witness' right to correction of errors.

13. 'It is no doubt, very important that a witness honestly desiring to correct an error in his evidence should not be deterred from doing so by the risk of a criminal charge" [Per Sottenhara J in 10 C 937 (911) See 18 W. R. 57]. Before a deposition is closed, a witness should be given an ment he intended to make [Rat 54; See Rat 502]

(6) Memorandum.

14. Attestation in the presence of the accused not obligatory.—Although all depositions of witnesses in Criminal proceedings should be taken and attested in the presence of the accused and a few apt words should be used on the face of the deposition to make it apparent that this has been done, there is no provision of the law which makes the attestation of deposition by the Court in the presence of the accused obligatory.—10 A. 174

[Note.—The memorandum required by S 199(—S 360) should always be appended to the deposition.—13 W R 17]

15. Proof of the correctness of the deposition.—To render the deposition of a Civil Surgeon or other Medical witness admissible in evidence under S 503 Cr P C it must be shown to have been taken and attested by the Magistrate in the presence of the accused. In the absence of proof of authenticity, a Court will not be bound to presume either under S. 50 or S. 114 (c) of the Evidence Act, that the deposition was so taken and attested.—9 A. 720. 10 A. 171; 18 C 129

(7) Interpretation of evidence.

16. Judge's duty. It is the duty of the presiding officer to see that the evidence is clearly and properly interpreted to the party making a statement and the certificate or memorandum specified in S 199 (Code of 1861) = S. 360, is sufficient proof, until the contrary is shown that the deponent understood all that was written down as deposed to by him.—16 W. R. 71.
17. Effect of failure to interpret.—Where a Magistrate took down the evidence in English, but there was no memo as required by this section to show that the evidence was read over and explained to each witness in a language which he understood, held that the evidence was not recorded according to law and that the irregularity had prejudiced the accused.—8 W. R. 63. 13 W R 1 (7) 4 B L (app) 1 (11)
18. Who is to interpret.—Under S 194 of the Code of 1861 (= S 360) it was not necessary that the evidence of each witness shall be interpreted to him by a sworn interpreter.—16 W R 61

361. (1) Whenever any evidence is given in a language not understood by the accused, and

Interpretation of evidence to accused or his pleader

he is present in person, it shall be interpreted to him in open Court in a language understood by him.

(2) If he appears by pleader and the evidence is given in a language other than the language of the Court and not understood by the pleader in that language.

(3) When documents are put in for the purpose of formal proof, it shall be in the discretion of the Court to interpret as much thereof as appears necessary

Notes.

1. The Section refers to oral evidence.—This section relates to the oral evidence of witnesses. As to documentary evidence, although a prisoner has the right to have all or any part of the document used on his trial translated and interpreted to him, yet in the case of documents like the Gazette of India or the Calcutta Gazette (containing e.g. the official letters on the subject of hostilities between the British Crown and Mahomedan fanatics on the frontier) or a printed letter from the Secretary to the Government of the Punjab to the Secretary to the Government of India, it is not necessary that they should be interpreted to the prisoner. It is sufficient that the purposes for which they were put in were explained. To interpret them at length would be simply wasting time.—[7 B L 63] Where the evidence of a Civil Surgeon recorded in English was not interpreted to the accused but the accused's counsel fully cross examined the Surgeon on all points, held that the omission was not important.—[21 W R 50 (11)]

2. Interpretation to be made by whom.—See Note no 18 under S 360 also S O 42.

362. (1) In every case in which a Presidency Magistrate imposes a fine exceeding two hundred

Record of evidence in Presidency Magistrate's Courts

rupees, or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months, he shall either take down the evidence of the witness with his own hand, or cause it to be taken down in writing from his dictation in open Court. All evidence so taken down shall be signed by the Magistrate and shall form part of the record.

(2) Evidence so taken down shall ordinarily be recorded in the form of a narrative, but the Magistrate may, in his discretion, take down, or cause to be taken down, any particular question or answer.

(3) Sentences passed under section 35 on the same occasion shall, for the purpose of this section, be considered as one sentence.

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 362 of the said Code,—

(i) In sub-section (1), for the words "in which a Presidency Magistrate impose a fine exceeding two hundred rupees, or imprisonment for a term exceeding six months, he" the words "tried by a Presidency Magistrate in which an appeal lies, such Magistrate" shall be substitute.

(ii) In sub-section (3) after the word "sentence" the words "unless they are sentences of imprisonment ordered to run concurrently" shall be added.

(iii) After sub-section (3) the following sub-section shall be added, namely —

"(f) In cases other than those specified in sub section (i), it shall not be necessary for a Presidency Magistrate to record the evidence or frame a charge."

Notes.

1. Scope of S. 362.—S. 362 Cr. P. C. does not mean that a Presidency Magistrate can act arbitrarily and record nothing by way of evidence in cases in which he is not bound to take down evidence in the manner prescribed by the section. In such cases, the section merely gives him a discretion to take down the evidence or not, and the discretion should be exercised judicially in a reasonable spirit, and not arbitrarily. There may be no necessity to record any evidence in 'morning cases' But where a respectable person is charged with an offence, reflecting on his character and serious allegations are levelled against him, there ought to be some record of evidence to enable him in case of a conviction to go to the High Court.—10 B. R. 201; 33 C. 1036.

2. The Section does not apply to bad livelihood cases.—S. 362 Cr. P. C. does not apply to a case under S. 110 Crim Pro Code, in which the Presidency Magistrate has to make a reference to the High Court under S. 123 (2) Cr. P. C. so as to absolve him from the duty of recording evidence. But the record of evidence by the Presidency Magistrate in such case need not be as full as in a similar case in the Court of a Mofussil Magistrate.—13 C. N. 318. See 33 C. 1036.

3. Mode of recording evidence.—In a case under Ss 157 and 350 or 411 Cr. P. C. a Presidency Magistrate purporting to act under S. 362 Cr. P. C. recorded evidence in the following manner: "Prosecution 4th witness "speaks to the identification by prosecution 1st witness of some of the jewels" "Prosecution 5th witness proves his signature to sareh lists" and "prosecution 7th witness identifies recovered jewels." Held that the statements should have been recorded in the direct narration but the irregularity, if any was cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C. as no failure of justice had been occasioned thereby.—18 Cr. 336 (M) [19 M. 269 f.]

4. The duty of the Magistrate.—It is the duty of the Magistrate in a case which comes under S. 362 Cr. P. C. to take a note of all the material facts stated by a witness, whether they appear in the course of the examination in-chief or cross-examination.—46 C. 411.

5. Procedure in Presidency Magistrate's Court.—The provisions of Ch. XXII Cr. P. C. (summary trials) do not apply to trials before Presidency Magistrates. The procedure to be followed in warrant cases is that laid down in Ch. XXI, subject only to the special provisions of this section as to the mode of recording evidence.—Rat 539

6. Recording of evidence in appealable and non-appealable cases.—S. 362 Cr. P. C. applies to all appealable cases. In non-appealable cases, the Magistrate may record evidence in the manner prescribed by S. 362 Cr. P. C. but the evidence so recorded is not admissible in an appeal.—Rat 539

363. When a Sessions Judge or Magistrate has recorded the evidence of a witness, he shall

Remarks respecting demeanour of witness also record such remarks (if any) as he thinks material respecting the demeanour of such witness whilst under examination.

Notes.

1. Remarks respecting demeanour of witness.—The remarks should be recorded in the margin of the evidence.

Judge regarding the demeanour of the two witnesses Buta and Jwala. The learned Judge had the great advantage of seeing the witnesses in the box and of watching them as they gave their evidence, and when we find a Sessions Judge of to assume that it is so, till the evidence has been exhausted—2 Weir 435.

3. Object of the Section.—The object of this Section is to give the Appellate Court some aid in estimating the value of evidence recorded by another Court.

case. [6 P R 1898]

4. Magistrate's remarks prima facie proof of the facts stated therein.—The remarks by a Magistrate on the evidence are not to be taken as questions when the excessive weakness of the witness obliged him to stop, is prima facie proof of those facts and can be put before a Jury—12 W. R. 51.

2. Remarks should be passed only after the whole of the evidence is taken.—It is always unsafe to pronounce an opinion on the credibility of witness, until the whole of the evidence has been taken. A Judge may note the demeanour of a witness, but except where there is very clear proof afforded by his own statement that the witness is unworthy of credit, it is unsafe

364. (1) Whenever the accused is examined by any Magistrate, or by any Court other than a High Court established by Royal Charter * * * * *
[or the Chief Court of Lower Burma], the whole of such examination, including every question put to him and every answer given by him, shall be recorded in full, in the language in which he is examined, or if that is not practicable, in the language of the Court or in English, and such record shall be shown or read to him, or, if he does not understand the language in which it is written, shall be interpreted to him in a language which he understands, and he shall be at liberty to explain or add to his answers

(2) When the whole is made conformable to what he declares is the truth, the record shall be signed by the accused and the Magistrate or Judge or such Court, and such Magistrate or Judge shall certify under his own hand that the examination was taken in his presence and hearing and that the record contains a full and true account of the statement made by the accused.

(3) In cases in which the examination of the accused is not recorded by the Magistrate or Judge himself, he shall be bound, unless he is a Presidency Magistrate, as the examination proceeds, to make a memorandum thereof in the language of the Court, or in English, if he is sufficiently acquainted with the latter language, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Magistrate or Judge with his own hand, and shall be annexed to the record. If the Magistrate or Judge is unable to make memorandum as above required, he shall record the reason of such inability.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to apply to the examination of an accused person under section 263

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. (1) The examination of an accused person contemplated by Ss. 342 and 364 Cr. P. C., is for the purpose of enabling him "to explain the circumstances appearing in evidence against him" and not to empower a Judge, before any evidence, has been recorded to extract damaging admissions from him upon which to build up the case for prosecution (84) A. N. 106 : 14 A. 242 : 15 C. J. 323.
2. (2) Before criminating a man upon his own statement under examination it is necessary to see that such statement was deliberately made and recorded, that after being recorded it has been shown or read to the accused, and the examination has been attested by the signature of the Magistrate following a certificate to be given under his own hand—7 W. R. 49

(2) Application of the Section.

3. Analysis of Chapter XXIV.—Ss. 375 to 363 relate only to the mode of recording the statements of witnesses, while S. 364 deals with all statements made by accused persons, whether amounting to confessions or not—2 C. N. 702.
4. Procedure under S. 364.—A Magistrate, prisoner that he is charged with a certain offence and ask him if he has any explanation to give and whether he wishes to make any statement

5. S. 364—other

ment can be recorded only under S. 364 Cr. P. C. and that only when a person is being tried for an offence
32 C. 1085 10 B. H. 166 2 C. L. 317
6. Application of the Section.—Statements made by accused persons before the case has reached the stage at which the examination of the accused is authorised, if they do not amount to confessions are inadmissible in evidence—2 C. N. 702
7. Section applies to examination of the accused under S. 342.—The section lays down the procedure to be observed in examining the accused under the provisions of S. 342 Cr. P. C.

Nature of examination to be conducted.General Rules:—

- (1) Questions should be made with the sole object of ascertaining from the accused how he is able to meet facts standing in evidence against him so that those facts should not stand against him unexplained.
- (2) It is illegal to put questions in the nature of cross examination to the accused.

[For a typical case—See 7 O. C. 191]

- (3) The examination is not to be made for the purpose of supplementing the case for the prosecution.

- (4) Magistrates should inform the accused that he is not bound to answer.

8. Confession recorded by the Magistrate of a Native State.—A confession made to a Magistrate in a Native State is admissible in evidence in a trial in British India, if it is duly recorded in proceedings under and in the manner required by the Code of Criminal Procedure—2 P. R. 1909. S. P. R. 1907 : 12 A. 593
9. S. 364 do not limit the scope of S. 21 of the Evidence Act.—The argument that the confessions if recorded after the commencement of the trial, would be inadmissible in evidence, cannot be sustained, because the argument seeks to derive from the provisions of the Code a limitation on the law of confession as defined by the Evidence Act for which there is no sufficient warrant Ss. 164, 342, 364 Criminal Procedure Code are not exhaustive and do not limit the generality of S. 21 Evidence Act as to the relevancy of admissions—37 C. 467 See Rat 679
10. S. 364 does not apply to confessions recorded by Presidency Magistrates.—Chapter XIV Cr. P. C. (except S. 155) does not apply to the Police in the town of Calcutta. Therefore neither S. 164, nor as a necessary consequence a crime committed in Calcutta.

11. How to record the examination.—In taking down the statement of an accused, under S. 342, a Magistrate should record in full the questions put to and the answers given by the accused, and the whole must be made conformable to what the accused declares to be the truth; he must certify that his examination of the accused contains a full account of the statement made by the accused—4 B. R. 461. 1 Bar R. 320 5 A. 253 - (83) A. N. 243
12. Questions calculated to draw incriminating statements illegal.—All that a Court has the right to do under S. 364 Cr. P. C. is to ask the accused person to explain the circumstances which appear in evidence against him, where questions were put to the accused person which elicited a statement of a confessional nature, held that such examination, though purporting to have been made under S. 364, was wholly inadmissible—15 C. J. 323.

29. Form of the certificate.—No particular form of certificate is prescribed by this section.
The want of a certificate may be remedied, the Appellate Court directing the Magistrate to supply the omission [7 B. H. 50 (53)] A certificate which contained the words "taken by me" but in which the magistrate omitted to record that the prisoner's statement was taken in his hearing,

30. Attestation of the Magistrate.—It is not necessary under S 205 U P. (=S. 364) to state in the body of the examination of the accused that the statement comprises every question put to the accused and every answer given by him, or that they

and that the terms of that section is sufficient prima facie evidence of such examination, unless the Session Judge doubts the genuineness of the Magistrate's signature, in which case he should take evidence on that point. The examination of the accused, properly recorded, is evidence, and should be allowed to go to the jury.—7 B. L. (p) 62.—

See S W. R. 55.

[Note.—The attestation required by this section is unnecessary when a confession is made in the Court to the officer trying the case at the time of trial—3 C. 756].

31. Object of recording statement of ac-

26. Object of the memorandum.—Both the memorandum and the certificate prescribed by Ss. 122 (=16), 316 (=361) should be attached to confessions. The effect of these is to afford proof of the accuracy of the record, of the presence of a Magistrate, and of the voluntary nature of the confession—1 B. 219

(3) Memorandum or Certificate prescribed by subs. (2).

27. Informalities not necessarily fatal.—A confession does not become unworthy or consideration, merely because, the memorandum required by law to be attached thereto has not been written in the exact form prescribed—3 A. 338; 2 Weir 136; 22 M. 16.
28. Magistrate recording confession may be examined to rectify omission.—A defect in the memorandum to be attached to the examination of the accused by a Magistrate cannot be cured by the examination of a witness to prove that the statement was taken down in the handwriting of the Magistrate. The proper course is to examine either the Magistrate himself or some other person who was present when the statement was made.—8 C. P. G.; 23 B. 221; 22 M. 16; 2 P. R. 1909; 8 C. N. 22; 3 C. 29. Form of the certificate.—No particular form of certificate is prescribed by this section. The want of a certificate may be remedied, the Appellate Court directing the Magistrate to supply the omission [7 B. II. 50 (53)] A certificate which contained the words "taken by me" but in which the magistrate omitted to record that the prisoner's statement was taken in his hearing, was treated to be substantially a compliance with S. 316 (=S. 361)—5 C. 958. 30. Attestation of the Magistrate.—It is not necessary under S. 205 C. P. (=S. 361) to state in the body of the examination of the accused such, so as to ensure accuracy and prevent misrepresentation or misconstruction of what was said. If such a record is not practicable, the law directs that the statement shall be recorded in the language of the Court or in English; if however, as in this case, a second translation be made and the statement be recorded as so understood the accuracy which the law contemplates is made more remote.—21 C. 612 (660)

(4) Statement should ordinarily be recorded in the language in which it is made.

32. The General Rule.—If the accused is examined in a language which the Magistrate understand and is able to write, an English record of the examination is inadmissible, and no evidence can be admitted to prove what statement was made [11 C. 100; 11 W. R. 711] It is enough to establish the impracticability if any existed.—[15 C. 505 (F. B.). 17 C. 562, 21 W. R. 54; 2 L. B. 19; But see 8 C. P. 21].

OF THE JUDGMENT.

366. (1) The judgment in every trial in any Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall be Mode of delivering judgment. pronounced, or the substance of such judgment shall be explained,—

(a) in open Court either immediately after the termination of the trial or at some subsequent time of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders, and

(b) in the language of the Court, or in some other language which the accused or his pleader understands

Provided that the whole judgment shall be read out by the presiding Judge, if he is requested so to do either by the prosecution or the defence.

(2) The accused shall, if in custody, be brought up or, if not in custody, be required by the Court to attend to hear judgment delivered, except where his personal attendance during the trial has been dispensed with and the sentence is one of fine only or he is acquitted. in either of which cases it may be delivered in the presence of his pleader.

(3) No judgment delivered by any Criminal Court shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only of the absence of any party or his pleader on the day or from the place notified for the delivery thereof or of any omission to serve, or defect in serving, on the parties or their pleaders or any of them, the notice of such day and place.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit in any way the extent of the provisions of section 537.

Notes.

Meaning of the word “Judgment.”

An order of discharge is not a “judgment”. Although the word “judgment” is not defined Pro. Code, it is sufficiently clear from Ss 366, 367, that the term is intended to apply to the final order in a trial, terminating in either the conviction or acquittal of the accused. See Pinhey J in 31 M. 513. 6 B R 897; 11 B 61; See 29 M. 126 (F. B.) 1 N. 18

295 and 297 Cr. P. C. the irregularity was one contemplated by S. 337 of the Code, when it had not amounted any failure of justice. [See also 23 C. 502; 5 N. 131].

17. Death of Magistrate after conviction—least before writing the judgment.—The second class Magistrate who convicted the accused died suddenly after having sentenced them but before he had written his judgment in the case. In 1 B. R. 159 [See 2 Weir 438 Condon] the High Court reversed the conviction and ordered a retrial but in 1 B. R. 117, the High Court declined to interfere as the accused had neither exercised their right of appeal nor moved the High Court.

(3) Scope of sub. (2).

18. Scope of S. 366(2).—S. 295 allows the accused to appear by pleader, and such appearance involves the performance of all acts which devolve upon the accused in the course of the trial, such as answering the examination by the Court, under S. 342 or pleading or refusing to plead under S. 255. The terms of S. 295(2) support this view for it contemplates the absence of the accused up to the stage of judgment or even after that stage when the judgment is one of acquittal or one awarding a sentence of fine only.—6 S. 295; 3 S. 167; See (12) U. B. 4 p. 152.
19. The General Rule.—An accused person was present throughout a trial whilst the evidence was taken; but he having absconded, the Magistrate passed sentence upon him in his absence and on his reappear, repronounced his judgment. Held that S. 337 applied as no review was sought by the accused but that the Magistrate should not have pronounced judgment in the absence of the accused.—Rat 325.
20. English Law.—In England, if the Court is satisfied that the prisoner is too ill or infirm to be brought up, the judgment may be pronounced in his absence.

R. v. Condon 7 D. and R. 603; See Arch. 1 p. 249

(A) Miscellaneous.

21. Omission to read a portion of the judgment.—The omission to pronounce a portion of the judgment imposing fine which the Magistrate has written and his omission to date and sign the judgment at the time of pronouncing it are omissions covered by S. 337 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 711; 25 M. J. 445.
22. The inherent power of Courts to restore lost records.—In England the practice is as follows: "The power of supplying a new record where the original has been lost or destroyed is one which pertains to Courts of general jurisdiction independent of legislation." [Black on Judgments Vol. I, S. 125.] The principle is recognised in India in 11 C. J. 243 (245): "a Court has inherent power in the case of loss or destruction of a judicial record of restoring it." It has been held in 8 C. J. 521 that when a judgment has been lost, it is open to the Judge to rewrite from memory the substance of it.—See 25 M. J. 455.
23. Delivering of a judgment should not be delegated.—A Sessions Judge after holding trial in a district within his Session Division went back to his head-quarters in another district and sent his judgment in the case to the Magistrate of the district in which the trial had taken place to be delivered by the latter. Held that the procedure was illegal.—(59) A. N. 181; But See Note No. 14 above.
24. Secs. 366, 367 read with S. 424 apply to appellate judgments.—[Sec. 37 C. 191; 14 C. N. xxiii.] But not when the appeal is summarily dismissed under S. 421 infra [5 N. 78]

357. (1) Every such judgment shall, except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code, be written by the presiding officer of the Court in the language of the Court, or in English; and shall contain the point or points for determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for the decision; and shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer in open Court at the time of pronouncing it.

(2) It shall specify the offence (if any) of which, and the section of the Indian Penal Code or other law under which the accused is convicted, and the punishment to which he is sentenced,

(3) When the conviction is under the Indian Penal Code, and it is doubtful under which Judgment in alternative, of two sections, or under which of two parts of the same section, of that Code the offence falls, the Court shall distinctly express the same and pass judgment in the alternative.

(4) If it be a judgment of acquittal, it shall state the offence of which the accused is acquitted and direct that he be set at liberty.

(5) If the accused is convicted of an offence punishable with death, and the Court sentences him to any punishment other than death, the Court shall in its judgment state the reason why sentence of death was not passed;

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.(1) General Remarks.

1. Judgment, must be the same person as the presiding officer who is required to date sign and pronounce it in open Court.—18 M. J. 197.

2. If Judgment is delivered after the accused had been sentenced.—The procedure is more than a mere irregularity and vitiates the conviction and sentence.

27 M. 237. 14 A. 242. 21 C. 121. 13 B. R. 635. But see 23 C. 602; 5 S. 131.

3. Dictation.—The dictation of a judgment by a Magistrate who did not write it but signed it after it had been written to dictation is in contravention of S. 367—4 C. J. 111.

4. Proceedings written in pencil.—Pencil writing is precluded by common sense and common usage—O. S. 192

5. Judgment written after relinquishing charge.—A judgment written by a Magistrate after he had ceased to exercise jurisdiction is not valid.—15 C. P. 15; See 20 P. R. 1879.

6. Judgment must be delivered by the Judge himself.—The action of a Sessions Judge (after having written the judgment) in sending it to the District Magistrate to be delivered by him is illegal [the Sessions Judge having left the place where the trial had been held]—(50) A. N. 181.

7. Signature when to be appended.—The signature to a judgment should be appended at the time of pronouncing it is open Court.—Bat 429

(2) Object and Application.

8. Object of S. 367.—Object of the Legislature in formulating rules as to judgments was to insure that a Criminal Court should consider the case before it in its different bearings and should on such consideration, arrive at definite conclusions, and that the judgment should show that, in fact, the Criminal Court had considered the evidence, in a case of first instance or in a case of appeal, and had found in a case of a conviction, that the facts proved to the satisfaction of the Court, brought an offence home to the accused person whom the Court convicted.—19 A. 506 (F. B.) See 14 A. 212.

9. S. 367 applies only to final order.—S. 429 Code of 1861 (=S. 367) of the Code was held not to be applicable to all orders on petitions but to final orders made in the trial and investigation of offences.—Bat 61.

10. S. 367 does not apply to an order passed under S. 195 Cr. P. C.—The section applies to criminal trials.—See 6 B. R. 897.

It is open to doubt whether the provisions of ss. 377, 424 Cr. P. C. govern an order under S. 123 Sub. Sec. (3).—37 C. 91.

11. Order of discharge under S. 285.—Accompaniment of the wording of cl. 1 and 2 of S. 253 Cr. P. C. and a reference to S. 367 show that an order of discharge, after all evidence is taken, is not a judgment, and that it is not necessary for the Magistrate to state his reasons though it is desirable that he should do so—9 B. R. 250; 31 M. 543; 26 M. 126

12. Judgment of acquittal on petition of compromise.—It is doubtful whether the final order of acquittal on a petition of compromise is a judgment within the provisions of S. 367 (1) Cr. P. C.—29 P. R. 1914 (F. B.).

13. Judgement written but not delivered.—A judgment, though written and signed was inoperative until it was pronounced and must be taken merely as an expression of opinion

[A Magistrate may after writing a judgment convicting the accused, change his mind before delivering it act under S. 313 Cr. P. C.]—15 A. J. 743.

14. Duty of the Appellate Court.—An appellate Court is bound to look into the defence evidence although the counsel for the appellant does not refer to it and after dealing with it must come to a decision, otherwise the judgment would be defective—40 C. 376.

(3) Judgments how to be written.

15. The General Rule.—The decisions of Judicial officers should be written on a uniform, concise and complete plan; neither too prolix nor omitting all reference to the facts. First, there should be concise reference to the main facts and proofs on which the decision is founded. Secondly, the deductions and reasons should follow, and then in due course, will come, thirdly the sentence or decision. When a judgment makes reference to witnesses or accused persons, Judges should not content themselves with merely mentioning their number on the list, but should also mention their names. The name of the person referred to should be distinctly stated—Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 22; See B. H. Cr. Cir. p. 39. See 19 A. 506 (F. B.) W. R. (Sup.) 6.

16. Evidence must be discussed.—Where the judgment of the Deputy Magistrate in appeal, contained a long recital of the facts preceding the alleged offence, but no discussion of the evidence or anything to indicate that the Magistrate considered such essential points, as the ownership of the grain, or the good faith of the accused, on the evidence implicating the individual accused persons, held that it was not in accordance with law—12 M J 315.

17. The defence should not be treated as a reason for enhancing the punishment. The defence put forward by the accused should not be treated by the Magistrate as a matter of aggravation in estimating the sentence to be passed by him—(13) A. N. 170.

II. CONTENTS OF THE JUDGMENT IN TRIALS.

(1) General Rules.

18. Judgment should be sober and temperate.—

(1) A judgment should confine itself to a consideration of the issues before the Court together with fair and legitimate comment on any errors or irregularities that may be disclosed in the course of trial. The language should be temperate and sober, not satirical—5 Bar T 20.

(2) A judgment should not contain remarks about the accused to the effect that he was a person of wealth and influence and had prevented truth from appearing unless established by the evidence [4 W R 13].

19. Judge must clearly state the points for determination.—If a Judge does not state the facts of the case or the points for determination, or even the section under which he convicts the accused, the High Court will set it aside and direct a retrial [See 9 C N xliii].

20. Particulars of previous conviction must be stated.—Particulars of previous convictions and sentences, if any, should be given in the judgment. In the absence of those particulars, the Court of appeal or revision cannot have a proper idea of the appropriateness or otherwise of the sentence passed—See M H C Cr, 218 & 55.

21. Remarks about Police officers.—The testimony and conduct of police officers concerned in the trial should be scrutinized and commented on in the same degree as those of other material witnesses and no further.—23 W. R 65.

22. Judgment must be self-contained.—A Magistrate cannot supplement his judgment by his explanation to the superior Court. If there are no material findings in the judgment, the defect cannot be cured by the Magistrate's explanation—7 C J 239.

23. Evidence.—The judge is bound to state in his judgment the evidence on which he convicts [5 W R 17] where the judgment of a Magistrate makes no mention of the evidence, a revision is allowed [21 Cr. 140 (N)].

24. Duty of the Sessions Judge.—A Sessions Judge should record findings, whether of conviction or acquittal, on all the charges under which prisoners are committed for trial.

25. Findings on every head of charge.—To enter up findings on every head of charge is not only not illegal but is the most convenient course.

6 M, II, (ap) 47.

26. Accused entitled to an independent judgment.—An accused person is entitled to have an independent judgment of the trying Court, and such a judgment must be prepared in accordance with, and contain the particulars required by S 367 of the Criminal Procedure Code, otherwise it is no judgment at all. Where a second class Deputy Magistrate forwarding the proceedings under S. 319 Cr. P. O. to the Subdivisional Magistrate recorded his full opinion and the latter wrote "I have perused this judgment. I agree with the findings arrived at by the learned trying Magistrate and convict all the eleven accused persons for being members of an unlawful assembly with the common object of committing theft as stated in the charge". Held that upon the test laid down by S 367 Cr. (3) Judgment in Capital cases.

30. The rule laid down.—To justify the passing of a sentence of transportation for life in case of murder, the Judge should find that there are imposing the penalty of death but whether there are reasons for abstaining from doing so—1 L B 216 (F. B.)

What are not sufficient reasons for not passing the capital sentence.

31. (i) Woman quick with child.—Capital sentence should be passed on a conviction for murder even if it the accused be pregnant, although the execution of the sentence should be deferred till after delivery—15 W R 66 See W R (Gap)=1 Marsh 131. But See 3 W R 15

32. (2) Absence of premeditation.—In Bumma where knives are freely used on the slightest occasion, it would be unsafe to lay down as general rule that mere absence of premeditation or deliberate intent to kill is a good ground for abstaining from passing a capital sentence where a knife is used—1 L B 216 (F.B.)
33. (3) Not caught redhanded.—The fact that the accused was not caught while committing murder or while escaping, is no ground for not awarding a sentence of death—13 P R 1573
34. (4) Sex.—In a trial of a woman upon a charge of murdering a child for the sake of her ornament the Sessions Judge after convicting the prisoner passed the following sentence:—"In consequence of her sex sentence of death need not be passed. Nibbia will be transported for life."—Held, the Judge had stated no reason from or judicial point of view why a sentence of death should not have been passed.—(88) A N 134

What are sufficient reasons.—

39. Recommendation for mercy.—To refrain from passing or confirming a sentence of death on account of the criminal's youth is an act of pure mercy, the exercise of which is the prerogative of the Crown.—[1 L R 359] It is highly improper that a Sessions Judge should pass a sentence of death and at the same time in his reference to the High Court should recommend for mercy [M H O P 24 4. '60]
40. What is not sufficient reason for passing a capital sentence.—The fact that, except death, no punishment severer than that which the prisoner is undergoing at the time of the commission of the offence can be inflicted, is not of itself sufficient to justify the Court in condemning the convict to death.—19 W R 68.
41. Doubtful cases.—It is the duty of the Judge to consider whether there are extenuating circumstances, but when he has given his mind to the question and still feels pressed by reasonable doubt as to whether death is the proper penalty, the

43. Duty of Judge to pass capital sentence.—Judges are bound to pass a capital sentence in a case of murder when they believe the evidence, and they must not shrink from doing their duty

44. Cases under S. 303 I. P. C.—When a person under sentence of transportation for life on a conviction for murder, is found guilty of murder on a subsequent and different charge, the only sentence that can be passed on him under S 303 I. P. C is a sentence of death.—19 W R 45

Facetious comments which do not contribute to the disposal of the case and which are calculated to wound the feelings of persons who are not parties to proceedings should not find place in a judgment—12 Cr. 464 (L B.)

(5) The Rules Summarised.

50. The following particulars must be set out in every judgment:—

- (1) Name of the accused.—At the head of every written judgment and of the records of the heads of the charge to the jury, the names of all the accused persons should be set out, together with the numbers by which they may respectively be referred to by the Court in the course of the judgment or charge to the Jury.—Bomb II. III. CONTENTS OF JUDGMENTS IN TRIAL BY JURY AND BY ASSESSORS.

(1) By jury.

51. The proviso to S. 367.—The words, that the Court of Session shall record the heads of charge to the jury "must be construed reasonably and include such statement on the part of the Sessions Judge as will enable the Appellate Court to decide whether the evidence has been properly laid before the jury, or whether there has been any misdirection in the charge"—23 W. R. 32 See 10 B. R. 565 (193) A. N. 232 25 C. 776 (193) A. N. 272

52. Judgment need not be written in extenso.—Under S. 367, a Judge is not required to write out in extenso, the charge which he addresses to the jury. The term "heads of charge" implies that the Judge must faithfully record the lines upon which he addressed the Jury, both on the evidence and on the law, and the object of these heads of charge is to inform the High Court, should occasion arise of what direction he gave in law to the Jury and the nature of his summing up of the evidence not only for the prosecution but also for the defence.

53. When the heads of the charge should be written.—The heads of charge to the jury should be written by the Judge as soon as possible after its delivery and while the facts are still fresh in his mind. S. 367 Cr. P. C. does not make it obligatory that the charge should be written out before delivery.

30 C. 281 See Wilkins 116

(2) By assessors.

54. The summing up should not be incorporated in the judgment.—A Sessions Judge should not incorporate in and treat as part of his judgment his summing up of the case to the assessors, but if he does so it is not an illegality.—3 C. J. 55

55. Where the case is triable partly by jury and partly with the aid of assessors.—A reference to the heads of the charge to the jury is not sufficient compliance with the requirements of S. 367. The judgment should contain all the particulars specified in S. 367 Cr. P. C.—Rat 420

IV. CONTENTS OF JUDGMENTS IN APPEAL.

(1) The principles applicable to appellate judgments.

56. "It is continually overlooked by Courts of Appeal that S. 424 of the Criminal Procedure Code prescribes that the rules contained in Chapter XXVI as to the judgment of a Criminal Court

as may Appellate of the such pres cribes that a judgment shall, among other things, contain the point or points of determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for the decisions. Now the conviction in this case by the Court of first instance was both under Ss 379 and 143. For the purpose of an offence under S. 379, it is necessary that it should be proved that there was an intention to take dishonestly any moveable property out of the possession of the person aggrieved without that person's consent, and one of the points for determination, therefore, is whether there was that intention. Admittedly, there is no finding on that point in the judgment of the lower Appellate Court. This is not a mere technical objection, because one of the points urged on the part of the defence is that, though there may have been the moving of property, there was not the intention to take that property dishonestly out of the possession of any other person, in as much as, it is contended there was a bona fide claim of right, so that it is apparent that it was absolutely essential that that point should be contained in the judgment and that it should be decided"—Per Sir Lawrence Jenkins C. J. in 37 C. 194 See 21 Cr. 223 (F) 2 Pat. W. 49

(2) The Duty of the Appellate Court.

57. Duty of the Appellate Court.—The appellant is in simple justice entitled to have the evidence in the case against him duly weighed and examined, and it is the duty of the District Magistrate to whom taken for appeal, to

59. Judgment of Appellate Court not to be merely supplementary to the lower and

by

aid of the judgment of the trial Court. * * * The law requires an Appellate Court, to write a reasoned and considered judgment setting out the facts and points arising for determination and stating the reasons and grounds for its decision—20 Cr. 615 (Pat); 35 C. 138; 7 C. N. 30 9 C. N. xviii 2 Pat J 695-1 Pat W. 673 12 M. J. 335 See 14 A. 212 Cr. R. 7 of 9-7-02.

60. Where there several accused.—Where there are several accused it must appear on the face of the judgment that the case against each of the accused has been taken into consideration and reasons should be given, so far as may be necessary, to show that the Appellate Court has devoted judicial attention to the case of each of the accused—35 C. 138-22 C. 241; 20 C. N. 1296-16 Cr. 196 (N).

61. An appellate judgment should.—(1) contain sufficient materials enabling the High Court to form a conclusion as to the propriety of con-of the sentence which was passed upon each of the accused having regard to the nature of the offence with which each of the accused is charged. 20 C. N. 1296

62. Points of law must be discussed.—In a case of mischief, the intention of the alleged offender must be determined and whether he had acted in the exercise of a bonafide claim of right [2 A 101] In a case of criminal trespass, it is necessary that the Appellate Court should state the findings of fact on which the conclusions of law are based—[20 Mys. 148.]

63. Practice.—The Judge is bound to record a judgment on various points, giving his reasons therefor. The High Court has always insisted upon this practice to safeguard the interests of the accused. Rat 826; Rat 844; Rat 833 5 M. II. (appx) 12 9 C. N. xviii-22 C. 241.

64. Appeals from orders.—Where a Sessions Judge disposed of an application to revoke the sanction given by the Magistrate in the words, "I decline to interfere on revision, rejected,"—held—the order did not fulfil the requirements of law and that the Judge should have stated his reason (92) A. N. 60.

Note.—Judgment should be in strict conformity with S. 367 (~161 of 1872).—6 P. R. 1876.

66. Duty of Sessions Judges.—They should record their reasons for confirming, reversing or modifying the sentences or orders of Magistrates—5 M. II. (ap) 12; 9 C. N. xviii. See Rat 833.

(3) Rules of practice.

67. Form of Appellate judgment.—To say simply that a charge is proved by the evidence of witnesses does not satisfy the requirements of the section. Though it is not necessary for an Appellate Court, in confirming a conviction by the lower Court to set forth its reasons in full, yet it is desirable that it should do so, when the circumstances of the case necessarily required special notice.—8 B. II. 101; See W. R. (sp) 5; 21 C. N. 350; M. II. C. Pro. 12-11-78. Where the judgment though not a long and elaborate one, affords a clear indication that the Judge has duly considered the evidence the judgment is a proper one.—1 C. N. 169.

law to the proved facts. Where therefore the Judge himself says that there are elements of doubt with regard to the accused's guilt upon the charge of murder, a conviction in the alternative of offences under Ss 302 or 301 P. C. is not contemplated by law—11 P. R. 1913. See 11 P. R. 1887, 7 N. P. 137, 21 C. 955 (973)

84. When the power should be exercised.—It is only when the committing Magistrate and the Sessions Judge are satisfied that no reliable evidence is procurable in support of one or other of the charges, the Court should exercise the power of passing judgment in the alternative—12 W. R. 11.

85. In cases of perjury.—In a case under S 193 1 P. C. upon two contradictory statements, judgment in the alternative cannot be passed where the statements are not absolutely contradictory or where in one of them, the accused gives only hearsay evidence. Every presumption should be made in favour of reconciliation [see 18 B. 377 (F.B.)] But a conviction is legal under the Code

VI. SUMMARY DISMISSAL OF APPEALS (S. 421 CR. P. C.).

87. The order does not amount to a judgment.—An order summarily rejecting an appeal under S 421 does not amount to a judgment within the meaning of S 424 Cr. P. C. [i.e. Chap XXVI. does not apply]

6 C P 24.

88. Reasons however concise should be given for rejecting an appeal under S. 421 Cr. P. C.—38 C 307. 32 C 178. 6 C. P. 24. 13 N. 169. 8 A 514. 17 A 241 (F.B.) 19 A 506 (F.B.) 9 P. R. 1876. Bat Sec 21 C 92 9 C. N. 623 8 N 84 (45).

Note.—It is advisable that the Appellate Court should in summarily dismissing an appeal, give reasons for rejecting it, in view of the possibility of the order being challenged by an application for revision

[36 A 196].

89. S. 367 does not apply.—An appellate Court, in rejecting an appeal under S. 421 Cr. P. C. is not obliged to give a judgment containing the particulars enumerated in S. 367 nor to give reasons for its decision.

VII. JUDGMENT ON EVIDENCE RECORDED BY PREDECESSOR.

90. Transfer before the finding is recorded.—Until the finding is recorded the trial incomplete. If the presidency officer is removed at their stage, his succession cannot pass judgment upon consideration of the evidence recorded by him—4 M. H. (np) 42.

91. Discretion of the successor.—See 367 requires the dating and signing to be in open Court at the time of pronouncement. It is in the discretion of a Magistrate to adopt and deliver a judgment written and signed by his predecessor-in-office, but not pronounced or to grant a de novo trial under S 350 Cr. P. C.

40 M 108 See 18 M J. 197.

92. Effect of going on leave before pronouncement.—Judgment purporting to have been written and signed by a Magistrate who had proceeded on leave and had ceased to exercise jurisdiction is no judgment at all—21 C. N. 755.

93. Scope of S. 367.—Under S 367 it is not necessary that the presiding officer of the Court, who wrote the judgment, should be the same person as the presiding officer who is required to date, sign and pronounce it in open Court—18 M. J. 197.

VIII. JUDGMENT MUST BE WRITTEN BY THE COURT.

94. The practice.—The judgment must be written by the Court itself. It will not do if it is written by a clerk and signed by the Court.—Rat 545. O S 192 11 A. 212

97. Judgment in summary trials.—In a summary trial, under the provisions of Ch XVIII of the Code, the record in non appealable cases and the judgments in appealable cases must be written by the Magistrate. A Magistrate in such cases is not authorised to depute that duty to a clerk.—6 M. 396

98. The signature.—(a) Judgment should be signed and not merely initialled.—[O S 192] The affixing of a signature with a stamp would be more than an irregularity. [6 M. 396; See Williams 119]

(b) The dating and signing must be in open Court [3 L. W. 496. 18 M J. 197] The signature must be appended at the time of pronouncing it. It is the signing of the judgment which deprives the Court of the power to act or review it under S 369 infra. [Rat 129]

99. The duty cannot be delegated.—The presiding officer shall not delegate to any clerk his duty of stating and signing the same. Where a Sessions Judge, after holding trial in a district within his Sessions Division went to his headquarters in another district and sent his judgment in the case to the Magistrate of the District in which the trial had taken place to be delivered by the latter and the latter delivered it accordingly. Held that the trial had never been legally complete and must be set aside.—(59) A N 181

IX. EFFECT OF NON-COMPLIANCE WITH THE PROVISIONS OF S. 367 AND S. 424.

100. Mere Non-Compliance will not invalidate.—The mere fact that a judgment does not comply with all the requirements of S. 367 will not invalidate it.—23 C 373 6 B H 55.

[Note.—A conviction on a trial regularly held will not be set aside merely because the Magistrate has been unavoidably prevented from recording a judgment in accordance with the requirements of this section [2 Weir 475].

101. The High Court—will set aside the appellate judgment and direct the appellate Court to rehear the appeal when the judgment is defective in this, that the Court by failing to deal fully with the evidence by the light of the established rules applying to criminal cases, has placed the appellant in jeopardy.—Rat 772

102. Defective judgments. When in the judgment of the appellate Court no facts are stated nor reasons are given for the conclusions arrived at by the appellate Court in upholding the conviction, the deficiency in the judgment cannot be made up by having recourse to the judgment of the Magistrate who convicted the accused. The appeal must be retried again.—7 C N 30 See 35 C 138 13 Cr 15 (Ajmer)

108. The stage at which an alteration may be made.—If before judgment had been recorded the attention of the Court has been called to any error or mistake in the Judgment pronounced, the Court has the power of correcting such error or mistake [Rat 659]. Where an order by a Judge of the High Court, summarily dismissing a petition in the form of an appeal from a person who was confined in jail owing to failure to furnish security for good behaviour, has not been sealed, there is nothing to preclude the Judge from entertaining a petition for a review of the order [27 A 92]

109. Interpolations.—No Magistrate can add to or alter the judgment in any case after it has been signed and published. It is specially irregular when made in the absence of the accused and with out notice to him.—10 C N 1062 (83) A N 16 of acquittal and directed the appeal to be reheard. 5 C J 152 See P P R 1570

101. Duty of the Appellate Court.—Where in an appeal to the Court of Session, the Judge finds that the Magistrate has not written a judgment in conformity with the provisions of S. 367 Cr P C, the correct procedure is to accept the appeal, and to remand the case for hearing de novo S. 421 of the Code does not authorise the retention of an appeal on the file of the Sessions Judge when asking for a judgment which the Magistrate has failed to record.—21 Cr 52 (M)

105. Case cannot be remanded for a proper judgment.—Although the High Court, in revision, may direct a rehearing for insufficiency of judgment, an Appellate Court is not competent to remand a case because the Court of first instance has not recorded a proper judgment. Its duty is to go into the whole facts fully and dispose of the case on the merits.—32 C 1069

106. High Court will not interfere where there has been unconscionable delay.—Where a Sessions Judge rejected the appeal summarily in the terms "appeal rejected" but the application for revision was put in nine months after—held—that the Court would decline to interfere as the application was made after great delay.—8 A 514

107. Omission to state under which of the two sections the offence falls.—An omission to state in a judgment in express terms under which of two sections the offences fell, would amount, at the most, to an irregularity and would not vitiate the judgment.—2 Weir 110

110. Addition of a note—to the Judgment delivered in a criminal case by which the Judge tries to throw doubts on the conclusion at which he arrived on the evidence, amounts to a most unwarrantable proceeding.—Per Stuart J.—2 A 33.

111. A Sessions Judge—has no power under S. 464 (S. 369) to alter or set aside a conviction and sentence once made and signed by him.—23 W R 49 Rat 604

112. Supply of an omission.—When a Sessions Judge has annulled a conviction in appeal but omitted to order a new trial, he is competent to add a direction to this effect afterwards.—3 M 48

113. Order under S. 379, Cr. P. C.—is not a part of the judgment and may therefore be made after the judgment has been signed

Cr R 45 of '88

114. When alteration is not fatal.—The mere fact of an addition being made to a judgment after it has been signed and delivered, where such addition does not materially prejudice the accused and has not occasioned a failure of justice, does not vitiate the whole judgment or justify an order for new trial—(95) A. N. 11

114A. S. 369 should be read as controlled by S. 437 Cr. P. C.—24 B. 102.

114B. Summary disposal of appeal—is a final order within the meaning of S. 369 and cannot be reviewed—4 B. 101

115. When a Subordinate Magistrate finds that he has passed an illegal sentence—he cannot alter his judgment. His proper course is to submit the record to the District Magistrate for action under S. 435 Cr. P. C. [2 L. B. 43; 16 O. C. 192; 23 W. R. 49; See Rat 137; 1 B. H. 3. Con 28 C. 828, Weir (3rd Ed.) 993] He ought to direct the jailor to suspend the execution of the sentence and merely keep the prisoner in detention which in no case should exceed the term of the imprisonment awarded pending a reference to the High Court—Rat 137; 1 B. H. 3.

(2) Review by High Court and subordinate Court.

115A. Review by the High Court.—The words "other than a High Court in S. 369" do not give to a Division Bench of the High Court power to review its judgment in Criminal appeal. The remedy against any error in an order passed in an appeal by a Divisional Bench is afforded by petition to the Government, "the authority with whom rest Discretion either of executing the law or commuting the sentence"—Rat 791; 458 7 A. 672 14 C. 42 (F.B.), 46 C. 60 5 W. R. 61 (F.B.). 38 A. 134 1 P. R. 1909; 20 Cr. 447 (Pat)

Note.—where a case is disposed of merely for default of appearance or where an order is passed to the prejudice of an accused person and by mistake or inadvertence no opportunity has been given to him to be heard in his defence, the order of the High Court in such a case may be reviewed—46 C. 60 10 C. I. 80.

116. Review by Magistrate.—The Code of Criminal Procedure does not authorise a Magistrate to review the final order made by him in a proceeding under S. 489 Cr. P. C., as the principle enunciated in S. 369 Cr. P. C. applies to judgments passed in a proceeding under S. 489 Cr. P. C.—21 C. N. 314. 35 C. 350. 16 Cr. 581 (M); 22 B. 919; (O) U. B. 35.

117. Review by Sessions Judge.—A Sessions Judge cannot in view of S. 369 Cr. P. C. review his own order. An order reviewing his judgment made by a Sessions Judge is illegal—25 P. R. 1916; See A. P. R. 1909; 35 C. 350. 22 B. 919 16 Cr. 581 (M); 38 A. 134 16 O. C. 192.

118. When a District Magistrate may set aside his own order.—A District Magistrate who has ordered the dismissal of a criminal appeal, merely by reason of the non appearance of the appellant, is competent to set aside such order and thereafter to hear and decide the appeal according to law and S. 369 is no bar—5 N. 78; 7 M. H. (Appx) xxv. See 19 C. 60; 10 C. J. 80; 24 C. 102; 7 C. N. vii.

119. District Magistrate cannot review his order in revision.—Where a District Magistrate has already dealt with a case in revision and decided that there was no cause for interfering with the order of discharge of the accused, he cannot subsequently order further enquiry under S. 437 Cr. P. C. such an order is an order reviewing the earlier one and is prohibited by S. 369 of the Code—5 Bur. T. 37; (33-94) U. B. 35; See 4 C. N. 46.

120. The High Court.—A Division Bench of the High Court cannot review an order which they have already made, as a Court of Revision, under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—10 B. 176 (F. B.). 7 A. 672; See 38 A. 134; (O) U. B. 35 (P. C.)

121. Sessions Judge cannot review order under S. 195 Cr. P. C.—An application to a Sessions Judge to set aside a sanction granted under S. 195 Cr. P. C. in a criminal proceeding in revision and not by way of appeal. His order thereon being final, he has no power to review or revise it—23 B. 50 See also 15 A. 61

122. Miscellaneous proceeding.—Orders under S. 116 Cr. P. C. cannot be reviewed by the same Court, clerical errors may be corrected under S. 369 of the Code—[19 Cr. 225 (Pat); See 16 O. C. 192 See 35 C. 350; S. C. 580.] A Magistrate having once refused a sanction cannot grant it—[10 M. T. 389]

122A. Omission to proceed under S. 75 I. P. C. cannot be remedied after passing with S. 319, which was not proceeded with until after the sentence in respect of the offence under S. 379 had been passed. Held that having regard to the provisions of S. 369 Cr. P. C. the Judge had no power to proceed with the trial of the charge under S. 75 I. P. C. and enhance the punishment after having once pronounced his sentence—42 B. 202

125. Judgment obtained by fraud or trick.—The accused obtained his acquittal under S. 237 supra by having the complainant wrongfully arrested and detained on a false charge, thus preventing him from appearing when the case was

139. Ante-dating is illegal.—A Sentence follows and does not precede a conviction. Therefore antedating a sentence is illegal. It is not competent to a Magistrate to confine the sentence of imprisonment imposed by him to the days the accused has been in custody during trial and to release him at once.—Rat 892

140. Sentence a necessary part of a judgment of conviction.—Every conviction must be followed by a sentence however light it may be. Even a single day's imprisonment must be passed to legally complete the record.—(84) A. V. 219

141. Courts of limited jurisdiction.—Every conviction by a Court of limited jurisdiction ought to contain a statement of its legal jurisdiction with itself. Where therefore a Magistrate convicted an accused under S. 41 of the Bombay Akbari Act for being in possession of more than a gallon of country liquor without a permit or pass from penal and no authority had been cited in support of it.—Rat 310.

142. Immediate discharge of prisoner on acquittal.—A prisoner is entitled to be discharged from custody immediately on the judgment there further

143. Information on conviction of military pensioners.—When a Military pensioner is convicted and sentenced to imprisonment in a Criminal Court, the facts of the case should be reported, without delay to the Pension Paymaster of the circle to which the pensioner belongs. [Bomb H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 39. See also Panj. Cir. p. 327] When any person serving under the Government of Bombay in the Military Department has been convicted in a Criminal Court, such Court shall inform the officer commanding the regiment or corps to which the convict belongs.—B. H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 38; See Panj. Cir. p. 24; Wilkins 139

144. Delay.—Delay in delivering judgments in cases is opposed to the principles of law. 5 C P. 24

145. The chief Court.—can in revision set aside a defective judgment. 6 P. R. 1670.

146. When S. 537 does not cure defect.—S. 537 of the Code does not cure the defects in a judgment which was at variance with the directions given by law and materially prejudiced the appellant at the trial of the appeal.—10 A. J. 435.

147. Conclusions inconsistent with the findings.—Where the judgment shows that the Judge has come to several conclusions inconsistent with his final finding that the accused was guilty held—the judgment was bad in law and must be vacated.—13 Cr. 595 (C).

(4) Expunging Remarks.

148. High Courts power of expunging.—The High Court has power to order that irrelevant matter in the judgment of a lower Court should be expunged. 5 Bur T. 20

Note.—In 157 P. L. 1978 Clarke C. J. and Chatterji J. directed the words "I am of opinion that both the accused have deliberately perjured themselves" to be expunged from the judgment of the Magistrate discharging the accused].

149. A Judge may himself expunge remarks. It is open to a Judge to reconsider and expunge damaging observations regarding a witness in a criminal case who had at the trial no chance of defending himself. This does not amount to the reviewing of a criminal judgment as there is no question of reconsidering the guilt of the accused.—2 P. W. 1910.

371. (1) On the application of the accused a copy of the judgment, or when he so desires, a Copy of judgment, etc., to be given translation in his own language, if practicable, or in the language to accused on application. of the Court shall be given to him without delay. Such copy shall, in any case other than a summons-case, be given free of cost

(2) In trials by jury in a Court of Session, a copy of the heads of the charge to the jury shall on the application of the accused, be given to him without delay and free of cost

(3) When the accused is sentenced to death by a Session Judge, such Judge shall further Case of person sentenced to death inform him of the period within which, if he wishes to appeal, his appeal should be preferred

Notes.

1. Limitation.—Under Art 159, Sch. II of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877) and Act IX of 1908 an appeal against a sentence of death must be filed within 7 days from the date of sentence

[Note.—In computing the period of limitation of appeal the time spent in obtaining copies must be excluded under S. 12 of the Limitation Act]

2. The Duty of the Court as laid down in subs (3).—In all cases in which a person is sentenced to death, the Sessions Judge must explain to the convict that he must file his appeal in the Sessions Court within seven days and the Judge must record whether the convict desires to appeal and that the convict was informed that his appeal must be made within seven days.—See All R and O p. 42 (N. B. P. G. 1873 p. 101)

3. The District Magistrate to telegraph to Government pleader if prisoner retains counsel.—See Mad. Not. 97, 84 p. 73

4. Remission of Court-fee.—In the exercise of powers conferred by S. 35 of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870), the Governor General in Council is pleased to remit the Court-fee on a copy or translation of judgment in a case other than a summons case and a copy of the heads of the charge to the jury when the copy of the translation is given under this section also a copy of translation of a judgment in a summons case when the accused is in jail (Gaz. of Ind. Not. No. 16521 dated 10/9/80) (Gaz. of Ind. 1880 pt. I p. 506)

5. When an advocate would be entitled to a copy.—An advocate against whom remarks have been made by Court imputing to him misconduct should have furnished to him a copy of the written judgment containing those remarks, in order that he may place his conduct before the particular Court in the light most favourable to himself.—[G. B. R. 510] Prosecutors in Presidency Magistrate Courts whose charges are dismissed are entitled under S. 170 of the Presidency Magistrate's Act to obtain copies of the orders made by and of the depositions taken before the Magistrate.—S. O. 160

372. The original judgment shall be filed with the record of proceedings, and, where the original judgment when to be translated is recorded in a different language from that of the Court and the accused so requires, a translation thereof into the language of the Court shall be added to such record

373 In Cases tried by the Court of Session, the Court shall forward a copy of its finding and sentence (if any) to the District Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the trial was held

Notes.

Rules under S. 373.

1. Bengal.—Sessions Judges are directed to give every facility to Magistrates and District Superintendents of Police for inspecting the records of cases in their Courts and for the preparation of copies by clerks sent by the District Magistrate—care being taken that the records be not removed from the Judge's office.—C. H. C. C. No. 5 of 21/9/80.

6. Rules regarding copies.—In order to aid the Appellate Courts in determining whether appeals are time barred by limitation every Criminal Court subordinate to the High Court shall cause to be endorsed the following particulars on every copy of a judgment, order or charge to a jury furnished under the provisions of Ss. 371 and 515 Cr. P. C. (1) The date on which the copy was applied for, (2) the date on which it was ready for delivery, and (3) the date on which it was delivered. To prevent unauthorised alterations being made, the dates should be written in letters in distinct handwriting, and each endorsement should be signed by some responsible officer of the Court on the date to which it refers.—Bomb. H. C. Cr. C. p. 72 Wilkins 138

7. Appeal cannot be rejected because copy of judgment is not stamped.—A Magistrate of the first class rejected the appeal before him because the copy of the judgment appealed from was not, in his opinion "stamped as required by law," the High Court reversed the order as by cl (3) of the Gaz. Not. no 532 of 26-1-86 [Bombay Govt. Gaz. 1886 p. 81] The Court-fee is remitted on the copy of the judgment in a warrant case, when given under this section.—Rat 361

8. Application for copy.—Need not be stamped See Gaz. of India 1873 p. 530 1889 p. 549.

2. Bombay.—In Bombay, the Court of Sessions should at the conclusion of every trial of prisoners committed thereto, communicate the result thereof to the committing authority for his information Bomb. Gaz. 1870 pp. 471, 475

3. Madras.—In Madras, the Magistrate should communicate the finding and sentence to the Superintendent of Police.—M. H. C. Pro 19/6/86

CHAPTER XXVII.

OF THE SUBMISSION OF SENTENCES FOR CONFIRMATION.

374. When the Court of Session passes sentence of death, the proceedings shall be submitted to the High Court and the sentence shall not be executed unless it is confirmed by the High Court.

375. (1) If when such proceedings are submitted the High Court thinks that a further inquiry should be made into, or additional evidence taken upon, any point bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the convicted person it may make such inquiry or take such evidence itself, or direct it to be made or taken by the Court of Session.

(2) Such inquiry shall not be made nor shall such evidence be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors and, unless the High Court otherwise directs, the presence of the convicted person may be dispensed with when the same is made or taken.

(3) When the inquiry and the evidence (if any) are not made and taken by the High Court the result of such enquiry and the evidence shall be certified to such Court.

Power of High Court to confirm sentence or annul conviction

376. In any case submitted under section 374, whether tried with the aid of assessors or by jury, the High Court—

(a) may confirm the sentence, or pass any other sentence warranted by law, or

(b) may annul the conviction and convict the accused of any offence of which the Sessions Court might have convicted him, or order a new trial on the same or an amended charge, or

(c) may acquit the accused person

Provided that no order of confirmation shall be made under this section until the period allowed for preferring an appeal has expired, or, if an appeal is presented within such period until appeal is disposed of

Notes.

- 1. Scope of Ss. 374 to 376.—The High Court, as a Court of Reference, can only deal with cases in which a sentence of death has been passed.—5 N. P. 130.
- 2. Practice of the Bombay High Court.—“It appears to be the practice of the Bombay High Court that where a prisoner has been sentenced to death, even though the conviction was had on the unanimous verdict of a Jury, the whole case is re-opened before the High Court both on matters of fact as well as on matters of law.”—Per Bicholas J. in 17 B. R. 1072 Rat 710
- 3. Practice in undefended capital case.—There has been a practice long established and well recognised that when an accused person appears before a Judge on a capital charge, the Judge is accustomed to require a member of the Bar who practices before him to undertake the defence of the accused. The Judge should either appoint or request any member of the profession to conduct the defence.—14 C. N. 556
- 4. Power of Remand.—The High Court has power under § 376 (b) to order a new trial on the same or an amended charge [19 C. N. 556. See 6 C. N. 921]
- 5. Police Diaries cannot be looked into by the Court.—with a view to the testimony of the witnesses on which the trial Judge has properly dwelt, to test that testimony still further by reading the earlier statements of those witnesses made to the police and entered in the police diary, in other words to treat as evidence what could be used at all events for the purpose of discrediting those witnesses 14 C. 879 (P. C.)—56 L. J. P. C. 110
- 6. Power to take further evidence.—Where during the course of a trial for murder the accused person applies to call certain further material evidence bearing on the line of the defence, there another Judge or, if the Chief Justice or the Judicial Commissioner so direct, before three other Judges, and the judgment or order shall follow the opinion of the majority of Judges so re-hearing such case."

Notes.

1. Propriety of reference to the third Judge.—In (86) A. N. 275 Mahmood J. discusses the propriety of referring to a third Judge when there is a difference of opinion between two Judges. His views have been criticised by Edgar C. J. in (87) A. N. 123, who says that it is the duty of the third Judge to express and act upon the opinion at which he has himself definitely arrived and not necessarily to hold that the the opinion of the one in favour of an acquittal should prevail

2. Sentence committed.—In 17 C. N. 1213 Carnduff J. as the third Judge, did not pass the capital sentence because (1) one of the Judges had expressed himself as dissatisfied with the evidence and (2) the appellants had, through no fault of theirs had the capital sentences hanging over their heads for nearly six months

379. In cases submitted by the Court of Session to the High Court for the confirmation of a sentence of death, the proper officer of the High Court shall, without delay, after the order of confirmation or other order has been made by the High Court, send a copy of the order under the seal of the High Court and attested with his official signature, to the Court of Session.

380. Where proceedings are submitted to a Magistrate of the first class or a Sub-divisional Magistrate as provided by section 562, such Magistrate may thereupon pass such sentence or make such order as he might have passed or made if the case had originally been heard by him, and, if he thinks further inquiry or additional evidence on any point to be necessary, he may make such inquiry or take such evidence himself or direct such enquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

Note.

1. Power to acquit.—A Magistrate to whom proceedings are submitted under S 562 Cr. P. C., has authority, if on perusing the evidence he comes to the conclusion that the accused is not guilty to acquit him. [(15) 2 U. B. 55. See 1 L. B. 277].

Note.—Quære—"Whether a Magistrate to whom case is submitted under S 350 can pass any order other than a sentence or an order for release on probation?" 1 L. B. 277.

3. Case cannot be sent back to the referring Magistrate.—A second class Magistrate found the accused guilty of an offence under S 325 I. P. C. and he sent the record and the accused to the District Magistrate under S. 562 Cr. P. C. The District Magistrate sent the case back to the second class Magistrate pointing out that S. 562 was inapplicable. Held, the District

Magistrates order was illegal inasmuch as S 380 Cr. P. C. enacts that such Magistrate may pass such sentence or order as he might have passed or made, if the case had originally been heard by him, and he could not have sent the case to the second class Magistrate for the purpose of sentence if he had originally heard it.—4 L. B. 150 [1 L. B. 124 F.]

4. Appeal from the order passed under this section.—"It seems to me to be clear under the provisions of S 380 that when a case is submitted to a Magistrate of the first class, or a subdivisional Magistrate as provided by S. 562, * * that for the purposes of appeal, ultimately the conviction recorded is a conviction by the first class Magistrate or Subdivisional Magistrate * * The appeal therefore lies under S 408 Cr. P. C. to the Court of Session."—Pri. Shah J. in 17 B. R. 895

CHAPTER XXVIII

OF EXECUTION.

381. When a sentence of death passed by a Court of Session is submitted to the High Court for confirmation, such Court of Session shall, on receiving the order of confirmation or other order of the High Court thereon, cause such order to be carried into effect by issuing a warrant or taking such other steps as may be necessary.

Notes.

- 1. The warrant.—The warrant should be addressed to the officer in charge of the jail. [M H Pro 13-3-68] For the form of warrant—See S. 4, V No 35 infra and on commutation No 36. Order must be communicated within 24 hours of receipt—Sessions Judges are directed to make arrangements for communicating every order of confirmation, reversal or commutation of sentence of death to the Superintendent of Jail wherein the prisoner is confined within 24 hours of the receipt of the order—Mad Rules of Practice S 429—[Civ dated 16-3-83]
- 2. Time within which the sentence is to be executed.—In Madras [see G O dated 23-5-73] the sentence is not to be executed until the 15th day after receipt of the warrant from the Court of sessions after confirmation
- 3. Cases of Infanticide. In all cases in which women are convicted of the murder of their infant children, a reference should be made through the High Court to the Government with an expression of his opinion by the Sessions Judge as to the propriety or otherwise of reducing the sentence.—Mad G O No 104 dated 13-2-84

382. If a woman sentenced to death is found to be pregnant, the High Court shall order the execution of the sentence to be postponed, and may, if it thinks fit, commute the sentence to transportation for life.

Notes.

- 1. Certificate of pregnancy.—The pregnancy of the prisoner should be certified by a Civil Surgeon Bomb Gaz 1879 p 471 See Sch V form No 36 for form of warrant after commutation of sentence
- 2. The High Court the only tribunal empowered to stay execution.—The High Court is the only judicial tribunal in which the law has vested the power of postponing the execution of sentence of death passed and confirmed on a woman found pregnant—2 Weir 441
- 3. The English practice.—If the jury find the prisoner quick with child, the Court stays the execution of the capital sentence until the prisoner is delivered of a child or it is no longer possible that she should be so delivered—See Halsbury Vol IX p 375 Archbold p 212 It is for the prisoner to plead pregnancy and unless she so pleads, a jury of twelve matrons need not necessarily be impanelled—R v Hunt, 2 Cox 261.

383. Where the accused is sentenced to transportation or imprisonment in cases other than those provided for by section 381 the Court passing the sentence shall forthwith forward a warrant to the jail in which he is, or is to be confined and unless the accused is already confined in such jail shall forward him to such jail, with the warrant

Notes.

- 1. Application of S. 383 read with S. 541 Cr. P. C.—A Magistrate has no power to sentence the accused to suffer imprisonment in a police lock up See 353 directs that an accused sentenced to imprisonment shall be forwarded to a Jail with a warrant * A Magistrate should not mention the place of confinement in his order and the warrant should be addressed to the Superintendent of the District Jail or other jail to which persons sentenced in the District are ordinarily committed—7 L B 62
- 2. Meaning of the term "Jail"—A Jail is a prison within the meaning of the Prisons Act 1894 and the Prisoners Act 1900, but the terms "prison and Jail" do not include any place for the confinement of prisoners who are exclusively in the custody of the Police—See S-3 (1) Prison's Act—7 L B 62.

3. Admitting to bail pending appeal.—Where after sentencing two prisoners to separate terms of imprisonment the Magistrate admitted them to bail so that they may have the means of appealing, such admission to bail did not make the sentence one to commence at a future date, and therefore illegal—7 C L 393 But See 12 W R 47

4. Commencement of the period of sentence.—A sentence of imprisonment ought to commence from the time that the sentence is passed, unless there is some lawful reason for ordering it to commence at a future period—[12 W R 47] The accused after he had been in custody for a week was convicted of petty theft and sentenced to undergo the imprisonment he has already suffered. Held, there is nothing in the Crim. Pro. Code to authorise a magistrate to anti-date the commencement of a sentence. The proper course would be to sentence the accused to a day's imprisonment—[4 L B 132 9 P W 1907]

5. Period of imprisonment how to be calculated.—In calculating sentences of imprisonment the day upon which the sentence is passed and the day of release ought to be included and considered as days of imprisonment, for example, a man sentenced on the 1st January to one month's imprisonment should be released on the 31st January, not on the 1st February—Mad G O No 2411 dated 22 11 '81.

6. In case of soldiers.—In calculating their (soldiers') sentences of imprisonment, the rule laid down in para 776 (Queens Regulations) is that the day on which the sentence is signed and the day of release shall both be included.  This rule is founded on the principle of English law, which omits to take notice of fractions of days, and considers a year completed on the last day of the year. A soldier who is sentenced to imprisonment for one year on the 1st January, is entitled to be released on the 31st December, and

9. (c) Particulars to be endorsed.—Every Criminal Court passing a sentence of imprisonment to transportation shall endorse, in the language in which the warrant is written the following particulars, viz. the age, caste, place of residence, and the plea of the convict as also the opinion of the assessors, if any. If any previous conviction has been proved, the warrant should also contain on its back the name of the offence, the sentence, the date of the sentence and the name and designation of the authority who tried the accused.—B H C. Cr. Cir. p 38.

10. (d) The date of termination to be mentioned.—To obviate all mistakes in calculation, the date of termination of all terms of imprisonment should be distinctly impressed on the warrant.—C. H C. Cr. No 3 of 19 12 '76

11. (e) Date of commencement to be noted when.—If imprisonment is to take effect after a previous sentence, the date of the commencement of the imprisonment should be stated—C H C Cr. Cir. No 3 of 19 12 '76.

12. Where a woman is sentenced to transportation for life.—In every case in which a sentence of transportation for life is passed on a woman for the murder of her infant and the sentence is not appealed against, the file of the case shall, after the expiration of the period allowed for appeal, be forwarded to the Chief Court for submission to Government with a view to the consideration of the question whether any commutation or reduction of sentence should be allowed—Page 5 Cr. Cir. No 4, P. 210.

13. Power of High Court acting under S. 301 Cr. P. Code.—The jurisdiction, which the High Court exercises in hearing a case submitted to it under S 307 Cr. P. C., is not original jurisdiction in any sense, the hearing not having any of the essentials of a original trial.

Therefore it has power, on conviction and sentence, to send the accused to a jail outside the Presidency town.—29 C 286 (F B)

14. Indefinite period of imprisonment illegal.—An order directing an accused "to be imprisoned until he gives security" is bad. A definite period of such imprisonment not exceeding one year should be fixed in the order.—8 C 614 para 211—Warrant for levy of fine.

The Warrant.

7. (a) Form—See Sch V. Form 29

8. (b) Signature—The signature of a Magistrate on a warrant should not be affixed by a stamp—6 M. 396.

384 Every warrant for the execution of a sentence of imprisonment shall be directed to the Direction of warrant for execution, officer in charge of the jail, or other place in which the prisoner is, or is to be, confined.

Warrant with whom to be lodged,

385. When the prisoner is to be confined in a jail, the warrant shall be lodged with the jailor.

386 Whenever an offender is sentenced to pay a fine, the Court passing the sentence may, in its direction, issue a warrant for the levy of the amount by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender, although the sentence directs that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall be imprisoned.

Notes.

I. SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

(1) Meaning of terms.

1. Meaning of "moveable property."—S. 386 provides for the levy of a fine by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender and the word "distress" is ordinarily used with reference to tangible property. It may include negotiable instruments, bonds or title deeds but we think ordinarily it would not include mere debts or choses in action. It is difficult to say that the word "distress" is used in Ss. 140 and 514 Cr. P. C. with reference to other than tangible moveable property—(17) M. N. 105.
2. Meaning of 'Court.'—The term 'Court' is not restricted to any particular individual who held office. The successor of a Sessions Judge may levy a fine imposed by his predecessor—(9) W. E. 50.

(2) Properties liable and not liable to distraint.

3. General Remarks.—S. 386 prescribes that a fine, if not paid may be realised by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender but is silent in respect of any other mode of recovering the fine. The power to award imprisonment in default of payment of a fine, in the case of an offence, is contained in S. 64 I. P. C.—21 C. 979 (985).
4. (1) Surplus sale-proceeds.—Remaining in the hand of a mortgagee for payment to the mortgagor is not a debt but money held in trust by the mortgagee for the mortgagor (notwithstanding that it had been mixed up with the mortgagee's private money) and is liable to distraint under S. 386 Cr. P. C.—40 M. 767. See 25 M. 457.
5. (2) Growing Crops.—Growing crops are not moveable property for the purpose of S. 386 Cr. P. C.—(76) 2 Weir 444.
6. (3) Agricultural implements.—Although agricultural implements are not exempt from distress and sale in realisation of a fine, the measure is one which would be resorted to with discretion otherwise it may entail severe hardship in cases which do not require such severity—Punjab Civ. Chap. II p. 209.

7. (4) Property situate in Native State.—A fine adjudged by a British Indian Court, can, not be levied in a Native State as the provisions of the Code are applicable only to procedure within British India—(79) 2 Weir 444.
8. (5) Immoveable property.—Fine cannot be realised by attachment and sale of immoveable property—See (12) 23 C. 478. 15 B. II (C.C.) 63.
9. (6) Joint family property.—When a person bound under the Penal Code dies before the realisation of fine, the fine can be realised by attachment and sale of moveable property belonging solely to the deceased. It cannot be realised by attachment and sale of joint moveable property. The only remedy in such a case is by a suit. [20 C. 478.] S. 307 (S. 386) directs that the warrant for the levy of the fine shall authorise the seizure and sale of any moveable property belonging to the offender. The section therefore is not applicable to mere rights and interests or shares in joint moveable—(76) 2 Weir 442. (100) 2 Weir 443. See 25 P. R. 1915.]

[Note]—In (100) 2 Weir 443 the property belonged to an Itaya antana family.]

(3) Application of the section.

10. (1) Sec. 386, applies to orders of compensation under S. 545 Cr. P. C.—A fine imposed by the Court does not cease to be a Crown debt merely because there is a direction in the judgment imposing it under S. 545 Cr. P. C. to the effect that on realisation it should be paid over to a private party. [In re Arthur Hearens Smith (1876) 2 Ex. D. 47. 25 M. 457. Ed.]—40 M. 767. 5 B. II. 21. 12 C. 415 Dist.]
11. (2) Fines under special Acts.—The section applies to (1) Fines imposed under (1) the Andaman and Nicobar Islands Regulations III. of 1876

- (See Sec 35 as amended by Reg I of 1881) (3) the Arak in Hill Districts Law Regulation IX of 1874. See S 18 of the Regulation and S 3 (1) (3) under the Police Act V of 1861. S 37.
12. (3) Compensation (1) under S. 250 Cr. P. C.—[See 5 C N 213 5 C N 214 28 C. 231 18 Cr 1014 (C) 28 C 164. 26 M. 127. 3 L B 32] (2) under the Cattle Trespass Act [19 M 238].
13. (4) Excess charge and fare under S. 113 of the Railway Act (IX of 1880).—S 113 of the Railway Act directs that on failure to pay on demand excess charge and fare, when due, the amount shall, on application be recovered by a Magistrate as if it were a fine. The excess charge and fare referred to in S 113 is not fine, though it may be recovered as such. A Magistrate is not authorised to impose imprisonment in default of payment of the excess charge and fare—20 M. 385

14. (5) Court and process-fees.—May be recovered from the accused but no imprisonment can be awarded in default—1 Bur S. 595.
15. [Note.—Ss 63 to 73 I P. C. and the provisions of the Cr. P. Code for the time being in force in relation to the issue and the execution of warrants for the levy of fines shall apply to all fines imposed under any Act, Regulation Rule or By-law unless the Act, Regulation, Rule or By-law contains an express provision to the contrary. S. 25, General Clauses Act [X of 1897] as to Rulings under the Code of 1861—See Cr R 15-1-70: 17 W R 7: S B L (appx) 47.

II. PROCEDURE.

(1) The distress warrant.

16. To whom to be addressed.—It should be directed to a police officer and should fix a time for the sale and return of the warrant—Mad Police Manual I p 115, Wilkins 118
17. Form of the warrant.—See Sch V Form No. 37
18. Warrant must be signed.—The impression of a stamp bearing the officer's name is insufficient and illegal—See Wilkins 125 6 M 396 Punj Cir p 253
19. Attaching officer.—should have the warrant at the time of attachment—27 A 259 (259)

(2) Procedure.

20. Fine should be immediately levied.—There should be no delay in the levy of a fine. Directly on passing a sentence, (which includes a fine leviable by distress), a Magistrate should issue the warrant of distress [22 C 139]. A Magistrate cannot abstain from levying any portion of the fine imposed on the prisoner till the period of appeal shall have expired or until the orders of the High Court are received on appeal preferred by the accused. [2 W R (Cr Let) 13]. Superior Court has no power to order a lower Court to abstain from issuing the warrant [ibid].
21. Imprisonment and issue of distress of warrant made be ordered simultaneously.—See 8 B L (appx) 47 (49). 3 W. R. 61
22. The effect of serving out imprisonment in default of fine.—An offender who has undergone the full term of imprisonment to which he has been sentenced, in default of payment of fine is still liable to have the fine levied by distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to him which may be found within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the district [3 W. R. 61 (62) See Rat 91: 207]
23. The Discretion of the Court.—The law is merely permissive and not imperative. When Courts have been made to realise a fine by distress and sale, and when the offender has undergone the imprisonment awarded in default of

- payment of fine, the Court should exercise its discretion according to the circumstances of each particular case as to whether, after the release of the prisoner, any further steps should be taken towards the realisation of the fine within the period allowed by law. If there is reason to believe that the offender was able to pay and would not, preferring to undergo imprisonment, the law should be strictly enforced; but if it appears that the fine was not paid for want of means, or that its realisation would be ruinous to the offender or his family, it is not desirable that further steps should be taken—Punj Cir Chap. LI, p. 264. See Bomb H. C. Cr. Cir p 53 Wilkin 118.
24. Fine against several persons.—A sentence of fine imposed on more than one prisoner individually and collectively is not a proper sentence. It must be specific as to the amount which each of them should pay [5 M. H. (app) 7]. Where however payment of fine is ordered to be made jointly by several persons convicted together it may be recovered from all or any of them and if payment by one is nullified by the reversal of the order as to him, the liability of all and each of the others survives, as what was done subject to appeal was but provincial or subject to a condition subsequent—Rat 90
25. Fine may be levied at any time within six years.—Imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not satisfaction of the fine but is punishment for contempt; and the fine may be recovered by distress within six years after the passing of the sentence or during the term of imprisonment if it exceeds six years and the death of the offender does not discharge any of his property from liability which would after his death, be legally liable for his debts. The bar of six years provided in S 70 I P. C. may save the property of the accused but not his personal arrest [Rat 207. See 4 W. B. (Cr. Let) 6]
26. Observance of formalities essential.—Formalities will be observed in attachment sale similar to those decrees, with sales on the 14.

III. CLAIMS OF THIRD PARTIES.

27. No provision in the Code—The Code does not contain any provision for the trial of claims which may be preferred to property distrained under S. 346 Cr P. C. The principles applicable to attachments under S. 88 of the Code apply equally to attachments under S. 346—22 M. 88 22 C 335; (98) A. N. 173, 28 P. L. 1915, See 4 L. B. 109; Rat 976 But see 1 Bar S. 332 2 Weir 445.
28. [Note.]—There is nothing in S. 346 or in Sch. V No xxxv indicating that it is the Magistrate's business to do more than issue the warrant. There is nothing in the Code to indicate how the claims to the attached property are to be disposed of and how the expenses of keeping such movable property as cattle, while such claims are being inquired into, or between the dates of attachment and sale, are to be met—4 L. B. 109 (111) 22 C 435 Rat 976]
29. The remedy of the third party claimant—The order of attachment under S. 346 Cr P. C. is not a judicial proceeding and is not therefore the proper subject of a criminal revision. No further proceedings lies in the Criminal Court [28 P. L. 1915 See the Judgment of Blair J. in (98) A. N. 173 22 C 435 20 M. 88 (98) A. M. 173 Con 9 P. R. 1908] The remedy of the aggrieved party is by a Civil Suit. A claimant may proceed against the purchaser but that does not prevent his proceeding against the Crown if he prefers to do so [(98) A. N. 173 Per Jikman J. But See the judgment of Blair J.] See 20 M. 88 4 L. B. 109.
30. Duty of the Court on claim being preferred—No provision is made in the Code for inquiring into the question of title, when a claim to the property under distraint is preferred by a third person. But the Court must stay the sale of the property and allow sufficient time to the claimant to establish his right to the property, unless by reason of the nature of the property, an immediate sale ensures the benefit of the owner in which case the proceeds should be held over—Rat 976, 2 Weir 445.
31. Trial of claims—Warning to the objector. When an objector comes forward, he should be warned of the penalties contained in S. 207 I. P. C. against a fraudulent claim to property to prevent its seizure in satisfaction of fine. After thus warning the objection should be enquired into and disposed of either by admitting the claim or referring to Civil action if his claim seems prima facie groundless [Punj. Cr. p. 269] A claimant should prove that he has a bona fide interest before his claim can be allowed [1 Bar S. 332]
32. Procedure—A warrant issued under this section for the levy of a fine should ordinarily be directed to a Police officer, and the authority issuing it should set a time for the return of the warrant. If no one claims the property, the Police have the power of selling within the time specified in the warrant, without any previous reference to the Magistrate. If a claimant comes forward, then the ownership of the property distrained must be determined by the Magistrate and not by the Police—Wilkins 118.

IV. MISCELLANEOUS.

33. Application unnecessary for a refund of fine—In cases where an Appellate Court has ordered a fine inflicted by a Court of first instance to be refunded, the Appellate Court should forthwith certify its order to the Court of first instance and the Court of first instance should on receipt of the Appellate Court's order for such refund of the fine, immediately prepare a payment order if the fine has been levied and deliver it to the payee, whether he applies or not. [Bomb. Govt. Gaz. 1886 Pt. I, pp. 427, 428 Mad. Rules of Practice p. 65]
34. Information to Jailor—The responsibility for intimating to the jail authorities, the fact of the payment rests entirely with the Court, such information should invariably be acknowledged by the jail authorities and the acknowledgment should be filed by the Court for future reference [Mad. Rules of Practice p. 177 Bomb. H. C. Cr. p. 54].
35. Liability of Judicial Officers for illegal distress—Act XVIII of 1850 not only protects a judicial officer from suits for acts done or ordered to be done by him in the discharge of judicial duties within the limits of his jurisdiction, although the act is done maliciously with gross and culpable irregularity and without believing in good faith that he had jurisdiction to do the act complained of, but also protects him from suits for acts done or ordered to be done, in the discharge of judicial duties, without the limits of warrants the protection afforded by the Act is not against suits for executing lawful warrants or orders, but against suits for executing warrants or orders not lawful, provided that such warrants or orders have been issued by a judicial officer in a matter within his jurisdiction and not merely in a matter in which such judicial officer has authority or power to issue the particular warrant. [12 A. 115] The term "jurisdiction" means authority or power to act in a matter and not authority or power to do an act in a particular manner [See Ibid. 2 M. I. A. 293]
- Note—In 12 A. 115, the Magistrate sold the attached cattle before the date fixed for sale in the distress warrant, in contravention of Sch. V, Form 37 and S. 554 Cr P. C.

387. Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of such Court. and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any such property without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 387 of the said Code, for the words "Such warrant" the words "A warrant issued under section 386 (1)" shall be substituted, and for the word "distress," the word "attachment" shall be substituted.

388. (1) When an offender has been sentenced to fine only and to imprisonment in default of payment of the fine, and the Court issues a warrant under section 386, it may suspend the execution of the sentence of imprisonment and may release the offender on his executing a bond, with or without sureties, as the Court thinks fit, conditioned for his appearance before such Court on the day appointed for the return to such warrant, such day not being more than fifteen days from the time of executing the bond; and in the event of the fine not having been realized the Court may direct the sentence of imprisonment to be carried into execution at once.

(2) In any case in which an order for the payment of money has been made, on non-recovery of which imprisonment may be awarded, and the money is not paid forthwith, the Court may require the person ordered to make such payment to enter into a bond as prescribed in sub-section (1), and in default of his so doing may at once pass sentence of imprisonment as if the money had not been recovered.

Proposed amendment to the section—In sub-section (1) of section 388 of the said Code—

(i) For the words "and the Court issues a warrant under section 386, it," the words "the Court" shall be substituted

(ii) For the words "on the day appointed for the return to such warrant such day not being," the words "on a date not" shall be substituted

Notes.

- 1. Object of S. 388.—Imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not a satisfaction of the fine but is a punishment in contempt [Lat 207 vi].
- 2. Effect of omission to pass an alternative sentence.—Where a Magistrate has omitted to pass a sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine he has power to bind over the accused in his own recognizance to appear—2 viii 445
- 3. Object cl. (2).—S. 388 Cl 2, clearly contemplates the issue of a warrant but the object of the section (which in terms applies to all orders for repayment of money whether by way fine or compensation, on non-recovery of which imprisonment may be awarded), is to enable the Court to pass sentence of imprisonment without waiting for the return of the warrant of the person ordered to make the payment fails to execute a bond to appear on the day appointed for the return—26 M. 127.

- 4. S. 388 (2) applicable to an order for repayment of the advance under S. 2 of Ac. V. I.—being so ordered but n
- 5. When suspension of sentence is illegal.—The accused was sentenced to pay a fine, and in default, to three months' imprisonment. The Magistrate allowed her some days to pay the fine and released her on her giving security. Held, the procedure was illegal, unless at the same time, a distress warrant for the levy of fine was issued. The suspension of the sentence was not lawful in this case—1 L. R. 151.

Who may issue warrant

389. Every warrant for the execution of any sentence may be issued either by the Judge or Magistrate who passed the sentence, or by his successor in office

Note—1. The word 'Judge' is not restricted to any particular individual who holds office. The successor in office may levy a fine imposed by the predecessor.—9 W R 50

Execution of sentence of whipping only.

390. When the accused is sentenced to whipping only, the sentence shall be executed at such place and time as the Court may direct.

- 1. A sentence of whipping should be executed immediately. S. 390 Cr. P. C. does not authorise the Court passing a sentence of whipping to postpone the execution to a future day. [Rat 306, 300, 26 M 465, 4 B R 029. See 6 M B (appx) 38, 7 M B (appx) 29 (51) A N 135, 1 L B 53] where execution has been so deferred the sentence was cancelled as incapable of being carried out. [23 W R 72]
- 2. Sentence should not be executed before disposal of appeal.—A second class Magistrate ordered the execution of a sentence of whipping pending an appeal. Held, that he had not properly exercised the discretion vested in him by S. 390 Cr. P. C.—(393-10) L. B. 310

- 3. Punishment where to be executed.—The punishment of whipping is never to be inflicted in public, or in front of the Court-house, but always within some walled enclosure and in the presence of a Magistrate or the Superintendent of a Jail and where practicable, of a medical officer.—Punj. Cr. P. 277 Madras Rules of Practice, S. 80

391. (1) When the accused is sentenced to whipping in addition to imprisonment in a case which is subject to appeal, the whipping shall not be inflicted until fifteen days from the date of the sentence, or if an appeal is made within that time, until sentence is confirmed by the Appellate Court, but the whipping shall be inflicted as soon as practicable after the expiry of the fifteen days, or, in case of an appeal, as soon as practicable after the receipt of the order of the Appellate Court confirming the sentence.

(2) The whipping shall be inflicted in the presence of the officer in charge of the jail, unless the Judge or Magistrate orders it to be inflicted in his own presence.

(3) No accused person shall be sentenced to whipping in addition to imprisonment, when the term of imprisonment to which he is sentenced is less than three months.

Notes.

- 1. Application of the section.—If a prisoner says he intends to appeal, a Magistrate should be guided by S. 391 and should direct that the whipping should be inflicted as soon as possible after the expiry of fifteen days from the date of the sentence or if an appeal be made within that time as soon as practicable after the receipt of the order of the appellate Court.—(93-00) L. B. 310
- 2. Scope of the section.—The Code makes no provision whereby a Magistrate imposing a sentence of whipping only can suspend its execution, nor does it provide for the detention of a person so sentenced to allow of his appealing, nor for his re-arrest to undergo the whipping if the sentence is confirmed on appeal. It is only when whipping is added to imprisonment in an appealable case, that whipping may and ought to be postponed.—26 M. 465
- 3. Meaning of "sentence"—The word "sentence" in S. 391 means the total punishment inflicted. Thus, where a person is convicted at one trial of two offences and sentenced to a separate term of imprisonment on each count a sentence of whipping being added to the second, the two sentences being directed to run consecutively, the sentence of whipping ought not to be delayed until the expiry of the first sentence but must be carried out in accordance with the provisions of S. 391 Cr. P. C.—Rat 603.

- 4. Postponement of whipping is illegal.—See Note no 1 above, under S. 390. Cr. P. C.
- 5. When the sentence may be executed at once.—where the punishment of whipping is not awarded in addition to imprisonment, but as a separate sentence for a separate offence, the immediate execution of it would not be illegal.—2 Weir 446.
- 6. S. 391(3) controls S. 3 of the whipping Act.—S. 3 of the whipping Act (VI of 1864) as amended by Act III of 1897 is to be read as subject to the provisions of S. 391(3) Cr. P. C. when an accused is convicted of two offences for one of which he is sentenced to imprisonment and for the other to whipping it is not permissible to postpone the whipping merely because the appeals against his conviction for the latter offence.—1 B. R. 136

7. When a sentence of whipping becomes inoperative.—In passing a sentence of whipping in addition to six months, rigorous imprisonment, a Deputy Magistrate ordered that the prisoner should be brought before him at the termination of the imprisonment, and that the sentence of whipping should then be carried out. The High Court cancelled the sentence of whipping as having become inoperative and incapable of being carried out by lapse of time. 23 W. R. 72 (41) A. N. 138. See 2 Weir 416 7 Bar 82

8. Note.—Delete due to lapse of time sentence is inoperative on the expiration of the time prescribed by law. But if through accident or neglect or wilful breach of duty, the direction is not obeyed, the prisoner is not thereby in any way freed from the liability of undergoing the sentence then subsisting [Rat 136]

0. When whipping is illegal.

- (1) The sentence of whipping in addition to imprisonment, the term of which is less than three months is illegal under S. 391 (3) Cr. P. C. [2 Weir 417 - 2 B. R. 51]
- (2) Double sentence of whipping.—B was convicted under Ss. 451 and 340 I. P. C. and sentenced to two years' R. I. and 15 stripes for each of the offences. Held reducing the sentence to one of two years' R. I. and 15 stripes for both the offences, that it was doubtful whether the double sentence of whipping was legal under S. 391 Cr. P. C.—Rat 197; (41-00) L. B. 582. See (90) U. B. 17.

1. The section embodies the provisions of S 7 of the Whipping Act (VI of 1861) [See (1876) 1 M 36]. S 7 of the old Whipping Act VI of 1861 ran as follows: "No female shall be punished with whipping nor shall any person who may be sentenced to death, or to transportation, or to penal servitude, or to imprisonment for more than five years be punished with whipping".
2. Scope of S. 393 (b)—The provision contained in S 391 (b) of the Crim. Pro. Code that the persons named therein shall not be punishable with whipping refers to the execution and not to the passing of the sentence of whipping. A sentence of whipping in addition to 7 years' R 1 is illegal. 21 Cr 306 (1).

3. Sentence cannot be carried out by instalments—Where the sentence of whipping has already been carried out, the High Court in revision cannot enhance the sentence by addition of more stripes, since no sentence of whipping under S 393 can be administered by instalments—Rat 537.

394. (1) The punishment of whipping shall not be inflicted unless a medical officer, if present,

Whipping not to be inflicted if offender not in fit state of health.

certifies, or, if there is not a medical officer present unless it appears to the Magistrate or officer present, that the offender is in a fit state of health to undergo such punishment.

(2) If, during the execution of a sentence of whipping, a medical officer certifies, or it appears to the Magistrate or officer present that the offender is not in a fit state of health to undergo the remainder of the sentence, the whipping shall be finally stopped

Stay of execution

Note.

1. When Medical officer declares unfit—

A sentence of whipping is wholly prevented from being executed, when under S 394 cl. (1) of the Crim. Pro. Code, a medical officer certifies that the offender is not in a fit state of health to undergo the punishment. It is partially prevented from being executed if during the execution of the sentence the medical officer certifies that the offender is not in a fit state of health—31 M 84

395. (1) In any case in which, under section 394, a sentence of whipping is wholly or partially

Procedure if punishment cannot be inflicted under section 394 prevented from being executed, the offender shall be kept in custody till the Court which passed the sentence can revise it, and the said Court may, at its discretion, either remit such sentence, or sentence the offender in lieu of whipping, or, in lieu of so much of the sentence of whipping as was not executed, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve months which may be in addition to any other punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the same offence.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any Court to inflict imprisonment for a term exceeding that to which the accused is liable by law, or that which the said Court is competent to inflict.

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 395 of the said Code—

(i) In sub-section (1), after the words "twelve months" the words "or to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees" shall be inserted.

(ii) In sub-section (2), after the words "for a term" the words "or fine of an amount" shall be inserted

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section—There is no provision of law authorising a medical officer to give a certificate, before the commencement of whipping, that the accused is fit to receive only a portion of the sentence, and such a certificate cannot be held as one granted under S. 394 of the Code.

The Magistrate is not, in such a case, empowered under S 395 Cr. P. C., to sentence the offender to imprisonment in lieu of so much of the sentence as was not executed—[31 M. 81.]

2. The term "Court," as used in 395—does not mean the same officer who inflicted the sentence of whipping originally, where therefore a first class Magistrate who passed the sentence of whipping was transferred, it was held that the District Magistrate who had jurisdiction over the whole district, was competent to commute the sentence of whipping to one of imprisonment—[31 P. R. 1901.]
3. Power of original Court to remit after confirmation of sentence.—The only Court which can sentence the offender in lieu of whipping is the Court which passed the sentence. Where therefore a sentence of whipping passed by a District Magistrate was confirmed by the Sessions Judge, it was held that the fact that the sentence was so confirmed did not affect the power of the District Magistrate to revise the sentence under this section—[11 P. R. 1550.]

4. Fine in lieu of whipping.—In cases a whipping cannot be inflicted, the only sentence that can be passed in lieu thereof is one of imprisonment; one of fine cannot be passed. It is in the discretion of a Magistrate to remit a sentence of whipping—[1 L. R. 202; 11 A. 308; 2 Weir 119.]
5. Solitary confinement.—When imprisonment is ordered in lieu of whipping under S. 395 Cr. P. C., solitary confinement may be ordered though it is not specifically mentioned in the section—[9 P. L. 1900.]
6. The limit of imprisonment in lieu of whipping.—Where a prisoner is found to be unfit and sentence is accordingly commuted, to one of imprisonment, such substituted term of imprisonment must not bring the total term to which the prisoner is sentenced in excess of the maximum term which the Court passing the sentence is competent to inflict.—[21 A. 25; 11 P. R. 1901; 2 Weir 119.]
7. Meaning of the term imprisonment.—The term "imprisonment" in S. 395 means substantive sentence of imprisonment and imprisonment in default of fine—[11 A. 308.]

396. (1) When sentence is passed under this Code on an escaped convict, such sentence, in execution of sentences on escaped convicts death, fine or whipping, shall, subject to the provisions which before contained, take effect immediately, and, if of imprisonment penal servitude or transportation, shall take effect according to the following rules, that is to say

(2) If the new sentence is severer in its kind than the sentence which such convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect immediately.

(3) When the new sentence is not severer in its kind than the sentence the convict was undergoing when he escaped, the new sentence shall take effect after he has suffered imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, as the case may be, for a further period equal to that which he had served before his escape, remained unexpired of his former sentence.

Explanation—For the purposes of this section—

(a) a sentence of transportation or penal servitude shall be deemed severer than a sentence of imprisonment.

(b) a sentence of imprisonment with solitary confinement shall be deemed severer than a sentence of the same description of imprisonment without solitary confinement; and

(c) a sentence of rigorous imprisonment shall be deemed severer than a sentence of simple imprisonment with or without solitary confinement.

Notes.

1. New sentence on a life-convict when to commence.—The accused, a life convict imprisoned in the Byapur prison under transportation for murder was convicted of the offence of attempting to escape from lawful custody under S. 221 P. C. and sentenced to four months' rigorous imprisonment, which was directed to commence immediately and to be carried out before being sent to the Penal settlement. Held that having regard to the provisions of this section, the direction for immediate execution of the sentence was wrong and must be reversed—[Rat 965 See 1 Weir 203.]

2. Application of the section to detention under S. 123 Cr. P. C.—The word "sentence" in S. 396 or 397 Cr. P. C. does not include an order of committal or detention under S. 123 Cr. P. C. [2 L. R. 72; See 4 L. R. 205 (F. B.).] This ruling is in conflict with Rat 774 which lays down that the order of imprisonment under S. 123 Cr. P. C. is one to which the word sentence as used in S. 396 of the Code applies.
3. Court bound to comply with sub-secs (2) and (3).—The punishment prescribed by S. 224 P. C. for escape from lawful custody is to be in addition to the original sentence. The Court in passing the sentence, must comply with the provisions of S 316—S. 396 of the Code of 1894 1 Weir 201

4. Escape of a life-convict from Port Blair. In all cases of escape by a life-convict the Superintendent of Port Blair, or other Magistrate having jurisdiction, as soon as the fact of escape is known, should issue a warrant charging him, with having committed an offence under S 224 I. P. C. to the chief of the police of the Province or Administration to which the convict is known or is likely to be found, and he should forward a warrant forthwith to the Home Department If the warrant is forthcoming, the Magistrate by whom the case is being enquired into will decide whether there is any reason why the accused should not be removed in custody under Ss 83 and 84 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to the Magistrate at the Andamans who issued the warrant—Order of Government of India, Home Department dated 18-5-74: Government of Bengal Cir. No. 22 dated 27-5-74

397. When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation is sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation, such imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation to which he has been previously sentenced :

Provided that, if he is undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, and the sentence on such subsequent conviction is one of transportation, the Court may, in its discretion, direct that the latter sentence shall commence immediately, or at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced.

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 397 of the said Code—

) After the words "to which he has been previously sentenced," the words "unless the Court directs that the subsequent sentence shall run concurrently with such previous sentence" shall be inserted

i) To the same section the following Explanation shall be added, namely — Explanation.—An order under section 123 directing that a person be committed to or detained in prison in lieu of furnishing security is a sentence of imprisonment within the meaning of this section "

Notes.

S 397=S 317 (1872) —S 48 (1861)

- Imprisonment in default of security is not a "sentence of imprisonment" within the meaning of S 397 Cr P C—See Note No 6 under S. 123 (p. 175) supra

S. 397 does not apply to detention in civil prison.—A sentence of imprisonment under the Prisons Act must commence from the date on which it is passed. A prisoner cannot be further detained in the civil prison for the period for which he was kept out of it, for the object of his commitment to civil prison was to keep him under detention for a specified period or until he paid up the debt, whichever event occurred sooner and his detention in criminal jail may consequently be taken to serve the purpose of his detention in the Court prison—17 Cr 450 (L B)

Concurrent sentences.—S 35 does not authorise any Court to direct that two or more sentences shall run concurrently except sentences passed at one and the same trial, S 397 is explicit and gives the Court no option, a sentence of imprisonment must commence at the expiry of the previous sentence—4 L B 147 6 Bur T 67 15 C P 57 2 S 23. 105 P L 1910 20 P L 1912 4 L R 876: 2 B R 111. Rat 18 552 11 M. T. 213 (F. B.): 21 Cr. 398 (1) 2 Weir 453: 11 A. J 293.

4. [Note.—Where the accused was convicted and sentenced to one year's R I. on a charge of cheating, and was immediately tried by the same Magistrate on a second charge of cheating convicted for the second time and sentenced to one year's R I. Held that the order of the Magistrate directing the two sentences to run concurrently was not illegal in as much as the trials took place on one and the same day and one after the other. It was, for all practical purposes, one trial 13 B R 200 19 Cr 207 (A) Con (12) 2 Weir 431 12 P R 1574

5. The rules as to concurrent sentences analysed.

- (1) The only case in which a Court may pass concurrent sentences for two offences is when the accused is convicted at the same trial for both offences
- (2) But if the trials are separate, S 397 Cr P C applies and the sentences must take effect consecutively
- (3) Ordinarily the first sentence takes effect first [S 397 (1)]
- (4) But if the second sentence is one of transportation and the first of imprisonment, the Court has a discretion to reverse the order and direct that the sentence of transportation shall take effect first and the sentence of imprisonment afterwards.

- (5) The Court has no power to direct that a sentence of transportation should take effect concurrently with a sentence of rigorous imprisonment that the accused was undergoing. 2 S. 23. See (33) L. B. 19.

6. The General Rule as to the time when a sentence shall take effect.—A person sentenced to imprisonment is “undergoing” that imprisonment within the meaning of S. 397 of the Code from the moment the sentence is passed. When therefore the same person is tried though on the same day for another offence and sentenced to another term of imprisonment that imprisonment must, by the terms of S. 397 and independently of any direction given by the Court commence at the expiration of the imprisonment imposed by the first sentence.—(92) 2 Weir 451.

7. Effect of reversal of one of the two consecutive sentences.—Where a person was convicted and sentenced by two different Magistrates on separate charges and the sentence of one of them was reversed on appeal, held that the imprisonment suffered by him from the date of the conviction to that of the reversal of the sentence of one of the Magistrates, should be reckoned as the imprisonment suffered in respect of the unreversed sentence of the other.—2 Weir 150. Wilkins 120. But see Rat 139. 522.

8. Procedure.—In a case where the accused is convicted at the same trial of several distinct offences and the Magistrate intends that the separate sentences passed for those offences should not be concurrent, he should pass his order with a direction that each should take effect on the expiry of the next prior sentence.—29 W. R. 70; See 3 B. L. (A. C.) 59. (73) 2 Weir 151.

9. Application of the Section.—(1) S. 397 applies to sentences of imprisonment.—It has no application to sentences of whipping. A Magistrate is therefore not competent to direct that a sentence of whipping should be deferred till the expiration of the sentence in another case.—Rat 300.

(2) Sentences by Foreign Courts.—It is competent to a Magistrate in British India to direct that the sentence passed by him should take effect after the expiration of the sentence in a foreign territory.—29 W. R. 114.

10. Order under S. 397 not a judgment within the meaning of S. 397 Cr. P. C.—An order made by a Court under S. 397, is not a part of its judgment, and may therefore, be made after the judgment, has been signed.—Rat 394. See 3 W. R. (67-141) 16.

11. S. 397 covers imprisonment in default of fine.—When a person is convicted and imprisoned under two warrants, and the sentences are ordered to run consecutively, the second sentence cannot be executed until the first sentence including the additional imprisonment in default of fine has been completely executed.—Rat 132. See S. 398 (2) infra.

398. (1) Nothing in section 396 or section 397 shall be held to excuse any person from any part saving as to sections 396 and 397 of the punishment to which he is liable upon his former or subsequent conviction.

(2) When an award of imprisonment in default of payment of a fine is annexed to a substantive sentence of imprisonment or to a sentence of transportation or penal servitude for an offence punishable with imprisonment, and the person undergoing the sentence is after its execution to undergo a further substantive sentence or further substantive sentences, of imprisonment, transportation or penal servitude, effect shall not be given to the award of imprisonment in default of payment of the fine until the person has undergone the further sentence or sentences.

Note.

1. Scope of S. 398.—Under S. 397 a Sessions Judge may direct that a sentence of transportation passed on a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, shall commence from date or on the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced. S. 398 provides that nothing in S. 397 shall be held to excuse any person from any part of the punishment to which he is liable upon his former or subsequent conviction.—2 Weir 451.

399. (1) When any person under the age of fifteen years is sentenced by any Criminal Court to imprisonment for any offence, the Court may direct such person ^{Confinement of youthful offenders in reformatories} instead of being imprisoned in a criminal jail, shall be confined in any reformatory established by the Local Government as a fit place for confinement, in which there are means of suitable discipline and of training in some branch of useful industry or which is kept by a person willing to obey such rules as the Local Government prescribes with regard to the discipline and training of persons confined therein.

(2) All persons confined under this section shall be subject to the rules so prescribed.

(3) This section shall not apply to any place in which the Reformatory Schools Act 1897, is for the time being in force.

Notes.

1. Confinement must not be for a short period.—No boy shall be sent to a Reformatory School, if under 10 years of age, for a less period than seven years, if over 10 years of age, for a less period than five years, unless he shall sooner attain the age of 15 years.—Bomb H C Cr Cir 38 • Bomb Govt. Gaz. 1890 Pt. I p 758 See 1 Weir 878.

[Note.—The least period of detention under the Reformatory Act is 3 years. See 25 C 33.]

2. The order can be made only by first class Magistrates.—The introduction of the Reformatory Schools Act 1876, repeals the operation of S. 379 Crim. Pro. Code "So far as may be practicable" Under S. 7 and 8 of the former Act only a first class Magistrate can send a male youthful offender to a reformatory school. Therefore an order by a second class Magistrate sentencing a male juvenile offender to rigorous imprisonment to be sent to reformatory instead of being imprisoned in the criminal jail is invalid (88) 12 M 94 (F B). See 25 C. 333 (336)

Note per contra.—See S. 9 of the Reformatory Schools Act VIII of 1897]

3. The rules to be observed. (1) Under S. 11 of the Reformatory Schools Act VIII of 1897, a Magistrate is bound before sending an offender to a Reformatory, to make an enquiry and record a finding as to the exact age of the offender as nearly as may be [1 Weir 879] (2) It is not every boy that is convicted of an offence that can be sent to a Reformatory, but only such boys who, there is a reasonable cause for supposing is likely again to lapse into crime.—1 Weir 878 21 M 13
4. Procedure in case of mistake as to age.—The finding of a Magistrate regarding the age of a youthful offender is final in the sense that it cannot be altered in appeal or revision. But in case the Magistrate should have made a mistake and understated the age, the Local Government on the report of the Visitors or the Board of Management may order the removal of the boy, if and when he is found to have attained the age of 18 years.—21 M 13.
5. Order to be self-contained.—As a general proposition, it is clearly the duty of the Magistrate to define precisely the nature of the sentence intended. The order should be self-contained so that the functionary who has to execute it, should have nothing to do but to obey the direction given without making an inquiry on his own account.—ibid.

6. Period of detention must be fixed.—A direction that the accused be detained in a Reformatory School for five years "or until he attains the age of eighteen years" was held to be illegal and the words "or until he attained the age of eighteen years" were directed to be deleted.—[15 B R 306] The exact period of detention must be fixed. An order that the youthful offender (sentenced to six months' R I) should be detained "unless he shall attain the age of 15 years at an earlier date" was held to be indefinite and therefore illegal [24 M 13]

7. Subs (3).—is now.—It incorporates the views of the High Court of Calcutta and Bombay [S. 318 of the Code of 1872 (=S. 319) having been repealed by S. 2 of the Reformatory Schools Act (V of 1876), the corresponding S. 379 of the Code 1882 must be taken to stand repealed in the provinces including Bengal to which the Act has been extended.—(47) 25 C 333 See (36) Rat 861, (97) Rat 915 (97) Rat 929] See 399 Cr. P C has no application in the Punjab where the Reformatory Schools Act of 1897 is in force.—7 J. R. 1916 [See Punjab Govt. Not. No. 37 of 20 in Jan 1906]

8. Absence of a Reformatory School no ground for not passing adequate sentence.—A Judge or Magistrate is not at liberty, in estimating the proper sentence to be passed on juvenile offenders to consider the fact that there is no reformatory. He is bound to pass a sentence of punishment adequate to the offence.—(84) 2 Weir 453

9. Juvenile offenders on release to be made over to their friends.—All juvenile offenders who have been detained in a Reformatory may be made over on release by the superintendent of the Jail to the District Superintendent of Police and shall be escorted to their homes by the Police and made over to the charge of their friends in the presence of the bandook or headman of the Village.—N W P R & O p 288

400. When a sentence has been fully executed, the officer executing it shall return the warrant to the Court from which it issued, with an endorsement under his hand certifying the manner in which the sentence has been executed.

Note.

i. When a warrant may be detained.—If the prisoner is sentenced both to imprisonment and whipping, a certificate of the execution of the sentence of whipping should be endorsed on the warrant but the warrant should not be returned (except when the prisoner dies) until the sentence of imprisonment is also fully executed—See Wilkins 120 [Cal. H. C. G. O. No. 31 of 1906-87; Cal. G. R. and G. O. p. 36].

CHAPTER XXIX.

OF SUSPENSIONS, REMISSIONS AND COMMUTATIONS OF SENTENCES.

401. (1) When any person has been sentenced to punishment for an offence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may at any time without conditions or upon any conditions which the person sentenced accepts, suspend the execution of his sentence or remit the whole or any part of the punishment to which he has been sentenced.

(2) Whenever an application is made to the Governor General in Council or the Local Government for the suspension or remission of a sentence, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government, as the case may be, may require the presiding Judge of the Court before or by which the conviction was had or confirmed to state his opinion as to whether the application should be granted or refused, together with his reasons for such opinion.

(3) If any condition on which a sentence has been suspended or remitted is in the opinion of the Governor General in Council or of the Local Government, as the case may be not fulfilled, the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may cancel the suspension or remission, and thereupon the person in whose favour the sentence has been suspended or remitted may, if at large, be arrested by any police-officer without warrant and remanded to undergo the unexpired portion of the sentence.

(4) The condition on which a sentence is suspended or remitted under this section, may be one to be fulfilled by the person in whose favour the sentence is suspended or remitted, or one independent of his will.

(5) Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to interfere with the right of Her Majesty to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment.

(6) The Governor General in Council and the Local Government may, by general rules or special orders, give directions as to the suspension of sentences and the conditions on which petitions should be presented and dealt with.

Proposed amendment to the section—In section 401 of the said Code—

(i) In sub-section (2), after the words "together with his reasons for such opinion," the following words shall be added, namely —

"and also to forward with the statement of such opinion a certified copy of the record of the trial in such record thereof as exists."

(ii) In sub section (1) of the same section, after the words "Her Majesty" the words "or of the Governor General when such right is delegated to him" shall be inserted.

(iii) After sub section (2), the following Explanation shall be added, namely :—

"Explanation—A person committed to or detained in prison in accordance with the provisions of section 123 is a person sentenced to punishment for an offence within the meaning of this section."

Notes.

1. Application of the section.—The special authority conferred by S 401 relates to persons sentenced to punishment and does not apply to persons who have accepted the conditional pardon prescribed by S 337 Cr. P. C.—See 11 A. 79 (59)
2. When Court may refer the case to the consideration of the Local Government.—Where the accused appeared to have committed murder without any apparent sane motive and he seemed to be suffering from mental derangement of some sort not amounting to an insane impulse beyond the power of self-control within the meaning of S 84 I P. C., the High Court recommended the case to the Local Government under S 401 Crim. Pro. Code to be dealt with in such manner as it thought fit—23 O 601. See 16 P. W. 1909 7 A 672
3. [Note.—In 10 B 512, the High Court in forwarding the proceeding to the Governor in Council observed, "there is good ground for classing the case with those of Greensmith and Burrey so as to which so high an authority as Dr. Taylor has observed that "they fairly establish the occasional existence of homicidal mania in which the mental condition of the accused persons at the time of perpetrating the act of murder is such as to justify their acquittal on the ground of insanity. The case is one where future symptoms, may perhaps, throw light on the accused's state of mind, and possibly justify a commutation or reduction of sentence, if not pardon"]

4. Procedure when Local Government calls for opinion of the Court (Subs 2).—A Sessions Judge, required to state his opinion under this section, must forward his reply through the High Court, whether the requisition for the opinion has been received through the High Court or not.—M H C Cr No 3262 dated 15th Novr 1895
5. Reasons for such opinion.—In case of murder for instance, the Judge may record the extenuating circumstances rendering it expedient that there should be a mitigation of the sentence required by law and submit the same to Government and the Government may, under this section, act in such manner as to it seems proper.—W R (Gap) 27

402. The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, without the consent of the person sentenced, commute any one of the following sentences for any other mentioned after it—
 death, transportation, penal servitude, rigorous imprisonment for a term not exceeding that to which he might have been sentenced, simple imprisonment for a like term, fine

Proposed amendment to the section—section 402 of the said Code shall be re-enacted section 402 (1), and to the said section the following sub section shall be added, namely—

"(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of the Indian Penal Code, section 61 or 57

CHAPTER XXX

OF PREVIOUS ACQUITTALS OR CONVICTIONS.

403. (1) A person who has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction

Person once convicted or acquitted and convicted or acquitted of such offence shall not to be tried for same offence conviction or acquittal remains in force again for the same offence, nor on the same facts for any other offence charge from the one made against him might have been made under section 237, might have been convicted under section 237.

(2) A person acquitted or convicted of any offence may be afterwards tried for any distinct offence for which a separate charge might have been made against him on the former trial under section 235, sub-section (1).

(3) A person convicted of any offence constituted by any act causing consequences which, together with such act, constituted a different offence from that of which he was convicted, may be afterwards tried for such last-mentioned offence, if the consequences had not happened, or were not known to the Court to have happened, at the time when he was convicted.

(4) A person acquitted or convicted of any offence constituted by any acts may, notwithstanding such acquittal or conviction, be subsequently charged with, and tried for, any other offence constituted by the same acts which he may have committed if the Court by which he was first tried was not competent to try the offence with which he is subsequently charged.

(5) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of section 25 of the General Clauses Acts, 1897, or section 188 of this Code.

Explanation.—The dismissal of a complaint, the stopping of proceedings under section 249, the discharge of the accused or any entry made upon a charge under section 273, is not an acquittal for the purpose of this section.

Illustrations

(a) A is tried upon a charge of theft as servant and acquitted. He cannot afterwards, while the acquittal remains in force, be charged with theft as a servant, or upon the same facts with theft simply, or with criminal breach of trust.

(b) A is tried upon a charge of murder and acquitted. There is no charge of robbery; but it appears from the facts that A committed robbery at the time when the murder was committed; he may afterwards be charged with and tried for, robbery.

(c) A is tried for causing grievous hurt and convicted. The person injured afterwards dies. A may be tried again for culpable homicide.

(d) A is charged before the Court of Session and convicted of the culpable homicide of B. A may not afterwards be tried on the same facts for the murder of B.

(e) A is charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, voluntarily causing hurt to B. A may not afterwards be tried for voluntarily causing grievous hurt to B on the same facts, unless the case comes within paragraph 3 of the section.

(f) A is charged by a Magistrate of the second class with, and convicted by him of theft of property from the person of B. A may be subsequently charged with and tried for, robbery on the same facts.

(g) A, B and C are charged by a Magistrate of the first class with, and convicted by him of, robbing D. A, B and C may afterwards be charged, with and tried for, dacoity on the same facts.

1. THE GENERAL PRINCIPLES EXPLAINED.

(1) General Remarks.

1. The doctrine explained by aid of English precedents.—The section is an amplification of the well known maxim of law "nemo debet bis reari," This principle does not rest on any doctrine of estoppel but embodies the well established rule of common law that a man may not be put twice in peril for the same offence, [29 M. 126 (F. B.); 2 Hawk. C. 35. See Archbold p. 176.] It is necessary for the stability of society that an acquittal by a Court of competent jurisdiction should be accepted as conclusive proof of the innocence of the accused. "I think" says Bruce J in Rex v. Plummer—[(1902) 2 K B 339 (348)] "it is a very dangerous principle to adopt to regard a verdict of 'not guilty' as not fully establishing the innocence of the person to whom it relates"—[See 38 C. 569 (375) 37 B. 658] In England a person is said to have been "in jeopardy" in the first trial, if (1) the Court was competent to try him for the offence. (2) the trial was upon a good indictment on which a valid judgment of conviction could be entered. (3) the acquittal was on the merits i.e. by verdict on the trial or in summary case by dismissal on the merits followed by a judgment or order of acquittal—[Russell on Crimes p. 1982 13 W. R. 42] It has been held that the rule applied even if the facts were not exactly but substantially the same [E. King (1897) 1 Q. B. 214-218] A summary conviction for common assault may be pleaded in bar of an indictment for wounding with intent to murder [R. Miles 24 Q. B. D. 423 R. Stanton (1851) 5 Cox 344 R. v. Lilington 1 B. & S. 683] An acquittal by a foreign Court of competent jurisdiction of the same offence may be successfully pleaded in bar of a second trial before any tribunal in England [See Russell on Crimes p. 1984 R. v. Hutchinson 3 Keb. 785 R. v. Roche 1 Leach 135] The rule applies with equal force although the second indictment is against the accused alone while the first was against him jointly with others [R. v. Dunn 1 Mood 424] The plea however to be successful must be one of dismissal of the charge on the merits Where a Jury sworn and charged with, a prisoner is discharged without giving a verdict, such a discharge does not bar a fresh indictment [Winn v. R. L. R. I. Q. B. 289 R. v. Lewis 78 L. J. (K. B.) 722] Where the charge was explained to the accused but no formal charge in writing was drawn up, his order of release (S. 249) was held not to amount to an acquittal [See 4 B. L. (A. C.) 1] The true test by which the question whether such a plea is sufficient bar in any particular case, may be tried is whether the evidence necessary to support the second indictment would have been sufficient to procure a legal conviction upon the first—[R. v. Clark 1 B. & B. 173 Archbold p. 177 Q. v. Bird 2 Den. C. C. 94 1 B. R. 15. 5 S. 16 7 W. R. 15]

(2) General plan of S. 403 Cr. P. C.

2. In section 403 Cr. P. C. we find in the first section, the general rule which affirms the validity of the plea of autrefois acquit and autrefois convict. It is a rule prohibiting a second trial, not merely for the same offence but also upon the same facts, for any other offence; and special provision is made against any avoidance of this rule by any manipulation of Ss 236 or 237. Then follow the exceptions to the rule. The first exception is in favour of an omission from the first trial of what could and should have formed a distinct part of it under S. 235 Cr. P. C. The limitation of this exception to subs (1) necessarily involves the exclusion of cases, falling under the other subsections of S. 235, where the several offences are separable for the purposes of charging but not distinct for the purposes of punishment. The Legislature recognises that even here a special case should be provided for, and therefore subs (1) of S. 403 makes an exception in respect of a case which eventually falls under subs (3) of S. 235. An illustration will make the matter clear. A causes hurt to B and as a consequence of the injury so inflicted, B dies. A is tried and convicted of the hurt. The death took place before the trial, and the fact was known to the Court which convicted A of hurt, then A could not again be tried for the homicide under this subsection, though he might under subs (4). But if the death occurred after the trial for hurt or having occurred before the conviction for hurt, was not known to the convicting Court, then another trial for the homicide could not be held under subs (3) of S. 403—Per Staggan A. J. C. in 9 N. 26. See 40 B. 97 23 C. 174 1 B. R. 15 Russell on Crimes pp. 1985-87

(3) The exceptions.

3. In order to apply section 403 (1) of the Crim. Pro. Code, it is necessary to see whether under S. 236 of the Code any charge in the previous trial could have been framed for the offences for which the accused is sought to be tried at the second trial. See 236 of the Code only applies when the act or a series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of the several offences the facts would constitute. Where the facts disclosed in the previous trial leave no manner of doubt as to the offences they constituted, see 236 has no application—4 Pat. W. 21
4. [Note.—The offence of murder (S. 302) and the offence of causing the disappearance of the evidence of the commission of the offence by burning the body (S. 201) can be joined in the alternative in the same trial under S. 236 Cr. P. C.; hence an acquittal on the charge under S. 302 I. P. C. would operate by reason of S. 403 Cr. P. C. as a bar to a second trial under S. 201 I. P. C.—4 S. 174.]
5. Acquittal under S. 182 I. P. C. no bar to a second trial under S. 211 I. P. C.—Where the accused was tried and acquitted under S. 182 I. P. C. held that the acquittal did not operate as a bar to the subsequent trial of the accused under S. 211 I. P. C. since these offences are essentially distinct and Ss. 236 and 403 Cr. P. C. have no application because in this case there has been no doubt as to which of the offences has been committed and there could not have been any charge under S 211 I P C in the alternative. 20 P R. 1910. 11 C N 539

6. Subsequent discovery of fresh evidence converting the case into a graver one.—The accused was challenged by a police constable when he dropped the sewing machine he had stolen from the house of one Mr Y and tried to escape. He was arrested, sent up and convicted under S 11 of the Bangalore Police Act of possession of things which might reasonably be suspected to be stolen. Subsequently on the machine being identified as the one stolen from Mr Y's house, the accused was tried again under S 457 I P C and convicted a second time. Held that S 403 would bar the second trial. 8 Bar T 129.

7. Summons issued for only one offence, subsequent summons on the remaining charges.—A petition of complaint alleged that the accused had committed offences under Ss 352 and 504 I P C. Process was issued under S 352 I P C only. The Magistrate acquitted the accused of the offence under S 352, but being of opinion that the evidence established a prima facie case of an offence punishable under S 504 I P C, issued process under that section. Held that S 403 (2) was applicable to the case, so that the accused could be legally tried again for the offence under S 504 I P C.—20 Cr 43(C)

8. Acquittal of one set of accused no bar to trial of another set on same facts.—Where some out of several persons charged with offences under Ss 148, 326 and 302 I P C were placed on trial and acquitted, and where subsequently five others implicated in the same transaction were captured and put upon their trial on the identical charges. Held that the acquittal of the accused who were tried previously was no bar to the trial of the persons subsequently arrested on the same charges.—37 C 680 10 ON 1031. But see 7 C N 493 711 4 C N 346

9. Repetition of trial without accused being tried again.—The accused was indicted on 5 charges.—302 31 I P C. 302 114 I P C. 302 104 I P C. 302 304 I P C. and the jury returned a unanimous verdict of not guilty on the 1st and 4th counts and disagreed on the other 3 counts in the proportion of 5 to 1. The Judge took the verdict of acquittal on the 1st and 4th counts and discharged the jury under S 395 Cr. P. C. and ordered a retrial on the remaining 3 counts under S 308 Cr. P. C. The retrial came up before another special jury, and the counsel for the accused took the preliminary plea of autrefois acquit. Held that for the purposes of S 403 Cr. P. C. the accused was not being tried again. He was being tried on the original indictment and on his first plea of not guilty. The duty of the Court was to continue the trial of the accused before another jury, and the process might continue until a verdict is passed on all the counts without the accused being "tried again" under S 403 Cr. P. C.—41 C. 1072

10. History of the section.—The rule of a autrefois acquit or convict was embodied for the first time in the Criminal Procedure Code as S 55 of the Code of 1861 which ran as follows: "A person who has once been tried for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence shall not be liable to be tried again for that offence"—words which with certain explanations are still retained in S 403 of the present Code. Under that Code Public Prosecutors were directed by the Calcutta High Court not to withdraw the graver charge and proceed upon the lesser, because such a course would have the effect of depriving the accused of the benefit of acquittal on the graver charge. [5 W R (Cr. Lct) 4] This difficulty was removed by the Code of 1872 Sec 61: A Public Prosecutor, may with the consent of the Court, withdraw any charge against any person in any case of he is in charge; and upon such withdrawal, if it is made whilst the case is under enquiry, the accused person shall be discharged. If it is made when he is under trial, the accused person shall be acquitted."

II. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object of S. 403 Cr. P. C.

11. (1) Under S 403 Cr. P. C., an accused cannot be tried a second time on the same facts for an offence cognate to or involved in the offences with which he was previously charged.—45 C. 727: 21 Cr 164 (1)
12. (1) Principle. When a person has been acquitted, he cannot be tried again for the same offence [Sec 2 Ag 3] But Res Judicata does not bar any proceedings by general principle but only by special enactment as contained in S. 13 of the Civil P. C. and S 403 of the Cr. P. C [1 L B, 337].
13. (3) When the plea of autrefois acquit prevails.—To render a formal acquittal or conviction a defence, on second trial, the offence must be the same offence.—7 W. R. 15; R. v. Tandercomb 1 Leach 712

14. Meaning of a acquittal.—The Dismissal of a complaint after a charge has been framed amounts to acquittal.—5 C. L. 339

- 14A. Difference between Indian and English Law.—In English Courts the maxim nemo debet bis reari is given full scope. It has been repeatedly held in England that if an accused person has once been tried and acquitted upon the merits by a Court of competent jurisdiction, so as to have been put in peril of conviction, he cannot again be tried upon the same charge, and if he is charged he can successfully plead autrefois acquit. It is true that in R. v. Scayle 5 Cox C. C. 243 a new trial was ordered in a case where one of the

(2) Proof of previous acquittal and conviction.

15. Onus—The burden of proof of previous acquittal or conviction is upon the party setting it up, i.e. the accused—(59) A. N. S.
16. Proof of previous acquittal.—The onus of proving the plea, set up by a party, is on the accused. He may prove it by producing a certified copy of the record or proceedings of the alleged conviction or acquittal, and showing by such copy or other evidence, if necessary, that he has been convicted or acquitted of the offence on which he has been arraigned, or that he might have on his former trial been convicted of the offence on which he has been arraigned, or that his previous conviction or acquittal is by statute a bar to subsequent proceedings for the same cause—Halsbury's Laws of England Vol. IX. p. 356. See S. 511 post.
17. In England the plea is tried by Jury.—In England the jury are sworn instanter to try the issue whether there has been a previous acquittal or conviction on the same facts. The counsel for the prisoner opens his case in support of the plea and calls his witnesses, the counsel for the Crown afterwards addresses the jury and calls witnesses and the counsel for the prisoner replies—See R. v. Sheen 2 C. and P. 634. Russell On Crimes pp. 1963-1996. Archbold pp. 179-180.

(3) Principles illustrated.

18. Discharge.—253
nature the
to of
inimant from further molestation. The principle of antefous acquit can have no application, as it must be assumed that the Code is exhaustive on the subject it deals with, and it is not permissible to add to its provisions—31 M. 543.
19. Discharge not equivalent to acquittal.—There is no doubt nothing in law against the entertainment of a second complaint on the same facts, as a discharge however proper and legal is not equivalent to an acquittal [18 Cr. 329 (M)]. An order of discharge by the High Court, in the exercise of its original Criminal Jurisdiction, is no bar to fresh proceedings being taken before a competent Magistrate upon complaint or upon a police report or under S. 190 (c) Cr. P. C. [16 Cr. N. 983. 29 Cr. 726]. S. 403 Cr. P. C. applies only to cases of acquittal or conviction and has no application to a case in which the accused person has been discharged [17 A. 1 507]. If the Magistrate erroneously acquits before the charge has been drawn up the acquittal amounts only to a discharge and does not bar a retrial [6 W. R. 13].
- 19A. Acquittal under S. 494 Cr. P. C. without the purview of the Section.—The statutory acquittal under S. 494 of the Criminal Procedure Code in a summons case operates as a bar to further proceedings on the same facts 49 M. 176. 9 N. 26. 12 M. 35.
20. Operation of the bar.—A bar under S. 403 Cr. P. C. operates not only where a person has been tried for an offence and convicted or acquitted of it, and is sought to be tried again for the same offence, but also where he is and might be tried on the same facts for any other offence for which a different charge might have been framed from the one made, on the same facts, under S. 230 or for which he might have been convicted under S. 237 Cr. P. C.—36 M. 308. See 2 C. P. 66. Russell on Crimes pp. 1981-5. R. v. Sheen 2 C. and P. 634.

[Note.—Where a person has been tried for and acquitted of a charge under S. 363 I. P. C. he cannot be committed under Ss. 366 and 368 I. P. C. on the same facts merely because the latter charges are triable exclusively by a Court of Session in as much as kidnapping is an essential element in the offences under S. 366 and 368 I. P. C. and the accused had already been tried for that offence and acquitted—20 Cr. 526 (Pat): 21 Cr. 689 (O).

21. Order of release under S. 249 Cr. P. C..—An order under S. 249 is specially excluded by the explanation to S. 403 Cr. P. C.—4 B. L. (ap) 1.
22. Acquittal under S. 247 operates as bar.—An acquittal under S. 247 Cr. P. C. on account of the absence of the complainant and after the accused had appeared and answered to the charge will operate as a bar to his being tried again for the same offence, as he is a person "tried" by a Court within the meaning and for the purposes of S. 403 Cr. P. C. 26 M. J. 160. 40 M. 176. 2 Weir 457. 34 M. 253. 4 C. N. 346. M. H. C. P. 1886. Con. 10 B. R. 628. See Notes No. 15 and 16 under S. 247 Supra.
23. [Note per contra.—A judgement of acquittal following an complainant's default of prosecution under S. 247 Cr. P. C. does not entitle the person acquitted to plead antefous acquit on a fresh prosecution on the same facts and S. 403 does not operate as bar to the Court taking cognizance of second complaint—40 M. 977 (F. N.)].
24. Withdrawal of a complaint.—The withdrawal of a complaint under any circumstances operates as an acquittal and bars fresh trial on the same facts—19 W. R. 55.
25. Particular set of facts once adjudicated upon.—Where a person has been tried and convicted or acquitted for an offence arising out of a particular set of facts, he cannot, while such conviction or acquittal remains in force, be again tried in respect of any offence based on the same facts, unless the case can be brought under one or other of the specific exceptions to the rule as provided by S. 403 Cr. P. C.—9 N. 26.

(4) When acquittal is no bar to second trial.

26. Acquittal wholly without jurisdiction no bar.—A previous acquittal wholly without jurisdiction is no bar to the Magistrate's taking cognizance of a second complaint on the same facts. A Magistrate acts wholly without jurisdiction in acquitting the accused of a charge under S. 426 I. P. C. under S. 247 Cr. P. C. when he knows that the complainant is dead—15 C. N. 1211. (84) A. N. 260. (88) A. N. 96.

28A. When the High Court quashed the Proceedings—as being altogether without jurisdiction and therefore illegal, their result cannot be pleaded as autrefois acquit, it being necessary to that plea that the first court should have had competent jurisdiction to try the case. 2 W. R. 101, 6 W. R. 13.

28B. "Remains in force"—i.e. so long as the judgment of acquittal or conviction has not been set aside by a Court of appeal or revision.—7 W. R. 2

[Note—A sentence can only be said to be final when it cannot be set aside or interfered with by any Court or authority whether on appeal or otherwise.—12 C 536]

27. Release owing to irregularity.—When the prisoner is released by the Appellate Court on account of illegality or irregularity in the procedure of the lower Court, the release will be no bar to the re-trial of the accused for the same offence. [13 W. R. 42]

28. Acquittal by a Magistrate not having jurisdiction.—The acquittal or conviction of an accused by a Court not having jurisdiction is no bar under this section to institution of fresh proceedings against the accused. 6 W. R. 14, 2 W. R. 9, 29 C 412, 3 M 15 (97/01) 1 B. 11 (10) 1 B 4 q 70, 8 B 307

29. Illegal and inoperative conviction.—Where no notification has been duly issued, as required by S. 1, a conviction under S. 21 of the Forest Act is illegal and inoperative. A second prosecution under the Penal Code on the same facts is therefore not barred by S. 103 Cr. P. C. 1 Weir 759

30. Repeated offences.—A was directed by the Municipal Committee under Burma Municipal Act (111 of 1895) to leave space in the building under construction for scavenging purposes. He disobeyed, was prosecuted and acquitted. He was prosecuted after the disobedience of a fresh notice for a second time and again acquitted. A third notice was issued requiring him to alter the building. He disobeyed again and was prosecuted for the third time, and convicted. A pleaded the two previous acquittals in bar. Held that the offence of which he was convicted at the third trial was not the same as those in the two previous trials: the third offence arose out of a disobedience to a separate notice, and it could not be said that the accused had been convicted on the same facts for another offence for which a different charge might have been made under S. 236 at the previous trials.—5 L. R. 12

31. Continuing offences.—A person who has been tried for building a house without the sanction of the Municipal Committee and acquitted, cannot be retried for the same offence, simply on the ground that the house continued to stand and the offence therefore amounted to a continuing offence. [14 P. W. 3477]

32. S. 403 applied to cases of embezzlement.—Where a person has been tried and convicted for the misappropriation of a gross sum of money, during a certain period, S. 403 Cr. P. C. will be bar to the second prosecution of the man for certain items of misappropriation committed during the same period [17 Cr. 30 (M)]. But where the accused was tried of the offence of criminal breach of trust as a public servant in respect of Rs 12 odd, and was acquitted of the offence; and was again tried for the same offence in respect of another item of Rs 19 odd, misappropriated during the same period as to which the item of Rs 12 related. Held that the previous acquittal did not under the circumstances, operate as a bar to the accused's conviction at the second trial. [12 B. R. 231, Cr. 1, 30 of 12-1/01]

33. Stage at which the plea of autrefois acquit may be pleaded.—On a charge of cheating and criminal breach of trust where the plea taken by the accused was that he had already been tried and acquitted by another Court on a charge involving the same set of facts. Held (1) that this was a matter to be ascertained after hearing the evidence, and ascertaining what the facts in both cases were (2) that if it was found necessary to frame a charge, the accused would be able to set up his previous acquittal as plea in defence.—23 C. N. 399

33A. Acquittal under S. 498 as bar to second trial under S. 383.—The petitioner was sent up for enticing away a married woman with her two minor sons. He was tried and convicted under S. 394 I. P. C. but acquitted on appeal by the District Magistrate, who held that there was no evidence to show that he was present when the woman ran away with her infants. He was tried again under S. 383 I. P. C. with having kidnapped the infants. Held that the acquittal under S. 394 I. P. C., so long as it remained in force, was bar to the second trial under S. 383 Cr. P. C.—56 P. L. 1911.

(5) Application of the Section.

34. S. 403 does not apply to security proceedings.—The expression "discharged" in S. 119 Criminal Procedure Code, means merely discharged from custody and is not used in the technical sense of "discharged" (as opposed to acquitted) from an offence as used in S. 253 Cr. P. C. No charge has to be framed against the accused in security proceedings. Section 495 Cr. P. C. as well as S. 403 Cr. P. C. therefore do not apply to security proceedings.—36 M 315

35. See supra infra

exclusively by the Court of Session, but the Magistrate being of opinion that the facts pointed to a lesser charge tries the accused on the same and acquits him, is open to the Sessions Judge, if he disagrees, to set aside the order of acquittal, and direct under S. 436 Cr. P. C. a commitment on the graver charge. See 401 14 no bar to such an order.—23 M. 126 (F. B.) 22 C. N. 117, Con 20 C 631, 23 M. 225

36. S. 403 does not apply when there was no offence.—Where a complaint was dismissed before an order could be made under S. 2 of the Workman's Breach of Contract Act, held as there could be no offence against the Act except the inflicted by S and R. The police therefore sent up both the accused under S 304 I. P. C. The Magistrate after enquiry committed R to the Sessions, but discharged S, being of opinion that S had at the most committed an offence under S 323 I. P. C. of which he had already been acquitted. S was subsequently directed by the Session Judge to be committed under S. 136 Cr. P. C. Held—that there was no legal bar to the trial of S on a charge under S 304 I. P. C.

ly tried for an offence under S. 106 I. P. C. by a second class Magistrate and acquitted and was subsequently charged under S 109 I. P. C. upon the same facts before a first class Magistrate, held S. 403 subs. 4 Cr. P. C. applied in as much as the same facts on which the accused had been previously acquitted of a minor offence disclosed an offence of a serious nature which could not be tried by the first Magistrate. The previous acquittal therefore was no bar to subsequent proceeding.

49. Second class Bench.—A second class Bench tried regularly a case under S 156 I. P. C. which was transferred to them by the District Magistrate and acquitted the accused. Held that the trial was not void under rule 4 of the Local Government Rules made under Ss. 15 and 16 Cr. P. C. A retrial therefore was barred by S. 107 Cr. P. C. (10) U. B. 14 70

50. Acquittal by Honorary Magistrate of the second class, of charges under Ss. 409 and 477-A. I. P. C.—A case under Ss. 109 and 477-A. I. P. C. was made over for trial to a Honorary Magistrate of the second class, who proceeded to deal with the case as one under S. 408 I. P. C. and acquitted the accused. Held that on a further complaint on the same facts the District Magistrate was competent under the provisions of S 350 (b) and 103 (4) Cr. P. C. to take cognizance of and refer the case for disposal to a first class Magistrate.—23 C. N. 518 29 C. 412

51. Conviction on a charge of assault by a Village Headman no bar to second trial for hurt by Magistrate.—A person was tried and convicted on a charge of assault by a Village Headman. Held that his conviction was no bar to a second trial upon the charge of voluntarily causing hurt on the same facts, as the Village Headman was not competent to try the latter offence.—(19) 3 U. B. 135

52. Acquittal by Magistrate under Ss 325, 326 and 148 I. P. C. no bar to trial by a Court of Session under S. 302 I. P. C.—

The subsequent trial of accused for the offence of murder under S. 302 I. P. C. is justifiable under S. 104 (1) Cr. P. C. notwithstanding the fact that they had been acquitted by the Magistrate of offences under Ss 325, 326, 148 I. P. C. inasmuch as, the subsequent offence though constituted by the same facts could not be tried by the Magistrate who acquitted the accused.—7 P. R. 1912

53. Council of Elders.—The Council of Elders established under the Punjab Regulation (IV. of 1857) is a Court of competent jurisdiction for the purposes of this section.—39 P. R. 1854

54. Magistrate incompetent to try major charges.—Where the Magistrate was not competent to try the offence which forms the subject of charge in the subsequent trial his order of acquittal under minor section will not bar the trial for the major offence.—[S. c. 103 (4)] 7 P. R. 1812

55. Acquittal by a Magistrate having no jurisdiction.—is simply void and is no bar to retrial by a competent Court, although it might not have been at issue.—8 B. 407. Sec 2 N. 119 Contra, 1 L. B. 19

(4) General Remarks, on the rule.

56. Scope of the expression, "has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction."—The phrase "has once been tried by a Court of competent jurisdiction" in S. 403 Subs. (1) of the Crim. P. Code, is not one which limits the application of the provision to reasons affecting the nature or the ordinary powers of the Tribunal. It is wide enough to cover a case where the first trial was ab initio void owing to the absence of a complaint.—19 Cr. 796 (N). [39 A. 344 F.; 36 M. 305 Diss.]

57. Effect of enticement away offence and of made to a Police-officer, he enquired into the offence of theft only, secretly noticing the allegation as to the enticement away of the woman, and reported to a Magistrate that no such offence was even prima facie made out. The Magistrate thereupon, directed him to strike off the offence complained of from the list of reported offences. Held that this was no bar to the taking up of, and proceeding with a fresh complaint of enticement away a married woman inasmuch as there was no dismissal of complaint in respect of that offence.—5 B. 105.

58. The General Rule.—An order of acquittal passed by a Court which is on the face of it a Court of competent jurisdiction, cannot be impeached in any trial of the same person, until it has been set aside by a competent Court.—8 A. J. 1129

IV. POWERS OF THE APPELLATE COURT.

59. Appeal is in effect a continuation of the trial.—S. 103 Cr. P. C. does not apply to an appeal from a conviction under a minor court, so as to bar the power of the High Court to alter the finding and the conviction on the major counts of which the appellant was acquitted by the trying Court, as the appeal is not a second trial but only a continuation of the trial in the Sessions

Court—37 M. 119 23 C 975. 22 C 377 9 A. 134. 11 P W. 1910

60. Failure of Appellate Court to pass orders in explicit terms.—When a conviction or acquittal is set aside the result will be that the previous trial is annulled. The prisoner may therefore be again put upon his trial [7 W R 2]. The fact that the Appellate Court is silent on the point is no ground for inferring that the Court has decided that no retrial should be held [6 C N. 610]

61. Powers of the Appellate Court.

- (1) Where out of two persons tried by a Magistrate one is acquitted and the other convicted, the Sessions Judge in appeal has no jurisdiction to pass any order affecting the acquittal of the other man—8 A J 1129
- (2) Where, the facts disclosed an offence of a more serious nature than could be tried by the Magistrate, but the latter has tried and convicted accused for a minor offence, the Appellate Court can set aside the Magistrate's proceedings and order a fresh trial for the more aggravated offence 21 M 675

62. Effect of interference by Appellate Court.

- (1) Where it is doubtful which of the offences with which the accused was charged has been committed and the accused has been convicted of one of them, the whole case is in law thrown open in appeal and the Appellate Court can reserve the verdict and order a retrial without limiting the scope of the case on all the charges. S. 403 is no bar to such a course—22 C 377 10 C 163 5 L B 211 12 P R 1901
- (2) When a conviction is set aside and a retrial ordered, the whole case is re-opened, and the accused must be tried again on all the charges originally framed. Having regard to the provisions of S. 423 Cr P C. the provisions of S. 403 in this respect, cannot apply—13 Cr 497 (C)

V. WHEN A PERSON ACQUITTED OR CONVICTED MAY BE TRIED AGAIN.

63. Offence tried by a Court without jurisdiction.—Where an offence is tried by a Court without jurisdiction the proceedings are void and the offender if acquitted is liable to be retried under S. 403. It is not necessary for the High Court to upset the acquittal before the retrial can be had.—8 B 307 See Notes no 26 and 28 above

64. Acquittal or conviction on minor offence no bar to trial for major offence.

- (a) The Deputy Magistrate upon a charge of dacoity split up the charge and convicted the accused of rioting, using criminal force and misappropriating the property of a deceased person. The Sessions Judge on appeal reversed the conviction and held that the offence committed if any amounted to dacoity, but the facts being increased, a committal, Judge was no same facts—
- (b) Acquittal on a charge of criminal breach of trust does not bar a conviction for dishonestly receiving stolen property—4 W, R 21

although the two charges may substantially refer to the same occurrence—6 W R 51

66. Person acquitted in a trial for forging one out of two documents.—A person charged with forging two pottas was committed with respect to one of them only but was acquitted; held, that the acquittal was no bar to his being tried again for the remaining potta

7 W. R. 15 (F. B.)

67. Where a new trial is ordered by the High Court.—A Magistrate acquitted 3 out of 5 persons and convicted the remaining 2 of grievous hurt. The latter appealed but the Sessions Judge being of opinion that they were guilty of attempt at murder referred the case to the High Court. The High Court set aside the trial and ordered the 2 appellants to be retried, but proceedings were commenced de novo against all the 5 persons and they were all ultimately convicted. Held, the plea of autrefois acquit could not be urged by the 3 persons previously acquitted 7 N P 371

68. Acquittal under S. 379 no bar to conviction under S. 411.—The mere fact of a person having once been acquitted of the charge of stealing any property does not of itself prevent his trial at any future time on the charge of receiving the same property knowing it to be stolen—

25 W R 47

69. Acquittal under S. 182 P. C. does not bar trial under S. 500 I. P. C.—Where a person in a petition made certain false and defamatory allegations against a Sub-Inspector and was at first tried under S. 182 P C but acquitted on a technical ground—held—the acquittal was no bar to his being subsequently tried under S. 500 I P C—14 C N 839

20 P R 1910

70. Acquittal from two out of three charges based on the same transaction.—Where two persons were charged with adultery, enticing away a married woman and theft, but acquitted of the two major charges, the acquittal would not entitle the accused to be discharged without trial on the charge of theft—5 M. II (1p) 22.

71. Acquittal on account of technical defect.—Where a case of cutting away a married woman was dismissed and the accused acquitted because the husband had not given an authority to his brother (the complainant) to file a complaint—held that the previous acquittal was no bar to a second trial on the husband filing a fresh complaint personally.—31 A 317

72. Conviction set aside for want of jurisdiction.—Where the conviction by a Magistrate, is set aside in appeal on the ground of want of jurisdiction, such an order amounts to an order for discharge, and is no bar to fresh trial on the same charge

74. Person acquitted of making preparation for dacoity.—Persons acquitted of the offence of making preparation for dacoity, may be subsequently tried for collecting men and arms to wage war against the King if no sanction had been granted for the latter offence at the previous trial.—1 L R, 312

75. Conviction under S. 243 I. P. C. is no bar to a second trial under S. 240. I. P. C.—C gave 50 counterfeit coins to P to pass for him. Subsequently C was convicted under S. 213 I P C for being in possession of other counterfeit coins. He was again tried jointly with P in respect of the 50 coins under S. 240 I P C and convicted. Held that the delivery of the 50 coins by C to P with a view to its being changed was a distinct offence to that for which C was previously convicted, and that the second conviction of C was good.—31 C 1057.

76. Trial of offences falling under the purview of two special Acts.—Where the offences under the Excise Act with which the accused was previously charged (and convicted), were distinct and separate from the offence under the Merchandise Marks Act with which he was charged in a second trial, or in other words did not include or involve the latter, though committed in the same transaction a second trial, is not barred.—21 C. 174

[N. B.—the accused was charged in the first trial under S. 61 of the Bengal Excise Act and in the second under S. 146 and 147 P. C. and Ss. 6 and 7 of the Merchandise Marks Act.]

78. Acquittal under S. 403 no bar to trial under S. 305 I. P. C.—Acquittal on a charge under S. 403 P. C. cannot operate under S. 403 Cr. P. C. as a bar to the accused's being again on a charge under S. 395 P. C.—1 B. R. 15

79. Conviction for offence minor no bar to trial for a graver one.

(1) A person convicted under S. 323 for causing hurt can be retried for graver offence after the man had died from the effects of the injury.—3 P. R. 1901. Hat 317.

(2) A person charged with an offence under S. 304 but convicted under S. 323 by a magistrate when the facts showed that an offence under S. 304 had been committed, could be tried again under S. 304 P. C. as the latter offence could not have been tried by the Magistrate.—5 B. R. 125.

PART VII.

OF APPEAL, REFERENCE AND REVISION.

CHAPTER XXXI

OF APPEAL.

404. No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order of a Criminal Court except as provided Unless otherwise provided, no appeal for by this Code or by any other law for the time being in to lie. force

Notes.

(1) Meaning of terms etc.

1. Criminal Court.—means a Criminal Court established in British India or in territories outside British India to which the criminal laws in force in British India have been specially extended. Thus the High Court of Calcutta cannot in appeal or revision interfere with a sentence passed by the Superintendent of the Cuttack Tributary Mehals when exercising jurisdiction over offences committed in Mauurbhanj which is not situate in British India [See 9 C 288 (259) 8 C 985 (F. B.) 7 C. 523] For a similar reason the High Court has no power of interference with sentence by Court exercising jurisdiction over offences committed in the Tributary Mohal of Kheonjhar [16 C 667.] The District Magistrate of Simla was deputed by the Punjab Government to try certain Native Indian subjects of His Majesty for offence committed in a Native State outside British India. Held, the Chief Court had no jurisdiction against sentences passed by him while on such deputation [14 P R 1910]

2. Other law for the time being in force.—
(1) Appeal under the Letters Patent.—See clause 27 of the Calcutta, Madras and Bombay Letters Patent and clause 20 of the Allahabad Letters Patent which is as follows: "And We do further ordain that the said High Court of Judicature at * shall be a Court of appeal from the criminal Courts of the * and from all other Courts subject to its superintendence, and shall exercise appellate Jurisdiction in such cases as are subject to appeal to the said High Court by virtue of any law now in force. See also cl 15 of the Letters Patent [The extraordinary jurisdiction in criminal matters is not to be exercised, unless all other remedies have been exhausted. [3 C 573]

(2) Appeal to the Privy Council. See clause 41 of the Oileutta, Madras and Bombay Letters Patent and cl. 32 of the Allahabad Letters Patent. "It is in the power of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council exercising the prerogative right on behalf of the Crown to entertain appeals even in matters of criminal jurisdiction—1 W. R. 13 (P. C.). See also 15 A. 310; 15 C. 608 (P. N.); 80 C. N. 131; 32 O. 1 25 M. 61 (P. C.)

3. High Court may exercise its appellate powers in revision.—See Notes under S. 430 infra.

(3) Special provisions under the Cr. P. C.—See 195 (6) [which by the way gives no right of appeal as laid down in S. 404 Cr. P. C.—see 40 C. 239, 39 C. 774; 13 Cr. 296 (C)] S. 250(3); 456(1) 515 520 524(2) An order under Ss. 517 or 518 or 519 regarding the disposal of the property being the subject of a criminal case might be considered by a Court of appeal although no appeal had been presented in the case in which the order was passed [9 M. 419]; for it may frequently happen that the question of the propriety of the order may not concern the convicted person in any way [30 379]

4. No appeal lies against the order of a single Judge of the High Court.—The powers of a single Judge in a matter in which he has jurisdiction to deal with, [for it is in the power of a single Judge of the High Court on the appellate side to hear and dispose of appeals in criminal cases [9 B. L. 6] cannot in any way be controlled by a Division Bench of the Court—1 P. R. 1909

(2) Procedure.

5. Petition of appeal how to be presented.—A petition of appeal ought to be presented by the convicted person himself or by any person authorised by the appellant to present it [1 M. 304] "No petition of appeal, on behalf of a person convicted by a criminal court shall be admitted by a criminal Court unless it is either submitted through the district or jail authorities or is presented by a convicted person himself or by some person authorised by a power of attorney to present it on behalf of the convicted person. Petitions of appeal presented by post otherwise than through jail or district authorities shall if possible be returned "bearing"—Punj Cu p. 283

6. Appeals in which stamps are required.—Except where the petition of appeal requires a stamp it is not material whether the appeals of several convicted persons in the same case are made jointly or not. Where a stamp is required, the petitions must be separate and separately numbered, and be accompanied by separate copies of judgment or orders appealed against—Bomb H C. Cr. Cu. p. 42; 2 Weir 457.

7. Appeal is a continuation of the trial.—A Criminal appeal is a continuation of the criminal case, and except so far as there is a provision to the contrary, the appellant has the privilege of the accused and cannot be punished for making a false statement. Where an appellant in his petition of appeal, stated falsely that the Magistrate had declined to summon the witnesses cited and the Appellate Court asked him to give a statement to that effect on solemn affirmation which he did accordingly, held that he could not be convicted under Ss. 181 and 182 P. C. [12 M. 151] The reasons for which the Legislature excluded an accused person from giving evidence in the original trial operate with equal force to preclude his competency as a witness in an appeal from that trial. [19 A. 200 (201)]

8. Venue of offence ceasing to be part of British India pending appeal.—An offence was committed at a place in British India and the appeal on conviction was duly filed before the Sessions Judge. Pending the disposal of the appeal, the place was constituted an independent State. Held that the offence having been committed in British India and the appeal having been presented to the proper Court the mere fact that the venue of the crime has ceased to be British India did not oust the jurisdiction of the Judge. 33 A. 578; See 9 A. J. 51.

9. Effect of an order of acquittal being passed by Sessions Judge not empowered to hear the appeal.—A Sessions Judge acquitted and discharged an accused person in an appeal which he had no jurisdiction to hear. Held that the proceedings were void and the accused was liable to be re-arrested to serve out the rest of the term even after the period of the original sentence had expired [Rat 17]. A Sessions Judge's order erroneously passed in an appeal from a second class Magistrate is ultra vires. [See Reference No 130 of 1906 (A)]

10. Proceedings of Magistrates not empowered.—If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law in this behalf decides an appeal, his proceedings shall be void.—See 530 (r) Cr. P. C.

11. As to disqualification of the Judge or Magistrate to hear appeals.—See Notes under S. 536 Cr. P. C. post.

(3) Limitation.

12. Limitation for presentation of Criminal appeals under the Limitation Act (IX of 1908):

(a) To Courts other than the High Court.—30 days from the date of the sentence or order appealed against—Sch II, Art 154.

(b) To the High Court.—From a sentence of death passed by a Sessions Judge, 7 days [Sch II, Art 150; in other cases, 60 days [Sch. II, Art 155] When the appeal is by a Local Government against an acquittal, six months from the date of acquittal [Sch II, Art 157. 2 C. 436 (F. B.)].

13. Limitation to be strictly enforced.—The provisions of the Limitation Act are to be applied with as much strictness in criminal cases as they are in Civil cases. That the appellant did not know that he has a right of appeal or that he thought his relatives would prefer an appeal is not sufficient cause under S. 5 of Act XV of 1877 for not presenting his appeal in time—(90) 11 A. N. 10.

[Note.—Only such special circumstances, as fraud practised by the other side, a mistake in the office itself or some sudden accident may be treated as sufficient cause for excusing delay—See 13 M. 269 (Civ.) 9 B. R. 893 (Civ.).]

14. Computation of the period.—

(1) Under S. 12 of Act IX of 1908, the day on which the judgment was pronounced and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the sentence or order shall be excluded. [See 10 C. 642].

(2) Meaning of "time requisite for obtaining copies."—The appellant will have the period of grace, when the delay is due to the neglect of officials who issue copies [12 A. 105], but not when the delay is due to the carelessness

(3) When the appellant is in jail.—For the purpose of computing the period of limitation for an appeal from a sentence of a Criminal Court by a person in Jail, the time taken in forwarding applications for copies and in transmission of such copies to the jail, as well as the time occupied in actual preparation of copies in the office of the Court, by which the judgment or order was passed, is to be included in the "time requisite for obtaining a copy within the meaning of S. 12 of the Limitation Act—9 M. 258

405. Any person whose application under section 89 for the delivery of property or the proceeds of the sale thereof has been rejected by any Court may appeal to the Court to which appeals ordinarily lie from the sentences of the former Court.

Appeal from order rejecting application for restoration of attached property.

Note.

406. Any person ordered by a Magistrate, other than the District Magistrate or a Presidency Magistrate, to give security for good behaviour under section 118 may appeal to the District Magistrate.

Appeal from order requiring security for good behaviour

Proposed amendment to the section.—(1) In section 406 of the said Code, after the word "security," the words "for keeping the peace or" shall be inserted

(2) To the same section the following proviso shall be added, namely —

"Provided that nothing in this section shall apply to persons the proceedings against whom are laid before a Sessions Judge in accordance with the provisions of sub section (2) or sub-section (3a) of section 123"

After section 406 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted namely —

"406-A. Any person aggrieved by an order refusing to accept a surety under section 122 may appeal against such order—

(a) if made by a Presidency Magistrate, to the High Court ;

(b) if made by the District Magistrate, to the Court of Session ; or

(c) if made by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate, to the District Magistrate "

Notes.

1. Scope of S. 406.—An appeal under S. 406 can relate to any fact of an order under S. 118 Cr. P. C. and is not necessarily confined to the question whether or not the appellant should be bound over—[8 S. 229]

2. S. 406 and 125 compared.—S. 406 gives an appeal to the District Magistrate from an order to furnish security for good behaviour while S. 123 Cr. P. C. relates to an order for keeping the peace as well as to those from which S. 406 allows an appeal—11 N. 98 See 21 Cr. 591 (N)

3. Sec 406 does not apply to appeals from orders under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—S. 406 Cr. P. C. gives no right whatever to an appeal in proceedings under S. 107 read with S. 114 Cr. P. C.—14 A. J. 268. 27 A. 623 35 A. 103 11 B. R. 740 : See 3 L. B. 21.

4. Orders under S. 106 Cr. P. C.—An order to furnish security under S. 106 Cr. P. C. is a separate order and not a part of the sentence.—2 Weir 460

5. The section does apply to orders under S. 123 Cr. P. C.—No appeal lies when the order of a Magistrate under S. 118 which has been confirmed under S. 123 Supra—15 P. R. 1900. 23 P. R. 1856. 9 C. 678 See (94/01) L. B. 381 (352)

6. Orders under S. 118 by District Magistrates.—No appeal lies from the order of a District Magistrate under S. 110 Cr. P. C. requiring security for good behaviour—(98) A. N. 127.

7. When the appeal to the High Court is barred.—Where the petitioner has not approached the District Magistrate, the High Court is precluded by S. 139 (5) from entertaining an application for revision—S. 8, 229. [? S. 239 P.]

8. ...

S 556 Cr. P. C. debarred him from entertaining an appeal under S. 406 Cr. P. C. without the permission of the Sessions Court.—1 S 98; See (96) A. N. 73

9. Judgments under S. 406 Cr. P. C. should not be sketchy.—The High Court will not ordinarily interfere on merits with proceedings under S. 110 provided that the Court hearing the appeal under S. 406 shows in its judgment that it has really, and not merely nominally considered the evidence on the record. Where the judgment is sketchy and does show that the evidence was carefully examined and weighed, the High Court will interfere.—13 Cr. 9 (A); O. A. J. 457.

10. Appeals from orders under analogous law.—

(1) S. 31-A of the Rangoon Police Act—an order to give security for good behaviour under S. 31-A of the Rangoon Police Act 1899 in addition to three months' R. I. would make the order appealable under this section.—4 L. B. 359

(2) Gambling Act.—A Magistrate in demanding security for good behaviour with reference to S. 17 of the Burma Gambling Act is bound to make an order under S. 115 Cr. P. C. Against an order so made by any Magistrate other than a District Magistrate, an appeal lies under this section.—(97-01) U. B. I 227.

407. (1) Any person convicted on a trial held by any Magistrate of the second or third class.

Appeal from sentence of Magistrate or any person sentenced under section 319 by a Sub-divisional of the second or third class Magistrate of the second class, may appeal to the District

Magistrate

(2) The District Magistrate may direct that any appeal under this section, or any class

Transfer of appeals to first class of such appeals, shall be heard by any Magistrate of the first class Magistrate subordinate to him and empowered by the Local Government to hear such appeals, and thereupon such appeal or class of appeals may be presented to such subordinate Magistrate, or, if already presented to the District Magistrate, may be transferred to such subordinate Magistrate. The District Magistrate may withdraw from such Magistrate any appeal or class of appeals so presented or transferred.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In sub section (1) of section 407 of the said Code, after the figures "349", the words and figures "or in respect of whom an order has been made on a sentence passed under section 380" shall be inserted

Notes.

1. Magistrate invested with first class powers before disposal.—Where a trial was held by a Magistrate holding second class powers, the fact that he was appointed a Magistrate of the first class, before the conclusion of the trial, was held to make no difference, with reference to the question of appeal, which therefore was held to lie to the District Magistrate.—4 L. B. 239.

2. Bench Magistrates.—Under S. 407 an appeal lies from a conviction by a Bench of Magistrates exercising second or third class powers and the Bench is bound to record a judgment under S. 264 [9 M. 36]. But no appeal lies to a District Magistrate, in a case tried under Chap. XVIII of the Crim. Pro. Code, from the decision of a Bench of may be made, under S. 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act. It follows that a person against whom an order under S. 22 of the Cattle Trespass Act is made, is a "person convicted on a trial" and an appeal against such conviction therefore lies under S. 407 of the Code.—29 M. 517. (701) 1 Weir 712

4. The terms "ordinary lie" in S. 195(7) does not include a Court specially authorised to hear appeals under S. 407(2) Cr. P. C.—The Court of a first class Magistrate specially authorised under S. 407(2) Cr. P. C. to hear appeals from the sentence of a Magistrate of the second or third class is not the Court to which appeals from such subordinate Court "ordinarily lie" within the meaning of S. 195(6) and (7) Cr. class Magistrate or Subdivisional Magistrate * *. The appeal therefore lies under S 408 Cr. P. C. to the Court of Session. Per Shah J. in 17 B. R. 895

3. Scope of Proviso (a)—Effect of waiver.—Where the District Magistrate has explained to the accused the procedure which would be followed if the accused claimed to be tried as a European British Subject and the accused preferred to be tried by a Magistrate, the result of the waiver was to render Ss 440 and 408 Cr. P. C. inapplicable, with the result that the accused would have no right of appeal to the High Court. He should appeal to the Court of Session.—2 Pat W. 79

4. Exceptions to proviso (a)—Sentences of

5. Person jointly tried with a European British Subject—cannot claim under S. 452 infra, the right to appeal to the High Court. Such right is not given by proviso (a) nor is it implied.—14 B 169.

6. Application of proviso (b)—when a Sessions Judge has confirmed the sentences passed by the Assistant Sessions Judge on some of the accused persons, he has no jurisdiction to hear the appeals preferred by any of the prisoners in the same case, as such appeals lie to the High Court under S 408 proviso (a) of the Cr. P. C. [Rat 655].

7. Object of proviso (b)—the reason for proviso (b) of S 408 obviously is that, when a long term of imprisonment has to be undergone, the question whether the offence is proved, should be tried, in appeal by a court of higher grade than it would be tried by, if the sentence were less.—Per Inam J. in 4 L. B. 53 (54)

8. Appeal under proviso (b).—When an Assistant Sessions Judge sentences some of the accused to less than 4 years R. I. but the remaining to more than 4 years, the appeal by the former would in view of the language of cl. (b) "the rule chosen"

9. Concurrent Sentences of 4 years.—Where an Assistant Sessions Judge passes Sentences upon an accused, each of which is 4 years or under and they are ordered to run concurrently the appeal from the conviction and sentence lies to the Sessions Court and not to the High Court.—23 C. J. 595 11 B. R. 544: 25 P. R. 1901. 11 A. J. 111 17 C. N. 825: 17 C. N. 72. 17 C. J. 392

10. Appeal from Sentence by Special Magistrate.—Where a Magistrate exercising powers under S 30 Cr. P. C. sentenced one of the two prisoners to 2 years R. I. and the other accused to 3 years R. I. Held that the appeal by the former (even when the latter has no appeal) would lie to the Chief Court.—[5 P. R. 1916: 12 P. R. 1900: 17 M. J. 219: See 4 L. B. 53] A District Magistrate acting under S 349 Cr. P. C. is not a Special Magistrate. An appeal from any sentence passed by him would therefore lie to the Court of Session. [4 L. B. 53].

11. Sentences exceeding 4 years in the aggregate—where out of the appellants five in number, two had been sentenced to 6 years R. I. in the aggregate, one to 5½ years and the remaining two to 3 years R. I. in the aggregate. Held that the appeal lay to the Chief Court and not to the Court of Session in all cases.—161 P. L. 1911. See 12 P. R. 1900 [See 171. Computation of sentences in appeal, under S 35 Supra: p. 60].

12. Appeal under proviso (c)—See Note no 109 under Sec 35 Supra.

13. Principles governing the right of appeal under special Acts—where a special enactment does not lay down the procedure applicable to trials held under it, the Criminal Procedure Code must be followed; and where the trial is held under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, an appeal will lie under S. 408

14. Appeal lies on fact as well as on law—See Rat 954: 626.

15. Where there are two Sessions Divisions in one district—Under S 435, the Sessions Judge may call for and examine the records of any inferior Criminal Court "situate" within the local limits of his jurisdiction. The word "Situate" means fixed or located, and when applied to a Court, it must be taken to refer to the place where the Court, ordinarily, sits. In the absence of any indication to the contrary in the Code, the principle thus laid down in regard to the analogous powers of revision under S 435, should be followed in the case of the appeals under S 408. So where a Magistrate, against whose decision appeal is preferred has his headquarters in a place within the limits of one of the two Sessions Divisions in a District (Malabar), though he is authorised to try offences throughout the whole District, including cases arising within the other Sessions Division, the appeal lies to the Sessions Court of the place where the offence was committed.—30 M. 136.

16. Note—An offence was committed within the limits of the Ganjam Agency Tracts. The case was transferred by the Agent to the first class Magistrate who had jurisdiction over the Agency as well as the Non-agency Tracts. The Sessions Judge of the Non-agency Sessions Division set aside the conviction. Held that the proper forum of the appeal was the Agent and not the Sessions Judge as the case had been tried by the Magistrate as an Agency Magistrate.—23 M. J. 670.

17. Special provisions in Regulation.—As to appeals from sentences of District Magistrates in Upper Burma in cases other than those affecting European British subjects—See the Upper Burma Criminal Justice Regulation (V of 1892) sect. Ss X and XVII As to similar appeals in

British Beluchistan See S 13 of the British Beluchistan Criminal Justice Regulation VII of 1896, for appeals from decisions under the Punjab Frontier Crimes Regulation III of 1901—See Chap LII of that Regulation

Appeals to Court of Session how heard

409. An appeal to the Court of Session or Sessions Judge shall be heard by the Sessions Judge or by an Additional Sessions

Judge.

Note.

1. Additional Sessions Judge competent to grant sanction.—An additional Sessions Judge is competent to grant sanction to prosecute in a matter arising out of a trial before a Magistrate having first class powers inasmuch as an appeal would ordinarily lie from the Court of the latter to the former—[4 Pat J 374] See 493 Cr P C makes sentences appealable to the Court of Session and under S 409, read with S 9 of the Code, an Additional Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to hear such appeals For the purposes of S 195 Subs (7), therefore a Magistrate is subordinate to an Additional Sessions Judge and consequently an Additional Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to grant sanction refused by a Magistrate. [14 Cr 195 (O)]

Appeal from sentence of Court of Session

410. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Sessions Judge, or an Additional Sessions Judge, may appeal to the High Court.

Notes.

1. May appeal.—This section gives a right of appeal, as distinguished from an indulgence to be heard or not to be heard. (91) A N 43 (F.B.).
2. European British Subject in Oudh.—The appellant, whose claim to be dealt with as a European British Subject was admitted both by the committing Magistrate and the Court of Session, was convicted under Ss 417 and 474 I P O He filed an appeal against his conviction in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh Held (1) that the appeal in the case, under S 410 Cr P C lay to the High Court (2) that the word "High Court" in reference to proceedings against European British Subjects in Oudh means the High Court of Judicature for the North-Western Provinces [13 O C 335]
3. Taking of additional evidence by Appellate Court does not make the appellate judgment appealable.—Under the Code of 1861 it was held that where the Magistrate decided the case without taking evidence for the defence and the Sessions Judge on appeal, had the defence evidence taken by the Magistrate before disposing of the appeal, held that the judgment of the Sessions Judge confirming the Magistrate's judgment and sentence was in substance an original judgment and appeal lay to the High Court on the merits [2 W R. 13 8 W R 59] These rulings were held to have been overruled by the amendments in the subsequent Codes in 22 C 372 where it was laid down that "an appellant whose appeal is dismissed by an Appellate Court, after it has taken additional evidence and r S 423, has no right of appeal to the High Court."

4. Conviction under S. 2'8 by the Judge amounts to a trial under this Section.—An order by a Sessions Judge under S 228 Penal Code, imposing a fine on a person for intentional insult to a Judge, when sitting in a state of a judicial proceeding, amounts to a trial, although by a summary mode, and is therefore appealable. 4 M H. 146
5. S. 410 does not apply to appeals from convictions of offences within Chittagong Hill Tracts.—By Act XVIII of 1860, S I the tracts of country described in the Schedule to the Act and known as the Chittagong Hill Tracts, are removed from the jurisdiction of the existing Civil and Criminal Courts. Consequently, the High Court has no jurisdiction to hear appeals in respect of sentences passed on conviction of offences committed in those districts —27 C 654

411. Any person convicted on a trial held by a Presidency Magistrate may appeal to the High

Appeal from sentence of Presidency Magistrate

Court, if the Magistrate has sentenced him to imprisonment for a term exceeding six months or to fine exceeding two hundred rupees

Notes.

1. Meaning of the term "exceeding."—The expression "a term exceeding six months" means a term of substantive imprisonment exceeding six months. It does not refer either to a sentence which awards imprisonment and fine or to any alternative imprisonment in default of fine. The words of the section are confined in the meaning to substantive sentences and cannot be extended to include an award of imprisonment in default of fine. So an appeal does not for instance, lie from the sentence passed by a Presidency Magistrate, of six months R 1 and a fine of Rs 200 [2 M, 30 16 C 799 (801) 20 B 145 10 Cr 275 (11); See 33 C 1096]

2. Concurrent sentences of six months R. 1—Where the accused is convicted of two offences and two separate sentences of six months' R 1 are passed one on each count and both are directed to run concurrently, the sentence, will be considered a single sentence of six months and will not be appealable under S. 411 I. P. C.—17 O J. 392. See C. 575.
3. Conviction by Presidency Magistrate on plea of guilty.—See Notes No 2 under S 412 infra

412. Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, where an accused person has pleaded

No appeal in certain cases when guilty and has been convicted by a Court of Session or any accused pleads guilty Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class on such plea there shall be no appeal except as to the extent or legality of the sentence

Notes.

1. Object of the section.—The object of this sect on construed in its plain and obvious sense, is to limit the right of appeal. When the accused has pleaded guilty to such matter as may be a special ground of complaint with respect to the sentence as distinguished from the conviction itself, whether on the ground that the extent of the sentence is beyond what the circumstances of the case required or that the sentence is illegal as not authorized by law.—5 B 85 See Rat 826

2. S. 411 is subject to the provisions of S. 412 Cr. P. C.—When an accused person has been convicted on his own plea by a Presidency Magistrate, no appeal shall lie except as to the extent or legality of the sentence although he is sentenced for a term exceeding six months or fine exceeding Rs 200.—[ibid]

3. No appeal after conviction on plea of guilty.—

(a) Although there is nothing in law to prevent an appeal even after the expiration of the term of the sentence, S 412 bars an appeal in such a case, where the accused was convicted on his plea of guilty.—20 P R 1917

(b) Effect of a plea of guilty to a charge of previous conviction.—Where a charge has been framed against an accused under S 22(7) Cr P C and such person has pleaded guilty to the charge, that he is a previous convict, the Appellate Court under S 412 of the Code, is precluded from opening the question whether the accused is a previous convict.—1 N. 163

4. Change in the section.—The words "or Magistrate of the first class" have considerably enlarged the scope of the section. These words have the effect of superseding the rulings in 22 B 759 Rat 954

413 Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, there shall be no appeal by a convicted

No appeal in petty cases person in cases in which a Court of Session or the District Magistrate or other Magistrate of the first class passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding one month only or of fine not exceeding fifty rupees only or of whipping only Explanation—There is no appeal from a sentence of imprisonment passed by such Court or Magistrate in default of payment of fine when no substantive sentence of imprisonment has also been passed.

Notes.

Appealable sentence passed on some of the accused.

1. (1) where of the two accused one is sentenced to 4 months' R 1 and fine and the other to a fine of Rs 50 only. Held that the latter had a right of appeal to the Sessions Court and that right is not taken away by S 413 Cr P C for that section withholds right of appeal only in cases i. e. trials in which the only sentence passed is imprisonment of one month or less or a fine of Rs. 50 or less or whipping.—4 L. B. 354 (F. B.). 30 P R. 1915 16 P R 1916 Con 5 B R. (C O) 24. 7 B. R (C O) 35. 7 M. H (Appr) r. 9 M T 322.

2. (2) If an assistant Sessions Judge trying two or more persons jointly passes in respect of any one of those persons a sentence of imprisonment for a term exceeding 4 years, the appeal of all the persons convicted at the same trial will lie to the High Court, even though the sentence passed upon some of these persons is far below the limit laid down by S. 408, proviso (b)—38 A 395

17 M. J. 248 Con 16 M. T. 33.

3. Note per contra.—The words "notwithstanding anything herein before contained" in the opening words of S. 113 seem to me to be very important words and they set aside any right of appeal which might be held to have been created by S. 407 to S. 410 Cr. P. C. [An accused person who has been convicted and sentenced to a fine of Rs. 50 has no right of appeal merely because a co accused has been sentenced to one year's R. I. and a fine of Rs. 100. Per Knox J in 39 A 203.]

4. Magistrate making sentence appealable at the request of the accused.—A magistrate trying a case passed at first an unappealable sentence on the accused, but shortly afterwards, at the request of the accused, added to the sentence to one day's imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 50 - but the accused were neither sent to jail nor actually imprisoned, an appeal lay to the Sessions Court under S. 413 [33 A. 516] But the addition of an order of confiscation to a sentence passed under S. 51 Excise Act, does not render the sentence appealable as the order of confiscation is not part of the sentence [3 L. B. 1902]

6. Aggregation of concurrent sentences.—Where the accused persons were convicted on two separate charges and sentenced to one month's R. I. on each count, by a first class Magistrate, the sentences to run concurrently Held—that an appeal lay to the Court of Session—15 C. N. 734

7. Further restrictions in Upper Burma.—In Upper Burma (except the Shan States), the Upper Burma Criminal Justice Regulation V of 1892 Sch. XI, provides that no appeal shall lie in any case in which a District Magistrate or Court of Sessions passes a sentence for a term not exceeding six months or of fine not exceeding Rs. 500 or of whipping or of all or any of these punishments combined

8. Aggregation of separate sentences.—Where a person is charged with two separate offences in one trial, the amount of the whole punishment awarded for the two offences must be regarded as one sentence for the purpose of determining whether an appeal lies or not—3 C. L. 511, 1 B. 223

9. Order under S. 31 Court Fees Act.—An order under S. 31 of the Court Fees Act directing the accused to pay the complainant the Court-fee paid on his petition, is no part of the sentence so as to make it a sentence of fine within the terms of this section—20 C. 687, 1 Wei 734 person in any case tried summarily in which a Magistrate empowered to act under section 260 passes a sentence of imprisonment not exceeding three months only, or of fine not exceeding two hundred rupees only or of whipping only.

Proviso to sections 413 and 414, by which any two or more of the punishments therein mentioned are combined, but no sentence which would not otherwise be liable to appeal shall be appealable merely on the ground that the person convicted is ordered to find security to keep the peace

Explanation—A sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not a sentence by which two or more punishments are combined within the meaning of this section.

Proposed amendment to the section.—After section 415 of the said Code the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"415. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter, no person shall be liable to appeal against trial, and any of such persons in respect of whom an appealable judgment or order has been passed, appeals, all or any of the persons convicted at such trial shall have a right of appeal."

Notes.

1. Ss. 414 and 415 do not apply to orders under the Rangoon Police Act—When two persons are jointly tried at a summary trial under S 30 of the Rangoon Police Act, and one of them was sentenced to three months' R. I. and was further ordered under S 31-A to give security for good behaviour, held, the addition of such order to give security for good behaviour did not render the sentence appealable and that the provision in S 415 Cr. P. O. will not apply to an order under the Rangoon Police Act, S 31-A.—4 L. R. 379.

2. Object of S. 415.—S 408 Cr. P. C. distinctly lays down that any person convicted on a trial held by a Magistrate of the first class may appeal to the Court of Session S 413 is an exception to the general rule laid down in S 408, S 415 is explanatory and apparently was entered in the Code to remove all possible doubts which might arise in all cases considered therein.—33 A. 310.

Saving of sentences on European British subjects.

416. Nothing in sections 413 and 414 applies to appeals from sentences passed under Chapter XXXIII. on European British subjects.

Note.

1. Right of appeal of an accused person jointly tried with a European British Subject—This Section does not give a right of appeal to the High Court to an accused person jointly tried with European British Subject, on whom only such right is conferred.—14 B. 160.

417. The Local Government may direct the Public Prosecutor to present an appeal to the High Court from an original or appellate order of acquittal passed by any Court other than a High Court.

Notes

I. GENERAL PRINCIPLES.

1. Object of S. 417.—The law, by limiting the right of appeal against judgments of acquittal to the Local Government, prevents personal vindictiveness from seeking to call in question judgments of acquittal by way of appeal and evidently intends that such interference shall take place only in cases where there has been a miscarriage of justice so grave as would induce the Local Government to move in the matter, [22 C. 164: See 33 P. R. 1915 15 P. R. 1698 10 P. R. 1897 29 P. R. 1885. 26 M. 1] An appeal is to be allowed in the interests of public safety, peace and order [15 P. R. 1909]

if the High Court thinks that the lower Court has taken an erroneous view of the evidence, it has no jurisdiction to refuse to convict. The power of appeal under S 417 Cr. P. C. is one that should be exercised sparingly by Government. But the discretion to exercise that right of appeal appertains to Government and is not subject to the control of the Court.—9 S. 17. 17 C. P. 75. 43 P. R. 1917. See 26 M. J. 160. 2 C. 273. 9 C. J. 378. 21 Cr. 17 (B).

reception of evidence, misdirection or that the verdict is against the evidence and the same principle has been extended to misdemeanours [R v. Duncan 7 Q. B. D. 195: See R v. Gaulay Justices 2 Ir. R. 449 R v. Antrim Justices 2 Ir. R. 603 R v. Simpson 30 T. L. R. 31] In India however matters stand on a different footing. Here appeals against orders of acquittal are allowed by S 417 Cr. P. C., a provision of law which is quite alien to the principles upon which English Courts administer the law against criminals. Per Spencer J. in 26 M. J. 160, See 11 W. R. 29

4. No distinction in procedure between right of appeal against acquittal and appeal against conviction—The Government has the same right of appeal against an acquittal as a convicted person has against his conviction. The Code makes no distinction as to the procedure to be adopted, or as to the principles upon which such appeals are to be decided [2 Weir 462]. Both appeals are governed by the same rules and subject to the same limitations [17 C. 485 20 C. N. 128. 17 C. P. 75 7 P. R. 1804. 29 P. R. 1885. 20 A. 459 36 A. 168 26 M. J. 160]. Any rule of Court which differentiates their position in this respect would be tantamount to an usurpation of legislative functions by the Court [7 P. R. 1904. See 17 C. 485].

benefit is in favour of the appellant 13 J. L. 100

3. Scope of the Section—The Criminal Procedure Code makes no distinction between an appeal from a conviction and an appeal from an acquittal. In the appeal from an acquittal,

6. Procedure.—Where the Government appeals and asks for a conviction, it is for it to begin and to satisfy by the Court that there is a case calling upon the prisoner for an answer [20 W. R. 33]

Interference justified only when the judgment of lower Court is manifestly perverse.

7. (1) In ordinary cases.—The High Court ought not to interfere with an acquittal by a Magistrate who had the witnesses before him and arrived at conclusions of fact with this great advantage in his favour, unless the Judge was clearly wrong and the judgment perverse or based on obvious errors of procedure. [16 Cr 529 (M) Cl A. No. 317 of 1914 (M) 70 P L 1918. 25 P R 1918 125 P. L 1914 328 P. L 1913. 14 P R 1909 11 P. R 1903 17 C 485 18 C N. 366] The doing so should be limited to those instances in which the lower court has so obstinately blundered and gone wrong as to produce a result mischievous at once to the administration of justice and the interest of the public [4 A 143. 26 M 1 10 P R 1897]
8. (2) The general rule.—Sound principles of criminal jurisprudence require that the indications of error in the judgment of acquittal ought to be clearer and more palpable and the evidence more cogent and convincing to justify its being set aside than would be necessary in the case of a conviction [7 P R 1904 30 P W 1918 12 P R 1919 21 Cr 349 (P) See 11 C L 25 23 C 347] The indications of mistake must be obvious or the evidence too strong to be rejected, before the Court should interfere. The consideration that the Court of Appeal itself would have arrived at a different conclusion had it tried the accused person as a Court of original jurisdiction, is immaterial [125 P L 1914 7 P W 1916 70 P L 1918 18 C N 366 30 J 477]
9. (3) Cases tried with the aid of assessors.—In all cases of appeals, the Judges of the Court of appeal are naturally very cautious in interfering with the judgment of a Judge and assessors before whom the witnesses were examined, ground that in all criminal cases the accused is entitled to have the advantage of any doubt that may arise in the case, but after giving the accused every benefit which he can derive from such a decision in his favour, if the High Court is still of opinion, that he is guilty of the offence with which he has been charged, there is no discretion left to the Court as to whether to find him guilty or not [17 C. 485 Rat 756 (757) ('93-'00) L B 42 (46): 2 L B 303 21 A. 122].

10. (4) Misappreciation of evidence.—When a Sessions Judge has overlooked the main and crucial circumstance which goes to corroborate the evidence of an accomplice and has acquitted the accused, the High Court will not be departing from its doing violence to the principle laid down in 4 A 149 by entertaining the appeal by the Government, and determining one way or the other the guilt of the accused—Per Straught J. in 9 A 528 (F. B.) See 16 A 212 13 P W. 1912
11. (5) Acquittal without taking evidence.—Where the accused were acquitted by the Magistrate upon the result of a local enquiry without taking any oral evidence. Held that the order of acquittal was without jurisdiction and should be set aside—39 C 931 See Rat 83

When an appeal does not lie.

12. (1) Acquittal by Jury on facts.—Where the Local Government appealed against an order of acquittal in a case tried by jury, the High Court rejected the application, as the grounds on which it was preferred were all questions of fact—10 C. 1029 See S 418 infra] The only ground on which the High Court can interfere is that the verdict is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge or to misunderstanding on the part of the jury as to the law laid down by him [26 M 1]
13. (2) Discovery of fresh evidence after acquittal.—In an appeal against acquittal, the fact that fresh evidence against the accused has been discovered subsequent to the acquittal is not a sufficient reason for sitting aside the acquittal and ordering a new trial—3 L R 111 See (02 03) U B 9 26 M J 100 [Per Miller J.]
14. (3) At an interlocutory stage.—It is not open to the Government under S 417 to appeal to the High Court on an interlocutory order ex on the ground of the Sessions Judge's refusal to add new charges—16 B 414
15. (4) Acquittal under S. 494 (b).—Where an acquittal follows a withdrawal by the public Prosecutor under the provisions of S 494 Cr P C there is no appeal against it under this section,—18 M J (S N) 77

II. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

16. Who may appeal.—The rule that an acquittal cannot be interfered with by the High Court except upon an appeal being preferred by the Local Government under S 417 [See 1 A 139 (F. B.) 14 M 363 G C L 245 19 W R 55 3 B 150. Con 6 N P 367 2 A 44] has been consistently relaxed in the later rulings. It is now well established that the High Court can revise an order of acquittal under S 439 Cr P C though the practice will ordinarily be discouraged. See Notes under S 423 infra

Who may present appeal on behalf of Government.

17. (1) Where the Legal Remembrancer of Bengal was requested by the Government of Bihar and Orissa to file an appeal against acquittal but the latter did not appoint him a public prosecutor within the meaning of S 432 Cr P C. Held that the mere fact that a person has been directed to present an appeal to the High Court does not involve his appointment as a public prosecutor for the purposes of the case. The appeal was therefore incompetent. [18 C J 519.]

18. (2) Legal Remembrancer Bengal.—Although the office of Legal Remembrancer of Bengal which received legislative sanction in Regulation VIII of 1816 was abolished by the Reg. III of 1829, it was revived in 1844 or 1845, and the fact that the office is now the creation of executive or administrative order in no way obscures the identity of the officer. Therefore an appeal against acquittal presented to the High Court by the Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs Bengal, (who by notification dated 19th May 1915 has been appointed by the Local Government to be, by virtue of his office, Public Prosecutor in all cases heard by the High Court of Bengal in the exercise of its Appellate jurisdiction,) is not incompetent.—16 C 345

19. What amounts to an order of acquittal.—Where in case tried by a Jury, an accused person charged with murder is acquitted of that charge, but convicted of culpable homicide not amounting to murder, and an appeal is preferred by the Government Pleader at the instance of the Legal Remembrancer, held that an appeal due to the Government so far as the charge of murder was concerned [2 C 273]. The words "appellate judgment of acquittal" in S 272 (S 417) were held to include all judgments of an Appellate Court by which a conviction is set aside.—[24 W. R. 11]

20. When an appeal should be filed and when not.—The Local Government will not direct an appeal (1) where the case is trifling in itself and the acquittal involves no erroneous principle of law, the correction of which is of public importance. (2) where, however serious or otherwise important the case, the legal guilt of the accused is fairly questionable or the evidence admits of any reasonable doubt and the Court has considered and weighed it with impartiality, intelligence and care. (3) merely on account of the production of fresh evidence after the acquittal. (4) when there is no distinct probability that the appeal will result in an order for retrial at the least. Punj R & O p 377 Punj Civ Ch LXXVIII (A)

21. Limitation.—An appeal against acquittal presented six months after the date of the judgment complained of is barred by lapse of time. [11 B H 117. See Sch II, Act 157, Act IX of 1905]. The sixty days rule does not apply to appeals under S 417 [See 2 C 436 (F. B.) 6 B 26]. But it is desirable that an appeal should be preferred as expeditiously as possible. [5 A 253 (255)] The six months' rule is however subject to the provisions of the section which allows an extension on sufficient cause being shown for the delay [1 Weir 791].

22. Re-arrest of persons acquitted.—The High Court has power on the admission of an appeal under this section to order the re-arrest of the person or persons acquitted [2 A 340 (F. B.) 1 C 231]. In capital cases, when the Local Government appeals under S 417 Cr. P. C., it is undesirable that the prisoner's fate should be discussed while he remains at large. The Government should in such cases apply for his arrest under S 127 Cr. P. C. [9 A 528 (F. B.).]

23. Arrest pending an appeal.—Where a person accused of an offence was discharged by the Sessions Judge and he was rearrested by the Magistrate pending an appeal from the acquittal to the High Court, and before the appeal was admitted, held that the rearrest was lawful and absolutely necessary in the interests of justice.—Per Stuart C. J. in 2 A. 346.

[Note.—Where the accused so arrested is convicted, the sentence passed will run not from the date of arrest but from the actual date of commitment to jail.—6 C L 347].

24. Appeal should be confined to the grounds taken in the application.—The High Court exercising its jurisdiction in the matter of appeals against acquittal should confine its exercise to the particular acquittal complained of by Government. At the same time it would not be proper for the High Court to consider the appeal on grounds not contained in the objection urged on behalf of the Government.—Per Ranade J. in 19 B 51 (64) 17 C P. 75

Note.—In an appeal against acquittal of a specific offence the High Court will not convict the accused person of an offence entirely different from that charged against him and not even suggested in the grounds of appeal.—[63 P. L. 1911] A new objection however will not necessarily be thrown out, when the accused cannot be said to be taken by surprise. [See 12 B H 1]

Powers of the High Court.

25. (a) Evidence.—In an appeal by the Local Government under S. 417 Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court is a Court of Appeal on matters of fact, as well as of law and must decide questions of fact from the whole of the evidence on record.—4 C J 378
26. (b) Powers.—The Appellate Court may "in an appeal from an order of acquittal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made or that the accused be re-tried or committed for trial, as the case may be, or find him guilty and pass sentence on him according to law."—See 123 (1) (a) post. 13 B 506. H P L. 1913.
27. Procedure when the District Magistrate is of opinion that an appeal should be filed.—(1) He should prepare a brief narrative of the facts of the case and a statement of the reasons why he considers an appeal advisable and will forward them with the original record to the Commissioner. That officer will forward the case to Government (with whom the ultimate decision rests) whatever may be his opinion as to its worth.—N. W. P. R & R s. 10, para 33, p 223
28. Appeal in Police Cases.—If it is considered advisable to appeal against an order of acquittal in a case where a Police officer prosecutes in his capacity of general prosecutor on behalf of or at the instance of his own department, the proposal to appeal should be submitted to Government through the Inspector General or his Deputy, in other cases through the head of the department concerned—Panj R. & O. Ch. XXIV. p. 377.

- 418 An appeal may be on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law except where the trial was by jury, in which case the appeal shall lie on a matter of law only.

Appeal on what matters admissible.

Explanation.—The alleged severity of a sentence shall for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a matter of law.

Proposed amendment to the section.—Section 418 of the said Code shall be re-numbered section 415 (1), and to the said section the following subsection shall be added, namely—

“(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub section (1), or in section 423, sub-section (2), when, in the case of a trial by jury, any person is sentenced to death, any other person convicted in the same trial with the person so sentenced, may appeal on a matter of fact as well as a matter of law.”

Notes.

- 1. Scope of the Section.—The provisions of S. 418 show that the section is applicable to appeals by Local Government against orders of acquittal as well as by convicted persons against conviction and sentence—10 C. 1029 17 C P. 75

- 2. Principles of the Section.—This Section gives finality to the verdict of a jury, where there has been no error of law or misdirection, and when the Judge has concurred with the majority of the jury. [Rat 730] The provisions of S. 423 clearly show that an appeal against an order of acquittal in a case tried by jury must be supported on a ground, which is covered by S. 418 of the Code, which provides, in case of trial by jury, for an appeal on a matter of law only. When the Local Government applied to the High Court under S. 417, against an order of acquittal, upon grounds all of which raised questions of facts, the High Court rejected the application [10 C 1029]

- 3. Reason of the rule.—If the High Court were to go into the evidence in the case and decide the question whether the conviction is right, it would be substituting its own decision for the verdict of the jury who have an opportunity of watching the demeanour of the witnesses and weighing their evidence with the assistance which this affords.—21 C 935

- 4. S. 418 does not limit powers under S. 307.—The clear provisions of S. 307 are not in any way curtailed or cut down by this section and it is open to the High Court to go into the facts in a case referred under S. 307 Supra—9 A 120

- 5. Appeal heard in conjunction with a reference under S. 374 Cr. P. C.—It is not open to the High Court in an appeal against a conviction in a trial by jury to go into facts and the appeal must be limited, as pointed out in Ss. 414 and 423(d) to points of law, notwithstanding that the appeal is heard along with a reference under S. 374 in the case of a co-accused [2 C. N. 49 But see 14 W. R. 57]

- 6. Meaning of the expression “where the trial was by jury.”—The words “where the trial was by a jury” in S. 418 Cr. P. C. mean “where the trial in fact was by jury” and not where the trial should have been by jury—Per Jenkins CJ in 25 B 690 (F. B.); See 23 B 696 23 C 355 3 C 765 [Per Mitter J.].

[Note.—The above view is by no means the generally accepted view. The effect of trying a case which by law should have been tried with the aid of assessors, by a jury is according to Chief Justice Jenkins, to invest the trial with finality so far as pure questions of fact are concerned. The opposite standpoint may be thus enunciated in the words of Glover J. “In a case tried by a jury which ought to have been tried with the aid of assessors the High Court can dispose of the appeal on the evidence and need not restrict itself, as it would have done had the trial been held with a jury to questions of law” [18 W. R. 59; See also 24 W. R. 30 3 C 765 Rat 961 G M J 14]

- 7. Where the jury convict the accused of a charge triable with assessors.—The effect of S. 238 (supra) is to invest a jury trying an offence triable by jury with authority to find, as an incident to such trial, that certain facts only are proved in the trial, which facts constitute a minor offence, and return a verdict of guilty of such offence, though it may not be triable by a jury. The Session Judge may thereupon record a judgment convicting the accused of such minor offence although he is not charged with it. * * * Therefore an appeal will lie from such judgment only on a point of law. Per Bhaskyam Ayyangar J. [Benson J. Contra] 26 M 213 4 C L 407; But See 26 M 243(N)

[Note.—But where some of the charges tried, are triable by assessors, the opinion of the jury as regards those charges should be recorded as the opinion of assessors and the appeal will lie on matters of fact as well, so far as those charges are concerned—See Rat 600]

Powers of the Appellate Court.

- 8. (1) Power to go into evidence.—In an appeal by Government from an acquittal by a verdict of jury, the High Court can alter such verdict only if it is of opinion that it is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge or to a misunderstanding on the part of the jury as to the law laid down by him. In that case it is to proceed under S. 123 infra. In order to act under that section and to determine if the verdict is erroneous and if so which of the powers given under S. 123 the High Court should exercise, it is absolutely necessary for it to go into the facts and to consider the evidence in the case before passing orders in it.—Per Davis J in 20 M 1.

9. (2) Why the evidence may be looked into.—An appellate Court, may, in the case of a trial by jury, undoubtedly look at the evidence to see whether the misdirection complained of has caused a miscarriage of justice in this sense, i.e., whether in spite of the misdirection the conviction and the verdict are or are not justified in law as they stand, and if they are, then the Appellate Court will refuse to interfere. * * But it is not for the Appellate Court to look at the evidence with a view to see whether another jury might not have arrived at a verdict of guilty on another charge—that is to usurp the function of the jury and to substitute the Appellate Court's opinion for the verdict of the jury.—39 A 343 See 21 C 955.

10. (3) Where the Sessions Judge has refused to refer under S. 307 Cr. P. C.—The High Court cannot interfere with the verdict of the jury, when the Sessions Judge has refused to refer the case under S. 307 Cr. P. C. [4 M 483 14 M 36 See 17 M 343]

11. (4) In considering admissibility of rejected evidence.—The words "in any case" in S. 167 of the Evidence Act are wide enough and include criminal trials by jury. [2 B, 61 19 B 749 32 B 111 (Per Russell A C J) 9 B H 358 (F. B.)] In 2 B 61 and 1 C 207 it was held that the High Court on a point of law as to the admissibility of evidence, reserved under cl. 25 of the Letters Patent, can review the whole case and determine whether the rejected evidence would have affected the result of the trial. The principles underlying the above rulings are apparently not in conflict with the provisions of S. 418. See 25 W R 36 10 B 749, 9 B H 358 (F. B.) 10 B H 497 10 M J. 147 (F. B.)]

12. (5) Where part of the evidence which has been allowed to go to the jury is held inadmissible, it is open to the High Court, in appeal either to uphold the verdict upon the remaining evidence on the record, or to quash the verdict and order a new trial.—19 B 749; 10 B H 497.

13. Procedure.—Every petition of appeal in cases tried by jury should state clearly in what respect the law has been contravened. The Court will not hunt through the records and find out the illegality if any. The parties must point out in their appeal, wherein there has been a departure from the law. Unless the exact contravention of law is stated, the petition is liable to be rejected.—1 W R 21.

What are "matters of law" within the meaning of S. 418 Cr. P. C.

14. (a) Misdirection.—The expression "misdirection" as used in the Criminal Procedure Code of S. 207 Cr. P. C. and is therefore a mistake of law [3 S 102, 25 C. 230 - (31) A. N. 170]

15. (b) Misjoinder of charges.—See 25 M. 61 (P. C.) 17 C P. 159, 15 C P. 53; 1 L B. 361; 16 P R. 1902; 26 M. 125 4 B. R. 440, 6 B. R. 725 1 C. J. 475 2 C. J. 618

16. (c) Misjoinder of accused.—4 B. R. 53 6 C N 468, 4 P. L. 1905

17. (d) Conviction based on no evidence.—15 W R 46 16 W. R 19

18. (e) Omission to consider material evidence or a wrong reasoning for disbelieving it.—7 C. 263.

19. (f) Admission of evidence in contravention of the provisions of the Evidence Act.—See 6 O 247.

20. (g) Where material evidence which ought not to be admitted is admitted and the jury are placed in possession of it, there is an error of law in the trial within the meaning of S. 418 Cr. P. C.—27 B. 626

21. (h) The omission of the Judge to point out to and call the attention of the jury to matters of prime importance, especially if they favour the accused.—27 B 644

419. Every appeal shall be made in the form of a petition presented by the appellant or his pleader, and every such petition shall (unless the Court to which it is presented otherwise directs) be accompanied by a copy of the judgment or order appealed against, and, in cases tried by a jury, a copy of the heads of the charge recorded under section 367.

Notes.

1. Contents of the petition of appeal.—See Note No. 13, above under S. 418 Cr. P. C. A Criminal appeal need not be verified. [See 12 M. 451] When a petition of appeal contains objectionable matters the Judge should return it and refuse to receive it till the scandalous allegations made therein are expunged. [22 M. 155, 15 B. 488].

Mode of Presentation.

2. (1) Transmission by post.—The transmission of a petition of appeal by post is not a sufficient compliance with S. 419. The practice of accepting appeals transmitted by post, otherwise than under S. 420 is irregular. 2 Weir 467. 15 M. 137. Rat 464.
3. (3) Putting a petition in a petition box.—The word "presented" in S. 419 of the Code means that such petition shall be delivered to the proper officer of the Court either by the appellant or by his pleader. In order to secure this, it is necessary that the presentation be made in person. Held, that a petition of appeal found in a petition box was rightly returned for legal presentation inasmuch as the petition might have been deposited there by a third person who could not have legally presented it—19 M. 354. See S. C. P. 93.

(3) Who may present.

4. (a) The appellant in a Criminal case has a right to appear and be heard by a Mukhtear.—6 B. 14; But See 4 S. 195.
5. (b) Presentation by person authorised by appellant.—A petition of Criminal appeal may be presented by any person authorised by the appellant to present it—1 M. 304; 6 B. 14. Rat 29.
6. (c) Pleadors Gumastah.—Where a Vakil had signed a petition of appeal, having been duly authorised by a Vakalatnamah, the presentation by his Gumasta was held to be sufficient—(94) 2 Weir 469]. Presentation by Pleader's clerk is presentation by the pleader himself, if the petition has been signed by the pleader and he is duly authorised. [20 M. 87. 20 M. 111. 2 Weir 470. —Cr. R. case No 50 of '95. 2 Weir 470—Cr. R. case, No 652 of 1903].
7. (d) Presentation by a person who is not the pleader's clerk.—A pleader is not competent to present an appeal through a person who is not his clerk and over whose conduct and action he has no control—21 M. 111.

8. (e) Presentation by a pleader for one of the three appellants.—Where a memorandum of appeal was prepared on behalf of the three accused and signed by their pleader, its presentation by another pleader who held Vakalatnamah for one of the three accused only, was considered a proper presentation—(97) 2 Weir 470.
9. (f) Relatives of the accused.—When a prisoner is in jail, his petition of appeal, if not forwarded by the officer in charge of the jail under S. 420, can be presented under this section only by his pleader, whose appointment must be in writing signed by the prisoner where signature must be attested by the Superintendent of the jail. If this attestation is wanting, the document should be sent to the Superintendent of the jail for verification. Unauthorised petitions of appeal presented on behalf of the prisoners in jail by the relatives or friends cannot legally be recognised—C. P. C. Cr. pt II No 44.
10. (g) When the same pleader cannot act for both accused.—Two persons each of whom made confessions exonerating himself and incriminating the other were both convicted, and appealed from such conviction through of one and the same pleader. Held that in this case it was improper for a single pleader to present appeals for both the prisoners and to represent conflicting interests—13 P. R. 1890.
11. Copy of Judgment.—It is in the discretion of the Appellate Court to admit an appeal unaccompanied by a copy of the judgment or order appealed against, where injustice may result from a too strict insistence on compliance with law. [5 B. R. 704]. A copy of judgment supplied to the prisoner in his own language under S. 371 (1) is sufficient [Rat 82]. In cases tried by jury, the copy of the heads of the charge to the jury given under S. 371 (2) supra is equivalent to judgment [13 W. R. 50].

420. If the appellant is in jail, he may present his petition of appeal and the copies accompanying the same to the officer in charge of the jail, who shall thereupon forward such petition and copies to the proper

Appellate Court.

Notes.

1. Scope of S. 420.—S. 420 is not derogatory to the rule laid down in S. 419. The latter section applies as much to a prisoner in jail, as to any other appellant, and requires that the petition shall be prepared in a certain form, while S. 420 is only concerned with the question of presentation of appeal from jail—Per Mahmood J. in 13 A. 171 (F.B.).
2. Facilities should be provided to prisoners for making appeals.—Every facility should be allowed to prisoners to enable them to prepare their petition of appeal, (such as pen, ink, paper and even a writer) [13 W. R. 69]. The fullest opportunity should be given to prisoners to execute Vakalatnamas to whomsoever they please, and without reference to the mode in or

3. Limitation.—Under the provisions of S. 420 Cr. P. C. the presentation of the petition of appeal by the appellant in jail, to the officer in charge of the jail is equivalent to presentation to the Court, so far as the requirements of the Limitation Act are concerned.—9 M. 259; 29 P. R. 1890.

12. Right to be represented by mukhtar.—A Mukhtar can only plead with the permission of the presiding officer of a Criminal Court—4 S. 195

13. Appeal disposed of in Chambers.—A

14. An appeal cannot be dismissed for default.—An appellate Court, can dispose of an appeal if the appellant is not present either in person or by pleader. [See 13 A. 171 (F. B.). Mahmood J. dissenting] But it cannot be question of admission or rejection to be determined by the Court on the papers, and the Appellate Court is bound by S. 421 to peruse the papers, the appellant is not bound to appear a second time either by counsel or in person Rat 739 593 12 Cr. 481 5 N 76 21 P R 1896 12 C N. 215

14A. Distinction between an appellant and a prisoner under trial.—An appellant is not precisely in the same position before an Appellate Court as he is before the Court trying him, but must satisfy the Court that there is sufficient ground for interfering with the order of conviction. If no sufficient ground is shown, it is the duty of the Appellate Court not to interfere.—5 A 356 But See 11 O L 25 23 C 317

15. Difference between appeals presented under S. 419 and Jail appeals.—The proviso to S. 421 is limited to appeals which have not been presented from jail. Therefore a man in jail, whilst on the one hand, he has the privilege of sending his appeal in the manner which S. 420 prescribes has not on the other hand the privilege of insisting that he should be heard or even his pleader, if he retains one, after sending up an appeal from jail—Per Mahmood J. in 13 A 171 (F. B.) Con 2 Weir 472

16. Appellate Court can direct appellant to be present in person.—If an appellate Court thinks it necessary, for the purpose of disposing of an appeal, to have a prisoner before it, it has the same power to direct that he should be brought before it, as a Court of first instance has when in pursuance of the direction of an Appellate Court, it takes further evidence in the presence of the prisoner—2 Weir 473 13 A 171 (176). But see Rat 22

17. General notice insufficient.—A general notice posted in a Sessions Court that appeals will be heard for admission only on the first Court day next after presentation, is not in compliance with the provisions of this section. The Sessions Judge should fix a time as directed by under S. 421 before admitting an appeal, they should have a week's notice [16 C 385]

18. When notice to appellant in Jail may be dispensed with.—The practice of sending notice to persons who have transmitted criminal appeals from jail may be discontinued, when the Appellate Court considers after perusal of the petition of appeal and judgment, that there is not sufficient ground for interfering, and resolves to reject the appeal summarily.—M H C. Pro 11th and 27th Novr 1881, Nos 3327 and 3465
19. Effect of summary rejection of appeal.—An order of rejection of an appeal made under S 278 (=S. 421) is final and therefore, not open to review. It is clearly an order made by an Appellate Court in appeal, and it seems immaterial whether such order is made before or after the papers are called for [1 B 101 - 24 P. R. 1887]. But an order of summary rejection of a Criminal appeal does not amount to a judgment, within the meaning of Ss. 307 and 424 Cr. P. C. [6 C P 24] It is not open to the Appellate Court while summarily disposing of an appeal under S. 421, to alter the conviction [2 Weir 475; 2 Weir 471 Rat 304 384] It cannot enhance the sentence after summarily disposing of the appeal.—[Rat 74]
20. Summarily dismissal by a High Court.—A judgment by a single Judge of the High Court dismissing an appeal under S 421 Cr. P. C. is an order made in a criminal trial and therefore no appeal lies from such order under S. 15 of the Letters Patent.—1 Weir 788 a
21. Power to rehear appeal wrongly dismissed in default.—When an appeal has been rejected without hearing the appellant's pleader because of his default, and it is afterwards proved to the satisfaction of the Appellate Court that an adequate excuse has been made out for the pleader's non-appearance, it is open to that Court to rehear the appeal on its merits.—7 M H (appr) 11v 5 N 76 10 C J 80. But see 4 B 101, 24 P R 1887 - 19 B 712. [Note No 14 above]

22. Order under this section subject to revision under S. 439.—Where the Sessions Judge summarily disposed of the appeal, the High Court finding that the evidence on which the conviction was based was insufficient, set aside the conviction and acquitted the accused, instead of remanding the appeal for a rehearing on the merits.—10 C N. 416; See 10 C. C 309
23. Admission of appeal of one accused no bar to action under S. 421 with respect to appeal of co-accused.—The law gives to the Appellate Court the power of summarily dismissing an appeal upon going through the judgment, if the Court is satisfied that there is no sufficient reason shown for its interference. The fact that the Court admitted an appellant's appeal does not affect his order dismissing summarily a co appellant's appeal.—5 C. N. 332.
24. Record of reasons for summary dismissal.—See Notes under Ss. 307-370: VI Summary dismissal of appeals (S 421 Cr P. C.) Notes No. 67-89 (p 658 above)
25. Appeal barred by limitation.—An appeal presented out of time, without sufficient cause being shown for the delay, may be rejected as time-barred without hearing the appellant S 278 (=421) does not apply to such appeals.—(75) Rat 90.
26. Withdrawal of appeal.—A petition of appeal may be withdrawn after presentation. A Judge acts wrongly in rejecting the petition of withdrawal and enhancing the sentence. [5 C L 372]

[Note.—This case was distinguished in 6 C L 427 (428) In the latter case, the petition was presented at the last moment after the Court had already perused the record and had the evidence read to it. It was held that the petition did not preclude the Appellate Court from dealing with the appeal on the merits.]

and, in cases of appeals under section 417, the Appellate Court shall cause a like notice to be given to the accused

Notes.

1. Meaning of "Notice."—Notice is a warning to a party to a lis to enable him to resist a possible result, that is to say, not mere information that that which is threatened will or may possibly happen in a matter, in which he is concerned, but also that he can avoid such result if he takes proper measures to do so.—13 A 171 (F. B.)
2. Failure to serve notice—a material error. Where an appeal is disposed of under Ss. 422 and

423 of the Code, notice to the appellant is obligatory under S 422 [(97) 2 Weir 475: See Rat 869] Where a Magistrate disposed of an appeal before the day fixed for an adjourned hearing and without giving notice to the appellant or his pleader held that it was a material error in procedure [(82) 2 Weir 475]

3. Notice must be served.—Ss 122 and 423 Cr. P. C make it imperative on a criminal Appellate Court to hear the appeal at the time and place named in the notice of appeal issued by it; and a hearing of which no notice has been given is illegal—5 N. 76. Rat 869

S. 422 applicable to appeals under S. 250(3) Cr. P. C.—In case of appeals under S. 250(3) Cr. P. C. which provides that there shall be an appeal from an order under that section, it is necessary to give notice of the appeal to the accused, as he is the party prejudiced if the appeal be allowed, and the order for compensation rescinded.—19 M. J. 130.

Complainant not entitled to notice.—Where an appeal by an accused is not summarily dismissed, See 422 of the Cr. P. C. does not require that notice of the appeal should be given to the complainant. It is however, the practice to give notice to the complainant as well to the District Magistrate in a case instituted upon a complaint, but failure to give notice to the complainant does not furnish a ground for interference in revision.—14 N. 131 [33 M. 89 R.]

Notice of hearing to appellant in Jail.—If the appellate Court decides to proceed under S. 421, it is not legally bound to give notice to the appellant nor is it generally necessary to do so. When the Court means to proceed under S. 422, the law requires that notice shall be issued to the appellant, and the intimation given by the officer of the jail when forwarding the appeal petition is not sufficient for this purpose.—Mad. Cr. Rules of Practice Nos 264-265

Notice to Railway authorities.—In all appeals from sentences passed on railway servants, notice should be given of the time and place of hearing the appeal, to the Head of the Railway administration concerned as well as to the District Magistrate.—Punjab Cu. No. 17 of 1894 Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 27 C. P. Cr. Cu. pt. II No. 45

Notice to pleader.—The section makes provision for notice to the pleader. Under the older Codes—[See e.g. (81) 10 C. L. 57 7 P. R. 1883] it was held that the fact that the appellant's pleader is present in Court, when an order admitting an appeal is passed will not save the giving of separate notice to the appellant. Since S. 279 (=422) lays down that the notice is to be given to the appellant, a substituted notice to the appellant's pleader or mukhtar is sufficient [Con. 4 S. 195 6 B. 14]

9. * * *

travention of the provisions of Ss. 422-423, that the acquittal should be set aside and that it should be reheard.—2 Weir 474

0. To such officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf.—Notice should be given to the officer, if any, appointed by Local Government in this behalf as laid down in this Section.—[20 M. 187] In Madras the officer is the Public Prosecutor in case of appeals to the Sessions Court and the High Court [Pt. St. G. Gaz. 1887 Pt. I p. 30]. The District

Magistrate is the proper person to direct whether there should be a formal appearance in support of the conviction [G. O. No. 653 J dated 24-3-87] In Bengal, the Legal Remembrancer is the Public Prosecutor so far as the High Court is concerned [Cal. Gaz. 30.6.86 p. 783] In all other cases the notice should be given to the District Magistrate.—[See 7 C. N. 50 Cal. Gaz. 1883 Pt. I. p. 1200] In Bombay, District Magistrates should be served with notice [See Bomb. Govt. Gaz. 1883 Pt. I. p. 182] The same also is the rule in the Punjab [See Punjab Gaz. 1883 Pt. I. 53], in Oudh [Oudh Cr. Dig. p. 27] in the Central Provinces [C. P. Gaz. 1883 Pt. II p. 101].

Note.—In Madras In Railway cases notice should be given to Agents of Railway companies [G. O. No. 1807 Judt. 7-9-91] in Forest cases to the District Forest officer [G. O. No. 433 dated 2nd March 1896] In the Nilgiri District in cognisable cases notice should be given to the Prosecuting Public Inspector and the Assistant Superintendent of Police—G. O. No. 1614 dated 7-8-95

11. Contents of the notice.—In every case in which a day is fixed for the hearing of an appeal, an order fixing the date should distinctly state whether or not the hearing is to be under S. 423 infra, to distinguish it from similar orders under S. 421 Supra [See Punjab Cu. Ch. XVIII. p. 259] Ss. 422 and 423 Cr. P. C. make it imperative on a Criminal Appellate Court to hear the Appeal at the time and place named in the notices of appeal issued by it and a hearing of which no notice has been given is therefore illegal [5 N. 76] It is not enough that the District Magistrate has directed that an appeal to him will be heard in the month of January, the particular date of hearing being omitted. The appellant ought to be informed of the precise date on which his appeal will be heard and the Judge is bound to hear it on the date so fixed ('61) A. N. 46. See 5 M. 11 21 W. R. (60)

12. Mode of service.—where the appellant in a criminal appeal cannot be found at the address given by him, the notice of hearing of the appeal should be left at such address [Rat. 869]

13. Notice should be posted at least two days before the date fixed for hearing.—In the case of an appeal presented under S. 419 supra there shall be posted up in the Appellate Court in a place accessible to the public, notice of the day appointed for considering the petition of appeal * * * two days at least before the days so appointed unless the appellant or his pleader consents to a shorter notice or to dispense with a notice.—Bomb. H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 42

14. Fresh notice must be given if the place of hearing is changed.—Where a Court issues notice to the agent of the accused, it ought not to hear the appeal at a different place without giving notice of the same to such agent [7 P. R. 1891] where the notice directed the appellant to appear at the headquarters, and on date fixed, the officer before whom he was directed to appear was absent, held—(1) that a general order issued directing the appellants to follow him (the officer) into camp was improper. A fresh notice fixing a fresh date should have been issued.—[11 P. R. 1805; 21 P. R. 1895]

15. Appeal cannot be admitted only for a limited purpose.—A restricted order for admission of a criminal appeal is not contemplated by S. 422 of the Criminal Procedure Code and must be deemed ultra vires. Therefore where an appeal was admitted for the consideration of the 321 (Civ)] Except when there are express words as in S. 412, 418, the Cr. P. Code does not provide for an appeal for the limited purpose of reviewing only a part of the sentence. The appellant has a right to be heard fully on the merits.—[Rat. 826]

423. (1) The Appellate Court shall then send for the record of the case, if such record is not already in Court. After perusing such record, and hearing the appellant or his pleader, if he appears, and the Public Prosecutor, if he appears, and, in case of an appeal under section 417 the accused if he appears, the Court may, if it considers that there is no sufficient ground for interfering, dismiss the appeal, or may—

(a) in an appeal from an order of acquittal, reverse such order and direct that further inquiry be made or that the accused be retried or committed for trial, as the case may be, or find him guilty and pass sentence on him according to law

(b) in an appeal from a conviction, (1) reverse the finding and sentence, and acquit or discharge the accused or order him to be retried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such Appellate Court or committed for trial or (2) alter the finding, maintaining the sentence, or with or without altering the finding reduce the sentence, or (3), with or without such reduction and with or without altering the finding alter the nature of the sentence, but, subject to the provisions of section 106 sub-section (3), not so as to enhance the same ;

(c) in an appeal from any other order, alter or reverse such order ;

(d) make any amendment or any consequential or incidental order that may be just or proper

(2) Nothing herein contained shall authorize the Court to alter or reverse the verdict of a jury, unless it is of opinion that such verdict is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge or to a misunderstanding on the part of the jury of the law as laid down by him

THE APPELLATE COURT—ITS POWERS FUNCTIONS AND LIMITATIONS.

(1) Powers.

1. Power of Appellate Court measured by the power of the original Court.—It is a rule underlying the whole fabric of appellate jurisdiction, that the power of an Appellate Court is measured by the power of the Court from whose judgment or order, the appeal before it has been made. This is equally so in the Civil and Criminal branches of the law of procedure. It is a fundamental principle that every Court of appeal exists for the purpose, where necessary of doing or causing to be done, that which each Court subordinate to its appellate jurisdiction should have, but has not, done or caused to be done and nothing further. Therefore, the jurisdiction in appeal is necessarily limited in each case to the same extent, as the jurisdiction from which that particular case comes. Where therefore a Criminal Court alters a sentence of imprisonment into a sentence of fine, it cannot inflict a fine beyond the maximum which could have been imposed by the first Court.—[7 N. 109.] An appellate Court has power to pass any sentence which the Court of first instance could have passed [1 M 54]
2. Distinction between the powers exercisable under cl. (a) and cl. (b).—S. 423 Crim. Pro. Code, defines the powers of the appellate Court and in that section a clear distinction is drawn between the powers which may be exercised in an appeal from an order of acquittal and in an appeal from a conviction. Where two persons are tried by a Magistrate, one of whom was acquitted and the other convicted and the convict appealed, held that the Sessions Judge, in dealing with the appeal, had no jurisdiction to pass any order which affected the acquittal of the other man. 6 A J 1125
3. Power to dispose of appeal in the absence of the appellant.—The limitation which S. 423 provides is that the appellate Court, before disposing of the appeal must peruse the record, and if the appellant is present or is represented by a pleader, the appellant in person or his pleader must be heard. It cannot be contended ed under that section that in the case of an appeal, which has been admitted, the Appellate Court, notwithstanding that the record of the case has been sent for and perused by the Court, is incompetent to dispose of the appeal, if the appellant who is not represented by a pleader is not present [13 A. 171 (P. B.) Mahomed J. dissenting]

Note. Per Mahomed J. contra.—Where an appeal is admitted, and is not summarily rejected under S. 421, the appellant must have an opportunity of being heard. On a proper understanding and interpretation of S. 423, it will be seen that the condition precedent for the disposal of the appeal is that either the appellant is heard or at least choice is given to him to appear.

4. The whole case is thrown open in appeal.—An appeal against a conviction opens out the entire case and the Appellate Court being empowered to alter the finding by S. 423 (1) (b) of the Cr. P. C. may record a conviction in respect of an offence of which the trial Court has found the accused not guilty.—16 A J 915
5. Interference with verdicts of jury.—In the case of a trial by jury, the questions that can be gone into by the Appellate Court lie within an extremely narrow compass and that Court will not interfere with the unanimous verdict of a jury. When in a trial by jury the jury having been properly directed and warned, deliberately by their verdict come to the conclusion that the circumstantial evidence given in the case connected the accused with the guilt and convicted him. Held that in the absence of misdirection, the High Court would not interfere merely on the ground that the jury had convicted on circumstantial evidence alone.—[21 Cr. 6 (C)]. S. 423 must be read with S. 415 and where facts are in issue, the absolute finality of the verdict of a jury on a question of fact must be given effect to [39 A 345].
6. Power on reversal of the verdict of the jury.—Once the verdict of the jury is set aside under S. 423 (d) there is no restriction on the power of the appellate Court to deal with the case of which it has complete seisin in . . .

18. Appellate Court cannot refuse to act because the case is trivial.—A Sessions Judge cannot decline to interfere on appeal merely because in his opinion "the matter is a mere trifle." He is bound to hear the appeal and to come to a finding whether the conviction is legal or illegal.—Rat. 978.

(3) Limitations.

19. Appellate Court cannot spring a new case on the appellant.—The powers conferred by the Criminal Pro. Code on a Court of

20. When appeal cannot be retained on file

—Where in an appeal to the Court of Session, the Sessions Judge finds that the Magistrate has not written a judgment in conformity with the provisions of S 367 Cr P C the correct procedure is to accept the appeal and to remand the case for hearing de novo S 423 of the Code does not authorise the retention of an appeal on the file of the Sessions Judge when asking for a judgment which the Magistrate failed to record.—21 Cr 52 (M)

- 20A. Appellate Court after setting aside conviction cannot direct evidence already on record to be treated as evidence in the retrial.—Where in an appeal from a conviction, the Sessions Judge set aside the conviction and ordered a retrial, but at the same time directed that the evidence already on record should be treated as evidence in the case. Held that the order was contrary to the provisions of Ss 423 and 425 of the Crim. Pro. Code and was therefore illegal.—3 Pat. W. 224 1 Pat. J. 99.

- 20B. Appellate Court not bound to direct a retrial.—There is nothing in the language of S. 423 (b), to limit the power of an Appellate Court to direct a retrial in cases in which the trying Magistrate had no jurisdiction.—7 C. N. 301 27 C 172

21. The words: "order him to be retried by a Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such appellate Court" are not words of limitation and do not exclude the appellate Court from itself trying the offender. 30 M. 229. Contra Cr. R. 42 of 1893 should apply to the High Court for an order under S 423 or 439 Cr. P. C. instead of issuing fresh summons which he has no authority to do. 24 C 529 1 C N 185

23. Release on Bail.—Sessions Judge cannot release a prisoner on bail pending an appeal, but he may suspend the sentence pending the appeal. 3 W. R. 57. See S 126 infra

24. District Magistrate.—District Magistrate cannot set aside an order of acquittal by a Magistrate of the third class. (191) A. N. 120 (85) A. N. 43. See—26 M. 478

25. Before an appellate Court can set aside a conviction it must be satisfied that the conviction is wrong.—17 C. P. 97

26. Powers under S. 195 compared with powers under S. 423.—Powers of the appellate Court under S. 195 are not the same as conferred by S. 423. The jurisdiction is of special nature. There is no inherent jurisdiction in such a case to direct the inferior court to take fresh evidence.—30 M. 311

II. DUTIES OF THE APPELLATE COURT.

(1) Appellate Court bound to peruse record. It cannot dismiss for default.

27. In dealing with the petition of a person convicted of a criminal offence, the Appellate Court is bound in all cases where the appellant is not represented personally or by pleader, to peruse the petition of appeal and the copy of the judgment accompanying it, and determine upon such perusal whether the appeal should be admitted or summarily rejected, and if the appeal is admitted, to consider whether there is any ground for interfering with the conviction or sentence. It is illegal to record an order dismissing an appeal "in default", as such an order is not contemplated by the provisions of S 423 Cr P C.—60 J 370 21 P. R 1895 13 A 171 (F. B.) 20 Cr 271 (Pat) 5 N 76. See 7 M. H. (appx) xix 14 Cr. 182 (C); 12 Cr 451.

[Note.—Th. Court must peruse the whole record. A decision upon a perusal only of the judgment appealed against is not legal.—14 Cr. 182 (C)]

(2) Duty to consider evidence.

28. It is the duty of the Appellate Court in dealing with an appeal preferred to it, to consider the evidence, both oral and documentary, and to apply its mind to the case before recording a judgment thereon. Where an Appellate Court fails to do this, its judgment cannot be said to be in accordance with law.—21 Cr 619 (Pat).
29. Duty of the appellate Court to consider the evidence against all the accused.—The first duty of a Court of Criminal appeal is to find whether the conviction had by the lower Court against each of the accused person is sustainable. A general agreement with the lower Court cannot be sufficient to uphold the conviction of each particular individual, each of whom is entitled to a finding on the facts that he did or did not take part in the alleged offence; and where there is no such finding there must be a rehearing of the appeal.—12 Cr. 43 (C); 35 C. 139 12 C N 134

29A. Appellate Court is bound to decide questions of law itself.—When an Appellate Court does not dismiss an appeal summarily, it is bound by the provisions of S. 423 Cr. P. C. which defines its powers. These powers do not authorise the Court to refer to the High Court for decision of a question of law arising in the appeal. Nor does S. 438 confer any such authority. That Section permits the Sessions Judge to report for orders the result of his examination of any proceeding before an inferior Criminal Court, but does not apply to self—7 L. B. 251.

30. Duty with regard to defence evidence. In an appeal, it is the duty of the Appellate Court to look into the evidence on the part of the defence even if the Counsel who appeared for the defence did not make any reference to that evidence—40 C. 37

(3) Court bound to comply with Ss. 424 and 367 Cr. P. C.

31. In dealing with an appeal under S. 423 Cr. P. C. the District Court has no power to dismiss it summarily but is bound to comply with the requirements of Ss. 424 and 367—1 B. R. 225; 6 C. P. 21. See Notes under Ss. 367—370 IV Contents of judgment in appeal Notes Nos. 56 to 82A (pp. 655-657 above) was barred by S. 439 (3) Cr. P. C. : (3) if the Session Judge thought that the case ought to be tried by the Court of Session he ought himself to have set aside the conviction and ordered a commitment under S. 423 (1) (b)—[13 A. J. 477 15 A. 205] An appellate Court has no power to remand the case from the Lower Court to pass a proper sentence. It must dispose of the appeal itself—[11 C. N. ccliv].

(4) Sessions Court should not refer the appeal to the High Court but try to dispose of itself.

(5) Duty of Appellate Court to overlook mere technical defects.

33. The Appellate Court ought not to overlook the provisions of S. 531 Cr. P. Code and set aside a conviction on the ground that the place of occurrence was beyond the local limits of the trying Magistrate's jurisdiction—35 C. 786

(6) Duty to arrive at an independent opinion.

34. It is the duty of an Appellate Court, in every case to examine the evidence for itself, and to give to an accused person, the benefit of any reasonable doubt which it may entertain after such examination. In every case, it is its duty to arrive at an independent opinion [2 Weir 535; 12 C. N. 131; 6 P. R. 1898; 5 P. R. 1876; 17 W. R. 59; 8 N. 84]. The Appellate Court should decide both on the sufficiency of the prosecution evidence to warrant a conviction and on its reliability—[2 Weir 536]. An Appellate Court is bound precisely in the same way as the Court of the first instance, to test the evidence extrinsically as well as intrinsically even though it is bound to give every reasonable weight to the conclusion which the original Court has arrived at upon a question depending upon evidence.—[17 W. R. 59] whose decision is under appeal, when such imputations have no other foundation than suspicion—[2 Weir 535].

(7) Duties generally.

36. Duty to confine itself within the four corners of the record.—The Sessions Judge should not in an appeal refer to documents and evidence which did not form part of the record of the proceedings before the Magistrate—8 M. T. 81; 6 C. J. 251.]

37. Duty to acquit.—If the Sessions Court is unable even with the aid of the Magistrate's finding of fact to form an independent judgment as to whether the prisoners had committed the offence or not, and the evidence which came before him, whatever its shape, was not reasonably sufficient to satisfy him that the prisoners, had been rightly convicted, he ought to acquit them—20 W. R. 13

38. The benefit of the doubt.—Though S. 363 directs that the remarks recorded by a Court of first instance as to the demeanour of a witness etc. are to guide the Appellate Court in its estimate of the value of the evidence of that witness, the facts of the case ought to be considered independently by the Appellate Court, and if it entertains any reasonable doubt about the appellant's conviction by the lower Court, such prisoner appellant is entitled to the benefit of that reasonable doubt.—6 P. R. 1898; 5 P. R. 1876; 23 C. 347. See 11 C. L. 25

III. PROCEDURE.

(1) Right of audience.

39. Right of audience.—If the appellant is present or is represented by a pleader, the appellant behalf of the appellant—Cr. R. 22-2-70 See 23 C 493

41. Private complainant.—A complainant cannot claim as of right to be heard in appeal. The matter is in the discretion of the Appellate Court, which may grant permission in particular cases—[7 M. H. (appx) 42 29 P. R. 1886 See 9 O N 1x]
42.
43. Note—Mukhtears.—A Mukhtear can plead only with the permission of the presiding officer of a criminal Court—See 4 S 195. Con 6 B-14
44. Vakil privately instructed.—There is nothing in S 423 which prevents the Appellate Court from hearing a Vakil privately instructed to support the prosecution, and when the Public Prosecutor does not appear on behalf of the Government, it would generally be discreet on the part of the Court to do so—2 Weir 476
45. Right of reply.—“There is nothing in the language of S 423 Cr. P. C. to preclude the appellant or his pleader from replying to the arguments of the Public Prosecutor and we certainly think that as a matter of principle, such right of reply should be conceded to him”—21 P. R. 1917-38 C. 307 11 C N xliii
46. Pleader for appellant entitled to refer to certified copy of evidence.—Pleader for the appellant is entitled to refer to certified copies of the evidence—11 O C 360
47. Disposal of appeal in chambers.—Where an appellant was represented by a pleader, but the Judge disposed of the appeal in chambers, the order of the Appellate Court was set aside and the appeal was directed to be heard—Rat 914

(2) Duty of Appellant to make out his case.

48. Appellant must satisfy Court.—An appellant is not precisely in the same position before an Appellate Court as he is before the Court trying him, but must satisfy the Court that there is sufficient ground for interfering with the order of conviction. If no sufficient ground is shown, it is the duty of the Appellate Court not to interfere.—5 A 386
49. Sufficiency of evidence.—A conviction is not necessarily bad because the number of witnesses examined in support of the prosecution is very small. The deposition of a single credible witness is sufficient in law—2 W R 3
50. Appellant may be permitted to set up a new ground.—In 7 C. N 884, an objection to the prosecution of an accused on a question of law was allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal and given effect to.

(3) Procedure in the Court of Appeal.

51. Duty to peruse the record.—See Note No 27 above
- 5 A. When the record of the Lower Court is lost.—The High Court on appeal will generally order a new trial—See (89) A N 85 (85) A. N 117 14 C. N. clu
52. Appellate Court cannot direct prosecution of witness after setting aside conviction.—Neither S 437 nor S 476 Cr. P. C. authorises a Judge who hears a Criminal appeal and sets aside a conviction, to direct in such judgment the prosecution of a witness in the case—(89) A N 95
53. Appellate Court's power to make local inspection.—Where inspection of the scene of the crime is material either to the case for the prosecution or that of the defence, it is desirable that the Appellate Court should also inspect the spot—16 P. W 1911 (F. B.).
54. Power to direct appellant to be brought up from jail.—Neither Ss 417, 419, 421 Cr. P. C., nor any other provision of law authorise a Sessions Judge to cause an appellant undergoing sentence of imprisonment to be brought before him at the hearing of the appeal—Rat 22

Powers of the Appellate Court to suspend sentence.—pending appeal and to release on bail [See S 426 infra] To take additional evidence [See S 428 infra]

55. Duty of appellate Court to write judgment.—[See Notes under Ss 367-70 Chapters IV, and IX] A judgment of an Appellate Court other than the High Court is defective unless it contains at least (1) the point or points for determination raised by the memorandum of appeal (2) the decision thereon and (3) the reasons for the decision—8 N 84

56. Copy of judgment in appeal to be sent appealed against or his successor in office.—Bomb H C Cr Cui p 43

57. Fresh warrant to be issued on modification of judgment.—When a sentence on a prisoner is reversed or modified on appeal by a Court other than the High Court, a fresh warrant will be issued by the Appellate Court to the officer in charge of the jail, and its order will be communicated to the Lower Court for record. * * * In all cases in which a sentence or order is modified or reversed whether by appeal or revision, a separate warrant should be issued as regards each prisoner whose sentence has been so modified or reversed—Bomb H C. Cr. Cui Para 61

IV. PROCEDURE IN APPEALS AGAINST ACQUITTAL.

(1) General Rules of Practice.

58. Additional evidence.—S. 425 Cr. P. C. allows evidence to be admitted in appeals against acquittals as well as in appeals against convictions although cases in which this power is exercised will naturally be rare—26 M. J. 100.

58A. Appeal against acquittal—

S. 439 only on the High Court—20 C 633 See 23 M 225.

58B. Order for acquittal can be reversed only by the High Court—The words "reverse the finding and sentence" in S 423 (1) (b) mean reverse the finding upon which the conviction is based, and do not empower the Appellate Court (or at any rate an appellate tribunal other than the High Court) to reverse or set aside an acquittal. Where persons were charged with hurt and theft and were convicted on all the charges except on that of theft, held—the appellate Magistrate was not competent to reverse the acquittal on the charge of theft—26 M 478. But See 34 M 515 35 M 243.

59. Procedure the same as in appeals against conviction—There is no distinction in the Code between the right of appeal against a conviction and an acquittal both being governed by the same rules and being subject to the same limitations—17 C 155 7 P R 1904 20 A 459 26 M J 160.

60. Principle which should be followed—The High Court ought not to interfere with an acquittal by a Magistrate who had the witnesses before him, and arrived at conclusions of fact with this great advantage in his favour, unless the Judge was clearly wrong and the judgment either perverse or based on obvious errors of procedure—16 Cr 529 (M).

61. Limitations of the power to entertain appeals—High Court's interference should be limited to those instances in which the lower Court, has so obstinately blundered and gone wrong as to produce a result mischievous at once to the administration of justice and the interests of the public—4 A 148 11 P R 1903 66 P R 1885 (92) A N 64.

61A. A Magistrate may arrest on an appeal under S. 417—2 A 386

62. Note—There must be strong indications of errors in the judgment of acquittal and more palpable urgent and convincing evidence than in the case of an appeal against conviction to justify its being set aside—7 P R 1904 See—17 C P 75, 17 C P 97 7 M H. 339 But See 12 B H 1.

62A. No appeal against acquittal by way of revision—An appeal against acquittal by way of revision is not contemplated by the Code—14 M 363 See 9 A 131 (F.B.) But See Notes under S 439 Cr, P C infra.

63. The benefit of the doubt—An appeal from acquittal should not receive different treatment from any other appeal or class of appeals. The only distinction is that where as in an appeal from conviction, the benefit of doubt is in favour of the appellant, in an appeal from acquittal the benefit is against the appellant—15 P R 1909. 17 C 485 20 A 459.

64. Where the original trial is void ab initio—Where the original trial was illegal as held in contravention of S. 233 supra, held by Betty J "though it is open to the High Court under subs (1) (a) to reverse the order of acquittal and to order the accused to be retried, such an order was not necessary or possible in the present case. There had been no legal trial, and therefore there had been no legal acquittal and hence no valid appeal from acquittal. The High Court had therefore no acquittal to reverse, and the question whether the accused should be tried legally, was a question not for judicial decision, but for the Government—29 B 119 (467).

65. Acquittal obtained by fraud—Where the Session Court was deceived by alteration in a document and fraudulently led to acquit, the High Court reversed the order of acquittal and directed a retrial (M. H. C. Pro 21.4-'83). An appeal from an acquittal under S. 247 Cr P. C. lies on the ground that the complainant had been kept out of the way by the action of the accused, so that the acquittal had been procured by the latter's fraud [26 M. J. 160. See Archbold's Cr. Pleadings (23rd Ed.) p 292 R. Sciffe 17 Q B 238].

66. Acquittal due of erroneous view of law—Where the Session Judge on an erroneous view of the law, acquitted the accused on appeal the High Court ordered the rehearing of the appeal on the merits by the Session Judge—24 W. R. 41 7 N P 196 See 33 P W 1912.

(2) Orders which may be passed under Subcl. (b).

67. Meaning—
"Reverse" ; To "alter" ;
for "not" ;
26 M 1 (15).

68. Power to order further enquiry—S 423 (1) applies only to the High Court [7 M 213]. The District Magistrate as an appellate Court has no jurisdiction to order further enquiry into a case in which there has been an acquittal under S 247 Cr P C (the complainant being absent) [ibid 24 C 528 20 C 633 23 M 225]. A Sessions Judge can interfere with an order of acquittal if it has been passed in a case triable exclusively by the Court of Session [See 24 M 136 (F.B.) . Con 2 C N. celvi].

69. The power to direct further enquiry limited—S 423 does not enable a Court of Appeal to direct that further enquiry be made into a case in which an order of discharge or dismissal may have been passed. S 423 confers a power to direct further enquiry only in respect of a case of an appeal from an order of acquittal and that this power is so limited, is shown by an express enactment in S 437 making provision for such orders—27 C 126 7 C N. 521 Con 26 C 716.

70. [Note]—Under Ss 123, and 439 the High Court has jurisdiction to set aside an order of discharge, if such preliminary order be necessary, and to direct that a person improperly discharged of an offence be arrested and forthwith committed for trial—27 B 84 (86) . 36 C 991]

71. Power to order retrial.—The power to order retrial in appeal in a case where the accused has been acquitted by the lower Court belongs to the High Court and High Court alone. A District Magistrate sitting as a Court of appeal cannot order a retrial under sub. (1) (a)—11 C N 101

72. As to other points.—See Notes under S 417 Supra

by the Judge or to a misunderstanding on the part of the jury as to the law laid down by him [Per Davies J in 26 M 1] The High Court ought not to order a retrial on the ground of misdirection unless it is satisfied that the misdirection has in fact occasioned a failure of justice—[Benson J in ibid] 26 C 230 See 5 W R 80 (F.B.) 5 W R 13 32 M 179 4 M T 481 10 B R. 565 Rat 452

74. Power to go into facts in such appeals. In order to determine if the verdict is erroneous and if so which of these powers the High Court should exercise, it is absolutely necessary for it to go into the facts and to consider the evidence in the case before passing orders in it—[Per Davies J]. As soon as the verdict of the jury is reversed, the Court has the same powers to deal with the case that it has to deal with a case triable by assessors as soon as the order of acquittal by the Judge is set aside, that is, the Court may order a retrial or may find the accused guilty and pass sentence on him according to law—[Per Benson J].—26 M 1 See 25 C 561 25 C 711 19 B 744 But See 14 C 164

75. Meaning of the term "erroneous."—In S 423 (d) the word 'erroneous' is not to be read as meaning "wrong on the facts" it must be read in connection with the words that follow, as meaning that the verdict has been vitiated and rendered bad or defective by reason of a misdirection or a misunderstanding of the law. The effect of the clause is evidently to prevent the Appellate Court from reversing the verdict of a

V. ORDERS IN APPEALS AGAINST CONVICTION.

(1) ALTERATION OF FINDING.

81. The principle explained.—"When an act or a series of acts is of such a nature that it is doubtful which of the several offences the facts which can be proved will constitute, an appeal from a conviction for any one of such offences must lay the whole case open to the interference of the Appellate Court notwithstanding any order of acquittal by the first Court in regard to any of the other offences. The inference of the Appellate Court in such a case is directed primarily, not against the acquittal, but against the conviction which is called in question by the accused, though if the interference is to be rational and complete, the Appellate Court must deal with the whole case."

82. Scope of S. 423. (b) (2) Cr. P. C.—See 423 (b) (2) Cr P C makes no reference to Ss 237 and 238 and unqualifiedly gives the power to the Appellate Court to "alter the finding" on appeal. Only where the accused has been prejudiced by the omission to frame the charge on which the Appellate Court wishes to give the altered finding, that is where, if the altered charge had been framed in the first Court "the defence made and the evidence adduced for the defence might have been of an entirely different character" the Appellate Court should not use the power vested in it by S. 423 to give such an altered finding—(191) 2 M, it cannot alter a finding.

2. (1) If the new offence is one for which the accused had not been charged or tried—e.g.—A person convicted under S. 409 I P C. cannot be acquitted of that offence and convicted of the offence of bribery—8 A 120 See 38 P R 1905 13 C N ex vi Cr. R 16 of 12-4-58.
3. (2) If the new offence is one which the original Court was incompetent to try—7 A. 414 (F.B.)
4. (3) If the new offence is one of which the accused could not have been convicted by the lower Court.—3 L B 232. 27 C 660 Con 25 A 534
5. (4) If the new offence is abetment of the offence with which the accused was charged and convicted 33 M 264 13 Cr. 203 (M) 13 Cr 223 (M) 11 B H 240 Con 23 M J 722

7. If the new offence is not cognate to the one which was the basis of the conviction by the lower Court and the accused had no opportunity of meeting it

(2) RETRIAL.

Grounds on which a retrial may be ordered.

107. (1) Omission to frame a proper charge—There is nothing in the language of S 423 (b) to limit the power of an Appellate court to direct a retrial in cases in which trying Magistrate had no jurisdiction. A Sessions Judge has the power to direct a retrial to be had upon a charge framed in whatever manner he thought fit, on the ground that the accused had been misled in their defence by absence of a charge or by a defect in the charges.—(02) 17 C. N. 301; 27 C. 172 17 O. P. 97; See 28 C. 63.
108. (1) Misjoinder of accused—An Appellate Court when setting aside the conviction and sentence in a warrant case on the ground that the accused had been illegally tried along with another person, is competent to direct that the accused be retried on a fresh charge framed on the evidence already recorded for the prosecution—9 N. 42; 4 N 71; 24 C. 104
109. (3) Serious irregularities.—e.g. Conviction on evidence not given in the presence of the accused—[2 Weir 481] Conviction by a Second class Magistrate of an offence triable by a Magistrate of the first class.—[2 Weir 452; 8 A. 14; 1 P. R. 1879]. Where material evidence has been arbitrarily excluded—[(82) A. N. 112] A retrial should be held if it were found that the accused had not been properly convicted.—[3 C N. 332-3 C N. 99; Cr. R. 9 of 97]. The Sessions Judge is competent, under S. 423 (b) of the Cr. P. C. to order the retrial of an appellant.—[(53) A. N. 99; See 13 B. 506].
110. (4) Where the case was tried by a Magistrate who could not have punished adequately.—The appellate Court may order retrial

if it is of opinion that although the Magistrate was competent to try the case, he was not competent to punish adequately.—[16 P. R. 1895]

111. (5) Where the accused should have tried for a graver offence.—11 C. N. c. [But where in the interests of the public justice a retrial is unnecessary, it should not be ordered.—[2 M. T. 495]

112. (6) That the trial should have been by a jury.—If the Court is of opinion that on the evidence appearing from the record, there is a case which ought to be investigated by a jury, it may direct the appellant to be retried according to law.—30 C. 822

113. (7) Verdict bad on account of misdirection.—When a case had been tried before a jury, and the conviction has been set aside on the ground of misdirection, the accused is entitled to have his case retried before a jury.—4 C. N. 576
Makin's Attorney General for New South Wales v. R (1893) A. C. 57 26 M. 1 [Per Benson J.] 19 B. 719

114. (7A) When the jury had been improperly discharged in the midst of the trial.—2 Wen 197

115. (8) Whenthe judgment of the lower appellate Court is defective.—Where in the judgment of the Appellate Court no facts are stated, nor reasons are given of the conclusions arrived at by the Appellate Court in upholding the conviction, the deficiency in the judgment cannot be made up by having recourse to the judgment of the Magistrate who convicted the accused. The appeal must be tried again.—7 C. N. 30.

28 P. R. 1854.

118. (12) Where there has been irregularity occasioning a failure of justice, the Session Judge is competent to order a new trial.—28 C. 63.

When a retrial may not be ordered.

- 121B. (1) When the trial in the case was by a Magistrate having no jurisdiction, no trial had in fact taken place, so that the Sessions Judge could not possibly have ordered a retrial.—22 C. 412.

122. (2) If a Sessions Judge, hearing an appeal, thinks the evidence of some more witnesses, who were not examined in the lower Court is necessary, he should proceed under cl. (1) of S. 423 Cr. P. C., and cannot merely on that ground order a retrial.—31 C. 710

124. (4) The fact that the law gives operation to the finding of the Judge and not to that of the assessors does not detract from the value of the opinion expressed by them. Where therefore the Judge and assessors have disagreed as to the facts, which were peculiar and as to which different conclusions have been arrived at by different minds there ought to be no retrial ordered.—[Per Woodroffe J. in 8 C. facts, on which a conviction for any offence could

- be sustained had been put in issue before the trying Magistrate. Hill—that before quashing the sentence and directing a new trial the Appellate Court should have come to a certain conclusion as to the offence which the accused were shown by the evidence to have committed and that it should have considered whether if the evidence showed that the accused should properly have been convicted of another offence than that charged, they would be prejudiced by amending the conviction.—2 Weir 180
127. When a retrial should or should not be ordered.—A retrial may not necessarily be ordered because the trial was held by a Court without any jurisdiction or because certain material evidence was left out when the prosecution of its own negligence failed to produce such evidence after having ample opportunities to do so [30 M. 157 See 7 W. R. 3] But where the original trial was void for want of jurisdiction or misjoinder and the enquiry was held very superficially and without examining material witnesses, a retrial was ordered [3 Bur T. 9] Where the error though undoubted, was not material, as for instance, when a person who should have been convicted of cheating by personation had been convicted of giving false information, the High Court declined to interfere [3 B. H. 42 : 7 W. R. 3]
128. Power to be exercised with discretion.—The power of ordering a retrial under S. 423 Cr. P. C. should be exercised with discretion. A retrial may properly be ordered, when the original trial is void for want of jurisdiction or for misjoinder or when the enquiry has been obviously superficial and material witnesses have not been examined. A retrial should not be ordered with the object of enabling the prosecution to fill up deficiencies in the evidence of the prosecution.—8 I. C. 591 (M)
129. Retrial should not be ordered in the absence of irregularity.—Where the evidence recorded by the Magistrate is as full as the law requires, and there is no irregularity in procedure necessitating a retrial, it is not competent to a Sessions Judge to order a retrial. He must consider the case on evidence before him and proceed to judgment.—Rat 330
130. Retrial should not be ordered merely for the purpose of filling up deficiencies in the evidence.—See Notes under S. 428 infra
131. Proper order in a case in which evidence has been illegally refused or admitted.—Where a Magistrate had refused to take the evidence offered by the accused in his defence, the proper order for the Sessions Judge is to set aside the conviction and sentence, and direct the Magistrate to recommence from the stage when the evidence was refused [28 P. R. 1884] If the verdict is vitiated owing to reception of inadmissible evidence, the High Court may consider whether after excluding the evidence wrongly admitted the rest of the evidence is sufficient to sustain the verdict. If such evidence does not appear to be conclusive, the High Court may reverse the conviction and order a new trial [27 B. 626 (636) : 10 B. H. 497 : But See 14 C. N. 493 : 4 C. N. 576]
132. High Court may direct retrial by a fresh jury.—2 Weir 190
133. Appellate Court may direct retrial by a particular subordinate Court.—Rat 367
134. Effect of an order for retrial. When a conviction is set aside and a retrial ordered the habeas corpus is rescinded and the accused must be tried again on all the charges originally framed (having regard to the provisions of S. 423, the provisions of S. 403 in that respect cannot apply) 10 C. 163 : S. 22 C. 377

135. (1) the appellate Court in remanding a case for retrial should not restrict the evidence to be taken to that mentioned in its order. 3 C. J. 301
136. (2) A Sessions Judge has power to direct a retrial upon a charge framed in whatever manner he thinks fit on the ground that the accused had been misled in his defence by the absence of or defect in a charge.—7 C. N. 301
137. Can the appellate Court on setting aside the conviction order a retrial by itself? He can.—30 M. 288 : 2 Weir 481 He cannot.—Rat 982 See also 21 C. 955 [Per Maclean C. J.]
- (3) COMMITTAL FOR TRIAL.
138. Order for committal by Sessions Court.—A sessions Judge, as a Court of appeal, having reversed the sentence and finding of the lower Court, can order the appellant to be committed for trial to the Court of Sessions.—15 A. 205 23 C. 975 : 27 C. 172.

competent to try and referred the matter to the District Magistrate, held, that the procedure adopted by the Head Assistant Magistrate was not legal and his proper course was to follow the procedure laid down in S. 423 (1) (b). If there was no Court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to the Head Assistant Magistrate he should have directed the committal of the accused to the Sessions.—(02) 2 Weir 484
140. Preliminary investigation unnecessary on receiving order for committal.—Where a Deputy Magistrate had convicted some persons of the offence of house-breaking by night and of voluntarily causing hurt, but the Sessions Judge, on appeal, being of opinion that the offence committed was that of drunkenness, directed a committal for trial of Sessions, held that an investigation preliminary to commitment was not necessary.—2 Weir 479

141. Where an order for committal should and should not be made.—Where the lower Court in trying the case has ignored circumstances of aggravation (e.g., when it has convicted the accused of an offence under S 193, when it should have committed him to the sessions under S 194 I P C) the only questions which need be considered by the Appellate Court, is whether its interference is called for, in the interests of justice or whether the punishment is hopelessly inadequate. But if no failure of justice has occurred, the conviction should not be set aside and a committal ordered. The proceedings of the Magistrate are not void but merely voidable.—[S 530 Cr P C]—24 M 675

- 141A. Scope of the order—S 423 (1) cl (b) does not authorise a Sessions Court to commit a case to itself but only empowers it as a Court of appeal to direct a competent Magistrate to make a commitment to itself.—(7) A N 178 See 22 C 50

(4) REDUCTION OF SENTENCE.

141. On the ground that it is excessive—High Court can mitigate a sentence by a Magistrate, confirmed or altered on appeal by the Sessions Judge, on the ground that it is excessive
6 W R 7.

143. When the Appellate should reduce the sentence.

- (1) When the Appellate Court sets aside the conviction for one of the offences, it should reduce the sentence otherwise the upholding of the sentence passed by the Lower Court would amount to enhancement, which is illegal.—S M T 117 3 M T 312 22 B 760 See 2 Weir 457-A.
- (2) Where a Magistrate convicts the accused persons under Ss 147 and 379 I P C but passes only a single sentence for both the offences, an Appellate Court in acquitting the accused under S 379, should make some reduction in the sentence unless the Court thought that the sentence ought not to be reduced, in which case it should refer the matter to the High Court for enhancement of the sentence.—30 M 48 24 C 316 3 N 67 (60)

144. When the injury caused is trifling.—High Court will reduce sentence if there is no clear evidence of the amount of damage done

145. Appellate Court after rejecting an appeal cannot diminish the sentence.—Rat 304

146. Appellate Court cannot divide the sentence between the two offences.—Where a Magistrate in convicting a person of two offences, passed a single sentence of imprisonment and fine, hold that separate sentences should have been passed, and that the Appellate Court, in reversing the conviction for one offence cannot allot the imprisonment to one offence and the fine to the other.—Rat 409.

(5) ALTERATION OF THE NATURE OF THE SENTENCE.

147. Principles to be observed.—The exercise of the Court's discretion in this respect, must be regulated by a consideration of the nature of the evidence in support of the charge upon which the accused was convicted, and of the question whether that evidence reasonably supports the particular finding to which it is proposed to alter the conviction, and whether the accused, would, in any way be prejudiced or injured by the alteration.
(70) A N. 56

148. Meaning of the word "reverse."—The word "reverse" means to make void to set aside or annul and not merely to change or turn to the contrary
3 W. R. 50

149. When alteration amount to enhancement.—An alteration of a sentence by the Appellate Court from 3 months R. I. to 1 month's R. I. and a fine of Rs 100 in default 1 month's further R. I. may amount to an enhancement regard being had to the fact a fine can, under S 70 I. P. C, be levied even after the imprisonment awarded in default has been under gone, such imprisonment not being a discharge of the fine
7 P R. 1915 [23 A. 497 E.]

150. When alteration does not amount to enhancement.

- (a) Alteration of a part of the sentence when a portion is altered to a punishment of lesser degree of severity does not amount to enhancement.

27 C 175.

- (b) Alteration of imprisonment for one month to one for 5 days and a fine of Rs. 40 in default imprisonment for 2 weeks, is legal and does not amount to enhancement.—30 M. 103 (F.B.); 17 A 67 23 A 497.

151. For further notes.—See VII Enhancement of sentence

(6) ACQUITTAL OR DISCHARGE:

152. Where the Court does not expressly order a retrial.—The fact that the Appellate Court did not expressly order a retrial does not necessarily mean that the Court held that such retrial should not be held. ('56) A. N. 640. 29 C 412; 3 M 48

153. Setting aside a conviction because case is of a civil nature.—It is not good reason for an Appellate court to set aside a conviction for criminal trespass without going into the case, or discussing the evidence or coming to any conclusion thereon, because it considers that it is a matter for civil courts, where the matter has been tried by the first court and the Magistrate had come to the conclusion that the accused was guilty of criminal trespass.—27 C J. 226.

VI. ORDER IN RESPECT OF A PERSON WHO HAS NOT APPEALED.

(1) Power of the High Court.

154. Power of the High Court.—The High Court has power under S 139 to deal with the case of accused persons not appealing against their conviction, while considering and trying the appeal preferred by the other accused cl (5) of the section does not in any way affect the jurisdiction vested in the High Court to deal with their case. [5 C N 330 14 P R 1009 4 Bur T 87 19 W R 57 9 P R 1009]

[Note.—Where in the memorandum of appeal the name of one of the three persons jointly tried and convicted was by oversight omitted, the High Court on the ground that the reasons for the acquittal of the two appellants applied to him also, acquitted him—(33) A N 51]

155. Enhancement of sentence is illegal.—Where the accused has not appealed, the sentence against him cannot be enhanced, simply because his co-prisoners had appealed and their sentences had been enhanced 5 M H (ap) 7

(2) No Court other than High Court can deal with the case of an accused who has not appealed.

156. An appellate Court, other than a High Court, has no authority to alter the sentence of a prisoner who has not appealed and whose sentence is not appealable—8 M H (ap) VII Rat 358

[Note.—The District Magistrate cannot deal with his case in any way, excepting by reporting it to the High Court—Rat 354]

157. Order against a person who has been acquitted.—Where two persons are tried by a Magistrate one of whom was acquitted and the other convicted, the Sessions Judge in dealing with the appeal of the convicted person has no jurisdiction to pass any order affecting the acquittal of the other man—5 A J 1129

(3) Procedure when subordinate appellate Courts think that interference is called for.

158. Appellate Court cannot on the appeal of one prisoner alter the sentence of another prisoner in the same case, who has not appealed

The appellate Court should submit the record to the High Court for order 2 Weir 570 - Rat 358.

VII. ENHANCEMENT OF SENTENCE.

(1) Rules of Practice.

159. Practice of the Bombay High Court.—It has been the invariable practice of the Bombay High Court, in cases that came up before it for enhancement of sentence to accept the conviction as conclusive and to consider the question of enhancement on that basis 32 B 162
160. Order having the effect of enhancement of sentence is illegal.—

- (1) An appellate Court when it reverses the conviction

2 Weir 187(a) 10 M. T 115 3 M T 312

Note.—Where only one offence has been committed and a Magistrate erroneously splits it into two and passes either two sentences or a combined sentence, the joining up of the erroneous split—whether in conviction or sentence cannot be regarded as beyond the powers of the Appellate Court under S 423 3 N. 67 See 8 C P. 23

161. High Court cannot enhance a legal sentence on appeal [1 W. R 19] But it can do so as a Court of Revision under S 439 [6 A 622 (F. B.) - 11 C. 530]

- (2) An appellate Court has no power to enhance a sentence by altering a sentence of fine only into one of imprisonment 18 B 751 18 A 301 (33) 00 L B 423

- (3) Where Sessions Judge and assessors acquit the accused of murder but find guilty on a minor charge, the appellate Court has no power to interfere to enhance the punishment as awarded.

11 J (N. S.) 54

162. Sessions Judge cannot enhance sentence.—Where there are separate convictions and sentences under Ss 117 and 325 I. P. C., the Sessions Judge, while settling aside the sentence under S 325 I. P. C cannot enhance the sentence under S 117 I. P. C to the total of the sentences

(2) Change of Law.

163. — not be made without giving notice to the appellant 24 W. R. 72. See 14 P. R. 1897 or in the case of persons who have not appealed—8 M. H. (ap) 7.
164. Present law.—If the High Court wants to enhance the sentence it cannot do so under S 423. But it can proceed under S 439 Cr. P. C and pass the order in its revisional jurisdiction 11 C 530.

165. [Note.—“Under S 280 (of the Code of 1872), the Appellate Court had power” if it saw reason to do so, to enhance any punishment that has been awarded. This power was taken away from Courts of Appeal by S 423 of the Code of 1882, which was re-enacted in the Code of 1898. The High Court, however, when hearing an appeal against a conviction, may, under S 423 cl (b) alter the finding and then as a Court of revision may under S 439 enhance the sentence so as to make it appropriate to the altered finding"—37 M. 119.

(3) What amounts to enhancement.

166. Order for joint fine.—Two persons who had been sentenced to a fine of Rs 75 each were jointly fined Rs 150 on appeal by the appellate Court—held—this amounted to an enhancement in each case—32 P. L. 1900

167. Acquittal without reduction of sentence.—Acquittal on one of the charges, at the same time maintaining the original sentence in its entirety, amounts to enhancement—33 M. 45—22 B. 700

168. Enhancement by substitution of imprisonment by fine.—Alteration of 15 days R. I. and a fine of Rs 10 or in default one week R. I. to a fine of Rs. 50 or in default 1 month's R. I. [87] A. N. 100] Where in lieu of imprisonment the Appellate Court imposed an additional fine held that it amounted to an enhancement of the sentence [2 Weir 457]

169. Whipping.—"We have no data from which the comparative severity of the two sentences of whipping and rigorous imprisonment can be determined and it is impossible to say how many lashes would be equivalent to a sentence of rigorous imprisonment for a specified period [6 B. L. (appx) 95] The addition of a sentence of whipping by the Appellate Court although the sentence of imprisonment is reduced amounts to an enhancement of the sentence [2 Weir 487] Where the accused was sentenced by a 2nd class Magistrate to a fine of Rs. 50 or in default 45 days' rigorous imprisonment but the District Magistrate, on appeal, altered the sentence to 50 lashes in lieu of the term of imprisonment which the accused had yet to undergo, held that the whipping should have been substituted for the sentence passed by the 2nd class Magistrate and not for the remaining term of imprisonment [Rat 131]

170. Alteration of a sentence of fine to one of imprisonment.
18 B. 751. 16 A. 301

171. Order for payment of Costs.—Where a Magistrate convicting the accused persons directed, out of the fines imposed upon them, the payment of Rs 2 to the complainant as process fees, and on appeal the Deputy Magistrate directed the accused to pay a further sum in addition to the fine already imposed on them as being expenses incurred by the complainant for process fees, etc under S 31 of the Court Fees Act, held that an order to pay a fee under S 31 being an integral part of the sentence, such fee should be treated as a fine imposed by the Court and the Deputy Magistrate had therefore enhanced the sentence which was illegal—5 M. H. (appx) 24—22 M. 153—Con. 26 M. 421—29 M. 188

172. Retention of entire sentence, after reversal of conviction on one of the charges
Where the accused was convicted under Ss 147 and 379 I. P. C. and sentenced to 4 month's R. I.

1 M. L. 405. 3 N. 61

(4) What does not amount to enhancement.

173. Addition of order under S. 106 no enhancement.—Having regard to the provisions of S 106 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code, the order of the Sessions Judge directing the Appellant to furnish security to keep the peace under S 106 did not amount to an enhancement of the sentence—1 U. P. 14—20 Or 760 (N). 21 P. R. 1905

174. Addition of fine after reduction of sentence whether an enhancement.—Where the lower Court convicts the accused and sentences him to imprisonment for a certain period and on appeal, the period of imprisonment is reduced but a fine is imposed in addition, and in default, a further period of imprisonment, the fact that a fine is imposed by the Appellate Court would not, in law, be an enhancement of the sentence, if the aggregate period of imprisonment which the accused may have to undergo is, to any extent, less than the period of the original sentence. In a case where such an alteration of the sentence has the effect of rendering it, in the circumstances of the case, excessive or inappropriate, the interference in revision of a superior Court may be called for—30 M. 103 (F.B.). See 1 M. J. 194 (N) 23 B. 439—27 C. 175 Or R. 31 of '98—Con 17 A. 67—23 A. 497—2 Weir 456—2 Weir 157.

175. [Note.—An alteration of sentence by the Appellate Court from simple imprisonment for one month to a sentence of simple imprisonment for three weeks and a fine of Rs 50. in default a further imprisonment of one week amounts to an enhancement of the sentence—3 N. 90

VIII. CONSEQUENTIAL AND INCIDENTAL ORDERS.

176. Scope of S. 423 (1) (d).—The phrase "make any consequential or incidental order which may be just or proper" in S. 423 (1) (d) of the Code, does not embrace any and every ancillary order which is capable of being described as consequential or incidental—39 C. 157 (F.B.)

177. Meaning of "consequential order."—A consequential order which follows as a matter of course, being the necessary complement to the main order passed, without which the latter would be incomplete or ineffective [30 C. 157 (F.B.). 3 Bui 1—250]

178. Principles applying to the passing of consequential and incidental orders.—Under S. 139 read with S. 423 of the Crim. P. Code, the Court has power to pass any order that may be just and proper, and the offence having been compounded, the conviction should be set aside—13 O C 161

79. Order for compensation.—An Appellate Court can pass an order against the complainant awarding compensation to the accused under S 250 Cr. P. C. Such an order may very reasonably be regarded as a consequential order within the meaning of S 423 Sub S 1 cl (d)—14 C N 212 Con—28 A 625; 39 C 517 (F.B.)

[Note.—An Appellate Court cannot order compensation such as is contemplated by S. 250 Cr P C 39 C 157 (F.B.)]

2) Incidental orders which may or may not be passed.

80. Power to order restoration of property—(S. 522 Cr. P. C.)—S 423 of the Code of 1895 provides for the making by an Appellate Court of any consequential or incidental order that may be just and proper, therefore a Magistrate of the first class empowered to hear appeal from subordinate Magistrates, has jurisdiction under S 423 (d) to pass an order under S 522 Cr P C [24 C 724 14 Cr 172 (C) See 23 B 194 23 W R 54 But see 25 C 630] Under the Code of 1895, the High Court has the power of making any consequential or incidental order that may be just and proper as a Court of revision. An accused person may be restored upon his acquittal, to the possession of the property from which he has been deprived in favour of the complainant—[27 A 415 (06) A N 250, 19 C N 990 18 C N 859] The High Court has power to interfere in revision with an order passed by a Magistrate under S 522 Cr P C [36 C 44 7 O C 25]

81. Order for removal of obstruction.—Although an appellate Court has under S 423 the power of making any amendment or any consequential or incidental order that may be just and proper, the Appellate Court could not set aside the order for removal of obstruction made by a lower Court upon conviction under S 341 I P C—5 C N 142

[Note.—In 31 C 691 (F.B.) it was held (Butt and Amer. Di JJ dissenting) that such an order could not be made by a Magistrate. The order may therefore presumably be set aside as illegal.]

82. [Note per Contra. An Appellate Court is not competent to make an order under S 522 Cr P C directing the restoration of the possession of immovable property to the person entitled thereto. When the trial Court had, for some reason or other refrained from taking action under the affected section as such, an order cannot be regarded as a consequential or incidental order within the purview of S 423 (1) cl (d) Cr. P. C. [14 P R 1919, 39 C 1070]

183. Order under S. 31 of the Court Fees Act—for payment of costs by the accused to the complainant can be made by the Appellate Court [20 M 188] But when made by the lower Court cannot be set aside [31 M 517]

184. Sending back judgment to be signed by the Magistrate—is an incidental order within the meaning of S 423 (1) (d) Cr P C—11 A 217

185. Permission to compromise.—The Code of Criminal Procedure S 439 sets forth the powers of a Court in revision. It only grants certain fixed powers and does not mention S 345 cl (3) If the Appellate Court has power under cl (d) of S 423, to grant sanction to compromise, then cl (3) of Sec 345 was unnecessary—Per Tindall J 11 A J 13 2 A 379 29 M J 521 37 A 127. Con 32 A 153 13 O C 161 13 O C 311

186. Order under S. 471 (1) is clearly an order which the acquitting Court, whether original or appellate, not only has powers to make but is bound to make (if the circumstances of the case require it) Such an order falls within cl (d) of S 423—S Bur T 286

187. Action under S. 562 Cr. P. C. Infra.—The new provisions inserted in S 423 (d) empower the High Court as a Court of Appeal to exercise the powers conferred by S 562 Cr P C—21 A 106 29 M 567 (565) 2 B R 817

188. Requiring security to keep the peace under S. 106 supra.—An order for security under S 106 (3) Cr P C may be made in appeal whether the original Court had jurisdiction to pass such an order or not—33 B 31 30 M 182 37 M 153 (F.B.) 2 Pat J 21 (F.B.). See Note No 97 under S 106 supra at p 111

189. Setting aside lower Court's order under S. 106 supra.—An order under S 106 may be set aside on appeal and the order of the Appellate Court setting aside such an order is an incidental order within the meaning of S 423 cl (3) Cr P C—30 C 101

190. Order of confiscation under the Indian Forests Act.—An order of confiscation under S 54 of the Indian Forests Act VII of 1878 is not incidental to a conviction under that Act. Hence an Appellate Court cannot make such an order of confiscation—27 C 450 4 A 417

191. Expunging remarks in lower Court's judgment.—The High Court has no power to direct a Subordinate Court to expunge or otherwise deal with certain passages in its judgment
2 Weir 531

IX. INTERFERENCE WITH THE VERDICT OF THE JURY.

(1) General Rules of Practice.

Duty of High Court.

92. (1) It is manifestly the intention of the legislature that the power of interference conferred on the High Court, should not be lightly exercised especially when the verdict is one of acquittal and unanimous. The High Court is not authorized by S 423 to alter or reverse the verdict of the jury, unless it is of opinion that the verdict is erroneous owing to a misdirection by the Judge—10 B R 565 25 W R 25 10 B R 565

193. (2) Before the verdict of a jury can be reversed on the ground of misdirection, the High Court must be satisfied that the verdict was erroneous, or in other words there has been a failure of justice by reason of the misdirection. But these provisions do not require that the High Court is to go through the facts and find for itself whether the verdict is actually erroneous upon the facts.—25 C. 230; 2 C. N. 49

194. Meaning of the word "verdict."—The word "verdict" in S. 423 cl. (d) Cr. P. C means the entire verdict on all the charges framed in course of a trial for various offences as provided by S 236 Cr P C The term is not limited to a verdict on a particular charge on which the accused is convicted and conviction on which is appealed against.—22 C 377

195. Meaning of misdirection.—The expression "misdirection" as used in the Crim. Pro. Code includes not only an error in laying down the law by which the jury are to be guided, but also an error in summing up the evidence.—[3 S 102 5 B. H (C) 85-85 94] Technically "misdirection" means an error of law made by a Judge in charging the jury (Wharton) or "an error of a Judge in charging the jury on a matter of law." (Mosley and Whiteley).

196. Effect of the reversal of a jury's verdict.—The law nowhere lays down that where the verdict of the jury is set aside, the Court must necessarily direct a new trial. It can deal with the case of which it has complete seisin.—25 C 711

197. Interference to lessen the punishment.—The High Court cannot nullify the verdict of a jury by interfering to lessen the punishment when the conviction itself was not considered improper.—6 W. R. 6

198. Construction of order interfering with the verdict.—The petitioner was convicted in a trial by the Sessions Judge with a jury on a verdict of guilty. On appeal, the verdict of the jury was set aside on the ground of irregularity, and the following order was passed "It will be open to the Crown to proceed further with the case, if it be so advised. We direct that until a fresh trial, if any, the accused be enlarged on bail to the satisfaction of the District Magistrate. Held that the order of the High Court did not amount to an acquittal or discharge but an order for retrial subject to the right of the Crown if it thought fit to withdraw the proceedings.—46 C 212

199. Powers of interference lie within extremely narrow compass.—See Note No 208 below

(2) What amounts to misdirection.

200. (1) In a rape case the judge said in his charge "you will observe that this sexual intercourse was against the girl's will and without her consent"—held this was a misdirection.—25 C 230

201. (2) Omission to explain the law to the jury amounts to misdirection.—25 C. 361.

202. (3) The omission to sum up properly to the jury, if the prisoner is thereby prejudiced.—5 B. H. 85 18 W. R. 66.

203. (4) Where material facts of the case which are proper subjects for consideration by the jury are not left to them.—7 W. R. 2

204. (5) The omission of the Judge to tell the jury that it was for them to consider whether upon the evidence adduced the offence was established. 25 C. 230-10 C. 970.

205. (6) Omission to read material portions of evidence to the jury, unless, it has led to misdirection of the jury, is not by itself sufficient to justify a reversal of the verdict of the jury.—5 B. R. 207

206. See—Note under S. 297-99 Cr. P. C. for a fuller treatment of the subject IX. Misdirection and Non direction (p 539 Supra.)

(3) When High Court will or will not interfere.

207. Evidence inadmissible.—Where a part of the evidence which has been allowed to go to the jury is held inadmissible, it is open to the High Court in appeal to quash the verdict and order a new trial.—19 B 749 10 B H. 497.

208. Limit of High Court's powers.

(1) High Court has no power to go into the facts of the case in order to see whether or not the conviction is right.

20 W. R. 41 See 25 C 230

(2) A Court of appeal will not interfere with the verdict of a jury if the omission of the Judge to read out material portions of the evidence to them has not prejudiced the accused.—5 B R 207 See 5 B. H. 85

(3) Where the judge has omitted to draw the attention of the jury to the two classes of culpable homicide mentioned in S 304 I P C, the High Court would take it that the jury found the accused guilty of the lighter description of the offence.—6 B L (sp) 86.

(4) Appeals to Privy Council.

209. Appeal to Privy Council not confined to cases of misdirection.—No countenance is to be given to the view that appeal to the Privy Council would be allowed merely on the ground that the jury had been misdirected. 15 A. 310 See also.—18 W R 407-18 W R 407n 10 B. H. 75 7 B H 77

X. HIGH COURT.

Power in revision.

211 (1) The High Court can in revision order a person convicted by a Presidency Magistrate to be committed for trial under S 423 C P.—16 B 581

Provided that, unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs, the accused shall not be brought up, or required to attend, to hear judgment delivered.

Notes.

1. For notes relating to this Section see the following—Ss 367-370 IV. Contents of judgments in appeals [p 655] IX. Effect of non-compliance with the provisions of S 367 and S 424 [p 659]
2. Whether the section applies to judgments under S. 123 Supra—It may be open to doubt whether the provisions of Ss 367 and 424 Cr P C which apply to judgments in trials and appeals govern orders under S. 123 Subs (3). But even if they do not, it is only reasonable to require the Sessions Judge in writing his order to show that he has considered the case of each individual accused. Even if the order need not contain all the details required by S 367 still each prisoner has a right to have his case considered on its own merit and the order should show that this has not been lost sight of.—37 C 91

3. Omission to direct new trial may be supplied after delivery of judgment—Where a Sessions Judge on appeal annuls the conviction of the accused on the ground of want of jurisdiction of the Magistrate who tried the case, but omits to order a new trial before a competent court, the Judge is not precluded from passing such order subsequently. The order annulling the conviction is not an acquittal.—(81) 3 M 15.
4. Duty of the Appellate Court—The appellate court should decide both on the sufficiency of the prosecution evidence to warrant a conviction and on its reliability.—2 Weir 536

425. (1) Whenever a case is decided on appeal by the High Court under this Chapter, it shall Order by High Court on appeal to be certified to lower Court certify its judgment or order to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order appealed against was recorded or passed. If the finding sentence or order was recorded or passed by a Magistrate other than the District Magistrate the certificate shall be sent through the District Magistrate.

(2) The Court to which the High Court certifies its judgment or order shall thereupon make such orders as are conformable to the judgment or order of the High Court: and, if necessary the record shall be amended in accordance therewith.

426. (1) Pending any appeal by a convicted person, the Appellate Court may, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, order that the execution of the appeal Release of appellant on bail sentence or order appealed against be suspended and, also, if he is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond.

(2) The power conferred by this section on an Appellate Court may be exercised also by the High Court in the case of any appeal by a convicted person to a Court subordinate thereto.

(3) When the appellant is ultimately sentenced to imprisonment, penal servitude or transportation the time during which he is so released shall be excluded in computing the term for which he is so sentenced.

Notes.

1. The Section applies only to a Court before which an appeal is pending—A Sessions Judge has no authority to suspend a sentence in the absence of an appeal [5 M II (appx) 1]. The only Courts which have power to suspend the execution of a sentence or order are the Courts to which an appeal lies and the High Court. A Sessions Judge has therefore no power to suspend the operation of the sentence passed on certain accused persons by a second class Magistrate under S 126 [2 Weir 536]
2. No power to suspend his own sentence—A Sessions Judge has no authority to suspend his own sentence [1 M. II (appx) 1]. A sentence of imprisonment be it for however short a period, cannot be suspended to take effect at a future time. A Magistrate, at the request of the accused suspended the sentence in order to enable him to appeal, held that he had acted illegally in doing so [12 W. R 17]

3. Order for detention under S. 10 of the Reformatory Schools Act.—An order of detention passed by a District Magistrate under S 10 of the Reformatory Schools Act (VIII of 1897) is not a "sentence" within the meaning of S. 426 Cr P. C. nor is it a punishment enumerated in S 53 I. P. C. A Sessions Judge therefore, has no power to suspend its operation under S 126 Cr P. C.—16 Cr. 134 (VI).

427. When an appeal is presented under section 417, the High Court may issue a warrant directing that the accused be arrested and brought before it or any subordinate Court, and the Court before which he is brought may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal, or admit him to bail.

428. (1) In dealing with any appeal under this Chapter, the Appellate Court, if it thinks additional evidence to be necessary, shall record its reasons, and may either take such evidence itself, or direct it to be taken by a Magistrate, or when the Appellate Court is a High Court, by a Court of Session or a Magistrate.

(2) When the additional evidence is taken by the Court of Session or the Magistrate, it or he shall certify such evidence to the Appellate Court, and such Court shall thereupon proceed to dispose of the appeal

(3) Unless the Appellate Court otherwise directs the accused or his pleader shall be present when the additional evidence is taken, but such evidence shall not be taken in the presence of jurors or assessors

(4) The taking of evidence under this section shall be subject to the provisions of Chapter XXV., as if it were an inquiry

Notes.

1. Object of the section.—The object of the section is the prevention of a guilty man's escape through some careless or ignorant proceedings of the Magistrate, or the vindication of a wrongfully accused person's innocence, where the Magistrate, through the same carelessness or ignorance, has omitted to record circumstances essential to the elucidation of truth.—18 W R 31
2. S. 428 applies equally to appeals against acquittal and conviction.—S 428 Cr P C allows additional evidence to be admitted in appeals against acquittals as well as in appeals against convictions, although cases in which this power is exercised will naturally be rare.—26 M J 160
3. Scope of the section.—S 428 does not empower the Appellate Court to call for a fresh finding from the subordinate Magistrate nor can the Appellate Court instead of disposing of the case himself, after considering the whole evidence, including the additional evidence, act on the fresh finding called for.—(14) M N 778 9 M T 406
4. S. 428 Cr. P. C. applies to appeals from sentence by Agent of Mewas Estates in West Khandesh.—S 4 of Act XI of 1846, taken in conjunction with rule 44 which permits of a petition being made by a party against whom a sentence has been passed by the Agent of Mewas Estates in West Khandesh, permits the High Court to entertain the appeal of an accused, and if necessary to resort to the provisions of S 428 Cr P. C. for the purpose of obtaining any additional evidence that may be necessary.—18 B R 789
5. S. 428 does not apply to orders under S. 125 Cr. P. C.—The proceeding under S 125 is neither appellate nor revisional [32 C 948] See 428 Cr P C dealing with remand has no application to an order under S 125 Cr P C.—20 Cr 221 (Pat)
6. S. 428 does not apply to proceedings under S. 195. (6).—The power to take or call for further evidence given by S 429, is expressly limited to appeals under that chapter (i.e) under Chapter XXXI of the Code S 195 is not part of that chapter nor does the section itself give any power to call for further evidence.—33 M 90—See 30 M 311
7. Remand for removing technical defects in the prosecution evidence.—"It would not, in my opinion be creditable to the administration of justice, or in accordance with modern ideas on the subject, that a conviction on a charge, if otherwise sustainable, should be upset owing to a misconception on the part of the prosecution as to the proper mode of proving a statutory requisite, not affecting the merits, a misconception which was shared by the trial Magistrate. When the Appellate Court has statutory power to prevent such a miscarriage by directing fresh evidence to be taken on the point, it should take action under S. 423 to supply a defect in formal proof. Per Wallace C. J. in 42 M. 585
8. **...

885.] When no evidence or insufficient evidence has been adduced on a relevant point in the Court of the first instance by a party who had ample opportunity to adduce all his evidence, takes all the evidence produced by the prosecution and that evidence fails to sustain the charge, the High Court, will not except in very exceptional circumstances direct that additional evidence should be taken. The powers conferred by S 282 Cr P C (S 425) are not, in my opinion, intended to be exercised in cases like the present, in which the prosecution having had ample opportunities to produce evidence have done so and that entire evidence falls short of sustaining the charge.—Per Mahmood J in 5 A 217. See 6 B II (C.C.) 64.] Where the additional evidence to be taken does not bear on the guilt or innocence of the accused an order under this section is unnecessary.—[23 W R 31]

9. Direction to take additional evidence accused and directing the Magistrate to take additional evidence, but at the same time, requiring him to record a fresh decision, on evidence already on the record of the case, and upon the additional evidence which he was directed to take is wholly illegal.—1 Pat J 99 3 C J 303. 3 Pat W 224

10. Appellate Court bound to record rea-taking of such evidence was an enquiry.—8 M T 423 8 W T 418

[Note.—The failure of a Deputy Magistrate to record his reasons for ordering fresh evidence under S 424 Crim Pro Code is an irregularity that is cured by S 637 [9 M T 406]

11.

Court under S 564 of the Civil P C. (1882) A Court of criminal appeal can take additional evidence at any time, only it must record reasons for so doing.—8 M T 418 See 8 M T 423.

12. When the appellate Court may act.—The appellate Court can call for further evidence under S 424 Cr P C only if it considers necessary, that is where the evidence on record is unsatisfactory or leaves room for some doubt and not where there is no evidence at all [10 M. T 506; 9 B. L. (appx) 31]

[Note.—The necessity for taking additional evidence must be apparent from something on record and cannot be derived from external information.—

3 L B 114.

13. Discovery of fresh evidence after filing appeal.—Fresh evidence will not be allowed to be adduced in appeal which was not tendered in the lower Court on the ground that it was discovered after the filing of the appeal.—9 M. T. 321 3 M 111

14. When the new evidence was improperly refused by the lower Court.—Where the prosecution offered to adduce evidence but the

the Sessions Judge refused to adjourn a case in order to obtain the evidence of two absent witnesses for the defence on the ground that they were persons of very ordinary status, whose evidence would in no case carry much weight, the High Court directed the Sessions Judge to take the evidence of the two witnesses and to certify the same to the High Court [19 M. 375 See 31 C 710; 6 C. J. 251]

15. What an appellate Court may not do.—(1) it cannot call for a finding from the lower Court [9 M. T. 406] Cannot send a case to the police for investigation [100 A. N. 130] The section does not authorise the examination of an accused as a witness [12 M 451 (453)]

16. presence of as to the mode enquiries and 175 Supra the High Court could dispense with the presence of the accused when additional evidence was recorded by itself.—Cr A 52 of 1906 (A)

17. Power to record evidence in the absence of the jury.—In only one instance is a Court of Sessions authorised to record evidence in the absence of the jury or the assessors, and that is when additional evidence is called for by the Appellate Court.—15 A. 136

18. Lower Court's duty on remand for additional evidence.—A remand of a case under S 422 Cr P C (=S. 428) can only be for the purpose of taking further evidence and certifying the result thereof to the Appellate Court, and not for the purpose of retrying the case upon such fresh evidence After remand under this section, the Appellate court can only try the case, as an ordinary appeal and has no power to enhance the punishment.—3 B L. (appx) 62

19. Date of rehearing must be fixed.—Whenever a Criminal appeal is sent back for further enquiry, the Appellate Court should invariably fix a date for the rehearing of the case taking care that the date so fixed is, in each instance, sufficiently remote to allow of a return being made to the order of remand.—Punj. Civ p 290.

20. Effect of dismissal of appeal after taking additional evidence.—An appellant whose appeal is dismissed by an Appellate Court, after it has taken additional evidence under S 423, has no right of appeal to the High Court.—27 C. 372. See 8 W R 59; 15 W. R. 33. 6 B II. (C.C.) 64; Con. 2 W R 13.

[Note.—The law as contained in S 422 (= S 425) Cr. P. C. was amended by Act VIII of 1899]

21. Subordinate court taking further evidence may act under Ss. 195 and 470 Cr. P. C.—When an Appellate Court directs further evidence to be taken by a subordinate court under S 422 Cr. P. C. (= S 425) it is competent to the subordinate court before which such evidence is given, if any offence against public justice as described in S 169 (= S 195) is committed before such court by a witness whose evidence is being recorded therein, to send the case for investigation to a Magistrate under S. 171 (= S. 470)—5 B. L. 698 (F. B.)

22. [Text partially illegible]

cannot restrict the evidence to be taken to that mentioned in its order, but it should order the case to be retried in view of the instructions contained in its order. The accused is entitled to adduce such additional evidence as he may desire [3 O. J. 303]. S 417 does not authorise a Sessions Judge or District Magistrate to take evidence or to direct evidence to be taken supplementing the evidence given in the lower court. He is authorised to direct a further enquiry, but not to take evidence or direct evidence to be taken. Under S 425, an Appellate Court dealing with an appeal may direct additional evidence to be taken and itself record such evidence. The High Court under S 439 has powers, as an Appellate Court to direct evidence to be taken. No such powers are given to the Sessions Judge or the District Magistrate under S. 437. [6 C. J. 251]

429. When the Judges composing the Court of Appeal are equally divided in opinion, the case, Procedure where Judges of Court of Appeal are equally divided with their opinions thereon, shall be laid before another Judge of the same Court, and such Judge, after such hearing (if any) as he thinks fit shall deliver his opinion, and the judgment or order shall follow such opinion.

Proposed amendment to the section.—To section 429 of the said Code the following proviso shall be added, namely—

“Provided that, if either of the Judges composing the Court of appeal so require, the appeal shall be re-heard before them and another Judge, or if the Chief Justice or the Judicial Commissioner so direct, before three other Judges, and the judgment or order shall follow the opinion of the majority of the Judges so re-hearing the case”

Notes.

1. Difference between Judges on a reference under S. 307 Cr. P. C.—In difference between the Judges on a reference under S 307, the practice of the High Court in differences under S 429, should be followed—15 B 542 See 27 C 501 (505) 27 C 892 (910)
2. The whole case is to be considered by the third Judge.—Where the Judges composing the Court of Appeal are equally divided in opinion upon the question of the guilt of an accused person, though upon certain aspects of the case they may be agreed, the case of the accused is, under S 429, laid before a third Judge, whose duty it is to consider the whole case and all the points involved, and it will be according to the opinion of such Judge that judgment will follow—Per Mookerjee J. in 15 C N 18 See 21 Cr 547 (c)
3. When there is difference in proceedings under S. 195 (6)—Where on an application to the High Court under S 195 cl (c), the Judges hearing the application are equally divided in opinion, the case is governed by S 36 of the Letters Patent and not by Ss 429 and 449 of the Cr P C—22 M. J 419 (F. B.)

4. S. 429 does not apply to proceedings under S. 107 of the Government of India Act.—When on an application to the High Court under S 107 of the Government of India Act (5 and 6 Geo V C 61), there is a difference of opinion between the Judges, the decision of the senior Judge prevails—21 Cr 25 (c).
5. Third Judge should not differ on points of agreement.—Where on a difference of opinion between the two Judges of a Criminal Revisional Bench of the High Court, the case is referred to a third Judge, the third Judge will not differ upon a point on which both the referring Judges are agreed, unless there are strong grounds for doing so—22 C N 745

430. Judgments and orders passed by an Appellate Court upon appeal shall be final except in the cases provided for in section 417 and Chapter XXXII.

Notes.

1. Meaning of final sentence.—A sentence can only be said to be final, when it cannot be set aside or interfered with by any Court or authority whether on appeal or otherwise—12 O 536

2. Order under S. 195(b).—Where criminal limitation, held that the Sessions Judge has no power to readmit it, as the Crim. Pro. Code nowhere provides for a review of judgments in criminal matters [19 B 732, 24 P. R 1887]. An order of rejection of an appeal is clearly an order made by an appellate court in appeal and is therefore final [1 B 101 But See 7 B H (C C) 67].
3. Verdict and Judgment of Division Bench is final.—The verdict and judgment of a Division Bench of the High Court in a criminal case, coupled with the sentence are absolutely final [11 C 42 (F. B.)]
4. Order under S. 195(b).—An application to a Sessions Judge to set aside a sanction granted under S. 195 is a criminal proceeding in revision and not by way of appeal. His order thereon being final, he has no power to review or revise it.—23 B. 59
5. Criminal judgments in Sonthal Parganas.—Under S. 1, clause 1, Act XXXVII of 1855, which is in force in the Sonthal Parganas, all sentences in criminal cases are final [12 C. 336]
6. Case is dismissed in default.—The Court has power to re-open and dispose of a criminal case, which has been previously disposed of in default of appearance.—[10 C. J. 80 7 M H (appx) xxix 5 N. 70].

431. Every appeal under section 117 shall finally abate on the death of the accused, and every other appeal under this Chapter (except an appeal from a sentence of fine) shall finally abate on the death of the appellant.

Notes

1. Abatement of appeal.—The Code has not made any provision for the continuance of the appeal either by the heir, or devisee, or executor of the deceased convict or by any other person. The appeal abates upon the Appellant's death. But the High Court has the right to call for the record and make such order thereon as it may deem to be due to justice—2 B 364 Con 39 P R 1894
2. Reason for the exception.—"We think that an appeal against a sentence of fine should not abate by reason of the death of the accused, because it is a matter which affects his estate. We have accordingly excepted this case."—Sel Com Rep. See S 70 I P C
3. Principle in the section applies to proceedings in revision.—The principle contained under S. 431 of the Criminal Procedure Code, is applicable also to cases on the revision side, so that on the death of an applicant for revision, the application would abate except in so far as it relates to a sentence of fine.—8 P. R. 1919; 6 P. R 1893. Con 24 P. R. 1908
4. S. 431 does not apply to proceedings in revision against order under S. 250 supra.—Where compensation has been awarded under S. 250 Cr P. O. and an application for revision against this order has been made, pending which the petitioner dies, the application does not abate also, but can be prosecuted by his legal representatives
5. Abatement of appeal on the death of the appellant.—One of the two accused convicted of criminal breach of trust died after the filing of the appeal from the conviction. The High Court on appeal quashed the conviction of the surviving appellant. A nephew of the deceased appellant applied to the High Court to reverse the conviction and sentence passed upon the deceased. Held that the appeal of the deceased abated and that the case should not be taken up by the High Court under its revisional powers, as it depended on appreciation of evidence; the only remedy open to the representative was to apply to the Governor-in-Council.—19 B. 714.

CHAPTER XXXII.

OF REFERENCE AND REVISION.

432 A Presidency Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, refer for the opinion of the High Court any question of law which arises in the hearing of any case pending before him, or may give judgment in any such case subject to the decision of the High Court on such reference and, pending such decision, may either commit the accused to jail or release him on bail to appear for judgment when called upon

Notes.

1. The section applies only to Presidency Magistrates.—Except in cases where there is a reference under S 432, a High Court cannot and will not express an opinion upon any question unless it is brought before it in the ordinary way by an application for revision—1 S. 4.

2. Reference can be made only on a point of law.—A reference to the High Court under S 432 of the Cr P C must be on a question of law and not on one of fact [Rat 839]. A reference with regard to the expression "stand to ply for hire" in S 22 of the Public Conveyances Act (Bomb Act VI of 1963) was not accepted as the question whether drivers of public conveyances are liable under S 22 of the Act for driving slowly along the road to pick up a fare was held to be one of fact and not of law. [Rat 539]

4. The right to begin in reference proceedings.—In a reference to the High Court by a Presidency Magistrate as to whether on the facts stated, any offence has been committed by

5. Power of the High Court.—Where a reference is made by the Presidency Magistrate to the High Court under S 432, the High Court should deal only with the particular points of law referred to

433 (1) When a question has been so referred, the High Court shall pass such order thereon as it thinks fit, and shall cause a copy of such order to be sent to the Magistrate by whom the reference was made, who shall dispose the case conformably to the said order

Direction as to costs (2) The High Court may direct by whom the costs of such reference shall be paid

Note.

1. Order under S. 433 not open to review
—The High Court sitting as an Appellate Court cannot review an order made by itself under S 433 Cr P C—Rat 635.

434. (1) When any person has, in a trial before a Judge of a High Court consisting of more than one Judge, been convicted of an offence the Judge, if he thinks fit, may reserve and refer for the decision of a Court consisting of two or more Judges of such Court any question of law which has arisen in the course of the trial of such person, and the determination of which would affect the event of the trial

(2) If the Judge reserves any such question, the person convicted shall, pending the decision thereon, be remanded to jail, or if the Judge thinks fit, be admitted to bail; and the High Court shall have power to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such question, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction and to pass such judgment or order as the High Court thinks fit.

Notes.

1. Analogous provisions.—See cl 25 of the Letters Patent “And we do further ordain that there shall be no appeal to the said High Court of Judicature at Madras, from any sentence or order passed or made in any criminal trial before the Courts of original criminal jurisdiction which may be constituted by one or more Judges of the said High Court. But it shall be at the discretion of any such Court to revoke any point or points of law, for the opinion of the said High Court” and cl 26 “And we do further ordain that on each point or points of law being so reserved as aforesaid, or on its being certified by the said Advocate-General that, in his judgment there is an error in the decision of a point or points of law decided by the Court of original criminal jurisdiction, or that a point or points of law which has or have been decided by the said Court shall be further considered, the said High Court shall have full power and authority to review the case, or such part of it as may be necessary, and finally determine such point or points of law, and thereupon to alter the sentence passed by the Court of original jurisdiction and to pass such judgment and sentence, as to the said High Court shall seem right.” See also Ss 11 and 12 of the Lower Burma Courts Act VI of 1900 Punjab Act XVIII of 1884: Ss 18 and 19, N W P Letters Patent

4. Nature of proceedings under S. 434(2)—The power which the High Court exercises under S. 434 is that of review, and the Court is a Court of reference and revision [S B 200] “The Legislature has not conferred, in express words, upon a High Court, the power of reviewing its judgment in all criminal cases, as it has done under the Civil Procedure Code in civil cases—are Code, y merely criminal and are subsequently disposed of under the provisions of S 434 and the corresponding Sections of the Letters Patent N. W. P (Ss 18 and 19)—Pr. Bhodhurst J. in 7 A. 672 See Note Nos 338 and 339 under Ss 297-308 (p 573) and 1 C 207 10 C. J 13. 25 M. 61
5. As to High Court's power of review of its own judgment.—See Notes Ss 367-370: X. Alterations and Interpolations (S 369) No 115 A at p. 660 above.
6. When a question can be referred.—The Judge presiding at the Sessions has no power, under the Charter Act to refer to a Full Bench a point of law raised before the accused was called upon to plead.—28 C 211
7. Revision of decision by a single Judge.—The powers of a Single Judge in a matter with which he has jurisdiction to deal are the powers of the Court, and cannot be, in any way controlled by a Bench or Full Bench of the Court. As no appeal lies, so no revision lies. Both procedures imply subordination or inferiority which does not exist. Except on a reference under S. 434, the proceedings of such Single Judge cannot be revised—1 P. R. 1909 4 P. R. 1909 See 14 C 42 (F. B.)

435 (1) The High Court or any Sessions Judge or District Magistrate or any Sub-divisional

(vii) For sub-section (7) the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"(7) Orders made under sections 143 or 144, or proceedings under Chapter XII, or under sections 176, 176A, 176B, are not proceedings within the meaning of this section."

I. INTRODUCTORY NOTES.

(1) History of the Section.

1. History of the Section.—"Under Act XXV of 1861, the Sadar Court was empowered to call for and examine the record of any case tried by any Court of Session for the purpose of satisfying itself only as to the legality or propriety of the sentence or order passed and as to the regularity of the proceeding of such Court and to reverse the sentence or order only when it was "contrary to law" (vide S 405 Act XXV of 1861) Act X of 1872 enlarged the power of the High Court to call for the record of any case tried by any subordinate Court instead of only of the Court of Sessions as in the Act of 1861, and also enlarged the power to interfere with any judgment, sentence or order of any Court subordinate to it on the ground of material error in any judicial proceeding instead of the order and sentence being "contrary to law" (vide Ss 294 to 297 Act X of 1872) Thus under the old Acts of 1862 and 1872 the power of interference of the High Court was restricted to questions of law and material error in any judicial proceeding. It used to be held under the old Acts that the High Court had no power to enquire into the propriety or correctness of any decision on facts depending upon conflicting evidence [20 W R. 40] Act X of 1882 introduced a radical change in the law regarding the High Court's power of revision. Under S. 435, the High Court was empowered to call for and examine the record of any inferior Criminal Court for the purpose of satisfying itself not only as to the legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order, but also as to the correctness of such finding, sentence or order, and was further empowered under S. 439 to exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 193, 423, 426, 427 and 428. The power conferred by Act X of 1882 has been repeated in sections 435 and 439 of the present Act V of 1894.—Per Juala Prasad J. in 2 Pat. W. 294.

(2) Distinction between the power of revision and the power of superintendence.

2. In Bacon's Abridgment, title 'Prohibition' it is said, "As all external jurisdiction, whether ecclesiastical or civil, is derived from the Crown, and the administration of justice is committed to a great variety of Courts, hence it has been the care of the Crown that those Courts keep within the limits and bounds of their several jurisdictions, prescribed to them by Laws and Statutes of the Realm. The Superior Courts * * * having a superintendence over all inferior Courts may in all cases of innovation, award a prohibition." The distinction lies in the fact that whereas in revision the Superior Court is empowered to call for the record in order to satisfy itself as to the correctness, legality or propriety of any finding, sentence or order passed (S. 435) and "may in its discretion exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by Ss 193, 423, 426, 427 and 428 Cr. P. C." [S. 439], the power of superintendence is entirely distinct from the jurisdiction to hear appeals. If the inferior Court after hearing the parties, comes to an erroneous decision, either in law or fact on a matter within its jurisdiction, the Court having power of superintendence never interferes." (Per Norman J.)—9 W. R. 309. But see 21 Cr. 25 (O).

(3) Sec. 435 (3) does not control S. 107 of the Government of India Act 1915.

3. "It is now well-settled that a High-Court is competent, in the exercise of the power of superintendence vested in it under S. 107 of the Government of India Act 1915 (which replaced S. 15 of the Indian High Courts Act 1861) to set aside proceedings instituted without jurisdiction by a Subordinate Court under S. 145 Cr. P. C., such power of superintendence can be exercised notwithstanding S. 435 (3) Cr. P. Code."—Per Moncrieff J. C. J. in 22 Cr. 213 (S. B.). 26 C. 185; 27 C. 402 (499). 28 C. 416. 33 C. 33. 33 C. 68 (F. B.). 33 C. 352 (F. B.). See 10 C. 105. 18 C. N. 700. 26 M. J. 208. 1 Pat. J. 336 (F. B.). Con 25 A. 144. 18 Cr. 118 (A.)

(4) The inherent power of Courts of justice to pass just and proper orders.

4. Criminal Courts have than Civil Courts exist for the administration of justice and Courts of both descriptions have inherent power to mould the procedure, subject to the statutory provisions applicable to the matter in hand to enable them to discharge their functions as Courts of justice [16 C. N. 1105 (1130); 22 Cr. 213 (S. B.). 44 O. 816. 33 C. 927. 12 C. N. 678. 9 W. R. 402.] There is no species of injustice which the High Court would be powerless to correct under the Charter, where its interference is called for [12 C. N. 678. 14 M. T. 200.]

5. The duty of higher Courts to conserve the legitimate rights of suitors.—"One of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors and when the expression "the act of the Court" is used it does not mean merely the act of the primary Court or of any intermediate Court of Appeal but the act of the Court as a whole from the lowest which entertains jurisdiction over the matter up to the highest Court which finally disposes of the case"—Per Lord Cairns in 40 L. J. P. C. 1. See 22 Cr. 213 (S. B.). [1 Pat. 336 (F. B.). C. J.]

(5) The inherent power to issue a writ of certiorari possessed by High Courts.

6. It is now well-settled that unless the power to issue a writ of Certiorari is expressly taken away it inheres to the Court—Per Sedgwick J. in 39 M. 1164 (F. B.). See R. v. Reeve 2 Burr 1040 R., Jules 5 R. R. 445 R. v. Flourlight 3 Mod 94—57 E. R. 60.
7. Power to interfere where certiorari has been expressly taken away.—"Although certiorari is taken away, it may be granted even on the application of the defendant where the inferior Court has acted without or in excess of jurisdiction, for in such a case the Court has not brought itself within the terms of the statute taking away Certiorari"—Per Lord Halsbury Ex parte Bradlaugh 3 Q. B. D. 509. King Justice of Somersetshire 5 El. and Bl. 49. Queen v. Wood—15 L. J. Q. B. 310. 39 M. 1164 (F. B.).

[Note.—"Where that (want of jurisdiction of the inferior Court) is made out, the statutory prohibition does not apply and the inherent jurisdiction of this Court is unrestrained" Per Coleridge in J. Queen v. South Wales Railway Company 12 Q. B. 327.]

(6) Interference purely discretionary.

8. A Sessions Judge is not required by law to call for or examine the record of any proceeding before an inferior Criminal Court. It is purely optional with him to do so or not.—[74 A. J. 146] The High Court is not bound to interfere under Ss. 435 and 439 Cr. P. C. even if the Magistrate's order sought to be revised is an illegal order.—[26 M. J. 223.]

(7) Nature of jurisdiction exercised under Ss. 435 to 439.

9. (1) It is competent to the High Court, by proceeding in the nature of mandamus, to order the Lower Court to do that which it ought to have done.—3 L. A. 230 (238)

10. (2) "As to certiorari (writ of certiorari) it was contended on behalf of the respondent in the High Court that there is no power in the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari . . . As to (that) point it would seem that at any rate the three High Courts of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay possessed the power of issuing this writ [1 Knapp 1 11 C. 275] where any of the other Courts which are by definition High Courts for the purposes of this Act have the power to issue writs of certiorari is another question. Supposing that this power once existed, has it been taken away by the two Codes of Procedure? No doubt those Codes provide for most cases a much more convenient remedy. But their Lordships are not disposed to think that the provisions of S 435 Cr. P. C. and S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code of 1908 are exhaustive. Their Lordships can imagine cases, though rare ones, which may not fall under either of those sections. For such cases, their Lordships do not think that the powers of the High Courts which have inherited the ordinary or extraordinary jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, to issue writs of certiorari can be said to have been taken away"—Mrs. Annie Besant's case 46 I A 176—43 M 146 (P. C.) 39 M. 1164 (F. B.).

11. (3) The power is to set matters right according to the rules of reason and justice and not according to private opinion [Sharp v Wakefield (91) A C 173 (179)] It is "the exercise of a right or duty to decide" [Re Woodhouse 75 L J K B 745]
12. (4) There is no authority for the proposition that the High Courts power of superintendence over inferior Courts is confined to questions of jurisdiction alone. This power can be exercised, not only where inferior Courts act without jurisdiction or refuse jurisdiction, but also when these Courts commit an illegality or a material irregularity—Per Shamul Huda J in 21 Cr 25 (C)
13. (5) "The controlling power of revision of the High Court in criminal cases is a discretionary power, and it must be exercised with regard to all the circumstances of each particular case, anxious attention being given to the said circumstances which vary greatly. For myself I say emphatically that this discretion ought not to be crystallized, as it would become in course of time by one Judge attempting to prescribe definite rules with a view to bind other Judges in the exercise of the discretion which the Legislature has committed to them. This discretion like all other judicial discretion ought as far as practicable, to be left untrammelled and free, so as to be fairly exercised according to the exigencies of each case"—Per Jenkins C J in 24 B 533 11 P B 1908 5 N 4 2 S 27 (27) 22 C 998 (1001)
14. (6) S 435 Cr. P. C. applies not only when the order is incorrect or illegal but also when it is improper as violating the principles of natural justice—35 M 1081.

(8) Miscellaneous.

15. Scheme of revisional jurisdiction.—Sec. 435 authorises a High Court in revision to call for the records of inferior Criminal Courts, and sections 437 and 439 lay down the powers which a High Court may exercise in proceedings, the records of which have been called for by itself, or which have been reported for orders or which may otherwise come to its knowledge. The summoning of the record must be a necessary preliminary to any action, which a High Court may take under S. 437 or 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Sec 135 states the ground and provides the machinery for the exercise of the powers which the latter sections confer.—Per Kanhaiya Lal A J C in 17 O C 25; See 32 M 220 (233) 36 M 275

- 15B. Jurisdiction not confined to matters coming before the Court by means of petitions under S. 435 Cr. P. C.—The power of a Sessions Judge to call for records under S. 295—S. 435 are powers which are at all times to be exercised and such powers may be put in force not merely on matters coming before the Judge but also on matters coming to his knowledge on reliable information—2 Weir 335 See 2 M 35
- 15C. The general rule for interference by the High Court.—In cases where the High Court has concurrent revisional jurisdiction, with a subordinate Court, the aggrieved party should in the first instance seek his remedy before the subordinate Court—3 Pat J 402 2 Pat W 115 30 A 116 (04) A N 212 36 C 643 14 B. 331 See Note No 109 infra
16. Disposal of property attached without jurisdiction.—The High Court has its inherent power to give directions as to the disposal of property attached in a criminal proceeding initiated without jurisdiction as may be necessary in the interest of justice—22 Cr 213 (S. B.)
17. Ministerial acts of inferior tribunals.—The High Court cannot interfere by a writ of certiorari with the ministerial acts of an inferior tribunal under S. 435 Cr P C—39 M 1164 Eyler ex parte 2 K B 501 (544) See Americ in Encyclopedia VI, p 753 27 M 259 (F. B.) But see Rat 129
18. Powers of Sessions Judge.—The power of a Sessions Judge to call for records under S. 295 (—S. 435) are powers which are at all times to be exercised and such powers may be put in force, not merely on matters coming before the Judge, but also on matters coming to his knowledge on reliable information—2 Weir 335

II. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object of the Section.

19. The object of the Legislature in enacting S 435 C. P. was to secure the setting right of a patent error or defect. In the absence of well founded suspicion of error, it is inexpedient to scrutinise orders of discharge or other orders which, upon the face of them, bear token of careful consideration and appear good and lawful. The Section does not give the High Court a roving commission either in the direction of stamping with approval the proceedings of a Lower Court, or in the direction of questioning about and looking to see if possibly under a fair record, there lies some trace of possible error.—(99) A N 135

(2) Proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C.

20. The order to which finality is given under Ss 145 and 145, must be an order which not only purports to be, but is in reality an order under S. 145 passed by a Court having jurisdiction. Where the Court has exceeded its jurisdiction or where without complying with the procedure prescribed in S. 145 the Court passes an order under S. 145 the High Court is competent to interfere in revision.

[Note the principle applies to cases under Chap XII generally.]

[Note—It has been held that High Courts which are not chartered cannot interfere in revision with proceedings under the excepted sections under any circumstances. 2 L B 239. 1 S 50. 17 C P 133. The Allahabad High Court is inclined in later rulings to lay down the proposition that even the chartered High Courts cannot interfere either in its ordinary or extraordinary jurisdiction. 26 A 144. 31 A 150. See also 30 C 112. There is however a current of rulings to the effect that such High Courts can interfere under S. 15 of the Chartered Act—See 26 C 188. 27 C 892. 27 C 259. 33 C 68 (F. B.). 24 B 527 when the proceedings are in fact, name, and intention, proceedings under Chap XII. High Courts cannot interfere either under 435 Cr P C or S. 15 of the Chartered Act. 4 B R 592 (03) A N 212. 4 C V XXXIII.]

21. When proceedings under Chapter XII may be interfered with.—“If proceedings totally without legal foundation or legislative authority are taken by a Magistrate in the name of proceedings under Chapter XII but not seriously purporting to be taken under, or to comply with the provisions of that Chapter and this Court is satisfied of that fact by reliable evidence, then I think there is clearly a case for interference. * * * It is always open to a party in such a case as this to satisfy the High Court that the property of which he is entitled to possession has been dealt with by an order which has no legal authority at all, and he may do so by an affidavit or in any other reliable manner and thereby invoke the Superintending power of the Court but I do not think he can ask this Court to interfere in revision or to send for the record, merely by showing that on the face of the judgment, the Magistrate has neglected or misinterpreted some of the provisions of this Chapter.”—Wadhwa J in 10 A 264. 26 A 144 (1917) 3 L B 37. (3) Proceedings under S. 144 Cr. P. C.

22. (1) Where the order is altogether outside the scope of S. 144 the High Court has jurisdiction to revise the order under S. 435; S C N. 373. See 13 C N. 185
- 23 (2) An order under S. 141 Cr P C does not fall within the scope of S. 135 of the Code and can only be revised in virtue of the jurisdiction conferred on the High Court by S. 107 of the Government of India Act (5 and 6 Geo. V Ch 61). But it is only in rare cases that the High Court will interfere under that section even where there is a question of jurisdiction, if there is no question of jurisdiction it will interfere only if very great miscarriage of justice would otherwise result—36 M 275 (256). 26 M. J. 209 (19) M. N. 872 [See—S. 141 XIX. Revision and Reference (138-146)] [pp 214-215]

(4) The Rule as to concurrent jurisdiction.

24. In cases where the High Court has concurrent revisional jurisdiction with a Subordinate Court the aggrieved party should, in the first instance, seek his remedy before the subordinate Court—2 Pat W 115, 3 Pat J. 302; 36 C 643; 30 A 116. (04) A N 232. 14 B 331.

(5) Power to interfere at an interlocutory stage.

- 25 (1) The High Court may interfere with and set previous case the Magistrate had, after carefully considering the prosecution evidence, expressed the opinion that the prosecution had hopelessly failed to establish the charge—16 A. J. 478. 14 A J 551

26. (2) Where a complaint of theft brought by a person against his brother was compromised and thereafter the complainant was prosecuted under S. 182 I P C. Held, quashing the proceedings under S. 435 Cr P C that this was not a case in which any action ought to have been taken or any proceedings instituted.—16 A. J. 734
27. (2) The High Court can interfere in revision with an order calling upon a witness to show cause why his prosecution under S. 193 I P C should not be directed though the practice is very unusual—14 A J 851 (92) A N 102
28. (4) The power of the Court to stop the case, if it thinks it a waste of time to go on, is undoubted, though the stage at which it ought to do so, may be a matter of opinion—25 M. J. 690
29. (1) The High Court has power to interfere at any stage of the case, if it considers that the grounds have been made out for interference, but the interference at an interlocutory stage should be rare and only in exceptional cases, i.e., cases where there is some manifest and patent injustice apparent on the face of the proceedings calling for prompt redress.—24 W R 4 28 M J 505 22 C 131; 25 C 233 26 C 746; 20 W R 21 20 B 543 3 L B 109 See 21 Cr 379 (1)

Note.—But where a Magistrate has prima facie authority to order the prosecution of the accused and there was nothing from the facts of the case to indicate that the case was one fit for the interference of the High Court, held, that the High Court would not be justified in interfering during its pendency in a Subordinate Court.—10 C N 322; 2 S 25

0. (6) In exceptional cases, where a bare statement of the facts without any elaborate argument is sufficient to convince the Court that the case is a fit one for interference at an intermediate stage, the High Court will exercise its discretion in interfering during its pendency in a subordinate Court.—10 C N 322, 2 S 25

(6) Application of the Section.

31. A proceeding under Part I of S. 2 of the Workman's Breach of Contract Act is subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court under S 435—2 B R 801 43 B 607
32. Subject of a Native state in custody in British India.—The case of such a person can be revised by the High Court See 9 A J 51
33. Provisions of S. 435 or 438 not controlled by S. 125 Cr. P. C.—There is no ground for holding that the revisional jurisdiction of a Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate under Ss 435 and 438 of the Code is in any way trenching upon by the provisions of Ss 125 Cr P C—3 Pat J 302

III. INFERIOR CRIMINAL COURT MEANING AND SCOPE.

(1) Meaning of the word "Inferior."

34. (1) "Inferior" means "statutably incompetent to hold or exercise equal powers" It carries with it the idea of 'subordinate' which means 'inferior in rank'—9 B 100

35. (2) The term "inferior" in S 435 includes the term subordinate as used in S 437 [8 M 18 (F. B.)] A District Magistrate has power therefore to call and examine the records of a subdivisional Magistrate of the first class

36. (3) The reason for the substitution of the word "inferior" in the Code of 1882 (S 435) for the word subordinate used in the corresponding S 295 of the Code of 1872 is to meet the rulings under that Code to the effect that a District Magistrate is not subordinate to the Session Judge and to provide that nevertheless, the revisional authority of the latter over the former should remain unquestionable [12 C 473 (F. B.)]

- Note.—12 C 473 (F.B.) overruled ('84) 10 C 268 (81) 10 C 551 which had laid down that the word "inferior criminal Court in S 435 of the Cr P C meant inferior so far as regards the particular matter in respect to which the superior Court was asked to exercise its revisional jurisdiction Under this interpretation a first class Magistrate would not be inferior to the District Magistrate The last two Calcutta ruling were followed in ('84) 7 A 134 which in its turn was overruled by 7 A 853 (F.B.)

37. (4) The explanation added to the section by the new amending act settles the meaning of the term inferior Criminal Court "All Magistrates whether exercising original or appellate jurisdiction shall be deemed to be inferior to the Sessions Judge for the purposes of this subsection

(2) The term does not include Civil and Revenue Court.

38. The term "inferior Courts in S. 435 Cr. P. C. does not include a Civil or Revenue Court.—exercising its powers under S 476 Cr P. C.—10 C. 477 (F. B.) S C N. 73. 26 A. 249

77. Extra judicial orders.—A circular by a District Magistrate prohibiting uncertified pleaders from practising in the Criminal Courts in his District is not open to revision by the High Court [19 M J 566]. In '02 A N. 175 the High Court declined to interfere with an order passed by a District Magistrate whereby he revised the list of petition writers who had been allowed to carry on their business within the precincts of District Courts. The rule may be summed up as follows:—The High Court cannot, as a Court of Revision, interfere with the extra judicial order of a Magistrate [(83) A N 25]. An order passed by a District Magistrate under the rules framed by Government under S. 45 (3) Cr P C. is an executive order and not subject to the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court [29 A 563].

VII. PROCEDURE.

(1) Procedure on receiving the record

78. Explanation of the subordinate Court.—Before referring the matter to the High Court, (after receiving the record of the case) the Sessions Judge should call upon the Subordinate Magistrate concerned to submit an explanation of the order passed and should forward it to the High Court along with the record of the case

79. If the Judge was of opinion that any judgment or order was contrary to law or that the punish-below has wrongly excluded a question which the party wished to put to a witness must state the form and substance of the question proposed to be put to enable the appellate or revisional Court, as the case may be, to determine whether the question in each case was so framed as to make it admissible under the Evidence Act 1872

- (3) the indiscreet imposition of fines beyond the means of offenders
- (4) the light punishment by inferior Courts of offences requiring severe punishments in cases which ought to have gone up to a Superior Court for enhanced punishment.

- (5) the imposition of heavy fines in addition to imprisonment with a view, in default of payment to extend the term of imprisonment beyond the ordinary powers of the Magistrate to inflict
 - (6) the exaction of excessive bail or excessive Security for keeping the peace or for good behaviour.
 - (7) unnecessary delay in the trial of cases.
- Mad H C. Rule 17th Decr 1884
87. Limited powers of Sessions Judges and District Magistrates.—These powers differ materially from the power exercised by the High Court under S 439 The District Magistrate or Sessions Judge, except when exercising the powers defined by Ss 436 and 437, can only report the case for orders to the High Court under S 438. See 7 M. H. (appx) xxvii : See (82) A N 146 : Rat 354 : 3 B R. 677.

(4) Rules of Practice.

What a Sessions Judge or District Magistrate may not do.

83. (1) Sessions Judge or District Magistrate making a reference, after calling for records under this Section, cannot take fresh evidence—See (82) A N. 141. 3 B R. 677.
84. (2) There is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code which enables a Judge to stop a trial already commenced and to refer to the High Court any question or questions of law arising on the merits of the case. Rat 214.
85. (3) A District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to reverse the conviction and sentence of a prisoner who has not appealed and order a retrial [See Rat 358 : 3 B R. 677 M. H C Pro. 19 4-75 : 20-2-79]
86. (4) A District Magistrate cannot order the trial of persons who had been complained against but against whom the Magistrate to whom the case had been referred for trial had refused to issue process. 30 C 419.
87. (5) District Magistrate cannot quash the proceedings of a subordinate Magistrate on the ground that the requisite sanction under S. 197 supra is wanting 23 M. 540.
88. Calling up record does not amount to a judicial proceeding.—The calling up of the records under S 435 from a Subordinate Magistrate is not a judicial proceeding. A District Magistrate who calls up the records, has no power to make an order at that stage under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—15 M. J. 489. 7 M. 560
89. Power to stay proceedings.—The Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate cannot stay proceedings but the object may be indirectly attained by calling for the record as the case cannot possibly go on during the time the record is with the Superior Court—See 9 C N. 829

Rules for forwarding the proceedings.

90. (1) Copy of the appellate Court's order should be sent—When proceedings are called by the High Court from any Magistrate, the copy of any order made by the Appellate Court and transmitted to the Lower Court shall be forwarded to the High Court with the record and proceedings of the Magistrate—B. H. C. Cr. Cir. p. 47,

91. (1) Forwarding of the inferior Court records.—The inferior Court shall send the records of the case for the orders of the High Court, also obtain and submit an explanation from the inferior Court of the order passed by it.—8 C. 644.
92. (3) Originals should not be given to Executive Government.—No Court is at liberty to part with its judicial records except when these are called for by an Appellate Court or on the demand of a Superior Court under S. 295 (=S. 435) of the Cr. P. C. They must be retained in order to meet the contingency of such legal requisitions being made For the purposes of any reference or report to the Executive Government, copies of proceedings are sufficient, but for the purposes of appeal to, or revision by Superior Courts, the originals are indispensable—Rat 128.

(5) Interference on facts.

93. The Practice of the Calcutta High Court.—was stated by Moookerjee J. "Although it is unusual in revision to interfere with a finding of fact, there can be no question as to the competency of the High Court so to interfere with a finding of fact when the occasion requires

[Note.—The ruling under the old Code 22 W. R. 40 to the contrary was overruled in 21 C. 931]

94. The Patna High Court.—“Where an occasion for enquiring into the evidence has been made out, in my opinion, it is the duty of the High Court to examine the facts of the case. After such an examination, the Court will not interfere as lightly as it would, if it were a matter of appeal and not revision. The distinction may be a fine one but it is a real distinction, in my opinion, between a case where the Court is aroused to such an extent as to compel the Court to expressly say that the applicant ought not to have been convicted on the evidence—Chapman J. [Juala Pd J. agreeing and Roe J. dissenting]—2 Pat W. 295
95. The Madras High Court.—“No doubt the High Court does ordinarily when acting in revision take the facts as found by the Magistrate, but there is nothing in the Code of Criminal Procedure to limit the Court's powers of interference to cases where the Magistrate has ignored or contravened an express provision of the law."—[Benson and Sundaram Aiyar JJ]¹⁴ M. T. 200; 18 M. J. 57.

96. The Bombay High Court.—"The law as laid down in the Code gives the High Court the power to go into the evidence in revision, but the Bombay High Court has, as a matter of practice, held that it will not go into evidence as a rule, but will interfere only when there is an error of law."—Per Chandavarkar J.—[But See the Judgment of Jenkins C. J]²⁸ B. 533. See 9 B. R. 1385

[N. B.—The powers under the codes of 1861-0 and 1872 were much more limited—See 12 B. L. 249 9 B. II 451]

[8 B. 197. Rat 244: 9 B. R. 706 11 B. R. 858. 14 B. 331] It is only, in very exceptional cases, that the High Court, sitting as a Court of Revision, deals with questions of evidence, and disturbs or supplements the finding of a lower Court on a question of fact. It will do so in the interests of justice, where the enquiry in the Lower Court has been faulty]¹² B. 377 (390) Rat 908 (914) See 14 B. 115 (118)

97. Only in exceptional cases.—It is only in very exceptional cases that the High Court, sitting as a Court of revision, deals with questions of evidence and disturbs or supplements the finding of a lower Court on a question of fact

See—the rulings cited under the head "High Court"

98. Misapplication of evidence.—The High Court, can under S 435 Cr. P. C. interfere in revision where there appears misreading of the documentary evidence and fundamental errors in principle which vitiate the conduct and disposal of the case—25 B. 477 See 6 B. R. 1096; Cr. R. 52 of 23-9-95

[N. B.—The powers under the codes of 1861-0 and 1872 were much more limited—See 12 B. L. 249 9 B. II 451]

99. The principle to be followed.—The High Court acting in revision under S 435 Cr. P. C. is bound to accept the finding of the lower Court, unless there is any error, of law or procedure vitiating that finding or unless there are any special circumstances, apparent on the record to show that in arriving at its conclusion of fact, the lower Court has misapprehended the evidence
9 B. R. 1385

VIII. THE MUTUALLY EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION OF THE DISTRICT MAGISTRATE AND SESSIONS JUDGE.

100. After the Sessions Judge has refused.—After the Sessions Judge's refusal to take action under S 435 Cr. P. C. it is not competent to the District Magistrate to entertain an application for commitment of a discharged accused, nor can he act suo moto. The mere fact that the District Magistrate acted in ignorance of the Sessions Judge's refusal does not make the District Magistrate's order legal—26 M. 477 See 21 Cr. 91 (M) 12 A. 434

101. Co-ordinate jurisdiction.—Under S 435, the Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate have co-ordinate powers to order a commitment upon the evidence already taken instead of directing a fresh enquiry—28 C. 397 See Rat 525

102. Sessions Judge cannot
(1) direct further enquiry under S 437 after the District Magistrate has refused to do so and vice versa—22 C. 573 28 C. 102 10 P. R. 1912 40 C. 119 17 M. J. 153 But See (95) A. N. 38 17 C. N. 451

(2) refer the proceedings of the District Magistrate under S 435 to the High Court—22 C. 573 17 M. J. 153

[In 22 C. 573 and 12 A. 434 it has been—held—that in such a case either of them as the case may be should refer the matter to the High Court. In 17 M. J. 153 however it was—held—that these cases were decided before S 434 (4) was enacted. The has already been moved.—On the 23rd June, the Sessions Judge called for the record of the Special Power Magistrate his order reaching the District Magistrate on the 21st. On the 4th June the District Magistrate had already called for the record. Instead of sending the proceedings at once, the District Magistrate on the 26th signed his name on a printed form bearing the words "on a perusal of the record, no cause appearing for interference, ordered that the record be returned." On the 27th, the Special Power Magistrate sent the record to the Sessions Judge. On the 29th July, the Sessions Judge directed the accused to be committed for trial. On an objection being taken that the Sessions Judge had no jurisdiction to direct it to be made by reason of the provisions of S 435 (4) Cr. P. C. Held—that to hold that the District Magistrate by such action as he took in the case, rendered the Sessions Judge's order Judge of the application prevented the District Magistrate from dealing with the matter suo motu.

8 L. B. 361.

104. The object of enacting S. 435 (4).—S 435 (4) applies to all cases in which either a District Magistrate or a Sessions Judge has taken action or has refused to take action, under S 435, or 436 or 437 or 438 Cr. P. C. The object of the subsection is to avoid a conflict between the orders of the District Magistrate and the Sessions Judge, and the words "further application" in S 435 (4) mean any other application in respect of the order in question of the inferior Criminal Court—10 P. R. 1912

IX. THE HIGH COURT.

105. Extent of Revisional powers.—The High Court is competent in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction to question not only the legality but the propriety of any finding sentence or order.

10 C. 263.

108. Revision of proceedings before Presidency Magistrates.—The High Court has under S 435 and 439 read with S 423 Cr. P. C. the power to revise the proceedings of a Presidency Magistrate, he being subject to its appellate jurisdiction and order further enquiry to be made

26 C 746 ; 13 C. N. 1221 ; 27 B 84 ; See 12 C. N. 678 ; Con. 27 C. 126

107. No limit to High Court's powers—There is nothing in the Criminal Procedure Code which limits the power of the High Court to revise the decision of acquittal passed by the Sessions Judge. The High Court has power to revise a judgment of acquittal, though such power should be exercised with great caution—5 M. T. 258.

108. Interference on questions of fact.—It is the settled practice of the High Court to refuse juris-cept on

struction of documents, or the placing by that Court of the onus of proof on the accused contrary to law of evidence—12 B R. 21 Rat

27 C. 120.

119. Improper exercise of discretion.—Where a Magistrate has not properly exercised his discretion, the order is not a proper order, and the High Court has power to set it aside.—33 C 287.

123. When the sentence has already been served out.—There is nothing in the terms of the law to prevent the High Court from interfering with a conviction even though, in consequence of the expiry of the sentence, it may not be possible to interfere with the matter.

X. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Proceedings abate on death of the applicant.

122. An application under S 435 Cr. P. C for the revision of an order passed under S 145 of the Code abates upon the death of the applicant, the right to carry on the proceedings conferred by Subs. (7) of S 145 being confined to proceedings before a Magistrate—23 P. R 1919; See G P R 1543

(2) S. 36 of the Letters Patent not overruled by S. 435.

123. The Criminal Procedure Code has not overruled the provisions of S 36 of the Letters Patent.

In the case of a difference of opinion, the opinion of the Senior Judge prevails. There is no obligation to refer to a third Judge under S. 429 Cr. P. C. 21 Cr. 25 (c). See 15 C. J. 337; 39 M. 750 (F.B.), Con 15 B. 452; 27 C. 592; 22 C. N. 499.

(3) Right of complainant to be heard in revision proceedings.

124. In my judgment, there is no doubt that we have power to say that we would hear Mr M— (Vakil for the complainant) in pursuance of the powers conferred upon this Court by S. 135 Cr P. C by way of revision, and upon the hearing of that Rule it was within our power to say that we would hear Mr. M.—on behalf of the complainant—Per Sanderson C. J. in 21 Cr. 682 (c). See 23 C. N. 862

Allahabad High Court may revise order by City Magistrate Lucknow.—The High Court at Allahabad has jurisdiction to entertain an application for revision of an order of the City Magistrate of Lucknow in a case in which the complainant is a European British Subject, (irrespective of whether he has a claim to be dealt with as such) and against whom an order under S 230 Cr. P. C. has been made.

21 Cr. 767 (A).

(4) Power to review order refusing to interfere in revision.

125. A Sessions Judge who called for the proceedings in the case but ordered the record to be returned on the ground that "on a perusal of the record, no cause appeared for interference," is not precluded from hearing the petitioner and from re-opening the case, if on hearing the arguments, he is of opinion that there are grounds for doing so—8 Bur T 243.

(5) District Magistrate cannot question the decision of the Sessions Judge.

126. A perusal of Ss 435, 437 and 439 Cr P C shows that the Code emphatically does not contemplate a reference by a District Magistrate against the decision of a Sessions Judge. It is no part of the business of the District Magistrate to criticize the judicial decisions of Sessions Judges—18 B R 796 23 C 250 18 C 186 8 C 875 (877) G C L 245 (248). 23 M J 732 2 N 149 11 W R 25 13 W R 42 See 10 A 146 28 A 91

(6) Miscellaneous.

127. S. 435 does not apply to sanction proceedings.—The machinery for correction of possible errors in sanction proceedings is provided by cl (6) of S 195 and consequently the party who seeks relief must have recourse thereto and cannot invoke the aid of S 115 Civil Procedure Code or Ss 435 and 439 Cr. P. C. 44 C 816.
128. Order under S. 17 of the Police Act.—An order passed under S 17 of the Police Act (V of 1861) is of an executive nature, and cannot be made the subject of revision under S 435 Cr P. C. In appointing any person as special Police Officer, the Magistrate does not act in his judicial capacity 20 O 229
129. Proceedings under S. 36 of the Income Tax Act.—An order arising out of assessment proceedings under the Income Tax Act cannot be made the subject of revision in the High Court under S 435 Cr P C unless passed under S 476 Cr. P. C. Sec 435 applies to proceedings before inferior Criminal Courts and as held in 3 S 66, an order of the Collector under S 36 of the Income Tax Act arising out of a proceeding pending before another officer does not fall within the purview of that Section—15 Cr 2 (O). 36 M 72 8 B R 477 2 Weir 598 See however 44 P R 1905.
130. Value to be attached to affidavits by the accused.—Where a Magistrate has recorded that the accused had pleaded guilty, the High Court cannot admit the affidavit of the accused for the purpose of showing that he did not plead guilty. If there has been any mistake in the matter, it is the vakil and not the client who ought to make an affidavit—19 M 209

436. When, on examining the record of any case under section 135 or otherwise, the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate considers that such case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session and that an accused person has been improperly discharged by the inferior Court, the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate may cause him to be arrested, and may thereupon, instead of directing a fresh inquiry, cause him to be committed for trial upon the matter of which he has been, in the opinion of the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate, improperly discharged

(a) that the accused has had an opportunity of showing cause to such Judge or Magistrate why the commitment should not be made,

(b) that, if such Judge or Magistrate thinks that the evidence shows that an offence has been committed by the accused, such Judge or Magistrate may cause the Court to inquire into such offence.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 436 of the said Code, for the words "instead of directing a fresh inquiry, order him," the words "direct that further inquiry be made into the case or order the accused" shall be substituted.

I. DEFINITION OF TERMS.

1. Meaning of "triable exclusively by the Court of Session."—(1) "In my opinion the words in S. 436 'triable exclusively by the Court of Session' refer to cases which are only triable by the Court of Session under Schedule II. of the Code, and, S. 30 of the Code which gives the Local Government power to invest a Magistrate with special powers is not intended to curtail the jurisdiction given to the District Magistrate under S. 436 Cr. P. C."—Per Ormond J. in 9 L. B. 208
- (2) "Section 436 gives the District Magistrate jurisdiction if he considers that the case is triable exclusively by the Court of Session. That may mean either (1) a case where the District Magistrate considers that the facts constitute an offence which is triable only by the Court of Session, the District Magistrate's jurisdiction which he would pass might it was a case which should be tried by Court of Session (08) A. N. 189 (ibid : Con. '08) A. N. 189].
2. The term "District Magistrate"—in this section includes a District Magistrate specially empowered under S. 30 of the Code.—60 P.L. 1904
3. The term "fresh enquiry."—The words "further enquiry" which the District Magistrate may order under S. 437 Cr. P. C. are identical with the "fresh enquiry" referred to in S. 436 and implies a setting aside of an order of discharge.—10 S. 349.
4. The words "order him to be committed" in S. 436 do not mean more than pass an order
- for his committal." Under that section, it is competent to a District Magistrate to make a committal himself or to direct a subordinate Magistrate to make it—30 M. 40. 10 B. 319; 28 C. 397; Con 4 W. R. 4
5. Meaning of "discharged"—(1) A refusal to frame a charge in respect of an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session has been held to amount to an order of discharge. So where the prosecution asked that a charge might be framed under S. 477 I. P. C., but this the Magistrate declined to do, there being no direct evidence that the accused had destroyed or secreted the promissory note about which the charge was framed. It is that the order of the
- (2) An order made by a Magistrate refusing to issue process as unnecessary amounts to a discharge—[Per Henderson J. in 32 C. 783]
- (3) Where after issuing warrants against certain persons, the Magistrate does not think it necessary to proceed further, the termination of the proceedings against them, is in effect an order of discharge.—4 C. N. 242.
6. The words "or otherwise"—do not mean 'in any way whatsoever' but in any other way provided by the Code—10 C. 268.

II. CONDITIONS PRECEDENT TO ACTION UNDER S. 436.

7. Action justified only when the discharge is improper.—Where the District Magistrate is not of the opinion that the accused had been improperly discharged with reference to the evidence, he is not justified in setting aside an order of discharge and making an order under S. 436 Cr. P. C., merely because he considers that the case should be tried by a Court of Session [1 Pat J. 97 2 Weir 260] Where the District Magistrate finds that the subordinate Magistrate holding enquiry into a case triable by a Court of Session, has not made a commitment, although a prima facie case was established by the evidence, he has power to make an order of commitment to the Session—[21 Cr. 202 (Pat)]
8. Misappreciation of evidence.—The ruling in 31 M. 133 laying down that the Magistrate misappreciated the evidence and arrived at a wrong conclusion upon the facts, which adopted the view taken in 2 Weir 255 (a case under the analogous section 215) was overruled in 32 M. 220 (F. B.)

of the Code of 1872 was held to mean 'a case exclusively triable by a Sessions Court.' [1 A. 413 (F.B.) Spankie and Oldfield JJ. dissenting. See also (1880) 7 C. L. 168 (170); 24 W. R. 61; (82) A. N. 105. (84) 4 C. 16; Con (74) 11 B. H. 98. The Legislature set its seal on this interpretation by substituting the words "case triable exclusively by the Court of Session" for "Session case" in the subsequent Code of 1882. To give the District Magistrate or Sessions Judge jurisdiction to act under this section, the accused must have been charged with an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session i.e. an offence shown to be so triable in the 8th column of Sch II infra [234 P. L. 1904; 4 C. 16; 8 A. 14 (16); 15 A. 205 (F.B.) 60 P. L. 1904; 3 P. R. 1897; 2 B. L. (S. N.) 11; 3 B. L. 65; See 15 M. J. 373; Rat 42]. It has therefore been held that a direction by a Court of Session to a Magistrate to commit an accused person to the Sessions for an offence under S. 471 P. C. is beyond its power under S. 436 Cr. P. C. as the offence is not exclusively triable by the Sessions Court [42 M. 561].

10. [Note.—If in a case not falling under S. 436, a District Magistrate sees reason to think that a case is triable exclusively by the Sessions Court, he may commit the accused to the Sessions for trial.]

11. There must be a discharge and not acquittal.—In ('93) 20 C. 633 and ('99) 23 M. 225 it has been held that it is only when an accused person has been discharged by the Magistrate that he has jurisdiction to interfere under S. 436 of the Code. But if the Magistrate acquits the accused, the Sessions Judge (or for the matter of that, the District Magistrate) has no such power. It has been held following 20 C. 633 and 23 M. 225 and dissenting from 24 M. 136 (F.B.) that where the Magistrate could have charged the accused on the materials before him with an offence triable does not go further than the limits laid down in (1864) W. R. 3; 8 W. R. 61; 15 W. R. 61.

[Note Per contra.—Where a Magistrate being of opinion, that there was no evidence to warrant a charge for an offence triable exclusively by the Sessions Court to commit the accused to the Sessions committal to the Sessions for the major charge if he was of a different opinion.—24 M. 136 (F.B.) 8 W. R. 11; 21 Cr. 91 (M)]

12. When acquittal no bar to order under S. 436—the principle explained.—When a Magistrate takes cognizance of a minor offence against an accused and a graver offence triable by the Sessions Court is disclosed in evidence but the prosecution does not press for the framing of a charge in respect of such offence, a commitment to the Sessions Court in respect of the graver offence is illegal [41 M. 952]. But where the prosecution had pressed for the framing of the graver charge, the acquittal would be no bar to an order under S. 436 [24 M. 136 (F.B.)].
13. Conviction on a minor charge no bar to committal on a graver one.—Where an accused person appears on the evidence to have committed murder but has been tried and convicted by a Magistrate on a minor charge, the Sessions Judge, if he thinks that there is a prima facie case, may order his commitment under S. 436 Cr. P. C.—Rat 337 See (18300) L. B. 169

III. POWER TO GO INTO EVIDENCE.

14. Power to go into evidence in order to see whether Where a District Crim Pro Cod charge by the committing Magistrate and directs the commitment of the accused to the Sessions, the High Court has jurisdiction to go into the evidence in order to ascertain whether the order of the District Magistrate is or is not justified, and if it finds no justification for the order it will direct the discharge of the accused.—[21 Cr 325 (Pat). 12 C. N. 117]

15. Duty of the Sessions Judge.—It is the duty of the Sessions Judge in considering whether an accused person has been improperly discharged within the terms of S. 436, to consider all the grounds upon which such order of discharge has been passed including a consideration of the evidence which has not been believed or held to be sufficient to establish a prima facie case. Then only he can pass an order for the commitment of the accused or for a further enquiry

IV. POWERS OF THE SESSIONS JUDGE AND THE DISTRICT MAGISTRATE.

The Sessions Judge.

16. Power of the Sessions Judge to revise proceedings of the District Magistrate.—The reason for the substitution of the word "inferior" in the Code of 1882 for the word "subordinate" as used in the corresponding S. 205 of the Code of 1872 is to meet the rulings that a District

Magistrate is not subordinate to the Sessions Judge and to provide that nevertheless the revisional authority of the latter over the former should remain unquestionable.—12 C. 473 (F.B.); See 8 M. 15; Cp 7 A. 533 (F.B.); 9 B. 100; 25 P. R. 1808 were much more limited than those conferred on him by Ss 436 and 437 of the present Code—for example see (82) A. V. 105, 2 A. 570; 24 W. R. 70 10 W. R. 30 4 W. R. 4 7 C. 662.

18. What he cannot do.—(1) He cannot direct evidence to be taken while making an order under this Section [4 N. P. 50] (2) He cannot direct a fresh enquiry in a case in which the accused has been acquitted of an offence within the Magistrate's jurisdiction [20 C. 633] (3) He cannot commit, when there is no legal evidence against the accused [24 W. R. 70]

19. Sessions Judge cannot direct commitment of accused person sent up by him under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—A Sessions Judge acting under S. 476, sent an accused person to a Magistrate to be tried for an offence under S. 193 P. C. But the Magistrate discharged the accused. Held that the Sessions Judge was not, thereupon competent to direct the accused to be committed for trial under S. 193 on the same fact.—2 Weir 549

20. Refusal of application by High Court when no bar to action by Sessions Judge.—A refusal by the High Court to order further enquiry is no bar to the Sessions Judge's order for further enquiry, if fresh evidence has been brought to light, and the order of the Sessions Judge is made upon materials totally different from that which were before the High Court.—7 C. N. 80

21. Duty of the Sessions Judge himself to commit in certain cases.—In a case triable by the Sessions Court to which S. 436 Cr. P. C. applies, if the Sessions Judge or District Magistrate is satisfied that on the evidence, there is clear case for a commitment, and there is no reason for desiring a further consideration by the Magistrate, it would be ordinarily, his duty to direct a commitment under S. 436 and not to order a further enquiry under S. 437 Cr. P. C.

15 C. 608 (F. B.)

22. Power to set aside an order of commitment.—A Sessions Judge is competent to set aside an improper order of commitment and S and R were acquitted, K soon after died and the post mortem revealed the fact that the death was due to the injury inflicted by S and R. The police challaned S and R under S. 304 I. P. C. The Magistrate after enquiry, committed R to the Sessions but refused to commit S as in his opinion, the latter had at the most committed an offence under S. 323 I. P. C. of which he had already been acquitted. The Sessions Judge acting under S. 436 Cr. P. C. directed S to be committed to the Sessions on a charge under S. 304 I. P. C. Held that there was no legal bar to the trial of S on a charge under S. 304 I. P. C.—30 A. 4

23. Power to act suo motu.—A Sessions Judge is competent to set aside an improper order of commitment and direct a commitment where a Sessions Judge had previously refused to interfere holding that the reasons for discharge were good [26 M. 177]

24. The mutually exclusive jurisdiction of the District Magistrate and Sessions Judge.—Under S. 435 (1), where the District Magistrate has already dealt with a matter in revision, the jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge is non-existent so far as that particular matter is concerned. The subsection was grafted on the Code of 1898 and overrules the ruling in (96) Lat 837 under the older Code of 1842 which declared

25. Co-ordinate powers of the Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate.—Under S. 436, the Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate have co-ordinate powers, in a case exclusively triable by a Court of Session, either to order commitment upon the evidence already taken or to direct a fresh enquiry, if the Magistrate has improperly discharged the accused person.—28 C. 397 26 M. 477 17 M. J. 153, see 10 P. R. 1912 40 C. 119.

The District Magistrate.

26. Power to direct a fresh enquiry.—A District Magistrate is not bound to direct a fresh enquiry if the Sessions Judge has already directed a commitment.

evidence of witnesses whom the accused has had no opportunity of cross examining. The proper course for the District Magistrate is to direct a fresh enquiry.—2 Weir 550 15 M. 39, see 2 C. 405 4 C. 16

27. District Magistrate can direct first class Magistrate to commit.—A District Magistrate has jurisdiction under S. 436 of the Code to direct a first class Magistrate who has 397.

28. Power to direct a fresh enquiry.—A District Magistrate is not bound to direct a fresh enquiry if the Sessions Judge has already directed a commitment. Under S. 436, as for example by ordering further enquiry in supersession of an order of discharge, prior to making an order of commitment. Under

29. District Magistrate's power to direct commitment.—A District Magistrate is not bound to direct a fresh enquiry if the Sessions Judge has already directed a commitment. Under S. 436, as for example by ordering further enquiry in supersession of an order of discharge, prior to making an order of commitment. Under to have been improperly discharged, to be committed to the Sessions, where the charge under S 408 I P C (which is not triable by the Court of Session) is so intimately connected with the charge under S 477A I P C as to form part of the same transaction. [The latter charge being exclusively tried]—16 B R 80

V. PROCEDURE.

30. Accused must be given opportunity to show cause.—An order of commitment made by the District Magistrate in contravention of S 436 (a) Cr. P C without giving the accused an opportunity of showing cause why the commitment should not be made is illegal and the omission vitiates the proceedings. [312 P L 1913: 15 M J 373 G M 372, 7 C 662 1 O L 93: 24 W R 70-22 W R 67-1 B 64] Where a District Magistrate being of opinion that a person has been improperly discharged by a subordinate Magistrate, makes an order to commit to the Sessions for trial without notice to the accused person, the irregularity is cured under the provisions of S 537 of the Cr. P Code, if the subordinate Magistrate gives him an opportunity to show cause before committing him [Rat 899] Where no notice has been served as required by this section and a trial under a commitment by an erroneous order of the Sessions Judge has been held, the irregularity will not necessarily vitiate the proceedings, if no actual failure of justice has been caused by such error [7 C 662]
31. The opportunity must be reasonable opportunity.—The consequences to public justice would be very serious if a witness, called at a trial were, during the course of his deposition and before being absolved from his oath as a witness, suddenly called upon to show cause why he himself should not be committed for some other distinct and serious crime, of which a Magistrate had discharged him—Rat 588
32. Reasons to be recorded.—Under this Section the reasons for directing a commitment should be recorded. The reasons for exercising the power conferred by this Section are reasons which should arise upon the materials to be found on the record and not upon the materials to be found on the record and not upon extraneous matter—(90) A N 147
33. Order must specify the particular acts constituting the offence.—An order by a Judge under S 236 of Act X of 1872 (=S 436), directing a Magistrate to commit an accused person, who has been discharged at a preliminary enquiry, to take his trial in a Court of Session, must specify the particular act constituting the offence charged. The Judge cannot direct a commitment for offences with which the accused was in no way charged before the Magistrate—[10 B L 285 21 W R 11] In 10 Cr 551 (A) Stanley C J held that a Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction under S 437 to direct an enquiry into the offence of forgery (S 467 I P C) where the accused persons had been charged under Ss 342 and 357 I P C by the Magistrate and discharged because these offences had not been proved

34. Power to take additional evidence.—Where a Deputy Magistrate discharged an accused person in a case of theft (S 380 I P C) without

to the
not being an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, the Sessions Judge or the District Magistrate would have no power to commit in such a case—[4 C 16]

- 34A. Change in law under the Code of 1861—the District Magistrate, if he was of opinion that in a case tried by a Magistrate subordinate to him, a failure of justice had occurred in consequence of the latter not committing the accused for trial to the Court of Session, was bound to refer the case to the High Court with an expression of opinion [5 B II 65 (74) A N 154] By the Act VII of 1869, the law was changed so as to enable the District Magistrate to refer the matter to the Sessions Judge [see 7 B II 72] Under the present Code he can act direct without the intervention of a Superior Court.
35. The Section does not apply to Presidency Magistrates.—A Presidency Magistrate has power to revise a complaint after having previously dismissed it and discharged the accused as neither S 436 nor S 437 apply to Presidency Magistrates—1 C N 49 25 C 652 (F.B.), 25 C 211 29 C 726 (F. B.)

VI. THE HIGH COURT.

36. Power of High Court to interfere with orders by Presidency Magistrates.—The High Court has ample power under the Chapter, if not under the Code to revise an order reversing a complaint after discharge—[1 C N 49] The powers of the High Court to interfere with the orders of a Presidency Magistrate are limited. Where a Presidency Magistrate dismisses a complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C the High Court cannot direct a further enquiry under S 437, nor can they interfere under S. 439, although the order of the Magistrate dismissing the complaint might not be quite proper. It can act only under S 15 of the Charter Act—[31 C 1252, 27 C 125: 6 C J. 705] In 25 C 749 it has however been held that both under Ss 435 and 439 read with S 423 and under cl 28 of the Letters Patent, the High Court has the power to revise the proceedings of the Magistrate subject to the Appellate jurisdiction of the High Court (such as Presidency Magistrates) and to direct a further enquiry into a complaint—[See also 36 C 994 14 M T 200 27 B 84]

37. The High Court will not ordinarily interfere with orders under S. 436 by Subordinate Appellate Courts.

(1) District Magistrates.—Unless the District Magistrate's powers of interference with the lower Court's order of discharge was exercised on very weak and clearly untenable grounds. The High Court would not interfere with the discretion vested by law in the District Magistrate by S 436 Cr P C 15 Cr 373 (M)

(2) Sessions Judges.—The High Court should be slow to interfere with the exercise of the very wide discretion with which Sessions Judges have been invested under the provisions of S 436 Cr P C 13 A J 111 26 A 564

38. Powers of the High Court under Ss. 215 and 439 compared.—See Notes under S 439 infra

39. Power to quash a commitment ordered under this Section.—The High Court has full jurisdiction under S 439 to revise a commitment order under S 436, on points of law as well as of fact. [12 C, N 117. 7 C N 327 27 M 51] It is open to the High Court to consider whether the Sessions Judge, has or has not exercised a proper judicial discretion under S 436 in setting aside a Magistrate's order of discharge [30 M 224]

40. When the High Court will interfere.—An order of a Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate charge on insufficient grounds or that while there were good grounds for setting it aside the Lower Court has made an order appropriate to the facts of the case, the High Court would be acting properly in revising the order.—15 C. 608 (F.B.).

41. When District Magistrate or Sessions Judge have power to grant relief High Court will not interfere.—Where a case exclusively triable by a Court of Session is tried by a Magistrate and the accused is discharged, without being committed to the Session—held—that under the circumstances the complainant should

I. OBJECT AND SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

(1) General Principles to be followed in directing further enquiry.

1. Principles to be followed in directing further enquiry.—“It is true, as has been

Per Emperor
dgo or the conclusion recreation of

the evidence, and that the Magistrate should be directed to further enquire into the truth of the complaint. I do not understand the decisions to lay down that the Appellate Court has to act as if it were hearing an appeal in a Criminal case. The powers with which the Magistrate or Sessions Judge is clothed are powers of revision, and in exercising those powers of revision what the appellate Court has to see is whether the evidence is of such a character that it is possible to come to only one conclusion upon it, namely, that the accused has been guilty. The mere fact that if he had heard the evidence himself he would have come to a different conclusion on the facts, would not ordinarily be a sufficient ground for setting aside the order of discharge. It may not be a question of perversity but it must be very near it. The Appellate Court must satisfy itself that there has been a miscarriage of justice, consequent upon one sided or perverse view taken by the trial Magistrate.”—Per Seshagiri Aiyar in 10 L. W. 630.

1A. Note.—“There is in my opinion, very little difference in substance between the case of a person who has been discharged after all the prosecution evidence has been taken and weighed by the Magistrate and that of a person who is acquitted after a charge has been framed. In the former case the Magistrate considers that the prosecution evidence is so weak that there is nothing for the accused to meet and in the latter case the evidence though sufficiently strong to call upon the accused to meet it has in the opinion of the Magistrate charge being framed.”—Kumarswami Sastri J. in 20 Cr. 101 (M) 10 P. R. 1911 (F. B.)

2. “It is true, as has been of the Magistrate, been met by the defence. There is no reason why different tests should be applied in revision or why an accused against whom the prosecution evidence is weak would be in a worse position than one against whom it is strong enough to warrant a charge being framed. Per Kumarswami Sastri in 35 M J 518 10 P R 1911 (F. B.)

9. Note.—Proposed change of the Law.—There is a great conflict of rulings as to the meaning and scope of the term "accused person." Some rulings put a strict interpretation upon the term and explain it as meaning "a person accused of an offence," while others include within the term persons against whom proceedings are taken in any shape or form by a Criminal Court acting in its judicial capacity. This conflict will be finally set at rest if the proposed amendment, by substitution of the term by the words "person accused of an offence" is given effect by the Legislature. [See proposed amendment at the foot of S. 437 above.] Thus, in 20 C. 729 [Distinguished in 29 C. 242] and 30 C. 112, it has been held that S. 437 does not apply to proceedings under S. 115, Cr. P. C. In 17 C. P. 127. [see also 17 C. P. 564. 5 C. 536] S. 437 is held to be inapplicable to proceedings under S. 155 Cr. P. C. In 42 P. R. 1905. [Pro. 27 C. 662. 13 C. N. celti. Con. 33 P. R. 1905. 36 C. 163], proceedings under S. 107 are held to be outside the purview of the section. Proceedings under S. 133 Cr. P. C. have been held not to be amenable to revision under S. 437. 17. Where the case is triable only by the Court of Sessions—In a case triable only by the Court of Sessions it would ordinarily be duty of the District Magistrate and the Sessions Judge to set aside the order of discharge, and order a further enquiry under S. 437 or refer the matter to the High Court.—15 C. 608 (F.B.)

19. Power to order a retrial not contemplated.—A power to order what is practically a retrial is to give a complainant another opportunity of re-examining his witnesses and adding fresh evidence is not contemplated by the section, as such a course would open a wide door to perjury and corruption. II. "FURTHER ENQUIRY"—WHAT IT MEANS AND INCLUDES.

(1) Defined

27. (1) The term "further enquiry" means an enquiry before the magistrate preliminary to trial, which results in a charge or a discharge, and does not include trial. The terms "further enquiry" and "fresh enquiry" are used as meaning the same thing.—15 C. 608 (F.B.) 1 L. B. 9
28. (2) The term "further enquiry" means, in its primary significance, an enquiry in addition to that which has already been held not the re-taking of the same evidence, which would be a fresh enquiry or a retrial but the taking of additional evidence. In S. 437, the term is used in its ordinary meaning.—8 M. 336 [O] 12 C. 522. 10 C. 268; 10 C. 1027. 31 P. L. 1900

[Note per contra.—The term "further enquiry" in its ordinary acceptance, may signify as well a fresh consideration of the effect of the evidence already recorded as a supplementary enquiry on such evidence"—14 M. 344 (F.B.)

(2) What it includes.

29. (1) The term includes not merely the taking of evidence but the consideration of that evidence and the conclusion amounting to a charge or discharge of the accused.—15 C. 608 (F.B.)
30. (2) In a further enquiry ordered under S. 437 Cr. P. C. the accused may meet the case for the prosecution by producing rebutting evidence. The Magistrate may also take evidence which he has omitted to take.—17 M. J. 376 (34)

(3) What is implied.

31. (1) The expression "further enquiry" in S. 437 does not imply that additional evidence must be forthcoming. Any mistake of law or illegality or proceedings will justify the District Magistrate in setting aside an order of discharge.—14 C. P. 161.

(2) Application of the section.

4. S. 437 contemplates a further enquiry : i.e. an enquiry upon further materials on further evidence, not a rehearing of the matter upon the same evidence which was before the Magistrate holding the first enquiry.—10 C. 207; 10 C. 1027; 12 C. 522 (F.B.); 8 M. 336; 6 C. P. 11; 31 P. L. 1900; 63 P. R. 1887; 14 P. R. 1891; 41 P. R. 1891; 174 P. R. 1897; (90) A. N. 147.
5. Discharge under S. 253.—Where an accused person has been discharged under S. 253 Cr. P. C. the High Court or Court of Sessions has jurisdiction under S. 437 to direct a further enquiry on the same material and a District Magistrate may under like circumstances himself hold further enquiry or direct further enquiry by a subordinate Magistrate.—9 A. 52 (F.B.); 14 M. 334 (F.B.); 15 C. 605 (F.B.); 3 L. B. 97 (F.B.); 10 B. 131; 1 B. R. 222; 5 C. P. 20; 2 O. C. 363; 21 Cr. 521 (P); 394 P. L. 1902; 32 P. L. 1901; 2 P. R. 1901; 14 P. R. 1891.
6. Discharge under S. 203.—The High Court acting under S. 437 of the Cr. P. Code has power to direct a further enquiry into a complaint dismissed under S. 203 Cr. P. C. and into the case of an accused person who has been discharged even though no further evidence is forthcoming.—14 P. R. 1891; 14 C. P. 161; 10 B. 131; 1 P. L. 33.
7. Discharge under S. 259 Cr. P. C.—The prior discharge of the accused under S. 259 Cr. P. C. the complainant having failed to appear on calla does not bar the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to entertain the second complaint on the same facts.—28 C. 632 (F.B.); 28 M. 310; 29 M. 126 (F.B.); 8 S. 196; Rat 984.
- 7A. S. 437 does not apply when there has been an acquittal.—Where the accused was tried under S. 363 P. C. and acquitted, the Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to direct further enquiry to be made to ascertain whether S. 366 or 365 I. P. C. was applicable, in as much as kidnapping is an essential element in offences under Ss. 365, 366, and 368 P. C. 20 Cr. 526 (Pat) 2 C. J. 622.
8. Miscellaneous Proceedings.—The Allahabad High Court has held that "under S. 437 Cr. P. C. a District Magistrate has jurisdiction to direct further inquiry in a case where a person has been discharged in an enquiry under S. 110 Cr. P. C." 36 A. 147; 20 Cr. 504 (A); 21 A. 107; 21 A. 148; 24 P. R. 1903; 2 L. B. 40. See 25 A. 376; (94) A. N. 204. See Con 27 C. 662; (90) A. N. 206; G. O. C. 112; 12 P. R. 1905; 35 C. 8; 2 U. B. (1914)?
9. Note:—Proposed change of the Law.—There is a great conflict of rulings as to the meaning and scope of the term "accused person." Some rulings put a strict interpretation upon the term and explain it as meaning "a person accused of an offence," while others include within the term persons against whom proceedings are taken in any shape or form by a Criminal Court acting in its judicial capacity. This conflict will be finally set at rest if the proposed amendment, by substitution of the term by the words "person accused of an offence" is given effect to by the Legislature. [See proposed amendment at the foot of S. 437 above.] Thus, in 20 C. 729 [Distinguished in 29 C. 242] and 30 C. 112, it has been held that S. 437 does not apply to proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P. C. In 17 C. P. 127 [see also 17 C. P. 561; 5 C. 536] S. 437 is held to be inapplicable to proceedings under S. 489 Cr. P. C. In 42 P. R. 1905, [Pro 27 C. 662; 13 C. N. cclvi; Con 34 P. R. 1905; 36 C. 163], proceedings under S. 107 are held to be outside the purview of the section. Proceedings under S. 133 Cr. P. C. have been held not to be amenable to revision under S. 137 [24 C. 395; 25 C. 425; 14 C. N. 1]. See also the following cases.—23 C. 493; 32 C. 1085; 15 P. R. 1900; 33 M. 85; (90) A. N. 203; 1 Pat. W. 259; 6 P. B. 1811 (F.B.); 16 B. 661; 13 B. R. 505.

10. Order of discharge under S. 332 by the High Court.—When an order of discharge was passed by an Advocate General entering a nolle prosequi under S. 332 in a Sessions case before the Calcutta High Court, held it could not be set aside by any tribunal, but it did not require to be set aside for initiation of fresh proceedings on the same charges.—16 C. N. 983.
11. Discharge and dismissal.—Sec. 437 of the Code of Criminal Procedure applies both to the case of an order of discharge and to an order of dismissal.—21 Cr. 663 (c).
12. Use of caution necessary.—The power of ordering further enquiry should be used sparingly and with great circumspection. Rat 328; 11 C. N. 173, especially when the questions involved are mere matters of fact. 9 A. 52 (F.B.); 2 O. C. 363.
13. Perverse or foolish judgment.—It is improper to interfere under S. 437 Cr. P. C. with the order of discharge unless it is perverse or foolish or in cases in which the Magistrate has dealt at length with the evidence and recorded what appeared sound reasons for discharge. 394 P. L. 1902; 31 P. L. 1900.
14. Section does not contemplate review of an order of discharge by the same Magistrate.—33 P. R. 1891.

(3) General Rules of Practice.

15. Orders of discharge by a special Magistrate.—Where a subordinate Magistrate of the first class invested with powers under S. 30 Cr. P. C. makes an order of discharge in a case which under Schedule II of the code read with Ss. 28 or 29 thereof is triable exclusively by the Court of Sessions, such order is open to revision by the District Magistrate under Ss. 136 and 437 Cr. P. C. 16 P. R. 1904; 12 N. 91.
16. Procedure when no further evidence is required.—When no further evidence is required in a case that is being dealt with under S. 437 the matter should ordinarily be referred to the High Court which can pass a suitable order.—1 L. B. 9; 1 L. B. 100; See 1 L. R. 311.

(6) Miscellaneous Rules of Practice.

3. Acquittal as a bar to further enquiry.—When the complaint referred to two offences niz theft and mischief and the accused being charged with mischief only was acquitted—held—the District Magistrate had no power to direct further enquiry under S 437 into the charge of theft as S 403 barred such an order—8 M 296. See 20 C 634; 7 C N. 403; 19 P. R. 1900; 23 M. 225; 1 A J. 415; 50 P. L. 1901.
4. Further enquiry refused by predecessor in office.—If a District Magistrate refuses further enquiry in a particular case, it is not competent to his successor in office to order it on a fresh application of the complainant—4 C. N. 100.
5. Police Case.—A Magistrate's order directing a case reported to him by the Police to be struck off is not a judicial order dismissing a complaint or discharging an accused person which can be reviewed by the Sessions Judge—Rat 521.
6. When the order of discharge is really

tal. The District Magistrate was not therefore competent to direct further enquiry to be made into the case.—16 A. J. 385; 38 M 555; 17 Cr 95 (M); 8 M. T. 78.

7. Refusal to frame a charge of an offence cognizable by the Court of Sessions.—A Magistrate's refusal to frame a charge for an offence cognizable by a Court of Sessions on the ground that there is no direct evidence connecting the accused with that offence is in substance an order discharging the accused under S 209 Cr. P. C. in respect of that offence; and a Sessions Judge is competent to make an order for further enquiry under S 436 Cr. P. C.—“From the terms of the Magistrate's order it is clear that he adjudicated upon the question whether there was any evidence against the accused in respect of the major offence. The Magistrate came to the conclusion that there was not, and he declined to charge him with the major offence. It seems to us that there was a discharge within the meaning of S 209.”—24 M. 136 (F. B.); 42 A. 128.

48. Dismissal on receipt of report by local panchayat.—Where a Magistrate dismissed a complaint on the basis of a report by the local panchayat without giving the complainant an opportunity of being heard and his order referred only to one of the two charges preferred in the complaint, the High Court held that further enquiry should be made.—23 C. N. 575.
49. When an appeal is pending in respect of the same matter.—An order under S 437 Cr P C. can be made, even when the record is before the Court on an appeal—21 Cr 660 (Pat).

50. Refusal to issue process against accused discharge within the meaning of S 437 Cr. P. C.—20 Cr 835 (Pat)

IV. NOTICE TO THE ACCUSED.

51. Nota.—In view of the conflict of opinion as to the necessity of notice being given to the accused of an application made under S 437, views of the different High Courts may usefully be indicated and analysed in separate paragraphs. We may begin with.

52. The Allahabad High Court.—The Allahabad High Court has consistently held to the opinion that an order under S 437 cannot be made without giving the accused notice thereby enabling him to appear and show cause. [8 A 367; 9 A 52 (F. B.); 20 A. 377; 25 A 375 (80) A N 147; 36 A 147; 40 A 134; 40 A 416; 12 A. J. 167; 15 A J. 627; 20 Cr 769 (A); 20 Cr 770 (A); 20 Cr 831 (A); 21 Cr 847 (A)] [But see 5 A J 74]

53. Calcutta High Court.—The leading case for Calcutta is 15 C 608 (F. B.) which lays down that although no notice to the accused under S 437 can be passed, yet a Court would not be exercising a proper discretion in such matter, if before proceeding under the section, the accused who has been discharged, is not given an opportunity by service of a notice to show cause against such an order being made. This view has been adopted in 29 C 457; 32 C 1030; 3 C N. 219; 9 C N. cclxxix; 11 C N. 173; 11 C N. 316; 11 C N. xxxv; 21 Cr 663 (C). The ruling in 15 C. 608

(F. B.) overruled 10 C. 207 and 10 C. 208 which had laid down that notice was obligatory. Some later rulings though ostensibly following 15 C. 608 (F. B.) have for all practical purposes adopted the stricter rule laid down in 10 C 207; See 2 C N 196; 4 C N 100; 39 C. 235; 12 C. N. 822; 15 Cr 1 (O); 3 C. J. 43; 14 C. N. cclxxiv; See also 25 C. 799; 31 C 811.

54. The Madras High Court.—The point has

55. Bombay High Court.—The Bombay High Court in Rat 329 (see also 1 B R 782) approved of the strict rule laid down in Allahabad. In 2 B R 560; 3 B R 703; 5 B R 577; 6 B R 479 the rule has been thus laid down. Although the code does not expressly require notice, it is but proper that such notice should be given. In 8 B R 694 Aston J remarked that whether notice is necessary or not would depend on the circumstances of each case. See also 10 B. 131.

56. Patna High Court.—The Patna High Court has adopted the view of the Calcutta High Court in 15 C 608 (F. B.)—See 4 Pat W. 220; 21 Cr. 843 (Pat)

57. Punjab.—The Punjab Chief Court has consistently adopted the view of the Calcutta High Court.—See 2 P. R. 1901 3 P. L. 1902; 44 P. W. 1911; 17 P. R. 1895; 11 P. W. 1908. A stricter rule is indicated in 14 P. R. 1891 and 8 P. R. 1900.
58. Oudh.—In Oudh the view taken is the same as in the Calcutta High Court.—See 11 O. C. 261; 13 O. C. 289.
59. Burma.—In Lower Burma, the opinion of the Judges follows that of the Calcutta High Court [See 7 Bur. R. 198; 8 Bur. T. 133]. In Upper Burma, the view is the same as that taken by Allahabad High Court.—('97-'01) U. B. I. 96 900 2 U. B. (1914) 3 [see also ('97-'01) U. B. 100].
60. Sindh.—In Sindh it has been held that the notice though not obligatory is desirable.—See 3 S. 7; 12 Cr. 110 (S).
61. Where all High Courts agree.—A summary order of dismissal of a complaint under S. 203, takes place in the absence of the accused and would probably be unknown to him. No notice would therefore be necessary before an order setting aside the dismissal is passed.—15 C. 608 (F. B.); 29 C. 457; 32 C. 1090; 10 B. 131; 2 B. R. 586; 20 A. 339; 30 A. 52; 35 A. 78; ('08) A. V. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Reasons to be given for interference.

65. Reason for directing further enquiry under S. 437 must be recorded.—15 C. 608 (F. B.); 32 C. 1090. 3 C. J. 43; 5 Bur. T. 37; 3 S. 7. See 8 C. N. 456. Con. 4 L. B. 233.
66. Elaborate reasons need not be given.—It is not ordinarily desirable that in ordering further enquiry under S. 437 Cr. P. C., a detailed examination of the evidence and elaborate reasons should be given, but enough should be said in the way of reasons to indicate to the court below in what manner it is thought that its order was incorrect, whether on a point of law, or in misappreciation of the weight of the evidence or for want of a complete enquiry. It is fair to a person against whom an order for further enquiry is made that the reasons for directing such enquiry should be made explicit to him and that he should have notice of the ground on which the further enquiry has been directed.—('17) 3 U. B. 16; 8 C. N. 456; 32 C. 1090. But see 4 L. B. 233.

(2) Fresh complaint on same facts after discharge of the accused not barred by S. 437.

62. The rule as stated by Beaman J.—The law does not make obligatory upon a Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate acting under S. 437 Cr. P. C. to give notice to the accused. In

S. 437 does not compel a Magistrate to issue notice and an order passed under that section without having issued notice is not illegal. But it is a fundamental principle of the administration of English Justice that no order to the prejudice of an accused person should ordinarily be made without giving him an opportunity of being heard in defence. And the mere omission from the section of any direct and positive command to give invariable effect to that principle was never meant to absolve Magistrates from doing so in all ordinary cases."—8 B. R. 694.

63. Appearance on notice is not obligatory.—Notice is for the benefit of the accused, so that he is not under any legal obligation to avail himself of the opportunity if he does not wish to do so.—[15 P. R. 1893]. A notice of this kind is not a summons in terms of S. 63 Supra, so that the accused is free to appear and show cause or may if he like, stay away.—[6 A. 367; 22 C. 573]

V. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Reasons to be given for interference.

(3) Proceedings must commence de novo on further enquiry being ordered.

70. Further enquiry does not mean proceeding on the evidence already taken, that evidence or other evidence, if there be any, should be taken de novo by the Magistrate who holds further enquiry—[9 A. J. 310 See 6 A. 367]. An order for further enquiry opens up the whole case. It is to be taken up again, and every question from the dismissal of the complaint up to the final discharge, acquittal or conviction, has to be reconsidered and appropriate order is to be made, according to the result of such re-consideration [See 32 M. 220 (F.B.) at p 231, 1 L. B. 233]. The effect of an order for further enquiry under S. 437 is to set aside a previous order of discharge and leave the enquiry before the Magistrate open as it was before the hearing of further evidence under S 232 or the decision under S 233 and the subsequent sections of Ch. XXI of the Code. Where after the discharge of an accused person of the

72. In S. 8, 196 the complaint was ordered to be restored on the following conditions—(1) the applicant to pay into court any expenses incurred by Government under S. 544 Cr. P. C. in connection with the first complaint, (2) to execute a bond with one fit surety, undertaking to pay the reasonable costs of the accused (to be assessed by the City Magistrate whose decision thereon shall be final) in the event of his being acquitted or discharged.

trial.—mat 010

74. Where only some of the persons charged with having committed an offence are tried and acquitted, the acquittal is a bar to further enquiry against the remaining persons—1 C. N. 346 7 C. N. 711

75. Order amounting to an order of discharge—If a Magistrate issues warrants against any accused and then decides not to proceed against them, this amounts to an order of discharge and is subject to revision under S. 437 Cr. P. C. 1 C. N. 212

76. Delay in making application—An application under S. 437 should not be dismissed merely on the ground that it was filed after a long time after discharge—245 P. L. 1902

77. Action suo motu—See VIII Powers of the District Magistrate (98) infra

78. When order directing further enquiry does not justify issue of summons—A Magistrate without giving any reason for postponing the issue of process passed the following order on the back of the petition of complaint (under Ss 395, 379 and 147 I. P. C.) "Inspector D—to treat this as a first information and make careful enquiry reporting by 18th January 1919" and on the 17th January the Inspector submitted his report for judicial enquiry for an offence under S. 323 I. P. C. On receipt of this report, the Magistrate, on the 18th, dismissed the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C. but the Sessions Judge directed a further judicial enquiry. Held that the Magistrate was not competent to issue process against all the accused under Ss 395, 379 and 147 I. P. C. (charges which everybody who had looked into the matter at all, had declared either to be largely exaggerated or wholly false as regards a large number of the accused), until a judicial enquiry had been made and a prima facie case disclosed against them—4 Pat J. 456

79. Persons not named in the complaint nor before the Court—Under S. 437 Cr. P. C. a Court has no authority to direct further enquiry of complaint but who had never been summoned to appear before the Magistrate. It should be confined to the case of those accused persons who had actually been summoned and discharged. [27 C. 655. See 12 C. N. 68; 11 C. N. certum].

Note—Where after the conviction of some of the accused mentioned in the complaint, the complainant asks for process against the remaining accused who had not been previously summoned, and this is refused, the refusal is, to all intents and purposes, an order under S. 203 Cr. P. C. and S. 437 is therefore applicable—29 C. 457 4 C. N. 212

80. Effect of acquittal of the accused under trial—A dismissal of the complaint under S. 247 for complainant's default and the acquittal of one of the accused, terminates also the case against the other accused whose attendance could not be obtained, and against whom the trial did not proceed, nor can the order under S. 247 be set aside under S. 437.—4 C. N. 346 7 C. N. 711.

VI. WHO MAY DIRECTED TO HOLD FURTHER ENQUIRY.

(1) Power to nominate a particular Magistrate.

81. Sessions Judge cannot name a Particular Magistrate.—The further enquiry under S 437 should not be ordered by a Sessions Judge to be made by a particular Magistrate by name. The discretion as to the selection of such Magistrate vests in the District Magistrate and not in the Sessions Judge—Per Field J 10 C. 207 But Ser S M 336

Note.—The further enquiry should ordinarily be held by the Magistrate who held the original enquiry in as much as the section does not contemplate that the evidence already taken should be retaken.—S M 336. 249. 296.

82. Principle to be followed.—When the further enquiry is into the effect of the evidence already on the record, it will usually be desirable that the fresh consideration of the complaint should be entrusted to a different Magistrate, but when it involves the taking of further evidence the function will generally be best performed by the Magistrate who made the previous enquiry, though peculiar or prejudicial views or even possibility of them may make it desirable to bring a fresh mind to bear on the facts—Rat 328. 4 L. B. 233
83. District Magistrate holding enhanced powers under S. 30—May be ordered by the Sessions Judge to hold further enquiry under this Section—15 P. R. 1904.

84. Sub-Divisional Magistrate—(1) A Sub-Divisional Magistrate cannot properly withdraw a case specifically referred by his superior, the District Magistrate, nor can the latter properly insist on repeated further enquiries without fresh evidence—Rat 315

- (2) Where the District Magistrate had directed the Sub-Divisional Magistrate to hold further enquiry

(2) When the enquiry should be entrusted to a different Magistrate.

85. (1) When the first Magistrate has expressed a decided opinion—A Magistrate stopped the case without hearing all the evidence remarking that "to affirm the guilt to the accused is an impossibility" and "that there is a certain mystery about the whole proceeding which is not amenable to logic." The High Court do with the case—Rat 320.

86. (2) Unsatisfactory enquiry by the first Magistrate—It will be a good ground to ordering further enquiry by another Magistrate that the first Magistrate had dealt with the case unsatisfactorily. [Per Wallis J.]—32 M. 220 (F.B)

VII. POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE COURT DIRECTING FURTHER ENQUIRY.

(1) Duty to determine sufficiency of evidence.

87. Duty to determine the sufficiency of evidence must be left to Court by which the further enquiry is to be held.—All that the Court of Revision can do under S. 437 Cr. P. C. is to direct further enquiry leaving it entirely to the enquiring Magistrate to determine whether or not the evidence justified the accused being charged and put on his trial. 2 H. R. 586.

(2) Taking evidence or directing evidence to be taken.

88. S 437 Cr. P. C. does not authorise a Sessions Judge or a District Magistrate to take evidence or to direct evidence to be taken supplementing the evidence given in the lower court—6 C. J. 231.

(3) Duty to peruse evidence etc.

89. Perusal of evidence.—It is the duty of the Judge, before directing a further enquiry, against a person, who has been discharged, to peruse the evidence and state the grounds which induce him to make the order.—13 C. N. 78.
90. It is not desirable that the District Magistrate in ordering a further enquiry under S 437 Cr. P. C.

should make a detailed examination of the evidence and give elaborate reasons because that might prejudice the trial afterwards.—32 C. 1099

91. An order for further enquiry should contain a statement of the reasons therefor.—3 C. J. 43. 13 C. N. 76; 32 C. 1090 ('90) A. N. 147.

(4) Subordinate Magistrate cannot question the order.

91. A. The order for further enquiry cannot be questioned.—The subordinate Magistrate who is directed to make further enquiry is not competent to question the propriety of the order but is bound to carry it out.—10 B. 131.

(5) Powers of the Magistrate holding further enquiry.

Magistrate who is directed to make further enquiry into a case under S. 437 Cr. P. C., is competent to proceed to charge and try the accused without reference to the Court which directed the enquiry, when he thinks that the evidence on the record is sufficient—2 P. R. 1901.

VIII. POWERS OF THE DISTRICT MAGISTRATE.

(1) Power to direct a reconsideration of the same evidence.

95 A District Magistrate or a Sessions Judge, has jurisdiction to direct a reconsideration of the evidence by the same Magistrate who discharged the accused, or a new enquiry before another Magistrate on the grounds, inter alia of mistake of law or incorrectness of the finding—1 L. B. 311.

96 Powers defined.—(1) A District Magistrate can direct a further enquiry under S. 437 into the case of an accused person who has been improperly discharged by a subordinate Magistrate under S. 253 Cr. P. C. though it may involve the reconsideration of the evidence already taken without any additional investigation of facts—1 B. R. 222

(2) A District Magistrate is competent to deal with a case under S. 437 Cr. P. C. in which a complaint under S. 323, I. P. C. has been dismissed by a Magistrate owing to the absence of the complainant—Rat 988.

(2) Change of Law

97. The Bombay High Court on a comparison of Ss 253 435 436 and 437 Cr. P. C. of the Code of 1882 with Ss 215, 295, 296 and 298 of the Code of 1872,—held—that under the newer Code, the District Magistrate had powers not conferred on him by the old Codes—112—He could interfere with the discharge of any accused person whatever by a subordinate Magistrate, whether or not the case is one triable by a Court of Sessions, and the order of discharge was one under S. 209 or 253 of the Cr. P. C.—10 B. 131

[Note—Under the Code of 1872, the District Magistrate, or the Sessions Judge had no power to direct further enquiry himself. He could only report the matter to the High Court. See (76) 1 C 252 (77) 2 C 405 (79) 4 C 647 (77) 1 C L. 83 (78) 2 B 534 See (79) 2 A 670]

(3) Action suo motu.

98. The District Magistrate should himself take action under S. 437, if he considers that further enquiry should be made into a complaint dismissed under S. 203 Cr. P. C.—O. S. 64 1 Bur 357

(4) Further enquiry into case dismissed by himself

99 The District Magistrate is empowered by S. 437 to direct further enquiry into a complaint dismissed by him under S. 203 Cr. P. C. When in the interests of justice it is necessary to do so—O. P. R. 1902 See 28 C. 102 11 C. N. vi.

99. A. Order for further enquiry after previous refusal—It is competent to a District Magistrate under S. 437 of the Cr. P. C. to order further enquiry in a case, though he may have declined to do so on a previous occasion in the same matter—Rat 622 Con. 5 Bur. T. 37.

(5) He cannot fetter the discretion of of the Magistrate directed to hold further enquiry

100 When the District Magistrate instead of holding the further enquiry himself directs a Sub-Magistrate to do the same, he has no legal authority to fetter the Sub-Magistrate in the exercise of his judicial discretion with regard to the question whether the case should be committed to the Sessions—15 M. 39

101. District Magistrate cannot direct Subordinate Court to try the accused.—A District Magistrate is not competent to order a re-trial under this section. All that he can do is to direct further enquiry, leaving it to the discretion of the Magistrate to determine whether or not the evidence justified the accused being charged and put on his trial—61 P. L. 1905 at p. 65 See 15 M. 39

109 Where case is of Civil nature.—Where the case has been dismissed as being of a civil nature, the District Magistrate is not authorised to order further enquiry. 1 D R 852.

110. Reference to High Court unnecessary.—The District Magistrate need not refer the case of an accused person improperly discharged under S. 233 Cr. P. C to the High Court as he is competent to take steps himself, should he consider it necessary to do so Rat 290, 213; Cr. R 31 of '86

111. Repetition of enquiry.—District Magistrate cannot properly insist on repeated fresh inquiries without fresh evidence Rat 315

IX. POWERS OF THE SESSIONS JUDGE.

(1) Powers.

112. Powers under S. 437 are concurrent with those of the District Magistrate.—Rat 525

113. Change in the Law.—Under Ss 434 and 404 Cr. P C of the Code of 1861-5, the jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate was not concurrent.—See 7 B II. 73

114. Power to direct a reconsideration of the same evidence.—See VIII. Powers of the District Magistrate—(95-96) above.

115. Order to be passed by Sessions Judge.—The Sessions Judge should simply direct the District Magistrate either himself or by one of his subordinates to make the further enquiry. Cr. R 19 of '87

116. Order of acquittal.—Where an accused person is acquitted without any charge being framed or any witnesses being produced for the defence, the Sessions Judge is not competent to set aside the order of acquittal 1 A J 415

117. Additional Sessions Judge.—An Additional Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to examine the records of a case transferred to him by the Sessions Judge, in which the accused has been discharged and to set aside the order of discharge and direct further enquiry.—21 Cr. 293 (A)

(2) A Sessions Judge cannot.

118. Sessions Judge acting under S. 437 Cr. P. C. cannot.—

has sent for the records, or examining the mutual Criminal returns of the Magistrate.—Rat 107.

X. POWERS OF THE HIGH COURT.

121. Interference purely discretionary.—It is purely discretionary with the High Court to order a further enquiry under S 437 Cr. P. C.—S S 196, 15 C 605 (F. B.). 4 A. 148.

122. When the High Court will interfere.—It is only as a Court of last resort, after application has been made to the District Magistrate or Sessions Judge that the High Court will interfere or of discharge A. N. 232, 19 C 445 Supra.

123. High Court has a freer hand under S. 437 than under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—"It was the intention of the Legislature that the High Court should have a freer hand in interfering under S. 437 than under S 439 and the powers of the High Court and the Sessions Judge and the District Magistrate are co-extensive under this Section"—30 M 220 (F. B.) at p 238.

124. Power to set aside order of discharge The case now at decision. It, in any case, the High Court has to find that the Lower Court had set aside an order of discharge on insufficient grounds, or that while there were good grounds for setting it aside, the Lower Court has made an order inappropriate to the facts of the case, the High Court would be acting properly in reversing the order.—15 C. 608 (F. B.)

25. The extended powers of the High Court.—The High Court, the Court of Sessions and the District Magistrate, all have power, as Courts of Revision, to deal with an order of discharge on the merits as well as on other grounds, but only the High Court has power under S. 439 to deal as a Court of Revision with any finding, sentence or order which come under its notice.—Ibid.

26. Orders of discharge by Presidency Magistrate.—The High Court has power, under S. 439 read with S. 423 of this Code to revise an order of discharge passed by a Presidency Magistrate and to direct a further enquiry, if there are good reasons for doing so, although no question of jurisdiction arises in the case.—15 C. 608 (F. B.)

Note.—(1) Court of District Magistrate is inferior but not 'subordinate' to the Court of the Sessions Judge. Other Magistrates are subordinate and therefore also inferior to the District Magistrate.
12 C 473 (F. B.)

- (2) The term 'inferior' (See S. 435) as used in the Code, means "not competent to exercise equal powers" while "subordinate" means "inferior in rank" 9 B. 100.

127. Private persons. It is competent to the High Court to allow a private person to move it to exercise its powers of revision against an order of acquittal—1 A 130 (F. B.) 2 S 25 See 2 A. 148

128. High Court ought not to interfere on the grounds of misappreciation of evidence.—The High Court which has a power which a District Magistrate does not possess, viz., to order a retrial is not warranted in so doing merely because the Magistrate who has discharged an accused person, in a case he was competent to try and finally determine, arrived at a conclusion, different from that at which the High Court would have arrived as to the credit due to the witnesses 8 M 336 But See 32 M. 220 (F. further enquiry The fact of a person's being in the position of an accused with another during an inquiry which resulted in the order of discharge, should not at all prevent his being summoned as a witness in the further enquiry ordered.—40 A 416

131. S. 556 applies to proceedings under S. 437 Cr. P. C.—A District Magistrate who himself presided over a meeting of the Municipality which directed the prosecution of the accused who was a servant of the Municipality, has no jurisdiction to make an order for further enquiry under S. 437 Cr. P. C.—5 S 137 [27 A 25 Dist]

132. Further enquiry into offences forming component elements of an offence of which the accused had already been acquitted.—See Notes No 83 87 90 95 under S. 403 Supra and 5 C. N. 72; 27 C 658

133. As to interference with orders of discharge by Presidency Magistrate.—See Note No. 36 under S. 436 Cr. P. C. Supra.

438. (1) The Sessions Judge or District Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, on examining under section 435 or otherwise the record of any proceeding, report to High Court. for the orders of the High Court the result of such examination, and, when such report contains a recommendation that a sentence be reversed or altered, may order that the execution of such sentence be suspended, and, if the accused is in confinement, that he be released on bail or on his own bond.

(2) An Additional Sessions Judge shall have and may exercise all the powers of a Sessions Judge under this Chapter in respect of any case which may be transferred to him by the Sessions Judge.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In sub-section (2) of section 438 of the said Code, after the words "by the Sessions Judge" the words "or, in respect of all cases if the Sessions Judge by general order so directs" shall be inserted.

concurrent with that of the High Court even when the Sessions Judge or the District Magistrate cannot pass a formal order but can only refer the matter to the High Court under S. 438 Cr. P. C.—3 Pat. J. 302; 14 C. 587; 36 C. 643.

15. Powers under S. 438 not controlled by S. 125.—There is no ground for holding that the revisional jurisdiction of a Sessions Judge or of a District Magistrate under Ss. 435 and 436 of the Cr. P. C. is in any way trenching upon the provisions of S. 125 Cr. P. C.—3 Pat. J. 302.
16. Power of Additional Sessions Judge.—An Additional Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to examine the records of a case transferred to him by the Sessions Judge in which the accused has been discharged, and to set aside the order of discharge and direct further enquiry. He can also if necessary act under S. 438 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 293 (A).
17. Proceedings falling under subs. (3) of S. 435.—Proceedings under Ch. XII are not proceedings with regard to which a Sessions Judge has any power of revision or reference. There is no provision of law which gives the Sessions Judge the power to call for the record in such proceedings.—28 C. 416; 40 C. N. 779; 5 C. N. clxxxvi. But see 5 C. N. 71.

(2) Who may act under the Section.

18. Additional Sessions Judge.—An additional Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to exercise the powers of a Sessions Judge under Ch. XXII of the Code, only in respect of cases transferred to him by the Sessions Judge.—(33) A. N. 28; 6 Bur. R. 16.
19. Joint Magistrate.—A Joint Magistrate of a District has no power to make a reference to the High Court (Under S. 434 of the Code of 1961—S. 435). Such reference can be made only by the Sessions Judge or by the Magistrate of a District [14 W. R. 25].
20. Provincial Magistrates.—Provincial Magistrates are not authorised to refer questions of law that may arise before them for the decision of the High Court.—O. S. 71.
21. Jail Daroga.—A reference to the High Court under S. 438 of the Code of Criminal Procedure should only be made for some reason specified in that Section which appears from inspection of the record. Such a reference cannot be made on the more report of a Jail Daroga.—(91) A. N. 80.

(3) Practice and Procedure.

22. Sessions Judge not to refer abstract points.—See 438 Cr. P. C. empowers Sessions Judges and District Magistrates on examining under S. 435, or otherwise, the record of any proceedings to report to the orders of the High Court "the result of such examination" which means that the Sessions Judge or the District Magistrate is to report the incorrectness, illegality or impropriety, if in his opinion such exists, of the finding, sentence or order recorded or passed by the inferior Court or the irregularity if in his opinion such exists, of the proceedings of such Court and not that he is to refer abstract points of law to the High Court.—5 O. C. 316.

How to frame the order of reference

23. (1) When a case is reported under S. 438, the order of reference should set forth the point on which orders are required.—O. S. 64.
24. (2) Where a Sessions Judge considers that a judgment or order is contrary to law, or that the punishment is too severe, he should report the High Court in the manner presented by the Circular order of 15th July 1963 which is applicable to references under S. 296 Cr. P. C. (=S. 435)—[20 W. R. 50]. There should be a definite recommendation that the sentence be reversed or altered [27. A. 25].
25. (3) When a Court of Session reports a case to the High Court, it does so under S. 438 Cr. P. C. and its report should contain a recommendation that the sentence be reversed or altered. There is no section in the Code of 1898 corresponding to the old section in Act XXV of 1861 empowering a Court of Session to send question for the opinion of the High Court.—(34) A. N. 154.
26. (4) All references submitted to the High Court under this section are to be accompanied by the record of the case and by a statement of the case magistrate passing it. (1) the particular portion of the finding, sentence or order which is considered incorrect, illegal or improper, or the particular portion of the proceedings which is considered irregular. (4) the grounds upon which it is proposed that the High Court should exercise the powers conferred by S. 439 infra: (5) a statement (where appropriate) showing how much of the sentence the accused has undergone, and if he has been sentenced to fine or whipping, whether the fine has been realised or the whipping has been inflicted.—Punj Cir p. 290; See B. H. C. Cir p. 47; See 9 Cr. 502 (M).

27. (5) More than one case should not be submitted with one letter. Each case should be accompanied by a letter and statement referred to in para (4) above. The fact of the reference and a copy of its terms should be communicated by the Court making it to the Lower Court.—B. H. C. Cir p. 47.
28. (6) Subordinate Courts should, whenever it

(4) Powers of the District Magistrate and the Sessions Judge.

29. District Magistrates are not to report against orders by Sessions Judges.—The power given to the District Magistrate to make a reference to the High Court is conferred by S. 438 read with S. 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

But this clearly refers to a "proceeding before any inferior Criminal Court." And notwithstanding the words "or otherwise" in S. 438, it cannot be held that the Sessions Judge is empowered to refer a case to a Magistrate for trial.

Auth. which has been reported for orders" in S. 439 Cr. P. C. could it have been intended that such report might be made by an inferior Criminal authority with respect to a proceeding by a superior authority—[23 C 250-18 B R 796] It would be contrary to every principle to allow a District Magistrate to report against an order of the Sessions Court to which he is subordinate. The words "or otherwise" in S. 438 were not intended to confer on a Magistrate the power to question the propriety of an order of a Sessions Court, and make a reference to the High Court upon that ground [28 A 91]

30. Note.—In (87) 10 A 146 and (90) 2 Weir 556, the power to refer was doubted and it was laid down that such reference would be justifiable if at all in special cases. It is now well established that the only way in which a District Magistrate may challenge the decision of a Sessions Judge

31. Power of Sessions Judge to report against orders by the District Magistrate.—(1) In (95) 22 C 573, a ruling under the Code of 1882 it was held that if a Sessions

115 Cr. P. C. This ruling has been expressly disented from in (06) 17 M. J. 153 (154). "After an application has been made to the District Magistrate under S. 435, no further application even though it may be to call for the record and to refer the District Magistrate's order to the High Court can be entertained by the Sessions Judge. The case reported in 22 C 573 was before S. 155 (1) was enacted" See also (01) 40 C. 119 (121)]

(2) A Court of Sessions is not empowered to report to the Chief Court under S. 438 Criminal Procedure Code, the order of a District Magistrate, that further enquiry to be held by an inferior Criminal Court into the case of an accused person who has been discharged by that inferior Criminal Court—10 P. R. 1412. 29 M. 477 17 M. J. 153.

32. Reference discretionary.—A Magistrate should under 296 Cr. P. C. (-S. 438) exercise a discretion as to whether he will refer a case to the High Court, and is not bound to refer every case in which he may detect an error. [20 W. R. 40] But in 25 W. R. 30 it was laid down that where a Magistrate takes up a case under S. 293 Cr. P. C. (= S. 435) his only proper course is to proceed under S. 296 (= S. 138) and report the case to the High Court

(5) Reference against orders of acquittal.

33. As a rule such references will not be accepted.—Any reference under S. 438, the object of which is to induce the High Court to set aside an acquittal cannot be entertained on the revisional side [25 A 128. 24 A 346 5 N. 4 19 W. R. 55. 15 M 36 8 M T 380 13 P W 1907 But see 13 P. R. 1905] It has always been regarded as a sound rule of practice not to interfere in cases of acquittal in which Government might have appealed under S. 417 Cr. P. C. but has not done so [Per Spencer J. in 26 M 100 See 2 M. 38. 14 M. 363 3 B. 150] It is against the practice of the Allahabad High Court to interfere in revision with orders of acquittal. It would amount to something very like an evasion of the provisions of the section (cl 5, S. 439 Cr. P. C.), if the High Court were to entertain references by District Magistrate under S. 438 Cr. P. C. against order of acquittal. [12 A J. 255 See 16 A J 373]

34. [Note per contra.—There is no doubt about the jurisdiction of the High Court, either upon an application of a private individual or when the case is referred to the High Court by a learned Magistrate, that the Court can interfere by way of revision with an order of acquittal—4 C. 703 42 C 612]

(6) Miscellaneous.

35. When reference should not be made.—(1) The Sessions Judge is not competent to refer a case for enhancement of sentence unless he has heard the appeal filed against the conviction [6 A. J 421] (2) When an offence is tried by a Court without jurisdiction, the proceedings are void under S. 530 infra, and the accused may be retried under S. 403 supra by a competent Court without having the acquittal set aside [8 B 307 See 2 N. 149-31 A. 317 But See 4 L B. 49] (3) The section does not empower a District Magistrate to refer to the High Court the proceedings of a Superintendent of Police, the latter not being a "Court subordinate to" the Magistrate. [Rat 133]
36. When a reference is improper.—The circumstance that the complainant holds office as District Superintendent of Police can give him no right whatsoever to make any representation to the District Magistrate in the form of an official letter or memorandum in a case in which he is
- basis of that letter—Rat 310
37. Stay of proceedings or admission to bail pending reference.—Stay of proceedings

—A sanction to prosecute was granted and confirmed on appeal by the Magistrate of one Sessions Division, and the complaint in pursuance of the sanction was filed before a Magistrate of another Sessions Division the accused presented a revision petition before the Sessions Judge of the former place, held that the Sessions Judge was not competent to pass an order staying proceedings pending the disposal of the revision petition and reference to the High Court under S. 438 Cr. P. C.—26 M. 137.

38. Bail.—Where the reference itself is incompetent, an order granting bail pending the disposal of the reference is without jurisdiction [18 C. 186] A Court of Sessions acting under S. 296 (= 134) has no power to admit a convicted person to bail [3 C.L. 404 See 21 W. R. 40]

39. Meaning of the expression "or otherwise."—We think that these words being words of general importance following the particular words "under S. 435" must be construed according to the usual rule and that they mean not "in any other way whatsoever" but "in any other way provided by the Code"—10 C. 269 See 36 M. 275.

439. (1) In the case of any proceeding the record of which has been called for by itself or which has been reported for orders, or which otherwise comes to its knowledge, the High Court may, in its discretion, exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal by sections 195, 423, 426, 427 and 428 or on a Court by section 338, and may enhance the sentence; and when the Judges composing the Court of Revision are equally divided in opinion, the case shall be disposed of in manner provided by section 429.

(2) No order under this section shall be made to the prejudice of the accused unless he has had an opportunity of being heard either personally or by pleader in his own defence.

(3) Where the sentence dealt with under this section has been passed by a Magistrate acting otherwise than under section 34, the Court shall not inflict a greater punishment for the offence which, in the opinion of such Court, the accused has committed, than might have been inflicted for such offence by a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class.

(4) Nothing in this section applies to an entry made under section 273, or shall be deemed to authorize a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.

(5) Where under this Code an appeal lies and no appeal is brought, no proceeding by way of revision shall be entertained at the instance of the party who could have appealed.

I. SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

(1) Scope of the Section.

1. The Court and not the nature of the proceeding the determining factor.—The power of revision of the High Court under Ss. 435 and 439 of the Crim. Pro. Code extends to all proceedings before any inferior Court situate within the local limits of its jurisdiction. The test is not the nature of the proceeding held by the Court but the nature of the Court in which that proceeding is held—43 R. 607.

[Note.—The powers of revision conferred upon the High Court under S. 439 Cr. P. C. are larger than any exercised by them under S. 297 of the Code of 1872 [2 Weir 538]. Such powers under the old Code were confined to "material errors" committed in judicial proceedings." The term material error was held not to include "misappreciation of evidence"—See 11 B. H. 125; 2 M. 38, though misappreciation of evidence was included in the term—7 W. R. 7. The term "material error" was held to mean an error appearing on the face of a judicial proceeding resulting in an unjust order [2 C. 110]. A material error is one which would constitute the High Court [2 Weir 570]. 21 W. R. 84; 2. 3 A 545]

2. S. 439 is ancillary to S. 435.—Sections 435 and 439 of the Crim. Pro. Code must be read together and if a case is outside S. 435, S. 439 cannot apply to it [21 Cr. 25 (C) 15 C. 608 (F.B.) at p. 617]. "Section 435 authorises a High Court in revision to call for the records of inferior Criminal Courts and section 437 and 439 lay down the powers which a High Court may exercise in proceedings the records of which have been called for by itself or which have been reported for orders or which may have otherwise come to its knowledge. The summoning of the record must be a necessary preliminary to action which a High Court may take under S. 437 or S. 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Sec. 435 states the grounds and provides the machinery for the exercise of the powers which the latter sections confer. Sec. 439 is not independent of S. 435, for if it were so, orders under Ss. 143, 144 and 176 and proceedings under Chapter XII which are expressly excluded from the operation of S. 435 of the Code would fall within the purview of S. 439 and the object of the Legislature in excluding them would be frustrated."—Per Kashinath Lal A. J. C. in 17 O. C. 25

3. The powers under S. 439 are wholly discretionary.—The High Court is not bound to interfere even if the Lower Court has committed an illegality [5 P. R. 1906 7 P. R. 1919 4 L. B. 315 (F.B.)]. An irregularity in the conduct of an enquiry even though sufficiently serious to induce the High Court to annul a commitment is not sufficient to justify the annulment of the trial after the commitment has been made and a trial had upon it, unless the irregularity has caused a failure of justice by prejudicing the accused in his defence [Rat 177; 11 B. H. 125; 1 B. R. 656]. The Chief Court is not always bound to interfere under section 439 Cr. P. C. even if the order of the Court below is wrong in law—[29 P. W. 1913. 19 P. W. 1910]
4. S. 439 does not lay down any inflexible rule of law.—"If we have been entrusted with the responsibility of a wide discretion, we should be the last to attempt to fetter that discretion, and whenever it is argued that judicial decision has deprived us of the power that the Legislature has given us, I recall the words of an eminent English Judge. 'I desire to repeat' he said, 'what I have said before, that this controlling power of the Court is a discretionary power and it must be exercised with regard to all the circumstances of each particular case, anxious attention being given to the said circumstances which vary greatly. For myself, I say emphatically, that this discretion ought not to be crystallized, as it would become in course of time, by one Judge attempting to prescribe definite rules with a view to bind other Judges in the exercise of the discretion, which the Legislature has committed to them. This discretion like all other judicial discretions ought, as far as practicable, be left untrammelled and free so as to be fairly exercised according to the exigencies of each case. These weighty words appear to me to breathe the spirit that should guide us in the exercise of our discretionary powers of revision."—Jenkins C. J. in 25 B. 533 at p. 566 Fy. Gardner v. Jay 29 Ch. D. 50 (58) See Saunders v. Saunders (1897) J. P. 89

(2) Distinction between Civil and Criminal Cases.

5. Powers of the High Court in Criminal Cases.

Civil Procedure (1908) to act on findings of fact embodied in the judgment of the lower appellate Court. In criminal cases on the other hand, there is no such statutory restriction to the exercise of jurisdiction by the High Court. As a matter of practice, the High Court does not ordinarily interfere with the conclusions of the lower Appellate Court on questions of fact. But the High Court is competent to interfere with a finding of fact when the occasion requires it, and it will do so when it is satisfied that the finding is manifestly erroneous and a miscarriage of justice would result from it if left uncorrected.—Per Moonjejee J. in 16 C. J. 453

(3) Powers under the Charter.

6. The powers of High Court under the Charter Act are not affected by s. 475 (26 C. 188). "I would hold with Woodroff J. [12 C. N. 678] that there is no species of injustice which this Court would be powerless to correct under the Charter Act where its inference is called for.—27 C. 126 27 M. 223 13 M. 510 25 M. 25 21 M. J. 184 support the view that this Court has plenary powers of interference under the Charter where it is needed to correct injustice [See also 33 C. 65 (F. B.) 13 C. L. 275 24 C. 709] although a narrower view was adopted in 27 C. 592 6 C. J. 705 and some other cases"—Per Sundaram Aiyar J. in 14 M. T. 200

(4) General grounds on which the High Court will interfere.

7. Only in cases of defective investigation of failure to consider important evidence, of consideration of the evidence from a wrong point of view, of contravention of any provision of law, and of conviction upon facts which do not support the same, will the revisionary powers of the High Court be exercised [31 M. 133]. The revisionary powers though extremely wide is to be exercised only in exceptional cases and as a last resort when all other available remedies have been exhausted [5 N. 4 (84) A. N. 203]. They will be exercised when there is a misreading of documentary evidence and fundamental errors in principle which vitiate the conduct and disposal of the case.—[28 B. 477]

(5) High Court cannot review its own judgments either revisional, appellate or original.

8. (1) A Division Bench of the High Court cannot review an order which they have already made as a Court of Revision, under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—[10 B. 176 (F. B.) 14 C. 12 (F. B.) 23 B. 50: Rat. 458 19 B. 372 23 M. J. 371]. Having appointed a bench under S. 14 of the Charter Act to hear any particular case, the Chief Justice has no power to interfere after the disposal of the case by the Bench [8 C. 63 - See 5 W. R. 61]. But the order can be reviewed before it is sealed [27 A. 92]. The High Court has no power to review the order of a Judge of the High Court by which he dismissed the application for revision made by an accused person.—[7 A. 672]

[Note—See also S. P. R. 1909. 10 C. J. 80, 23 M. J. 371 Rat. 458]

9. Order passed by a single Judge sitting as an original Court—No application for revision under S. 439 Cr. P. C. lies against the sentence passed by a single Judge of the Chief Court in a trial held as a court of original Criminal jurisdiction (with the aid of a jury)—4 P. R. 1909 1 P. R. 1909 8 C. 63 14 C. 42 (F. B.)

(6) High Court cannot interfere both as a Court of Appeal and a Court of Revision.

10. The High Court is not competent to interfere in revision as well as to interfere on appeal. But it could not have been the intention of the Code that a person who as appellant has had the opportunity of advancing any objection he desires to take to the proceedings of a Court by which he has been convicted, should again have the opportunity of raising any points of law he may have omitted to raise by an application for revision.—[2 Weir 573]

(7) When Jurisdiction is not ousted.

11. (1) Orders purporting to be made in authority of the Courts, such authority cannot be ousted by the mere ipse dixit of the officer that he was acting not as a judicial officer but in his executive capacity. The High Court will interfere. 4 P. R. 1908. See 6 C. 68

12. (2) Order without jurisdiction.—The High Court will revise an order of a Magistrate made without jurisdiction in spite of a provision that an order under the particular Act shall not be open to appeal or revision.—28 S. 20 41 C. 400. 7 B. R. 463 21 P. R. 1886. See 29 A. 114 21 B. 127 26 C. 184

13. (3) Order made with consent of prisoner or where there is waiver on his part.—The principle has always been recognised that a prisoner on his trial can consent to nothing [3 B L. (ap) 20, 15 C P. 66, 36 L J. P. C. 51]. Criminal proceedings which are substantially bad can not be cured by any amount of waiver or consent on the part of the accused not personal to the latter. [2 C 23, 6 C 96; 12 C. N. 140, 10 C. J. 452; 16 W. R. 69, 23 W. R. 59, 23 B 50 (53); 9 B R 356; 9 A J 51; 18 M. J. 230 9 N 81, 1 S 98]

14. (4) Death of the accused, or expiry of sentence.—There is nothing in the terms of the law to prevent the High Court from interfering with a conviction even though, in consequence of the expiry of the sentence, it may not be possible to interfere with the latter.—7 A. 135

(S) Miscellaneous.

15. Proper functions of a Court of Revision.—The proper function of a Court of revision is to see that subordinate Criminal Courts do conduct Criminal cases with fairness and propriety and that nothing is done on the trial of an accused person which may reasonably lead to the impression that the accused has not received fair treatment or an impartial and fair trial.—[21 Cr 240 (Pat)]
16. Interference with orders of conviction.—A High Court possesses very wide discretion under S. 139, Criminal Procedure Code, but when the Court is satisfied that a conviction as recorded in any case coming before it in revision, is bad in law, it is not necessarily bound to go further into the question, whether upon the facts established by the evidence, a conviction of some lesser offence might or might not be recorded. 41 A. 557
17. Scope of subs (5).—District Magistrate should not exercise his powers of revision within the period allowed for appeal. In as much as Sec. 439 (5) Cr P. C. directs that where an appeal lies and no appeal is brought, no proceedings by way of revision shall be entertained at the instance of the party who could have appealed, it is clearly desirable that District Magistrates should not place difficulties in the way of persons entitled to appeal by calling for the proceedings and taking action upon them within the period allowed for appeal.—10 Bur T. 167.

18. Interference only in exceptional cases.—The revisionary power granted by S 439 Crim. Pro. Code, though extremely wide, constitutes an extraordinary jurisdiction, to be exercised only in exceptional cases and as a last resort, after all other available remedies have been exhausted. It is essentially a discretionary power of control, not to be crystallized by action under hard and defined rules, but to be left free and untrammelled, so as to be fairly exercised according to the exigencies of each case.—5 N 4 17 C P. 107-19 Cr 900(N). 22 C 999. 25 B 533.
19. Interference with police orders.—“Where S 141 Cr. authorit but is intoned by it, we cannot but assume that the Magistrate has acted in his general jurisdiction, and as such, his order is revivable by this Court and liable to be set aside at the instance of the party whose liberty is affected by it.” Per Inam and Chapman JJ. 41 C 100; 21 Cr 657 (Pat)
20. Orders of discharge.—It is only as a Court of last resort, after application has been made to the District Magistrate or Sessions Judge, that the Judicial Commissioner will interfere under S 439 Cr. P. C. with an order of discharge.—21 Cr. 563(N)
21. C. 202 Cr

S 386 is not open to revision by the High Court, no further proceedings in the Criminal Court being admissible.—25 P. L. 1915, 22 C 143, 20 M. 88. (98) A. N. 173.

II. CONDITIONS PRECEDENT TO INTERFERENCE.

(1) High Court will not interfere unless petitioner has availed himself of the ordinary channel of relief

- 22 Before seeking the aid of the revisional powers of the High Court, recourse should be had in to the ordinary channel of relief, eg by way of appeal to the Sessions Court if such relief is allowed by law [2 A 276 See 3 C. 573]. In cases, where there is a concurrent jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge and the High Court, where the remedy which is asked for from the High Court could also have been obtained from the Sessions Judge, and the Sessions Judge has not been moved, it is the established practice of the Calcutta, Allahabad, Patna and Bombay High Courts to decline to interfere unless there are special reasons to the contrary. [11 C 447, 26 C 613, 30 A 116, 28 A 265, (13) A. N. 279 (14) A. N. 238, 272 (16) A. N. 164, (45) A. N. 142 (57) A. N. 105, 11 B 311, Est 179, 2 Pat. W. 115]. Where the law provides a direct remedy—eg—application to the District Magistrate under S 123 supra the High Court will not interfere unless such remedy has been availed of [(103) A. N. 143, Rat 826, 35 B 243 : See 17 C P. 107, 5 N 4]. Where the petitioner before the High Court has admittedly not approached the District Magistrate by way of appeal against the order under S 114 Cr P. C., the High Court is precluded by S 439 (5) from entertaining an application in revision which seeks to impugn the propriety of that order [8 S 229]. Without any good reason, the extraordinary power of revision should not be exercised where a convict has failed to appeal [2 P. W. 1912-5 L B 129 See 35 B. 233, 1 P. L. 11915].

Note—The rule not inflexible.—(1) “It is not desirable to lay down an inflexible rule of law that the High Court would not interfere in revision, unless the party has exhausted his remedy by applying to the Sessions Court.”—

Per Kumaraswami Sastri J. in 2 L. W. 1126. (2) An application for revision made to the High Court in respect of orders to give security to has a right of appeal and does not exercise it, the powers of the High Court under S. 439, cannot be exercised, but in such cases they should be sparingly used and save in very exceptional circumstances, not at all with reference to questions of fact [6 A. 194]

(2) Delay will defeat chance of admission.

23. "I find that the well-known practice is that an application for revision must be made within sixty days from the date of the order complained of. The Court has allowed an addition to the sixty days of the time which is necessary for obtaining copies. This is not a rule of limitation but a rule of practice of the Court to the effect that an application must be made within a reasonable time. It is not an inflexible rule and in exceptional circumstances the rule may be departed from [Per Sanderson C. J.] in 43 C

1029. See 1 Pat J. 165.] So where an application for revision was made nine months after the appeal had been summarily rejected, the High Court refused to interfere because of the delay [8 A. 514] If there is a long delay in applying for revision Court will refuse to interfere in rev A. 481]

missioners' Court, revision applications are not admitted unless presented within sixty days and the rule indicates that the court will refuse to interfere in the case of a belated application [5 S. 265]

(3) When revision is barred.

24. When the right to appeal is not exercised proceedings by way of revision is barred by S. 439 (5) Rat 977 (90) A N 164 Cr R. 32 of 94 2 B R. 334 It is not the practice of the High Court to entertain an application for revision on the criminal side, where there exists a lower Court having concurrent revisional powers, unless a similar application has first been presented to the lower Court and has been rejected (04) A N 232 25 A. 268 30 A 116 11 C 687 36 C 643 See 7 C P. 47

III. APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Application of the section.

25. High Court cannot interfere unless the order has been passed in a judicial proceeding.—6 C. N. 682
26. Where the High Court has already dealt with a case as a court of appeal.—It will not afterwards deal with the same case as a court of revision except possibly to cure a very manifest injustice.—2 Weir 573
27. The word "sentence or order" is wide enough to include an order of discharge.—4 M. H. (1p) 70.
- Order made without jurisdiction under S. 144 will be quashed by the High Court.—17 W R. 37 4 A. 141 But See 14 W R 41
28. Any proceeding can be revised.—The powers of revision conferred by S. 439 Cr. P. C. 1895 is larger than those given by Act V of 1872

32. Order under S. 515 Cr. P. C.—Does not take away the powers of revision conferred on the High Court by S. 439 and 123 (c) in relation to forfeiture of bonds.—5 S. 179 3 C 757. 15 P. R. 1905

But the High Court cannot reduce the amount of forfeited recognizance.—3 C 757 8 C L 72.

(2) Difference between the power of the High Court under S. 215 and 439 Cr. P. C.

33. Under S. 215 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court is precluded from entertaining an application for revision on a question of fact Under S. 439 however, the High Court has power to revise a commitment order made under S. 436 of the Code on points of law as well as of fact.—9 L B 208 12 C N 117

(3) Conviction under wrong section.

34. "We are of opinion that it is for the Courts below to find the facts and if they convict under a wrong section in a case in which no charge is framed, it is open to the High Court, if necessary, to revise the section under which the conviction has been recorded without any further proceedings" 3 Pat J 354

(4) Order of sanction by Small Causes Court can not be revised.

35. The order by a Cantonment Magistrate in his capacity as a Small Causes Court Judge in connection with an execution case, granting sanction for the prosecution of the decree-holder for perjury under S. 195 Cr P C cannot be revised by the High Court either on the criminal side under

29. It is open to the High Court to alter any finding and confirm a conviction.—It cannot set aside the conviction merely because the view taken of the evidence by the courts below is not sustainable.—22 C 391 2 Weir 577

30. Where no appeal lies.—The petition of appeal may be treated as a petition for revision by the High Court and may be dealt with under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—9 C 513.

31. Orders for bail.—High Court will not interfere with an order for bail granted by a Sessions Judge.—10 M. J. 411

S 176, or on the civil side under S 115 of the Civil Procedure Code 16 A. J. 921

(5) Orders under S. 195.

36. Orders under S 195 cannot be revised under S 439 Cr P C. The High Court's power of interference is limited to cases in which a sanction has been granted by the Sessions Judge in which case the High Court can revise the order under S. 195(6) and (7). Where a sanction has been granted by a First Class Magistrate the High Court cannot interfere under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—See 21 Cr. 746 (A). 28 A. 554. (07) A. N. 283; 23 M. 252-40 C. 37. 37 C. 714 also 37 A. 139. 22 M. J. 419 (F. B.) [Per Sandura Iyer and Spencer J.J.] 17 C. N. 91; 39 C. 774 22 Cr. 151 (N). See 1 Pat. J. 165 S. 85 21: Con 23 P. R. 1916. 36 A. 243; 13 C. J. 216

87. Note.—The revisional jurisdiction of this Court can always be exercised in order to prevent a gross and palpable failure of justice. At the same time it should not be exercised as to make one portion of the Code of Crim. Procedure conflict with another, as would be the case were this Court to permit the practice to grow up of invoking its inference in revision, so as to give a right of appeal where such right is definitely excluded by other provisions of the Cr. P. C. [See 195 (6)]—Per. Piggot J. in 36 A. 403.

38. Per Monkherjee J. The machinery for correction of possible errors in sanction proceedings is provided by cl. (6) of S. 195 and consequently the party who seeks relief must have recourse thereto and cannot invoke the aid of S. 115 Civil Procedure Code or Ss. 475 and 439 Cr. P. C.—44 C. 816

(6) Orders under S. 476.

39. When a Civil Court orders a prosecution under S. 476 Cr. P. C. and an application is made to this Court for revision of that order, the question arises whether the power of this Court is limited by the provisions of S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. I hold that the High Courts are now unanimous in holding that the revisional power cannot be exercised under S. 439 Cr. P. C. but only under S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.—21 Cr. 270 (N)

40. [Note.—In 21 Cr. 843 (N) Kutwal J. held down that the High Court has no power (either under S. 115 Civil Procedure Code or under S. 439 Cr. P. C.) to revise an order passed by a Revenue Officer under S. 476 Cr. P. C.] See also (07) A. N. 277

41. [Note.—“When an order under S. 476 made by a Civil or Revenue Court is sought to be revised by this Court, the Bench exercising criminal jurisdiction may do so, under S. 114 of the matter”]

42. The High Court as a Court of Revision has power under S. 439 to interfere on grounds other than want of jurisdiction, when a criminal Court has taken action under S. 476 33 M. 15 (F. B.) [26 M. 94 (0).]

43. The Discretion of Court.—“It is not in every case that it is necessary for a Judge to invoke the aid of the criminal law or to take disciplinary measures upon the report of a subordinate (e. g. bailiff) complaining that the judgment-debtor has resisted the execution of the decree and the High Court would not interfere in revision with the discretion of the Judge in so far as it concerns the choice of taking or not taking disciplinary measures in a matter of this nature.”—Stuart A. J. C. in 18 Cr. 3 (0)

Note.—See the chapter headed Revision under S. 476 infra for fuller notes

(7) Power to acquit accused who has not applied.

44. The High Court in the exercise of the powers vested in it under S. 439 Cr. P. C. can act aside the conviction of an accused person who has not appealed while setting aside the conviction of a co-accused who has appealed.—5 O. N. 330; 21 Cr. 554 (C)—19 W. R. 57 14 P. W. 1809 12 Cr. 250 (L. B.) See also 2 C. 110 7 C. 447

45. Note.—In 9 P. R. 1909, the Chief Court while setting aside the conviction on a revision petition, held that it was open to the High Court under S. 439, to revise the conviction of all the offenders who were treated together (found guilty on exactly similar facts) though only one of them had applied for revision.—See also (11) 2 M. N. 170

(8) General Rules for Application.

46. S. 439 presupposes that a sentence has been imposed.—S. 439 of the Crim. Procedure Code presupposes that a sentence has been imposed. Therefore where an accused person is released on probation of good conduct under S. 562 Cr. P. C. the High Court cannot substitute a sentence of imprisonment or of whipping in revision.—17 A. 31 20 Cr. 92 (N)

47. Interference discretionary.—The High Court is not bound to interfere under Ss. 435 and 439 Cr. P. C. even if the Magistrate's order sought to be revised is an illegal order.—26 M. J. 233; 5 P. R. 1806 29 P. W. 1913 19 W. R. 1810 4 B. R. 643

48. No power to allow offence to be compounded.—Neither the High Court nor the Judge of a Court of Session when sitting as a Court of Revision, has the power to allow an offence to be compounded S. 315 (7) would be a bar to such orders 44 C. 1113, 118 C. 49A. Power to interfere with orders under Ss. 87 and 89 Cr. P. C.—The High Court in revision can set aside an order of attachment, when there was no legal proclamation under S. 87 Cr. P. C. [21 Cr. 210 (P) S. 19 M. 3 27 A. 572 22 A. 210].

49. Point taken for the first time at the High Court.—Where a point is not urged in the Court of the first instance or before the Sessions Judge on appeal, the High Court will not interfere in revision unless there has been a miscarriage of justice—21 Cr. 96 (Pat) But see 21 Cr. 619 (Pat) 13 Cr. 482 (C) as a letter or telegram from the counsel retained in the case is shown to him—2 C N 498-5 C N 110 19 M 375.

51. Grounds other than those on which the rule is issued may be urged at the hearing.—If one good point of law is made out, records may be called for and the petitioner is entitled to argue at the hearing such other points of law and procedure as may be raised by the petition [7 B 126] A party may raise at the hearing a new point of law, though not mentioned in the rule if the Judges granting the rule have directed that it will be considered at the hearing [11 C N 467 But See 31 C 710]

52. Discretion not fettered necessarily by the terms of the rule.—Where a rule was granted "to show cause why the conviction should not be set aside and the case sent back for retrial" and it came on for hearing before a Bench other than that which granted it, held that the terms of the rule did not prevent the Bench hearing it from discharging the accused [27 C 820 23 C 347 20 C N 81]

53. Powers of the High Court.—The High Court may suspend the proceedings without having the record before it [20 W R 23 22 C 131] It may also order bail to be taken from the accused pending the disposal of the rule [20 B 543]

54. Power to set aside order of discharge by a Presidency Magistrate.—The High Court has power in a proper case to set aside an order of discharge by a Presidency Magistrate—14 M. T. 200-15 C 608 (F.B.) 36 C 994, 26 C 746 20 C N 1128 27 B 81 But See 27 C. 126 33 C 1282

55. Power to alter finding.—The High Court in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, has power to alter a finding under S. 323 I. P. C. to one under S. 325 of the same Code—21 Cr. 647 (N) See 37 M 119 27 C 660 22 C 39-21 C 827. 18 C N 309 2 Weir 577 1 Weir 130-4 C N 215 3 L R. 242 25 A 534

56. Orders under Chapter XII.—An order not really within the purview of Chapter XII of the Criminal Procedure Code and so without jurisdiction can be revised under S. 439 Cr. P. The rule which is now well settled is that the High Court will not interfere with proceedings which are, in fact and in law proceedings under Chapter XII, Cr. P. C. 22 Cr. 97 (A) 18 A J 171 (176) See Notes under S. 145 Supra

57. Orders under S. 110 Cr. P. C.—The High Court is not a Court of appeal for cases under S. 110 Cr. P. C. and it is only in very rare cases, that the Court will interfere with the decision of a Magistrate when it has been upheld either on appeal by the District Magistrate or on reference under S. 123 Cr. P. C. by the Sessions Judge 1 U B 143 (A) See Notes under S. 110 Supra

58. Accused after expressing willingness to furnish security may move High Court.—"I do not think the fact that the applicant and his co accused were prepared to give the securities demanded (under S. 107 Cr. P. C.) in any way prevents them from moving this Court." Ryes J. in 21 Cr. 59 (A) following 35 C 674-37 A 30

59. Order under the Sind Frontier Regulation (III of 1892).—The Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Sind has no jurisdiction either by express enactment or by necessary implication, to interfere in revision with an order made by a District Magistrate under sections 20(1) and 24(1) of the Sind Frontier Regulation requiring a person to furnish security for good behaviour, [21 Cr 513(S)]

60. Presidency Magistrate.—The High Court has under Ss. 435 and 439 read with S. 423 Cr. P. C. the power to revise the proceedings of a Presidency Magistrate—23 C 746 27 B 84-3 C N 601-13 C. N. 1221-2 Weir 504-See 12 C. N. 678 Contra 33 C 1282-6 C J. 705 27 C 126

VI. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) When the High Court may be set in motion under this Section. Meaning of "which otherwise comes to its knowledge."

94. (1) The words in S. 439, 'the record of which has been called for by itself,' are not used in contradistinction to, 'which otherwise comes to its knowledge,' but as contrasted with "which has been reported for its orders," and it has reference only to the recognised channels, by which the High Court, becomes seized of the case, that is to say, either by calling for the record itself, or by having the case reported to it under S 438 by a Sessions Judge or District Magistrate who has himself called for the records under S 435. In both these cases the High Court is acting of its own motion and on petition. The words "otherwise comes to its knowledge," cannot have reference to petition.—23 M. J. 489

95. (2) The High Court has got ample power under S 439, which empowers the Court to deal with a case which has been reported for orders or "which otherwise comes to its knowledge." It does not matter in whatever way the record comes to the High Court. As soon as the record comes the Court has seizure of the entire case. It cannot therefore be contended that because the matter came up in revision at the instance of the complainant, the Court cannot deal with the case of the accused who have not moved the Court or that because only some of the accused have appealed, the case of others who have not, cannot be dealt with in revision.—1 Pat J 435 See 19 W. R. 57 (63) 5 C N 330.

96. (3) So where the accused not having exercised his right of appeal, would be debarred under S. 439 (5) from taking the matter up to the High Court in revision, the matter having been referred by the Sessions Judge of his own motion, the High Court had jurisdiction to interfere.—14 A. J. 215

97. (4) The High Court might exercise its power of revision upon information in whatever way received.—2 M 39.

98. (5) High Court may act Suo motu.—On the revision side, the High Court has power to quash conviction of the accused who have been dealt with by the appellate Court under S 502 Cr P C, even if the convicts have not moved the High Court to exercise that power [67 P. L. 1912] The Code has made no provision for the continuance of an appeal either by the heir or devisee or executor of the deceased convict or by any other person. The appeal abates on the appellant's death. But the High Court has the right to call for the record ex mero motu and make such order thereon as it may deem to be due to justice [2 B. 564]

99. (6) High Court may act on reliable private information.—It may act not merely on matters coming before it in the ordinary way, but also on matters coming to its knowledge on reliable information [2 M 39 2 Weir 539. Cr. R. 32 of 94]

100. (7) Improper reference under S. 438.—Where a District Magistrate referred a case to the High Court in which his predecessor had ordered a retrial, the High Court held that the reference exceeded the jurisdiction conferred by S. 438 but the fact did not prevent it necessarily from acting under S 439 Cr P C [See Rat 652: 14 W. R. 25 9 C N 549 But See 1 S 40]

101. The ordinary practice.—Although S 439 gives the High Court power to call for cases not only on judicial information but also "which otherwise comes to its knowledge, yet in most cases, it is the right practice that Judges should be moved in open Court; publicity is thus secured and a fuller hearing of the reason which moves the Government in the interests of the public order or a private party in his own. It is therefore desirable that such motions should be made in the usual manner, however wide the powers of the Judges may be to interfere on knowledge otherwise required.—16 B. 580 (582) See Rat 577 2 B 561. 2 M 38

- 101A. Mere official communication.—The power to interfere under S 439 Cr P C can be exercised on an application by the Government in an official communication instead of through the law officers of the Crown ('87) A N 144.

- 101B. Reference by Sessions Judge.—Where four persons were jointly tried and the sentence against the three accused others was wrong and referred their cases to the High Court, held the High Court had jurisdiction to consider their cases in revision under S 439—(91) A N 149

(2) Right of audience.

102. On a report by Court of Sessions.—The High Court is not bound to hear the accused personally or even by agent ('81) A N 63.

103. Right to be heard.—The revisional power of the High Court is exercised at its own discretion and no petitioner has a right to be heard. 23 M. J. 371

104. In case of a reference under S. 438 Cr. P. C. by a District Magistrate for enhancement of sentence.—The provisions of S 439 (2) Cr P C. cannot be said to be sufficiently complied with, if the accused is not given an opportunity to show cause before the

did not include error in the appreciation of evidence. Under that section the High Court could not set aside findings of facts (except upon an appeal in the case of conviction, [2 M. 38 5 M. 10, 11 B. R. 125; 9 B. H. 451; 2 B. H. 395; 8 W. R. 40; 15 W. R. 86; 20 W. R. 40; 23 W. R. 61; 24 W. R. 60; 25 W. R. 61; 25 W. R. 74 25 W. R. 10 1 C. L. 486.] A contrary view to the above was taken no doubt in 2 A. 336; 5 A. 161; Cr. R. 31-5-81 and 14 P. R. 1877, but the weight of opinion was overwhelmingly against the power to interfere on pure questions of fact. "Where a Sessions Judge, after a careful and deliberate weighing of the evidence, comes to a conclusion that the accused is guilty, it is not for the High Court to interfere on the ground of misappreciation of evidence." [11 B. H. 451.]

Conclusion
Court is not however in

as to the value of the evidence [11 B. H. 451.] The practice was to confine interference to cases of misapprehension of evidence.—7 W. R. 7, 24 W. R. 60, 11 B. H. 166 6 B. H. 47, 2 B. H. 395.] A glance at the present state of the case—law analysed below will show that it is now well-settled that the High Court may in a proper case, set aside a finding of fact, on the ground of misappreciation of evidence.

124. The Bombay High Court.—It is unusual for the High Court in criminal cases to interfere in revision with a finding of fact, unless it is one so manifestly erroneous that a miscarriage of justice would result from its remaining uncorrected [6 B. R. 1096 9 B. R. 1385; 11 B. H. 166 6 B. H. 47 See 9 B. H. 451.] "It is an well established rule of this Court that, in exercising the powers of revision it interferes on questions of fact only in very exceptional circumstances. The jurisdiction of the High Court to interfere on questions of fact has often been affirmed, and that in very exceptional cases, this power should be exercised is obvious, such as where there has been a conviction of a clearly innocent person, and, but for the powers given to the High Court, to interfere as a Court of Revision, the only remedy would be by petition to the Government to exercise its powers of prerogative." [Per Adon J. in 8 B. R. 851 See Rat 244.] The law as laid down in the Criminal Procedure Code gives the High Court the power to go into evidence in revision. But the Bombay High Court has as a matter of practice held that it will not go into evidence as a rule, but will interfere only where there is an error of law [Per Chandra Bhanu J. in 25 B. 533. See also 14 B. 331 14 B. 115 12 B. 377 10 B. 131 8 B. 197 12 B. R. 21 20 B. 543 (505) Rat 908 826.] "There is nothing in the statute law, which precludes the High Court from interfering in the exercise of its revisional powers with conviction and sentence, whether the ground of that interference be what is commonly called a question of fact or whether it be a question of law. The crucial crucial drawing a distinction between grounds of the former and grounds of the latter sort rests rather upon a principle of convenience than of law. The true rule is that the High Court will not interfere in the exercise of revisional powers, unless it is satisfied that it is necessary to do so to prevent an otherwise irreparable injustice."—Per Beaman J. in D. B. R. 706-19 B. R. 912 See Rat 177- Con. 4 B. R. 686

125. The Madras High Court.—

is not limited to matters of law, but it is fully competent to the High Court to enter into matters of fact if it thinks fit. The mere application of a party to examine the evidence in any case would not be sufficient ground for doing so. There must appear on the face of the judgment or order complained of, or of the record, some ground (which need not always be a ground of law) to induce the High Court to think that the evidence ought to be examined in order to see that there has been no failure of justice. It is neither easy nor desirable to lay down any hard and fast rule for regulating the discretionary powers of the High Court. Each case will have to be dealt with according to its own circumstances. "The High Court has no doubt the power in revision to enter into questions of fact, but it is a power which, in my opinion, should be sparingly exercised, for there is danger that the sense of responsibility of the subordinate Courts, as ultimate Judges of facts will be blunted, if our powers are freely exercised, and we ought only to interfere in revision with findings of fact when it is demonstrated very clearly that they are wrong [Per Beachcroft J. in 18 Cr. 437 (C).] "Although the High Court will not, as a rule, in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, go into the evidence and examine the validity of the conclusions of the Court below, it may in exceptional cases, enter into matters of fact, if it thinks fit. In cases in which the judgment of the Courts below is manifestly defective and the findings contained therein are insufficient to support the conviction, it is the practice of the High Court to examine the evidence in order to see whether the conviction may not be sustained."—Per Mookery J. in 33 C. 295 See 2 C. J. 101 4 C. J. 232 2 C. N. 72 17 C. N. 294; 17 Cr. 460 (C) 21 C. 931 14 C. 169 14 C. 361.

126. Allahabad High Court.—The High Court in dealing revisionally with an appellate judgment of a Criminal Court will not, ordinarily speaking, enter into questions of fact, but it has power to do so, and in dealing with such questions require that there should be distinct and definite

5 A. 161 2 A. 336 2 A. J. 53

127. Madras High Court.—"It has now been settled by a series of decisions of this Court and of the Bombay and Calcutta High Courts that in revision it is open to the High Court to consider whether there has been any misapprehension of evidence and if the Court has power to do so, and if a convicted person claims to be heard to show that the lower courts have misapprehended the evidence in the case and he has been unjustly convicted, it is not in my opinion open to a Judge to say that it is within his discretion to permit or refuse him to do so or not. No doubt the sections only say that the High Court may interfere in revision, but I think the word "may" is the only word that could be used in the section.—Per Sankaran Nair J., in 15 Cr 285 (M). See 14 M 334 (F.B.). 32 M 220 (F.B.). 30 M. 224. But See 31 M. 133] The power of the High Court to exercise its powers of revision on the ground of misappreciation of evidence is a discretionary power.—[Per Ayling and Miller J., in 15 Cr 385 (M)] "It is well that Courts will not interfere when there is no clear error or defect in the proceeding of the lower Courts which has resulted in grave injustice but the question is one as to the appreciation of doubtful evidence."—Per Kamaraswami Sastri J., in 20 Cr 101 (M). See 39 M 505. 38 M 1028. 26 M J 160. 6 Cr. Law Review 78: 25 A 128. 42 C 612. 9 B. R. 156.

128. Patna High Court.—Although the High Court in revision is entitled to enter upon an investigation of the facts it will not do so, where the lower Court has carefully and cautiously analysed the evidence. The power to do so no doubt exists as a general principle, but the general proposition must be qualified by the rule that each case must depend upon its own facts.—4 Pat J 259. 5 Pat W 157. 21 Cr. 338 (Pat)

129. The Punjab Chief Court. (Lahore High Court)—The Punjab Court has never hesitated in revision to interfere with concurrent findings of the Lower Courts on facts.—106 P. L. 1909. 25 P. W. 1910. 13 P. W. 1911. 224 P. L. 1912. 8 P. W. 1912. 28 P. W. 1912. 22 P. W. 1912. 12 P. W. 1913. 98 P. L. 1913. 168 P. L. 1914. 113 P. L. 1914. 28 P. W. 1915. 1 P. W. 1916.

130. Other Courts.—"It is not usual for a High Court in revision to interfere with any finding of fact, so far as it is a finding of fact pure and simple based on an evidence on the record, but it will do so, when both the lower Courts erred in their inference from facts as found, and have found applicants guilty of offences which are not constituted by such facts" [8 S 199] The High Court will not interfere in revision on the ground that several inferences not warranted by the evidence has been drawn to the prejudice of the accused [18 Cr 116 (L R)] See 61. B 234: (07) U. B. 1]

(5) Grounds on which the High Court will not interfere on facts.

131. (1) Merely because the High Court might be disposed to take a different view on facts.—The Revisional Court has to see whether the evidence is of such a character that it is possible to come to only one conclusion upon it, namely that the accused has been guilty. The Court must satisfy itself that there has been a miscarriage of justice consequent upon the one-sided or perverse view taken by the Magistrate but the mere fact that the Appellate Judge if he had heard the evidence himself would have come to a different conclusion upon the facts would not justify interference in revision.—10 L. W. 630. 14 M. 311 (F.B.). 32 M. 220 (F.B.) explained] 2 Pat 177. 30 P. W. 1908. See also Pat 157. 2 B R 311. 18 W. R. 7. 18 W. R. 39. 2 B R 314.

132. (2) Contrary view on evidence.—The rule may be summed up as follows "Where a Sessions Judge after a careful and deliberate weighing of the evidence on the record, comes to a conclusion unfavourable to the accused the High Court is not justified in interfering under S. 297 [=S 439] however much it might hold a contrary opinion as to the value of the evidence.—[12 B L 249] See also 8 P. R 1909. 18 P. R 1902. 2 P. R 1901. 8 P. R 1900] The High Court will not exercise its revisional powers where the judgment of the Appellate Court though informal, has appreciated the points which the prosecution had to establish and expressed opinion thereon.—20 C 333]

(6) Grounds on which the High Court has set aside findings of fact.

133. (1) Misappreciation of evidence.—See Notes no 123 to 130 above. Where the lower Court has clearly failed to appreciate the points pro and con in the evidence, the High Court will interfere. See 13 C N. even 13 C N. clxxvii 14 C N. xviii

134. (2) Onus improperly placed on the accused.—The High Court is reluctant to interfere in revision on a matter of fact. But where the subordinate Court has taken a wrong view of the facts through an error in law, e.g. where it places the burden of proof on the accused contrary to the provisions of S. 101 of the Evidence Act, it will interfere.—[Rat 794]

135. (3) Rule as to evidence of accomplices not properly observed.—The High Court will not interfere on the mere ground that the rule of practice that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless he is corroborated in material particulars has been overlooked.

See 2 C N 762. 3 P W 1911

136. (4) That the evidence is defective for the following reasons.—"Weak, suspicious and inconclusive"—[20 P. R 1907; 13 C N. clxxvii] Serious discrepancy.—[113 P. L. 1912. 111 P. L. 1912. 2 Weir 573.]—Improbability on account of enmity between the parties.—[28 P. W. 1914. 28 P. W. 1912] Insufficient to sustain the charge.—33 C 295. 12 P. W. 1913. 152 P. L. 1913. 43 P. W. 1913]—Merely circumstantial and not conclusive.—[25 P. W. 1910]

137. (5) No attempt made to scrutinize evidence.—When in the judgment of the lower Court, no attempt has been made to scrutinize the oral evidence of the complainant and his witnesses and the necessity of finding expressly that all the ingredients to make up the offence charged were proved, has been overlooked, the High Court will interfere in revision to set aside the conviction.—21 Cr 140 (N)

138. (6) Refusal to allow accused to exercise his rights.—Where the accused was entitled to have the witnesses for the prosecution recalled for further cross-examination, but the Judge declined to accede to the request of the counsel appearing on behalf of the accused to be permitted to do so, the High Court set aside in revision the conviction and ordered a retrial—21 Cr. 289 (Pat)

139. (7) Failure to deal with the case with impartiality.—A Magistrate fails to deal with the case before him with judicial care and impartiality when he lays great stress on all considerations that might affect the credibility of the prosecution witnesses but fails to appreciate or even to correctly cite in his judgment the points in favour of that evidence. In such a case the High Court set aside an order of acquittal and directed retrial to take place in another District.—18 C N. 1244.

20 P. W. 1907; 13 P. W 1909

141. (9) Introduction of irrelevant matter.—When the real issues have been obscured by the introduction of a mass of irrelevant matter, so as to seriously affect the chance of the lower Court being able to arrive at a correct finding—1 B R 686; 14 C 361 See 20 W. R. 40; 15 W. R. 86 25 W R 74

(7) Power to go into evidence—general rules.

142. Power to go into evidence in revision of orders under S. 436 Cr. P. C.—Where a District Magistrate, acting under S. 436, Criminal Procedure Code, disagrees with an order of discharge by a Magistrate and directs the commitment of the accused to the Court of Session, the High Court has jurisdiction to go into the evidence in order to ascertain whether the order of the District Magistrate is or is not justified, and if it finds no justification for the order, it will direct the discharge of the accused—21 Cr 328 (Pat)

143. Duty to examine the evidence when non-appealable sentence is passed.—There is ample precedent for a High Court as a Court of Revision re-examining the evidence, if there are prima facie good grounds for doing so more especially is this the case where the accused has been given a non-appealable sentence and has no means of vindicating his character except in revision.—Per Batten O J C. in 19 Cr. 666 (N) See 23 C. N. 489

144. Absence of evidence.—The absence of evidence necessary to support an order, is regarded as a question of law and not of fact—5 C N 411 9 C N 629 9 L. B 208 See 34 C 840 25 M. T 175 94 P. L 1915. 2 A J 53

145. Power to direct Sessions Judge to hear appeal after obtaining additional evidence.—"In our opinion both under the Criminal Procedure Code and under S. 107 of the Government of India Act the High Court has power to direct a Sessions Judge to rehear an appeal after obtaining additional evidence"—Per Mullick and Thounhill JJ. in 3 Pat J. 632.

20 Cr. 826 (Pat).

146. Power to investigate facts.—"I have followed my usual practice, viz, that when a revision is brought from the decision of an Appellate Court and the Appellate Court has not gone into the questions dealt with at the trial by the first Court with any great thoroughness, I make a point of investigating the original trial and seeing whether the nature of the procedure and the decision arrived at were such as to leave no doubt that the accused had a fair trial and that the decision was given according to law.—Ilajah J. in 20 Cr 370 (A)

(8) Concurrent findings of lower Courts no bar to revision.

147. (1) The fact that a complaint of an offence has been dismissed by two Courts, will not of itself prevent the High Court from setting aside the order of dismissal and directing that the complaint be proceeded with according to law. 21 Cr. 338 (Pat)

148. (2) In a revision of the concurrent findings of conviction of the Magistrate and the Sessions Judge, the High Court will have to see not merely whether it disagrees with such findings but whether there is something in the way in which the trial Court has looked at the law or in the method by which it has dealt with the evidence which makes it so doubtful whether the conviction is right, that it would amount to a miscarriage of justice to allow it to stand—21 Cr 552 (A)

149. (3) The concurrent findings of fact by the lower Courts were set aside on the ground that "there was such very great doubt about the case," in 95 P L 1914 ie also 23 P W 1914 113 P L 1914 1 P W 1916

150. (4) It is not usual for a High Court in revision to interfere with any finding of fact, so far as it is a finding of fact pure and simple based on the evidence on record, but it will do so when both the lower Courts erred in their inference from facts as found, and have found applicants guilty of offences which are not constituted by such facts 8 S 199 See 17 Cr 460 (C)

151. (5) In 25 P W. 1915 the Punjab Chief Court set aside the concurrent findings of the two lower Courts on the ground that in any case the prosecution witnesses are unreliable and it was improper for the Magistrate to convict the petitioner on their evidence"—25 P W 1915.

(9) Interference on account of a wrong exercise of discretion.

152. The general principle on which the High Court will interfere by reason of a wrong exercise of discretion.—By a subordinate Court may be summed up in the words of Markby J. as follows "The High Court has the power to interfere in revision, where the exercise of discretion being required by law, the lower Court exercised no discretion at all or exercised its discretion in a wholly unreasonable or improper manner."—[2 C 110] For example the High Court quashed the proceedings for security for good behaviour taken by a Magistrate because there was "an utter and fatal want of discretion" on the part of the Magistrate.—[1 C. L. 268]

Instances of wrong exercise of discretion.

153. (1) Omission to take very material evidence.—offered by the accused—24 W. R. 60
154. (2) Omission to examine all the witnesses produced—by the complainant before declaring the accused not guilty—[24 W. R. 62]
155. (3) Refusal to recall witnesses—for the prosecution for cross-examination—[19 W. R. 53]
156. (4) Refusal to summon certain witnesses for the defence—505 P. L. 1901 24 W. R. 18
157. (5) Failure to give the accused the benefit of the doubt.—106 P. L. 1909
158. (6) The wrong exclusion of an important question.—which a party wished to put to the witnesses—9 B. R. 1385.
159. (7) Rejection of a surety on wholly unreasonable grounds.—See 2 C 110-13 C. N. cii-14 C. N. cxxxviii-14 C. N. cxcv. 35 C 400; 37 C. 91

(10) General Rules of Practice.

(i) Where a plea of guilty has been wrongly recorded.

160. The High Court would set aside the conviction upon such plea and order retrial. 21 Cr 547 (C); 11 W. R. 53

(ii) Retrial.

When retrial should or should not be ordered.

161. (1) The High Court has full power as a Court of Revision to order a retrial when necessary—24 W. R. 24
162. (2) Where the District Magistrate has disposed of an appeal in a very summary manner without discussing the evidence, and coming to findings on essential facts, the High Court will set aside his appellate order acquitting the accused, and direct that the appeal be retried—18 Cr 519 (C).
163. (3) "Where a competent Court, has dismissed a case after considering the evidence and giving thorough and careful reasons, I do not think unless there is clear evidence of a miscarriage of justice, that an accused party, who has stood his trial ought to be ordered to run the risk again. The general principle of the criminal law is that a man is entitled to the benefit of the doubt and if he has been properly tried and acquitted by a competent Court, the least that you can say is that there is a reasonable doubt about his guilt and I think the usual practice is not to encourage the prosecution to have a second shot unless there is some very strong reason in the public interest"—Per Walsh J 14 A. J 1075.

- 163A. Where a person charged with murder is culpable homicide not amounting to murder convicted for the latter offence and acquitted the former, the High Court in revision cannot direct a retrial for murder.—5 M. H. (app) 10

- 163B. Lower Court cannot travel beyond findings accepted by the High Court. When a case is directed to be retried with reference to the observations of the High Court the Judge retrying cannot go behind findings of fact which have been accepted by all the Courts and which were the basis on which a retrial was ordered—15 Cr. 619 (V)

- 163C. Omission to record evidence of previous conviction may be a ground for the High Court revision to order a new trial 36 P. R. 185 But See 21 P. R. 1922.

(iii) High Court will be as a rule slow to interfere.

164. (1) High Court will not interfere in revision merely because the Sessions Judge takes a different view of the evidence to that taken by the Magistrate [Bat 977].
165. (2) The High Court will be slow to interfere with the exercise of the very wide discretion with which Sessions Judges have been invested under S 4 Cr. P. C.—13 A. J 111.

(iv) Rules of Procedure.

166. The High Court in revision could exercise the powers of a Court of appeal under S 423 Cr P. ('83) A. N. 61; 27 B. 84; 27 A. 413.
It has therefore the powers of making any amendment or any consequential or incidental order 27 A 415 See 36 C 41; 5 C J. 221
167. The High Court in its revisional jurisdiction has power to decide matters in respect of which a rule was prayed for but not granted—27 C 8
168. Single Judge.—A Judge sitting as a Single Bench has power to entertain ex parte applications for revision. ('87) A. N. 300

No Appeal lies from an order under S. 439 Cr P. by a single Judge in revision of proceedings under Chapter X Cr P. G. ('15) M. N. 240

169. Session Judge's application only after Sessions Judge's order
(A. N. P.)
170. Prima facie irregularity or illegality
A fair prima facie case of irregularity of proceedings or the illegality or impropriety of sentences or order must appear before the Court will interfere.—1 M. H. 135
171. More statement of the petitioner supported by evidence.—That the Magistrate did not record the whole of his defence cannot be acted on—8 W. R. 57.

(v) Failure to exercise right of appeal.

172. It cannot be laid down as an inflexible rule that when either the Government on the one side or the accused on the other has a right of appeal and does not exercise it, the powers of the High Court will be exhausted.

Court under S. 439 cannot be exercised but such powers should be used sparingly and in exceptional cases, not at all in reference to questions of fact.—4 A 481 See 22 Cr. 313 (S). 8 S 229

Note.—Where an error cannot be set right in appeal,—the High Court may act as a court of revision after it has acted as a court of appeal.—5 W. R 15 (F. B.)

(vi) S. 439. does not in any way affect the powers under the High Court Act.

173. S 439 does not in any way limit the powers of the High Court, as a Court of Revision, vested in it by the High Court's Act.—13 C. L. 275 See 2 N. P. 117.

(vii) Summary dismissal of appeal by Sessions Judge.

174. Where a Sessions Judge summarily dismissed an appeal against an order of conviction, the High Court instead of remanding the case, itself decided the case on merits and set aside the conviction.—10 C N 416

(viii) Practice of the Allahabad High Court with regard to conclusions on facts.

175. It is usual for the Allahabad High Court, unless very strong grounds for an opposite conclusion can be found to exist, to take the findings of the lower Appellate Court, and not of the Court of the first instance as the facts of the case.—18 Cr. 435 (A)

(ix) Notice.

176. Under S 439 (2) Cr P C the accused person would be entitled to notice, if an order S 250 Cr P C passed by a first class Magistrate is taken to the High Court for Revision. It stands to reason therefore he should be entitled to a hearing, when an appeal is preferred under the provisions of S 250 (3) Cr P C.—38 M 1001

177. When no notice is necessary.—A warrant for arrest issued under S 427 Cr P C is not an order to the prejudice of the accused within the meaning of S 439 (2) and can therefore be issued without previous notice.—8 Bur T 256

(x) Showing cause.

178 (1) Rule issued against order of the Sessions Judge.—Rules issued by the High Court are addressed to the District Magistrates as a matter of convenience and in accordance with the practice for appeals followed under S 422 Cr P C, the Local Government having under that section appointed the District Magistrate as the officer to receive notice of appeals. If a rule is granted against the order of a Sessions Judge, he is the proper person to show the cause.—7 C. N. 50

179. (2) Rules in other Cases.—Although it is open to a Magistrate called upon to show cause to submit his remarks in answer to the ground urged by the petitioner who obtained the rule it is not open to him to submit observation with a view to supplement or add to his judgment [7 C. N. 54 But See 3 C. J. 377] A Magistrate called upon to show cause against a rule issued by the High Court must apply to the Legal Remembrancer to cause an appearance to be made for him (Magistrate) in Court, and must not address the Registrar by letter [4 C 20] See also 25 C 785. 41 C 511.

(xi) Miscellaneous rules.

180. Correction of record.—The Chief Court, Punjab in revision ordered the Magistrate's adverse remarks on the accused (not supported by evidence) to be expunged from the judgment.—630 P. L 1901

181. Non-appellable cases.—Where notes of evidence taken by the Magistrate failed to show sufficient materials for conviction, the High Court set aside the conviction (and did not order a retrial).—13 C 272.

182. Orders made in default.—The Court has power to re-open and dispose of a criminal case any time before the order for the discharge has been drawn up, signed and sealed [7 C N. VII]

183. Abatement of revision application.—By sentence of fine a revision application against a sentence of fine does not abate and the principle applies to a case in which a compensation has been awarded under S 250 Cr P C [24 P R. 1908]

184. Interference after sentence is served out.—The High Court in revision is competent to interfere with a conviction even after the sentence has been served out.—7 A 133

185. Application for revision of an order passed in appeal must be by way of a motion.—16 W R 62.

186. Case of accused who has not applied.—can be dealt with under S 439 while considering the application of other accused.—5 C N 330

187. Interference in cases where the accused has been tried under two sections of P. C.—It is doubtful whether High Court in revision can change a conviction under 379 I P C to one under S 295 I P C when the lower Court has acquitted the accused of the latter offence.—2 Weir 577

The High Court can, as a Court of Revision in the case of an accused convicted of two offences and sentenced separately for each of them to set aside the sentence in respect of one charge and enhance the sentence in respect of the other.—2 Weir 577

(11) Orders of commitment.

188. Quashing commitment.—The High Court is competent in the exercise of the powers of revision to quash a commitment.—2 A 399 10 W. R. 25

189. Ordering commitment.—(1) The High Court has powers to direct an accused person who has been improperly discharged to be committed for trial—6 A. 40 27 B 84 19 W R 36
190. (2) Or when the accused has been erroneously convicted of a minor offence, the High Court as a Court of Revision may direct the accused to be committed to the Court of Session—1 C L 515, 30 P R 1880
191. (3) S. 423 gives an Appellate Court the power to order an accused person to be committed for trial, when it considers that that was the proper procedure to be adopted. That power can, under the provisions of S 430, be exercised by the High Court as a Court of Revision—16 B 560

(12) Verdict of a Jury.

192. The High Court as a Court of Revision cannot reverse the finding of a Jury.—5 W. R. 45 13 W R 33, notwithstanding the fact that the verdict is vitiated by misdirection—10 W. R. 14 11 W. R 29 (F. B.). 15 W. R. 68. But when there is no evidence to go to the Jury, the High Court can interfere.—[16 W R 19]

VII. GROUNDS FOR INTERFERENCE.

(1) As to, misappreciation of evidence, questions of fact etc.

193. See VI. Practice and Procedure (4) to (8)
- (2) What are not sufficient grounds.
194. (1) The omission to record in extenso the statement made by a prisoner—6 M H 45 Sec. 3 B L 59

200. (7) Refusal of the Sessions Judge to allow cross-examination of witnesses whose depositions had been recorded by the Magistrate but not admitted at the trial at the Sessions—5 B. H 85
201. (8) That a Magistrate has acted without proper discretion in ordering a prosecution—9 W. R. 18.
202. (9) Where the Magistrate has acted without jurisdiction but the accused has not been prejudiced thereby.—14 W. R. 41.
203. (10) Alteration of the charge and the omissions to record a separate defence when no prejudice.—17 W. R. 52

204. (11) The fact that the Appellate Court took a different view of the facts from what the first Court did—2 B R 334.
205. (12) The fact that a superior Court is disposed to take the view that the Magistrate has directed the prosecution evidence for insufficient reasons—2 Weir 551—2 Weir 555
206. (13) The fact that the Magistrate has illegally treated a warrant case as a summons case—2 Weir 572

(3) What are sufficient grounds.

207. (1) Omission to record evidence in the manner provided by the law—20 W. R. 14.
208. (2) Omission to examine all the complainant's witnesses before declaring the accused not guilty 24 W. R. 62
209. (3) Refusal to recall witnesses for the prosecution for the purposes of cross-examination by the accused.—19 W R 53
210. (4) The fact that the complainant's statement was not on oath and there was no statement of charge or evidence of any kind—20 W. R 55
211. (5) Order of acquittal passed by an assistant Sessions Judge without taking any evidence—5 B. H. 68
212. (6) Acquittal based on evidence not taken by the trying Magistrate but on evidence in another case before another officer—15 W. R. 23.

215. (9) That the rate of maintenance fixed under S 488 Cr. P. C is beyond the means of the person ordered to pay it—2 Weir 575.

VIII. INTERFERENCE WITH ORDERS OF ACQUITTAL.

(1) The prohibition in S. 439 (1) Cr. P. C.

216. "Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction," refers to a case where the trial has ended in a complete acquittal, not to a case in which the trial has ended in conviction, albeit on a minor count.—37

(2) A brief Historical Review of the case-law on the subject.

217. The almost uniform practice of the High Courts revision is not contemplated by the Code, and it should, on public grounds, be discouraged. In cases of acquittal the law allows an appeal only on behalf of the Government. [See 19 W R 55 ('80) 6 C L 245 ('82) 8 C 895 ('76) 1 A 139 (F.B.) ('79) 2 A 336 (339) ('79) 2 A 276. ('86) 9 A. 134 (F.B.); ('74) 11 B H. 117 ('79) 3 B. 150; ('84) 8 B 307; ('81) 2 Weir 570.] Under "Act X of 1872 provision is made for an appeal by Government in cases of improper acquittal. From this, and from the circumstance that S. 297 of the Criminal Procedure Code 1872, while it expressly gives power to the High Court to correct error in cases of improper discharge, conviction and sentence, says nothing of improper acquittal, the intention of the Legislature seems to have been that there should be no interference with the whole fabric of law and justice—viz—the principle embodied in the maxim of "nemo debet bis reus" will be swept away. Such interference is likely to impair seriously the sense of responsibility of Subordinate Courts as ultimate Judges of facts, and may place in the hands of the unscrupulous litigant a powerful instrument for harassing and humiliating their victims. See 2 M. 38 14 M 363 8 W T 380 26 M J 160 3 B. 150 15 B 349 12 A J 255 24 A 346 25 A. 128-13 P. W 1907 18 P. R 1883 2 O J 190.] While there is no doubt that the High Courts have always discouraged such practice, the right of the private party to move the High Court in revision has been recognised from the earliest times [See ('79) 2 A 448.] "There is no doubt about the jurisdiction of the High Court either upon an application of a private individual or when the case is referred to the High Court under S 438 Cr P C to interfere by way of revision with an order of acquittal [41 C 703. 42 C 612- ('96) 23 C 975 ('99) 27 C 172 ('02) 7 C N 301 ('03) 2 Weir 485 (486) 12 P R 1904 ('01) U B ('97-'01) 191. 2 S 25.] It has however been laid down with equal emphasis that the practice should be discouraged and that "the Court should interfere only when it considers that interference is urgently required in the interests of public justice." [42 C 612 38 C 786 22 C 164 18 C N 1244 18 C N 554 7 C N 521 11 C J 113 5 C J 452 24 M J 692-28 M J 690 2 L W 1244 7 A 359 25 A 128 24 A 346 20 A 459 6 A 484 2 A 418 41 B 560 15 B 349 8 B. 197 See 8 S P L 1906 18 P. NOTE.—A study of the following precedents will, it is hoped, be of considerable use in arriving at a proper understanding of the law on the subject—

218. (1) The High Court has jurisdiction to interfere in revision, even in the case of an order of acquittal, but such interference will only be called for where serious injustice has been caused by an error of law.—42 M 109; 15 M. J. 225-9 B R 156 4 B R 686 22 C. 995; 6 S 120.

219. (2) "In the case of revision petitions against orders of acquittal, courts have been either unwilling or very reluctant to interfere in revision at the instance of private parties [14 M. 363-15 B 349, 24 A. 346-25 A. 128; 42 C. 612 (Per Huda J.)]. It is well settled that Courts will not interfere when there is no clear error or defect in the proceedings of the lower Courts which has resulted in grave injustice but the question is merely one as to the appreciation of doubtful evidence.—[39 M 1028 39 M 505; 26 M J 160 5 Criminal Law Review 78-25 A. 128. 42 C 612-9 B R 156]—Per Kumaraswami Sastri J. in 20 Cr 101 (M)

[NOTE.—See 4 Cr 37 12 P R 1906-13 P. R. 1905; (ovd. by 13 P W 1907), 5 M T 258]

220. (3) "It may be taken as a well settled view of all the High Courts that as a general rule it is not expedient to interfere in revision at the instance of a private person with an acquittal after trial by a competent tribunal, and that applications for such interference should be discouraged on public grounds. The practice of this Court is in accordance with this view. On the other hand S 439 undoubtedly confers power to set aside an order of acquittal at the instance of the private prosecutor, and interference is called for when the offence is of so essentially personal character, that the Local Government would seldom be willing to appeal from acquittal"—Per Drake Brockman J. C. in 20 Cr 708 (N) See 5 N 4
221. (4) "It has been urged upon me that it is contrary to the practice of this Court to interfere in revision with a judgment of acquittal, but where it is plain that the learned Judge for reasons outside the merits of the dispute has really declined to decide the controversy, and has dealt with matters which really do not decide the complaint before him,
- 564 (A)
222. (5) "By a long established practice of the Bombay High Court revisional applications against orders of acquittal are not entertained from private petitioners except on some very broad ground of the exceptional requirements of public justice."—Butcher J. in 41 B 560

223. (6) Where a trial has ended in complete acquittal of the accused person, it is not open to the High Court in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction to convict him of any offence. The utmost that it can do, in the absence of an appeal against acquittal by the properly constituted authority is to order a new trial.—10 A. J. 918, 9 A 164 (F.B.) (10) L. B (93-99) 41 6 C P. 15; 12 P. R. 1901 157 P. L. 1908 23 C 975

5 W. R. 232; 15 W. R. 23; 21 W. R. 21. See 1 A. 1 (F. B); 5 B. II. 68; 27 B. 84; 3 B. 150; 22 Cr. 312 (P); 1 P. L. 1904; 6 S. 101; 37 M. 119; See O. S. 191; Con 21 W. R. 21; 11 W. R. 14.

[Note.—But a retrial should be ordered only when there is a failure of justice.—6 C. P. 15; 5 N 4 See 2 Weir 572]

224. (7) The High Court is loth to take up in revision cases of acquittal where the matter is one of public interest and the Local Government has not exercised its right of appeal under S. 417 Cr P. C.—40 A. 84.

225. (8) "In revision it has always been regarded has not done so" [2 M. 38; 14 M. 363; 25 A. 129 3 B 150]—Per Spencer J. in 26 M. J. 160.

226. (9) The High Court has power to interfere in revision with an order of acquittal but application by private parties should be discouraged and the Court should interfere only when it considers that interference is urgently demanded in the interests of public justice.—28 M. J. 690; 28 M. J. 692; 2 L W. 1244. (1917) 3 U. B. 19.

227. Some rules of practice.—The mere fact that the High Court, if it were sitting as a Court of Appeal, would come to a different conclusion on facts, is no ground for exercising revisional jurisdiction in petitions against orders of acquittal [28 M. J. 692] Upon a proper interpretation of S 439 subs (4) Criminal Procedure Code 1898, a High Court, acting as a Court of Revision, is not competent to question an order of acquittal upon the merits thereof; and the prosecution should not, infra, the High Court has no power to interfere [5 M. T. 216]

228. Some cases in which the High Court Judicial ce under has not 18 Cr.

732 (O) the High Court interfered on the ground that the lower Court had clearly fallen into a mistake of law.

229. High Court cannot convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction.—See Subs. (4). After setting aside the order of acquittal it can only direct a retrial—16 A. J 918; See Note No. 223 above.

(3) Grounds on which an order of acquittal may be set aside.

230. (1) That upon the evidence in the case which was not contradicted, and upon the facts admitted, the accused were clearly guilty under S 504 I. P. C and one of them also under S 342 I. P. C (neither offence being a summons case)—2 Weir 572.

231. (2) That the accused were acquitted without taking the evidence of witnesses present, and upon the result of local inspection—39 C. 931.

232. (3) That the trial was wrongly held to be barred by S. 403 Cr. P. C.—12 B. R. 226

233. (4) That the acquittal proceeded upon a mistaken view of the law. (The complainant agreed to receive money which the accused, charged with criminal misappropriation, promised to pay in three days. The Magistrate thereupon acquitted the accused)—6 A. J. 758.

234. (5) That the Magistrate acquitted the accused summarily without hearing all the witnesses cited.—24 W. R. 62; 2 C L 389.

(4) Rulings under the Old Codes.

235. It was held in several cases under the Code of 1861 that the High Court could, as a Court of Revision set aside a finding of acquittal. [5 W. R. 45; 15 W. R. 23; O. S. 191; 4 M. H. (Ap) 40 Con. 1 W. R. 14] Under the Code of 1872, however, the High Court either refused to or was very reluctant to interfere. It was held for instance in 13 B. L. (Ap) 22 on a reference that the High Court should not interfere.

(5) Belated application by Government.

236. Where the Government applied for revision of an order of acquittal by the Sessions Judge nearly ten months after the Sessions trial and upwards of 12 months since the commission of the alleged crime, held that as there was no error of law in the judgment of the Lower Court, and as it was not appealed against on a question of fact, the High Court could not, after so long an interval from the date of its delivery and of the alleged crime, enter into it at large upon the merits under a petition for revision.—6 A. 491.

IX. INTERFERENCE WITH SENTENCES.

(1) General Principles.

237. Legal sentence.—High Court sitting as a Court of revision will not interfere if the sentence, is a legal one and is not contrary to law. 15 W. R. 83; See 5 W. R. 32; 7 P. R. 1889.

238. Conviction for minor offence.—Where the evidence shows that an offence of a graver nature than for which the accused has been tried Court trial B. II.

But it will not interfere if under the circumstances the sentence is not manifestly inadequate—4 B. H. 1; See 4 B. H. 2; or when substantial justice has been done.—18 W. R. 8; 18 W. R. 23; 18 W. R. 38

239. Inadequate sentence.—There must be material on the record showing that the charge has been improperly framed or that the sentence passed is clearly inadequate.—20 W. R. 22; 7 P. R. 1889.

240. Improper sentence.—Where the sentence is improper and unjust, the High Court will set it aside.—25 W. R. 1.

241. Error of procedure—is not sufficient to vitiate the conviction so long as the punishment awarded does not exceed the legal penalty

15 W. R. 48; 15 W. R. 49; 17 W. R. 50.

242. Mere ground that case is of civil matter and has come to the conclusion that the accused is guilty of the offence alleged.—27 C. J. 226.

243. Conviction under a wrong section.—The High Court ought not to interfere, because the

R. 50.

244. Sentence partly legal and partly illegal.—The High Court will in revision set aside the illegal portion of the sentence and retain the legal portion.—(02) L. B. 362.

(2) Enhancement of Sentence.

245. Principles upon which a Court should act.—"The principles upon which this Court habitually acts as a Court of Revision in relation to the enhancement of sentences where the law allows a discretion to the Court whose sentence is impugned, are that it should not interfere if the sentence passed involves substantial punishment, and should interfere if the sentence is manifestly inadequate. The Court is, in particular, slow to interfere where interference would involve the imprisonment of persons already discharged from jail, though the circumstance is no insuperable obstacle. The Court also declines to interfere in order to enhance a sentence, on the mere ground that it would itself have passed a heavier sentence, contenting itself with pointing out that the sentence is so far light that a heavier sentence would have been maintained."—Flouden J 7 P. R. 1889 19 W. 1910 7 P. R. 1919

[Note.—The High Court will not interfere, particularly when the accused has already undergone the sentence of imprisonment or has paid the fine.—313 P. L. 1913.]

246. Condition precedent—Sentence passed must be manifestly inadequate—17 P. R. 1898. 20 W. R. 22; 10 S. 207.

247. High Court will not interfere to enhance sentence.—(1) Because owing to the negligence of the prosecution, the previous convictions of the accused were not proved and taken into account [21 P. R. 1902; 43 P. R. 1905] or because the evidence of the previous conviction was discovered only after the trial had been concluded and sentence passed [Rat 457; 461; See Rat 458; 19 P. R. 1905; 2 Weir 574; 21 W. R. 47.]

[Note.—But where the omission is due to the failure on the part of the Magistrate himself to perform the duty imposed on him, the High Court will direct a new trial.—36 P. R. 1884]

248. High Court may acquit the accused of one charge and enhance the punishment for the other.—Where the accused has been sentenced separately for two offences, the High Court can set aside conviction in respect of one charge and enhance the sentence in respect of the other.—2 Weir 577. See 2 Weir 35

249. High Court may act in whichever way the proceedings come up before it.—It is not necessary that Government should

The High Court has under its revisional powers, jurisdiction to enhance sentence, whenever the case comes to its notice.—13 B. R. 1185

250. Revisional powers widened by the Code of 1882.—The power of revision conferred upon the High Court under S. 439 of the Code of 1882 are larger than any exercised by it under the old Act [2 Weir 538]. The powers of the High Courts under Ss. 435 and 439 have been extended by the Code of 1882. They can call for records to satisfy themselves of the correctness and propriety of the proceedings. The infliction of an inadequate punishment is an impropriety which the jurisdiction in revision is intended to remedy.—16 B. 580

251. Sec. 439 Cr. P. C. only refers to legal sentences.—A sentence for a period already undergone is not a legal sentence. A High Court cannot therefore enhance a sentence which has already been undergone.—9 P. W. 1907 14 P. W. 1909 27 P. R. 1919 See 7 P. R. 1889 29 P. W. 1913. 24 W. R. 71 ('12) 1 M. N. 60

252. Power to enhance not limited by the status of the trial Court.—"The power of enhancement of sentence conferred upon the High Court by S. 439 Criminal Procedure Code is limited only by clause (1) of that section, which clause does not regard the difference in the powers of the trying Magistrate under S. 32 of the same Code, but lays down the general rule that in cases of sentences passed by Magistrates not empowered under S. 34, the limit of enhancement shall be the sentence that may be inflicted by a Presidency or first class Magistrate."—21 Cr. 537 (Pat); 9 S. 82

253. Change in the Law.—Under S. 240 (of the Code of 1872), the Appellate Court had power, "if it saw reason to do so, to enhance any punishment that has been awarded." This power was taken away from Courts of Appeal by S. 423 of the Code of 1882 which was re-enacted in the Code of 1894. The High Court, however, when 254. When the Sessions Judge should not refer.—Where the Sessions Judge is of opinion that the sentence on some of the appellants is inadequate, he may (1) if he is of opinion that the case ought to be tried by a Court of Session, order commitment under S. 423 (1) (b) [See 15 A 205], (2) may refer the matter to the High Court under S. 438 Cr P C, but when the Magistrate has given the full amount of imprisonment, which he could have given, an enhancement is barred by S. 439 (3) Cr. P. C.—13 A. J. 477.

255. Practice in Sindh.—The High Court will treat both the conviction and the sentence as open to revision and will not accept the conviction as conclusive when it is proposed to enhance the sentence beyond the limits of the power of the trying Magistrate.—9 S. 82. But See 32 B. 162.

Note.—“We do not think we should exercise our power of enhancement under S. 439 Cr. P. C in cases where there was no irregularity in the Magistrate's proceedings and where the Magistrate's order was a proper order on the materials before him”—9 S. 95 [43 P. R. 1905 Fz., 6 S. 101 Dist]

256. High Court will not interfere when sentence is substantial.—The enhancement of a sentence is a serious proceeding. The Court will not ordinarily interfere when substantial sentence has been passed by the trying Court and is always slow to interfere unless the sentence passed is manifestly inadequate.—10 S. 207

257. After expiry of the sentence.—The Court stance presents no insuperable difficulty—11 A 1889-29 P. W 1913 But See Note No 251 above.

258. Conviction in ignorance of previous conviction.—The fact of the prisoner being an old offender not having been brought to the notice of the Magistrate, is no reason why the High Court should order a retrial with a view simply to enable the Magistrate to correct his mistake and take steps for the enhancement of the punishment.—2 Weir 574.

259. Procedure.—When it is necessary to ask Government to apply for revision of sentence, on account of the insufficiency of punishment awarded, this should be done immediately after the punishment is notified. Superintendents of Police should report all strikingly inadequate punishments at once to the District Magistrate.—Bomb. Pol. Man. p. 88.

260. Notice.—When the proceedings are called for on appeal, solely with a view to enhance the sentence, notice to that effect should be given to the appellant and to the District Magistrate.—[Rat 179]

261. Application by private complainant, enhancement after a great lapse of time.—In 4 S. 86, the Sindh Court enhanced the sentence at the instance of a private complainant, and enhanced the sentence of a fine of Rs 400, to one of Rs 1000, remarking that it refrained from passing a substantive term of imprisonment in view of the lapse of over 3 years after the commission of the offence.

“(3) Mitigation of sentence.

262. High Court as a Court of revision has power to mitigate a sentence.—4 M. H. (1p) 36

263. Severity of sentence.—is not of itself a sufficient ground for interference.—1 M. H. 212

X. REFERENCE BY MAGISTRATE AND SESSIONS JUDGE.

264. District Magistrate.—The proper and only course for a District Magistrate in the case of improper discharge is to report the same for orders to the High Court. He cannot himself order a new trial.—2 C 105 1 C 252 6 C 647: 2 B 531

But he cannot do so in respect of proceedings of a Sessions court.—2 Weir 565 2 Weir 566: 23 M. J. 732

265. Sessions Judge.—A Sessions Judge has no power even in a fit case (case of improper discharge) to order a retrial. He ought to report the matter to the High Court for orders.—1 C L. 83-3 See Practice and Procedure

266. What is not a proper ground of reference.—A necessity of altering a conviction from one section to another for cognate offences, when the accused has not been prejudiced by such error.—9 C 847.

267. Order for bail.—The District Magistrate cannot interfere with an order for bail granted by a subordinate magistrate. If he considers the order wrong, he should refer the matter to the High Court.—22 B 519

XI. AMENDMENT CONSEQUENTIAL AND INCIDENTAL ORDERS.

268. The High Court in revision has powers of making any amendment or any incidental or consequential order.—27 A 115 36 C 41 6 L. R. 39 But See 5 C. J. 229

269. Order for costs.—cannot be made in revision in reference to a proceeding under S. 115 Cr. P. C.—(A. S. 227.

270. Illegal order under S. 250.—In setting aside such an order, High Court can direct re-payment of money paid as compensation under S. 547 Cr. P. C.—20 P. R. 1885

271. Order for bail.—High Court in revision may suspend proceedings at an interlocutory stage. It may also in such a case grant bail to the accused—20 W. R. 23

272. Permission to compound an offence.—See Note No. 48 above.

273. Deletion of objectionable passages in the Lower Court's judgment.—There is no express provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure empowering a High Court to direct a subordinate court to delete any passage in a judgment which has been duly signed and delivered—19 B. R. 912

[Note.—The two learned Judges Beaman and Heaton both refrained from expressing any definite opinion]

XII. ALLIED SECTIONS AND ANALOGOUS LAW.

274. Special jurisdiction under S. 437 should be exhausted before the general jurisdiction under S. 439 is resorted to.—32 M. 220 (F. B.) See 6 M. T. 157.

275. S. 622 Civ. P. C.—High Court can take action under S. 622 C. P. C. in an application for revision under S. 439 Cr. P. C. of an order passed by a Civil Court under S. 476 Cr. P. C. (04) A. N. 170 See 'Revision' under S. 476 infra

276. S. 15 of the High Court's Act.—The general power of Superintendence of the High Court under S. 15 of its Charter Act is not affected by the provision of S. 439 which limits interference to judicial acts only 8 C 580, 22 W R 78 See 19 C 127, 13 C L 275 2 N P 117

277. Sec. 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act.—An application to revise an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. of the Judge of a Provincial Small Cause Court lies under S. 25 of Act IX of 1857 and not under S. 439 of the Cr. P. C. High Court will interfere only when some substantial injustice has directly resulted from a material misapplication or misapprehension of law or from a material error of procedure 6 Bar T 144.

XIII. MISCELLANEOUS.

278. When the accused is dead.—Where a complainant applied to the High Court under Ss 435 and 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to revise an order of a first class Magistrate ordering payment of compensation to the accused, the High Court refused to pass any order where it appeared that the accused was dead and could not therefore be served with notice—Rat 634

279. Time limit.—It is inadvisable to take action in a case in which the term for appeal has not expired O. 2.

280. European British Subject.—High Court as a Court of Revision, has no jurisdiction over European British Subjects in criminal cases. 3 W. R. 64 death of the applicant except in so far as it relates to a sentence of fine. [8 P. R. 1919: See 24 P. R. 1904]

282. Review of an order of the High Court.—in a criminal proceeding is not allowed by the Code—2 Weir 573; 23 M. J. 371 14 C 42-10 B. 176 (F. B.); See Rat 791.

But it can do so if the order has not yet been sealed, 27 A. 92.

283. Right of alien enemy to move the High Court.—When an alien enemy resides in the country by the license of the King and under his protection, he stands on the same footing as an alien friend or as an ordinary subject so far as the right of maintaining actions is concerned.

He has therefore the right to apply in revision against the order of a Magistrate discharging the accused in a case in which he was the complainant. 35 M. J. 518. See Porter v. Frendenberg (15) 1 K. B. 857, Vollt v. Rotunda Hospital (14) 2 K. B. 1r 543 Princess of Thurn and Taxis v. Moffitt (15) 1 Ch. D. 58 Ree v. Vine Street Police Superintendent (16) 1 K. B. 268.

[Note.—The internment of the complainant after the filing of the criminal revision petitions does not necessarily stay the hands of the Court.—35 M. J. 515]

284. No power to set aside order under S. 562 Cr. P. C.—The High Court in revision acting under Ss 439 and 423 Cr. P. C. cannot set aside an order under S. 562 Cr. P. C. and of its own authority substitute for that order a sentence of whipping or of imprisonment—37 A. 31.

285. Power of interference under S. 12 of the Lower Burma Court Act. (VI of 1900).—by the Chief Court, the section having given the power to pass "such judgment, order or sentence as it thinks right," is wider than those conferred by Ss 423 and 439 Cr. P. C.—9 L. R. 60 (F. B.).

286. Effect of loss of record.—"The loss of a record after conviction is no ground for the acquittal of the accused, for the logical conclusion from such an argument would be that in the event of a wholesale destruction of records by fire or earthquake, all accused persons whose records had been lost and who sought relief in appeal or revision would be entitled to acquittal. There is no authority in law for such a proposition."—Per Mellist J. in 18 Cr. 737 (Pat)

440. No party has any right to be heard either personally or by pleader before any Court Optional with Court to hear parties. when exercising its powers of revision :

Provided that, the Court may, if it thinks fit, when exercising such powers, hear any party either personally or by pleader, and that nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect section 439, sub-section (2).

Notes.

1. S. 440 does not contemplate ex parte hearing in cases of revision of orders of discharge.—Sec. 437 does not compel the issue of notice to the accused. There is abundant authority however, that where a man has been discharged after full enquiry by a competent Court, a Revisional Court will exercise a proper discretion in allowing him an opportunity of showing cause, before directing the case against him to be reopened. No such ex parte hearing against an order of discharge is contemplated by S. 440 Cr. P. C., it being contrary to principles of common fairness—8 Bar. T. 133 : 11 C. N. 816.

[Note.—As a matter of strict law, the accused is not entitled to be heard by the District Magistrate before an order for further enquiry is made by the latter.—10 C. 268 : 15 C. 608 (F. B.).]

2. Scope of the rule.—The rule enacted by S. 440 is the general rule provided by the Legislature and it must be taken to be a legislative revision of the general principle that persons are entitled to be heard before any order affecting them to their prejudice can be made.—10 C. 208.
3. In reference proceedings.—In a reference under S. 296 (=435), a counsel is not entitled to appear under the Code—[1 B. 64]. A private prosecutor cannot be allowed to appear on a reference to the High Court under S. 434 Cr. P. C. (=S. 438). If he is heard at all, he can be heard only by the permission of the Court. [6 B. L. (appx) 46 : 5 B. L. (appx) 70].
4. Power to dispose of a rule without hearing counsel should be used with discretion.—The Court may, under S. 440 Criminal Procedure Code, determine the questions raised, without hearing counsel or pleader on either side, but where it has not done so, but merely disposed of the case in default of appearance, the Court has power to restore the case and hear and determine it. [10 C. J. 80] But in matters of importance, the High Court though it acts as a Court of Reference and revision, always hears counsel.—[19 C. 880].

5. S. 440 does not apply to application under S. 195 (8).—An application under S. 195 (8) ought not to be summarily rejected without giving the applicant a reasonable opportunity of being heard in support of the same S. 440 does not apply to such a case—12 C. N. 248 : See 31 C. 811.

6. Difference between the appellate and the revisional jurisdiction.—As has been held in 12 B. 377 "it is only in exceptional cases" of the proceedings [2 B. 564].

7. Cases in which High Court refused to hear counsel.—In 14 M. 303(364) the High Court declined to hear counsel who appeared to support an application to revise an order of acquittal. In 5 P. W. 1910 the District Magistrate having refused to appoint a legal practitioner to represent the Crown in revision, the Chief Court declined to hear him. See also 14 W. R. 51.

441. When the record of any proceeding of any Presidency Magistrate is called for by the Statement by Presidency Magistrate of grounds of his decision to be considered by High Court. High Court under section 435, the Magistrate may submit with the record a statement setting forth the grounds of his decision or order and any facts which he thinks material to the issue ; and the Court shall consider such statement before over-ruling or setting aside the said decision or order.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—Mere omission by a Magistrate to record his reasons, before referring a case under S. 202, for inquiry by the police, and for dismissing a complaint under S. 203, is an irregularity. But a statement filed under S. 441 Cr. P. C. supplies the omission. So after filing of such a statement, there is really no omission calling for the interference of the High Court.—5 M. T. 79.

2. The statement as against affidavits.—A statement submitted by a Presidency Magistrate under S. 441, must be regarded as a completion of the record and possesses a conclusive character as against affidavits—12 B. 377

442. When a case is revised under this Chapter by the High Court, it shall, in manner hereinbefore provided by section 425, certify its decision or order to the Court by which the finding, sentence or order revised was recorded or passed, and the Court or Magistrate to which the decision or order is so certified shall there upon make such orders as are conformable to the decision so certified; and, if necessary the record shall be amended in accordance therewith.

Notes.

1. Scope of the Section.—The provisions of the section do not enable a High Court to certify to itself. It is therefore clear that the High Court cannot revise the judgment and sentence passed by a single Judge as a Court of original criminal jurisdiction—4 P. R. 1809.
2. Procedure.—The result of every application for revision of a sentence under which the applicant is in confinement shall be notified, direct to the officer in charge of the jail in which the applicant is confined, by the Court from whose order the application for revision was preferred.—C. P. Cr. Cir. Pt II no. 47; Bom̄ B. Cir. pp 50-51

PART VIII.

SPECIAL PROCEEDINGS.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS AGAINST EUROPEANS AND AMERICANS.

GENERAL NOTES ON CHAPTER XXXIII.

1. Legislative History of the Chapter.

Although the old East India Company had power under the Charters of Charles II to make laws affecting British-born subjects, yet this power ceased in 1709 A. D. when its Charters were surrendered to Queen Anne. From that date down to the passing of the 3rd and 4th Will IV. c. 123 (with the exception of a limited power of legislating as regards the local limits of the Presidency town), no authority expressly granting power to the East India Company or the Indian Government to legislate for British-born subjects, can be found. With the exception of offences made punishable by the 53rd Geo III. c. 155 s. 105 by Justices of the Peace, the Recorder's Court had, by virtue of the 37th Geo III. c. 142 s. 10, exclusive criminal jurisdiction over British born subjects throughout the (Bombay) Presidency.—[7 B. H. 6] The jurisdiction of a Magistrate (also a Justice of the Peace) was governed and limited by 53rd Geo III. c. 155, s. 175 and Act VII. of 1853 [6 B. H. 14]. A Cantonment Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try a European British subject for an offence under S. 48 of the Police Act (Act XXIV of 1859) [5 M. H. (app) XXV]. It was held by Morgan and Seton-Karr JJ in 3 W. R. 64 that the High Court as a Court of Revision under S. 404 Cr. P. C. had no jurisdiction over European British subjects in criminal cases. The Criminal Procedure Code (Act XXV. of 1861) however, was held to be applicable to the trial of European British subjects.—[See 10 P. R. 1871 and Ss. 323, 326 and 349 of that Act.] The special provisions with regard to such trials however was for the first time clearly and elaborately incorporated in the Code of 1872 (Act X of 1872) vide Sections 72 to 84. It was held in 22 W. R. 54 that the provisions in the 'new' C. P. C. (Code of 1872) giving jurisdiction to Magistrates over European British Subjects do not come within the words in the 24 and 25 Vic. c. 47 s. 22 "affecting the provisions of any Act." "No Magistrate who is not a Justice of the Peace and also a European British Subject has jurisdiction to enquire into a complaint and try a charge under Act I of 1859, against a European British Subject [7 M. H. (app) xxxii, 4 M. H. (app) xxiii]. It is worthy of note that under the Code of 1872, an European or American not being an European British subject had an absolute right to be tried by a Jury. No such right is recognised by the present Code. (See S. 463).

2. Object of the Chapter.—(1) Chapter XXXIII lays down the special rights and privileges of European British Subjects. An European British Subject when tried by a District Magistrate, enjoys the following privileges.—Firstly, that the Magistrate's powers of punishment are restricted and, secondly, that the accused can claim trial by jury.—27 A. 397.

(2) Criminal proceedings against European British subjects are regulated by Chapter XXXIII Criminal Procedure Code, and provision is made in that Chapter for the tribunal before which a person answering that description can be tried and as to the sentences that may be passed. [37 C. 467]

3. Application of the Chapter.—This Chapter only bars an enquiry or trial by a Magistrate other than a Magistrate who is a Justice of the Peace etc.—[See S. 443] A Magistrate authorised to take cognizance of complaints can take cognizance of a complaint against an European British Subject and summon him. He may dismiss the complaint under S. 203 Cr. P. C. but he cannot try the case—[10 C. N. cel.]

4. Offences committed by European British Subjects in Indian foreign territory.—

A European British subject is liable to be tried in the High Court of Bombay for an offence against the Penal Code committed in the territories of a Native prince in alliance with Government—[8 B. H. 92] Similarly although the Civil and Military station of Bangalore is not British territory, but a part of the Mysore state, a European British subject charged with offences punishable under the Penal Code, is subject to the jurisdiction of the Madras High Court [2 M. H. 444: 26 M. 607: 12 M. 39: 5 M. 33]. Under Statute 28 and 29 Vic. c. 15 and Notification No. 178 J of 23rd Sept. 1874, the High Court of Bombay has jurisdiction to decide whether an accused person, an European British Subject residing at the Residency Buzars, Hyderabad, is an European British subject and also to decide whether the accused has waived his privilege to be dealt with as such and what is the legal effect of such waiver, if any. [5 B. R. 569: 9 B. 333]

5. Definition of "European."—The word "European" in S. 451 means a person born in Europe—[16 A. 88]

6. "European" as defined by the European Vagrancy Act (IX of 1874).—In this Act "Person of European extraction" includes—

(a) Persons born in Europe, America, the West Indies, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Natal or the Cape Colony; (b) the sons and grandsons of such persons; but does not include persons commonly called Eurasians or East Indians. [S. 3]

7. Proof of Nationality.—(1) Where a prisoner pleaded that he was a British-born subject and that he ought therefore to be tried before the High Court, and where the evidence showed that the prisoner was the legitimate grandson of a person said to have been a serjeant in the service of the King or of the East India Company and there was no sufficient evidence to establish a valid marriage between that grandfather and a native Christian woman through whom he traced his descent and there were also doubts about the nationality of the said grandfather, held that there was no evidence to show that the prisoner was a British born subject.—2 Weir 11—6 M. H. 7. See 12 B. 361.

(2) The mere fact that the accused, the son of an Indian subject of His Majesty was born at Constantinople, does not make him an "European British Subject," when it is not proved that the accused or his father or his grandfather was domiciled in the United Kingdom or in any of the European, American or Australian colonies or possessions of His Majesty—6 P. R. 1912

8. Duty of Magistrates.—Where a plea of being a European British Subject is raised by the accused, the Magistrate is bound to enquire into and determine that plea—[3 N. P. 125: 4 A. 141] Whether or not an accused is a European British Subject is a matter of fact to be determined judicially by the Court, on the evidence, in the event of the prisoner raising that question—[10 W. R. G: See 6 W. R. 13] A Magistrate is not bound to ask an accused person categorically whether he claims his right as a European British Subject nor to explain to him his right as such—[5 P. R. 1885]. But as a matter of practice, where either the name or the personal accused is a European British Subject, he must be informed of his right under the law to be tried according to the procedure laid down for the trial of European British subjects. An omission to do so vitiates the trial—[18. C. N. 353]

9. Condition precedent to special proceedings under Chapter XXXIII.—If the accused wishes to avail himself of the provisions of this Chapter, he is bound to make a claim and to establish it. [12 B. 561: 6 P. R. 1912] Failure to make a claim amounts to a relinquishment of the alleged right to be dealt with as an European or an European British Subject. [6 P. R. 1912]

10. The law as to waiver of the special rights.—If an European British Subject does not claim to be dealt with as such before the Magistrate before whom he is tried or committed, he shall be deemed to have waived his privilege as such European British Subject [6 C. 83: 6 P. R. 1912: See 12 B. 561: 17 P. R. 1878: 16 M. 308: 7 N. 93] In that case he will lose all the benefit of the special procedure in Chapter XXXIII [16 M. 308: 12 B. 561: 27 A. 397: 5 P. R. 1885]. But a waiver is not irrevocable. If the withdrawal of the waiver is made promptly, i. e. shortly after it has been made, and if substantially nothing has been done in the interval on the abandonment of the privilege, the withdrawal of the waiver should be allowed [1 P. R. 1908: 24 A. 511]. See also Note No. 4 under S. 443 infra

11. Chapter XXXIII in relation to Miscellaneous Proceedings.—The expression "enquire into and try any charge" in S. 443 of the Code of Criminal Procedure applies to proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C. [36 C. 163]. The provisions of S. 451 however do not apply to the proceedings under Chapter VIII (S. 105) as they are limited to trials only. [4 Bar T. 84] A Magistrate proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C. against a European British Subject has no power to commit him to the Court of Sessions. [1 L. B. 275]

12. Upper Burma.—The provisions of S. 8 (1) (i) and (b) of the Lower Burma Courts Act 1900 do not mean that all commitments that are made of European British Subjects must be made to the Chief Court of Lower Burma, but that where under the Cr. P. Code, a commitment is made to a High Court, it is to be made to the Chief Court of Lower Burma. The power to try the case or to commit to a Sessions Court is not taken away from Magistrates. The fact that an European British Subject claims in Upper Burma to be tried by jury does not in itself form a ground for commitment to the Chief Court. The commitment in the case either should not have been made at all or should have been made to a Court of Sessions S 417 (1).—1 L B. 158.

13. Sindh.—The definition in S. 4 must be read with reference to the "special proceedings" against European British Subjects contemplated by Chapter XXXIII and not with reference to proceedings generally against Europeans, including proceedings in which they waive their rights under that Chapter. If therefore in any particular case, the special rules contained in Chapter XXXIII ceases to have any application, the definition of "High Court" in S. 4 (j) ceases to have any application to such a case. The definition in the latter part of S 4 (j) then prevails; and the case falls within the category of "other cases" to which that part of the definition applies. If the case is one tried in the Province of Sind, the High Court, in reference to the proceedings in it, would be the Sadar Court in Sind—12 B 561.
14. Nagpur.—The jurisdiction of the Judicial Commissioners' Court at Nagpur, not being a High Court within S 4 (j) Criminal Procedure Code, is not ousted, unless and until, the accused have definitely claimed to be tried as European British Subjects, and that Court can exercise its powers of revision in the case.—7 N. 93.

15. Special exceptions provided in the Code.—"Nothing in Section 413 or S. 411 shall be deemed to apply to proceedings under this Section" (S. 480).—See sub cl (2) of S 450 Cr. P. C. 16. Vagrants not entitled to special privileges.—"Any European British Subject who, upon the summary enquiry mentioned in S 5, has been determined to be a vagrant or who has been convicted under S 22 or S. 23, shall so long as he remains in India, be subject, beyond the limits of the said towns, to the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure [other than those contained in Chapter VIII of the same Code] applicable to an European not being a British Subject"—S 30 of the European Vagrancy Act No IX of 1874

2. Jurisdiction of First class European Magistrates over European British subjects.—"In inviting the attention of His Honour the Lieutenant Governor to the provisions of Act III. of 1884 amending the Code of Criminal Procedure 1852, I am directed to request that it may be clearly pointed out to all District Magistrates, that the jurisdiction over European British subjects conferred by Ss 413 and 416 of the Code upon Magistrates of the first-class, who are themselves Justices of the Peace and European British Subjects, has in no respect been taken away by the amending Act. It is obviously desirable that, as far as possible, charges of the less heinous offences brought against European British Subjects should be disposed of under these sections. It is believed that in most districts, the District Magistrate will have little difficulty in arranging that this should be done, and I am to request that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor will issue such orders as His Honour may think advisable with this view."—Letter from Government of India No 6315 of 1884 to the Punjab Government.
3. Justice of the Peace who is not a Euro- pean British Subject.—A Magistrate who is a Justice of the Peace, but not a European British Subject has no jurisdiction, according to this section, to try a European British subject, although the offence is one under a special law and he may have jurisdiction under the special procedure prescribed in that special law—7 M II (appx) xxxii

C. was instituted against a European British subject by a Magistrate not competent to try a European British Subject, on application to the High Court the proceeding was directed to be transferred to the file of a Magistrate competent to try him under S. 443 Cr. P. C.—[13 C. N. 151]

444. No Judge presiding in a Court of Session, except the Sessions Judge, shall exercise jurisdiction over an European British subject unless he himself is an European British subject; and, if he is an Assistant Sessions Judge, unless he has held the office of Assistant Sessions Judge for at least three years and has been specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government

445. Nothing in section 443 or section 444 shall prevent any Magistrate from taking cognizance of an offence committed by any European British subject in any case in which he could take cognizance of a like offence if committed by another person :

Provided that, if he issues any process for the purpose of compelling the appearance of an European British subject accused of an offence, such process shall be made returnable before a Magistrate having jurisdiction to inquire into or try the case.

446. Note.

1. Resident's Court at Aden not controlled by S. 449 Cr. P. C.—The Resident at Aden, to whose Court a case has been committed under S. 447 cannot transfer it to the High Court of Bombay under S. 449 of the Code, on the ground that the accused, being a European British subject, cannot be adequately punished by him. The powers of the Court of Sessions conferred upon the Resident by S. 20 of the Aden Courts Act (Bomb Act II of 1864) are not merely such as are defined in the Cr. P. C. but as are provided by the Act itself, and S. 449 of the Cr. P. C. cannot affect those provisions.—29 B. 575.

450. (1) In trials of European British subjects before a High Court or Court of Session, if Jury or assessors before High Court before the first juror is called and accepted, or the first assessor or Court of Session. is appointed, as the case may be, any such subject requires to be tried by a mixed jury, the trial shall be by a jury of which not less than half the number shall be Europeans or Americans or both Europeans and Americans

(2) When any such trial before a Court of Session would in the ordinary course be with the aid of assessors, the European British subject accused, or, where there are several European British subjects, accused, all of them jointly, may, instead of claiming to be tried by a mixed jury under sub-section (1), require that not less than half the number of the assessors shall be Europeans or Americans or both Europeans and Americans

451. (1) In trials of European British subjects before a District Magistrate for any offence, Right of European British subject to any such subject may, in a summons-case before he is heard in his claim jury before District Magistrate. defence under section 244, or in a warrant-case before he enters on his defence under section 256, claim that the trial shall be by a jury composed in manner prescribed by section 450

(2) If a claim is made under sub-section (1) in a summons-case at the time when the Magistrate proceeds under section 244 to hear the accused, or in a warrant-case at the time when the Magistrate calls upon the accused under section 256 to enter upon the defence, the Magistrate shall forthwith issue the necessary orders for the trial by a jury as aforesaid.

(3) If such a claim is made at an earlier stage of the proceedings, the Magistrate shall issue such orders whenever it appears to him from the evidence recorded that there will be a sufficient case to go before a jury.

(4) In every such case the Magistrate shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 242, before issuing any orders as aforesaid, frame a formal charge.

(5) The provisions of sections 211, 216, 217, 219 and 220 shall, so far as may be, apply for the purpose of securing the attendance of the complainant, the accused and the witnesses at every trial to be held under this section.

(6) The provisions of this Code relating to the procedure in a trial by jury before a Court of Session shall, as nearly as may be, apply to every trial under this section as if the District Magistrate were a Sessions Judge and the accused has been committed to this Court for trial.

(7) All Courts may construe any of the provisions referred to in sub-section (5) or sub-section (6), in so far as they are made applicable by those sub-sections, with such verbal alterations not affecting the substance as may be necessary or proper to adapt the same to the matter before them.

(8) Nothing in this section shall affect the power of the Magistrate to commit an accused person for trial under section 347 or section 447.

(9) If an accused person claims to be tried by jury under this section and in the opinion of the District Magistrate there is reason to believe that a jury composed in manner prescribed by section 450 cannot be constituted for the trial before himself, or cannot be so constituted without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which under the circumstances of the case would be unreasonable, he may, instead of referring the case to a Sessions Judge or High Court under this section, transfer the case for trial to such Judge as the High Court may from time to time by the Local Government, or by special order, direct.

(10) When a case is transferred under this section to a Sessions Judge or District Magistrate, he shall with all convenient speed try it with the same powers (including the power of commitment) and according to the same procedure as if he were a District Magistrate acting under this section.

Notes.

S. 151=S. 451 A and S. 451 B (1892)

1. Meaning of "Europeans."—The word "Europeans" in S. 451 of the Code of Criminal Procedure means persons born in Europe.—16 A. 88
2. Provisions of the Section imperative.—When proceedings have reached the stage set forth in S. 451 Cr. P. C. : e when a claim for jury has been duly made, the District Magistrate is bound forthwith to proceed in the manner provided by the section. He cannot deprive the accused of his right to a trial by jury by transferring the case to another Court.—2 P. R. 1896
3. Right to claim mixed jury is absolute.—If a European British subject, before the first mixed jury is absolute and is not subject to any qualification.—11 P. R. 1896

4. Effect of mixed jury.—If a European British subject, before the first case be by jury, he cannot claim to be tried with the aid of a mixed set of assessors. All that he can claim is to be tried by a mixed jury.—11 P. R. 1896

5. Scope of subs (9).—The effect of cl. G, S. 451 A, Cr. P. C. is that the District Magistrate has the same powers as the Sessions Judge has under S. 347 Cr. P. C. of referring cases to the High Court when he disagrees with the verdict of a jury.—9 A. 420 : Sec 29 C. 124.

6. Claim to be tried by jury may be made at any time within the period specified.—Dutch sub-jury, and called for further cross examination, he asked that he might be tried by jury, held that the mere fact that the accused before the trial had begun, stated that he did not wish for a jury, did not prevent him from altering his mind afterwards and claiming a jury within the time allowed by S. 451 (1).—21 A. 511 : 1 P. R. 1908
7. Disobedience of Government Notification makes the trial a nullity.—Where the Local Government has issued a notification, that trial is a nullity.—26 A. 211

8. Magistrate's powers not affected by waiver.—"I am to draw your attention to the fact that nothing in S. 451 A—the new section declaring the right of European British Subjects to claim a jury before the District Magistrate—affects the power of the Magistrate to dispose of a case as at present, should the prisoner not demand jury, or in any case to commit an accused person for trial under S 347 or S 417 of the Code. If the Magistrate at any stage of the proceedings thinks the case to be one for the Sessions Judge or High Court, he should stay further proceedings before himself and commit the accused for trial. Letter no 6318 dated 27-2-'84 from Secretary Govt. of Ind. Home Dept. to Secy to the Government of the Punjab.

9. S. 451 does not apply to proceedings under S. 108 Cr. P. C.—S 451 of the Crim Pro Code applies only to trials, and an enquiry under S 108 (b) is not a trial. A Magistrate, who is a European British subject and a Justice of the Peace, is competent to hold an enquiry under S. 108 against a European British subject. —4 Bur T. 84.

452. In any case in which an European British subject is accused jointly with a person not being an European British subject, and such European British subject is committed for trial before a High Court or Court of Session, such subject and person may be tried together, and the procedure on the trial shall be the same as it would have been had the European British subject been tried separately :

Provided that, if the European British subject requires under section 450 to be tried by a mixed jury or by a mixed set of assessors, and the person not being an European British subject requires that he shall be tried separately, the latter person shall be tried separately in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XXIII,

Notes.

- 1. Person not jointly charged cannot claim a Jury.—A prisoner not being a European British Subject, who is not charged jointly with a European British Subject, is not entitled, under the provisions of the High Court's Criminal Procedure, (Act X of 1875) to be tried by a jury the majority of which shall not be Europeans or Americans or both, this right only belongs to a European British Subject —1 B 232
- 2. Appeal.—A British Subject but not a European British Subject, jointly tried with a European

British Subject, is not entitled under S 452, to appeal to the High Court on a conviction by the District Magistrate, the right of appeal to the High Court being given only to European British Subjects —14 B 160

- 3. Where a European British Subject relinquishes his claim—to be tried under Chapter XXXIII, his co-accused (not European British Subjects) cannot claim any right under this section —36 C 467

453. (1) When any person claims to be dealt with as an European British subject he shall state the grounds of such claim to the Magistrate before whom he is brought for the purpose of the inquiry or trial, and such Magistrate shall inquire into the truth of such statement, and allow the person making it a reasonable time within which to prove that it is true, and shall then decide whether he is or is not an European British subject and shall deal with him accordingly. If any such person is convicted by such Magistrate and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Magistrate's said decision was wrong shall lie upon him

(2) When any such person is committed by the Magistrate for trial before the Court of Session, and such person before such Court claims to be dealt with as an European British subject, such Court shall, after such further inquiry, if any, as it thinks fit, decide whether he is or is not an European British subject and shall deal with him accordingly. If he is convicted by such Court and appeals from such conviction, the burden of proving that the Court's said decision was wrong shall lie upon him.

(3) When the Court before which any person is tried, decides that he is not an European British subject, such decision shall form a ground of appeal from the sentence or order passed in such trial.

Notes.

1. Magistrate bound to decide the question whether the accused is a European British Subject or not.—Where a Magistrate tried an accused person as being other than a European British Subject, notwithstanding the fact that the accused raised the plea, and convicted him without deciding the question, and sentenced him to a punishment which, if the accused was a European British Subject, the Magistrate had no right to award, the High Court remanded the case to the Magistrate in order that he might decide in the manner prescribed by S. 83 (= S 453), whether the accused was or was not a European British Subject.—A. 141.
2. Opportunity to plead.—An accused person ought to have an opportunity of pleading that he is a European British Subject. But the plea must be raised and decided before the trial has been completed, for after the completion of the trial, the Court is functus officio—[5 W. R. 53]

3. Proof of European Extraction.—See Note No 7, under "General notes on Chapter XXXIII" Supra

4. Proceduro when claim is made.—For this purpose the accused should produce the evidence of a credible person who knows the person make such plea.—C. H. C. Cr. 5 of 6-5-61

454. (1) If an European British subject does not claim to be dealt with as such by the Magistrate before whom he is tried or by whom he is committed, or if, when such claim has been made before, and disallowed by, the committing Magistrate, it is not again made before the Court to which such subject is committed, he shall be held to have relinquished his right to be dealt with as such European British subject and shall not assert it in any subsequent stage of the same case.

(2) Unless the Magistrate has reason to believe that any person brought before him is not an European British subject, the Magistrate shall ask such person whether he is such a subject or not.

Notes.

1. Effect of omission to ask the accused—subs (2).—In 18 C. N. 385, it was held by Imam and Chapman J J that an omission to inform the accused, a European British Subject, of his right under the law to be tried according to the procedure laid down in Chapter XXXIII vitiated the trial. On the other hand, Ayling and Tybols J J held in 16 Cr. 616 (M.) that the omission to ask the accused if he were a European British Subject under S. 454 (2) Cr. P. C. is an error. Note No. 2 under S 456 Supra.
2.

3. Application for revision is not a 'subsequent stage.'—An application for revision is not a subsequent stage of the same case, within the meaning of S 454 Cr. P. C. It is a totally independent matter giving a right of appeal to a superior court independently of any proceedings necessarily subsequent to or consequent upon the hearing of the original case. The Allahabad High Court has power as a Court of Revision, to revise an order under S. 250 Cr. P. C. made against a complainant who is a European British Subject (irrespective of whether he has made a claim to be dealt with as such) by the City Magistrate of Lucknow 21 Cr. 767 (A)

455. Where a person who is not an European British subject, is dealt with as such under this Chapter and does not object, the enquiry, commitment, trial or sentence (as the case may be) shall not, by reason of such dealing, be invalid.

Trial under this Chapter of person not an European British subject.

Chapter and does not object, the enquiry, commitment, trial or sentence (as the case may be) shall not, by reason of such dealing, be invalid.

456. When any European British subject is unlawfully detained in custody by any person, such European British subject or any person on his behalf may apply to the High Court which would have jurisdiction over such European British subject in respect of any offence committed by him at the place where he is detained or to which he would be entitled to appeal from any conviction for any such offence, for an order directing the person detaining him to bring him before the High Court to abide such further order as it may pass.

Notes.

1. S. 456 applies to European British Subjects only.—European British Subjects alone are entitled to apply under this section, when they are detained in custody and such detention is illegal.—1 A 1 (F.B.) For others an application would be under S 491 infra

[Note.—The order which may be issued by the High Court under this section corresponds to the common law writ of Habeas Corpus]

2. Appeal against order of refusal by single Judge.—An application under S 456 Cr P C or S 491 Cr P C for release from an alleged illegal custody may be made to a single Judge exercising ordinary original Criminal jurisdiction of the High Court. An order refusing such an application, not being an order made in any Criminal trial is a 'judgment' within the meaning of cl 15 of the Letters Patent and is therefore appealable to the High Court.—29 C 286 (F. B.)

3. Original and appellate criminal jurisdiction is exercised by the High Courts at Madras and Bombay and for the North-Western Provinces over European British subjects in outlying provinces and places in British India as follows —

Original and appellate jurisdiction is also exercised by the High Courts at Fort William, Madras and Bombay and for the North-Western Provinces over European British subjects, being Christians, resident in certain Native States, territories and chiefships—see Notification No. 178-J, dated 23rd September 1874, Gazette of India, 1874, Pt I, p. 485 No 215 J, dated 18th December 1874, Gazette of India 1874, Pt I, p. 612, No 119-J and No 120-J, dated 9th August 1875, Gazette of India, 1875, Pt I, p. 401.

457. The High Court, if it thinks fit, may, before issuing such order, inquire, on affidavit or otherwise, into the grounds on which it is applied for and grant or refuse such application; or it may issue the order in the first instance, and when the person applying for it is brought before it, it may make such further order in the case as it thinks fit, after such inquiry (if any) as it thinks necessary

458. The High Court may issue such orders throughout the territories within the local limits of Territories throughout which its appellate criminal jurisdiction, and such other territories as the Court may issue such orders, Governor General in Council may direct.

Notes.

- 1. Local Jurisdiction of High Courts over European British Subjects.—See Government of India (Home Department) Notification No. 1203 dated 23rd September 1874
- 2. Jurisdiction of Bombay High Court over the Nizam's Dominions.—The Criminal Procedure Code applies to the Court of the Judicial Superintendent of Railways in His Highness the Nizam's Dominions held at Secunderabad. The Court is subordinate to the High Court of Bombay in all Criminal matters relating to European British Subjects, and the High Court must deal with such cases as if they were cases arising in British India.—Per Sergeant C. J. [9 B. 288 (F.B.); See 9 B. 333]. By Notification No. 178 J of 23rd September 1874, the High Court of Bombay has jurisdiction to decide whether an accused residing at the Residency Bazaars,

Hyderabad, is a European British Subject [5 B B 868] But neither the Criminal Procedure Code nor any other law in force in British India, confers on the High Court of Bombay an appellate Criminal jurisdiction over persons, not European British Subjects, convicted in the territories of the Nizam [14 B. 160]

- 3. Jurisdiction of Madras High Court over Mysore.—Inasmuch as the High Court of Madras has been duly constituted a Court of Original Criminal jurisdiction to take cognizance of offences committed by European British Subjects (being Christians), it may be that in the absence of any special direction, a commitment to the High Court of such person charged with an offence not punishable with death or transportation for life, committed in Mysore Province, would be a good commitment.—5 M. 39

459. (1) Unless there is something repugnant in the context, all enactments heretofore or hereafter made by the Governor General in Council, which confer Application of Acts conferring jurisdiction on Magistrates or Courts of Session, on Magistrates or on the Court of Session, jurisdiction over offences, shall be deemed to apply to European British subjects, although such persons are not expressly referred to therein.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any Court to exceed the limits prescribed by this Chapter as to the amount of punishment which it may inflict on an European British subject or to confer jurisdiction on any Magistrate or any Judge presiding in a Court of Session, not being a Justice of the Peace.

460. In every case triable by jury or with the aid of assessors, in which an European (not being an European British subject) or an American is the accused person, or one of the accused persons, not less than half the number of jurors or assessors, shall, if practicable, and if such European or American so claims, be Europeans or Americans.

461. Whenever an European or American is charged before the Court of Session jointly with a person not an European or American and in compliance with a claim made under section 460 is tried by a jury or with the aid of a set of assessors, of which at least one-half consists of Europeans and Americans, the latter person shall, if he so claims, be tried separately.

462. (1) When a trial is to be held before the Court of Session in which the accused person, or one of the accused persons, is entitled to be tried by a jury under section 450, 451 or 460, constituted under the provisions of section 450 or section 460, or before the Court of a District Magistrate or Sessions Judge proceeding under section 451, the Court shall, three days at least before the day fixed for holding such trial, cause to be summoned, in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, as many European and American jurors as are required for the trial.

(2) The Court shall also, at the same time, in like manner, cause to be summoned the same number of other persons named in the revised list unless such number of such other persons has been already summoned for trials by jury at that session.

(3) From the whole number of persons returned the jurors who are to constitute the jury shall be chosen by lot in the manner prescribed in section 276, until a jury containing the proper number of Europeans or Americans, or a number approaching thereto as nearly as practicable, has been obtained.

Provided that, in any case in which the proper number of Europeans and Americans cannot otherwise be obtained, the Court may, in its discretion for the purpose of constituting the jury, summon any person excluded from the list on the ground of his being exempted under section 320.

463. Criminal proceedings against European British subjects Europeans not being European British subjects, and Americans before the Court of Session and against European British subjects, etc High Court, shall, except as otherwise expressly provided, be conducted according to the provisions of this Code.

LUNATICS

464. (1) When a Magistrate holding an inquiry or a trial has reason to believe that the accused is of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate shall inquire into the fact of such unsoundness, and shall cause such person to be examined by the Civil Surgeon of the district or such other medical officer as the Local Government directs, and thereupon shall examine such Surgeon or other officer as a witness, and shall reduce the examination to writing.

(2) If such Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence, he shall postpone further proceedings in the case.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 464 of the said Code—

(i) After sub section (1) the following sub section shall be inserted, namely —

"(1a) Pending such examination and inquiry, the Magistrate may deal with the accused in accordance with the provisions of section 466"

(ii) In sub-section (2), after the word "he" the words "shall record a finding to that effect and" shall be inserted.

Notes.

1. Magistrate cannot acquit the accused.

—It is not the business of the Magistrate to determine under this Section whether the accused was insane at the time of committing the offence. He has to find whether the accused is of unsound mind at the time the enquiry or the trial is being held. Once he comes to the latter conclusion, he must hold his hands and postpone further proceedings. He cannot proceed to try and acquit the accused, but must pass orders under Ss 161 and 406 Cr P C (00) A N. 47 (82) A N. 106; 3 W. R. 57; 3 W. R. 70; 6 W. R. 54; 9 W. R. 23; 10 W. R. 37 (92-96) L B 150] "Where the Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind and therefore incapable of making his defence, he cannot legally acquit him. He is bound to postpone further proceedings in the case and either release him on bail or report the case to the Government" [2 Weir 581. See 1 W. R. 11; 11 M. T. 24].

2. Magistrate cannot act on his own responsibility.—A Magistrate cannot consign a lunatic to an asylum or a jail on his own mere unprofessional opinion. He must have before him the deliberate statements of a medical officer reduced to writing.—1 Bur 87

3. Mere written certificate of medical officer not sufficient.—A mere written certificate of a medical officer that a prisoner is of unsound mind, and incapable of making his defence, is not sufficient evidence of the prisoner's insanity. The medical officer should be called as a witness and be personally and carefully examined.—9 W. R. 23; 2 Weir 580. See 1 S. 53; 2 Weir 582

4. Procedure where medical opinion is not decisive.—Where the evidence of the Medical officer cannot be considered as decisive on the

5. When the enquiry is to be made.—Where a charge of an offence to which Ch. XVIII Cr. P. C. relates, is made before a Magistrate he ought in the first place to make an enquiry into the truth of the charge; it is only when he is satisfied after such enquiry that there is prima facie case against the accused, that he can make an enquiry prescribed by S. 404 Cr. P. C. into the question of the unsoundness of the mind of the accused.—11 P. R. 1891

6. Object of S. 484 Cr. P. C.—The provision of S. 484 Cr. P. C. certainly contains as sound sense as appears to be sound law, for the Legislature can never have intended that a person should be liable to be treated as a lunatic by the executive Government on the report of a criminal court after a summary inquiry into the state of his mind alone, merely because some body has chosen to make a charge against him, possibly a groundless charge before a Magistrate.—Per Plowden, in 11 P. R. 1891

7. Distinction between unusual conduct and insanity.—Where the evidence of a pleader of insanity consisted of (a) a Civil Surgeon's evidence that the prisoner was a person of weak intellect (b) the fact that the accused's conduct from sometime before the trial had been unusual and (c) the fact that the prisoner's father was insane, held, that these facts taken together did not justify the conclusion that the accused was a person of unsound mind.—See Rat 10.

8. The test.—If on examination, an accused person appears to be insane and unable to understand questions and to return intelligible replies, the Magistrate should not proceed under Ss 464 and 466 Cr. P. C. and not under S. 341 Supra. [Rat 632]

9. Postponement should be sine die.—The postponement contemplated by this section is to be sine die, and as postponement is caused by circumstances over which the Court has no control, cases postponed under this section may be excluded in preparing the annual statement of the average duration of cases in the Criminal Court.—Oudh No. 70 of 1866

10. Medical officer to whom reference is to be made.

Bombay City.—The Police Surgeon.—See Bombay Gaz 1877 p. 339.

Madras City.—The officer in medical charge of the Penitentiary [Pt. St. G Gaz, 20th August 1878, Pt. I, p. 474]

465. (1) If any person committed for trial before a Court of Session or a High Court appears before Court of Session or High Court incapable of making his defence, the jury or the Court with the aid of assessors, shall, in the first instance, try the fact of such unsoundness and incapacity, and if satisfied of the fact, shall pass judgment accordingly, and thereupon the trial shall be postponed.

(2) The trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind and incapacity of the accused shall be deemed to be part of his trial before the Court.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 465 of the said Code, for the words "and if satisfied of the fact, shall pass judgment accordingly and thereupon the trial shall be postponed," the following words shall be substituted, namely—

"and if the jury or Court is satisfied of the fact, the Judge shall record a finding to that effect, and shall postpone further proceedings in the case and the jury, if any, shall be discharged"

Notes.

1. The issue as to unsoundness of mind should be tried first.—Having regard to the provisions of S. 425 of the Code of 1872 (—S. 163) where an accused person at his trial appears to the Sessions Judge to be of unsound mind, the fact of such unsoundness must be tried by the jury and not by the Sessions Judge personally—[10 B. L. (ap) 10 See 13 B. L. (ap) 20: 1 B. II 33] The issue is a preliminary issue and must first be submitted to the jury. [19 W. R. 45 10 W. R. 37 ('82) A. N. 106] Where a prisoner appears to be of unsound mind, the Sessions Court should enquire into the fact of unsoundness before calling on him to stand his trial [(05) A. N. 2] A Sessions Judge has no power to stay proceedings and to direct an enquiry into the state of an accused person's mind, because it appears to him to be "problematic" whether the accused is capable of making a defence. In such cases, the proper procedure to be followed is provided for in S. 465 [2 Weir 137 See 3 W. R. 57]

2. Doubtful cases.—Where a Sessions Judge had expressed the opinion that "the accused without being actually insane, so as not to be aware of what he was doing, appeared to be decidedly a man of weak intellect," the Chief Court on appeal, remanded the case for an enquiry under this section before retrial on the charge of murder—54 P. R. 1905 See 2 W. R. 63

3. In cases tried with the aid of assessors. Where it is doubtful as to whether the accused is or is not of unsound mind, the fact whether at the time when he pleads, the accused is capable of making his defence, should first be tried with the aid of assessors. If as the result of such trial, the Court is satisfied that the accused is capable of making his defence, the trial shall proceed upon the charge on which the accused stands committed [15 A. J. 239: (05) A. N. 2 1 B. II. 33 19 W. R. 26]

4. Scope of subs (2).—"Subs 2 of S. 465, provides that the trial of the fact of the unsoundness of mind and incapacity of the accused shall accused a guilt were regarded by the Legislature as one trial. We think that the sub-section was merely an enabling enactment giving the Court, if any, which should subsequently try the accused, power to take into consideration the earlier proceedings as if they were part of the record in the trial without the necessity of formal proof. It was contended however, that subsection (2) makes it necessary to regard the preliminary enquiry and the subsequent trial as one for all purposes, with the consequence that the personnel of the Court must remain throughout as originally constituted. We are unable to accept the view."—Per Dawson Miller C. J. and Chapman and Atkinson J. J. in 3 Pat J. 291 (F. B.)

5. Omission to decide the issue vitiates the trial.—"We notice that counsel who represented the accused at the Sessions trial . . . invited the attention of the Court to the fact that the accused seemed to be incapable of making a proper defence, at any rate to this extent that the learned counsel was unable to obtain any instructions from him. Under these circumstances

we are of opinion that the provisions of S. 465 accused person, as he stood before him, was of unsound mind and consequently incapable of making his defence . . . In the absence of a clear finding on this point, we are of opinion that the entire proceedings in the Sessions Court are vitiated and ought to be set aside"—Piggott and Dalal J. J. in 1 U. P. 174 (A.) = 21 Cr. 83

Test of Insanity.

6. (1) The presumption in law is that every person at the age of discretion is sane, unless the contrary is proved. [See Mayne's Criminal Law. 3rd Edition para 192 R. v. Oxford 4 St. Tr. (N. S.) 497. R. v. Stokes 3 C. and K. 185. 20 W. R. 70: 1 W. R. 19 (01) A. N. 132: Rat 172 6 M. J. 95] The test of insanity at the time of the commission of the offence is, whether the prisoner knew at the time that he was doing wrong. [24 W. R. 5: 12 M. 459 10 B. 512]

7. (2) Absence of Motive.—Although the absence of all motive for a crime when corroborated by independent evidence of the prisoner's previous insanity is not without weight [1 W. R. 19] it is not per se sufficient as a proof of unsoundness of mind. The remark of Baron Rolfe in R. v. Stokes 3 C. and K. 185 that it is dangerous ground to take to say that a man must be insane because the man failed to discern the motives for his act" should be borne in mind. —[See Rat 818: 34 C. 686 10 C. N. 725: See also 7 N. 185: 14 Cox C. C. 363 1 Hale 32]

8. (3) Impairment of cognitive faculties of the mind.—It is only unsoundness of mind, which materially impairs the cognitive faculties of the mind, that can form a ground of exemption from criminal responsibility, the nature and extent of the unsoundness of mind required being such as would make the offender incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he is doing what is wrong or contrary to law—41 P. L. 1809: 23 C. 604. See 3 W. R. 9

Note.—Persons who are in fact insane, whether they have become so from persistent indulgence in intoxicating drugs, or from brain disease, must be judged by the ordinary rules of law affecting insane persons. (06) A. N. 181: 29 C. 463: 14 B. 364

9. (4) Sudden insane impulses.—When the prisoner is proved merely to be subject to insane impulses notwithstanding that his cognitive faculties, so far as they could be judged from his acts and words, are left unimpaired, he is not entitled to the benefit of S. 84 I. P. C.—23 C. 694: 22 C. 117 10 B. 512 12 M. 459: See also 14 B. 364: 17 C. P. 113: 1 W. R. Cr. R. 1 1 S. 97.

10. (5) Mental delusions.—Partial delusions or the mere existence of mental disease does not necessarily exempt a person from criminal responsibility though mental weakness caused by disease may be an extenuating circumstance—[Rat 221 See 1 W. R. 1: 7 W. R. 42: 7 W. R. 61;

8 W. R. Cr (Let) 19; 8 P. R. 1889; 12 P. R. 1887] The general rule has thus been laid down in 28 C. 613: If a person labours under a delusion, he must be considered to be in the same situation as to responsibility, as if the facts with respect to which the delusion exists is real.—See also Rat 698. Hadfield 27 St Tr. 1281. 15 O. C. 321 2 Weir 582

11. Note by the Editors.—It is worthy of note that the Indian law on the subject (S 84 I. P. C.) embodies for all practical purposes the decision of the House of Lords in the well known McNaughten's Case 1 Car & K 130 which arose out of the murder of the private secretary of Sir Robert Peel by McNaughten under an insane delusion. The decision was based on the answers given by fifteen Judges to the questions put to them by the House of Lords. The first question and the answer to the same are appended below.

Question 1.—What is the law respecting alleged crimes committed by persons afflicted with insane delusion, in respect of one or more particular subjects or persons, as for instance, when at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, the accused knew he was acting contrary to law, but did the act complained of with a view, under the influence of insane delusion, of redressing or revenging some supposed grievance or injury or of producing some supposed public benefit

Answer.—"Assuming that your Lordship's enquiries are confined to those persons who labour under such partial delusion only and not in other respects insane, we are of opinion that notwithstanding the party did the act complained of with a view, under the influence of insane delusion, of redressing or revenging some supposed grievance or injury or of producing some public benefit, he is nevertheless punishable according to the nature of the crime committed, if he knew at the time of committing such crime, that he was acting, contrary to law, by which expression we understand your Lordships to mean, the law of the land."

12. Procedure after postponement.—After a case has been reported to Government under S. 466, it should not be struck off, but should be kept on the register of pending cases—[6 W. R. 3] When the trial of an accused person, who was remanded to custody on the ground of insanity, was resumed upon receipt of a letter from the Zillah Surgeon at the point at which it had been stopped, held that the trial should have been commenced de novo after finding with the aid of assessors that he was capable of making his defence. [(69) 2 Weir 582]
13. Onus on the prosecution.—When a jury is impanelled (and a plea of insanity is taken) the onus is on the prosecution to prove the sanity of the defendant. R. v. Davies (1853) 3 C & K 328 But See Rat. 818
14. Jury may act without formal evidence of insanity.—The Jury may form their own judgment of the defendant's sanity by his demeanour without any evidence being given—R. v. Goode (1837) 7 Ad and El. 536. Halsbury's Laws of England Vol. IX, p. 354.

466. (1) Whenever an accused person is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making

Release of lunatic pending investigation or trial. his defence, the magistrate or Court as the case may be, if the case is one in which bail may be taken, may release him on sufficient security being given that he shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and for his appearance when required, before the Magistrate or Court or such officer as the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf.

(2) If the case is one in which bail may not be taken, or if sufficient security is not given, Custody of lunatic the Magistrate or Court shall report the case to the Local Government, remanding the accused to custody pending orders, and the Local Government may order the accused to be confined in a lunatic asylum, jail or other suitable place of safe custody and the Magistrate or Court shall give effect to such order.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 466 of the said Code—

(1) In sub-section (1), for the words "if the case is one in which bail may be taken," the words "whether the case is one in which bail may be taken or not" shall be substituted

(iv) For sub-section (2) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely—

"(2) If the case is one in which, in the opinion of the Magistrate or Court, bail should not be taken, or if sufficient security is not given the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, shall order the accused to be detained in safe custody in such place and manner as he or it may think fit, and shall report the action taken to the Local Government.

Provided,

(a) that no order for the detention of the accused in a lunatic asylum shall be made otherwise than in accordance with the rules as the Local Government may have made under the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912, and

(b) that the Local Government may vary any order of detention made under this sub-section, and may direct any person in respect of whom such order has been made to be detained in a lunatic asylum, jail or other place of safe custody."

Notes.

1. Jurisdiction ceases after transmission of the accused.—The authority of the criminal Court over an accused, declared under S 426 (=S 466) to be of unsound mind, ceases after the transmission of such accused to the place of safe custody appointed by the Local Government and such authority can be revived under the circumstances mentioned in S 432 (=S 473) 2 C 536

2. Proceedings against a person of unsound mind.—Where a Magistrate is of opinion that the accused is of unsound mind and therefore incapable of making his defence, he cannot legally acquit him. But he is bound to postpone further proceedings in the case and either release him on bail or report the case to Government—(88) 2 Weir 581

467. (1) Whenever an inquiry or a trial is postponed under section 464 or section 465, the Resumption of inquiry or trial Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, may at any time resume the inquiry or trial, and require the accused to appear or be brought before such Magistrate or Court.

(2) When the accused has been released under section 466, and the sureties for his appearance produce him to the officer whom the Magistrate or Court appoints in this behalf, the certificate of such officer that the accused is capable of making his defence shall be receivable in evidence

Note.

1. Case cannot be struck off.—Where a Magistrate has kept in custody an insane prisoner and reported the case to Government, his successor instead of striking off the case is bound to resume investigation under S. 391 Cr. P. C. (=S. 467) 6 W. R. 3 See Note No. 12 under S. 465 above.

468. (1) If, when the accused appears or is again brought before the Magistrate or the Court, Procedure on accused appearing before Magistrate or Court as the case may be, the Magistrate or Court considers him capable of making his defence, the inquiry or trial shall proceed.

(2) If the Magistrate or Court considers the accused person to be still incapable of making his defence, the Magistrate or Court shall again act according to the provisions of section 464 or section 465 as the case may be

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (2) of section 468 of the said Code the word "person" shall be omitted, and the following words shall be added, after the words "as the case may be," namely:—

"and if the accused is found to be of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, shall deal with such accused in accordance with the provisions of section 466"

Notes.

1. Note.—See Note No. 12 under 465 Supra

2. Procedure.—A person who is incapable of making a defence is not according to Ss 423 to 426 to be tried. Ss 427, 428 and 432 (Ss 467, 468 and 473 of the Code of 1898) provide for the trial of such person as an accused person, when he is found to be capable of making a defence, and if tried under the former of those sections, he might be acquitted under S 424 (S 470)—(80) 2 Weir 581.

469. When the accused appears to be of sound mind at the time of inquiry or trial, and the When accused appears to have been insane, Magistrate is satisfied from the evidence given before him that there is reason to believe that the accused committed an act which, if he had been of sound mind, would have been an offence, and that he was, at the time when the act was committed, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act allow the question to be put in that general form, though the same cannot be insisted on as a matter of right.

6. Where High Court will set aside a conviction. — For case in which the prisoner, notwithstanding that he had been convicted by the

Sessions Judge, was acquitted by the High Court on the ground of insanity under S 383 of the Code of 1861 (S 470), and directed to be kept in safe custody pending the orders of the Local Government, to be applied for by the Judge. — See 7 W R 12

471. (1) Whenever such judgment states that the accused person committed the act alleged, the Person acquitted on such ground to be Magistrate or Court before whom or which the trial has been held kept in safe custody.

shall, if such act would, but for the incapacity found, have constituted an offence, order such person to be kept in safe custody in such place and manner as the Magistrate or Court thinks fit,

Power of Local Government to relieve is confined under the provisions of section 466 or this section, to Inspector General of certain functions. discharge all or any of the functions of the Inspector General of Prisons under * * * section 473 or section 474

Proposed amendments to the section.—(1) In sub-section (1) of section 471 of the said Code —

(i) For the words "such judgment," the words "the finding" shall be substituted,

(ii) For the word "kept" the word "detained" shall be substituted; and

(iii) After the words "Court thinks fit," the words "and shall report the action taken to the Local Government" shall be inserted.

(4) After sub-section (1) of the same section, the following provisions and sub-section shall be added, namely, —

"Provided that the Magistrate or Court may on the application of any relative or friend of the accused, in lieu of ordering him to be detained under this sub-section, order him to be delivered to such relative or friend on his giving security, to the satisfaction of such Magistrate or Court, that the person delivered shall be properly taken care of and prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and be produced for the inspection of such officer, and at such times and places, as such Magistrate or Court directs.

Provided further that no order for the detention of the accused in a lunatic asylum shall be made otherwise than in accordance with such rules as the Local Government may have made under the Indian Lunacy Act, 1912.

"(2) The Local Government may vary any order of detention made under sub-section (1), and may direct any person in respect of whom such order has been made to be detained in a jail, lunatic asylum or other suitable place of safe custody"

(3) Sub section (1) of the same section shall be re-numbered (3).

Notes.

1. Duty to report.—Where a deaf and dumb person who was unable to understand the proceedings of the trial was found guilty of murder, the proper course to be taken is to treat him as a lunatic and to report his case under S 471 Cr. P. Code for orders of the Government. —13 P. R. 1901 : 37 P. R. 1889 : See 27 C. 368 [For the English practice—See R. v. Pritchard 7 C. and P. 303. R. v. Dyson 7 C. and P. 305 : R. v. 2. High Court will not set aside verdicts of acquittal.—The High Court will not, in the absence of the very clearest proof that the jury were mistaken, and unless the interests of justice imperatively required it, will not interfere with their verdict of acquittal on the ground that the accused was of insane mind at the time he committed the offence. 19 W. R. 45.

3. Powers under the Lunacy Act (IV of 1912) S. 24 and Act X of 1914.—Under Lunacy Act IV of 1912 and Act X of 1914 the Magistrates or Courts are no longer required to report cases under S. 471 (1) Criminal Procedure Code, for the orders of the Local Government, but are themselves competent to direct the reception of a criminal lunatic into an asylum which is prescribed for the reception of criminal lunatics. — 8 Bar T. 286 : 21 Cr. 46 (O)
4. Order under S. 471 (1) a consequential order under S. 423 (d).—An order under S. 471 (1) Cr. P. C. is clearly the acquitting Court whether not only has power to make but is bound to make under S. 423 (4) — 8 Bur T. 286 [39 C. 157 R.]

5. Change of Law.—Subsections (2) and (3) and part of subs (1) of S. 471 of Cr. P. C. have been repealed—the former by Act IV of 1912 and the last twelve words of subs (1) by Act X of 1914. “I am at the same time to invite your attention to letter No 2060 C dated the 28th March 1913 from the Government of India printed in the preamble of Government Resolution No 6484 dated the 16th of September 1913, which points out that Courts are competent to pass final orders in such cases.”—Chief Secretary to Government of Bombay to the High Court of Bombay.—43 B. 134 See 8 Bur T. 286 21 Cr 46 (O)]
6. Courts should direct criminal lunatics to be kept in safe custody.—“In order to accelerate the process of transferring a criminal lunatic from a jail to a more proper place of custody, it is desirable that the Court passing an order under S. 471 Criminal Procedure Code, should direct that the criminal lunatic in question shall be kept in safe custody in a particular jail and shall then be transferred, after the arrangements have been made to a particular asylum or to such other asylum as may have accommodation for him.”—Circular No. 76 B. [Bombay High Court Criminal Circular Order Book]

7. Practice in England.—The usual practice in England is to order the person in question to be kept in custody as a criminal lunatic till His Majesty's pleasure is known. See Halbury's Laws of England Vol. IX p. 242 (S. 515) Trial of Lunatics Act 1883 [46 and 47 Vic C. 38] ; Sec 2 (2) and Criminal Appeal Act 1907 (7 Edw. VII C. 23), Sec 5 (4)] In England the prisoner has to be formally found guilty. In India he is formally acquitted under S. 84 I. P. C. and S. 470 Cr P. C.

472. Lunatic prisoners to be visited by Inspector General. [Rep. by Act IV of 1912.]

473. If such person is confined under the provisions of section 466, and such Inspector General Procedure where lunatic prisoner is or visitors shall certify that, “in his or their opinion, such person reported capable of making his defence. is capable of making his defence, he shall be taken before the Magistrate or Court, as the case may be, at such time as the Magistrate or Court appoints, and the Magistrate or Court shall deal with such person under the provisions of section 468 ; and the certificate of such Inspector General or visitors as aforesaid shall be receivable as evidence

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 473 of the Code, for the word “confined,” the word “detained” shall be substituted, and for the words “such Inspector-General or visitors” the words “in the case of a person detained in a jail the Inspector-General of Prisons, or in the case of a person detained in a lunatic asylum, the visitors of such asylum or any two of them,” shall be substituted.

474. (1) If such person is confined under the provisions of section, 466 or section 471, and such

Inspector General or visitors shall certify that, in his or their Procedure where lunatic confined under section 466 or 471 is declared fit judgment, he may be discharged without danger of his doing to be discharged injury to himself or to any other person, the Local Government may thereupon order him to be discharged, or to be detained in custody, or to be transferred to a public lunatic asylum if he has not been already sent to such an asylum ; and, in case it orders him to be transferred to an asylum, may appoint a Commission, consisting of judicial and two medical officers.

(2) Such Commission shall make formal inquiry into the state of mind of such person taking such evidence as is necessary, and shall report to the Local Government, which may order his discharge or detention as it thinks fit

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 474 of the said Code, for the word “confined,” the word “detained” shall be substituted ; for the words “discharged” and “discharge” wherever they occur, the word “released” and “release,” respectively, shall be substituted, and the words and figures “section 466 or” shall be omitted.

475. (1) Whenever any relative or friend of any person confined under the provisions of section

Delivery of lunatic to care of relative. 466 or section 471 desires that he shall be delivered over to his care and custody, the Local Government, upon the application of such relative or friend, and, on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Government that the person delivered shall be properly taken care of and shall be prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, may order such person to be delivered to such relative or friend.

(2) Whenever such person is so delivered, it shall be upon condition that he shall be produced for the inspection of such officer and at such times as the Local Government directs

(3) The provisions of sections 472 and 474 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to persons delivered under the provisions of this section, and the certificate of the inspecting officer appointed under this section shall be receivable as evidence.

Proposed amendments to the section.—For section 475 of the said Code, the following section shall be substituted namely —

"(1) Whenever any relative or friend of any person detained under the provisions of section 466 or section 471 desires that he shall be delivered to his care and custody, the Local Government may upon the application of such relative or friend and on his giving security to the satisfaction of such Local Government that the person delivered shall—

(a) be properly taken care of and prevented from doing injury to himself or to any other person, and

(b) be produced for the inspection of such officer, and at such times and places, as the Local Government may direct, and

(c) in the case of a person detained under section 466, be produced when required before such Magistrate or Court, order such person to be delivered to such relative or friend

(2) If the person so delivered is accused of any offence, the trial of which has been postponed by reason of his being of unsound mind and incapable of making his defence, and the inspecting officer referred to in sub-section (1) clause (b) certifies at any time to the Magistrate or Court that such person is capable of making his defence, such Magistrate or Court shall call upon the relative or friend to whom such accused was delivered to produce him before the Magistrate or Court and upon such production, the Magistrate or Court shall proceed in accordance with the provisions of section 468, and the certificate of the inspecting officer shall be receivable as evidence "

CHAPTER XXXV.

PROCEEDINGS IN CASE OF CERTAIN OFFENCES AFFECTING THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

476. (1) When any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court is of opinion that there is ground for Procedure in cases mentioned in section 195 inquiring into any offence referred to in section 195 and committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, such Court, after making any preliminary inquiry that may be necessary, may send the case for inquiry or trial to the nearest Magistrate of the first class, and may send the accused in custody, or take sufficient security for his appearance, before such Magistrate; and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence on such inquiry or trial

(2) Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law, and as if upon complaint made and recorded under section 200, and may, if he is authorised under section 192 to transfer cases, transfer the inquiry or trial to some other competent Magistrate.

Proposed amendments to the section.—For section 476 of the said Code the following sections shall be substituted, namely:—

"(1) When any Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court is of opinion that it is expedient, in the interests of justice that an inquiry should be made into any offence referred to in section 195 (1) (b) or (c) and alleged to have been committed before it or brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, such Court shall make a complaint thereof in writing signed by the presiding officer of the Court, and shall forward the same to the nearest first class Magistrate having jurisdiction, and may, if the alleged offence is non-bailable, send the accused in custody to, or in any other case may take sufficient security for his appearance before such Magistrate, and may bind over any person to appear and give evidence before such Magistrate.

For the purposes of this sub-section, a Chief Presidency Magistrate shall be deemed to be a first-class Magistrate.

(2) Such Magistrate shall thereupon proceed according to law and as if upon complaint made and recorded under section 200.

(3) Where it is brought to the notice of such Magistrate, or of any other Magistrate to whom the case may have been transferred, that an appeal is pending against the decision arrived at in the judicial proceeding out of which the matter has arisen, he may, if he thinks it expedient, in the interests of justice, at any stage adjourn the hearing of the case until such appeal is decided.

476 A A complaint under section 476 (1) may be made by any of the Courts referred to in section 195, sub-section (1) or sub-section (3) either of its own motion, or upon the application of any party to the judicial proceeding out of which the matter has arisen, and no Court shall be precluded from making such complaint only by the fact that the Court subordinate to it has refused so to do.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, the word “party” shall, in the case of any criminal proceeding, include the Crown.

476 B Any person being either a party to such proceeding or a person against whom a complaint has been made under section 476 or section 476 A, who is aggrieved by the action taken by any Court under either of the two preceding sections, may apply within one month thereafter to the Court to which appeals from the former Court ordinarily lie as defined by section 195 (3), and the superior Court may thereupon, after notice to the parties concerned, direct the withdrawal of a complaint already filed, or may itself make a complaint in respect of any of the offences referred to in section 195 (1) (b) or (c), and may take any other action which might have been taken by such subordinate Court under section 476 (1).

The expression “action taken” in this section shall include the making of a complaint and the refusal so to do.”

I. OBJECT AND SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object of the section.

1. S 476 was enacted with the object of avoiding the inconvenience which might be caused if a Munsiff or a Subordinate Judge or a Judge were obliged to appear before a Magistrate and make a complaint on oath like an ordinary complainant.—7 A 871 (F. B.): See 31 C 664 33 M 48 (F. B.)

(2) Meaning of terms.

- (i) Scope of the expression "any offence referred to in S. 195."

2. There has been a great divergence of judicial opinion as to the exact significance of the expression "any offence referred to in S 195" Are they words of description or limitation? The conflict is due to the fact that the offence described in S 463 or punishable under Ss 471, 475 or 476, of the Penal Code must have been committed by a "party to any proceedings in any Court" in S 195 Cr P C [See cl (c)] It is therefore a moot point whether the jurisdiction under S 476 Cr P C with reference to those offences, is limited to those cases only, in which they have been committed by a party to the proceeding, or not. In a recent Full Bench case, [42 M 540 (F. B.)] a Bench of three Judges after a review of the case-law on the subject has definitely held that the words in S 476 of the Code of Criminal Procedure "any offence referred to in S 195" incorporate the conditions laid down in S 195 for taking cognizance of the offence by a Court. The ruling purports to follow 40 M 110 and 15 M 224 See also 15 M. T 489 17 Cr 385 (M) Below is given the views taken by other Courts—

- 2A. (i) The expression "any offence referred to in S 115" means "any offence punishable under any of the Sections of the Penal Code, mentioned in S. 195, and has no reference to the manner in which the offence might have been committed. 50 C 46.

3. (2) The words "referred to in S 195" which have a place in S 476 Cr P C are merely descriptive of the class of offences with which a Court can deal. They do not mean that S 195 governs S 476 in any other respect—40 A 116 40 A 24. But See 32 A 74

4. (3) S 476 Cr P C is a self-contained section and the reference to S 195 Cr P C in it is only made for the sake of brevity and refers not to the conditions enumerated in S 195 Cr P C, but merely to offences enumerated in that Section. It therefore confers jurisdiction on the Court to order the prosecution of a person other than a party to the proceedings if the offence committed is brought to the notice of the Court in the course of such proceedings. 1 Pat J 298 (1916) Pat 352 20 Cr 202 (Pat) 20 Cr 630 (Pat) 21 Cr. 649 (Pat)

5. (4) The qualifications mentioned in S 195 Criminal Procedure Code are to be treated as incorporated in the provisions of S 476 Cr P C—19 Cr 638 (c) 43 C 1152 37 C 250 15 C N 565 12 C N. 575 5 C N 106 Con 22 C 1004

6. (5) The power given to a court under Chapter XXXV of the Cr P C to take action regarding "any offence referred to in S 195" is not ordinarily restricted, in regard to offences relating to a document to such offences only when committed by a party to the proceeding—18 B 581 14 B R 968

7. (6) The words "referred to in S 195" which occur in S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, are merely words descriptive of the class of offences with which a particular Court can deal. They do not mean that S 195 governs section 476 to any extent other than this. 20 Cr 426 (N)

[Note.—It is immaterial whether the persons concerned appeared before the Court or not.—Ibid]

8. (7) The words "offences referred to in S 195" in S 476 mean the offences covered by the sections of the Indian Penal Code mentioned in

S. 195, committed under the qualifying circumstances described in S. 195.—10 P. R 1917 : See 12 P. R 1905.

9. Note.—“There are many cases falling within S. 195, which do not fall within S. 476, as the latter section is confined to judicial proceedings while the former is not. Conversely there are cases falling within S. 476, but not within S. 195 as the offence in cl (c) must be committed by a party to a proceeding, while the scope of S. 476 is not so restricted.”—Per Sankaran Nair J. in 32 M 49 (F. B.) at p. 57.

(ii) Scope of the words “as if upon complaint made and recorded under S. 200 Cr. P. C.”

10. These words constitute a legislative confirmation of the dictum of Straight J. in (85) 7 A. 871 (F. B.) that “the language of S. 476 indicates that where a Court is acting under S. 195, a complaint, in the strict sense of the Code is not required, and the procedure therein laid down constitutes the complaint mentioned in S. 195” [See 32 M. 49 (F. B.)] The effect of this addition to this section and of the addition to S. 200 of the words “subject to the provisions of S. 476” is that the order of the Court under Subs (i) is to be regarded as a complaint and is to be treated as having been recorded under S. 200—33 M. 48 (F. B.) [26 M. 98 (F. B.) held to be erroneous] See also 26 A. 249 (F. B.) at p. 262. 3 L B 234 (F. B.).

Note.—A Civil Court acting under S. 171 (S. 476) need not specify the court—13 W. R. 45. Con 4 N P 86

(iii) Meaning of “brought under its notice.”

11. (1) The words are wide enough to cover an offence which may have been committed in another forum and on some previous occasion but it must be an offence brought under the notice of the Court holding an enquiry.—6 A. J 392 : 33 A. 396 29 P. R 1916. 12 Cr. 521 (U. B.) Con 40 M. 100.
12. (2) But a Court cannot proceed under S. 476 in respect of an offence under S. 411 P. C. if he comes to think that it has been committed in the course of hearing a case. He should proceed under Chap XVI Cr. P. C.—Rat 515
13. (3) Where offences under Ss 476, 471, 193, 209 and 210 of the Penal Code committed in Bengal was brought to the notice of a Munsiff in Agra in the course of a judicial proceeding, held that the Munsiff had jurisdiction to proceed under S. 476 Cr. P. C. and commit the accused for trial before the Agra Court of Session.—40 A. 116 : See 1 Pat J. 298 (1918) Pat 352 : 1 Pat J. 566

(3) Difference between Ss. 195 and 476.

14. (1) S. 195 is not confined to judicial proceedings while S. 176 is so restricted (2) A complaint may be made under S. 195 when the matter requires investigation but an order under S. 476 can be passed only when a prima facie case is made out (3) The complaint under S. 195 must be made before a Magistrate having jurisdiction under the ordinary provision of the Code while S. 476 confers an exclusive jurisdiction on the “nearest first class Magistrate who may not have any power to try if a complaint were laid under S. 195”

(5) A first class Magistrate cannot order an investigation into a case sent to him under S. 476 as there is no examination of the complaint (6) The High Court has power to revise the orders passed under S. 476 at least by civil or criminal courts, but it has no power to reject or to direct the Magistrate to reject a complaint preferred under S. 195.—[Per Sankaran Nair J. in 32 M 49 (F. B.) at pp 57-58.] Other points of difference are—(7) Order under S. 195 is appealable while that under S. 476 is not so [34 C 551 (F. B.)] (8) A sanction or complaint under S. 195 may be granted or made at any time after the close of the case but an order under S. 476 should, be made “as far as possible, promptly and expeditiously” [37 C 642 (S. B.) : 34 C 551 (F. B.) 32 M. 49 (F. B.)].

(4) Nature of proceedings under S. 476.

15. A proceeding under S. 476(a) is a judicial proceeding and is covered by S. 439 Cr. P. C.—34 C 42. (82) A. N. 229 : 37 C 52 : 17 Cr. 316 (L. B.) see Rat 59 (F. B.) [4 B H. (O O) 120 (overruled)]
- 15A. Nature of the order under S. 476. Cr. P. C.—“It seems to me that an order properly passed under S. 476 is both a complaint and more than a complaint. It is a judicial proceeding and an order of the Court, but it is not in my opinion a sanction within the meaning of S. 195 Cr. P. C.” Per Pudeauri A. J. C. in 20 Cr 770 (N) 17 Cr 316 (L. B.) : 37 C 52

(5) Powers under S. 476 to be used cautiously.

16. (1) Necessity for caution.—“Judges should bear in mind that criminal prosecutions are frequently suggested by successful litigants merely to prevent an appeal in the civil suit; and they should not be careful not to lend themselves to such suggestions readily. They should also recollect that when they proceed under S. 476, the responsibility for the prosecution rests upon the Judge entirely; such a prosecution being a very different thing from a prosecution instituted on the complaint of a private party and merely sanctioned by the Court under S. 195 cl. (b)” —Per Macpherson J. in 1 C. 450
17. (2) An order for prosecution under S. 476 must be made with great care and caution. The Court must be satisfied that there is a reasonable foundation for the charge in respect of which the prosecution is directed.—10 G J 564. 11 W. R 171 (Civ) -
- 17A. (3) In acting under S. 176 Cr. P. C. the Court should always bear in mind the Principles underlying S. 487 Cr. P. C. infra [3 A 62]

(6) S. 476 is complete as it stands.

18. "I have little doubt that the provisions of S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code are complete as they stand, and that it is sufficient to bring those provisions into operation if the offence in question be of one of the kind referred to in S 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code and if it be either committed before the Court which takes action under S 476 or brought under the notice of that Court in the course of a judicial proceeding.—40 A 24 See 32 M. 49 (F. B.)

(7) Does S. 476 apply to Presidency Magistrates?

19. "We have considered the course which we should take in the matter. S. 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code does not appear to provide for the case of an offence before a Court in a presidency town. It empowers a Court to send a case for enquiry

R. 1100: but see 13 C. 572.

(8) Prosecution for perjury.

20. Prosecution for perjury should not be left to private person.—In a summary trial there is no record of evidence. In the absence of any record of the evidence, it would be difficult indeed to secure a conviction. There are many ways of explaining the fact that the applicant made a statement which was incorrect. In such a matter as this, if the Court thought that perjury had been committed it would have been better advised if it had taken action itself instead of placing in the hands of a private person the right of vindicating the law.—16 A. J. 992

[Note.—For Procedure—See X complaints (188) infra]

21. Offence under S. 193 P. C.—cannot be tried by the Court before which it has been committed. The Magistrate is bound to proceed under S 476—1 A 625 (F. B.) [overruling 1 A 129, 1 A 162] 10 B II 73 1 B 311 7 M II. 17 18 W R 15 See 22 W R 19
- 21A. Prosecution for perjury.—An order directing a prosecution for perjury merely upon materials arising out of cross-examination is a very unsafe proceeding, especially in the case of a protracted cross-examination.—2 Pat W 99
22. Prosecution of party making a false statement with reference to a document in his possession.—Before any proceedings can be taken against a person (not a party to the proceeding) who is present in Court but being called upon to produce his title-deed falsely states it is not in his possession, it would be necessary to determine whether the document in question was one which he could be compelled to produce and if the requirements of Ss. 130 and 131, Evidence Act were fulfilled.—14 C. J. 120 See 11 Cr 20 (A)
23. Order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. should be made in only clear cases of perjury.—

fear would frustrate the object of cross examination. Prosecution therefore should be ordered only, if the contradiction was made not to correct a bona fide error, but with a dishonest intention.—9 S 202.

(9) Application of the section.

24. The fact that no sanction is required does not prevent action under S. 476.—The mere fact that no sanction of the Court is required for a prosecution under S. 182 I. P. C. does not deprive the Magistrate of jurisdiction to order prosecution under S 476 Cr. P. C.—8 S 179
25. [Note.—For Procedure—See X complaints (188) infra]

prosecution of a witness on the basis of such evidence.—20 Cr. 825 (Pat) See 6 S 277. 8 A. J. 674 G. A. J. 963 32 A 30 See 8 B R 587: 9 C N. 1030

26. S. 476 does not apply to a charge under S. 421 I. P. C.—[21 Cr 56 (A) 6 L W. 283] or to an offence under S 424 I. P. C [6 L W 283] or to an offence under S 225 B. I. P. C. [21 C N 125] or to an offence under S 411 I. P. C. [Rat 515]
27. S. 476 cannot be used in evasion of S. 195 Cr. P. C.—It was argued by the learned Assistant Government Advocate that the Court has independent power under S 476 Cr. P. C. In my opinion S 476 must be read consistently with S 195 This is well known rule of construction. Each part of a statute must expound every other part. It is not without reason that the Legislature has said definitely and positively that no sanction shall remain in force for more than six months from the date on which it was given. If the argument of the learned Advocate be a good argument, then the clear intention of the Legislature is in every case liable to be defeated by the simple device of drawing up proceedings under S 476 Cr. P. C. (after the expiry of the sanction).—Per Diss J. in 5 Pat J 54 Con 21 Cr 549 (Pat)
28. Court which should grant sanction cannot itself try a case.—The trial of an offence by a Court which should only have either granted sanction or taken action under S 476 Cr. P. C. is irregular and the irregularity cannot be remedied by an application of S 547 Cr. P. C.—40 J 492

(10) When action should be taken and when not.

29. Action under S. 476 to be taken when. If the Court thinks that in the interest of the public welfare sanction should be given, it is to take action under S 476 Cr. P. C. A sanction should not be given under S 195 when it is likely to be used as a means of revenge or extortion 11 A J 113

30. Order should not be made without reasonable probability of conviction.—“The principle which should guide Courts in taking action under S 195 or 476 is now well-settled. No sanction should be granted unless there is a reasonable probability of conviction.”—Per Mookerjee J in 37 C 250. See 14 C N. 300 12 C N 3 (1918) Pat 332. 20 Cr. 818 (Pat) 7 A 871 (F. B.) 22 Cr 151 (N.) 10 N 177. 9 N 184. Con 13 A J. 1111. 2 Weir 557 7 W R 482 (Civ.) Marshall 270

31. Order must be based on clearly defined grounds.—The Court must be prima facie satisfied that the offence has been committed by a definite individual or individuals [23 C 532] It will not be sufficient to hold that either the plaintiff or the defendant has committed forgery [163 P L 1903]. The charge must be specific [23 W R 39]

32. Proceedings under S. 476 should not be taken till the close of the case.—Proceedings under S. 476 Cr P C should not be taken until the very close of the case, in which false evidence has been given, in as much as if taken earlier such action is likely to intimidate subsequent witnesses and defeat the object of the trial. As a rule, a Magistrate should not make up his mind to start proceedings under S 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code against a witness before he has heard all the evidence in the case.—31 M J 440 (F. B.) 18 M T 591 11 M T 191 4 B R 778 16 B 729 3 C J. 302-21 Cr 29 (Pat) 1 Pat W 545 9 S 176.

Note.—“It is the duty of a Judge, trying a civil or criminal action and engaged in investigating issues of fact, to hear all the evidence which the parties may have to adduce, before coming to a final decision and to refrain from any action which would be calculated to hamper any party in proving his case. If a Judge on the other hand, prematurely, takes criminal proceedings for perjury or for a like offence against a party or his witnesses giving evidence before him, the inevitable result would be to keep away other witnesses who might be in a position to give valuable evidence.”—Per Abdul Hakim J in 18 M T 591

33. When the Court should proceed under S. 476 instead of granting sanction under S. 195.—“It seems to me that if the trial Court was of opinion that, in the interests of public justice, proceedings should be taken, it could and should have acted under S 476 Cr P C I am very loath to give sanction to private individual, specially in a case where he and the opposite party are actuated by enmity.”—Per Eyles J in 21 Cr 64 (A) See 13 C 542 18 Or 450 (A) 11 A J 127.

34. Prosecution cannot be ordered after the Court is functus officio.—A subdivisional Magistrate after making an order of transfer (the application for transfer having alleged inter alia that the Magistrate had received a bribe in the presence of A. and B.) recorded the statement of A and B. on oath. He then made an order under S 476 Cr. P. C directing their prosecution under S. 193 P. C.—Held—that the Magistrate having already disposed of the application for transfer, the statements of A and B were made coram non iudice. The act of the Magistrate was not a magisterial act and he had no jurisdiction to administer the oath. The order was therefore illegal.—7 N 65. See 2 M. H 43 and 27 C 453

35. What amounts to a review of a former order.—If Magistrate after remarking in his order, that he would leave it to the accused to prosecute the complainant if he liked, subsequently on the latter's application, makes an order under S. 476, his latter order amounts to a review of the former and is illegal.—(11) 2 M N 431.

36. Order passed in accordance with the direction by a Superior Court.—The rule as laid down by Jawahar Prasad J. in 20 Cr 274 (Pat) is this.—(1) If the lower Court merely acts at the suggestion of the Superior Court, not upon its own knowledge or information but upon those of the latter [as in 6 A J. 924] or (2) if the lower Court had refused to act under S 476 previously to the Superior Court's direction to proceed under S 476 [as in 32 B 184], an order in accordance with such direction will not be upheld. But if it is apparent from the lower Court's judgment that it was clearly in its mind that an offence had been committed in relation to the proceedings, and action was not taken as the matter was appealable, and the Appellate Court's direction to proceed under S 476 is merely an endorsement of the lower Court's opinion, the order will be upheld. [See also 21 Cr. 349 (Pat) See 2 O J 546. 10 M T 333: 6 A J. 924]

- 36A. The bar of acquittal.—A Magistrate who has acquitted the accused in a trial under S 211 as joint Magistrate cannot, as District Magistrate prosecute him under S 476.—1 A. J. 338

(11.) Mutual relations between Ss. 195 and 476.

37. Court should not drop proceedings under S. 476 on receiving application under S. 195 by private party.—Where a Court proceeded to take action under S. 476 Cr P C but dropped the proceedings, upon the private party applying for sanction under S 195, Cr P. C. Held that it was usually inadvisable to grant sanction to a private person and the Court was directed to take up the proceedings at the stage at which it had dropped them, if it thought fit to do so.—17 A. J. 431

38. Infructuous order under S. 476 no bar to action under S 195 Cr. P. C.—After action has been taken under S 476 Crim Pro Code and an order has been made, which proves infructuous because it has not been made in accordance with the provisions of the Code, the position would be unaffected. The order under S 476 was set aside on the merits.—11 Cr 327 (C)

[Note.—The fact that the Court may have given sanction under S. 195 vis-à-vis a person, to complain of an offence specified therein, does not affect its power to act under this section, should it deem it necessary.—14 B 354 34 B. 88 29 M 331]

38A. Power to convert proceedings under S. 195 to proceedings under S. 476.—When a case of perjury or forgery is brought to the notice of the District Court under S. 195 Cr. P. C., that Court has power to convert the proceedings and take action under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—1

Pat. J. 607 13 Cr. 1 (C); see 34 A. 602 Con., 2 Weir 536, 13 C. N. 1018

39. Previous sanction under S. 195 is no bar to the jurisdiction of the Court to proceed under S. 476. [When the sanction has not terminated in a trial]—29 M 331

39A. When action should be taken under S. 195 and not S. 476.—When the offence has not been committed in the presence of the Judge, the proper procedure is to sanction criminal prosecution under S. 195. The Court cannot proceed under S. 476—lat 31

II. PROCEDURE.

(1) Preliminary enquiry.

40. When preliminary enquiry is unnecessary.—Where an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. directing the prosecution of a witness under S. 193 of the Penal Code is made upon the very day on which or the day after the cross-examination of the witness is finished, upon a clear statement by him, and after an opportunity given to explain the inconsistencies in his statements in chief and in cross-examination, it is not incumbent upon the Court to institute a fresh enquiry or to give any notice to the accused.—4 Pat W 44

41. Review of the case law.—Under the old codes, a preliminary enquiry was considered necessary [See 9 W. R. 3 1 C. 450 5 C. 184 (157) 2 C. L. 315 23 W. R. 39 5 A. 62 7 M. 189 4 Oudh 96 (82) A. N. 229 28 P. R. 1886] In 9 W. R. 3 and 4 A. 182 it was held that such enquiry need not be made in the presence of the accused. It was however laid down in a number of rulings under the old Codes that the enquiry was optional with the Court [See 6 O. 308 7 C. 208 5 W. R. 24. - B. L. (Sup.) 426 9 W. R. 3 O. S. 281 15 C. N. 691] This latter view was also taken in Codes. It was cause or the table. 15 C.

Rat 701 and 895 7 B. R. 84 14 B. R. 587 15 A. 392-34 A. 267 26 M. J. 486 12 Cr. 85 (L.B.) but in 16 C. 730 20 C. 349 23 C. 352 1 C. J. 620 Rat 701 2 Weir 587 the Courts were inclined to hold that an enquiry should be made in every case. The Allahabad High Court in 10 A. J. 247 held that a notice should always be given to the persons concerned

42. Note.—The matter will no doubt be set beyond doubt if the amendment proposed is enacted. The words "after making any preliminary enquiry that may be necessary" are to be deleted. The result therefore will be that no preliminary enquiry need be made at all. As the offences mentioned in S. 195 (1) (a) are also proposed to be taken out of the provisions of S. 476, the necessity of a preliminary enquiry, if any, will no longer exist

43. Preliminary enquiry cannot be delegated.—The preliminary enquiry required to be held under S. 476 Cr. P. C. cannot be directed to be held by a Magistrate other than the officer who has called upon the delinquent to show cause why he should not be prosecuted for an alleged offence against public justice (e.g. offence under S. 211 I. P. C.)—20 Cr. 245 (Pat)

44. Notice not necessary.—"It has been held, I have no doubt correctly, that notice is, on the face of the section, not legally necessary. [See 10 A. J. 247: 15 A. 392, 20 C. 474] But notice, although not legally necessary, is desirable, more especially where the matter has not been judicially dealt with [6 A. 98]."—Per Pundit 4 J. C. in 20 Cr. 777 (N) See 17 O. C. 25 6 O. J. 457 21 Cr. 276 (A)

Preliminary enquiry though not essential, must be real, when held.

45. (1) "The holding of a preliminary enquiry is no doubt discretionary, and the learned Magistrate might well have sent the case to the nearest Magistrate without holding a preliminary enquiry but that was not the course adopted by the learned Magistrate. He clearly thought that it was necessary in the interests of justice to hold a preliminary enquiry. If that was his view, he should have given ample opportunity to the petitioner to show cause why he should not be prosecuted. * * In my view the preliminary enquiry, whenever it takes place, is intended to be a real one."—Per Das J. in 21 Cr. 29 (Pat) 21 Cr. 718 (Pat) 21 Cr. 276 (A)

46. (2) When a plaintiff is called upon to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under S. 209

Where preliminary enquiry is essential.

47. (1) "It is quite true that under S. 476 Cr. P. C. as has been laid down in many rulings of this Court, a preliminary enquiry may be unnecessary, that is to say, it is not absolutely necessary to justify an order under that section, but in all those cases the person against whom an order was made, had always been before the Court and the evidence in the proceedings recorded in his presence. * * The present case is very different and I do not understand how the Magistrate can come to any conclusion against the accused under S. 476 without giving him an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses whose evidence has been taken behind his back * * I therefore direct the record to be returned to the

in 22 Cr 143 (A) ; See 6 C 440 ; 19 C. 345 ; 8 C. L. 148 12 P. R 1897, 2 P. R 1888. 6 A. 99 6 A. 101

48. (2) Although no notice is essential in a proceeding under S. 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, yet in the circumstances of each case it is to be seen whether the party affected by the order was entitled to any notice. Where A. filed a civil suit based on a handnote against R. and L. and subsequently withdrew his claim against L. and obtained the ground the handnote borne by the handnote, held that the Munsiff acted illegally in directing the prosecution of A. merely upon the report of the Controller of Government papers, without deciding the genuineness or otherwise of the document in the presence of A. and R. who were parties to the decree—22 Cr 233 (Pat). See 14 B R. 587.

49. (3) When the incident, in respect of which an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. was made, took place outside the Court, the Judge ought to have held a preliminary enquiry to enable him to determine whether there was any case fit to be sent to the nearest Magistrate—21 C. N. 125.

50. (4) Where the order for prosecution arises out of an affidavit written in English and sworn to by a person unacquainted with that language, the Court should make a preliminary enquiry before making an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—15 A. J. 517

51. (5) Where the identity of the offender is uncertain a preliminary enquiry ought to be held—23 C 532. 20 C 474 20 C. 349 16 C 730. or where the offence itself is uncertain.—1 C. 450.

(2) Scope of the preliminary enquiry.

52. The authority which is called upon to take action under S. 476 Cr. P. C. need not and should not decide the question of guilt or innocence of the party, against whom proceedings are to be instituted; but great care and caution are required before the criminal law is set in motion, and there must be a reasonable foundation for the charge in respect of which prosecution is sanctioned or directed.—10 N. 177 2 Weir 587.

(3) Procedure in preliminary enquiries.

53. Person called upon to show cause cannot be examined as a witness.—Proceedings in enquiries under S. 476 Cr. P. C. are judicial proceedings and the person against whom they are directed is in the position of an accused person [37 C. 52 F.I.] Therefore to examine such a person as a witness in the course of such proceedings is ultra vires [2 Weir 508 F.I.]—17 Cr. 316 (L. B.)

- 53.A. Position of the person proceeded against.—In proceedings under S. 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the person against whom the proceedings are instituted is not an accused person—1 Pat W. 65 ; 8 A. J. 237.

54. How to record evidence.—There is no provision in the Cr. P. C. with regard to the manner in which the evidence in an enquiry under S. 476 Cr. P. C. is to be recorded. But we are of opinion that for further reference a summary of the statements should have been made—[Per Sharfuddin and Tenson JJ] in 42 C 240.

55. Mode of holding the enquiry.—The enquiry need not be held in the presence of the accused [9 W. R. 3 ; 4 A. 182]. Oath may be administered to the suspected person [8 B. R. 589 ; See 17 C 572 ; But See note above] It is not necessary to cross-examine the witnesses—[34 A. 267]

- 55A. Court not bound to observe special formalities.—It is perfectly competent to the Judge making an enquiry under S. 476 Cr. P. C. to make the formal order under that section without taking any evidence at all, and if he chooses to from imposing any special formalities to hamper the discretion of the Court—[11 B. R. 1164 14 B. R. 587 relied on]—Per Batchelor J. "If a witness be examined in the case of an enquiry under S. 476 Cr. P. C. it is the right of the Court to make to the Court and it is optional with the Court to make a preliminary enquiry"—[Per Shah J.]—18 B. R. 281

56. Order to show cause should be in conformity with S. 195.—An order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. requiring the accused to show cause why he should not be prosecuted should carry out the requirements of S. 195 Cr. P. C. It must specify the Court or the place and the occasion on which the offence was committed—21 Cr 400 (A.)

57. Successor not bound to hold fresh enquiry.—A successor of the officer before whom the original trial took place is not bound to hold an independent investigation before making an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—15 C. N. 691 See 37 C. 642 (F. B.). Con 9 C. N. 879. 34 C. 551 (F. B.). 35 C. 114.

(4) Omission to hold preliminary enquiry not material in the absence of prejudice.

58. The holding of a preliminary enquiry in a proceeding under S. 476 Cr. P. C. is discretionary, and a person against whom an order for prosecution has been passed without such an enquiry cannot complain unless he has been prejudiced by the omission.—15 C. N. 691.

(5) Order may be made by successor.

59. Order may be made by successor.—The dictum of the Full Bench in 31 C. 551 that the powers conferred by S. 476 can only be exercised case.—S. 476 Cr. P. C. vests jurisdiction in a Magistrate to try a case if one is sent to him for trial by a Court mentioned in that section. All that is required to give jurisdiction to the Magistrate to try the case is that he should have been the nearest Magistrate. The section has nothing at all to do with local or territorial jurisdiction.—20 Cr. 202 (Pat) See 16 M. 161. Rat 88 32 M. 49 (F.B.) at 57 Con 1 S. 81 10 B R 29.

(8) Simultaneous proceedings under Ss. 195 and 476.

64. There cannot in the same proceeding be a sanc-as being more appropriate, a compliance with such direction is not fatal to the proceedings [20 Cr 549 (Pat)]

(9) Simultaneous proceedings under Ss. 250 and 476 Cr. P. C.

65. There is nothing in the Code which makes it illegal for a Magistrate to proceed under both the sections 250 and 476 Cr P C at the same time. There is no conflict between the two sections, as the object of S. 250 is to give compensation to the accused who has been harassed by a vexatious accusation, whereas proceedings under S. 476 are taken on grounds of public policy to punish the complainant for making a false charge—7 S. 10. 10 S. 162 21 M. 237. 27 M. 59 30 C 123 (F. B.) 15 B. R. 49

(10) Can the Court to which the case is referred under S. 476 proceed against persons other than named in the order?

66. Scott-Smith and Broadway JJ in 34 P. R 1917 have held that Ss 195 and 476 Cr P C merely remove the bar to the trial of certain offences and not to the trial of any offender. The Magistrate before whom the case is sent for trial is not barred dealt with by Chaudhuri and Newbould JJ, in 21 C. N 950 and although its decision was not directly necessary in that case as the offence did

[14 C N 367 40 N. 500]

Note.—It is of considerable interest to note that this very point was dealt with by Sir Barnes Peacock in Essan Chander Dutt v Parannath, 2 May 236—Marshall 270—W R (F. B.) 71 and he was of the same opinion. The decision in 23 C. 532 seems to indicate a contrary view.]

- 66A. The case is sent to nearest Magistrates, not necessarily all the offenders.—Under S. 476 Cr. P. C it is the Case which is to be sent

(6) Appellate Court may proceed under S. 476 Cr. P. C.

60. When an appeal is preferred to a District Judge and is disposed of according to law, the District Judge is fully competent to grant any sanction under S. 476 in respect of any offence that may have been committed in the case—20 Cr. 202 (Pat) 32 B 184 16 C J 589 See 1 A 17 (T.B.) (82) A N 84 1 Rat 683 But see 10 C. N 1091

Note.—The High Court in revision can set aside an order under S. 195 Cr P C and itself take proceedings under S. 476 Cr P. C in 11 A J 127

(7) Condition precedent to application of the Section.

61. (1) 'Sec 476 requires that the Court, Civil, Criminal or Revenue, making the reference to the Magistrate shall be of opinion that there is ground for enquiry into the offence in respect of which the case is sent to the Magistrate. As laid down in 10 N 177, this opinion must be a judicial opinion founded on evidence'—[Per Drake Blochman J C in 21 Cr 310 (N)] Before a Court is justified in making an order under S. 476 Cr P. C directing the prosecution of any person, it ought to have before it direct evidence fixing the offence upon the persons whom it is sought to charge, either in the course of the preliminary enquiry referred to in that section, or in the earlier proceeding out of which the enquiry arises

16 C 730 14 C. N 334 21 Cr 675 (C) 21 Cr 601 (P) 5 A 62 (01) A N 59.

62. (2) The offence must be committed before the Court or must be brought to its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, not by means of an application asking for action under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—13 P. W 1913. 13 P. R 1915.

63. Only requisite for jurisdiction of the Magistrate who subsequently tries the for enquiry to the nearest Magistrate and not necessarily all the offenders who might be concerned in the commission of the offence, the subsequent clause of the section referring only to such offender or offenders as might, at the time, be known and be within the grasp of the enquiring officer—43 B 300

(11) False complaints.

67. Where a Magistrate dismisses a complaint under S 203 merely upon the result of a police investigation, he should hold a preliminary enquiry under S 476 Cr. P. C. in order that the party complaining might have an opportunity of showing in the preliminary enquiry the truth of the bona fide character of the complaint, before directing a prosecution under S 211 I. P. C.—7 M. 189; 10 M. 232 (F.B.). 2 Weir 585 21 M. J. 795 6 C. 496 6 C 584-7 C. 87-8 C 435; 2 C. L. 313 8 C. L. 289 14 C 707 [F.B.], 33 C. L. 30 A. 52 23 P. R. 1886, also 6 A. 111. [Note.—When a charge is pronounced false by the police, proceedings should not be taken by the Magistrate, suo motu, until a reasonable interval has shown that the complainant accepts the result of the investigation, and takes no further step—7 C. L. 382

68. Prosecution under S. 211 where there is no complaint.—The police enquired into the case upon information being laid by the petitioner and made a report to the Magistrate that the case was maliciously false and asking for prosecution of the informant under S 211 I. P. C. The Magistrate thereupon called upon the petitioner to prove his case. He heard the witnesses the petitioner produced and then finding that the case had not been proved passed an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—Held that there is no provision for calling upon an informant to prove his case on the police report, and in the absence of a complaint—[See 17 C N. 824], hence the order must be set aside. Had the petitioner been called upon to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under S 211, I. P. C. no objection could have been taken to the order—21 Cr. 381 (Pat); see 21 Cr 416 (A)

(12) Miscellaneous rules of practice.

69. Nearest Magistrate.—does not include a successor-in-office—[21 Cr 29 (Pat)]
70. Magistrate to whom the case is sent cannot order preliminary enquiry under

S. 202 Cr. P. C.—See VIII Powers of the Magistrate to whom the case is sent for trial

71. Omission to direct accused to be taken to nearest Magistrate.—The omission to at once direct the accused to be taken before the nearest first class Magistrate, under the provisions of the first clause, is at most an irregularity which is expressly cured by S 537 (b) Cr P. C.—37 M. 317; Con—20 A 249
72. Contents of the order.—An order under S 476 of the Crim Pro Code should disclose the materials upon which it was based; such an order is a judicial order and if it does not show the basis upon which it was passed, it is liable to be set aside in revision—21 Cr 633 (Pat) (1918) Pat 352. See 39 A. 367. 1 C 450
73. Filing of complaint cannot be delegated.—A Deputy Commissioner cannot delegate the filing of a complaint to the Public Prosecutor where he himself can file it—13 P R 1915. 19 P. R 1917. 38 B. 642 (648) But See 2 Weir 586
74. Case cannot be sent to a third class Magistrate to hold preliminary enquiry.—7 M 189 See 15 M. 131.
75. Quia non tenetur accusari— investigated.—13 W R. 45 Con 4 N. P 86

76. Taking security pending drawing up of proceedings.—A Sessions Judge cannot take security from a witness (who, he considers has perjured himself) to appear at a future date before him to answer charges yet to be framed under S 193 I. P. C. He should take immediate action—5 C. N 630
77. Submission of case to District Magistrate for orders.—An Assistant Collector of the second class trying a rent suit came to the conclusion that the plaintiff had committed an offence under S. 193 I. P. C. and thereupon submitted the record to the "District Collector" for starting a case under that section. The District Collector ordered the initiation of a case under S 193 I. P. C. and made it over for decision to a first class Magistrate, held (1) the order of the Assistant Collector for submission of the record did not amount to an order under S 476 Cr P. C., but his intention was to make a complaint either under S. 193 or 476 Cr P. C. to the Collector of the District for action under the Code of Criminal Procedure—[See 17 C N. 824]

III. "COURT"—MEANING AND SCOPE.

(1) Does the term include Successor-in-office?

78. This point has given rise to a great conflict of rulings necessitating the reference to a special Bench of seven Judges of the Calcutta High Court in 37 C 642 (S.B.). In this ruling the following dictum has been laid down. The word 'Court' in S. 476 Cr. P. C. is to be understood as bearing its natural meaning with the sense of continuity; it implies notwithstanding any change of officers, thus definitely overruling 34 C 551 (F.B.) and settling the point so far as at least the Calcutta High Court is concerned. The following rulings pro and con indicated below will show the conflict of rulings by different Courts:

79. Note.—A Magistrate who has succeeded the Magistrate who tried and finally disposed of the case in the course of which an alleged offence under S. 209 I P C has been committed, has no jurisdiction to make an order in the case under S. 476 Cr P C. He can do so only if the proceedings had been pending when he took over charge. His proper course would be to grant sanction under S. 195—[4 Pat W 141] A successor cannot act suo motu, when his predecessor closed the case without taking any action under the section [2 Weir 597]

Continuation of proceedings.

- 79A. (1) Means proceedings taken so immediately after the proceedings in the course of which the offence has been committed before or brought to the notice of the Court as to make it really a continuation of the same proceedings—32 M 49 (F.B.)
- 79B. (2) When the order is made in such circumstances that it can be said to have been a continuation of the proceedings in which the offence was committed, it must be set aside—8 M T 61
- 79C. (3) An order under S. 476 is illegal in the absence of anything to show that it is a part of the proceedings in the trial in which the alleged offence was committed—6 M T 92
- 79D. (4) To justify action under S. 476 it will suffice if it is taken with reasonable promptitude; i.e. so shortly after the conclusion of proceedings as to make it practically the continuation of the same proceeding—(12) M N 1206
- 79E. (5) The use of the word "Court" instead of either Judge or Magistrate shows that the Legislature intended that in dealing with cases of this nature the continuity of jurisdiction should be maintained, though the personnel of the officers was changed—12 Cr. 521 (U B)

(2) The test.

80. The proper test for ascertaining whether an officer is a Court or not, is whether he has power to record evidence and to come to a judicial determination on the evidence so recorded.—25 M. J. 123 27 M. J. 227 36 M. 72 24 M. 121 See 32 M. J. 462

(3) Revenue officers.

81. (1) Revenue officer acting under S. 46 of the Code Land Revenue Act is merely a Revenue officer as defined in S. 4 (9) of U. P. Act III of 1901 and not a Revenue Court within the meaning of S. 476—13 O C 199
82. (2) A Revenue officer preparing a Record of Rights under Ss 164 to 167 of the Madras Estate Land Act is only discharging an executive function of Government and is not a Court within the meaning of S. 476 Cr P C—23 M. J. 123. 26 A. 382 3 C J 133. 28 C 471 But See 15 M. 135 24 M. 121 [Dist.]

84. Collector dealing with petition for refund of money.—A Collector dealing with a petition for a refund of the money alleged to have been collected from the petitioner and misappropriated by a Reddi addressed to him in his Revenue capacity is not a Court within the meaning of S. 476 Cr P C and is not authorised to direct the prosecution of the petitioner under S. 211 I P C.—(15) M N 253

86. Deputy Collector making enquiries under S. 46 of the U. P. Land Revenue Act (III of 1901) is not a Revenue Court within the meaning of S. 476 Cr P C.—13 O C 199
- 86A. District Registrar.—A District Registrar as provided by S. 195 Cr P C is not a "Court" and has therefore no jurisdiction to make an order under S. 476 Cr P C—16 B R 946.

(4) Miscellaneous.

87. Magistrate dealing with a Police report under S. 173 Cr. P. C.—Where the police report (on a first information being laid under S. 154) is not under S. 157, so as to entitle the Magistrate to proceed under S. 159 Cr P C but under S. 173 Cr. P C he cannot investigate into the complaint and therefore cannot, under S. 476, make an order for prosecution of the informant under S. 211 I P C—43 C 1152 See 4 C N 311. 12 C N 575 37 C 250
88. District Magistrate acting in his executive capacity.—A Divisional Commissioner received a complaint against a Patwari. He sent the complaint to the Collector and District Magistrate for disposal. The latter sent the file of the case to his subordinate and asked him to take the evidence produced by the applicant and also of the Patwari and his witnesses and report whether there was any prima facie case against the Patwari. There being a report that there was no prima facie case against the Patwari,

He allowed the matter to be dropped, but ordered the prosecution of the complainant under S. 152 Cr. P. C., vid. that the District Magistrate was acting merely as an executive officer and there was no judicial proceeding within the meaning of S. 476 Cr. P. C.—15 A. J. 634

90. Mamlatdar's Court.—Constituted under Bombay Act II, of 1906 is a Civil Court within the meaning of S. 476 Cr. P. C.—15 B. E. 3 137 4 B. R. 970; 9 B. R. 506; 14 B. E. 947

91. Presiding officer transferred to some other duty ceases to be so and cannot issue orders under S. 476 in respect of a case which is tried as the presiding officer of the Court after the transfer. 1 A. J. 315.

92. "Divisional officer."—Orders under S. 4 Cr. P. C. can be passed only by a Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court. An order purporting to be one passed by a "Divisional Officer" that is by the Deputy Collector to whom a Tehsil before whom the alleged false statement was made was subordinate, is ultra vires.—(17) 2 W. 27.

IV. JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS.

(1) General Principles.

93. The test.—The test which has to be applied to a particular proceeding before a Court to determine whether it is or it is not a judicial proceeding for the purposes of S. 476 is whether in the course of that proceeding the judge has power legally to take evidence on oath, not whether he has actually taken such evidence. 37 C. 22 50 S. B. R. 589 24 M. J. 123 27 M. J. 227 32 M. J. 402 24 M. 121; 36 M. 72.

Enquiries in the nature of Departmental enquiry.

94. (1) Enquiry held by a District Registrar into a complaint against the conduct of a Sub-Registrar is a departmental one and not a judicial proceeding within S. 476 10 C. N. 222

95. (2) A departmental enquiry into a complaint made against a Sub-Magistrate by the District Magistrate is a purely executive matter and is not

99. Note.—A magistrate making further enquiry after receiving a report from the police officer. He had referred the case for investigation is not in a stage of judicial proceedings within the meaning of S. 476 5 B. R. 589; 5-15 M. E. 29 M. 69.

(3) Preliminary enquiries under S. 202 Cr. P. C.

100. It is doubtful whether an investigation under S. 202 Cr. P. C. can be regarded as a judicial proceeding and may be used for supporting an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—See also 14 J. 20 Cr. 515 (p); See also 39 M. 750 (F. B.) 21 M. J. 795; (15) U. B. II 91 [(17) U. B. I D. 1].

[Note.—The Code does not permit a Magistrate to refer a complaint to another Magistrate for enquiry and report. An order under S. 476 made by the Magistrate's order is a case which will not be considered.—41 C. 17.]

to whom the case has been transferred, ordered the prosecution of a witness for giving false evidence before the original Court, but that deposition was not put in evidence, in the trial before the second Magistrate, nor was the person himself examined, held that he could not direct the prosecution of the witness, as the offence did not come to his notice in the course of a judicial proceeding (192) 2 Weir 598

101. Proceedings cannot be started on the result of the counter case in another Court.—J. and F. presented counter complaints against each other before the Subdivisional Magistrate who referred F's complaint to a subordinate Magistrate and retained J's on his own file. The subordinate Magistrate convicted F. Thereupon the Subdivisional Officer, without adjudicating judicially upon J's complaint, directed his prosecution under S. 476 Cr. P. C. Held that S. 476 does not contemplate that the proceeding should be based upon what has occurred in another Court.—1 Pat W. 540

134. False complaint.—When the offence of instituting a false complaint was committed before the police and not the Magistrate, the latter cannot on a police report proceed under S 476. The proper course in such a case is to direct the police to lodge a complaint. 7 C J 371 33 C 30 See 30 A 52 See Note No 67 above.

V. STAGE AT WHICH AN ORDER UNDER S. 476 CAN BE MADE.

137. Either at the close of proceedings or shortly afterwards.

- (1) An order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. should be made either at the close of the proceeding or so shortly thereafter that it may be reasonably said that the order is part of the proceeding—31 M 140 (F. B.) 34 C 551 (F. B.) See 37 C. 642 (S. B.)
- (2) The power conferred by S 476 Cr P C can be exercised by the Court only in the course of the judicial proceeding or at its conclusion or so immediately after as to make it really the continuation of the same proceeding in the course of which the offence was committed or brought to its notice—32 M 49 (F. B.). 8 M. T 81

138. Sub-Judice trials.—Where there has been an illegal withdrawal of a case at the sessions by the Government Pleader, the Sessions Judge acts prematurely in directing certain witnesses to be prosecuted—(56) A. N. 94

139. Subsequent to decision appeal.—A Sub-Judge has jurisdiction to pass an order under S 476, on the Judge in appeal declaring that an offence has been committed—e.g.—that the sale-deed had been antedated—(04) A. N. 170

140. Case not finally decided.—Action under S 476 Cr P. C. should not be taken until the case has been finally decided [3 C. J. 302] or the

(10) Miscellaneous.

135. Enquiry by subordinate Magistrate.—A Magistrate cannot direct a prosecution upon a report being submitted by a Magistrate who was deputed for enquiry. 33 C. 30; 7 C. J. 371 See 13 C. N. 395

N. B.—The latter alone is competent to draw up proceedings under S 476. See 36 C. 72: 10 C. J. 564

138. Action on a petition presented by a Vakil.—A Magistrate cannot take action against a pleader who has presented to him a petition containing imputations on him in regard to an illegal detention of his client, inasmuch as the offence was not committed in the course of a judicial proceeding nor was it brought under his notice in the course of such proceeding

complaint has been finally determined 4 C J. 85 See 3 C N 758

141. After disposal of application.—A Magistrate who has already disposed of an application for transfer, cannot take action under S 476 Cr P C against the applicants for offence under S 193—7 N 65.

142. What is a premature order.—An order made before the case has been disposed of and before the person prosecuted had an opportunity to show that he had not committed any offence is premature and wrong

(12) M. N. 400

143. Order made before the Bench.—Where the commission of an offence has been discovered by a Court after the judicial proceedings have terminated, but at a time when the facts were fresh in the mind of the Judge, can he pass an order under S 476 Cr P C.—The Full Bench answered the question in the negative following the decisions in 32 M 49 (F. B.) and 31 M 140 (F. B.) [Though Aylmer J remarked that had the matter been res integra, he should concur in the dissenting judgment of Miller J. in 32 M. 49 (F. B.)]

VI. DELAY IN INSTITUTING PROCEEDINGS.

(1) Action must be taken promptly.

144. (1) Action under S 476 Cr. P. C. should as far as possible be prompt and expeditious 37 C 612 (F. B.) 7 S 187 (Per Boyd J. J. C.) 18 Cr. 331 (L. B.)

145. (2) An order under S 476 would be bad if it were passed after a long time even if the presiding officer were the same. It should be made either in the course of the judicial proceeding in which the alleged offence was committed or at its conclusion or so soon after it as to make it really a continuation of the same proceeding—34 C 551 (F. B.), 13 C. N. 395 See also 40 C 144: 11 N 36 88 P L 1916

146. (3) The words of S 476 contemplate immediate

284 (M.)

148. (5) An order under S 476 passed by a District Munsiff, after a delay of 19 days and at the suggestion of the District Judge is illegal—10 M. T. 333 20 Cr. 226 (Pat). But See 32 B 184: 37 A 344: 34 A 393: 20 Cr 286 (C).

(2) Case law.

149. (1) "Such a restricted interpretation [see Note No 145 above] does not seem, however, to be justified by the language of S 476 of the Code, for there is nothing in it to limit the exercise of that power within any period or at any particular time. The power can be exercised at any time, when an offence is committed before a Court in a judicial proceeding, or when the commission of it is brought to its notice or in the course of that proceeding or in any other. The discovery of the commission of such an offence may not be brought to the notice of the Court before which it was committed, till an enquiry is made in some cognate matter in any other judicial proceedings, and it would be multiplying the scope and intention of S 476 to hold that a Court would not be competent to deal with such a commission, unless a discovery is made in the judicial proceeding in which the offence was committed"—5 O J. 70 See 6 A J 392 37 A 344 34 A 393 2 Pat J. 553: 32 B 184 7 S 184 29 P R 1916 24 T 30 (F.B.)
150. (2) "There does not appear to me to be anything in the wording of the section or in the reasons for its enactment to hold that officers acting under it are bound to make their enquiry either in the actual course of the judicial proceedings or so shortly thereafter as to make it really a continuation of those proceedings. The section appears to have been enacted not with the intention of protecting offenders against public justice from prosecution by the Courts, but on the contrary to facilitate, wherever and whenever those offences might come to notice, such prosecution by the Courts" [Per Hayward] "It seems to me that the section not only intends to, but is expressly worded so that it may confer on a Court a power to enquire into a case and to take action, whoever may prove to be the offender, although months or even years may elapse before it becomes known with any degree of certainty who the offenders are. [Per Heaton J]-43 B 300, see 21 Cr 519 (Pat)

- 150A. (3) There is nothing in the section which requires the Court to take action, if at all, immediately after the conclusion of the case in which the offences are said to have been committed or within any fixed time thereafter—29 P R 1916
151. (4) "In my opinion where in a particular case there has been undue delay in making an order under S 476, is a question which must be decided on the facts of each case, and where undue delay has been established, the High Court is entitled to set aside the order and to arrest further proceedings—Per Sultan Ahmed J. in 21 Cr 549 (Pat).
152. (5) An order under S 476 passed months after the termination of proceedings directing the prosecution of a person for having committed an offence in those proceedings, is bad if it appears that the Magistrate did not become cognizant of the offence during the pendency of the proceedings—21 Cr 633 (Pat),
153. (6) The fact that the Magistrate did not take any action against the complainant under S 476, when he acquitted the accused indicates very strongly that at the time, he did not think it necessary. When however, at the instance of the District Magistrate he takes action 14 months after, the belated order must be held not to represent his independent judicial opinion and such being the case, the prosecution should not be sanctioned—17 O N 290.
154. (7) It is highly desirable that where steps under S 476 Cr P C are to be taken, they should be taken as soon as possible. Where there is delay, the delay should be explained—34 A 695 see 11 Cr 20 (A)

VII. STAY OF PROCEEDINGS.

(1) General Rules.

155. Proceedings under S 476 Cr P C arising out of a case which has gone up in appeal should be stayed pending the disposal of the appeal—[20 C N 1146 (Pat)] Criminal proceedings for perjury or forgery arising out of a Civil litigation should not go on during the pendency of such litigation. The prosecution should be stayed pending the disposal of the appeal [16 B 729 34 C 848 30 M 226 see 8 C N xxxi 13 C N 398 13 Cr 1 (C) 14 C N xxxi]

(2) During Pendency of Civil Suit.

156. The High Court will not direct a trial to be adjourned pending the hearing of a lawsuit to establish the genuineness of the transaction on the basis of which a prosecution under S. 476 for perjury and forgery has been ordered 18 B 541 26 B 755 23 C 610 (Per Emmott J): 31 C 458-35 C 809: see 6 C. 308 5 W. R. 24 (Civ) 13 B. 109: 7 B H. 29: 21 C. 332 5 C J. 233;

5 C N. 44 16 C 730 20 C 349 13 M 144 21 M 124 16 A. 80 con 30 M 226

N. B.—The proposed amendment gives a discretion to the Magistrate if he thinks it expedient in the interest of justice to stay proceedings, until an appeal against the decision arrived at in the judicial proceedings is disposed of]

157. No hard and fast rule.—It would be a dangerous doctrine to lay down any hard and fast rule to the effect that a criminal trial or inquiry should, of necessity, be stayed, simply because a civil suit has been instituted between the parties, in which some or all the matters materially in issue in the criminal case would have to be determined, until the civil litigation was finally decided—13 C N 398, see 34 C 848

(3) Pendency of Civil appeal.

158. (1) It is not in itself a sufficient ground for staying criminal proceedings under S 476 [14 B H 104: 8 C L 148: 26 B 755]

159. (2) "The tendency has been, whenever possible to secure a final adjudication by the Civil Court before the actual trial of the accused persons in a Criminal Court. I do not think however, that any direct authority can be quoted for interfering with proceedings by a subordinate Civil Court under S. 476 of the Crim. Pro. Code merely on the ground that an appeal upon the same facts is pending before the High Court—22 Cr. 236 (A) (05) AN 251. see however 26 M. 98 (F. B.)

(4) Session Judge cannot stay proceedings of a Civil Court.

160. A District Munsiff taking action under S. 478 Cr. P. C. remains, while exercising its powers under the Cr. P. C., a Civil Court and is not an inferior.

VIII. POWERS OF THE MAGISTRATE TO WHOM THE CASE IS SENT FOR TRIAL.

(1) Effect of change of Law.

163. "The substitution of the description "nearest" for "having power to try" in the 1872 Code is significant." [Per Shepherd C. J. in 16 M. 461]. It is not necessary that such Magistrate should be a Magistrate having jurisdiction over the division, in which the offence was committed.—Ibid: See also Rat 88; 32 M. 49 (F. B.) at p. 57; 1 C. J. 630; Con 1 S. 84 10 B. R. 28; 2 Weir 590 For the latest case See 20 Cr. 202 (Pat) [Note No 63 above]

(2) Meaning of "Nearest Magistrate".

164. Nearest Magistrate cannot be the very officer acting under S. 478.—An officer cannot himself try an offence under S. 174 I. P. C. in his capacity as a Magistrate when the offence has been committed before him in his capacity as a settlement officer [2 A. 405. See 12 W. R. 18 15 W. R. 89; 2 Weir 613].

[Note.—The rule will not apply when the officer committing the case for trial is the District Judge. A Sessions Judge has power to try a person for an offence punishable under S. 195 I. P. C. when he has given sanction as a District Judge for the prosecution under S. 195 Cr. P. C.—16 C. 766 (F. B.): See 7 C. N. 709; ('89) U. B. (97-'01) 61 (62)]

165. Nearest does not mean "geographically nearest."—The word "nearest" in S. 476 must be construed reasonably. The word does not necessarily refer to the Head-quarters of the Magistrate but has reference to the area of his jurisdiction—(02) 2 Weir 590

166. Nearest Magistrate does not include a successor-in-office [21 Cr. 29 (Pat)].

IX. POWERS OF COURTS GENERALLY.

(1) Powers of Courts acting under S. 476.

170. The Session Court—can try the case itself under S. 177 Cr. P. C. and need not proceed under S. 476.

Criminal Court within the meaning of S. 435 The Session Judge has therefore no power to stay the proceeding taken by the Munsiff—5 M. J. 226

(5) Effect of setting aside the original proceedings.

161. (1) Where the Sessions Judge set aside the order dismissing the complaint and ordered further enquiry but did not at the same time set aside the order under S. 476, the order under S. 476 remains good—21 M. J. 795
162. (2) If an order passed under S. 476 (1) Cr. P. C. directing an enquiry to be made by another Magistrate is set aside, it is just and proper that proceedings under S. 476 (2) before the Magistrate shall also cease—6 L. B. 49.

(3) Powers.

167. Powers of the Magistrate to whom the case is sent for trial.—(1) The expression "proceed according to law" in subs (2) of S. 476 Cr. P. C. requires the Magistrate receiving the reference to proceed under Chapters XVIII to XXI of the Code according to the nature of the offence supposed to have been committed. He has no jurisdiction to order an investigation under S. 202 Cr. P. C.—[21 Cr. 310 (N)] See 7 B. H. 29] (2) But he is competent to discharge the accused under S. 253 supra, if in his opinion the evidence against the accused is not sufficient to warrant their committal [5 B. II. (C. C.) 41] (3) Where the order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. is clearly without jurisdiction the Magistrate may dismiss the complaint [10 M. T. 389] (4) He cannot, while acquitting the accused direct compensation to be paid under S. 250 Cr. P. C. [14 B. R. 1166]. (5) He cannot refuse to take action on the ground that the accused should have been committed to the Sessions under S. 478 [7 B. H. 29] (6) He cannot return the case to the Civil Court. [3 B. L. 47 7 B. H. (C. C.) 29]

168. No jurisdiction to question the validity of the order.—

(1) A Magistrate to whom the case is sent under S. 476 (1) is bound to proceed with the case as provided by S. 476 (2). He cannot acquit the accused on the ground that there was no sanction as required by the law—31 C. 664; See 26 B. 753. 13 B. 109 7 B. II. (C. C.) 29

(2) Misdescription of the Magistrate to whom a case is sent as "Collector" is not a ground for

172. Munsiff.—A Munsiff proceeding under S 476 Cr. P. C cannot, as a judicial officer, direct the trial of a person who has committed an offence under S 500 I. P. C and ask the Magistrate to deal with his order directing a trial as a complaint—6 C J 713

(2) Superior Court.

(i) Cannot.

173. (1) It cannot interpose and order an inferior Court to proceed under S 476—6 A. J. 924

(ii) Can.

176. Can, on appeal against an order by a subordinate

Court refusing sanction, pass orders under S. 476 read with S 195 Cl (6)—32 B. 184.

(3) Appellate Court.

177. Change in the law.—By inserting S. 476 B the Amending Act proposes to provide for [an application to a superior Court as defined by sec 195 (3) against a complaint made under S. 476 (1) and the superior Court can direct the withdrawal of such complaints. The effect will be to render obsolete the following rulings (02) 22 A. N. 202 13 B 109 13 M. 144

[N. B.—the rulings in 16 A 80—(94) A. N. 9: 9 Cr. 181=1 I C 220, will be rendered obsolete]

179. A District Judge cannot—make an order under S 476 in a case tried by a Munsiff upon an application by the defendant for sanction to prosecute a witness—16 A 80

X. COMPLAINTS.

(1) General rules.

180. (1) A complaint must be made in writing.—See 476 (1)
181. (2) Order not strictly falling within S 476 (1) may be treated as a complaint and action can be taken on it as such—26 A 514 See 23 A 249
182. (3) Subs (2) of S. 476 Cr. P. C. indicates the procedure,—which is to be followed when an order under subs (c) has been made—32 M 49 (F.B.)
183. (4) S 476 and 195 Cr P C must be read together and the former section prescribes the procedure to be adopted by a Court when making a complaint 32 M. 49 (F.B.) 7 A 871 (F.B.) 9 C P 26 See Rat 895 31 M 140 17 M J 584 (F.B.) [Per Miller J.]

185. What does not amount to a complaint.—Where in a case of fraudulent execution of decree, the Court did not grant sanction under S 195 or take action under S 476 Cr P. C but merely addressed a letter to the District Magistrate in which he stated all the facts and concluded by soliciting orders in the case, held that the letter did not amount to a complaint within the meaning of S 476 Cr. P. C—40 A. 641.

188. False statement alleged must be specified.—There must be indication of a specific charge and of the particular statements alleged to be false [1 C 450] A Court directing the prosecution of a witness for perjury under S. 476 Cr P C must specify the statements in respect of which the offence is alleged to have been committed. The object of specifying the offence and the occasion when the offence is committed is to give not only notice to the accused but also to the trying Court of the specific offences against the accused [4 Pat W 41 39 A 367]
189. Form of the complaint.—Where the Judge of Mainpuri passed the following order "I hereby complain against R R Son of G B, Brahman of Kailhal, that he on the 15th of July 1912, filed two false and forged bonds in suit No 337 of 1912 in the Court of Small Causes, Mainpuri, and thereby committed an offence under Ss 471-477 I P C and S 209 I P C. The papers will be sent to the District Magistrate with the request they may be made over to a competent Court for disposal", held, that this amounted to a complaint under S 4 (b) Cr P C. It was not a sanction given under S. 195 or S 476 Cr P C.—12 A. J. 881
190. What the order should contain.—An order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. should clearly specify the exact charges against the accused, and should not leave the meaning of the Judge in doubt.—8 S. 179. 1 C. 430 (30) A. N. 119

191. The order must show that it was part of the proceedings.—An order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. is one made without jurisdiction, in the absence of anything to show that it was part of the proceedings in the trial in which the offence was committed.—6 M. 792 [31 M. 140 (F.B.) 32 M. 49 (F.B.) Fd.]

XI. REVISION.

(1) Order cannot be quashed because civil suit filed.

192. High Court cannot quash a prosecution based on an order under S. 476 or 478 Cr. P. C. simply because a regular suit has been filed, to establish the genuineness of the transaction forming the subject-matter of the prosecution—18 B. 551; 23 C 610

(2) Who may apply for revision.

- 192A. An application under S. 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code to interfere in revision with an order passed under S. 476 Criminal Procedure Code, can only be made by a party aggrieved thereby, that is to say, the person whose prosecution has been ordered—21 Cr 846 (N)

(3) Orders by Civil and Revenue Courts.

193. There is a great conflict of rulings as to the powers of revision of the High Court, of orders under S. 476 Cr. P. C. particularly when passed by Civil or Revenue Courts. Out of the great mass of rulings it is possible however to construct 4 general principles. They are as follows—

194. (1) The High Court cannot interfere under S. 439 Cr. P. C. with an order under S. 476 passed by a Civil Court. It can do so only under S. 115 (C P. C.—S. 622 (old C. P. C.)

See also 9 N. 184. 4 N. 140 for Nagpur ruling].

195. (2) The High Court cannot interfere with orders passed by a Revenue Court under S. 476 in the exercise of its Revisional jurisdiction under S. 439 Cr. P. C.—40 G 477 (F.B.). 32 M. 49 (F.B.); (07) A. N. 277.

[Note.—In (07) A. N. 277, it was held that the only authority which could interfere was the Board of Revenue.—But in 10 C 477 (F.B.) the High Court decided that it had power to interfere under S. 115 Cr. P. C. or S. 15 of the High Court's Act]

198. Orders by Revenue Courts.—The High Court has no power to interfere in revision with an order passed by a Collector, under S. 476, but an application for revision should be filed before the Board of Revenue—(07) A. N. 277

199. Order passed by an Income-tax collector is not open to revision under S. 439. 3 S 86.

200. High Court cannot interfere with the order of a District Registrar under 476 Cr. P. C.—35 A. 109

(4) Order by a Small Cause Court.

201. The High Court has no power under S. 439 of respect of a statement made by him before that Court, nor can such an order be interfered with under S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.—16 A J 921

(5) Power to interfere at an Interlocutory stage.

202. Where the lower Court called upon a complainant to show cause why he should not be prosecuted under S. 182 I P. C. without giving him an opportunity of having the complaint enquired into, held the High Court had power to revise the order, although no final order directing the prosecution of the accused had been passed.—22 Cr. 81 (A)

(6) Grounds on which the High Court will interfere.

203. Before an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. can be revised it must be clear that the opinion formed by the lower Court in regard to the propriety of a prosecution was not a real opinion but that "the Court acted on merely fanciful grounds, on grounds so empty, so obviously wrong that it could not be said to have formed a serious judicial opinion at all."—21 Cr. 846 (N) 9 N. 104; 23 A. 349

(7) When the High Court will or will not interfere.

204. (1) The High Court ought not to interfere with an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. unless it can be shown to be perverse.—9N. 184. 10 N. 177; 22 Cr. 151 (N)
205. (2) The High Court should not exercise its power of revising an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. where the Court below has arrived at a judicial opinion on evidence that there is ground for enquiring into "an offence referred to in S. 195" merely because the High Court might disagree with that opinion.—14 N. 16

206. (3) The High Court will interfere, under S. 115 Civil Pro. Code or under S. 107 of the Government of India Act 1915, with an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. by a lower Court, only in exceptional cases.—32 M. J. 402

207. (4) When an order under S. 476 was made apparently on insufficient grounds, and no further action was taken in respect of it by the Court making it for more than one year, held that this was a Case in which the revisional powers of the High Court might be properly exercised.—(01) A. N. 177.

(8) Miscellaneous.

208. Sessions Judge.—A Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to revise an order of a Magistrate passed under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—34 C. 42 20 Cr. 413 (Pat). 23 M. 205
209. Power to pass the proper order.—High Court as a Court of Revision has power to pass the proper order which the District Mansiff ought to have made and has power to grant the necessary sanction.—25 M. J. 393

XII. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Offence under S. 228, P. C. (contempt of Court.)

210. The Court in which an offence under S. 228 P. C. is committed should itself try the offender then and there, and pass orders under that section.—6 C. J. 713

(2) Presidency Magistrates.

211. Under the amended code, the Chief Presidency Magistrate has power to take action under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—[See S. 476 (2)]
This was not the case formerly—Sec. 9 B. E. 1160-3 C. J. 357.

(3) Further enquiry cannot be ordered where the Magistrate after dismissing the case has made an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.

212. A Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to direct a further enquiry into a case in which after discharging the accused, the Magistrate has passed under S. 476 Cr. P. C. an order for the prosecution of the complainant under S. 211. I. P. C.—15 Cr. 1 (C); 15 Cr. 16 (C).

(4) No appeal against an order refusing to take action under S. 476 Cr. P. C.

213. A District Judge has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal against an order of a Mansiff refusing, on the application of a party, to take action under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—12 A. J. 6-4.

(5) Power of Civil Bench to revise orders under S. 476 Cr. P. C.

214. A Division Bench of the High Court dealing with a Civil business of a group has jurisdiction to deal with an order under S. 643 Civil Pro. Code, made by a civil court in that group. Such Bench may also take cognizance of an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. if such case has been transferred to the Bench by an order of the Chief Justice.—23 C. 532.

(6) No power to review order.

215. In a case of assault the Magistrate while acquitting the accused remarked that a prosecution for perjury would be a fit punishment for the complainant but he would leave it to the private party, but subsequently upon the application of the accused passed an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—held—that the latter order amounted to a review of the former and must be set aside.—10 M. T. 399.

(7) Cognate Sections.

216. An order under S. 476 cannot be made the basis of a trial in accordance with S. 478 Cr. P. C.—11 P. E. 1870.

(8) Witnesses.

217. Offences mentioned in cl. (c) S. 195 Cr. P. O. must be committed by a party to the proceeding but the scope of S. 476 is not so restricted, and applies to witnesses of parties.—32 M. 49 (F. B.) See 15 B. 541.
218. Arrest of witness.—S. 476 does not permit a Magistrate to arrest a witness, who has in his opinion fabricated false evidence with a view to commit him to the Court of Sessions. If he is satisfied that there is ground for enquiry into any offence referred to in S. 195 and if he thinks that no further preliminary enquiry is necessary, send the case to the nearest First Class Magistrate.—3 B. R. 185.
219. Prosecution for perjury.—It is unusual and improper procedure for the appellate Court to order prosecution for perjury in the Court on materials which are not a Court and which the witness had no to explain while in the box.—10 C. N

477. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 444, a Court of Session may charge a person for Power of Court of Session as to such any offence referred to in section 195 and committed before it, or offences committed before itself brought under its notice in the course of a judicial proceeding, and may commit or admit to bail and try such person upon its own charge.

(2) Such Court may direct the Magistrate to cause attendance of any witnesses for the purposes of the trial.

Notes.

1. Action under S. 477 is discretionary.—S. 477 is an empowering section and authorises a Court of Session, when an offence referred to in S. 195 Cr. P. C. has been committed before it or brought under its notice as mentioned in the Section, to charge the offender and to commit or admit to bail and try him upon its own charge. The word "may" in S. 477 ought not to be read as "must". [28 C 434]

2. Trial should not be summary.—"Sec 477 grants a power which is very seldom exercised. It gives the power to a Court of Session to charge a person for any offence referred to in S. 195 and committed before it. It further gives the power to commit for trial or admit to bail and to try the person for the charge it has framed, but the section nowhere lays it down that the trial is to be a summary trial nor does the section anywhere demand a decision which should be more prompt and speedy than that of any ordinary trial. The very powers granted in that section to a Court of Session are so unusual, that it seems to me it is the bounden duty of any Court exercising them, to be at pains, to give the accused a fair and impartial trial, in view of the fact that the Court has already had before it a certain amount of evidence upon which it may have already formed an opinion."—Per Tudball J. in 41 A. 107.

3. Change of Law.—S. 473 of the Code of 1872, laid down that "no Court shall try any person for an offence committed in contempt of its own authority." The term "contempt" included not only offences under Chapter X of the Penal Code but all contempts of Court [1 B 339. See 10 B H 424; Rat 70. 2 A. 405]. The prohibition in S. 473 extended to the offence of giving false evidence [1 B 311 7 M H (appx) xviii But see 2 Weir 608] and to offences described in ss. 467, 468 and 469 of the Cr. P. C. 1872 [7 M H (appx) xvii]. The prohibition which was probably intended by the Legislature to apply to Magisterial Courts, [See 1 M. 305], was by reason of the general terms in which it was couched, held applicable to Sessions Courts as well [1 B 311 11 B H. (C O) 98. 1 C 570 21 W R 37 3 M. 254. See 3 M 351; 5 C 184 (187) 2 A 101]. The term "try" was however held not to apply to appeals from conviction,

S. 487 post.] This was a power which the Sessions Court enjoyed under the Code of 1861, S. 172 [12 W. R. 69-31] but of which it was unintentionally deprived by the Code of 1872. The phrase "in the course of a judicial proceedings" is taken from the judgment of Norman J in 12 W. R. 69. As to the law as it stood before—See 6 A. 103. 14 A. 354. (1897) U B. (197-01): 127 (130).

4. S. 477 applies only to offences committed before itself.—S. 477 of the Code of Criminal Procedure deals with cases which transpire before the Court of Sessions, itself, and in which the Sessions Judge is in a position to declare without any further enquiry that a person against whom action is necessary under that Section, has in fact committed an offence mentioned in S. 195 Cr. P. C. [5 C N. 630: 12 W. R. 31]. Where a witness made a statement before the Sessions Court which contradicted that made by him before the committing officer and no evidence is given to show which of the statements is true, it cannot under S. 172, Act XXV of 1861 (=S. 477), be said that an offence has been committed under the cognizance of the Sessions Court [12 W. R. 69. O. S. 172. O S. 206 See 3 B. L. (A. C) 35].

5. Power of Sessions Judge to try offences committed before him as District Judge.—A Sessions Judge has power to try a person for an offence punishable under S. 196 I P. C. when he has as a District Judge, given sanction for the prosecution [16 C. 776 (F. B.): 7 C N 708 (87) U B (1897-1901) 127, 6 B 479; 15 B R 104 But See G. A. 103]

6. Can provisions of S. 474 Cr. P. C., convicted him for perjury. Held, that the reference to the Judge

P. C.—6 A. 103.

7. Should the case be transferred when Judge has already formed strong opinion?—It has been held in (82) 2 Weir 608 that an accused person for any offence referred to in S. 195 committed before itself—a power which is peculiar to that Court [See 8 C. N. sec. 1. See this section is an exception to the general rule that no Court shall try a person for an offence committed in contempt of its own authority. Where the offence of fabricating false evidence has been committed in the Sessions Court, there is nothing illegal in a Sessions Judge trying it and the fact that the Sessions Judge had expressed an opinion prejudicial to the accused is no ground for the transfer of the case, as that is a circumstance which the law necessarily contemplates when it authorises a Sessions Court to try a case. The Calcutta High Court has taken a different view in 3 C N cclxxviii and the Allahabad High Court in (87) A N 139 in which Edge O J remarked "If I as a Sessions Judge, had directed a prosecution in consequence of a matter that appeared before me at a trial, I would much prefer not to be the Judge to try the prisoner for the offence which I had directed him to be prosecuted for, and would ask the High Court to transfer the case for trial to some other Judge."

8. Sessions Judge has jurisdiction only when he proceeds under this section.—Where an offence committed before a Sessions Judge in contempt of his authority is not taken up by him under the authority of S. 472 (=S 477) he cannot try it notwithstanding that it is exclusively triable by a Court of Session [(82) 2 Weir 609 (87) 2 Weir 609 See 14 A 354]

9. Is there any necessity for preliminary enquiry?—There is no provision in S. 477 Cr P C with regard to any enquiry [18 B R 284] This is a fact which is to be noted as distinguishing this section from S. 476 which expressly provides for a 'preliminary enquiry'. In Umesh Inre [5 C N 630] it is laid down that S. 477 deals with cases which transpire before the Court itself and in which the Sessions Judge is in a position to declare, without any further enquiry, that the person against whom action is necessary under that section has committed an offence. In (30) 2 Weir 601 however it has been held that where the facts do not make out any case as against the accused which would justify the Judge in committing without further enquiry under S. 477 he ought not to convict him on his own charge.

10. Procedure.—Charge must be framed—S 477 contemplates that there should be a charge upon which the complaint is based, in other words, the person accused of having committed the offence should know the specific nature of the accusation against him so as to be able to answer it.—See 5 C N 615 29 C 434 5 C N 630

11. Jurisdiction to hear appeals.—The jurisdiction of a Sessions Judge to hear an appeal from a conviction is not ousted by the fact that the same Court granted the sanction for the prosecution of the offence of which the appellant was convicted [(95) A N 225. But See 14 A 354]

[Note.—In (95) A N 225 the word "try" was held to include the hearing of appeals. The word "try" in S. 473 of the Code of 1872 was held not to include the hearing of an appeal—(82) A N. 46. See (79) 2 Weir 607 and Note No 3 above.]

12. S. 477 does not override S. 339.—There is nothing in S. 477 Cr P C to justify a conclusion that it is intended to override the last clause of S. 339 Cr P C so as to dispense with the sanction of the High Court when false evidence is given in a sessions trial by a person whose pardon has been withdrawn.—12 P R 1881

13. Power of High Court.—The High Court has power, in the exercise of its powers of revision under S. 297 of the Code of 1872 (=S. 439), to quash a commitment made by a Court of Session under S. 472 of that Act (=S. 477) [Per Stuart C J. Spankie J. dubitante—2 A 398.

14. —————
to answer charges not yet framed under S. 183, was not warranted by S. 477 Cr. P. C

478. (1) When any such offence is committed before any Civil or Revenue Court, or brought under the notice of any Civil or Revenue Court in the course of complete inquiry and commit to High Court or Court of Session. High Court or Court of Session, or such Civil or Revenue Court thinks that it ought to be tried by the High Court or Court of Session, such Civil or Revenue Court may, instead of sending the case under section 176 to a Magistrate for inquiry, itself complete the inquiry, and commit or hold to bail the accused person to take his trial before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be

(2) For the purposes of an inquiry under this section the Civil or Revenue Court may, subject to the provisions of section 143, exercise all the powers of a Magistrate; and its proceedings in such inquiry shall be conducted as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XVIII, and shall be deemed to have been held by a Magistrate

Notes.

Meaning of terms.

1. Application of the section.—The power of a Civil Court to commit a case to the Sessions is limited to cases triable exclusively by the Court of Sessions, and to such cases only when the offence charged has been committed before the Civil Court itself 4 R. 287.

2. (1) "Any such offence."—The words "any such offence" in S. 477 mean an offence referred to in S. 185 and not an offence qualified by the circumstances under which it is committed, that is as described in cl (2) of subsection (1) of S. 185, by a party to any proceeding in any Court [22 C. 1001 15 B 541 Com 15 M 221] It has therefore been held that where offences under Ss 476, 471, 193, 209 and 210 of the I. P. C. committed in Bengal were brought to the notice of a Munsiff at Agra, that the Munsiff had jurisdiction to proceed under S 478 of the Cr. P. C. and to commit the accused for trial before the Agra Sessions—[40 A. 116]

3. (2) "Brought under notice."—See 40 A. 116 noted above. But See 15 M. 224 in which it is laid down that the offence must have been committed competent to order the prosecution of the party

4. (3) Meaning of "as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of Chapter VIII."—"By this I understand that the Munsiff should have proceeded in the same way as a Magistrate would have done in enquiring into a case before commitment, i.e., he should have taken the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution in the presence of the accused persons, and then examined the accused, and having done this, he should have framed the charge sheet and after explaining the same to the accused persons should have recorded the order of commitment"—Per Sir P. C. Banerji J. in 40 A. 32 See 6 B. R. 575

5. Proceedings under S. 476 cannot be converted into those under S. 478.—A Munsiff came to the conclusion that a certain receipt filed by B was forged. He accordingly took action under S. 476 Cr. P. C. and passed an order to that effect and fixed a date for enquiry. B filed a written statement and the enquiry was adjourned. On the next date the Munsiff perused some records and again adjourned the enquiry. On the last date, he decided to commit the accused under S. 478 instead of sending them to a Magistrate under S. 476 Cr. P. C. Held that the procedure adopted by the Munsiff was illegal and the case should be deemed to have been committed to the Criminal Court under S. 476 Cr. P. C.—40 A. 32.

6. Preliminary enquiry absolutely essential.—A Civil Court has no power to order the commitment of persons for offences under Ss. 471, 465, 193 P. C. without holding the preliminary enquiry required by S. 474 (= S. 478) [22 W. R. 52 See 4 M. 227.] A Small Cause Court Judge, if it is his intention to proceed under S. 173 Cr. P. C. should complete the investigation, and either commit or hold to bail, the accused persons to take their trial before the Court of Session (1 W. R. 5)

7. Granting of sanction no bar to action under S. 478.—The granting of a sanction to a

1909-110 D. 343] The existence of a previous sanction granted to a private individual under S

195 upon which no action has been taken, is no bar to the institution of proceedings by the Civil Court under S. 478 [34 B. 88: See 29 M. 331 7 A. J. 991]

8. Discretion of the Civil Court to commit ground that the Subordinate Judge should have committed the case to the Court of Session by which the offence was exclusively triable.—[7 B. II (O. C.) 29]. But a Civil Court must choose one of the two modes of procedure. It cannot on failure of one adopt the other mode of procedure. A Subordinate Judge referred the case of the applicants under S. 476 Cr. P. C. to a First Class Magistrate, who discharged them under S. 209 Cr. P. C. Thereupon he proceeded against them under S. 478 Cr. P. C. Held that the procedure was illegal as it was clearly stated in S. 478 that the procedure therein prescribed is only alternative.—[Rat 939]

9. Assistant Judge taking cognizance under S. 190 (c) as a District Magistrate of an offence within the purview of S. 478.—An Assistant Judge before whom a false deposition is given is competent to take action under S. 478 or to transfer the case to himself as a Magistrate for enquiry. The fact that he purports to act under S. 190 (c) Cr. P. C. is immaterial, and even a formal defect is cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—9 B. R. 212.

10. Order under this section made on an under S. 478 the former title of a summary character and a Court proceeding under the section is not bound to hold an enquiry. In the case of the latter the enquiry has to be as nearly as possible under Ch. XVIII of the Code—6 B. R. 578.

11. Revision.—A District Munsiff acting under S. 478 Cr. P. C. is not an inferior Criminal Court and the Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to revise his proceedings under S. 135 Cr. P. C.—[6 M. J. 226] It was held in 15 M. 224 that the High Court has in revision the jurisdiction to set aside orders for commitment made in violation of the provisions of this section.

12. Order under S. 478 Cr. P. C. by a single Judge cannot be set aside under S. 15 of the Letters Patent.—No appeal lies against an order of commitment made under S. 478 Cr. P. C. by a Judge sitting on the original side of the High Court in the course of the trial of a suit except under S. 215 Cr. P. C. i.e. on a point of law. Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent is controlled by the specific provisions of S. 215 Cr. P. C.—[21 Cr. 25 (M)].

479. When any such commitment is made by a Civil or Revenue Court, the Court shall send the charge with the order of commitment and the record of the case to the Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or other Magistrate authorized to commit for trial, and such Magistrate shall bring the case before the High Court or Court of Session, as the case may be together with the witnesses for the prosecution and defence.

GENERAL NOTES ON PROCEEDINGS FOR CONTEMPTS OF COURT.

(See 480-487)

1. The object of providing Courts with the power to punish for contempts.

(1) "The power to punish for contempt is inherent in all Courts. Its existence is essential to the preservation of order in judicial proceeding and to the enforcement of the judgments, orders and writs of Courts and consequently to the due administration of justice."—Field J in Ex parte Robson 86 U. S. XXII, 205.

(2) "The summary power to commit and punish for contempts tending to obstruct or degrade the administration of justice is inherent in Courts of Chancery and other superior Courts as essential to the execution and to the maintenance of their authority and is a part of the law of the land" Gray C. J. in Cartwright 114 Mas, 230 (235)

Court in abusing parties who are concerned in cases here. There may be also a contempt of this Court in prejudicing mankind against persons before the cause is heard. There cannot be anything of greater consequence than to keep the streams of justice clear and pure that parties may proceed with safety both to themselves and their character.—Per Lord Hardwicke (Lord Chancellor) in Re St. James Evening Post.—26 Eng. Rep 653

3. Acts constituting contempt.—"Some of these contempts may arise in the face of the Court, as by rude and contumelious behaviour by obstinacy perverseness or perjuratio, by breach of the peace or any wilful disturbance whatever, others

extortion or injustice, by speaking or writing contemptuously of the Court or Judges, acting in their judicial capacity by printing false accounts or even true ones without proper permission of causes then depending in judgment, and by anything in short that demonstrates a gross want of that regard and respect which when once Courts of justice and witnesses of suppressing testimony or as is put in Shipworth's Case [(1847) 9 Q. B. 232] if witnesses are attacked frightened or deterred. Contempt may also be committed by publications concerning a pending cause, trial or judicial investigation calculated to prejudice or to prevent fair and impartial action which seek to influence judicial action by threats or other form of intimidation which reflect upon the Court, counsel, parties

480. (1) When any such offence as is described in section 175, section 178, section 179, section 180 or section 223 of the Indian Penal Code is committed in view or presence of any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court, the Court may cause the offender, whether he is a European British subject or not, to be detained in custody and at any time before the rising of the Court on the same day may, if it thinks fit, take cognizance of the offence and sentence the offender to fine not exceeding two hundred rupees, and in default of payment, to simple imprisonment

(2) Nothing in section 443 or section 444 shall be deemed to apply to proceedings under this section.

Notes.

1. Meaning of contempt of Court.—Any act done or writing published, calculated to bring a Court or a Judge into contempt, or to lower his authority, or to obstruct or interfere with the due course of justice or the lawful process of the Court, is a contempt of Court—33 B. 240 See Note No 3 under General Notes above.

2. Scope of S. 480.—It should be noted that the powers of a Court other than the High Court are circumscribed by the use of the expression "is committed in view of presence of any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court." The powers of the High Court as Supreme Court of Record are the same as in England not by virtue of the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code but by virtue of the common law of England which was introduced at the time of the establishment of the Supreme Court. The High Court has power to punish for contempts committed out of Court e.g., comments on proceedings pending in Court. It makes no difference whether the comments are made in writing or in speeches of public assemblies [See Suwendia Nath Banerjee 10 C 109 (P. C.) See Note No 2, under S. 485 infra].

3. S. 480 confined to offences enumerated in the section.—The accused was convicted under this section for "walking with creaking shoes" near the Court room. Held the Court acted illegally as it had the power to act under this section only if the accused had committed one of the offences enumerated therein [5 M. T. 256]. The offence under S. 174, I. P. C. is not within the purview of this section. A Magistrate cannot therefore take cognizance of such offence, (committed against his own Court), but is bound to send the case for trial before another Magistrate—[13 W. R. 66 14 W. R. 74 15 W. R. 86]. It was however held in 4 M. H. (np) 51 and 52 that a subordinate Magistrate who issues a summons may take cognizance of the offence of disobedience to that summons and convict the accused under S. 174 I. P. C.

3A. Section not applicable to Village Munsiffs.—The accused was charged under S. 224 I. P. C. with having intentionally insulted a village Munsiff while sitting in charge of a judicial proceeding. The Munsiff did not prefer any complaint nor sanction the prosecution. The accused was tried and convicted by a second class Magistrate who took cognizance of the case on a police report. Held that S. 480 and 482 do not apply to village Magistrates. Held also that although no complaint was made by the village Munsiff the defect was covered by S. 537—15 M. 131; but see (O.) AN 266.

4. Defamatory statements made in a petition.—(1) Where parties to proceedings make use of objectionable or defamatory expressions against the trying Magistrate either in the course of their pleadings or in a petition submitted by them, the proper course to be adopted by the Magistrate is to take proceedings against them for defamation, not in his capacity as a judicial officer but in his personal capacity, since the said statements cannot be said to be made in the view and presence of the Magistrate or with the object of intentionally insulting him as contemplated by S. 228 I. P. C.; the summary procedure in S. 480 does not apply to such cases—15 Mvs 9.

5. (2) In the course of the trial of a Criminal case against the accused, he presented an application containing some objectionable and defamatory expressions against the Court with reference to the conduct of the Court in another case brought by the accused against some other persons. On this the accused was proceeded against under S. 480 Cr. P. C. and sentenced under S. 228 I. P. C. for committing contempt of the Court in its presence. Held that the conviction was illegal, the use of the objectionable and defamatory words in the petition cannot be regarded as a contempt committed in the presence of the Court—582 P. L. 1904 See 34 P. R. 1869.

6. Scandalous allegations in a petition of transfer.—Where an accused person in making an application for transfer of a case pending against him inserted in such application allegations of a scandalous and defamatory nature concerning the trying Magistrate, held that there being no intention on the part of the applicant to insult the Court, but merely to procure a transfer of his case, the conviction under S. 228 I. P. C. was bad.—(198) A. N. 145.]

Offence under S. 228 I. P. C.

7. (1) Section 228 I. P. C. is not applicable to the trial of a case in which the accused is charged with an offence under S. 228 I. P. C.

or the objections untenable. There ought to be a spirit of give and take between the Bench and the Bar in such matters, and every little persistence on the part of a pleader should not be turned into an occasion for a criminal trial unless the pleader's conduct is so clearly vexatious, as to lead to the inference that the intention is to insult

Court's allowing the Court Inspector to use various insulting expressions and otherwise to annoy and interrupt him while conducting the defence cannot be said to be intentional interruption within the meaning of S 228 I P C—[O S 186]

8. (2) Provarication whether an offence under S. 228 I. P. C.—Although the refusal or neglect to return direct answers to questions does not necessarily constitute an offence under S 228 I P C.—[4 B. II G 7] or an offence under S 228 I P C is committed because the witness gives inconsistent evidence and gives his evidence reluctantly, thus taking up unnecessarily the time of the Court—[15 W R 5]. It cannot be laid down as a general proposition that no amount of provarication of a witness will constitute an offence under S 228 I P C [Rat 69. Cr R 16 3-71. Rat 473 10 B II 69 5 M. T. 286 See 13 C N 685 (P. C.)] A Court ought not to take serious notice of a mere laugh and hesitation in speaking—[4 M II 146]

9. (3) Disobedience of order.—To leave the Court when ordered to remain or to make signs from outside to a prisoner on his trial was held not to be an offence under S 224 I P C in 5 M II 13

- 10 (4) Person making frivolous bid at Court Sale.—A person who bids for an estate at a sale in execution of a decree knowing that he is not able to deposit the earnest money, obstructs the business of the Court and is punishable under S 228 P C—[W R (S. M) 3]

11. (5) Refusal to answer questions.—Where a witness does not merely prevaricate but persistently refuses to answer any question whatever put to him by the Judge, his conduct amounts to an intentional interruption of the proceedings within the meaning of S 228 I P C and S 480 Cr. P C—[14 P R 1918]

- 11A. (6) Refusal to repeat kalma.—Where a Mahomedan refused to repeat kalma in order to complete the oath, held that the accused could not be required to repeat kalma even though it formed part of the oath current in the district, and the conviction for contempt under S 480 Cr P. C was illegal—[20 P R 1902]

12. Contempt of Court.

W R 64] While the Tashildar was engaged date On the Tashildar pressing for immediate payment in full, accused was alleged to have abused him and on an order being given for his arrest, to have resisted such arrest. Held, that when the acts as described above were committed by the accused, the Tashildar was not sitting in any stage of a judicial proceeding and a conviction under S 228 P. C. and S 435 Cr P. C. [S 480] was untenable [40 P R 1881] A Tashildar not sitting as a Court but doing work under

S. 40 of the Land Revenue Act was insulted by the accused. Held that the Tashildar was not sitting in some stage of a judicial proceeding within the meaning of S 480 [30 P. R. 1886]. In an enquiry into a case of a breach of the peace by a Second-class Magistrate conducted merely to ascertain whether he should make a report to his official superior, a person who behaved insolently towards him. Held that the Magistrate could not be said to be exercising any powers conferred by the Code or conducting any proceeding in which evidence might be legally taken. Hence the offender could not be proceeded against under S 480—[2 Weir 605] A proceeding under this section instituted immediately after the reading out of the final order in the case (in the course of which the contempt took place) cannot be objected to on the ground that the judicial proceeding had terminated with the final order. [16 P R 1897]

- 12A. When S. 175 I. P. C. is in applicable.—

Where the production of a document is not necessary for the decision of a case in which the document is called for, the person failing to produce the document cannot be convicted under S 175 I P C [4 Pat W. 65 11 Cr, 20 (A): See 12 B 63] In order to sustain a conviction under S 175 I P C. the particular document must be specified in the summons, [(90) A. N 171].

Note.—Civil Courts should proceed in the manner prescribed by order XI r 21 and not under S 175 I P C—15 P W 1910

13. Contempts must be dealt with "before the rising of the Court."—The provisions of S 480 should be applied then and there, or at any rate before it rises, by the Court in whose view or presence, a contempt has been committed, if it considers that it can be properly and adequately dealt with under this section. The proper procedure is, when the Court cannot take up the matter at once, to detain the accused and to deal with matter before rising. Where the Magistrate postponed his final order for some days, in order to afford the accused an opportunity of showing cause, held the irregularity was cured by S 537 Cr P C—11A 361 6 C J 713 see 12 B 53

- 13A. Officer acting in dual capacity.—An officer before whom, while acting in a particular capacity an offence under S 224 I P C. is committed cannot in another capacity, take up and try the offence [12 W R 18]

14. Is it optional with the Court to act under the section or to prefer a complaint under S. 195?—In 13 B L (np) 40 it was held that a Sub-Registrar being competent to act under S 436 Cr. P C (S 480) with reference to an offence under S 224 I. P. C. committed in his presence, cannot charge the accused before an assistant Magistrate. The proceedings before the latter were quashed. But this ruling cannot be accepted as sound in view of cl. (b) of S. 195 Cr. P C. Supra

15. Can the High Court punish for contempts of Subordinate Courts?—[I feel to punish for contempt (of Mofassil Courts)".—Per Mookerji J [The matter is elaborately discussed both by Jenkins C. J. and Mookerji J. in 17 C. N. 1253 (S.B.) who dissent from the ruling in 21 M. J. 832 (F.B.). See also R. v. Lefroy 8 Q. B. 134 R. v. Brompton County Court Judge 62 L. J. Q. B. 604. Ex parte Bradley 74 U. S. XIX 214 Ex parte Tillinghast 29 U. S. VII 759

16. Punishment.—The power to punish for an offence under S. 228 I. P. C. is limited by the terms of this Section. The Magistrate cannot impose the full amount of punishment prescribed by S. 228 I. P. C. but should limit the punishment to a fine of Rs 200 with imprisonment, in default, of 30 days [2 Weir 603; See 6 M. H. 16] If the Court thinks the punishment ought to be more severe, it should act under S. 492 infra. [See also 10 W. R. 47]

17. Right of appeal.—A Sessions Judge cannot decline to interfere on appeal from an order under S. 480 Cr. P. C. merely because in his opinion "the matter is a mere trifle." He is bound to hear the appeal and to come to a finding whether the conviction is legal or illegal.

[Rat 978]

18. Imprisonment in default to be in Civil Jail.—Though this section does not in terms say that the imprisonment in default is to be in the Civil Jail, the offenders are generally sent to that jail. When a person is committed to jail for contempt, the Government is bound to supply him with rations in the same way in which they are supplied to the other prisoners in the jail—3 W. R. (Cr. Let) 21.

19. Civil suit against Magistrate taking

228 I. P. C. committed by the Appellant (Mookerji J.) by walking in view of the respondent with shoes on, while the latter was discharging his duties as a Magistrate and where it was found that the respondent had acted bonafide; held, that the respondent was justified in his action and that no suit could be maintained against him—9 M. T. 444

20. Form of Warrant.—As to form of warrant in certain cases of contempt when fine is imposed—See Sch. V. Form No. 38.

21. Brief History of the section.—In Sec. 1 of Act XXX of 1841, "Zillah or City Magistrate, Joint Magistrate or other officer under a Magistrate empowered to try a civil case or any superior or inferior Court of the East India Company was authorised to fine "all persons using menacing questions or expressions or otherwise obstructing justice" any amount not exceeding Rs 200 or in case such fine be not paid to be imprisoned for any period not exceeding one month

481. (1) In every such case the Court shall record the facts constituting the offence, with the Record in such cases. statement (if any) made by the offender, as well as the finding and sentence.

(2) If the offence is under section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, the record shall show the nature and stage of the judicial proceeding in which the Court interrupted or insulted was sitting and the nature of the interruption or insult.

Notes.

1. Record of statement.—In a proceeding for contempt it is fatal to the conviction if the Judge fails to record with the finding and sentence, the statement of the offender [Lekhraj v. Palee Ram 1 N. P. (Ed. 1873) 241]

2. Record must show nature and stage of

THE NATURE OF WHICH SHOULD ALSO BE STATED
[36 P. R. 1854, 12 W. R. 64]

3. Direction in S. 481 mandatory.—The directions in S. 481 are clearly mandatory, and the omission to record the particulars mentioned in the section, in any proceedings taken under S. 480 is fatal to such proceedings. [10 C. N. 1062]

4. Duty of the Court.—A Criminal Court inflicting a fine for contempt of Court should specifically record its reasons and the facts constituting the contempt with any statement the offender may make, as well as the finding and sentence. Where this course was not adopted, the High Court set aside the order—4 M. H. 229; See 13 C. N. 685 (P. C.). In re Pollard L. R. 2 P. C. 106

5. Is omission to record statement curable?—Although a failure to comply with the provisions of S. 481(2) Cr. P. C. is only an irregularity which may be cured by S. 537, it will not be condoned, when it cannot be gathered from the record what was the judicial proceeding or stage of judicial proceeding or stage of stage of judicial proceeding at which the offence was committed and when it is doubtful if the evidence established the fact that the interruption was intentional.—15 Cr. 621 (M) But See Note No. 3 above.

482. (1) If the Court in any case considers that a person accused of any of the offences referred to in section 480 and committed in its view or presence should be imprisoned otherwise than in default of payment of fine, or that a fine exceeding two hundred rupees should be imposed upon him, or such Court is for any other reason of opinion that the case should not be disposed of under section 480, such Court, after recording the facts constituting the offence and the statement of the accused as hereinbefore provided, may forward the case to a Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the same, and may require security to be given for the appearance of such accused person before such Magistrate, or if sufficient security is not given, shall forward such person in custody to such Magistrate

Procedure where Court considers that case should not be dealt with under section 480

(2) The Magistrate, to whom any case is forwarded under this section, shall proceed to hear the complaint against the accused person in manner hereinbefore provided

Notes.

1. Distinction between Ss. 480 and 482.—

Where, in punishing for contempt of Court, the summary procedure sanctioned by S. 163 (= S. 480) is followed, the Court must sit as a Court before which the offence was committed and not in any other capacity and is bound to take cognizance of the contempt on the day on which it was committed. In such a case the imprisonment cannot be added to fine as a punishment. In a case which is not dealt with in a summary manner, the offence must, under S. 163 (= S. 482), be tried by an officer other than the person before whom the contempt was committed.—[12 W. R. 18] Commitment to another Court is necessary in all cases of contempt save where such contempt is committed in the presence of the Court first taking notice of it and imprisonment without option of fine or fine in excess of Rs. 200 is deemed requisite.—[Rat '01 G M H (Ap) xvi]

2. Object of the Section.—“Section 163 (= 482, distinctly contemplates that the trial is to be by a judicial officer other than the person before whom the contempt was committed. There is nothing to warrant the inference that an officer before whom, while acting in a particular capacity, punishable under S. 223 P C can in another capacity take up and try the offence, an offence committed against himself. If he could do so, it would be in violation of that fundamental rule in the administration of justice that no man can be a judge in a case wherein he is interested.—Per Newman J in 12 W. R. 18 (21)

3. Bail.—In a case of contempt, the Court before which the offence is committed, is bound under

S. 163 C. P. (= S. 482) to accept bail if sufficient bail is tendered.—[12 W. R. 18] A detention in jail without reasonable cause will render the Court liable to an action in damages notwithstanding Act XVIII of 1850.—[11 W. R. 19].

4. Application for release.—When a person is in custody for contempt of Court, the Judge may order his release on bail.

5. Procedure.—Under S. 163 C P (= S. 482) of a Court before which the offence of contempt, under S. 179 P C is committed, considers that a sentence of imprisonment is called for, it should record a statement of the facts constituting the contempt and the statement of the accused, and forward the case to a Magistrate.—[1 W. R. 49].

jurisdiction [7 B H 102 5 B R 343] But where the inability to record the statement was due to the offender (a barrister) abruptly leaving the Court house, the omission was material.—[2 Weir 604]

6. Under S. 482, proceeding need not be drawn up the same day.—S. 482 does not require a Magistrate to draw up the proceedings on the same day that the offence is committed. The section need not be read along with S. 480.—35 C 161

483. When the Local Government so directs any Registrar or any Sub-Registrar appointed under the Indian Registration Act, 1877, shall be deemed to be a Civil Court within the meaning of sections 480 and 482.

When Registrar or Sub-Registrar to be deemed a Civil Court within sections 480 and 482.

Notes.

1. This Section is based on 13 B L (appt) 10=22 W. R. 10 which laid down that a Sub-Registrar is a public servant and proceedings before him are judicial proceedings under this section.

2. Scope of S. 483 Cr. P. C.—Although it appears from S. 483 Cr. P. C that the Local Government may constitute a Sub-Registrar Court for the purposes of certain sections it would, under the preceding portion of this section, be made if such conviction were a decree by such officer in his capacity as such Judge, and in other cases may be made to the District Judge, or, in the presidency-towns, to the High Court.

Note.

1. "Ordinary appealable"—means appealable in majority of cases"—[11 B 438 (440)] An order by a civil Court refusing an application to commit for contempt is appealable [25 C. 236]

487. (1) Except as proved in section 477, 480 and 485, no Judge of a Criminal Court or Magistrate, other than a Judge of a High Court * * * shall try any person for any offence referred to in section 195, when such offence is committed before himself or in contempt of his authority, or is brought under his notice as such Judge or Magistrate in the course of a judicial proceeding.

(2) Nothing in section 476 or section 482 shall prevent a Magistrate empowered to commit to the Court of Session of High Court from himself committing any case to such Court.

Notes.

1. Object of S. 487.—The prohibition in the section is a personal prohibition, the mischief to be prevented being that the same person should not decide a matter which he may have already prejudged. It does not refer to the office of the Magistrate or Judge before whom an offence of the class described in the section is committed, but only refers to the person of the Magistrate—1 M 305.

2. The prohibition in this section applies to all contempt of Court.—S. 473 (=487), which says that no Court shall try any person for an offence committed in contempt of its own authority, is not limited to offences falling under Chap. X of the Penal Code. It extends to all contempt of Courts.—1 B 3339 See 24 M 262. 12 W. R. 18 15 W. R. 89

Note.—This section is not intended to include offences which under the Penal Code are classes as offences against public justice in contradistinction to offences in contempt of the Court's authority. Nevertheless a Magistrate, before whom an offence under S. 196 I. P. C. has been committed, may not under S. 271 himself try the accused person for that offence—[1 A. 129]. The first part of the ruling in 1 A. 129 however is obsolete in view of the words "any offence referred to in S. 195" in S. 487.

3. As to the change of Law.—See Note No 3 under S. 477 Supra.

4. S. 487.—[11 B 438 (440)]

5. Judge of a High Court.—See Note No 1 under S. 485 Supra

6. Disobedience to lawful summons (S. 174 I. P. C.)—S. 174 I. P. C. is one of the sections referred to in S. 195 Cr. P. C. and having regard to the provisions of S. 487 Cr. P. C. therefore an offence under S. 174 I. P. C. cannot be tried by the officer whose order is disobeyed.—16 A. J. 432. 13 W. R. 66; 14 W. R. 74; 15 W. R. 2; 15 W. R. 88 1 Weir 82. 2 Weir 612 18 P. R. 1875

7. Disobedience to lawful order promulgated by a public servant.—A Magistrate who passed an order under S. 144 Cr. P. C. directing the petitioners "to abstain from going either to ply any ferry boat or to erect any bend on the khari etc" cannot, upon the order being disobeyed, in view of S. 487 Cr. P. C. take cognizance of the offence under S. 184 I. P. C.—23 C. N. 520 ('83) A. N. 222; 24 M. 262 1 B 339 10 B. H. 421 Rat 904. 13 C. N. cxxiii.

8. Offence under S. 207 I. P. C.—A Magistrate is debarred from trying a case under S. 207 I. P. C. when the offence was committed with reference to property attached by him under Ss. 88 and 89 Cr. P. C. and which came to his knowledge in the course of judicial proceedings.—21 Cr. 696 (0).

9. False complaint (S. 211 I. P. C.)—The Court which dismisses a complaint has no jurisdiction to try the complainant for preferring a false charge.—3 P. R. 1875 4 P. R. 1676

10. Offence under S. 175 I. P. C.—The ruling in ('89) 13 M. 24 to the effect that an offence under S. 175 I. P. C. does not come in under any of the sections sections expressly mentioned in S. 480 of the Code of 1849.

11. Offences under S. 193 I. P. C.—The rulings in 1 A. 162 and 1 A. 193 to the effect that the Magistrate before whom an offence under S. 193 I. P. C. is committed is himself competent to try the case were over-ruled in 1 A. 625 (F. B.) and dissented from in 1 B. 311. See also 10 B. H. 73 3 M. 251 7 M. H. (Ap.) 17 3 C. L. 599. 22 W. R. 40 The rulings in 18 W. R. 15 and 22 W. R. 49 are no longer good law. The rule applies also to an abetment of the offence [7 M. H. (Ap.) xxviii.]

[Note.—S. 195 (1) (b) has reference to an offence under S. 211 I. P. C. but only when such offence is committed in or in relation to any proceeding in Court.—12 P. R. 1905, See 3 A. 322.]

12. A Magistrate is not debarred by law from trying an accused person under S. 174 of the Penal Code, for disobedience of Summons issued by him in his capacity of Mamlatdar [18 B. 380 (F. B.)]. But See Rat. 70. 904] The principle underlying these decisions has not been accepted as sound in 22 P. R. 1879 (in which the same officer was both a Small Cause Court Judge and Cantonment Magistrate) and 2 A. 405 (in which the Settlement Officer who issued the Summons tried the disobedience to it as a Magistrate).

13. Prohibition restricted to Judges of Criminal Courts Magistrates.—A Sub-Magistrate convicted certain persons under S. 174 of disobedience to summonses issued by him as tahsildar. Held that the convictions were legal [6 M. H. (Ap.) 44] Where sanction is given by a Deputy Collector and Magistrate, as a Revenue Officer, he is not debarred from trying the case himself as a Deputy Magistrate [2 Weir 613] A Magistrate is not precluded from trying an offence referred to in S. 195 of the Code, when the offence is alleged to have been committed in contempt of his authority not as a Magistrate but as a Civil Judge [(189) U. B. (1901)]

14. Sessions Judge cannot try a person for an offence committed before him as District Judge.—In S. 457 effect must be given to the words "as such Judge or Magistrate" and the meaning of that section is that, when an offence referred to in S. 195 has been committed before a Judge of a Criminal Court or Magistrate or in contempt of his authority or brought under his notice in the course of a judicial proceeding he cannot himself try such offence. A Sessions Judge therefore has jurisdiction to try a person for an offence under S. 196 P. C. when, he, as District Judge, has given sanction for the prosecution under S. 195 Cr. P. C. [16 C. 766 (F. B.) 18 B. 380 6 B. 479. 7 C. N. 708 (197) U. B. (1901) 127 (130) See 1 A. 129] A Sessions Judge is not debarred from hearing an appeal from a conviction by the District Magistrate to whom he had sent the case under S. 476 Cr. P. C. [7 C. N. 708 2 Weir 607 Con 2 L. R. 302] The ruling in 16 C. 121 to the contrary was overruled by 16 C. 766 (F. B.) The prohibition would apply only taken in accordance with either S. 476 or S. 477 Cr. P. C. and the accused was committed by the same, the Sessions Judge was precluded from trying the case by the provisions of S. 457 [2 Weir 609].

15. District Magistrates.—It was held in 20 M. 383, that a District Magistrate who has declined to revoke a sanction to prosecute a person on a charge of forgery is precluded under S. 457 from himself trying the case, as an order revoking or refusing to revoke a sanction is a judicial proceeding. But in 27 C. 452 it was held that where upon a Police report that an information was false, the District Magistrate gave sanction to prosecute the person giving such false information, held that S. 457 did not apply to the case and prevent the District Magistrate from hearing an appeal from a conviction of such person.
16. When a transfer is desirable, although the Judge is not disqualified.—The High Court, does not, as a general rule, exercise its powers of transfer, in a case of forgery or perjury solely on the ground that the Judge who is to try the case has already formed an opinion sitting as a Judge on the Civil side, that the document has been forged, or the perjury committed. But when the transfer can be made without any risk of any improper interference with the course of justice, and without much inconvenience to the parties and witnesses the transfer may be proper not only as a fair concession to the person charged, but as a means of relieving the Judge from a position which he would himself desire to avoid.—[5 M. H. 212] Where a District Magistrate procured the initiation of a number of prosecution against the same person, and one of them resulted in conviction, came up before him in appeal, the High Court considering that it was not altogether secure that he should hear the appeal, ordered its transfer to the Sessions Judge.—[24 W. R. 58.]

17. [Note.—The offence of fabrication of evidence] that the Sessions Judge had expressed an opinion prejudicial to the accused is no ground for the transfer of the case, as that is a circumstance which the law necessarily contemplates when it authorises a Sessions Court to try such cases, —2 Weir 609]

CHAPTER XXXVI

OF THE MAINTENANCE OF WIVES AND CHILDREN

488. (1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain his wife or his legitimate or illegitimate child unable to maintain itself, the District Magistrate, a Presidency Magistrate, a Sub-divisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, at such monthly rate, not exceeding fifty rupees in the whole as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate from time to time directs.

(2) Such allowance shall be payable from the date of the order, or if so ordered from the date of the application for maintenance

(3) If any person so ordered wilfully neglects to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in manner hereinbefore provided for levying fines and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month's allowance remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made

Provided that, if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing.

(4) No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery, or if without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

(5) On proof that any wife in whose favour an order has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order.

(6) All evidence under this Chapter shall be taken in the presence of the husband or father, as the case may be, or, when his personal attendance is dispensed with, in the presence of his pleader, and shall be recorded in the manner prescribed in the case of summons-cases:

Provided that if the Magistrate is satisfied that he is wilfully avoiding service, or wilfully neglects to attend the Court, the Magistrate may proceed to hear and determine the case ex parte. Any order so made may be set aside for good cause shown on application made within three months from the date thereof.

(7) The accused may tender himself as a witness, and in such case shall be examined as such.

(8) The Court in dealing with applications under this section shall have power to make such order as to costs as may be just.

(9) The accused may be proceeded against in any district where he resides or is, or where he last resided with his wife, or as the case may be, the mother of the illegitimate child.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 488 of the said Code—

(1) In sub-section (3), for the words "wilfully neglects" the words "fails without sufficient cause" shall be substituted.

(2) To the same sub-section, the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

- (3) Mode of computation.
- (4) Imprisonment cannot be awarded in anticipation
- (5) Nature of the imprisonment—does it cease on payment of arrears?
- (6) Imprisonment ought to be simple.

XVIII. Appeal, Revision etc.

- (1) No appeal
- (2) Further enquiry.
- (3) Revision
- (4) Review
- (5) Rehearing.

XIX. Cancellation of orders.

XX. Miscellaneous.

- (1) Court-fee on application for enforcement
- (2) Court-fee on application for maintenance
- (3) Res Judicata.
- (4) Costs
- (5) Reference under S 438 Cr P C.
- (6) Fresh application on new facts.
- (7) Revival of Proceedings.

I. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

1. The words "that there is just ground for so doing," in subs (3) have been substituted for the words "that such person is living in adultery or that he has habitually treated his wife with cruelty" in the old Codes—[13 Cr. 55 (L. B.)] 4 Bur T 269 The result being to give the Magistrate a wider discretion than before Under the old codes no separate maintenance could be awarded except on proof that the husband was living in adultery or that he habitually treated his wife with cruelty See 31 P. R 1887 Rat 7 16 B 269 (97-01) U B I 104 (Which are now obsolete)

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) The object.

2. (1) The object of maintenance proceedings is not to punish a parent for past neglect but to prevent vagrancy by compelling those who can do so to support those who are unable to support themselves and have a moral claim to support—22 P R 1917.
3. (2) The intention of the Legislature is to enforce the liability of the husband of the woman and of the male parent of an illegitimate child as the person primarily responsible for their maintenance. The Code imposes no restriction on allowance of maintenance for the illegitimate children of women, who having been married may have lost their husbands, or for the illegitimate children of a married woman having a husband living and not divorced, although the presumption in the latter case would be strongly in favour of the child being legitimate—2 Weir 619. See 22 T. 222 (223)
4. (3) The provisions of this section only enable a Magistrate to make an order for the maintenance of the wife and children on the Court being satisfied that the husband or the father, as the case may be, has neglected or refused to do so, although in possession of sufficient means—4 C. 374 7 Bur T. 34
5. (4) "The object of S 488 is to provide maintenance and not to enforce conjugal duty. If the Legislature had meant that the offer was to be one to live with the woman as wife, it would have used those words"—Per Jardine J. in 16 B 270

(2) Scope of the section.

6. The scope of Chap XXXVI is limited and the Magistrate may not except as therein provided, usurp the jurisdiction in matrimonial disputes possessed by the Civil Courts. The object of the section (488) is to provide maintenance and not to enforce conjugal rights—16 B 269

7. Questions beyond the scope of the Section.—

- (1) Issues as to the social standing of the wife, the amount of alimony appropriate, the kind of education the children ought to receive, the amount, if any, properly payable as schooling fees are beyond the scope of the section.

(09) U B. 1-g. 17.

- (2) The word "maintenance" does not include children's schooling fees—(09) U B 17.

8. Legal guardianship.—The question of legal guardianship cannot be determined in maintenance proceedings—4 C. 374: 9 Bar. 93. 38 P. R 1885 or whether the father is fit to be the guardian of his children 18 P. R 1894

9. Where there is no proof of neglect or refusal to maintain.—A Magistrate cannot make an order under S 488 Cr. P. C. The proper forum to decide whether the woman is entitled to maintenance or not in such a case is the Civil Court.—16 B 269. See 1 C. J. 214 6 N. P. 201. 3 B R. 358

10. Where Husband willing to maintain, jurisdiction is ousted.—Where the husband offers to maintain his wife and the wife states she is willing to live with her husband, the Magistrate cannot make an order under S 488 unless the complainant satisfies him that notwithstanding such offer, there is a just ground for making the order 1 C. J. 214

11. Order cannot be made fixing duration of payment.—An order for maintenance, fixing the duration of the period for which it is to be paid, is unauthorised by law—[2 Weir 671 (Mangala)]

12. Orders cannot have retrospective effect.—A direction to pay arrears of maintenance is opposed to the provision in cl 2 of S 536 (= 188) The allowance is only payable from the date of the order.—(75) 2 Weir 635 Where however, the order granting maintenance from a date prior to the date of the order was passed by consent of the parties, the High Court refused to interfere.—[(80) 2 Weir 636]

13. Court cannot apportion maintenance between mother and child.—Where the Magistrate who ordered the maintenance did not allot any particular portion for his wife, the Magistrate who was asked to enforce the order cannot do this either as regards arrears or future maintenance. Her remedy is to make another application under S 488 Cr. P C for an allowance for herself alone.—9 L B 49

14. Order based on compromise.—A Magistrate has jurisdiction to direct monthly payment of a fixed sum of money, on the basis of a compromise between the parties without taking any evidence [2 Weir 629 But see 42 P R 1889 39 P R 1905] But where the agreement between the husband and the wife was that he would furnish his wife with certain ornaments, build a house for her and deliver to her annually a certain amount of grain, and pay her a certain sum in cash, held that as the law empowers a Magistrate to pass an order for payment of a monthly maintenance he could not base his order on the agreement. [6 M 283 But see 2 Weir 634] Where a claim for maintenance is compromised with the consent of the parties, the Magistrate is not competent to pass an order in accordance with the terms of the compromise. He can only dismiss the petition and strike it off the file [(85) 2 Weir 629 But See (02) 2 Weir 649] Where subsequent to an application, the parties put in a razinama, stating that the wife had come to live with the husband, the Magistrate should dismiss the petition for maintenance as in that case there is no refusal or neglect to maintain [2 Weir 630]

15. Order cannot be made both against the husband and the husband's father.—S 488 Cr P C does not contemplate an order for maintenance being passed against both the husband and the husband's father.—26 P R 1903 12 P R 1914 115 P L 1914

16. Intervention of Kazi.—The wife of a Mahomedan is not bound to seek the assistance of a Kazi before applying to the Magistrate for maintenance 2 Weir 615

17. The section applies to European British subjects.—10 P R 1871

18. Order under this section no bar to divorce.—An order under this section does not deprive a Mahomedan husband of his inherent right to divorce his wife.—8 B II 95

(3) The legal obligation of the husband to maintain.

19. The fact that the husband is of slender means, will justify a small amount of maintenance but does not justify an absolute refusal of maintenance.—[2 Weir 617] A person who is a professional, is not relieved thereby from the obligation to contribute to the support of his illegitimate child. If a man is capable of labour and the Magistrate is satisfied that the child is his child, he should order and enforce the payment of a reasonable sum.—[2 Weir 616; But see (82) A N 79 (11) U B I 90:] If the husband has sufficient means, he is bound to maintain his wife, and he is not relieved of the obligation by the circumstance that the wife may have friends able and willing to maintain her.—[2 Weir 615] A son not divided from his father can be ordered to maintain his wife under S. 488 Cr. P C.—[13 M. 17] A Magistrate is not competent to refuse to enforce his order for maintenance, on the ground of the defendant's inability to pay.—[2 Weir 636] Where a husband is willing to maintain his wife who has not attained puberty, a Magistrate cannot order the father of the girl to maintain her on the ground that the husband is not bound to maintain his wife until she attains puberty.—[2 Weir 650].

- 19A. Note.—The wife's means of earning a livelihood should not be taken into consideration, before an order under this section for maintenance is passed. [(57) A N 107 10 Bur R 166 See 10 Bur R 160] A husband is not relieved of her obligation to maintain his wife under this section by the circumstance that she has relations able and willing to maintain her but is bound to maintain her if he has sufficient means [2 Weir 615 16 Cr 80 (M)]

(4) Liability of the father.

20. A father cannot divest himself of his liability to maintain his child by an agreement with his wife.—[2 Weir 618 (00-02) [L B 126] A putative father cannot escape liability by pleading that he is a youth of 16 years and still studying at school.—[4 N P 123]

(6) Discretion of the Magistrate.

22. The use of the word "may" in S 488 Cr. P. C. as distinguished from "shall" shows that the Magistrate has a discretion to decide in what cases the award of maintenance may properly be made.
31 M 185 [20 M. 470 (F. B.) Fd] 5 N. 19.

(7) Presumption of sufficiency of means.

23. In maintenance cases, in the case of an able-bodied man, the law will presume, until the contrary is shown that he is able to support his child and the onus lies on him to show that he has not sufficient means—(11) U B 2 q 90; See 4 N P. 123
24. Meaning of "unable to maintain."—Does the expression mean "unable on account of tender age to earn a living and therefore unable to maintain himself" or "unable for want of sufficient means"? Abdur Rahim J in 30 M 957 adopts the latter interpretation while Sadasata Aygar J in 25 M J. 355 and Collins C J in 22 M 246 adopts the former "I think" says Abdur Rahim J. "The ability contemplated by S. 488 Cr. P. C. applies as much to the case of a child which has got means of its own or which is entitled in law to be maintained and is being maintained * as to a child which is able to earn a living by its own exertion."—[See 30 M. 957].

(8) Sufficient ground for proceeding25. What is not—

- (1) Non-payment of prompt dower by a Mahomedan husband 15 P. R 1840
- (2) A minor wife refusing to live with her husband not on account of any ill-treatment but because she would be better off if she lived with her parents, if the husband is willing to maintain her, cannot be allowed separate allowances—1. P. R. 1892
- (3) Husband marrying again.
26. Absence of proof of adultery and ill-treatment.—In the absence of the proof of adultery or ill-treatment a wife can claim no separate maintenance. She cannot also get it when she refuses to live with her husband merely because the husband's mother would not let her live in peace 30 P R 1867 21 P. R 1870
27. When there is a mutual agreement to live separately.—S. 488 does not apply.
55 P. R 1866
28. Effect of wife's return to her husband.—The Quare in (97-'01) U. B. 104: "Whether return of the wife to cohabitation with her husband, after an order of maintenance has been made, does not have the effect of putting an end to the previous proceedings under S 488 Cr. P. C." should probably be answered in the affirmative in view of the decision in (88) A. N. 217

III.—NATURE OF PROCEEDINGS.(1) Proceedings are judicial.

29. Proceedings under S. 488 are judicial proceedings.—5 B H. 81, 5 A. 224

(2) Quasi—Civil Proceedings.

30. (1) A person against whom the order is sought is a competent witness on his own behalf.

See Person against whom the order is sought

31. (2) The liability to pay maintenance is a Civil and not a Criminal liability.—17 C. P. 127

32. (3) The jurisdiction of the Criminal Courts under S. 488 is merely auxiliary to that of the Civil Courts. [2 Weir 615; 21 Cr 127 (L. B.)]. A Magistrate therefore ought to refuse to enforce an order for maintenance of a child made under S 488 if, after the passing of the order, a Civil Court decides that the respondent is not the father of the child [21 Cr. 127 (L. B.)]

33. Not Criminal proceedings.—Order for payment of maintenance does not amount to a conviction for offence.—16 M 234 11 C. P. 14

34. (1) An application for maintenance is not a complaint of an offence.—17 C. P. 127 26 P. R 1845, 661 P. L. 1304

34. (2) Application under S. 488 Cr. P. C. is not a complaint.—A proceeding under S. 488 Cr. P. C. does not relate to any offence, and the application is not therefore a complaint within the meaning of S 4 (f) supra. Hence a Magistrate entertaining an application is not competent to refer it to a Subordinate Magistrate for enquiry under S 202 Cr. P. C.—29 P. R. 1905 2 Weir 617 11 M 199

35. Proceedings are of a Civil nature.—Proceedings under this section are of a Civil nature and parties are competent witnesses—See subs (7) also 18 A 107, 18 B. 468; 16 C. 781 ('93-'00) L. B. 602

36. S. 250 does not apply to proceedings under S. 488 Cr. P. C.—6 M. T. 201

(3) Proceeding, a Criminal Case within the meaning of S. 528 infra.

37. A proceeding under this section is a criminal case within the meaning of S 528 infra, and a District Magistrate may withdraw a case from the file of a Sub-ordinate Magistrate to his own file—5 P. R 1905

(4) Scope of the enquiry.

38. The proceedings under this Chapter do not amount to a civil suit where the issue is as to the social standing of the wife and the amount of alimony appropriate or the kind of education children of a person in the father's position ought to receive and the amount, if any, properly payable as their schooling fees. These are questions beyond the scope of this Code. The Code in providing maintenance does not intend to go further than to ensure to the wife or children, food, clothing and lodging. It does not provide for Schooling fees—(09) U. B. 1. 17.

IV. JURISDICTION OF MAGISTRATES.

(1) Jurisdiction.

39. An order under S. 488 cannot be made by a Magistrate of the Second class.—22 W. R. 30. See 2 Weir 617
40. Presidency Magistrates.—Are competent to stay the operation of an order made under S. 488 and to refuse the issue of a warrant for enforcement but he cannot formally cancel the order which was made and he is competent to try all questions which affect the right to receive maintenance—5 C 558.
41. Magistrates.—A second class Magistrate cannot act under this section [22 W. R. 30] unless he is a Subordinate Magistrate. A Magistrate of the first class, though not empowered under S. 190 Cr. P. C. may act under this section [5 N P 237] As to the effect of a Magistrate not empowered by law, passing an order under S. 488 Cr. P. C. See S. 530 cl. (n) post.
- 41A. The expression "the District Magistrate a Presidency Magistrate a subdivisional Magistrate or a Magistrate of the 1st class" means the Magistrate of the particular District in which the defendant resides—9 B 40
42. Enforcement of order—can be made by a second class Magistrate Rat 258 2 Weir 617
43. Order under S. 488 (5) can be made by a Magistrate other than the Magistrate who made the order under S. 488 (1) and even though the latter is still in the District
5 P R 1873
44. Magistrate cannot assume the functions of Civil Court.—A Magistrate acting under S. 488 cannot assume the functions of a Civil Court and pass judgment in accordance with a compromise between the parties 6 Weir 629
45. Date from which the order should take effect.—Maintenance cannot be allowed to a wife for any period before the date of the complaint 5 P R 1870

(2) Local.

46. The jurisdiction is to be exercised in the District in which the person against whom an order under S. 488 is sought has his residence at the time of making the complaint—9 B 40 7 C. P. 12; (94) A N 153 21 C 638 1 C N 577 See 13 P. R. 1883-3 P R 1893 Con 5 N P 237 13 A. 348
47. Note.—But where the wife was compelled by her husband's conduct to choose her own place of residence, held, the Courts of the place where she resided had jurisdiction over the matter [13 A. 348 5 N P 237] Subs (9) does not however give the wife or child the right to select a forum other than where the husband or father is then residing, or last resided with the applicant—(104) U. B. [10]
48. Occasional visit to the mother of the illegitimate child—its residence with her within the meaning of Subs (9) of S. 488 Cr. P. C.—5 S 220 See 1 A. 51 5 M H 101. 31 L. J. C P. 357 16 Ch D 454 4 B and C. 959
49. Temporary residence.—The temporary residence of the husband at Calcutta within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, at the time the application for maintenance under S. 488 Cr. P. C. was made by the wife, was sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Presidency Magistrate's Court in Calcutta, regard being had to subs (9) of S. 488 Cr. P. C.—[21 C N 872] A man may have a number of residences [3 A. 91 (P. C.)] [The following Civil rulings should be studied—3 B 227 G B 100 18 B 290 25 B 176. 21 C. 634 36 C (94) 1 A 51].
50. Question of domicile.—Husband's domicile is the wife's domicile and an application for maintenance should be heard and disposed of at the place where the refusal to maintain the wife was made 9 P R 1883
51. In the Absence of permanent residence elsewhere.—Two month's residence at any place is residence within the meaning of S. 488. 5 S 220 5 M 203 Alexander v Jones L. R. 1, Ex 131

V. INCREASE AND REDUCTION OF ALLOWANCE.

(1) No Power to go behind the order.

52. In dealing with an application for an increase of maintenance a Magistrate cannot enquire into the property or otherwise of the order for maintenance previously made—2 Weir 650

(2) Reduction.

53. (1) Principle.—The rate of allowance cannot be reduced with retrospective effect. The order can operate only as against payments accruing due after the date of the order 2 Weir 650
54. (2) A Magistrate is not competent to refuse to enforce his order for maintenance on the ground of the defendant's inability to pay. But on further enquiry he may revise the rate of maintenance, and the order will take effect subsequent to the date of such enquiry—2 Weir 634.
55. Reduction on the basis of a deed of that the Magistrate was not competent to cancel the order for maintenance, until the agreement had been declared by a competent tribunal to be binding on the wife 2 Weir 649

56. Power to reduce limited to instalments not yet due.—A Magistrate has no power to reduce the rate of maintenance which has accrued due. He should enforce the payment of arrears at the rate originally awarded, and the reduction should be limited to payments accruing due after the date of the order. [2 Weir 650]

(3) Modification due to change of circumstances.

57. Although a maintenance order of a Criminal

Court under S 486 may be modified, on a change of circumstances being shown, still so long as that order remains in force, it must carry its proper consequences—22 C 291

58. Meaning "of change in the circumstances"—The fact that the child whose maintenance allowance has been awarded, has grown older constitutes "a change in the circumstances of the person receiving the allowance." Therefore the rate may be varied from time to time on application being made as the child grows older.—11 M 398 ('97) L B. ('93-00) 393 (394) - See 9 W R 1.

Note.—See Notes under S. 489 infra

(4) Power of High Court to modify the rule.

59. Where the rate of maintenance is excessive, the

VI. CONJUGAL RELATION AS RECOGNISED BY S. 488.

62. The only condition precedent of right to maintenance.—The only condition precedent to the possession of wife's right to maintenance as such is the existence of the conjugal relation.—5 A 226

63. Moota marriage under Shia Law—does not entitle a woman to maintenance, but such a wife is entitled to maintenance under the provisions of S 488—8 C 736 - 6 W R. 60

Note.—Such a marriage may be terminated on the husband giving up the unexpired portion of the terms fixed by the Moota marriage—14 C 276 Con. 8 C 736

64. Karao marriage.—The "karao form of marriage among" the Jats is valid for the purposes of S. 488 - 4 N. P. 128: See also 6 W R 60

65. "Sambandham marriage."—Under the Marumalatayam Law among the Nayers of Malabar is a valid marriage for the purposes of S. 188.—22 M. 246.

66. Nikah Marriage.—The children of a nikah wife are legitimate and are entitled to maintenance.—16 W R. 28.

67. Illegal marriage.—The child born of an illegal marriage must be maintained by its father. 19 M. J. 461

68. Nat-worshipping karons.—The Nat-worshipping Karons have peculiar marriage ceremonies of their own. A match-maker brings the parties together; the man goes to the woman's house if the parties were not married before, but the woman may go to the man's house if he is a widower. A cock and hen eating would apparently complete the ceremony but if the parties

High Court has power to set aside or modify the Magistrate's order, or to direct further enquiry with a view to decide what amount should be allowed—2 Weir 575 674

(5) Assessment of Allowance.

60. Considerations on which assessment can be based.—In fixing the amount of maintenance no luxury should be allowed and necessities of life should be considered according to the station in life of the applicant and the means of the respondent—13 Or 55 (J. B)

61. Amount which can be allowed.—Magistrate may order the defendant to pay Rs 50 to his wife and like amount to each of his children, —12 Cr. 563 (L. B.)

profess Buddhism, though Kaens, they may marry according to the Buddhist Law.—15 Cr. 590 (L B)

69. Christian wife of a re-convert.—wife of a Christian who has reverted to Hinduism and married a second wife is entitled to maintenance. 4 M. II (ap) 3

70. Personal Law applicable to the husband to be considered.—In determining the question whether there has been a valid and legal marriage, regard must be had to the personal law applicable to the respondent (the alleged husband) 7 Bur T 71 - 2 L B 95 7 L B. 270

[Note.—Thus when it was proved that the appli-

72. Valid Marriage must be proved before the Magistrate may act.—It is only on proof of a valid marriage, between the applicant and her alleged husband that a Magistrate may have any rules for maintenance [16 B 269 5 C 658; 5 A 226]. Where the marriage is disputed, the Magistrate must himself try and decide the issue and not refer the parties to a civil suit [11 P R 1851]

VII. CHILDREN.

(1) Meaning of the word child.

73. The word child as used in S. 488 means simply son or daughter and reference to age is purposely omitted therein therefore any son or daughter is entitled to claim maintenance whatever his or her age may be, so long as he or she is unable to maintain himself or herself—25 P W. 1910; See 15 P R 1894

74. The word child in S. 488 Cr. P. C means one who has not attained majority.—25 M. J. 349

[Note.—But a child who is deaf and dumb and unable to maintain itself is entitled to maintenance although it has arrived at the age of majority—[5 N. P. 237]

- (2) The right of a child to maintenance.
79. (1) Is not lost by divorce of the mother.—A divorced wife is, under the Mahomedan Law, entitled to the custody of her children and therefore the father is not thereby relieved of his liability to maintain them—6 B R 536
80. (2) The Civil Court's refusal to uphold an agreement, by which the man agreed to pay for the maintenance of the woman, cannot conclude either the woman from applying for or the Magistrate from making an order under this section for the maintenance of his illegitimate daughter—17 W R 49
81. (3) The father cannot divest himself of his liability to maintain his child by an agreement with his wife—2 Weir 645
82. (4) Where the father has made arrangement for maintenance.—So long as the property which has been given by the father to the mother for the maintenance of the child exists, no order for maintenance can be made under this section [(97-'01) U B 108] In the case of an illegitimate child, it has been held that the mother having, in consideration of a payment of lump sum, agreed to renounce in future all claims for maintenance, the Magistrate could not pass an order under this section, even if the agreement was obtained by fraud [2 Weir 631] A compromise by the lawful guardian of a minor acting bona fide for his benefit, cannot be set aside except on proof of fraud, and the subsequent extravagance or misconduct of the guardian cannot revive an obligation which was once lawfully satisfied [2 Weir 630] But where the agreement is not prima facie for the benefit of the child, it will not be binding on the child or the person who subsequently becomes the guardian [13 P. R. 1885—see 25 A. 165 S Bur R 96]

83. (5) A Mahomedan mother, being the natural guardian of her minor daughter, would be entitled to claim maintenance for her child even though she was living separately from the husband without any valid grounds [15 C. N. xxvii] The rule applies to Christians also. [15 C. N. xxxvi]

87. Proof of parentage.—In a proceeding for maintenance by a woman for her illegitimate child, the two persons who are most competent to give evidence about the parentage are the woman and the alleged father [18 A. 107] An order, passed on the strength of the sworn testimony of the mother alone, was upheld in 20 W. R. 55
- (5) Unable to maintain itself—meaning.
88. The inability referred to in the section relates to the absence of sufficient maturity of physical and mental development in the child rendering it unable to earn its own livelihood by its own efforts, and does not refer to inability through poverty or absence of means—25 M. J. 355
89. "Unable to maintain itself."—It cannot be pleaded by a dancing girl that her child (a daughter) is able to earn a livelihood by prostitution. The law will not treat prostitution as a profession by which a girl might earn her livelihood and "maintain itself" under S. 484 Cr. P. C.—25 M. J. 349

90. Inability may be due to insufficient maturity of understanding etc.—The inability referred to in this section relates to the absence of sufficient maturity of physical and mental development in the child rendering it in consequence unable to earn its living by its own efforts and does not refer to inability through poverty or the absence of means—25 M. 92. Married woman may claim maintenance for illegitimate child.—A married woman has locus standi under S. 488 Cr. P. C., to claim maintenance for her illegitimate children.—18 B. 468. 2 Weir 619. 18 A. 107

VIII. REFUSAL TO LIVE WITH THE HUSBAND.

(1) Principle explained.

98. If a wife voluntarily leaves her husband without being justified in so doing, she will not be entitled to any maintenance. If on the other hand, the husband refuses to maintain her and turns her out or ill-treats her so as to make it impossible for her to live in the house that would be refusal or neglect to maintain her—5 B. R. 614; See 9 B. R. 359. But see 11 C. P. 14

(2) What is not sufficient reason for.

99. (1) The fact that—in a Civil Suit by the husband for restitution of conjugal rights the wife successfully resisted her claim by a plea of unpaid prompt dower. 6 P. R. 1888.

100. (2) The inability of a husband and wife to agree to live together is no ground for decreeing separate maintenance—6 W. R. 59

101. (3) Disobedience to an order for restitution of conjugal rights.—A Civil Court decree for restitution of conjugal rights supercedes an order under S. 454 if the wife refuses to live with the husband—(3) A. N. 54.

102. (4) Incompatibility of temper.—By itself is not legally sufficient to justify an order for separate allowance.—See 21 P. R. 1673. 2 P. R. 1674; 30 P. R. 1691; 31 P. R. 1682

103. Inability to live together.—The inability of husband and wife to agree to live together is no ground for decreeing a separate maintenance to the wife—6 W. R. 59

104. Ill treatment by the mother-in-law.—A refusal to live with the husband merely because the husband's mother would not let her live in peace will not justify an order under S. 485 Cr. P. C.—30 P. R. 1467; 21 P. R. 1470.

105. Refusal by the father of the girl to allow her to live with her husband.—Where the husband had not been called upon

93. Mother having the custody of a child, is entitled to allowance for its maintenance, so long as he is under the obligation to maintain it—2 Weir 630

94. Removal by the mother from the father's keeping without the latter's consent, and prevention by her, of their coming back to the father, disentitle the mother from receiving any allowance for the support of the children—2 Weir 632

95. Agreement with wife.—A father cannot divest himself of his liability to maintain his child by agreement with his wife.—2 Weir 618

96. Duty to maintain ceases on marriage of the child.—The obligation to maintain an illegitimate child (girl) ceases on the girl's getting married—11 C. X. C.

97. Evidence of prostitution of the girl is not a defence in a maintenance case entitling the father to avoid his liability to pay as it cannot be treated as a profession for the purposes of S. 488—25 M. J. 349 to maintain his wife, and she was living with her father who refused to allow her to live with her husband without a payment from him, held the Magistrate cannot make an order for maintenance—23 W. R. 30

(3) Is second marriage of husband a sufficient reason for separation?

106. (1) Hindu.—Where a Hindu husband shows

R 1673; 7 C. P. 39 (40)

107. (2) unless the wife can prove that in consequence of the second marriage, her husband is ill-treating her or treating her with habitual cruelty.—14 P. R. 1901. 66 P. R. 1887; Rat 7.

108. Second marriage of the husband.—A wife cannot refuse to live with her husband on the sole ground that he has contracted a second marriage—Rat 7 (04) U. B. 1-9. 10

109. Second marriage by a Burmese Husband.

(1) Where a Burman Buddhist takes a lesser wife without the consent of his headwife the refusal of the headwife to live and co-habit with her husband unless she is provided with a separate residence is not a sufficient reason for refusing her maintenance under S. 488 Cr. P. C.—4 L. B. 340 (F. B.). [4 L. B. 146 overruled: (97-01) L. U. B. 104; S. J. L. B. 114 dist. S. J. L. B. 103 dissentient from]

(2) A lesser wife refusing to live with her husband will not be deprived of her right to maintenance if at the time, she married, she did not know that the husband had been previously married.—11 Cr. 750 (L. B.). See 4 L. B. 7; 8 Cr. 422 (L. B.)

(3) Where however, a husband marries a second wife owing to the refusal of his first wife to live with him but is willing to take back the first wife, the latter is not entitled to maintenance under S 488 (4) Cr P C.—11 Bur T. 105

(4) Effect of the husband's living in concubinage.

109A. "In determining whether the cause shown by the wife for refusing to live with her husband is good and reasonable, it is but just that the Magistrate should take into consideration the social habits of the particular community to which the parties belong. If that community does not completely disapprove of concubinage and tolerates it so far as to give kept women some adultery on the part of the husband may constitute a sufficient cause for the wife separating from the husband and enable her to claim maintenance under S. 488 Cr P C. [The rulings to the contrary in (84) 2 Weir 641 and (93) 17 M. 200 have been over-ruled.] See also 14 Bar R. 240. 2 L. B. 46 (1902) U B 7 13 A 349

(5) Cruelty as justification for refusal to live.

110. A false charge of incest amounts to cruelty [Milner 4 Swab and Trist 24] Refusal to take food and water from the wife is tantamount to cruelty [1 B 164] Husband's communicating venereal disease to his wife, knowing that he is suffering from it, is cruelty [Bonaman v. Boardman, 1 Prob and Mat 233] A reasonable apprehension of violence being used may justify separation [see 19 C 84] The word cruelty is not necessarily limited to personal violence [11 A 480] The systematic exertion of force whether physical or moral to compel the submission of the wife, to such a degree as to seriously injure her health may amount to cruelty [1 B 164 (174) See Kelly v. Kelly 2 Prob and Mat 31 59 Tomkins v. Tomkins 1 Swab and Trist 168]

111. Habitual cruelty.—The present Code does not restrict the operation of S 488 to cases, in which the wife is living separately owing to the habitual cruelty of the husband 13 Cr 55 (U B)

N. B.—(97-01) U B 1 104 is now obsolete

(6) Marriage with step-mother.

112. Marriage with step-mother—of the wife by a Mahomedan would entitle the wife to refuse to live with her husband during the continuance of the wedlock as such marriage is prohibited.—2 Weir 617

(7) Effect of refusal to live with the husband.

113. The duty of a husband to maintain his wife under the Hindu Law is absolute [34 B 278] and under the Criminal Procedure Code it is subject only to the wife's chastity [See 458(4)] Even if she left her husband's house without a good cause her right of maintenance is only suspended [31 M 338] She has the right to return to her husband's house at any time and claim to be maintained by him—12 S 90

114. The proviso to subs (3) would seem to refer to cases where a wife obtains a maintenance order for herself and not where one is made for the children—6 L B 127

115. Wife failing to comply with decree for restitution of conjugal rights.—"There is clear authority that a Magistrate ought to treat an order of maintenance made by him as determined, if the wife, failing to comply with the decree for restitution of conjugal rights, refuses to live with her husband"—23 B 454 9 Bur T 102

116. Refusal to remain without cause.—If a woman is living apart from her husband without due cause, she is not entitled to maintenance. If however, it is a case where he will not keep her, or where for some other sufficient reason she is living away from him, he must provide for her maintenance—14 P R 1917

(8) Infant wife.

117. A minor wife refusing to live with her husband not because of her husband's ill treatment or refusal or neglect to maintain but simply because she would be better off in her father's place cannot be allowed separate maintenance—1 P R 1582

118. An infant wife coming with her guardian is not entitled to maintenance—22 P R 1869

119. The husband being under the obligation to support his infant wife, the father after her marriage is entitled to apply for cancellation an order for her maintenance made before the marriage—2 Weir 650

IX. REFUSAL OR NEGLECT TO MAINTAIN.

(1) Meaning of "as his wife"

120. There is no authority for the proposition that the words "as his wife" must be read into S 488. Where therefore the husband refused to treat the applicant as his wife but offered to maintain her in her house an order under S 488 is not justified—16 B 269 But see 6 M 371 17 M. 270.

(2) What is not sufficient offer maintain.

Offer must be reasonable.

121. (1) The offer to maintain under S 488 must be an offer to maintain with the consideration due to her position as wife—17 M 260 (261) 6 M 371

122. (2) An offer by a Hindu husband having two wives, to maintain his first wife in case she refused to live in the house, adding that he could not live with her as a husband would live with his wife, but supply grain to her to cook her own food in his house and eat it separately, was held to be not a sufficient offer to maintain within the provisions of S 536 of the Code (S 488) 6 M. 371: But See 16 B. 269(275).

123. Where the breach is irremediable, mere offer to maintain is insufficient.—Where the breach between the husband and the wife is irremediable and it is quite impossible for the wife to return to her husband after the cruel way in which he has treated her for a number of years, the mere fact that he says that "he is willing to maintain her if she returns to his house" cannot absolve him from the responsibility to maintain her.—170 P. L. 1914.

(3) What amounts to.

124. If a husband turns his wife out or ill-treats her so as to make it impossible for her to live in the house, that would be refusal or neglect on his part to maintain her.—3 B R 614 9 B R 359
125. Neglect.—If a man who is continuously bound to maintain his child, does not in fact, do so, he neglects to do so.—1 L. B 189
126. Inference from conduct.—A neglect or refusal to maintain may be by words or by conduct. It may be express or implied. Where for instance the respondent has denied his paternity of the child, that is a fact from which, the Court

Future contingency not provided for.—

It is not open to a Magistrate (even with the consent of the parties) to pass an order in view of a possible default to maintain the wife. To give jurisdiction to the Magistrate, an actual neglect or refusal to maintain must be established.—2 Weir 630

126A. Turning the wife out of the house.—

Where a husband turns his wife out of the house

127. Father willing to maintain provided children live with him.—It is no answer to an application for the maintenance of children that the father is willing to do so, on condition that they live with him. The contention cannot prevail, and unless and until the father en-

128. Mother taking away the Children.—Where a father is entitled to the custody of his children, and the mother takes them away and does not allow them to return to him, there is no such refusal or neglect to maintain them as is contemplated by S. 488 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 632

(4) What does not amount to.

129. (1) Where the husband is willing to maintain his wife, the fact that the prompt dowry has not been paid, is no ground under this section for separate order for maintenance.—[6 P R 1888 15 P. R. 1880].

130. (2) When a father offers to maintain his children on condition that they live with him, he cannot be said "to refuse to maintain them" within the meaning of S. 488—18 P. R 1894; 115 P. L. 1914.

[Note.—But invitation sent through a man to the child to come and live with him does not amount to an offer to look after the child. Such an offer cannot absolve the father from his responsibility to maintain his child.—[7 Bur. T 34 (1910) 1 U B 1]

131. Where the father has all along been guardian.—Where the father had all along the custody of the children after his divorce from their mother, and was all along maintaining them, the mere fact that a few months before they had left their father's house, and went to live with their mother, would not constitute "neglect or refusal to maintain" within the meaning of S. 488 Cr. P. C.—8 L B 103.

132. Where the evidence is doubtful.—Where from the record, it appeared that the husband had stated that he was willing to maintain his wife and the wife had stated that he was willing to live with her husband but had contended that he refused to maintain her; and the Magistrate expressed the following opinion: "really a difficult matter to decide, whether it is the accused who refused to maintain complainant or whether it is the latter who refuses to be maintained." Held that (in the circumstances) it had not been proved that the husband had refused or neglected to maintain his wife.—213 P. L. 1915. See 9 B. R 359

(5) Magistrate's duty in case of applications for maintenance of Children.

133. "It seems to me that when an application is made under S 488 Cr. P. C by a child, it is the duty of the Magistrate to enquire first, as to whether the child is unable to maintain itself, secondly, if the father is in a position to support his child, and thirdly whether the father is neglecting to maintain his child. Past neglect of his duty, to support his child, may be a cogent factor in coming to a finding that, at the time of the application, the father is neglecting or refusing to support his offspring," but the fact that in the past, he has neglected to support his son, should not, by itself, be considered as sufficient to justify a finding that the offer is not made in good faith.—Per B roadway J., in 22 P. R 1917.

X. GROUNDS FOR REFUSAL OF MAINTENANCE.

(1) What are not sufficient grounds.

- 134.—Wife having rich relations.—The mere fact that the wife has relations or friends willing to maintain her or to bear the costs of the proceedings is no ground for dismissing an application under S 488 Cr. P. C.—16 Cr 80 (M) 2 Weir 616
- 135.—Refusal to make over child no ground.—Refusal to make over illegitimate child to its father is no ground for refusal of allowance for maintenance.—19 M 461 : or to stop an allowance previously ordered.—4 C 374
136. Delay in application.—(1) A wife does not lose her right to maintenance, because she may not have advanced her claim immediately on her husband's desertion.—2 Weir 615 2 Weir 616
(2) or because she has delayed making the application.—2 Weir 616

(2) What are sufficient grounds.

137. (1) Agreement for separation.—If a wife and her husband enter into an agreement to live separately and they so live by mutual consent, she is not entitled to maintenance.—Rat 871
See (3) Separation by consent below
138. (2) Divorce.—See (1) Divorce, below
139. (3) Adultery.—See (5) Adultery below.
140. (4) Offspring of Sambandam marriage.—The offspring of a Malabar Sambandam marriage are not entitled to an order for maintenance under S 488 Cr. P. C. where the Tazari or Tarwardi to which their mother is attached has sufficient funds to maintain them.—37 M J 361 39 M 957 See 19 M 461 Con 22 M 247 (P N) 22 M 246 25 M J 355.

[Note.—“I would, however, point out that if the mother of the child can at any time show that the amount available from the Tazari or possibly from the Tarwardi funds is insufficient to maintain the child, it is open to the mother to renew the application.”—Per Napier J in 37 M J 361]

- 140A. (5) Apostasy.—See (6) Apostasy below

(3) Separation by Consent.

141. The Principle.—“What the law contemplates by suba (4) of S 488 is what is well recognised in application proceedings between husband and wife under the English Law namely, where the husband and wife have lived apart by a definite contract mutually made between them then affiliation proceedings are inapplicable. A contract voluntarily and freely made and entered into by reason of the ill-treatment of the husband towards his wife would be an act of their own volition, if the parties separated under such terms, so that neither should molest the other and that both should be free to live and go where and whether they respectively wished, such an agreement would be a voluntary act and contract by the parties themselves unfettered by the decree or declaration of any tribunal.”—Per Atkinson J in 4 Pat J 109. 2 Weir 617. Rat 870

142. Separation by decree of punchayet.—Where a husband and wife are living apart in obedience to the decree of a punchayet of their castemen, by which the wife is awarded maintenance, it cannot be said, that they are living apart with mutual consent within the meaning of suba (4) of S 488 Cr. P. C.—4 Pat J 109
143. When separation by consent is a good defence.—When it appeared that by mutual consent, the husband and wife have been living separately for a number of years, and that the maintenance of the wife was, by arrangement made at the time they began to live separately, provided for by the assignment to her of some land, held that a Magistrate had no jurisdiction to make an order under S 488 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 648 (Jampana)

(4) Divorce.

Objection to be enquired into.

144. (1) An objection to the enforcement of the order on the ground of divorce should be enquired into and should be given effect to if found true.—O S 239-5 C 558 21 P R 1894 2 Weir 620; 17 O C 260
145. (2) Magistrate is competent to determine on such evidence as may be before him, whether there has been a legal divorce or not.—5 C 558
146. Effect.—A legal divorce whether under the Indian Divorce Act or the Mahomedan Law would put an end to the operation of a Magistrate's order for maintenance.—5 C 558 6 A 226 19 A 50 (F. B.) (over ruling 15 A 143) 8 B A 85. 2 Weir 620 1 B R 346 Contra 15 A 143 (97-01) 1 B 112
147. A Mahomedan Divorce—does not become operative before the expiration of the period of the iddat 5 A 226 (85) A N 29 19 A 50 (F. B.), 41 C 140 (M) 6 M T 295 2 Weir 620 2 Weir 617 5 P R 1905 4 Bur T 13
148. “Talāk Bidūt”—or irregular divorce is valid divorce for the purposes of S 488.—7 B 180
149. Talāk ashan—amongst Mahomedans is accomplished by a single pronouncement during the tahr of the wife and by the abstention of conjugal intercourse for the period of three tahrs—4 Bur T 13
150. Effect of Talāk ashan—where a husband and wife were living together and if during one year he does not give her one loaf of vegetables or one stick of firewood, let each have the right of taking another husband and wife. Let them have the right to separate and marry again.” In my opinion that passage refers to the voluntary desertion by the wife, without the consent of the husband. But the wife who is driven away from her husband by his cruelty cannot be said to have left the house, not having affection for the husband. A wife who refuses to rejoin her husband without sufficient reason or who is living apart from her husband by mutual consent, is not entitled to maintenance, and I doubt if a husband under the Burmese Buddhist Law, who is bound to maintain the wife, can evade that liability by declaring that the marriage has been dissolved by reason of the wife's absence from him. —Per Ormond J in 9 L. R. 44

151. Where divorce is set up as defence—it is the imperative duty of the Magistrate to enquire into the plea and determine whether the plea is a valid one. He has no authority to pass an order for maintenance if the plea is established.—19 A 50 (F.B.) (1915) U. B. II. 53
152. Divorce on being called on to show cause why the order should not be enforced—made in the presence of the court does not relieve the defendant from liability to obey the order during the time elapsing between the date of the order and the date when the divorce becomes effective (i.e. 3 months).—19 W. R. 73 21 C. 503 (L. B.) But see (1915) U. B. II. 53
153. Inherent right of a Mahomedan husband to divorce his wife.—is not taken away by an order for maintenance passed under S. 488—S. B. 485 (89) A. N. 85; 1 B. R. 346 7 B. 180

(5) Adultery.

154. Meaning of Adultery.—Adultery on the part of the husband has not the limited meaning given to it by S. 497 P. C. Adultery for which a conviction under the Penal Code would not be justified may constitute sufficient cause for the wife separating from her husband and claiming maintenance under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code.—20 M. 470 (F. B.) overruling 17 M. 260.
155. 'Adultery' as contemplated by S. 488 is adultery in the popular sense of the term, viz a breach of the matrimonial tie by either party. Adultery by the husband with a widow would entitle the wife to maintenance.—20 M. 470 (F. B.)
156. 'Living in adultery' meaning—

- (1) The words "living in adultery" refer rather to a course of conduct or at least to something more than a single lapse from virtue and therefore a single act of adultery does not necessarily amount to "living in adultery" so as to disentitle the wife from applying for maintenance under S. 488.—30 M. 332; 5 N. 10

Magistrate's discretion.—Where a Magistrate refused to award maintenance on the ground that the petitioner was guilty of adultery with a low-caste man, the High Court refused to interfere with the order of the Magistrate.—31 M. 185

157. (2) Living in adultery.—One act of adultery cannot by itself amount to living in adultery and several such acts, if isolated, do not necessarily come within the meaning of that term.—5 N. 10

158. (3) The words "living in adultery" mean living in adultery at the date of the application.—26 A 326
 159. Unchaste wife cannot claim maintenance until at least she improves her character.—50 P. R. 1886
- [Note.—But the fact, that a wife has been communicated for refusal to attend a punchayet convened for the purposes of considering a charge of adultery against her, is not a ground on which a magistrate is bound to reject an application for maintenance.—1 L. W. 156]
160. Adultery of the husband would entitle the wife to maintenance.—20 M. 470 (F. B.); 1 B. R. 596
 161. A single act of adultery may be a sufficient reason for refusing maintenance when asked for by a wife.—31 M. 185 5 N. 10

XI. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Order must be passed in the presence of the defendant.

176. No order can be passed without calling on the husband to maintain the wife.—22 W R 30
177. ~~Ex parte proceedings. Evidence S 488~~

U. B. 64

[Note.—An ex parte order may be passed in the contumacious absence of the defendant [7 M H (appx) xlii]. But where the defendant was represented by a Mukhtar, a Magistrate acted wrongly, in passing an ex parte order and the accused ought not to have been treated as having wilfully neglected to attend [2 B R. 700]

178. Evidence must be recorded.—(1) Order passed without recording any evidence is illegal.—2 Weir 628. See 11 M. 199. 5 A. 224. 361 P. L 1905
- (2) The various elements required to sustain an order under this section must be strictly proved.—13 W. R. 19.

(2) Procedure.

179. Order must be made on evidence in the same proceedings—and cannot be based on knowledge acquired by the Magistrate in another case.—8 W. R. 67.
180. Mode of recording evidence.—Evidence should be recorded as provided by S 355 Cr P. C. but the proceedings cannot be conducted as in a summary trial.—[20 C. 351; 24 W. R. 61] Procedure as in summons cases. [24 W. R. 61] But the enquiry should ordinarily be full as in trial of warrant cases [2 Weir 628]

173. Agreement made after the order—of the Magistrate has the effect of superseding it (88) P R 12 Cr R 8 of '88

Note.—But it will not be a bar to execution of the order, if the settlement is not brought to the notice of the Court and steps are not taken for the cancellation of the order.—27 A 165

174. Agreement with mother of illegitimate child—is not binding on the guardian of the child after the death of the mother, if there is nothing to show that the agreement was for the benefit of the child (85) P R 13

175. Agreement to pay in cash and kind.—An order for maintenance based on an agreement by the husband to pay the wife some cash allowance with something in kind is not a proper order under S 488 Cr P C.—21 Cr 612 (P)

181. When wife applies for maintenance.—Where in an enquiry under S 488 Cr P. C. the husband offers to maintain his wife, it is the duty of the Magistrate to ask the wife if she is willing to live with her husband and to consider the grounds of her refusal if any. Any order for maintenance, without consideration of these questions, is illegal.—9 Cr 501

182. Factum of marriages.—

(1) Must be decided by the Magistrate himself. He should not refer the parties to the Civil Court for getting a decision on the point.—11 P R 1881

(2) Onus.—Where the marriage is denied, it is for the wife to show that she was legally married.—7 Bur T 71

- 182A. Enquiry cannot be delegated.—A Magistrate to whom a complaint under S 488 is made must enquire into it himself. He cannot refer it to a Subordinate Magistrate for enquiry and dismiss it on his report [29 P R 1905] A first class Magistrate referred an application to a second class Magistrate for inquiry and report, and on receiving a report to the effect that the defendant had agreed to pay the complainant fixed by the Court on his share of the property, passed an order for maintenance thereon. Held that the order was illegal. [11 M 1909]

183. Defence.—(1) A father is entitled to raise the objection that the child for whose maintenance he was ordered to make an allowance has become able to maintain itself.—9 L B 49. 25 M J 319. (2) That he has always been willing to maintain it.—18 P. R. 1894 5 P. L 1904. 21 P. R. 1914. 22 P R 1917. Con 8 Bar. T. 134 7 Bar T. 34. 6 L B 127. 2 L B 36. (02-03) U. B. 1 7. (03) U. B. 1 39. 185. Dismissal of petition on suspicion is illegal.—A Magistrate has no power to dismiss an application on the mere ground that he considers the applicant's conduct open to suspicion.—2 Weir 647
186. Wife not bound to prove that she has demanded maintenance for the child.—It is not necessary for a mother to prove in a case under S 488, that she had asked the father to support the son and the father has refused. The mere fact that it is necessary to institute proceedings may be taken to prove the neglect of the father.—T Bur T 34
- 186A. Accused may be examined as a witness.—See Note No 35 above.
187. Duration of allowance.—A Magistrate cannot fix the duration of maintenance to children "until they come of age."—18 P. R. 1894 2 Weir 631 [As to the law in England.—See Mathews 2 Silk 475 Johnson Comb 69]

- 188A. Maintenance must be definitely fixed in cash.—An order under S. 488 Cr. P. C. which does not definitely fix the maintenance allowance is not enforceable in law. An order to the effect that the petitioner is to pay Rs 70 in all per annum and is to give certain "wheat and cotton and Rs 10 cash" is indefinite and cannot be maintained.—21 Cr. 612 (P). 6 M. 283 2 Weir 636 2 Weir 627 [Ojachi]. 2 Weir 627 [Charabi]. 19 P. R. 1911

195. The word "proof" in subs (1)—means legal proof on oath.—13 W. R. 119

(3) Evidence for defence.

196. What is not sufficient defence.—The payment of a lump sum to the mother on a previous occasion is not a sufficient answer to an application for maintenance of the children.—1 L. R. 189: See 25 A. 163: Contra 10 M. 13

197. Valid Defence of offer to maintain.—An offer to maintain in order to be a valid defence must be a bona fide offer and not one made with the object of escaping the obligation to maintain.—13 Cr. 55 (L. B.)

Note.—For the purpose of S. 488 it is immaterial whether the mother had been married to the defendant or not.—10 C 781

200. Onus on the wife claiming maintenance.—She must prove—(1) that she is the validly married wife of the defendant, (2) that the defendant has either neglected or refused to maintain her; (3) she is justified in living apart from him.—10 B 269

(5) Proof of parentage.

201. (1) When maintenance is claimed for an illegitimate child it is not enough that the defendant may have been the father, but it must be shown that in all reasonable probability no one else can have been.—6 M 621.

202. (2) High Court refused to interfere with the finding of the Magistrate declaring a person to be the father of an illegitimate child when he had acted upon the sworn testimony of the mother in the presence of the reputed father.—20 W. R. 54

203. (3) Similarity of features and name of the child with its alleged father is not sufficient evidence for the purposes of S. 488.—16 C. 781.

204. (4) The paternity of the child irrespective of its legitimacy or illegitimacy must be proved.—16 C 781

204A. Evidence of non-access.—A wife may be cross examined to prove non-access during married life without independent evidence being first offered to prove the illegitimacy of the children.—18 B 469

(6) Miscellaneous.

205. Evidence of cruelty.—The word "cruelty" having been omitted no evidence of cruelty is now required. The word "cruelty" has been interpreted as not being confined to "personal violence"—1 A. 480.

Is relevant as a circumstance from which along with other circumstances an inference of neglect can be drawn.—9 B. R. 359

206. Agreement between husband and wife.—An agreement between husband and wife for payment of maintenance in the shape of a house jewels and a certain quantity of grain annually cannot be made the subject of an order under S. 488 or enforced under it.—12 P. R. 1890.

210. Allowance of Rs. 5. for wife and each child.—can be ordered by the Magistrate. The husband is liable to maintain his wife and each of his children and the Magistrate might order him to pay as much as Rs 50 for each of them.—12 Cr. 583

210A. Where parties have filed a petition of compromise.—the Magistrate can incorporate the value of the cloth agreed to be paid annually in the allowance fixed by him on the basis of the settlement.—2 Weir 634

224. Hindu not divided from his father.—Can be ordered to maintain his wife under S 488 Cr P. C.—13 M. 17
225. Professional beggar is not relieved from the obligation, to contribute to the support of his illegitimate child.—2 Weir 616

227. Onus.—A mere denial by the man himself of sufficiency of means, when that man is an able-bodied man, is not conclusive proof of want of sufficiency. The onus lies on him to show that he has not sufficient means.—(11) U B 2-q 90.
228. The fact that wife has means is no defence.—If the husband has sufficient means, he is bound to his wife and he is not relieved of the obligation by the circumstance that the wife may have friends able and willing to maintain her.—2 Weir 615
229. Allowance order may be proportionate to the means.—Maintenance ordered with reference to the means of the husband is legal.—9 W R 1. 35 P. R. 1885

233. Magistrate's finding of illegitimacy no bar.—A Magistrate's finding against the sonship of a person for whom maintenance was claimed is no bar to a Civil Court to establish the sonship and to recover maintenance.—33 M. J. 419; 32 C 479; 15 I. C 603 (-).

(2) Effect of decision by Civil Court.

234. Magistrate bound to take into consideration.—It is not open to a Magistrate to ignore a final decree of the Civil Court on the ground that it rests on reasons which do not appear to him to be satisfactory, the jurisdiction vested in him being auxiliary to that of the Civil Court.—2 Weir 615 See 2 Weir 614
235. Finding by Civil Court of illegitimacy.—Where a declaration is obtained by the alleged father, in the Civil Court, subsequent to the order for maintenance under S. 488 Cr. P. J. 419 2 Weir 615 20 M J 12. 5 C 558 14 C. 276. 19 A. 50 5 A 236 7 B 180

239. Subsequent decree of the Civil Court.—When an order for maintenance has been made on the ground that M is the wife of N but subsequently the Civil Court decides that M is not and never has been the wife of N the Magistrate is bound to consider the effect of the decree and should refuse to enforce the order.—9 O. Remedy of the person against whom an order is passed.—The person in whose favour the decree is passed should apply to the Magistrate and satisfy him that by the order of the Civil Court, his order for maintenance cannot be enforced and ask him on the authority of 5 C 55s and 7 B 140 to abstain from giving any further effect to his order of maintenance — 14 C 276
- 242. Violation of the terms of conditional

XVI. ENFORCEMENT OF THE ORDER.

[N. B.—The Court cannot under S 31 of Act VII of 1870, order the defaulter to repay to the complainant the fee so paid on the application.—Ibid] But See 11 C. P. 14

- 249. Procedure.—A claim for accumulated arrears of maintenance may be dealt with in one proceeding and arrears may be levied under a single warrant.—25 C. 291-9 A. 240 (F.B.):

decrees.—Where a lump sum decree obtained from the Civil Court, was subject to certain conditions, non compliance of the husband with those conditions, would justify the wife's having left his custody and would revive her right to maintenance under the Magisterial order passed under this section [4 P R 1905]

- 243. Civil Court's order not effective before the terms of the decree have been complied with.—Where the suit for restitution is brought not with a view to take the wife back, but simply to evade the payment of the allowance awarded by the Criminal Court, the order of the Magistrate must remain in force until the husband evicted the decree against his wife by taking her home —[Per *Judgment T. - 251. Enforcement would be wrong on proof of a lump sum having been paid.—Although the Code of Criminal Procedure contains no express provision for cancelling an order for maintenance in cases where the woman has received a lump sum of money in satisfaction of her claims for maintenance, yet a Magistrate would clearly not only be justified in refusing to enforce the order of maintenance in such cases, but would be wrong in enforcing it —10 M 13

- 252. Excessive allowance.—A Magistrate cannot refuse to enforce an order, because on a further enquiry, evidence is given to show that the allowance was excessive.—2 Weir 636

- 253. Enforcement may be made by a second class Magistrate—Rat 288.

Power of police officer executing the warrant.

(7) Death of the defendant.

- 258. The order cannot be enforced, after the death of the person against whom it was made against his estate—17 C N 1130.

The maximum imprisonment will be one month for each month's arrears and a further term of a month's imprisonment for the balance if any representing the arrears for a portion of a month—25 C 291; 20 M 3; 12 P. R. 1919 12 P. R 1877 con 9 A. 240 (F. B.); Rst 801 ('93-'00) L B 316 ('02-'03) U B 1, 3. 7 Bar T 225; 6 M. H. (1p) 22.

Note.—The petitioner was ordered to pay his wife maintenance allowance at Rs 4 per month. He defaulted and the arrears came up to Rs 170 odd in all. He was sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment. Held that the sentence was justified by the term of section 485(3) Cr P. C [12 P R 1919]. The decision in 2 Weir 635=6 M H (1pp) XXII to the effect that, the result of the issue of a warrant for accumulated arrears would be that one month's imprisonment alone would be awardable in default, was passed with reference to S 316 of the Code of 1861. But under the Code of 1892, the maximum imprisonment that can be imposed will be one month for each month's arrears and if there is a balance representing the arrears for a portion of a month a further term of a month's imprisonment may be imposed for such arrears [20 M. 3].

It should cease on payment of the amount due

[N. B.—The point has now been settled.—See subs (3)]

(4) Imprisonment cannot be awarded in anticipation.

261. An order for maintenance provided that, in the event of the defendant failing to pay the monthly maintenance or of there not being sufficient distrainable goods belonging to him, he should be rigorously imprisoned for the term of 15 days for every breach of the order. Held, that the provision was an anticipation of a procedure to take place on a wilful default, if such should occur, and was therefore illegal—5 M. H. (1p) xxviii.

(5) Nature of the imprisonment—does it cease on payment of arrears?

262. In 5 M. 70 and (97) L B (91 '00) 316 (317) it has been held that the imprisonment ordered in default of payment is a punishment for a breach of the order by the Court. The sentence is therefore absolute and the defaulter is not entitled to be released on payment of arrears due. It has been held that in Form XI, not only simple but rigorous imprisonment is provided for, which would indicate that the imprisonment is not for default of payment but is a punishment for contempt of court. The form does not provide for release on payment—[(95) U. B. ('92-'96) 70 (71)]. This view has been expressly dissented from in 22 C 291.

(6) Imprisonment ought to be simple.

263. It would be safer to confine imprisonment in default of payment to simple imprisonment—[(95) U B ('92-'96) 70 (71)]

XVIII. APPEAL REVISION ETC.

(1) No appeal.

264. No appeal lies from the order of a Magistrate under the section directing a man to pay a monthly allowance for the support of his illegitimate child—7 W. R 10; 5 B. H. 81 28 M J. 493; See 20 W. R 58

(2) Further enquiry.

265. A District Magistrate is not competent to direct further enquiry into an application rejected under S. 488 Cr. P. C—25 A. 545; See 1 C J. 102.

(3) Revision.

266. High Court in its revisional jurisdiction decided the fact whether under the Hindu Law, the wife is entitled to separate maintenance—16 B 290

[Note.—As to High Court's powers of revision—See 5 B. H. (c c) 81; 4 N. P 123; 26 P L 1903]

(4) Review.

267. The Code of Criminal Procedure does not authorise a Magistrate to review the final order made by him under S. 488 Cr P C—21 C N. 344

(5) Rehearing.

268. The law does not empower a Magistrate to rehear an application for maintenance under S 488 dismissed for non appearance.—1 C J 214 1 C L 89 17 Cr 106 (C) 5 A 224

[Note.—But where the application has been dismissed for default without any adjudication it can be revived.—21 Cr. 3 (C)]

269. Second enquiry on same materials is illegal.—Where there has already been an adjudication on certain facts by a competent Court under S 488 Cr P C, no second enquiry into the same allegations is competent, unless there have been charges of cruelty subsequent to the former decision.—21 P R 1016 5 A 224

270. If subsequently to the dismissal of the complaint, facts different from those on which the first application was based, take place, a Magistrate may entertain a second application therefor.—2 Weir 633

271. The rejection of an application in one District for want of jurisdiction is no bar to the renewal of the application in the proper District.—5 N. P. 217 9 B 40

272. A District Magistrate cannot entertain an application de novo, after the matter has been decided by a duly empowered Magistrate.—1 C L 89

273. Fresh application after the first one has become inoperative.—Where after an order for maintenance under S 488 Cr. P C the wife returns to the husband, the original order becomes ineffectual as to the future, and the wife, if again turned out, should again institute formal proceedings under Chapter XXXVI Cr. P. C.—(88) A N 217 B. H Cr R No. 8 of 15-3-88.

XIX. CANCELLATION OF ORDERS.

274. Who can cancel.—Application for cancellation under subs (4) and (5) must be made to the Magistrate who passed the original order or to his successor in office, who and who only has jurisdiction in the matter.—25 A 545

275. Allowance of children.—Subs (5) of S 488 Cr P C does not apply to an order awarding maintenance of child. Cancellation of an allowance to a child is not provided by the Code.—[77 P R 185 6 L B 127] The only order that can be passed is one of modification under S 489 infra on the ground of change of circumstances.—[(04) A N 149 27 A 11] The fact, that the husband obtained, subsequently to an order under S 488 Cr P C, a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights, does not absolve him from the liability to pay. It might be different if he obtained an order for guardianship.—[6 L B 127 2 L B 46 (L B)]

276. Refusal to give up the children.—by wife will not entail the cancellation of the order.—(02) U B 7

277. Decree for restitution of conjugal rights.—vacates a previous order of separate maintenance to the wife under S 488 Cr P C.—[See 13 W R 52 23 B 44 27 A 483]

278. Cancellation on proof of adultery.—It is always open to the husband against whom an order for maintenance has been passed, to prove that his wife is living in adultery and have the order cancelled [8 B H (C C) 124 5 A 224 (225) (82) A N 168, 36 P R 1902] To obtain an order of cancellation on the ground of adultery of the wife, the husband must clearly establish his allegation. Where three out of nine witnesses disowned all knowledge of misconduct, one of the witnesses said he suspected the woman because she went continually to the bazar and the remaining witnesses considered her adulterous because men went to the house where who was leading a chaste life afterwards would not be disentitled to maintenance for her past misconduct.—[26 A 326 See Rat 353]

279. Execution of agreement.—between the parties when the validity of such agreement has not been declared by a competent court is not a sufficient ground for cancelling the order.—2 Weir 646

280. Discontinuance of allowance.—Where a father is ordered to make an allowance for the maintenance of his daughters, but it is found that the daughters have become qualified to maintain themselves, the order may be discharged notwithstanding that the daughters are desirous of continuing their education or are reluctant to work for their living.—19 Cr 160 (L B)

281. Order cannot be cancelled on production of a disputed compromise.—Where the wife denied the validity of an alleged deed of compromise by which the parties agreed to a reduction in the rate of maintenance allowed by the Magistrate, held that the Magistrate was not competent to cancel the order for maintenance, until the agreement has been declared by a competent tribunal to be binding on the wife.—2 Weir 649

(2) Court fee on application for maintenance.

283. An application for maintenance under S 488 cannot be dismissed on the ground that the applicant failed to pay process fees as ordered by the court—16 M. 231: 11 C P. 14

(3) Res Judicata.

284. (1) Where a duly authorised Magistrate has dismissed an application under S. 488 after hearing the evidence offered, the District Magistrate cannot entertain the complaint de novo—1 C N. 89

Though an application for maintenance may have been dismissed once in one state of facts, the Magistrate is competent to allow maintenance on an application being made on a different state of facts which have subsequently occurred—2 Weir 633

285. (2) or when under similar circumstances he has granted the application, a second Magistrate cannot reopen matters already adjudicated upon by him and direct the discontinuance of allowance.—5 A. 224

489. On proof of a change in the circumstances of any person receiving under section 488 a monthly allowance, ordered under the same section to pay a monthly allowance to his wife or child, the Magistrate may make such alteration in the allowance as he thinks fit. Provided that if he increases the allowance the monthly rate of fifty rupees in the whole be not exceeded

(4) Costs.

286. There is no provision of Law under which a husband can be made liable for costs incurred by the wife in connection with an application for maintenance under O P. C—11 C P. 14.

(5) Reference under S 438 Cr. P. C.

287. Where a subordinate Magistrate has rejected a petition for maintenance under S 488 Cr P. C., the District Magistrate has no power to take evidence under S 438 Cr. P. C. and if he had that power, it was only for the purpose of making a recommendation to the High Court—12 A J. 461

(6) Fresh application on new facts.

288. It cannot be generally laid down that, when a duly empowered Magistrate had dismissed an application under S. 488, no other Magistrate is competent to entertain the complaint de novo. A woman may apply for maintenance on a given state of facts in one year, and if subsequently different facts take place, they may justify an application for maintenance, though the prior facts did not—2 Weir 633

(7) Revival of proceedings.

289. See Note No. 191 under XI Practice and Proceduro, above.

Notes.

1. Meaning of "change in the circumstances".—The "change" in the circumstances referred to in S 489 is a change in the pecuniary or other circumstances of the party paying or receiving the allowance, which would justify an tenance allowance to his daughter and in 1884 applied for a cancelment of the order of 1877 on the ground that the daughter was married. held that the husband being legally bound to support his wife, the Magistrate was not competent to reject the application that the girl had not yet attained puberty and the husband was therefore not bound to maintain her—2 Weir 650

2. The word "alteration" in the circumstances contemplated by this section, only amounts to a power to alter the amount and not to a total discontinuance thereof.—Per Mahmood J. in 5 A. 220. Con 2 Weir 650 11 C N C

8. (5) The rate of maintenance should be reduced when there is a fall in the husband's income.—170 P. L. 1914

What are not "change in the circumstances."

9. (1) The fact that the wife had got a divorce after the order for maintenance, and married a second husband, will not absolve the first husband from his duty to maintain his child.—27 A 11
10. A husband cannot claim a reduction of the amount of allowance ordered to be paid by the Court, to his deserted wife, on the mere ground that she might possibly be able to earn something by her own labour.—(87) A N 107
11. (3) The change of circumstances referred to in the Section is a change in the pecuniary or other circumstances of the party paying or receiving the allowance, which would justify an increase

12. Power to order maintenance at "progressively increasing rate."—A Magistrate has no power to make an order under S. 489 Cr. P. C. for maintenance at a progressively increasing rate. The allowance must be ordered at a fixed monthly rate, though it may be altered from time to time under S. 489 as the child grows older [12 O 535 4 N P 454]. The fact, that a child to whom a maintenance has been awarded, has grown older, constitutes a "change" in the circumstances of the person receiving the allowance [14 M 308 (97) L B (93 00) 393 But See 2 Weir 634]

13. Application under S. 489 can be made only in respect of a subsisting order under S. 488 Cr. P. C.—A decree for the restitution of conjugal rights determines or puts an end to a previous order under S. 488 Cr. P. C. The

14. Order for reduction cannot operate retrospectively.—A Magistrate has no power to reduce the rate of maintenance which has accrued due. He should enforce the payment of arrears at the rate originally awarded, and the reduction should be limited to payments accruing due after the date of the order.—2 Weir 650.
15. A person aggrieved by the order under S. 488 should apply under S. 489 Cr. P. C.—A person who seeks a modification of the order passed against him under S. 488 Cr. P. C. must proceed under this section [9 W. R 1 38 P R 1885]. If a person, against whom an order for maintenance has been made, considers that such order should no longer be in force against him, it is open for him to apply under S. 489 and get the order altered. It is not suitable or expedient that it should be open to a second Magistrate acting under S. 490 to call in question an

16. order of a criminal court under S. 488 may be modified on a change of circumstances being shown, still, so long as that order remains in force, it must carry with it its proper consequences.—22 O 291

490 A copy of the order of maintenance shall be given without payment to the person in Enforcement of order of maintenance whose favour it is made or to his guardian if any, or to the person to whom the allowance is to be paid and such order may be enforced by any Magistrate in any place where the person against whom it is made may be, on such Magistrate being satisfied as to the identity of the parties and the non-payment of the allowance due

Notes.

1. Scope of the section.—It is not the intention of the Legislature that the Magistrate, to whom an application is made to enforce an order of maintenance, should take into consideration anything further than the identity of the parties and the non-payment of the allowance. It is, no doubt, also open to the Magistrate to consider whether the person to whom the order of maintenance has been given is, at the time she makes the application, still holding the position of wife. No further step relaxing the clear words of S. 490 should be allowed.—25 A 165.
2. Note per contra.—The conditions specified in the second clause of S. 490 Cr. P. C. have special reference to cases in which the enforcement is sought at a place other than that in which the order was originally passed or by a Magistrate other than the one who passed it and cannot be considered as exhaustive, and it is open to any party to such order to show cause against its enforcement and to ask for its cancellation or alteration on any of the grounds specified in S. 488 and 489 Cr. P. C. in one and the same petition.—[21 P R 1844]. For instance, it is open to the Magistrate enforcing the order to decline to do so on the ground that the claim had been released [13 M. 13] or that the wife had voluntarily returned to live with the husband [(88) A N 217 (04) L B 1 10]

3. Effect of change of law.—S. 490 replaced the word "shall" used in the corresponding section of Act X of 1882 by the word "may," and the object of the Legislature in making the above alteration obviously was to enable the Magistrate to consider any reasons, that may be urged against the enforcement of the order other than those for which separate provision is made by S 488 (5) and Sec 489 of the Code. Hence a decree obtained by the party against whom an order has been made in the Civil Court, [See 17 O. C. 331 (Civ)] declaring that he was not the father of child must be given effect to, when the order in favour of the child was sought to be enforced [2 O J. 251. See O O C 19 27 A 183 23 B 481]

4. Can the order of maintenance be enforced on proof of divorce?—In the leading case of "Kavay Pubhai" 8 B. H. (C C) 95, a ruling under S 235, Act XLVIII of 1860 (Presidency Town Police Act) it was held that an order for maintenance validly made against a Mahomedan husband under S. 13 of the Presidency Town Police Amendment Act, can no further be executed after divorce of the wife by the husband. [The wording of that section corresponded to S 337 of the Cr. P. C. Act X of 1872] The ratio decidendi was applied in a maintenance case under the Cr. P. C. in S C 554. It was held in S A 226 [See also 7 B 189 8 B 95] that the view expressed in 8 B H. (C C) 95 and S C. 554 was based on sound principles of construction, "though there was no express provision in the Code to that effect." The Allahabad High Court, however, in a later ruling [15 A. 143 P'd in (97-01) U. B. 1 112] dissented from this view and distinguished the ruling in 8 B H. (C C) 95 on the ground that it was a ruling under the Act XLVIII of 1860 which contained no provision similar to S 490 Cr. P. C. The dictum in 15 A. 143 that the Court acting under S. 490 Cr. P. C. had no jurisdiction to enquire into a plea that the wife was divorced was definitely overruled in 19 A 50 (F. B.). See also (85) A. N. 29 14 C 276 (1915) U. B. II 53. 21 P. R. 1894 17 O C 260 9 O C 49. The fact that the parties are Shia Mahomedans does not preclude the application of S. 490 Cr. P. C.

(the plaintiff) in the presence of the Court. Held that even if such divorce made such an alteration in the circumstances as to justify the Court on the application of the husband (the defendant) in altering the order for maintenance, yet the defendant would not be relieved from obeying the order during the time which had elapsed up to the date when and until the change of circumstances has occurred—19 W. R. 73 [Dissented from in 19 A 50 (F. B.)]

[Note.—A father, Hindu or Mahomedan, is bound to maintain his children even though the mother of the children may have been divorced.—(72-92) L. B. 145]

5. Effect of orders by Civil Court.—"Courts exercising jurisdiction under S 488 Cr. P. C. must often decide questions of marriage, divorce, paternity and so forth, but their decisions are not binding upon the parties in other litigation in civil courts, they are merely incidental to the main object of the proceedings, namely, the grant or refusal of an order for maintenance

On the other hand, if a competent civil court has decided that A. is not and never has been the wife of B, then a Magistrate cannot in proceedings, under S 488, hold that A is the wife of B and order B to maintain her. If the principle on which the High Courts have acted in holding that, in proceedings under S 494 Magistrates must attend to a divorce effected after the order for maintenance, is correct, as I think it is, it seems to follow that Magistrates must in such proceedings attend to a decree obtained by Z (the defendant) in the present case"—P. Channer (J. C. in 9 O C 19)

6. Objection that the child is able to maintain itself.—A father is entitled to raise the objection that the child, for whose maintenance he was ordered to make an allowance, has become liable to maintain itself.—[9 L. B. 19]. Where father is ordered to make an allowance for the maintenance of his daughters, but it is subsequently found that the daughters have become qualified to maintain themselves, the order may be discharged notwithstanding that the daughters are desirous of continuing their education or are reluctant to work for their living [19 Cr. II (L. B.)]
7. Magistrate cannot refuse to enforce on the ground that the allowance is excessive.—A Magistrate cannot refuse to enforce an order for maintenance when in a further enquiry evidence is given to show that the allowance granted was excessive—2 Weir 636
8. Order may be enforced anywhere the defendant is to be found.—The second class Magistrate, of the place where the husband is at the time, is competent to enforce an order for maintenance passed against the husband [Rat 288]
9. S. 490 does not deprive Magistrate, who made the order, of jurisdiction to enforce it.—S 538 (=S 490) does not deprive Magistrate, who has made an order for maintenance of the jurisdiction, given him by S 53 (=488) When the defendant is beyond his jurisdiction, he may in his discretion, issue a warrant for collection of arrears of maintenance, or refer the applicant to the Magistrate having jurisdiction at the place where the defendant is to be found—4 M 230 7 L. B. 116.

11. Orders based on compromise cannot be enforced.—If any agreement is made after the order of the Magistrate, it has the effect of superseding the previous order, and whatever rights it may give rise to in a civil court neither the agreement nor the order was one that could be enforced under this Section—42 P R 1888. See 12 P. R. 1890 : 34 P. R. 1905

12. Remission of Court fee—In the exercise of power conferred by S 35 of the Court Fees Act VII. of 1870, the Governor-General in Council is pleased to remit the fees payable under the said Act on a copy of the order when the copy is given under S. 490 to the person named therein—[Gaz of India 1886 Pt I, 506.] Under S 20 Cl. (ii) of the same Act, a fee of one rupee has been fixed for serving and executing a warrant for levy of maintenance of a wife and child and also a percentage on the amount of maintenance levied—[*Cal. DIRECTIONS OF THE NATURE OF A HABEAS CORPUS

491. (1) Any of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay Power to issue directions of the nature may, whenever it thinks fit direct—of a habeas corpus

(a) that a person within the limits of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction be brought up before the Court to be dealt with according to law ;

(b) that a person illegally or improperly detained in public or private custody within such limits be set at liberty ;

(c) that a prisoner detained in any jail situate within such limits be brought before the Court to be there examined as a witness in any matter pending or to be inquired into in such Court ;

(d) that a prisoner detained as aforesaid be brought before a Court-martial or any Commissioners acting under the authority of any commission from the Governor General in Council for trial or to be examined touching any matter pending before such Court-martial or Commissioners respectively ;

(e) that a prisoner within such limits be removed from one custody to another for the purpose of trial, and

(f) that the body of a defendant within such limits be brought in on the Sheriff's return of corpi corpus to a writ of attachment

(2) Each of the said High Courts may, from time to time frame rules to regulate the procedure in cases under this section

(3) Nothing in this section applies to persons detained under the Bengal State Prisoners Regulation, 1818, Madras Regulation II of 1819, or Bombay Regulation XXV of 1827, or the State Prisoners Act, 1850, or the State Prisoners Act, 1858

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub section (3) of section 491 of the said Code, after the figures "1858," the words and figures "or the Indian Extradition Act, 1903" shall be added

Notes.

1. Habeas Corpus.—Habeas Corpus the most celebrated prerogative writ in the English Law, is a remedy for a person deprived of his liberty. It is addressed to him who detains another in custody, and commands him to produce the body, with the day and cause of his caption and detention, and to do, submit to and receive whatever the Judge or Court shall consider in that behalf—Wharton's Law Lexicon.

2. Nature of the power exercisable under S. 491.—The power under S 491 is a power not created by the Extradition Act or exercisable by way of revision that vested in Presidency Courts to protect the liberty of the subject in appropriate cases, whatever may be the occasion of deprivation of which complaint is made—[42 C 793] The right to issue a writ of habeas corpus passed by the High Court has not been taken away by the special procedure by subclauses (6) and (7) of the Extradition Act [46 C 31]. The Jurisdiction of the High Court to give directions in the nature of habeas corpus under S. 491 Cr. P. C. is not excluded by the issue by the Government of India of a warrant under S. 3 sub s 8 of the Extradition Act [29 C 164].

3. Where the petition should be filed.—The Original Side of the High Court in its Criminal Jurisdiction is the proper court to deal with applications under S. 491 Cr. P. C.—41 C 76 2 G N cccviii

4. Sec 491 does not apply to case of accused convicted and sentenced by Judge of High Court.—It is doubtful if S. 491 Cr. P. C. has any application to the case of an accused who has been convicted and sentenced by a Judge of the High Court at the Sessions, on the ground of irregularities having been discovered after the delivery of the verdict by the jury.—41 C 723.

5. Fugitive Criminals.—Sec 11 of the English Extradition Act of 1870 provides that a fugitive criminal may apply for a writ of habeas corpus, if the Magistrate commits him to prison. There is no such provision in our Extradition Act—[XV of 1903] and subclauses (6) and (7) have provided a special procedure"—Chaudhuri J in 46 C 31

6. Person neither arrested nor detained within jurisdiction.—Under S. 491, Cr. P. C., the High Court has no jurisdiction to order the discharge from custody of a person arrested under the Extradition Act where neither the arrest nor the detention was within the jurisdiction of the Court—46 C 31

7. Can the Indian Legislature take away or limit the right to Habeas Corpus P.—Quere —“Whether a supreme right like that to a Habeas Corpus can be taken away or limited by the Indian Legislature?” The burden lies heavy on those who assert it (that the right has been taken away) to show that it has been taken away by such implication as is absolutely necessary for the interpretation of statutes”—[Per Moorkjee J. in 39 C 164—L R 3 P. C 282 (289) H]

Custody of minors.

8. (1) Quere —Whether a Mahomedan (Shiah) could by his will deprive his widow of the custody of her infant children by appointing by his will some one else as their guardian without any just cause, and whether an arbitrary and capricious direction in the will depriving the mother of the custody of her infant would be enforced by courts?—[11 B R 75] Where a European officer had left directions in his will that his natural children by a native woman, should be brought up as Christians, held on habeas corpus that the mother of these children was entitled to the custody.—[Re. W. Fletcher Perry's Oriental Cases 103]

9. (2) The delegation of parental authority is revocable at any time and it is the duty of the parents and guardians to revoke it if used to the detriment of the children. It is also open to the court, within whose jurisdiction the children are to be found to revoke it at any time, if sufficient cause be shown for interference especially when the parents have it out of their power to interfere themselves for the protection of their children by sending them touring round the world in the custody of strangers—[13 M. 224]

10. (3) The main consideration for the court to be acted upon in the exercise of its power to interfere for the protection of children is the ‘benefit’ or ‘welfare’ of the child. The term ‘welfare’ must be read in the largest possible sense [30 M. 224; Q. v. Gungall (1893) 2 Q. B. D. 222] “The welfare of the child is not to be measured by money only, or by physical comfort only. The word must be taken in its widest sense. The moral and religious welfare of the child must be considered as well as its physical well-being. Nor can the ties of affection be disregarded” [Re Me Girth (1893) 1 Ch 141 (115)].

11. (4) Even a father, if it be shown that cruelty or corruption is to be apprehended from him, would be deprived of the custody of his children. The King v. Greenhill (1836) 4 A & E. 261; See (1838) 4 A & E. (613). A mother would be deprived of her custody, if she is living in open adultery [In re G (1899) 1 Ch 719]

12. (5) The underlying principle of every writ of Habeas Corpus (and proceedings under S. 491 of the Cr. P. C. 1895) is to ensure the protection and well-being of the person brought before the court under that writ. The real interest and well being of the person ought to be not only the determining but the sole consideration—[12 B. R. 891]

12A. (6) In Courts of equity a discretionary power has always been exercised to control the father's or guardian's legal rights of custody. Where therefore the parents, in pursuance of arrangement deliberately entered into by them, have resigned their parental authority. Held that the Court in exercising its powers of interference with the custody of a child, at the instance of the parents should be guided mainly if not entirely by what it conceives to be the best for the welfare and well being of the child [23 C 290].

13. Application of S. 491 in respect of children.—S. 491 (1) (b) Cr. P. C. does not apply, when the children have not been illegally or improperly detained. [8 M. T. 300] A Master is not entitled to a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of recovering the custody of a minor apprentice [33 M. 288 See R. v. Reynolds 6 T. R. 497—Le Franc v. Barnum (1899) 43 Ch. D. 165]

14. Recovery of minors from the custody of Missionaries.—Where the mother put her illegitimate child in a Mission School and it appeared that she never contributed any thing whatever towards the expenses of the child after she had become a boarder, the court refused an application under this section by her for the recovery of her daughter on the ground that it was clearly for the present and future welfare of the girl that she should remain where she was [16 B 307]. The court will not assist parents in exercising their legal rights of custody in cases where there has been a voluntary abandonment of such rights [23 C. 200]. The Court on Habeas Corpus ordered a Hindu boy of twelve years of age to be delivered up to his father and refused to examine the boy as to his capacity and knowledge of the Christian religion, or as to his wishes to remain with his Christian instructors. See Robert Nesbitt Perry's Oriental Cases 103]. But a mother who not being able to maintain her children, handed over her infant daughter to a mission and became a convert to Mahomedanism, was held not to be entitled to the custody of her daughter [1 M. T. 347].

15. Change of religion does not disentitle father to custody.—Where a Parsi family detained an infant child from its father, on the ground that the latter having embraced Christianity, the Court ordered the child to be given up to the father on habeas corpus, a compromise with the father after issue of writ was declared fraudulent as defeating the common law right of the father. [Shapurji Bezonji Perry 91]. A Mahomedan father will not lose his right to the custody of his children merely because he has changed his religion. [60 P. R. 1901]. A Hindu father does not lose his rights of guardianship by the fact that he has become a Brahmo [8 M. T. 300].

16. The discretion of the Court.—S. 491 of the Cr. P. C. leaves it entirely to the discretion of the Court, whether it should or should not direct the person brought before it to be dealt with according to law whereas Rule 794 of the Bombay High Court Rules in dealing with a person so brought before it, deprives the Court of all further discretion, and commands that, in the absence of cause being shown against the rule, which is very different thing from allowing the Court to exercise its discretion even when technically the cause is inadequate, it shall pass an order that the person or persons improperly detained shall be delivered to the person entitled to their custody.—12 B. R. 891

17. Meaning of "dealt with according to law."—The phrase is of such wide and general meaning that it is fairly open to many constructions. In the case of children it might not unreasonably be extended so as to take in what ordinarily happens when the parties have recourse to the Courts under the Guardian and Wards Act instead of under this section—[ibid]. A search warrant was issued for the production of a ward said to be wrongfully confined at the instance of the guardian. The ward, who was quite grown up, denied the complainant's allegations of

18. Scope of subs (b).—The subsection itself provides that the remedy, which the Court gives, goes no further than setting aside detention at liberty.—[ibid]. Subs (b) does not apply when the children whose custody is sought are not illegally or improperly detained [8 M. T. 300].

19. When the custodian has no personal interest.—Where the defendant had no personal interest in the children whom the plaintiff sought to be delivered up to himself, or in their services, and no right to their custody, and where the only object of the defendant was to send back the children to their parents or natural guardians, the proceedings should be treated as on habeas corpus under S. 491 Cr. P. C. for the purpose of determining the custody of the children.—33 M. 289

Practice.

20. A writ of habeas corpus may be granted in a Civil or Criminal proceeding [R. v. Barnardo L. R. 23 Q. B. D. 305; (10) M. N. 187]

Calcutta High Court Rules.

21. (1) Affidavit.—Every application to the Court to admit a prisoner to bail shall, (unless otherwise ordered) be supported by an affidavit or affirmation stating when, by whom and under what circumstances the prisoner was brought before the Court.

[Rule 1]. Every application to bring up before the Court a person alleged to be illegally or improperly detained in custody, shall be supported by affidavit, or affirmation stating where and by whom the person is detained in custody and (so far as they are known) the facts relating to such cation to bring up a prisoner before the Court to be examined as a witness shall be supported by affidavit, or affirmation stating where the prisoner is detained in custody and for what purpose.

other custody it is proposed to remove him, and the reason for such change of custody [Rule 6].

- (N. B.—The affidavit or affirmation required by rules 1 and 3 shall be made by the person alleged to be in custody [Rule 8].

- (2) Service and Return of writ.—(4) The sheriff shall, as soon as possible, after the arrest of any person under a warrant of arrest issued under the High Courts Criminal Procedure Act, bring the body of such person before the Court to be dealt with according to law. If the sheriff shall fail to comply with the provisions of this Sheriff's return, shall cause the same to be produced before the Court, on a requisition to him in writing [Rule 7]. If any case in which the Court shall order a person in custody to be brought either before it, or before a Court martial or before Commissioners acting under the authority of a Commission from the Governor-General in Council or to be removed from one custody to another, a warrant in writing shall be prepared and signed by the Registrar or the Clerk of Crown and countersigned by the Judge who made the order, and sealed with the seal of the Court [Rule No. 10]. Such a warrant when issued under Rule 3, shall be forwarded by the Registrar or Clerk of the Crown, to the officer in charge of the Jail, in which the prisoner is confined. In every other case, the warrant shall, unless otherwise ordered, be delivered to the attorney of the applicant who shall cause it to be served personally upon the person to whom it is directed, or otherwise, as the Court shall direct [Rule No. 11].—See rules under the High Court Criminal Pro. Act X of 1875.

22. [Notes.—(1) "Cepi corpus et paratum habeo" (I have taken the body and have it ready) is a return made by the Sheriff upon an attachment copias etc. when he has the person, against whom the process was issued, in custody.

(2) The return cannot be controverted.—The return to a writ of habeas corpus must be taken to be true and cannot be controverted by an affidavit. In England, 56 Geo 3 c 100 S 4 allows affidavits to be used to controvert the return in criminal matters, but that statute does not apply to this country. The return to a writ of habeas corpus can however be amended—[5 H. L. 418]

23. Power of High Court to issue writ into mofassil.—On an application to the High Court to issue a writ of habeas corpus to the Superintendent (a European British Subject) of the jail, held that the Supreme Court had power to writs of habeas corpus to persons in the mofassil and that the same power is continued in the High Court. As the person, against whom writ was applied for, had acted under the order of the Governor-General in Council the Court would not direct the writ to issue [Khan G B. L. 392; See 18 B. 636; 1 Knapp].

24. Conflicting rulings as to the right of an apostate husband to obtain custody of the wife.—When the wife of a Hindu refused to live with her husband on the ground of his conversion to Christianity, a Judge of the Madras habeas corpus court, ordered her delivered up to her husband. But in a similar case at Bombay, where the wife had left the husband voluntarily on the ground of his having abandoned the usages of Hinduism and was living with her relations on restraint, the Court refused to issue the writ [Balaran Perry's Oriental Cases 516]

25. Prisoner brought down from mofassil.—Where a prisoner, who had escaped from custody in Mysore (a State in alliance with the British Government) and had been apprehended in the Mysore District, was sent down to Bombay in order to be remitted to his former custody in Mysore, on these facts appearing on a return of habeas corpus refused to discharge the prisoner, though there did not appear to be any warrant for his detention [Lefroy Perry's Oriental Cases 397].

26. Appeals.—An order of a Single Judge of the High Court made in the exercise of its original jurisdiction, refusing an appeal from a prisoner under S. 491 Cr. P. O for release from illegal custody under a sentence of imprisonment passed by a Divisional Bench of the Court, is a judgment within the terms of the Letters Patent and an appeal lies from such order to the High Court.—29 C. 286 555; But See 1 Weir 789-A. 1 Weir 789 B.

PART IX.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

OF THE PUBLIC PROSECUTOR.

492. (1) The Governor General in Council or the Local Government may appoint, general Power to appoint Public Prosecutors. in any case, or for any specified class of cases, in any local one or more officers to be called Public Prosecutors.

(2) In any case committed for trial to the Court of Session, the District Magistrate subject to the control of the District Magistrate, the Sub-divisional Magistrate, may, in the absence of the Public Prosecutor, or where no Public Prosecutor has been appointed, appoint any other person, not being an officer of police below the rank of Assistant District Superintendent, to be Public Prosecutor for the purpose of such case

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (2) of section 492 of the said Code—

(i) The words "In any case committed for trial to the Court of Session" shall be omitted, and for the words "such case," the words "any case" shall be substituted

(iv) After the words "for the purpose of such case" the following shall be added, namely:—

"The expression Assistant District Superintendent in this sub-section shall be deemed to include any person authorised by the Local Government to perform all or any of the duties of a District Superintendent."

Notes.

1. Definition of Public Prosecutor.—See Notes under S 4 (i) at p. 15 ante.

Who is not a Public Prosecutor.

2. (1) Legal Remembrancer of Bengal with reference to an appeal by the Government of Bihar and Orissa.—Where the Legal Remembrancer of Bengal was requested by the Government of Bihar and Orissa to file an appeal against acquittal but the letter did not appoint him a Public Prosecutor ated that oes not secutor

3. (2) Pleader engaged by complainant with the District Magistrate's permission.—In an appeal pending before the Chief Court, R, a brother of the murdered man, petitioned the District Magis-not constitute such pleader a Public Prosecutor under S 492 Cr P C.—29 P R. 1886

4. Public Prosecutor must not have a personal interest in the case.—"The appointment as a Crown Prosecutor, of the Magistrate, who tried the case, was a most improper and singular proceeding. To convert a Judge into an Advocate seeking to uphold his decision in another tribunal, is at least in the annals of British jurisprudence quite unprecedented and most objectionable, as he has a personal interest in the case which a Public Prosecutor should not have."—Per Westropp C J in 8 B H (c c) 126

5. Duty of the Public Prosecutor to be scrupulously fair.—It has been well said by a learned Judge "The counsel for the prosecution has most accurately conceived his duty, which is to be an assistant to the Court in the furtherance of justice, and not to act as counsel for any particular person or party." He should not by statement aggravate the case against the prisoners or keep back a witness, because his evidence may weaken the case for the prosecution. His only object should be to aid the Court in discovering the truth. A Public Prosecutor should avoid any proceeding likely to intimidate or unduly witness on either side.

There should be on his part, no unseemly eagerness for or grasping at conviction."—Per Westropp C J, [8 B H (c c) 126 4 B. L. (appx) 1.]—"In the case of Crown prosecution in England where the Attorney-General or Solicitor-General is conducting the case for the prosecution, there is never the least vestige of animosity or prejudice. The practice and procedure prevailing in England should be adopted in India. [Per Maclean C J, in 8 C N. xvii] See also R, i J John Woodhead 2 C and K. 520]

6. As to the Duties of the Public Prosecutor.—See Notes No. 6 to 12 under S. 286 Supra.
7. In Criminal cases, the Crown, by the Public Prosecutor, is party, not the complainant.—The Crown, by the Public Prosecutor, is the party, not the complainant. Every case is conducted by the Public Prosecutor.

the public peace, and not a mere contention between the complainant and the accused.—13 B. 389.

[Note.—The determination of the question, as to who is the real prosecutor, depends upon all the circumstances of the case. The mere setting of the law in motion is not the criterion, nor is it enough to say that the prosecution was instituted and conducted by the Police the conduct of the complainant before and after making the charge, his means of information and motives must also be taken into consideration.—[30 A 525 (P. C.)]

8. The Legal Remembrancer in Bengal.—is the Public Prosecutor in the High Court (vide Cal Gaz 30th June 1856, p 763.) 7 C N. ii.
9. In Madras. See Mad G O No 1369 J. dated 1-8-76 as to the authority empowered to appoint Public Prosecutor in the mofussil. Also Mad G O No 650 J dated 2-4-92 as to Public Prosecutor in the Tanjore and South Arcot Districts. As to appointment of private pleaders to conduct Crown cases [Mad G O No 1043 J. dated 11-8-76 See also Madras G O No. 1025 J. dated 17-6-74]
10. Effect of defect in the appointment of a Public Prosecutor.—S 270 Cr P C is merely directory. The absence of a Public Prosecutor in sessions trial or a defect in his appointment is at the most an irregularity capable of being enacted under S. 537 Cr. P. C. by the final order, unless it occasions a failure of justice. [33 P. R. 1887].

11. Copies of documents required by the Public Prosecutor are exempt from Court fees [See Gaz. of Ind. Not 21-1-'86]

493. The Public Prosecutor may appear and plead without any written authority before any Court in which any case of which he has charge is under inquiry, trial or appeal, and if any private person instructs a pleader to prosecute in any Court any person in any such case, the Public Prosecutor shall conduct the prosecution, and the pleader so instructed shall act therein, under his directions.

Notes.

- 1. Assistance of private pleaders.—Whether a private complainant is permitted or not to conduct a prosecution under S 59 (—S. 493) he may instruct counsel through a pleader under the Rules of the High Court and the Public Prosecutor may avail himself of counsel's services under S 60 (—S. 493), although the right of general management of the case rests in him. The assistance of counsel extends also to the summing up and reply.—(74) 11 B II. 102
- 2. Private pleader must be specially empowered to act as Public Prosecutor—Counsel instructed by a private person cannot conduct a prosecution on behalf of Government in a trial before a Court of Session without being specially empowered by the District Magistrate. Counsels so instructed can attend and watch the case on behalf of their client; but they cannot conduct the prosecution.—O S. 31

494. Any Public Prosecutor appointed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government may, with the consent of the Court, in cases tried by jury before the return of the verdict, and in other cases before the judgment is pronounced, withdraw from the prosecution of any person; and upon such withdrawal,—

- (a) if it is made before a charge has been framed, the accused shall be discharged,
- (b) if it is made after a charge has been framed, or when under this Code no charge is required, he shall be acquitted.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 494 of the said Code—

- (i) The words "appointed by the Governor General in Council or the Local Government" shall be omitted
- (ii) After the words "prosecution of any person" the words "either generally or in respect of any one or more of the offences for which he is being tried" shall be inserted.
- (iii) After the word 'discharged' in sub-clause (a), the words "in respect of such offence or offences" shall be inserted.
- (iv) After the word "acquitted" in sub-clause (b), the words "in respect of such offence or offences" shall be added

Notes.

- 1. Effect of withdrawal.—As soon as the public Prosecutor withdraws from the prosecution of a co-accused under S 491 Cr. P. C., he becomes a competent witness against the remaining accused. He cannot be on trial, notwithstanding the inadvertent omission to record a final order of discharge.—[18 C N 1213; 23 C. 1353 [D]. 7 A.J. 86]. Even assuming that S 343 Cr. P. C. would apply and that the case against the accused was withdrawn under S 491 Cr. P. C. in order to make him a witness in the case, the so-called inducement would not make the evidence of the discharged accused inadmissible in evidence.—[18 B R 268 See 10 B. 661 23 B 213 25 B 422. 5 B II (C. C.) 1; 1 B 610 (619); See 1 M 102]
- 2. Effect of withdrawal after charge.—S 493 applies to an order of acquittal made under S 191 Cr. P. C.—9 N 26 Where an order for discharge under this section should not be disturbed.—'I think that a complaint for rioting or being a member of an unlawful assembly discloses a non-compoundable offence, which the Crown alone in the interests of public peace and security has a right to conduct and I cannot allow the contention that the complainant has an independent right to have the guilty persons punished by revising the case after the accused had been discharged on the Crown withdrawing through the Court-Inspector under Ss. 494 and 495 Cr P C—Per Sadayya Aiyar J in 18 Cr. 329 (M)

3. Effect of pardon being tendered.—When an accused person accepts a pardon under S 337 or 338, he ceases to be an accused person to whom the provisions of S. 342 are applicable. It is quite unnecessary in such a case for the prosecution to be withdrawn against him.—[9 S 43] 10 M. J. 147 (F. B.)

Note.—If the pardon has been illegally tendered the accused is not a competent witness.—[See 2 A. 260; Rat 461. 52 P. L. 1902 12 P. R. 1902 16 C. P. 112; See 100 P. L. 1902 33 C. 1353 5 A. J. 691. 7 W. R. 44; 10 C. L. 553. 20 A. 426 3 B. H. (C. C.) 59; R. v. Rudol. Cowp 331 (1775)]

4. Acquittal is a matter of right.—The accused was charged with the offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder and on the Public Prosecutor having, with the consent of the Court, withdrawn from the prosecution, was acquitted and discharged by the Sessions Court, after taking the assessors' opinion on the evidence recorded in the case. Held that the Public Prosecutor having withdrawn from the prosecution with the consent of the Court, an acquittal should have been recorded without taking the opinion of the assessors. An acquittal was a matter of right to the accused, whatever the opinion of the assessors might be—Rat 307.

5. Private pleader specially appointed to

6. Person charged in a Sessions case must be acquitted.—A Prisoner once committed to sessions on a charge cannot be discharged, but must be acquitted or convicted [12 M. 35] A person charged with robbery, was, under S 494, on withdrawal by the Public Prosecutor acquitted by the Magistrate, Held that the order of acquittal was not valid. The High Court declined to direct the Sessions Judge ought to be the Prosecutor to withdraw a case of forgery, on the ground that the complainant was keeping out of the way—[2 Weir 655]

Procedure.

7. (a) Need any reasons be recorded?—The consent of a Court to a withdrawal from the prosecution is a judicial and not merely ministerial act and the Court should record the reasons in order that the High Court may be in a position to say whether the discretion vested in the Court has been properly exercised [22 C. N. 691. Con 5 M. T. 216]

8. (b) Public prosecutor must withdraw all the charges or none at all.—Under this section, a Public Prosecutor is not competent to withdraw only one of the charges. If he withdraws at all, he must withdraw all the charges. The High Court on appeal against a conviction on the other charges is competent to order the trial of the charge so withdrawn [2 C. J. xiv].

9. (c) Further enquiry.—Where the accused was discharged under S 494 Cr P C and the District Magistrate ordered further enquiry, held that the order was unsustainable, and if a sentence passed was inadequate, the proper course is an application for enhancement of sentence [(11) M N 74]

10. S. 494 does not apply to security proceedings.—See Note No 7 under S 495 infra.

11. High Court cannot revise an order of acquittal.—The High Court has no power to interfere with an order of acquittal under this section—5 M T 216

495. (1) Any Magistrate inquiring into or trying any case may permit the prosecution to be conducted by any person other than an officer of police below a rank to be prescribed by the Local Government in this behalf with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, but no person, other than the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor, Public Prosecutor or other officer generally or specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf shall be entitled to do so without such permission.

(2) Any such officer shall have the like power of withdrawing from the prosecution as is provided by section 494, and the provisions of that section shall apply to any withdrawal by such officer.

(3) Any person conducting the prosecution may do so personally or by a pleader.

(f) An officer of police shall not be permitted to conduct the prosecution if he has taken any part in the investigation into the offence with respect to which the accused is being prosecuted

Notes.

1. Police Officers.—With the previous sanction of the Government of India dated the 30th June 1887, the Local Government (Madras) on the 19th July 1887 empowered all officers of Police of and above the rank of a first class Head Constable in charge of Police stations to conduct prosecutions. Such officers are empowered to withdraw with the consent of the Court a case under S 494 [(14) M. N. 776] In Bengal [Pol. Man Vol I. p. 271] In Assam [Pol. Man 186] In the United Provinces [All. Man p 215] In the Central Provinces [See C. P. Gaz. 1893 Pt. II, p 131] no police officer below the rank of a Sub-Inspector, in the Punjab. [See Punj. Gaz. 1887 Pt. I 84] below the rank of a Deputy Inspector, and in Burma. [See Bur. Gaz. 1886 Pt I 360] no officer below the rank of a Sergeant of Police is permitted to conduct a prosecution.

2. Where a Police Officer himself is the Complainant.—The fact that the complainant is a Prosecuting Inspector does not deprive him of his rights as a private citizen, and under S 495 Cr. P. C. the trying Magistrate (who has to decide whether there are sufficient grounds for withholding the permission asked for), cannot refuse permission to prosecute his own case, merely because the District Magistrate would not allow the complainant to prosecute himself. [17 Cr. 496 (L B)]

3. Reasons for exclusion of Investigating Police Officers.—In all important cases and especially in cases of murder and dacoity, the were first questioned by the police and whether such statements agree with those subsequently made by the witnesses in Court [Rat 173 See 13 W. R. 18] Where a Police Inspector, on information received by him, applied for a warrant and arrested the accused, seized the property found, and named the witnesses to be summoned before the Magistrate; but he did not examine any of the witnesses and his inspection was confined to an inspection of the books and papers which had been seized.—Held that the Inspector fell within the provisions of S. 495 (4), and was not competent to conduct the prosecution of the person charged.—[26 B 533]

4. Discretion of the Court.—Where a Magistrate has, after due consideration, exercised the discretion allowed him by S 495 and allowed counsel to appear on behalf of the prosecution, the High Court cannot, as a Court of Revision, over-rule the order of the Magistrate and direct him to refuse to allow counsel to appear. [Per White C. J. and Moore J. in 2 Weir 655; Benson J.

Continued]. The Punjab Chief Court in 6 P. R. 1905 held that it is not improper for a District Magistrate, if he considered that the too frequent appearance of pleaders for the prosecution in petty criminal cases, was detrimental to the interests of justice, to advise Courts subordinate to him by a general circular on the subject to refuse permission.

Note.—Compare the discretion exercisable under S. 430 of the Code of 1895.—2 Weir 400; 12 M. J. 354

5. Scope of the term "any person."—It is doubtful whether the words "any person" in S. 495 Cr. P. C. would include an absolute stranger persons other than uncertificated pleaders. It is however discretionary with the Criminal Courts in each case to permit such persons to conduct the prosecution [M. H. C. Pro 29-92]

6. Prosecution by Advocate or Attorney in the Courts of Presidency Magistrates.—With the exception of certain officers, such as the Advocate General, Standing Counsel, Government Solicitor etc., no Counsel or Attorney can claim the right of conduct of a prosecution before the Presidency Magistrate without his permission.—6 C 59.

7. S. 495 does not apply to security proceedings.—In a proceeding under Chapter VIII,

C therefore do not apply to security proceedings 36 M 315.

8. Violation of subs (4) is not necessarily fatal.—The contravention of cl. 4 of S 495 Cr. P. C. does not by itself invalidate a trial altogether when no failure of justice has occurred within the meaning of S 537 Cr. P. C.—26 B 533.

9. Effect of unauthorised withdrawal.—If an Advocate, privately engaged by the complainant and not a pleader, withdraws for the word officer who has the power of withdrawing from the prosecution under S 494 is the officer referred to in S 495 cl (1) Where in the course of an enquiry by a Magistrate, an Inspector of Police appeared and said that he withdrew the case against the accused, held that in the circumstances, the order of the Magistrate discharging the accused under S. 494, was illegal [9 M. T. 203] such person in custody until the completion of inquiry" is not subject to or controlled by S. 496 Cr P C. The latter section does not give an absolute right to bail to any person who is not charged with non-bailable offence, and should be read along with other provisions of the Code giving a special right of detention to a Court.—22

M. J. 357: 32 C. 80.

8. (2) It does not matter whether a person against whom proceedings under S 110 Cr. P. C. are taken, is brought before the Magistrate legally or illegally. Once he is there, the Magistrate has the power to require bail from him—12 Cr. 533 (H).
9. (3) No bail should be called for from a person against whom proceedings under S 107 supra are contemplated, not actually initiated. The most that can be required of him is to furnish recognizance, and that only when there is any likelihood of his absenting himself from Court.—11 C. N. 415.
10. (4) Where a person arrested under the proviso to S. 114 supra applied for his release on bail, and the District Magistrate trying the case refused to pass an order for bail on the ground of expediency and his pleader's inability to show a provision in the Code how he could claim a bail, it was held that under this section, he was entitled to bail as a matter of right—6 C. P. 31.
11. S. 496 overridden by S. 7 (2) of the Extradition Act.—The provisions of S. 7 (2) of the Extradition Act override the provisions of S. 496 of the Criminal Procedure Code, so that a Magistrate has no power apart from sections 8 and 8 A of the Extradition Act, to admit to bail a person arrested under S. 7 of the Act.—43 B. 310 accused to appear in person or by agent. A

Magistrate has no legal authority to secure the attendance of an agent by such a bond—3 B. H. (c.) 61.

13. Court-fees etc.—Under S. 19 cl. xv of the Court Fees Act VII of 1870, bail bonds in criminal cases, recognizances to prosecute or give evidence, and recognizances for personal appearance or otherwise are exempted from Court-fees. Under S. 513 infra a deposit of cash or Government promissory notes may be taken in lieu of bond. For Form See Feb. V. Form No. 42.

- exercise of that duty, without malice, will not sustain an action. [2 M. H. 390] If bail be improperly refused, a Magistrate may in addition to an action for damages, be liable under Ss 166 or 312 I. P. C. [29 M. 100]
15. S. 496 et. seq. apply to cases under Railway Act.—The provisions of this Chapter shall, so far as may be, apply to bail given under S. 132 (4) of the Indian Railway Act (IX of 1890)
16. Pendency of Appeal does not necessarily justify taking recognizance.—Where an accused person has been sentenced to pay a fine and the fine has been paid, the pendency of an appeal preferred by him would not give any Court authority or power to arrest him and to take recognizance from him for further appearance—29 M. 100.

497. (1) When any person accused of any non-bailable offence is arrested or detained without warrant by an officer in charge of a police-station, or appears or is brought before a Court, he may be released on bail, but he shall not be so released if there appear reasonable grounds for believing that he has been guilty of the offence of which he is accused.

(2) If it appears to such officer or Court at any stage of the investigation, inquiry or trial, as the case may be, that there are not reasonable grounds for believing that the accused has committed such offence, but that there are sufficient grounds for further inquiry, he released on bail, or; at the discretion of such officer or Court, on the execution by him of a bond without sureties for his appearance as hereinafter provided.

(3) Any Court may, at any subsequent stage of any proceeding under this Code, cause any person who has been released under this section to be arrested, and may commit him to custody.

Proposed amendments to the section.—To sub-section (1) of section 497 of the said Code the following proviso shall be added, namely—

"Provided that the Court may, in any case for reasons to be recorded, direct that any person under the age of sixteen, or any woman, or sick or infirm person accused of a non-bailable offence, be released on bail."

Notes.

1. Magistrate's discretionary power.—The discretionary power vested in the District Magistrate of granting bail are not revisable by District Magistrate. If he considers the order to be wrong, the proper course is to refer it to the High Court—22 B. 549.

Note.—Magistrates will always be lenient to accused persons at any rate, until they are convicted—Per Parsons J. in 22 B. 549]

2. General principles governing grant of bail.—For bail, the main question for consideration is, for believing, offences of considerations which has always guided Courts of justice both in England and India is whether there are any grounds for supposing that the accused, if released on bail, would abscond and attempt to escape justice by avoiding or delaying an enquiry or trial—Per Mitra J. in 36 C 174 [Fg 10 C N 1093]. But See 36 C 166 6 L B 172, 8 B R 420.

[Note.—The rule in respect of non-bailable offences is that bail is not to be taken except in special circumstances—8 B R 420 See 10 S 208 2 Weir 657 (F.B.)

3. Scene of crime (?). If after remand evidence under S 497 cl (2) of the Code, release the accused on bail whatever be the nature of the offence, though the preliminary enquiry should proceed—36 C 174 6 M 63

4. Duty of the Court.—In considering an application for bail from a person accused of a non-bailable offence, the Court must be satisfied by an examination of the investigation, enquiry or trial whether or not there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused has committed such offence. In the latter case the accused should be admitted to bail but not in the former—21 Cr 161 (A)

5. What are sufficient grounds for release on bail.—(1) that the offence was said to have

6. Favourable police report will not necessarily justify bail.—Where a Police Officer had remarked that the evidence against the accused did not justify his being sent up before the Magistrate and reported a non-bailable case for orders after admitting the accused to bail, held that the Magistrate being of opinion that there was a prima facie case made out, had power to direct the accused to be re-arrested and forwarded to the Magistrate in custody. The admission to bail by the Police was a purely provisional arrangement—Cr. R 213-76

Analogous Law.—Quære—Whether the proviso to S 114 Cr P C gives a Magistrate power to rearrest and remand a person who has already appeared and has been admitted to bail—32 C. 80

7. When an accused should not be released on bail.—An accused person should not be admitted to bail, where the possibility of his conviction being wrong, depends on a mere technical ground—Rat 480

8. Facts necessary to justify remand.—It will not be necessary on the first occasion accused persons are produced before the Court to go fully into the charge. It is ordinarily sufficient to show by the evidence of a police officer that the police are in possession of information which they believe to be reliable, that an offence has been committed and that the accused persons are concerned in its commission. When the accused are brought up after a remand, some direct evidence of the connection of the accused with the crime should be required to justify the Magistrate in refusing bail, and with each remand the necessity for the production of implicating proof becomes more strong—G M 69 6 M. 63: 1 L B 60 (61)

[Note.—Where there is no evidence, the Magistrate should not remand the prisoner in the expectation that evidence might turn up [17 W R 55] The prisoner should be brought promptly before the Magistrate, and the Magistrate has then no authority to further detain him in custody, or to remand him to prison without some reasons made manifest to him either in the shape of sworn testimony given before him or in some other form, can be put upon the record—11 B L (Appx) XVIII

9. Order for remand should be passed in the presence of an accused person.—4 B L (Appx) 1 M H C Pro 106-67.

10. Bail in cases of contempt of Court.—In a case of contempt of Court, if sufficient bail be tendered, the Court before which the contempt was committed is bound to accept bail—12 W R 18.

11. accused

12. Cancellation of bail.—A Magistrate may commit an accused person who has been released on bail if a prima facie case is made out against him by the sworn testimony given before him.—36 C 166 36 C 174

13. District Magistrate has no power to supersede an order for bail.—A District Magistrate has no power to order re-arrest of a person, accused of an offence under S 304 I P C, released on bail by the Sub divisional Magistrate—4 Bur T 70 22 B 549

14. Revision.—The proceeding in which it has to be determined whether an accused person has to be admitted to bail by a Magistrate is a judicial proceeding, and as such cognizable by the High Court as a Court of Revision [6 M. 63 (65) See 2 M. H 396 29 M 100] It is no doubt open to the High Court to grant bail, when both the trying Magistrate and the Sessions Judge have refused bail [37 C 174] but as a rule when the Sessions Judge, after considering the evidence, comes to the conclusion that there are no reasonable grounds for believing the accused guilty, and admits him to bail, the High Court will not go beyond the order [10 M. J. 411].

498. The amount of every bond executed under this Chapter shall be fixed with due regard to the circumstances of the case, and shall not be excessive; and the High Court or Court of Session may, in any case, whether there be an appeal on conviction or not, direct that any person be admitted to bail, or that the bail required by a police-officer or Magistrate be reduced.

Notes.

1. Discretion of the High Court.—The High Court, when passing orders under S 498 Cr P C is not limited by the restrictions imposed by S. 197 (1), but bail should not be taken in non-bailable cases except in special circumstances. What those special circumstances are, is a matter which does not admit of precise definition, and the discretion given under S 498 is one that should be exercised according to the exigencies of each case—10 S. 208 S B R 420 See (O'K) A N 195 2 Weir 657.

2. Note per contra.—"We think that the rule laid down in S 497 Cr P C for the guidance of Courts other than the High Court is a rule founded upon justice and equity and one which should be followed by us as well as by every other Court unless anything appears to the contrary. The extended powers given to the High Court are certainly not to be used to get rid of this very reasonable and proper provision of the law"—Holmes and Sharfudhin J J in 42 C 25 But See 37 C 139

2A. Caution in interference.—The High Court will be very cautious in interfering with the discretion of a Magistrate in case of bail under S 497 Cr P C, specially where the prosecution has not tendered evidence to connect the accused with the offence—Rat 892 6 M 63 6 M 69

3. Bail in non-bailable offences.—S. 498 Cr P C gives the Court of Session and High Court very wide powers to admit an accused to bail even when he is charged with a non bailable offence. The admission to bail is a matter within the discretion of the Sessions Judge.—(O'S) A. N 195.

4. High Court is not merely to consider whether the accused will abscond.—It is not correct to say that, in exercising its discretion under S. 498 of the Code in granting bail to under-trial prisoners, the High Court should confine its attention only to the question whether the prisoner is or is not likely to abscond.—36 C 166.

5. Accused tried under the Criminal Law Amendment Act (XIV of 1908).—The power of the High Court to grant bail to an accused person under S 498 Cr P C is untouched by the provisions of the Criminal Law Amendment Act. But the conditions for release on bail provided by S 497 will apply [S. 12 of the Act]—37 C 412 37 C 439.

6. Can Court grant bail on appeal.—The 498 Cr P C. passed by it, whether on the Original, Appellate or Revisional side and to release the prisoner on bail on his asserting that he intended to appeal to His Majesty in Council. The section does not refer to a case where the Court is functus officio but to cases where the Court has still some power left as regards the sentence of the accused.—15 P R 1908 (F. B.).

[Note.—When there has been an appeal to Privy Council—Where the prisoner had got special leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the High Court has jurisdiction to release him on bail—26 M 161 See Ex parte Carter, L R 1897 A C 719

Power of Sessions Court.

Bail pending appeal.

13. (1) The provisions of S. 390 (—S. 495) do not empower a Sessions Judge to order a Magistrate to admit to bail a person who has been convicted, before the admission of his appeal to his Court and that he has no such power where no appeal lies to his Court—1 A. 151 (F. B.) 3 C. L 404 3 C. L 405 (N) 24 W. R. S. 23 W. R 40. See 17 B. 334

14. Note.—(i) A person sentenced to one month's imprisonment by a Magistrate from which sentence no appeal is allowed, is not an "accused" person within the meaning of S. 436 Cr. P. C. 1861 (=S 498), so as to be admitted to bail by the Court of sessions, when his case is referred to the High Court under S 434 Cr. P. C. (=S 436)—1 B L (A. C) 7 24 W R 7.

Special powers of the High Court.

17. (1) Coroners' Act 1871.—After a coroner has drawn up an inquisition and committed the person to jail refusing bail, the only Court which has power to grant bail is the High Court—31 C J
18. (2) Extradition Act XV. of 1903.—As regards allowing bail to a prisoner, against whom proceedings are pending under the Extradition Act of 1903 the High Court has the fullest discretion having regard to the provisions relating to bail in the Cr P C by which the matter must be regulated—15 C N 736
19. (3) Sind Frontier Regulation III of 1892 S. 8.—An application for bail on behalf of an accused who is being tried by a Jirga or Council of Elders under § 8 of the Sind Frontier Regulation (III of 1892) does not lie under S. 498 Cr P C. to the High Court—5 S 105
20. (4) Criminal Law Amendment Act (XIV of 1908).—See Note No 5 above
21. (5) Explosives Act (VI of 1908).—On a question whether bail should be granted by the High Court to certain persons undergoing trial under the Explosives Act (VI of 1908) held that the decisions of English Courts are not necessarily a safe guide in interpreting sections of the Cr P C. There may be other circumstances than the likelihood of absconding which may affect the question 36 C. 116.

Procedure.

23. Stage at which bail may be granted.—In granting bail under S. 495, High Courts and Sessions Court have unlimited judicial discretion

This power can be exercised soon after the arrest of the accused by the Police, even before the case is sent up to a Magistrate—7 Bar 86

24. Defamatory petitions.—Where an application for bail contained defamatory allegations and irrelevant attacks on the trying Magistrate and other Government Officers, the Court refused to allow the petition to be filed [15 B 488]. The Courts have power to delete the defamatory portions from the applications presented to them. [Rat 450]

Practice.

25. Petition to High Court to discharge bail.—Where a Sessions Judge, after considering the evidence, comes to the conclusion that there are no reasonable grounds for believing the accused to be guilty, and admits him to bail, the High Court will not go behind the finding and discharge the bail either under S. 432 Cr P C. or any other provision of the law.—10 M J 411
26. Transfer on the ground that by granting bail the Magistrate has shown leniency.—A transfer is not justified because the Magistrate's action, in exercising a jurisdiction vested in him by law, i.e., releasing an accused on bail, shows a tendency to treat the accused with undue leniency—22 B 519
27. Power of a Single Judge of the High Court.—A Single Judge of the High Court may order the release of a prisoner on bail pending the hearing of an appeal—W R (Sp) 19
28. Order refusing bail is not a judgment within the meaning of cl 16 of the Letters Patent.—An order of a High Court refusing to grant bail to an accused person is an order in a criminal trial. It is not a judgment within the meaning of cl 15 of the Letters Patent and is not appealable to a Division Bench—19 M J 478
22. Amount of bond.—The section refers to the amount of the bond indicating that the accused should bind himself in a specific sum, and that the sureties should bind themselves jointly and severally, or jointly, as the case may be, to pay the amount of the bond [6 Bar R 75]. Where the accused person is released on bail with sureties, the sureties should ordinarily be made jointly and severally liable for the same amount as the accused and cannot be made liable for more. The total of the sums recoverable from them must not exceed this amount [2 L B 235 (1905) 1 B 31 But See 36 C 562]

499. (1) Before any person is released on bail or released on his own bond, a bond for Bond of accused and sureties such sum of money as the police-officer or Court as the case may be, thinks sufficient shall be executed by such person, and, when he is released on bail, by one or more sufficient sureties conditioned that such person shall attend at the time and place mentioned in the bond, and shall continue so to attend until otherwise directed by the police-officer or Court, as the case may be

(2) If the case so require, the bond shall also bind the person released on bail to appear when called upon at the High Court, Court of Session or other Court to answer the charge.

Notes.

1. Form of Bail bond.—See Sch. V. Form No 42.

2. Construction of Bail bond.—“The petitioner stood bail for a person charged with an offence under S. 395 * * * The bond is in Form No 42 which is in accordance with S 499 Cr. P. C. * * * The part (of the bond) which is signed by the petitioner is in these words. “We jointly and severally declare ourselves and each of us sureties for the said A. T. that he shall attend Court every day of the preliminary enquiry, and as the case has been sent for trial to the Sessions Court, Madura, that he shall appear before the said some oversight apparently, the words in the form as given in the Code “that he shall attend Court every day of the preliminary enquiry” were left standing, although the case had already been committed * * *. The date when the accused was to appear at the Sessions Court is given in that part of the bond which is signed by the accused. The argument before us of the learned pleader for the petitioner is that we must treat the portion signed by the petitioner as two separate bonds quite independent of each other * * *. That is not a sound contention * * * It (the bond) is to be regarded as one document * * * The surety who stands bail must be taken to know the date on which the accused has undertaken to appear and if the accused does not appear the surety bond is liable to be forfeited.”—Per Abdur Rahim and Napier JJ. in 14 Cr 657 (M)

3. The general rule.—Only one bond is to be taken from the accused and his sureties for one determinate amount, the sureties engaging to be bound jointly and severally for the same amount as the accused so that it may be realizable from any one of the obligors. There is no warrant in law for taking separate bonds from the accused and his sureties individually and severally, exceeding the aggregate the amount for which the accused is liable.—30 P. R. 1890

4. Breach of verbal direction may lead to forfeiture.—By the terms of a bail-bond, the defendant bound himself to appear “on the first enquiry or at other times required.” He appeared on the first day of the inquiry and was verbally directed to appear on a subsequent date but failed to do so. Held that the amount secured by the bond could be legally forfeited by reason of such non-attendance.—2 Weir 658

5. Bond to appear before the Police is valid.—The wordings of S 499 and of S 514 of the Code make it abundantly clear that a Police Officer in charge of a Police Station has power any person bound by the bond can be called upon to pay the penalty thereof.—22 P. R. 1913

6. Magistrate cannot hold to bail a person to appear before foreign tribunal.—Neither the Code of Criminal Procedure nor any provision in the Extradition Act (XV of 1903) authorises a Magistrate to hold a person to bail to appear before a tribunal in a state to which the Act applies.—33 C. 1032

[Note.—He can bind over the prisoner to appear before himself and then after receiving the warrant from the Political Agent of the state, can proceed to execute it under S. 7 cl. (2).—ibid]

7. Bail bond must specify the Court where the accused is to appear.—A bail bond by which the sureties bind themselves to be responsible for the appearance of the accused during the preliminary investigation, cannot be forfeited if the accused absconded after the preliminary enquiry and during the trial at the Sessions Court [9 W. R. 36 See 195 P. L. 1903, 36 C 749]

8. Contents of the bond.—(1) It must provide for money penalty.—17 C. P. 113 (2) Time and place must be mentioned in the bond itself.—(3) A. N. 44

Terms of the bond cannot be varied without consent of the surety.—Where the surety undertook to produce an accused person before a certain Magistrate, he cannot be made liable for the default of the accused to appear before another Court to which the case was transferred after the execution of the bail bond.—13 W. R. 53, 30 C 107.

[Note.—A surety is not liable for default made by the accused on a date subsequent to that for which he had rendered himself liable. If the accused attends on the date specified in the bail-bond, the liability of the surety ceases.—2 Weir 603]

9. Bail-bond may be conditioned to involve attendance from day to day.—There is nothing illegal in requiring the accused to bind themselves to appear from the date of the execution of the bail-bond on every day until the case is disposed of. No notice is necessary before proceeding to enforce the penalty, if default is made.—6 M. H. (1911) xxxviii.

500 (1) As soon as the bond has been executed, the person for whose appearance it has been executed shall be released; and when he is in jail, the Court admitting him to bail shall issue an order of release to the officer in charge of the jail, and such officer on receipt of the order shall release him.

(2) Nothing in this section, section 496 or section 497 shall be deemed to require the release of any person liable to be detained for some matter other than that in respect of which the bond was executed

1. Note.—For Form of Warrant.—See Sch V Form No 43

501. If, through mistake, fraud or otherwise, insufficient sureties have been accepted or Power to order sufficient bail when if they afterwards become insufficient, the court may issue a that first taken is insufficient. warrant of arrest directing that the person released on bail be brought before it and may order him to find sufficient sureties, and, on his failing so to do, may commit him to jail

Notes.

1. Application of S. 501.—S 501 applies to a case where there are sureties and where through mistake, fraud or otherwise, insufficient sureties have been accepted. The section is inapplicable to a case covered by S 90 Cr P C—38 M 1088
2. Increase of bail.—A Magistrate is justified in increasing the amount of bail, if, by further proceeding, the case turns up more serious than at first imagined.—[66 P L 1912]
3. Cancellation of bond.—Where a surety furnished by a person directed to furnish security for good behaviour has been offered and accepted, the Magistrate has no authority to require fresh security merely because he is dissatisfied with the old security already accepted—1 C. N 394 16 P R 1905 28 P R 1901 See 8 O C. 245 2 L B 76

502. (1) All or any sureties for the attendance and appearance of a person released on Discharge of sureties. bail may at any time apply to a Magistrate to discharge the bond, either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants

(2) On such application being made, the Magistrate shall issue his warrant of arrest directing that the person so released be brought before him.

(3) On the appearance of such person pursuant to the warrant, or on his voluntary surrender, the Magistrate shall direct the bond to be discharged either wholly or so far as relates to the applicants, and shall call upon such person to find other sufficient sureties and, if he fails to do so, may commit him to custody

Note.

- 1 There is no warrant for hearing the application on the merits.—Where a surety applies for a cancellation of his bond, under S 502 of the Criminal Procedure Code, there is no such thing as hearing the application on the merits. The presentation of the application itself imposes upon the Magistrate the duty of issuing a warrant for the arrest of the accused

Hence, where a surety, after once presenting an application for cancellation of his bail-bond, fails to appear in person or by pleader, such failure cannot deprive him of his right to treat the bond as cancelled. When once the application is presented and received, there is no option left to the Magistrate but to act under S 502 Cr P C. 1899 —9 B R 1285

CHAPTER XL

OF COMMISSIONS FOR THE EXAMINATION OF WITNESSES

503 (1) Whenever, in the course of an inquiry, a trial or any other proceeding under this Code it appears to a Presidency Magistrate, a District Magistrate, When attendance of witness may be dispensed with. a Court of Session or the High Court that the examination of a witness is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness can not be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the Issue of commission and procedure thereunder.

circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate or Court may dispense with such attendance and may issue a commission to any District Magistrate of the first class, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such witness resides, to take the evidence of such witness.

(2) When the witness resides in the territories of any Prince or Chief in India in which there is an officer representing the British Indian Government, the commission may be issued to such officer.

(3) The Magistrate or officer to whom the commission is issued, or, if he is the District Magistrate, he, or such Magistrate of the first class as he appoints in this behalf, shall proceed to the place where the witness is or shall summon the witness before him, and shall take down his evidence in the same manner, and may for this purpose exercise the same powers, as in trials of warrant-cases under this Code.

(4) Where the commission is issued to such officer as is mentioned in sub-section (2), he may delegate his powers and duties under the commission to any officer subordinate to him whose powers are not less than those of a Magistrate of the first class in British India.

504. (1) If the witness is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Presidency Commission in case of witness being within presidency town Magistrate, the Magistrate or Court issuing the commission may direct the same to the said Presidency Magistrate, who thereupon may compel the attendance of, and examine such witness as if he were a witness in a case pending before himself.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect the power of the High Court to issue commissions under the Slave Trade Act, 1876, section 3

Proposed amendment to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 504 of the said Code, for the words "the said Presidency Magistrate," the words "such Presidency Magistrate" shall be substituted.

(u) After the same sub-section, the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely —

"(1a) When a commission is issued under this section to a Chief Presidency Magistrate, he may delegate his powers and duties under the commission to any other Presidency Magistrate subordinate to him."

Note.—Slave Trade Act—39 & 40 Vic c 46

505. (1) The parties to any proceeding under this Code in which a commission is issued may respectively forward any interrogatories in writing which the Parties may examine witnesses Magistrate or Court directing the commission may think relevant to the issue, and the Magistrate or officer to whom the commission is directed, shall examine the witness upon such interrogatories.

(2) Any such party may appear before such Magistrate or officer by pleader, or if not in custody in person, and may examine, cross-examine and re-examine (as the case may be) the said witness

Proposed amendments to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 505 of the said Code, after the word "directed" the words "or to whom the duty of executing such commission has been delegated" shall be inserted.

506. Whenever, in the course of an enquiry or a trial or any other proceeding under this Code before any Magistrate other than a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, it appears that a commission ought to be issued for the examination of witness whose evidence is necessary for the ends of justice, and that the attendance of such witness cannot be procured without an amount of delay, expense or inconvenience which, under the circumstances of the case, would be unreasonable, such Magistrate shall apply to the District Magistrate, stating the reason for the application, and the District Magistrate may either issue a commission in the manner hereinbefore provided or reject the application.

507. (1) After any commission issued under section 503 or section 506 has been duly executed it shall be returned together with the deposition of the witness examined thereunder, to the Court out of which it issued; and the commission, the return thereto and the deposition shall be open at all reasonable times to inspection of the parties, and may subject to all just exceptions, be read in evidence in the case by either party, and shall form part of the record.

(2) Any deposition so taken, if it satisfies the conditions prescribed by section 33 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 may also be received in evidence at any subsequent stage of the case before another Court.

508 In every case in which a commission is issued under section 503 or section 506, the inquiry, trial or other proceeding may be adjourned for a specified time reasonably sufficient for the execution and return of the commission.

- 1. When Commission should be issued.—Witnesses in criminal cases should not be examined by Commission except in extreme cases of delay, expense, or inconvenience—G A 92 See 12 A 69
- 2. Power of District Magistrate.—A District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to direct a Subordinate Magistrate before whom a case is pending to examine a particular witness in the case, in her own house. See 503 applies only to cases pending before the Courts therein specified. A District Magistrate cannot make any such order except on a reference made to him under S 506 Cr. P. C. 2 S 8

- 3. Scope of S. 507 Cr. P. C. enlarged.—Under the Code of 1882 evidence taken on commission issued by a Court would be used only by that Court. It was held that evidence taken on commission issued by the Chief Presidency Magistrate during the course of an inquiry before him cannot be admitted on the trial of the same case at the High Court Sessions under S. 507 of the Code. [19 C 113]. In 19 B. 749 it was held that the deposition of a witness obtained on a Commission issued by the committing Magistrate and forming part of the record was admissible under S. 33 of the Evidence Act at the trial at the Sessions. This view has been incorporated in

Sabs (2) of S 507 Cr. P. C.—See Subs (2) of S 507 Cr. P. C

4. Commission intended primarily for witnesses other than the parties.—Although S 503 may include any party to a proceeding, it is principally intended for the purposes of some witness other than the parties principally concerned.—“persons whose presence could not be obtained without an amount of delay and expense, which, under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable”—19 C. 113
5. Commission to complainant.—If a complainant calls himself to testify to matters within his knowledge, he will, as regards testimony, be a witness for the prosecution, and the issue of a commission for his examination is perfectly illegal.—42 C 19

[Note per contra.—The section relates to Commission for the examination of witnesses. In the preliminary stage of a proceeding, a complainant is not a witness but a complainant. Therefore a Commission cannot be issued for the examination of a complainant.—10 P. R. 1896]

6. Handwriting expert should not be examined on Commission.—Where an expert witness in handwriting appears to be the principal witness in the case, no application to examine him on Commission should be granted.—9 M. T. 331
7. Magistrate's jurisdiction to issue Commission to a pleader for local enquiry.—A Magistrate has no authority to issue a commission to a pleader for local enquiry in a criminal case.—18 C. N. 399.
8. Resident of Gwalior.—A is a person to whom S 503 Cr. P. C. applies, and if a Commission is issued to him in accordance with the law, he is bound to execute such Commission. He cannot delegate his functions as a Commissioner. (96) A N 106. [But See subs (4)]

II. POWER TO ISSUE COMMISSION.

9. The High Court.—Under S. 503 (1) the High Court can issue a commission to any District Magistrate or Magistrate of 1st class within whose jurisdiction the witness resides.

Under the old Code, it had no such power.—See 5 B 338

10. To witness resident within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction.

(a) Where a British seaman, charged with the murder of a fellow sailor on board a British ship on the high seas was tried by a Judge of the High Court, the Judge convicted and sentenced the prisoner, chiefly, on the evidence of the captain and the second officer taken on commission by the Chief Presidency Magistrate. Held on appeal, that the evidence so taken was admissible as against the prisoner. 16 C 238

(b) Although it is doubtful where a Presidency Magistrate has power to issue commissions for examination of witnesses within his own jurisdiction, yet there is nothing to prevent a Presidency Magistrate from examining a witness within his jurisdiction at some place other than the Court house. 24 C 551.

11. Witnesses resident in England.—The High Court has no authority either to issue a commission or a letter of request to the English Courts for the examination of a witness in a criminal case. 10 Cr 571 (A) See also 20 P R 1878

12. High Court's powers under S. 76 Act X of 1875.—Where a Government servant has been ordered to proceed at once to a distant place, and it is required, under S 76 to direct a commission to be taken. 1. 285.

13. Discretion for examination of a witness is entirely in the discretion of the Court—8 C. 896

14. Commission can be issued only within the limits prescribed by this Section.—The High Court has no power to issue a commission outside its jurisdiction, except in cases provided by the section itself. Therefore a commission cannot be granted under the Code to examine a witness unless he be in British India, or within the territories of a Prince or Chief in India in which there is an officer representing the British Government.—5 B. 338

15. Commission cannot be issued to French India.—As evidence taken before the French Courts is inadmissible in trials before English Courts, and as the French Government is advised that it is not open to them to empower a British Magistrate to take evidence in French India, which is hereby recalled, except in so far as it relates to commissions issued for execution in British India by French Courts.—Mad H C Cir No. 2549, 4th Oct 1887. Mad Rules Nos. 24 and 25 p 12.

16. Expense or inconvenience—not sufficient grounds for issuing commission.—Where two principal witnesses for the prosecution in a case under S 411 I P C were examined in the preliminary enquiry, on commission, and the Session Judge admitted their evidence taken before the Commuting Magistrate under S 37 of the Evidence Act, and also issued a supplementary commission to one of them on the ground that the attendance of the witnesses could not be procured without an expense of Rs 500, which he considered to be unreasonable and would inconvenience them, held that as the whole case rested on their evidence, and as the important question of the identification of the stolen property to which they deposed, was a most material point in the case, held that the Judge had acted improperly in issuing the commission under S 503 Cr P. C., more especially as the accused could not arrange for their cross-examination. 6 A. 224.

III. PURDANASHIN LADIES.

17. Purdanashein lady.—The High Court in exercise of its powers of revision, has powers to direct a Magistrate as to the mode in which the evidence of purdanashein ladies may and should be taken. If she would take a house or suite of rooms not far from the Court and pay all costs, the Magistrate should not enforce her attendance in Court but should examine her in such place.—24 C. 551 12 Cr. 501.

18. Rule with regard to pardanashein ladies.—Although purdanashein women are not of right exempted from personal attendance at Court the word "inconvenience" in S 330 Cr. P. C (1872) empowers the Courts to allow examination by commission in criminal cases, where a witness according to the customs and manners of the country ought not to be compelled to appear in public

But where the purdanashein lady was herself the complainant in a case of defamation,—held—that the fact materially altered her position as regards the question whether she should be exempted from personal appearance, and the accused had a right and privilege to have her evidence taken in his presence in such Court.—5 A. 92 See 12 A. 69

19. Application by pardanashein ladies should be allowed whenever possible.—An application made by a Pardanashein lady summoned as a witness to be examined by commission should take into consideration the customs and habits of the people.—15 C 775 1 S 5

20. Examination of pardanashein ladies on commission.—A pardanashein lady has a right as a witness in a criminal case, to be exempted from personal attendance as a Court and to be examined on commission [4 O 20]

[Note per contra.—It would be weakness to surrender as a general principle to be adopted in all cases that purdanashein ladies whose evidence is required in criminal trials are to be allowed to compel the Court to examine them at some other place than the Court house itself.—12 A. 69.]

21. Pardanashein ladies ought not to be compelled to appear in public.—Although there is no provision in the Criminal Procedure Code which protects pardanashein ladies from appearing in a Court of justice, nevertheless, it is very undesirable to compel the attendance of such persons [12 A. 69.] Although the pardanashein women are not of right exempted from personal attendance at Court, the word "inconvenience" in S 330 Cr P. C. (=S 503) empowers the Courts to allow examination by commission in criminal cases, where a witness, according to the customs and manners of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public [5 A. 92. 19 P. R. 1903 1 S 5 See 4 S. 257]

22. Daughter of a prostitute may be a pardanashein lady.—The mere fact that a woman is the daughter of a prostitute is insufficient to show that she is not a pardanashein lady. If she has been married to a respectable person, in whose family women observe purdah, she is entitled to be treated with respect, despite her lowly origin.—43 P L 1913

23. Examination in chambers.—In the case of pardanashein women cited as witnesses, the better course would probably be for the Magistrate to examine them in chambers after making provision for maintaining their Parda.—4 S '57

24. Commission to complainant (pardanashein lady).—The terms of S 503 Cr. P. C are very wide. They refer not only to an enquiry and a trial but to any other proceeding. The section authorises the examination of any witness and a complainant is certainly a witness. In the case of a pardanashein lady, S 503 Cr P C should be applied.—42 C 19 2 Weir 659

IV. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) Witness residing within jurisdiction.

25. Witness residing within jurisdiction.—The ruling in 6 B 285 (a ruling under S 76 of the High Court Criminal Procedure Act X of 1875) to the effect that there is nothing in the language of this section to support the contention that the court has no authority to examine a witness by a commission when he is within jurisdiction, was disented from in (1897) 24 C 551 on the ground that S 76 of the High Court Criminal Procedure Act 1875 was somewhat different from S 503. "Although it is doubtful whether S 503 authorizes a Presidency Magistrate to issue a commission for the examination of a witness residing within his own jurisdiction, there is nothing to prevent him from examining him at some other place than the court house"—[24 C 551]

(2) Admissibility of evidence taken on Commission (S. 507).

26. (1) The deposition of any witness, obtained by a commission issued by the committing Magistrate and forming part of the record of the enquiry, is admissible under S. 33 of the Evidence Act, provided that the requirements of that section are satisfied notwithstanding Ch. XL, Cr. P. C.—19 B 749

[Note.—In (1876) 3 B 334, the depositions of witnesses taken by the British Consul at Zanzibar with reference to a case of murder committed at that place, was admitted in evidence under S. 33 of the Evidence Act by the Bombay High Court in the trial subsequently held before it.]

27. (2) The evidence of a witness taken upon commission is not admissible—in a criminal trial before the High Court unless it can be shown that it was taken upon an order by that Court under this section or unless it is admissible under S. 33 of the Evidence Act.—6 C 532
28. (3) Where a commission to take evidence is issued to any place beyond the jurisdiction of the court issuing the commission, the party tendering secondary evidence of the contents of a document, in order to make it admissible, need not have given notice to produce the original nor is it necessary for him to prove a refusal to produce the original.—9 C. 939
29. (4) Where a British seaman charged with the murder of a fellow sailor on board a British ship, was tried by a Judge of the High Court, held that the evidence of the Captain and the second officer taken on commission by the Chief Presidency Magistrate was admissible against the prisoner.—16 C 238.

(3) Objections to evidence taken on Commission.

30. Fresh objections may be made at the trial.—If when evidence is taken before a commission, a document is tendered and objected to on any ground, the opposite party is not precluded from objecting to the document at the trial on any other ground, it not being necessary to state all the objections to the admissibility of a document when it is first tendered.—9 C 939.

[Note.—In America an objection to the interrogatories cannot be made at the trial—Francis v. Ocean Insurance Co, 6 Cow 404 Hall v. Barton 25 Barb 274.

(4) Is Commissioner a Court within the meaning of S. 195?

31. Although a commissioner for the examination of a witness under S. 503 Cr. P. O. may be a court within the meaning of that section, for the purpose of issuing process against the witness and for recording his evidence, he is not a court within the meaning of S. 195, Sub sec 1 cl (b). The word "Court" there means the court whose duty it is to consider evidence, and to decide whether it is true or false.—11 C. N. 909

(5) Issue of commissions by subordinate Courts. [S. 506.]

32. For the law.—See S. 506.

33. District Magistrate cannot act motu proprio.—Union Bank v. Torry 5 Duer 1. A witness cannot be allowed to read his answer from a paper prepared beforehand [Craigm Jackson 4 Abb. Pr. 413 Commercial Bank v. U Bank 11 N. Y. 203].—An objection to a question leading must be made at the time of settlement of interrogatories, or it is waived [Hailewood v. Hennessey 3 Th and C. 757]
34. Note.—S. 505 is not exhaustive. It is to be presumed that all the ordinary rules for examination of witnesses as laid down in other parts of the Cr. P. C. and the Evidence Act apply. America a witness must answer each question specifically [Union Bank v. Torry 5 Duer 1]. A witness cannot be allowed to read his answer from a paper prepared beforehand [Craigm Jackson 4 Abb. Pr. 413 Commercial Bank v. U Bank 11 N. Y. 203].—An objection to a question leading must be made at the time of settlement of interrogatories, or it is waived [Hailewood v. Hennessey 3 Th and C. 757]

(6) Examination of witnesses (S. 505).

35. Procedure.—A party who has taken the testimony of a witness residing abroad under commission may read the deposition though the witness be in Court, he is not bound to call the witness, but he may be called, and examine the other side.—Phoenix v. Baldwin 14 Wend 110.

(7) Reading in evidence (S. 507).

36. Procedure.—A party who has taken the testimony of a witness residing abroad under commission may read the deposition though the witness be in Court, he is not bound to call the witness, but he may be called, and examine the other side.—Phoenix v. Baldwin 14 Wend 110.

(8) Adjournments (S. 508).

37. Interest of the prisoner.

- (a) The High Court declined to issue a commission in a criminal case, on the ground that such a course would be unsatisfactory and dangerous to the interests of the prisoner.—8 C. 896.

[Note.—The taking of evidence on commission in criminal cases unknown to English practice—5 A. 62.]

- (b) Held that a Sessions Judge was not justified in refusing to issue a commission to examine a witness, having reference only to the interests of the property in respect of which the accused was charged.—6 A. 224.

V. GROUNDS FOR REFUSING COMMISSIONS.

37. Interest of the prisoner.

- (a) The High Court declined to issue a commission in a criminal case, on the ground that such a course would be unsatisfactory and dangerous to the interests of the prisoner.—8 C. 896.

[Note.—The taking of evidence on commission in criminal cases unknown to English practice—5 A. 62.]

(b) Held that a Sessions Judge was not justified in refusing to issue a commission to examine a witness, having reference only to the interests of the property in respect of which the accused was charged.—6 A. 224.

38. Expert witness.—Where an expert witness appears to be the principal witness in the case, his examination on commission should not be granted.—(11) M. N. 97
39. Issue of commission interfering with trial.—An application for commission applied for commission applied for by the prosecution during the trial and after the jury had been sworn, was refused on the ground that the trial and commission could not go together.—19 C. 113.

VI. MISCELLANEOUS.

40. Rules of procedure—onus.—If a commission is issued for the examination of witnesses, the party who alleges that the evidence recorded by the commission is proper evidence must show (1) that the place where the witnesses resided and where the commission was issued is within British India as defined by S. 3 subs (27) of the General Clauses Act or that the place belongs to a Prince or Chief in India in which there is an officer representing the British Indian Government.—7 C. N. 635
41. Consent of the witness.—There is no authority to compel a person to allow a commission to be held in his house without his consent.—6 C. N. 927.
42. Examination of Mint Master in Bombay. When the evidence of an officer, connected with the mint of the currency department is required as to the genuineness or as to the spuriousness of a coin or currency note, the courts and Magistrates, are recommended to send the coin or the note to the Mint Master or the Commissioner of Paper Currency, or as the case may be, under cover of their court-seal or by a messenger whose evidence can afterwards be taken, and at the same time to issue a commission for the examination of such officer or a witness under the provisions of this section.—This rule prevents the great inconvenience of officers being called away from their duties on mere ordinary occasions.—Bomb. B. C. p. 35.
43. Can powers and duties under commission be delegated?—Subs (4) expressly allows delegation of commission issued under subs (3) to an officer representing the British Government in a Native State. Under the older Codes delegation could not be made. In (1896) A. N. 106, it was held that the Resident of Gwalior was a person to whom the provisions of this section applied, and if a commission was issued to him in accordance with law, he was bound to execute such commission and could not delegate his functions as commissioner.

44. Commissions to Hyderabad (Nizam's State).—As a rule, such commissions should be addressed to "the First Assistant Resident" and all remittances should be made payable to "the First Assistant Resident" without giving the name of the gentleman holding the appointment. No commission should ordinarily be addressed to the Resident, nor should any remittance be made payable to him. No commission should be sent direct to His Highness the Nizam's Minister without the intervention of the Residency office.—C. P. Cr. Cir. Pt. II No 53.
45. Translation.—Commission sent for execution to any place, where the law is not in force, that of the court accompanied by a translation in the place or in English.—[para 93.]
46. Interrogatories American Law.—An objection to the interrogatories cannot be made at the trial [Frances & Ocean Insurance Company 6 Cow 401 Hall & Barton 25 Barb 274]. An objection to a question as leading must be made on settlement of interrogatories or it is waived [Harlowood v. Hemmick 3 Th and C 787]. If the witness refuse to answer a question, the answer to a direct interrogatory be properly excluded, all cross-interrogatories if dependent thereon must also be excluded [Fleming & Hollenback 7 Barb 271]. The mere fact that the witness was permitted to peruse both sets of interrogatories, prior to his examination, is not sufficient ground for the rejection of the evidence. [Butler & Flanders 56 How Pr. 312]. The party who took out the commission may read the answers to the cross-interrogatories, though the other party objects [Marshall & Waterford S E Coy. 10 Hun 463].

CHAPTER XLI.

SPECIAL RULES OF EVIDENCE.

509. (1) The deposition of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness, taken and attested by a Magistrate in the presence of the accused, or taken on commission under Chapter XL, may be given in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, although the deponent is not called as a witness.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine such deponent as to the Power to summon medical witness subject-matter of his deposition.

Notes.

S. 509=S. 321 (1872)=S. 368 (1861).

1. Medical evidence should be recorded with the utmost care and accuracy.—The rule regarding the admission of medical evidence in the Sessions Court departs in a very marked particular from the ordinary rules of evidence, in that, the statement of the medical witness, if duly taken and attested by the Magistrate in the presence of the accused, is admissible as evidence in the Sessions Court, although the medical witness not himself called. It ought therefore to be recorded with the utmost care and accuracy. The evidence should be carefully scrutinised by the Judge; and if it appears that the deposition is essentially deficient or requires further explanation or elucidation, the Judge should summon and examine the witness—20 O C 61·9 C 155 See Ag N (7th June 1862) 122

2. Medical evidence in murder cases—

- (1) The testimony of the medical witness especially in the case of murder must be as accurate as possible.

testimony is true.—[Rat 782]

- (2) As a matter of precaution, medical evidence as to the cause of death should never be dispensed with in a case of murder, although the prisoner admits having killed the deceased—Ag N. (2nd Jan. 1862) 1.

- (3)

Rules of Practice

3. Effect of change in law.—The words "or taken on commission under Chapter XL," enable the deposition of a medical witness on commission to be put in evidence, which could not have been done under the previous Code of 1872 18 C 129

Rules governing admissibility of medical evidence under S. 509 Cr. P. C.

4. (1) To render the deposition of a Civil Surgeon or other medical witness admissible in evidence under S. 509 of the Criminal Procedure Code, it must be shown to have been taken and attested by the Magistrate in the presence of the accused. These facts may be proved by calling the committing Magistrate or any other person who was present at the enquiry before him and is able to testify thereto. But the Court, in the absence of such evidence, is not bound to presume, either under S. 40 or S. 114 ill. (c) of the Evidence Act that the deposition was so taken and attested 18 C 129; 9 A. 720·10 A 174; See S C 739
5. [Note.]—But if the Magistrate records a statement at the foot of the deposition to the effect that the deposition was taken and attested by him in the presence of the accused, and such statement, the Court is bound, under the Evidence Act, to presume that such statement was true, and to admit the deposition under S. 509 Cr. P. C.—[18 C 129·10 A. In order that such evidence may be admissible against an individual accused, it must be that it was taken by the Magistrate in that particular accused's presence [S C 739]

6. (2) The attestation may be by Magistrate.—S. 509 does not require it to render the evidence of a medical witness admissible at the trial before the Court of Sessions it should be recorded by the Magistrate making the inquiry into the case, but it expressly the deposition of a medical witness taken and attested by any Magistrate in the presence of the accused, to be given in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding—A. N. 180

7. (3) Evidence interpreted to counsel accused.—The circumstance that the evidence of the Civil Surgeon given in English was interpreted to the accused was held to be of importance, where it was understood by prisoner's counsel, and all necessary was put to the witness—24 W. R 50.

8. (4) Medical evidence given at the preliminary enquiry.—Under the rules issued by the Calcutta High Court the evidence of a Medical Officer given before the committing Magistrate cannot be admitted under this Section, if there be a certificate attached that the evidence was taken in the presence of the accused [4 C N. 49] Except in the case provided for by S. 327 Cr. P. C. 1872 (= S. 512) the examination of a medical witness taken in the absence of the accused is inadmissible in evidence. However, there is sufficient prima facie evidence to warrant a commitment to the Sessions Court and the evidence of the medical witness is admissible in evidence.

outside the Sessions Court must be secured. In all other circumstances, the Magistrate should invariably record his evidence before him [Rat 81]

What is no evidence.

9. (1) The substance of a report from subordinate Medical Officer with an express concurrence by his superior, cannot be received in evidence under S. 368 (=S. 509)—11 W. R 2
10. A letter of a Medical Officer, expressing opinion, is not evidence under Ss 368 and Cr. P. C. (= S. 509 and 510) 12 W. R. 4 C. 455; 8 C 211.

11. (3) The report of the Post mortem written in the form usually filled up by a Civil Surgeon may be used by him to refresh his memory, but the report itself cannot be admissible in evidence.—D C 455 6 C N 98 27 C 295 16 C P 122 see C P Cr Cir Pt II No 55
12. (4) The only opinion of the Civil Surgeon which can be considered in judicially dealing with the case, is an opinion expressed by him, when examined as a witness under the usual tests to which witnesses are subjected. A copy of a letter from the Civil Surgeon containing expressions of his opinion is inadmissible in evidence, as it is extra-judicial—S C 211.
13. (5) The Certificate of a Medical Officer—as to the cause of the death of a person and of the fatal character of the wounds is no evidence. He should be examined regarding these points. Where the deposition of the medical witness who has given a certificate did little more than attest its accuracy as to the nature of the wounds, held that such deposition would not be sufficient.—2 Weir 659
14. (6) A Sessions Judge is not authorized to allow a surgeon to describe the post-mortem appearances merely from the knowledge acquired by him from a perusal of the notes left by another surgeon.—Rat 549
15. (7) An inquest report is not admissible in evidence.—6 B II, 75.

Medical evidence should not necessarily outweigh facts positively proved.

16. (1) It is not the proper way to try a case to rely on mere theories of medical men or skilled witnesses of any sort against facts positively proved.—11 W. R. 25.
17. (2) A Judge is not entitled to discard the whole of the direct evidence of credible and unimpeached witnesses, who depose that with their own eyes they saw certain things done, merely upon the strength of the opinion of a medical witness to the effect that those things could not have been done.—(89) A. N. 74
18. Judge should not pose as a medical expert.—A Judge should not elect himself into an expert nor should he lightly treat proper medical evidence.—(83) A. N. 189
19. Procedure in cases depending entirely on medical evidence.—In a sessions case, depending almost entirely on the medical evidence, the examination of the surgeon before the Magistrate should not be tendered or accepted as sufficient. All the evidence as to the symptoms before the committing Magistrate should be retaken and the Civil Surgeon should be examined as an expert in regard to the case of those symptoms.—2 Weir 660.
20. Rules of practice.—(1) The record should contain a vernacular translation of the Civil Surgeon's deposition [Ag. N. (June 7, 1862) 620: Ibid (Oct. 1862) 260] (2) If the deposition of a medical witness be relied on by the prosecution, it should be detached from the record of the preliminary enquiry and attached to that of the trial [Cal H C Cr. O No 11 of 1867] The deposition of a medical witness which may be given in evidence, under the section, should, if relied on by the prosecution be put in and read in Court, before the accused is called upon to enter on his defence [Cal H C Cr. O of 2nd Sept. 1867.]

Evidence of Civil Surgeon who has or has not seen the corpse.

21. (1) A Medical man, who has not seen the corpse, is only in a position to give evidence of his opinion as an expert. The proper way of eliciting expert evidence (of such a medical witness) is to put to the witness, hypothetically the facts, which the evidence of the other witnesses attempts to prove, and to ask the witness' own opinion on those facts.—O C. 455
22. (2) The evidence of a medical man, who has seen the corpse and made its post mortem examination is admissible in an enquiry regarding the death, to prove the nature of the injuries observed by him, and as expert evidence as to the manner of the infliction of the injuries and as to the cause of death.—Ibid.
23. Court should not hold private communication with medical expert.—In a trial for murder, in which the soundness of the accused's mind was in issue, the Sessions Judge after closing the case and taking the opinion of the assessors, reserved judgment, and subsequently held interviews with and received a letter from the Civil Surgeon as to the mental condition of the accused. Held that such private discussions were illegal. The Civil Surgeon should have been examined as a witness.—(89) A. N. 181.
24. When a previous deposition of the medical witness examined at the sessions may be admitted in evidence.—The evidence of a medical officer before the committing Magistrate, whether attested or not by the Magistrate ought not to be admitted under S. 288 supra, unless he rests from his original deposition.—4 C. N. 49 But See 8 C 739.

25. Examination and cross-examination of the medical witness.
cross-examine. In order to ensure that the Medical Officer's deposition is correct and true, the presence of the accused who had an opportunity of cross-examining the witness. The deposition was given and read, and was P. Cr. Cir. para. 38

510. Any document purporting to be a report under the hand of any Chemical Examiner or Assistant Chemical Examiner to Government, upon matter or thing duly submitted to him for examination or analysis and report in the course of any proceeding under this Code, may be used as evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under the Code.

Notes.

S 510 = S 325 (1872) = S 370 (1861)

1. Report of chemical examiner.—May be acted upon as evidence by all criminal courts—6 M H (Ap) 11. The original report must be put in evidence—Under S 370, Code of 1861, (= S 510), the original report of the Chemical Examiner bearing his signature and not a copy of the report should be put in evidence—6 B L (Appx) 122
2. "Any" Chemical Examiner.—The word "any" was introduced to meet the ruling in 10 C 1026 in which it was held that the report under the hand of an "Additional Chemical Examiner" upon the matter or thing submitted to him for analysis and report cannot be received in evidence under S. 510 Cr. P. C.
3. Report should be signed by the officer certifying out of personal knowledge.—In order that the report of the Chemical Examiner or of the Assistant Chemical Examiner may be used as evidence under S 510, it must purport to be signed by the officer or officers who detected the poison and who, from personal knowledge, could certify to the correctness of the results embodied in it—2 Weir 661
4. Identity of the articles sent for opinion.—When committing cases, a Magistrate must take care to send up evidence to prove that a body sent to hospital for post mortem examination is really the body of the person referred to in the case under trial or that an article analysed by the Chemical Examiner was actually the article sent to him for analysis in the case under trial. Sessions Judge must insist upon being furnished with such evidence, and must not record either the chemical analysis report or the evidence of the medical officer uniting connecting links requisite to render admissible have been established—1 Burf Sec (10) M. N. 77 (99).

5. Failure to charge the Jury as to identity amounts to misdirection.—Charge was vitiated by misdirection. A Sessions Judge is bound to warn the Jury that using the Chemical Examiner's report, they be satisfied on the evidence that the substances examined were in fact what they were to be—Chitly and Teunon JJ. in 18 C. N. R.
6. Documents not admissible in evidence.—See 8 C 211 - 12 W. R. 25 - 11 W. 2 Weir 659 [Noted under S 509 Supra].
7. Information which should be supplied to a Chemical Examiner.—Besides the report of the post mortem examination, the Chemical Examiner should be furnished with replies following queries, which replies the officer in charge of the investigation has been directed to enter in his special diary—(a) What interval was between the last time that the person, supposed to have been poisoned, ate or anything and the first appearance of symptoms of poisoning? (b) what interval was between the last time of eating or drinking, the death of the person (if death occur)? (c) Did the person become drowsy or fall asleep? (d) What were the first symptoms? (e) vomiting or purging occur? (f) were cramps or twitching of the limbs observed? (g) tingling of the skin or the throat complained of? (h) Mention any other symptoms noticed—and Ord N. W P S 10 p. 364

511. In any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, a previous conviction or acquittal may be proved in addition to any other mode provided by any law for the time being in force—

- (a) by an extract certified under the hand of the officer having the custody of the record of the Court in which such conviction or acquittal was had to be a copy of the sentence or order, or
- (b) in case of a conviction, either by a certificate signed by the officer in charge of the prison in which the punishment or any part thereof was inflicted, or by production of the warrant of commitment under which the punishment was suffered; together with, in each of such cases, evidence as to the identity of the accused person with the person so convicted or acquitted.

Notes.

1. Proof of previous conviction before Presidency Magistrates.—Presidency Magistrates are not absolved from the ordinary rules of evidence, in taking proof of previous conviction. Whenever it is required to prove a previous conviction against a man, whether it be for

of the accused who has absconded after the charge has been framed and the case adjourned for defence evidence, and to record a conviction and pass sentence against the absconding accused in his absence. The Court may no doubt proceed under S. 512 Cr. P. C., if the evidence for the prosecution is incomplete. [Rev. Case No 1126 of 1916 Fd] : 36 P. R. 1917. See Rat 325

4. Dying declarations.—It is not necessary to examine the Magistrate who recorded the dying declaration, in the absence of the accused, in order to make it admissible in evidence.—16 Cr 759 (M)

[Note per Contra.—When a dying declaration is recorded by a Magistrate, the writing itself is not evidence, but the precise statement made by the deceased must be proved by the Magistrate who recorded the statement or some one who had heard it. S. 91 of the Evidence Act does not apply to such a document.—36 O 659. S. C. 211. 6 C. N. 72. 34 C 698. 17 P. R. 1911; 239 P. L. 1912]

The fact that the accused has absconded must be alleged, tried and established—

5. (1) In a case, where it is alleged that an accused person has absconded, evidence can be recorded against him under S. 512, in his absence, only if the fact of absconding is alleged, tried and established before the deposition is recorded.—10 C 1097. See 21 W. R. 12. Compare 6 L B 57.
6. (2) The section must be interpreted, as giving a Court jurisdiction to record evidence in the absence of the accused, only in cases in which it has been proved to its satisfaction that (1) the accused has absconded, (2) that there is no immediate prospect of arresting him.—(90) A N 100. (96) A N. 182.
7. (3) To render, evidence recorded under this section, admissible in evidence, it is necessary that there should be a finding to the effect that the accused had absconded, and that he could not be arrested after due pursuit.—21 P. R. 1883.
8. (4) A person accused of murder in 1897 absconded and was not heard of till he was arrested in 1915. The evidence recorded in his absence under S. 512 was held to be inadmissible, as there was no finding to the effect that the accused had absconded and that there was no immediate prospect of arresting him as required by that section.—13 A. J. 1043
9. (5) Out of six persons accused of murder, five were arrested. The sixth accused absconded at the Judge did not record that the sixth accused had absconded and evidence was recorded by him against the persons under trial only. Two years afterwards the absconding accused was arrested and tried. Held that the depositions given before the committing Magistrate in the previous case were admissible under S. 512 Cr. P. C. (but not under S. 33 of the Evidence Act) but that the depositions of the deceased witnesses who were deposited before the Sessions Judge were admissible.—S. A. 672.

10. Note.—Where however a Magistrate had evidence that the accused was absconding, evidence from which he might reasonably infer that there was no immediate prospect of arrest, (and he expressly stated in his order that he was taking action under S. 512 Cr. P. C.) mere fact that he did not recite a finding to the effect does not render the evidence inadmissible 41 A. 60.

10A. Where the conditions laid down S. 512 are not fulfilled, the Sessions Judge must summon witnesses.—If, the course of a trial, the Sessions Judge is of opinion that the prosecution has not had a fair opportunity for the reception of the depositions taken before the committing Magistrate in the absence of the accused, he should adjourn the trial under S. Cr. P. C. and under S. 351, summon such witnesses as he may deem material.—(82) 12 C. L. 120

11. Mode of proof.—The facts required to give the Magistrate jurisdiction under this section must be proved by evidence, and not merely by the report of the Police, unless that report is given in the shape of evidence before Court.—(90) A. N. 100

12. Procedure under this Section is optional.—It is not open to a Magistrate decline to call for the documents desired by complainant or to record any evidence on behalf, on the ground that the accused has absconded, and no enquiry was then been conducted, he is bound in such a case by provisions of S. 512 Cr. P. C.—2 B R 707

13. Object of subs (2).—“The Bombay High Court suggested that the provisions of this section should be extended to cases where offender is unknown and should not be confined to cases where he had absconded. We think however that a distinction should be drawn between the two cases, and therefore in adopt the Bombay High Court's suggestion, we have provided that its procedure shall only apply in cases of great gravity, that it should only be in force under an order of the High Court, and that mere delay, expense or inconvenience obtaining the presence of the deponent, should not be sufficient ground for making the deposition evidence against the person subsequently accused.”—See Sel Com Rep. para. 74

14. Evidence should be duly attested. Before depositions under this section are received in evidence, care must be taken to see that they are in proper form and duly attested or otherwise strictly proved.—S. A. 672.

CHAPTER XLII.

PROVISIONS AS TO BONDS.

513. When any person is required by any Court or officer to execute a bond, with or without sureties, such Court or officer may, except in the case of a bond for good behaviour, permit him to deposit a sum of money or Government promissory notes to such amount as the Court or officer may fix, in lieu of executing such bond.

Notes.

1. Person required to furnish security account of himself. He was therefore ordered by the first class Magistrate to execute a bond for Rs 25 and to deposit as security the sum of Rs 7 found in his possession. Held, that the order as to the deposit was illegal.—Rat 671

2. [Note.—The reason for the difference is that the object of the law providing for security for good behaviour in that sureties should be responsible for the good behaviour of persons called upon to furnish security, while in the case of other bonds, the object is merely to ensure attendance. See 2 N P 295

3. S. 513 applies to the principal and not to sureties.—The deposit permitted under S 513 Cr. P C is allowed in substitution only of the principal's bond and not in lieu of the bond which the surety executes.—32 B 449

514. (1) Whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court by which bond under this Procedure on forfeiture of bond Code has been taken, or of the Court of a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class or, when the bond is for appearance before a Court, to the satisfaction of such Court, that such bond has been forfeited, the Court shall record the grounds of such proof, and may call upon any person bound by such bond to pay the penalty thereof, or to show cause why it should not be paid.

(2) If sufficient cause is not shown and the penalty is not paid, the Court may proceed to recover the same by issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of the moveable property belonging to such person or his estate if he be dead.

(3) Such warrant may be executed within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court which issued it, and it shall authorize the distress and sale of any moveable property belonging to such person without such limits, when endorsed by the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such property is found.

(4) If such penalty is not paid and cannot be recovered by such attachment and sale, the person so bound shall be liable, by order of the Court which issued the warrant, to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

(5) The Court may, at its discretion, remit any portion of the penalty mentioned and enforce payment in part only.

(6) Where a surety to a bond dies before the bond is forfeited, his estate shall be discharged from all liability in respect of the bond, but the party who gave the bond may be required to find a new surety.

Proposed amendments to the section.—In section 514 of the said Code—

(i) In sub-section (3), for the word "distress," the word "attachment" shall be substituted.

(u) In sub-section (5), the words "but the party who gave the bond may be required to find a new surety" shall be omitted, and after the said sub-section, the following sub section shall be inserted, namely, —

"(7) When any person who has furnished security under section 106 or section 118 or section 562 is convicted of an offence the commission of which constitutes a breach of the conditions of his bond, the fact of such conviction shall be conclusive as to such breach, provided that in any case where such person has been convicted on his own plea, it shall be open to the surety to prove that he was not guilty of such offence, but the burden of so proving shall be upon the surety."

After section 514 of the said Code, the following sections shall be inserted, namely, —

"514 A. When any surety to a bond becomes insolvent or dies, or when any bond is forfeited under the provisions of section 514, the Court by whose order such bond was taken, or a Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class, may order the person from whom such security was demanded to furnish fresh security in accordance with the directions of the original order, and if such security is not furnished, such Court or Magistrate proceed as if there had been a default in complying with a such original order."

514 B When the person required by any Court or officer to execute a bond is a minor, such Court or officer may in lieu thereof a bond executed by a surety or sureties only

I. OBJECT AND SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

1. Object of surety bonds.—The object of the surety-bonds is, as far as possible, to ensure that an accused person shall not evade justice in the ordinary sense, that is to say, by flying (sic) the country or the jurisdiction of the Court—18 B R 683.

Scope of the section.

2. (1) A bond to secure the attendance of the accused before a Magistrate is not invalid because it was taken by a Magistrate, other than the one before whom the appearance is to be made—2 B. R. 589 But See 4 M. H. (ap) 17; 4 M. H. (ap) 18
3. (2) The powers contained in Ss. 396 and 397 Cr. P. C. (=S 514) extend not only to recognizances taken by a Magistrate for the appearance of an accused person by a surety, but also to such recognizances when taken by a police officer.—22 W R 74
4. (3) The provisions of the section apply to all bonds whether executed by principals, sureties or witnesses—2 M. 169
- 4A. (4) A bond containing a condition that the
5. Bond becomes extinct as soon as penalty is paid.—The bond becomes extinct as soon as the penalty due upon default is exacted and it ceases to be in force.—(13) U. B. I. (97-01) U. B. I. 20. 26; 117 II P. R. 1889.

6. The word "distress."—It is difficult to find that the word "distress" is used in sections 514 Cr. P. C. with reference to other tangible moveable property.—(17) M. N. 105

Bonds taken for appearance before police.

7. (1) Bonds taken under section 106 and 107 of City of Bombay Police Act, for appearance before the Police, are not bonds taken under the Criminal Procedure, or for appearance before a Court and such bonds cannot, therefore, deal with under S 514 Cr. P. C.—42 B. 400
8. (2) The wording of S 499 and of S 514 Cr. P. C. make it abundantly clear that a Police officer at a Police Station has power to make it a condition of a bond that the bond shall be forfeited if the person bound by the bond can be called upon to pay the penalty thereof.—22 P. R. 1913. 11 C. 77.

II. SURETIES SHOULD BE TREATED IN A CONSIDERATE MANNER.

9. (1) The man who stands surety for another (a person bound over under S 110 Cr. P. C.) should always be treated in a considerate manner, and it is contrary to all principles of justice that he should be liable for a sudden act of violence, especially when he himself belongs to another village, and has no possible opportunity of controlling the every day life of the offender.—15 P. R. 1913; 13 P. R. 1913. [See the ruling in 15 P. R. 1913 discussed in 7 P. W. 1914]
10. (2) On 14th Oct 1912, one F. B. was put on Rs. 1000, security for a year under S 110 Cr. P. C. as a reputed thief and burglar. S and B were his sureties. On 25th June 1913, F B was convicted under s 323 I. P. C. and sentenced to imprisonment for 2 weeks and a fine of Rs 20. Upon this, the Magistrate ordered the confiscation of Rs 250 security money from F. B. and his sureties jointly. Held, "under the circumstances explained, there was no real ground for dealing heavily with the sureties." They could not possibly prevent F B from committing a petty offence of this kind and to hold them responsible is to set up a standard of conduct which is unattainable by human beings of any class, much less by rough peasants." [The order against S. and B was set aside in full]—6 P R 1915 See 22 P. W 1907.
11. [Note.—Where however the sureties stood for a man placed on security, not merely as being a receiver of stolen property but also being a dangerous man and the son of a notorious dacoit, and was subsequently convicted under S 325 I. P. C. of a bad offence Held that the sureties must have known quite well that they ran a serious risk in becoming sureties for a man of this class, and their liability can be properly enforced to the full extent—10 P. R. 1915.

12. (1) The fact that a person who is under a bond of security to be of good behaviour, is convicted of an offence under S 13 of the Gambling Act, is a sufficient ground for calling on him to show cause why the bond should not be enforced under S. 514 of the Cr. P. Code. But the nature of the offence is such that the Magistrate can, in the proceeding under S. 514, exercise the discretion given in sub s 5 to make a considerable remission of the penalty.—(06) A. N 13
13. (1) A bond to keep the peace, cannot be forfeited except on proof of the commission of an offence involving a breach of the peace, and the use of the word "probably" in Form 10, Sch. V, of the Cr. P. C. limits the forfeiture to cases in which breach of the peace is the 'probable' and not merely the 'possible' result of the act of the person bound over. Thus, a conviction for theft, wrongful confinement and extortion for the abduction of a woman, or a secret attempt to poison a person cannot justify a forfeiture of such a bond. 22 P. R. 1914. See 18 W. R. 63; 19 W. R. 48 7 P R 1906
14. When no leniency should be shown.—When a badmash's friend, saves him from jail by standing surety for him, and then his conduct shows that he has not turned over a new leaf, and that the surety is exercising no real supervision over his movements, no leniency should be shown to the surety.—3 P R 1917.

III. LIABILITY OF SURETY AND PRINCIPAL.

(1) The liability of principal and surety is joint and several.

15. The principal and sureties to a bond are, on forfeiture, jointly and severally liable for the amount fixed in it. If the Magistrate thinks it desirable, he may call on the principal, first to pay the amount, but if he fails or refuses to do so, he should not take any action against him, until he has called on the sureties to make good the amount and they have failed to do so. It is not for the Magistrate to say how much each surety shall pay. Both may pay a part, or one may pay the full amount. If the amount which the Magistrate directs "shall be forfeited," is not paid in full, he may then proceed against one or all the parties to the bond under S 514 Cr P C. The usual practice should be to require the principal and the sureties together to pay the amount to be forfeited. (13) U B 1 159 (01—06) U B 1 13 (01—06) U B 1 31.
16. (3) "In my opinion the sureties to such are ordinary sureties. When A promises in a bond to pay Rs X to B on a certain contingency arising and C, and D subscribe an undertaking to be sureties for A, it can only mean that B, at most is entitled to a penalty of Rs. X which he can recover on the said contingency arising from any one or all of three persons concerned, it is left to the option of the Government to select from among the three men that one against whom it will proceed or if it pleases, it may proceed against all three or any two and recover such fractions from each as it may think fit"—Per Johnston J in 226 P. L 1911 See 26 P R 1894 30 P. R. 1890.

(2) Liability not co-extensive.

17. (1) When a person executes on a bond for keeping the peace, and another stands surety for him, on the breach of the bond, both the surety and the principal are liable to pay the penalty of their respective bonds, quite irrespective of the crime, and the liability of the surety is not co-extensive with that of the principal, as in the ordinary cases of a surety for a debtor for the payment of his debt.—36 G. 562 O. C. J 200 See 20 A 206.
18. (2) A person who undertakes to produce an accused person before Court when called upon, and in default, to forfeit a sum of money to Government, is not discharged by the fact that the accused has paid the amount of his own bail bond.—10 Cr. 294 (M).

18A. Immovable property given in security—

- (1) "While it is true that so long as a surety is alive, only movable property, can, for default under S. 514 Cr. P. C. be attached and sold for recovery of penalty, yet I agree with the learned Sessions Judge that if the house offered as security is worth Rs. 500; and the surety is reported by the Teshildar to be a respectable person, the security should be accepted"—16 A. J. 503.

IV. REDUCTION OF MONEY FORFEITED UNDER S. 515 CR. P. C.

19. (1) In 6 P. R 1915, a person bound over for good behaviour under S 110 in the sum of Rs. 1000 was on conviction for hurt under S 323 1 P. C. called upon to forfeit the sum of Rs. 250. The amount of recognizance was excessive, had to refer the matter to the Government. [19 W. R 1 3 O 757]

20. (2) Enforcement of a portion of the penalty—is allowed by the terms of subclause (5) under the corresponding section 293 of the Code of 1861, a Magistrate had no jurisdiction to direct the forfeiture of a portion of the penalty. [19 W. R 1 Rat 20] Under the Code of 1872 (see S 502) neither the Magistrate nor the High Court, had power to reduce the amount of forfeited recognizances [3 C. 757 & C. L 72. 2 P. R 1853] The Magistrate if he thought the

21. (3) Where a security bond is taken from a surety for the appearance of a witness, the forfeiture of the whole sum mentioned in the bond is a harsh measure in the absence of anything to show that the security is really responsible for the witness' disappearance—23 P. W. 1907.

22. (4) When a person enters into a personal recognizance to attend and give evidence, but fails to appear, an enquiry should be made into the excuse given by him for his non appearance, before enforcing the penalty therefor, in order that the discretion conferred upon the Court by S 221 (=S 514) may be said to be fairly exercised 2 N. P. 113

V. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) General.

23. Order for confiscation must be made at the time of conviction.—If a Criminal Court knowing that the person charged before it, is under security to be of good behaviour, in sentencing that person in the case before it makes no reference to any confiscation, it is not competent for that court or any court, in a subsequent and separate proceeding to take such steps.—13 P. R 1913 (F. B.): 6 P. W. 1915 26 P. R 1904. 1 C L 134. 3 C L 406 Con 26 A 202

Note.—When the rule will not apply—

24. (1) If the Magistrate who tries the accused is aware of the existence of the security bond, and does not pass any order regarding it, no other Magistrate can in subsequent proceedings confiscate the bond. But if he is unaware, this rule would be of no avail—3 P. R. 1917

25. (2) Where in convicting the principals for having joined in a serious riot, the Magistrate plainly wrote in his judgment, that, in as much as they would forfeit some Rs 4000, presently, he refrained from passing a heavy sentence. He then issued process to the sureties and having heard the case, in re forfeiture of security, he confiscated in full. Held that the order of forfeiture was correct.—15 P. R 1917

- (3) If on failure of the accused to appear on the day fixed for hearing him, an order of forfeiture of the bond is passed the next day, it is not invalid—2 B R 599.

28. Order of forfeiture cannot be passed by Court other than that which took the bond.—Where the bond in question was taken by the second class Magistrate of Kurat, on default of appearance, the same Magistrate issued notice to petitioner to show cause but subsequent proceedings under S 514 Cr. P. C. were before the Magistrate at Khalalpur, who passed the order of forfeiture. Held that the latter Magistrate had no jurisdiction to order the forfeiture under S 514 Cr P C—16 B R 81 See 1 C N. 279 (85) A. N. 44

(2) Notice to show cause.

27. Notice must be given.—A notice must be served on a surety calling upon him to pay the amount of his security bond, or to show cause why he should not pay the same, before an order can be made to levy the sum from him. [9 W R 1] The fact that such notice was issued must appear clearly on the face of the record—[15 W R 82]

28. Proceedings held on in the present to show cause why his bond should not be forfeited, and he fails to be present on that day, the proceedings taken by the Magistrate on the subsequent day, are not, thereby alone, vitiated—2 B. R. 589.

29. Estreating of recognizances.—Where the accused were bound over by recognizance to appear from a certain date until the close of the trial and do not appear on that date but appear on a subsequent date, and the Sub-Magistrate after hearing what they had to say, directed the penalties on the forfeited recognizances to be eried, held that no notice was necessary before proceeding to enforce the penalty [6 M. H. 1811, in which it is laid down that proof of conviction of the principal and if necessary proof of identity is sufficient.

(3) The Enquiry.

30. Prima facie evidence that bond is forfeited previous before calling upon to show cause.—S 502 (1872) [= S 514] requires that no person who has entered into a recognizance bond should be called upon to show cause why he should not have his recognizance declared forfeited without prima facie proof, that is, evidence on oath, that the bond has been forfeited.—11 B H 170 O C P 8

Procedure.

31. (1) In proceedings under this section, no charge is required to be drawn up [2 M 169]
32. (2) The person against whom proceedings are held, is competent to give evidence on his own behalf, on oath, as such proceedings are of a civil nature.—[15 W R 87]
33. (3) An order for estraitment of a recognizance or bail bond must be made upon evidence in the case, and not upon evidence taken in other cases.—[10 C L 571]
34. (4) There must be a regular judicial trial and legal enquiry before an order to forfeit recognizances can be passed, and the evidence taken should be recorded in the presence of the accused, or in the presence of an agent of the accused duly authorised to appear in such enquiry.—12 W R 51 - 3 B L (Ap) 155 7 N P 375 (91) A N 163
35. (5) A Magistrate is not justified in forfeiting a recognizance to keep the peace under this section, unless the party charged with a breach of the peace has had an opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses upon whose evidence the rule to show cause has been issued.—4 C 865 (F. B.) 25 C 440
36. (6) Before a recognizance can be forfeited, it must be proved that the person accused has either personally broken the peace, or abetted some other person or persons in breaking it.—11 W R 62
37. (7) If a recognizance is taken between the

38. (8) The order of forfeiture must be made by the court has jurisdiction to do so. Therefore, when a surety executed a bond for appearance of a certain accused before the Court of Sessions, and an order was made by a Deputy Magistrate that the bond be forfeited as the accused failed to appear. Held that the Deputy Magistrate had no jurisdiction to make the order [14 C N 259]—See Note No 26 above

39. What amounts to a breach of the recognizance.

(1) There is a breach of the recognizance if the defendant, though corporally present, does not answer when called [People v Riggs 3 Den 58] or fails to appear and answer, if called at any stage of the trial [People v Pety 2 Hill 523] or when, though the defendant appear, if he depart before the conclusion of the trial.—[People v Mc Coy 39 Barb 73]

40. Reasonable notice must be given, if surety has undertaken to produce when called upon.—Where the condition of the bail bonds given by the defendants, and of the security bond given by their surety is, that the defendants should appear when required to answer the charge made against them, they are entitled to reasonable notice of the time at which the defendants will be required to attend.—4 M H (appx) xiv 5 M H (appx) xv M H C Pro 4th December 1875

[Note.—Where a bail bond gives neither the time for the production of the prisoner nor the place, it cannot be forfeited on the non appearance of the prisoner.—(85) A N 44]

- 40A. Bond cannot be taken from an agent.—Where the personal attendance of an accused is dispensed with, a recognizance bond, if deemed necessary, should be taken from him, and not from his agent, the accused being bound under the terms of such recognizance, to appear either in person or by agent if the agent neglected to attend when the case was called on, the bond might be held to have been forfeited, and the accused made liable for the payment of the penalty. A Magistrate has no legal authority to secure the attendance of the agent by a bond taken from the agent himself.—5 B H (C. C) 61.

VI. WHEN THE SURETY IS ABSOLVED.

41. (1) Suicide.—“The object of the surety bond is as far as possible, to ensure that the accused person shall not evade justice in the ordinary sense, that is to say by flying (sic) the country, or the jurisdiction of the Court. But if he elects to die sooner than face his trial, that can hardly be a sufficient reason for forfeiting the surety-bonds, since, that was an event which his sureties could not have had in contemplation, and which is not of the kind, which would impose on them any moral obligation or responsibility to the courts."—Beaman, J. in 18 B R 643, 37 M, 156; 16 C N 550. See Merrick v. Vander G. Term Report 50 Robertson v. Patterson, 7 East 405; Falkner v. Cutice, 13 East 457.

42. (2) Where the warrant itself is illegal.—In a case under S. 495 Cr. P. C. a Magistrate is competent to issue warrant in the first instance, but is bound to record his reasons under S. 90 Cr. P. C. If he fails to do so, the warrant is wholly illegal [See 38 C 789] and the bond given by the surety has no legal force and cannot be forfeited if the principal fails to appear—50 P. L. 1918; 22 P. W. 1907.

43. (3) Variation of terms without the surety's consent.—Where a surety agreed to the condition that he would be responsible for the continued presence of the accused at Nawada it was held that the surety was released from case to another Court—13 W. R. 53.

44. (4) Where the bond itself is bad in law.—Where the bond which, ought to have in the form prescribed for cases under S. 110, is taken under S. 107, the sureties cannot be held liable—32 P. R. 1903

VII. CONSTRUCTION OF BOND.

45. (1) Where a person stands surety for the appearance of a person proceeded against under S. 110 Cr. P. C. "upto the conclusion of the case," his liability does not cease until the culprit has, after the case has been completed and held to be proved, appeared with his sureties and executed his bond—32 P. R. 1914

46. (2) A penal bond must be construed literally and strictly.—The subjects of the rulers of an independent Native State are not the subjects of His Majesty the King Emperor. A bond executed by a surety in the form presented by Schedule 5, Form XI of the Cr. P. C. cannot be forfeited, on the principal committing an offence in an independent Native State, in as much as by transgressing the laws of the Native State, he does not make any default in his undertaking to be of good behaviour towards His Majesty—26 P. R. 1918, 30 P. R. 1859, 37 P. R. 1881, 20 P. R. 1878

47. (3) Where a person enters into a personal bail-bond binding himself to appear before the Court of a particular Magistrate, the fact that he fails to appear before a Magistrate, other than the one named in the bond is no ground for directing forfeiture of the bond—21 Cr. 632(A) 36 C 749, 30 C. 107.

48. (4) B having bound himself by personal recognizance to appear at a Magistrate's court on the 17th Jan'y 1890 or 'until the disposal of the case' A executed a bond as surety for B's appearance "at the aforesaid court on the aforesaid date," but the bond was not in accordance with Form III or Form XLIII prescribed by Schedule V of the Cr. P. C. there being no provision in it for the continued attendance of B, until otherwise directed by the court or for B's attendance "on every day" of the inquiry. B failed to appear on the 3rd June 1890, to which day the hearing had been adjourned. Held that the surety bond must be construed strictly and according to the grammatical construction of the bond. A did not bind himself to secure the attendance of B on any date other than the 17th January 1890. A's bond was not forfeited—Rat 547. As to the American Law—People v. Blankman 17 Wend 252

49. (5) Where a defendant, charged with an offence bound himself to appear, before a Magistrate on the 10th June and did appear on that date but made default on the 11th June, held that there was no forfeiture of the recognizance—4 M. H. (ap) 44

50. (6) Where a person has been bound down by recognizance not to commit a breach of the peace, the amount of the recognizance cannot be recovered from him, if he is guilty of an offence, such as theft which does not amount to a breach of the peace, or which is not likely to occasion a breach of the peace 18 W. R. 63, 19 W. R. 37. See 19 W. R. 48; 7 P. R. 1806

[Note.—But where the terms of a bond to keep the peace are general, the recognizance may be forfeited on any breach of the peace, whether the assault be committed against the person on whose charge the bond was originally taken or not—[15 W. R. 14] A bond executed in District T may be estreated on a breach of the terms being committed in District S [2 B. L. 11. But See People v. Bartlett 3 Hall 570]

51. (7) Surety bound to cause appearance the non appearance of the accused on the succeeding day (Monday) 2 C. N. 519. 2 Weir 663. See People v. Stute 67 N. Y. 585

VIII MISCELLANEOUS.

52. Partial enforcement of bond wholly extinguishes it.—The partial enforcement of a security bond extinguishes it wholly. A.

furnished security in Rs. 150 for good behaviour for 3 years. He committed a breach of his bond and Rs. 25 of the bond was forfeited. He again committed an assault under S 152 I P. C. within the said three years and the Magistrate proceeded to enforce a further sum of Rs 25 out of the said bond. Held that the order was bad in law — 11 P. R. 1859

53. Bond not providing for money penalty cannot be enforced.—Every bond taken under the provisions of the Code, as security for the performance of a promise must necessarily include a money penalty for the breach of such promise. A document which does not provide for a penalty or forfeiture of any kind, is mere waste paper.—17 C. P. 113.

54. Once there is a breach, the sureties must be asked if they agree to bond continuing.—When a bond for good behaviour is broken and the punishment for such breach is completely suffered before the period named in the bond expires, the sureties, when paying the forfeiture should be asked, whether they agree to the bond continuing in force. If they do not agree, the Magistrate should proceed under S 126 (7), and demand fresh security.—[40] U. B. 13]

[Note.—A security to keep the peace once given is sufficient for that purpose, so long as it is in force, in respect of every act of the person bound over to keep the peace breaking any of the conditions [4 C N 121] This ruling is hardly consistent with the language of Sch I Form No. 11]

55. Order not appealable.—Where a Deputy Magistrate, deciding that bond for keeping the peace had been forfeited, levied the penalty under S 502, and the Sessions Judge on appeal, reversed the order, held that the order of the Magistrate was not open to appeal.—2 M 169. But See S 515 infra

56. Recovery of penalty no bar to regular prosecution.—There is nothing in this section which prevents an accused person who has forfeited his bail-bond by default of appearance, from being proceeded against under S 174 I P. C. notwithstanding his surety has paid the penalty mentioned in the recognizance.—10 W R 4

57. Representative of deceased surety.—The words "person bound" in S 514 do not include the representative of a deceased surety, and such representative is not liable to be proceeded against in a summary proceeding under Chap XLII.—22 P. R. 1894.

[Note.—But note the words "or his estate if he be dead" in sub (2) of 514 Cr P C 1894]

58. Composition of offence will not prevent forfeiture.—A Magistrate is not prevented from taking steps under this section in cases in which a breach of the peace has been committed and the parties acting privately had compounded the offence.—26 A. 202

[Note.—In America, it has been held that a judgment entered on a forfeited recognizance taken in a special session in a prosecution for assault and battery will be vacated, where it is shown that the complainant appeared and acknowledged satisfaction for the injury and requested discharge of the defendant.—People v. Gorman 5 N. Y. Sup 446]

59. Order for imprisonment.—A Magistrate is not competent to direct that, in default of payment, the person whose recognizance is forfeited, should be imprisoned, without first issuing a warrant for the attachment and sale of his movable property.—10 C L 371

60. Ss. 514 to 518 apply to bonds under Madras Abkari Act (I of 1886).—A Magistrate enforcing a penalty on the application of an Abkari Inspector who forwards under S. 43 of the Abkari Act, a bail-bond by reason of the default of the person bailed out to appear before him, must follow the procedure laid down in S 514 Cr. P. C. The Magistrate should proceed in the same manner as if the default has been made by a person bailed to appear before his own court. He should call upon the defaulter to show cause why the penalty should not be enforced [18 M. 43]

61. Rules observed in Madras.—(1) There is a recognizance so taken is a nullity [H. C. Cr. No 480 dated 18.3.03] (2) But such a course is permissible in the case of the defendant. [H. C. Pro No 1808 of 17.9.71] (3) A Magistrate is bound to form a reasonable opinion that there has been a wilful default before issuing process. [H. C. Cr. No 646 dated 9th April 1899] When default is made on a date other than that mentioned in the recognizance, the penalty cannot be enforced [H. C. Pro Nos 1369 and 1327 Oct. 1868]

62. Contract by principal to indemnify surety.—An indemnity bond executed by the depositor by principal with the surety cannot be recovered [1 A 751]

63. Informality in bond.—The security bond contemplated by law is a single bond but it is not necessarily illegal because the bond of the principal and sureties are taken on two separate pieces of paper [Per Phear J] in 19 W R. 29

515 All orders passed under section 514 by any Magistrate other than a Presidency

Magistrate or District Magistrate, shall be appealable to the District Magistrate, or, if not so appealed, may be revised by him.

Notes.

1. District Magistrate acting under this section can not make reference under S. 438 Cr. P. C.—Where a District Magistrate instead of disposing of an appeal against forfeiture under S 515 Cr P C., reported the matter to the Chief Court, because he entertained some doubt about the correctness of the rulings in 15 P. R. 1905 and 15 P. R. 1913: Held that neither S. 438 Cr. P. C. nor any other provision of the Cr. P. C. authorises the procedure adopted. The Appellate Court cannot divest itself of its powers, merely because it misunderstands or disapproves of certain rulings of the High Court—7 P. W. 1914

2. First class Magistrate not competent to hear appeal.—A first class Magistrate, not being a District Magistrate has no jurisdiction under S. 515 Cr. P. C. to hear an appeal against an order of a second class Magistrate under S. 514 Cr. P. C.—Rat 384

3. Power of the High Court.—The jurisdiction of the High Court under S. 479 and 123 (C.) is very wide and gives it power to revise orders under this section. This general power is not taken away by the power of revision given to the District Magistrate by S. 515 Cr. P. C. as the jurisdiction of the Superior Court cannot be taken away except by express words or necessary implication [See 4 B 624]—5 S 179

[Note.—The cases reported in 19 W. R. 1 3 C 537 are no longer law]

4. As to change of law.—See Note No. 20, under S. 514 Cr. P. C.

516 The High Court or Court of Session may direct any Magistrate to levy the amount due on a bond to appear and attend at such High Court or Court of Session

Note.

1. Scope of S. 516.—S. 516 Cr. P. C. is only concerned with the power to direct levy of the amount (which power may be delegated) and not with the forfeiture which is a condition precedent to the levy.—Per Jenkins C.J. in 14 C. N. 259

CHAPTER XLIII

OF THE DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY

Proposed amendment to the section—In Chapter XLIII of the said Code, before section 517, the following section shall be inserted, namely—

"516A When any property regarding which any offence appears to have been committed, or which appears to have been used for the commission of any offence, is produced before any criminal Court during any inquiry or trial the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the proper custody of such property pending the conclusion of the inquiry or trial, and if the property is subject to speedy or natural decay, may, after recording such evidence as it thinks necessary, order it to be sold or otherwise disposed of"

517. (3) When an order is made under this section in a case in which an appeal lies, such order shall not (except when the property is live-stock or is subject to speedy and natural decay) be carried out until the period allowed for presenting such appeal has passed, or, when such appeal is presented within such period, until such appeal has been disposed of.

(iii) After sub-section (3), the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely—

(4) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit any Court from delivering any property under the provisions of sub-section (1) to any person claiming to be entitled to the possession thereof, on his executing a bond with or without sureties to the satisfaction of the Court, engaging to restore such property to the Court if the order made under this section is modified or set aside on appeal."

518 In lieu of itself passing an order under section 517, the Court may direct the property Orders may take form of reference to to be delivered to the District Magistrate or to a Sub-divisional District or Sub-divisional Magistrate Magistrate, who shall in such cases deal with it as if it had been seized by the police and the seizure had been reported to him in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

520. Any Court of appeal confirmation, reference or revision may direct any order under Stay of order under section 517, 518 section 517, section 518 or section 519. passed by a Court subor- or 519 dinate thereto, to be stayed pending consideration by the former Court, and may modify, alter or annul such order and make any further orders that may be just.

Proposed amendments to the section—In section 525 of the said Code, for the words "or the Magistrate" the words "or if the Magistrate" shall be substituted, and after the word "owner" the words "or that the value of such property is less than ten rupees" shall be inserted.

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF CHAP. XLIII.

(1) Select Committee's Report.

1. To enable a Court to act under S. 517, the property or document in question (a) must be produced before it (b) be in its custody (c) it must appear that an offence has been committed regarding it or (d) it must have been used for the commission of any offence, and one of these conditions at least, must exist in an inquiry or trial in such court. The operation of the section has been enlarged so as to enable the Magistrate to pass order for the disposal of any property produced before him

See Statement of objects and reasons

(2) Scope of S. 517.

2. (1) The object of the section is to enable the Magistrate to direct the property to be given to some person, to whom it appeared to belong or to allow it to continue in the possession of the person in whose possession it was found or to make some order of that character. The orders regarding the confiscation and payment of compensation were illegal—9 C. N. 597: But See 24 M. J.
3. (2) An order under S. 517 Cr. P. C. does not decide the question of ownership of the property. It merely decides the question of the right to possession till a Civil Court has decided the question of ownership—11 Bur. T. 267.

4. S. 517 applies to the actual property in respect of which the property is committed.

plaintain was into gold bang to one A for Rs. 104-0-0. The latter re-converted the bangles into gold and sold it in different parts. The Court directed A to produce Rs. 184-4-0 and made an order making over the sum to the complainant. Held that the money was not the actual coins or notes received by A for the bits of gold bangles he sold. See 517 Cr. P. C. did not therefore apply to it—20 B. R. 604

5. Court should not proceed under S. 517 when question of title is involved.—

Three debentures, the property of S. was stolen convicted 11 P. C. produced that the order, as there were questions between N and S as to which of them was the rightful owner which could be determined only by a Civil Court, (2) that in order to prevent N from dealing with the debentures till the decision of the Civil Court N, should be directed to deposit them with an officer of the Court for three months—19 Cr. 788 (C)

6. Order can be made only if the property comes into the hands of the Magistrate.—W. R. (Sp) 5. 19 W R 3.
7. Discretion not to be exercised arbitrarily.—The discretion granted to the Court by S 517 Cr P. C. is not an arbitrary one. The property must be returned to the person entitled to the possession thereof. The Government can not lay any claim to such property so long as there is any one entitled to the possession thereof.—2 B R 768. 14 C P 60.

Ss. 517 and 523 Cr P C cannot both apply to the same property.—17 B 748.

8. Magistrate's discretion under S. 517 Cr. P. C.—S 517 invests the Magistrate with discretionary power and it is a rule of law that such power must be exercised judicially—i. e. according to sound principle of law and not in an arbitrary manner. If there are materials, the Magistrate's discretion comes into operation, if there are none, the Magistrate ought to have returned the property to the person from whom it was produced.—11 B R 16.
9. Limit to the powers conferred by S. 517 Cr. P. C.—S 517 must be limited to the offence actually under investigation. Property used for the commission of any offence not under investigation or property regarding which no offence appears to have been committed, cannot be disposed of by an order under the section.—Rat 500.
10. Can a Magistrate make order for disposal of property which is not the subject of an offence?—S 523 must be confined to property seized by the police, of their own motion, in the exercise of powers conferred on them by law, which seizure requires to be reported to a Magistrate, for instance, seizure under Ss 57, 54(4), 165 and 166 S 523 cannot be held to apply to property which is produced before a Court in the course of an enquiry under a search warrant issued by it. To such property S 517 alone would apply, and if no offence is found in respect thereof, the Court can make no order; the property must be given back into the possession from which it came. [17 B 748] This view of the law is—that the Court can make no order in respect of property, which has not been proved to be either the subject of or the means of committing an offence, is based on the narrower scope of S 517 in the older Codes Under Ss 415 and the two succeeding sections of the Code of 1872 order could be made only if the Court was of opinion that "any offence appears to have been committed" [See 1 B. 630] The scope of the section as re-enacted in S 517 in the Code of 1882 was enlarged so as to include property or document "which has been used for the commission of any offence" [See S B. 335 Rat 365] But for all practical purpose, the narrow interpretation put on the scope of the section in 1 B 630 held the field [See Rat 500 951 Cr R. 18 of 90 46 P. R 1888. 14 C. 834 24 C. 499 (93-00) L B 324. 14 C P 60; (89); 2 Weir 668 (91) Weir 2 668; 2 Weir 667. 2 Weir 665. (13th Feby 1874); 2 Weir 665 (20th June 1874); 2 Weir 666 Con 22 B 844 The ruling in 30 C. 690 a case decided in 1903 follows this view but fails to taken into account the effect of the introduction of the words "produced before it or in its custody", which undoubtedly enable the Magistrate to pass an order regarding any property produced before it or in its custody, even though no offence has been committed in respect of it [34 C. 347] Where K. charged her daughter R with the theft of jewels came self-ac the jo the Magistrate had jurisdiction to pass an order for restoration in favour of the daughter or the mother or in favour of both [34 M 94] An order under S 517 may be passed even though the charge has failed and no offence has been proved [2 Weir 666; 16 M. J. (Sb. N.) 4] The rulings in Cr. Rev. No. 476-B of 1915 and Cr Rev. No 74-B of 1919 of the Lower Burma Court which follow 1 B 630 and 14 C. 834 were dissented from in 21 Cr, 561 (L.B) which adopts the same view as in 34 C 347 and follows 5 P. R 1895 (F.B.). In 9 C. N 549: the accused who was tried for the theft of an elephant, was acquitted and the Magistrate, although he found the elephant to belong to the complainant, directed it to be made over to the accused in whose possession it was at the time of the institution of the proceedings

11. Rule governing disposal of property after acquittal.—S 517 invests the Magistrate with a discretionary power and it is a rule of law that such power must be exercised judicially i e according to sound principles of law and not in an arbitrary manner. If there are no materials before the Magistrate enabling him to come to a finding about the ownership of the property he should return it to the person from whom it was produced. But if there are materials, then the Magistrate's discretion comes into operation and it is for him to say what order ought to be passed having regard to all the facts in the case.—11 B R 16 See Rat 536
12. S. 517 applies only when there is enquiry or trial.—See 517 Cr P C applies only when an enquiry or trial in a Criminal Court is concluded. Where a complaint is dismissed under S 203, it cannot be said that there was any enquiry or trial in the Magistrate's Court.—24 M J 1 See 6 C J. 707. 5 C J 229

[Note.—But in such a case when there are grounds was used by se evidence jurisdiction or directing

13. Magistrate cannot under S. 517 direct party to produce property when called upon.—An order under S 517 Cr P Code cannot direct the party to whom property is delivered to produce it when called upon.—19 M 519

Note.—But in the case of a mistake it has the power call the recipient to return it.—37 P. W. 1913]

(3) Object and application of S. 522.

4. The object of the provision of S 522 is to enable the criminal court by a summary order to restore the state of things which existed at the time of the dispossession by the convicted person or persons. It cannot go behind the state of affairs at the time of the forcible ejection leading to the criminal prosecution. Where an auction-purchaser was forcibly ejected by certain persons, held (upon a conviction of the latter) that the auction-purchaser was entitled to be restored to actual possession which he held of the house at the time of the ejection—5 G. N. 374.

14A. Condition precedent to application of S. 523 Cr. P. C.—Where there is no finding that any criminal force has been used, S 522 Cr. P. C. has no application—38 P. W. 1917

15. S. 522 does not apply to a case within the purview of S. 145 Cr. P. C.—Where neither party is in actual possession, an order under S 522 cannot be made. It is open to the Court to grant an order of a preliminary branch of

(4) Scope of S. 523.

16. S 523 does not relate to the disposal of property which has been the subject matter of a criminal trial, that is a matter to be dealt with under S 517. Where an accused was convicted under the Mysore Mines Regulation for having unwrought gold in his possession, and the Superintendent of the five Kolar Gold Field Mines claimed that the gold should be made over to their common agent, as being the produce of one of the said mines, held that the petition should be enquired into and disposed of on its merits

15 Mys 299

17. Difference between Ss. 517 and 523, Cr. P. C.—S 523 must be confined to property seized by the police of their own motion in the exercise of powers conferred on them by law, which seizure requires to be reported to a Magistrate, for instance, seizure under Ss 51, 54 (4), 105 and 106 S 523 cannot be held to apply to property which is produced before a Court, in the course of an enquiry under a search warrant issued by it. To such property, S 517 alone would apply, and if no offence is found in respect thereof, the Court can make no order. The property must be given back into the possession from which it came—17 B. 748, (193—00) L. B. 324

[Note.—The above rulings were under the Code of 1882, under which an order under S 517 could be made only in respect of the subject of an offence. Under the Code of 1898, it is no longer necessary that the property to be disposed of, should have been used for the commission of an offence or that some offence should appear to have been committed regarding it, the Court has now power to make an order for the disposal of any property "produced before it or in its custody."—21 Cr. 414 (N.)]

18. Application of S. 523.—It matters really little under which of the sections either S. 103 or 550 Cr. P. C. a seizure of property was actually made, for in either case it would be obligatory to proceed under S 523 Cr. P. C.—23 B. 314.

(5) Meaning of property in S. 517.

19. The word "property" in S. 517 means moveable property.—"We have no hesitation, after comparing section 517 with S. 522 in saying that the former section has no application to immovable property"—Per Imam and Chapman J. J. in 18 G. N. 1147 36 C. 44 22 Cr. 110 (M). (00) A. N. 81. But See 4 L. B. 229 [Compare—23 C. 372]

(6) Application of Ss. 517—523.

20. Property produced in the course of enquiry under Ss. 109 or 110.—Courts acting under the preventive sections (Ss 107 to 110) have power to make an order under S. 517 with regard to a property which has been properly produced before it, in the course of the enquiry under S 117 Cr. P. C., though there was no proof that any offence has been committed with reference to the property.—42 M. 9 34 C. 347 Com. 16 Cr. 811 (M)

21. Property produced by a witness.—The word "property" in S. 115 of Act X 1875 (corresponding to S 517) includes not only property that has been seized by the police or has been found on the person of the prisoner, but also property produced before the Police Magistrate by a witness—12 B. H. 217

22. Printing Press.—The words "which has been used for the commission of any offence" refer to instruments like guns, daggers, swords etc., produced in Court. They cannot include a printing press, in which seditions matters have been published.

34 C. 886 5 N. 59

23. Boat used for committing theft is not an instrument used for committing an offence within the meaning of S 517 Cr. P. C.

S. C. N. 587 See 37 P. W. 1907

24. Cart, pony and harness.—The accused being convicted of rash driving under S 279 I. P. C. the convicted Magistrate acting under S 517 Cr. P. C. that the cart, harness and pony which the accused was driving, should be sold and the sale proceeds to be handed over to the complainant as compensation—Held the order was illegal

9 P. L. 1904

25. Property produced in part as sample.—When a portion of an article in bulk is produced and received in evidence, as a sample of the bulk, the whole bulk is to be taken to have been produced before the Court within the meaning of S. 418 (1872) = S. 517.—2 Weir 670

26. Property produced under a search warrant within the purview of Ss. 517.—See 21 M. 523

27. Right to goods obtained fraudulently.—The proviso to S. 578 Contract Act does not apply, when property (e.g.—jewels) are wrongfully converted having been obtained by fraud. The Magistrate acting under S 517 can direct them to be handed to the true owner—3 Bur. T. 111

28. Jewels entrusted to a broker for sale.—was sold by him to a person S who pawned them with another person T. The broker misappropriated the money which he received from S. Held—(upon a conviction of the broker for misappropriation) that T was protected by the exception 3 to S. 108 Contract Act, and was entitled to have the jewels returned to him under S 517 Cr. P. C. 4 Bur. T. 170. See 3 Bur. T. 111 4 L. B. 25 4 L. B. 13.

29. Money tied in gambler's cloth.—Money or coins can be said to be used for the purpose of gaming under S 3 of the Madras Town Nuisances Act III of 1889 only if they are actually staked. To justify their confiscation, the money or coins should have been actually used or displayed in the act of gambling. Money tied in gambler's cloth not actually staked, therefore, cannot be the subject of an order under S 517 Cr. P. C.—41 M. 644 See 26 B. 611 26 A. 270

30. The words "conversion" and "exchange" in S. 517 Cr. P. C.—The words "conversion" and "exchange" must be taken in their ordinary sense. They apply to such acts as the melting down of gold and silver ornaments and the exchange of notes for cash.

A garden purchased at a sale in execution of ex parte decree, obtained on the basis of obtained on the basis of a forged pro-note, cannot be regarded as property acquired by the conversion or exchange of the forged promote into a decree within the meaning of S 517 Cr. P. C. 4 Bur. T. 211.

(7) Property in currency notes and coins.

31. Property in currency notes.—It was held in (1873) 2 Weir 664 = 7 M. II. 233 that property in money or currency notes passes by mere delivery and the rule of law that possession by the taker in good faith is no defence against the owner of a chattel whose possession was lost through theft, does not apply in the case of money or a currency note. In 25 B. 702, the above ruling was distinguished and held to be inapplicable when the coin in question is not the current coin of the realm, and is neither by statute nor by the law of merchants in British India shown to be legal tender.

- 31A. Currency notes—The property in a bank-note or currency note passes like that in cash by delivery, and a party taking it bona fide and for value, is entitled to retain it as against a former owner from whom it was stolen. 5 S. 153 17 B. R. 922 (11) M. N. 370 See 19 C. 52 (62) 1 N. P. 294. 7 M. H. 233 3 C. 370 But the rule is limited to cases where the receipt of the money is, in bona fide [18, 255; 3 Bur. T. 111] When the buyer of certain goods made over to the seller the halves of certain currency notes as security for the payment of goods delivered, having previously parted with the other halves to a third person, held that the seller was entitled to recover possession of the halves originally made over to him (the third person) from the third person to whom they had been delivered under an order of the Court—27 A. 630

32. Counterfeit Coins.—A coin which is beyond doubt counterfeit, ought not to be restored to the possession of a person convicted of having passed another like counterfeit coin, merely because he has not been proved that he has attempted to deliver it. The only proper course is to destroy it—2 Weir 669

33. Badshahi coin.—When a badshahi coin comes before the Court as part of the stolen property, and no custom is set up to show that it is a legal tender in British India, the Court is at liberty to award the same to the complainant under S. 517 Cr. P. C.—25 B. 702

[Note.—The property in such money does not pass by mere delivery as it is not current coin within the principle of the decision in 3 C. 379]

34. Current coins.—Property in current coins passes by mere delivery. A sum of money alleged to be a part of the proceed of cheating and paid by the accused to his creditors in satisfaction of a lawful debt cannot be made the subject of an order under S 517 Cr. P. C. 1 P. R. 1915 [See 7 M. H. 233 3 C. 379; 83 P. L. 1890; Ex parte Woolerhampton (1881) Q. B. D. 32; (36) See Foster v Green 6 H. and N. 793; Goodman & Haney 4 Ad. and E. 879.

(8) Power of Appellate Court.

35. Power of appellate Court.—The appellate Court is competent to pass an order for the disposal of the stolen property under S. 517.—35 A. 374

(9) What amounts to being subject of offence.

36. What amounts to being used for the commission of an offence.—In 9 M. 448, Brandt J was of opinion that property used for fabricating false evidence might be disposed of by the Court. In 1 Weir 534 Collins C. J. and Muthusami Aiyar J. directed the confiscation and forfeiture of money used by the accused in the case to bribe a public servant [See also 2 Weir 665. 2 Weir 685 (F. N.)]. In 19 M. J. 254 White C. J. and Miller J. held that a bottle of brandy which was to have been smuggled by the accused who was convicted under sections 55(a) and 58 of the Madras Abkari Act could not be forfeited under S. 517 Cr. P. C. In S. C. N. 887, Pratt and Handley JJ. held that a boat in which the accused escaped after committing an offence could not be confiscated but luths and other instruments used for committing the offence could be dealt with under S. 517 Cr. P. C. In 9 C. N. 597 the accused was convicted for giving false information regarding theft of ornaments which were found upon search in his own house. Henderson and Gird J. held that no order for forfeiture of the jewels could be passed under S. 517 Cr. P. C. In 31 C. 986, the direct question was whether a printing press used for the printing of seditious matter could be dealt with under S 517 and the actual decision which proceeded on the ground that as an offence was one of publication of seditious matter, the press could not be said to have been used in the commission of the offence. * * On principle, the view taken by this Court in 1 Weir 534 and 8 M. 418 and by the Calcutta High Court in 8 C. N. 857 appears to be sounder than the contrary view in the other case referred to above. Per Benson and Sundara Ayyar JJ. in 24 M. J. 1 For typical cases—See Rat 685; 9 P. L. 1904; 4 P. L. 1904; 37 P. W. 1907 5 N. 59

(10) History of Legislation.

37. History of the Legislation on the subject of disposal of stolen property.—An examination of the history of the legislation on the subject will show that the power of the Court to order the disposal of stolen property is a power which has been gradually enlarged.

and production of such property as he thinks proper and there was no provision giving him a general power of disposal of the property. The decision of the Courts on this question has not been uniform. In 2 Weir 665 it was held that under S. 418 Cr. P. C. of 1872, a Magistrate who convicted a public servant of receiving an illegal gratification under S 161 I. P. C., had no power to direct the forfeiture of a sum of Rs 20 which was given as a bribe. But S 418 of the Code of 1872 has been enlarged in S 517 by the addition of the words "or which has been used for the commission of any offence" and the case is, therefore, not an authority under the present Code—Per Benson and Ayyar J. J. in 24 M. J. 1.

(11) Magistrate cannot require security to produce whenever required.

38. Where a Magistrate thinks that a criminal offence has been committed in respect of certain articles, he has power to proceed under S. 94 Cr. P. C. and S 96 of the same Code. There is no section of the Code enabling him to demand security from the person in possession of the articles, for their production when required.—7 C. N. 522 See 19 M. J. 516

II. ORDERS.

(1) Orders not within the Scope of the Chapter.

39. (a) removal of a building in respect of which an offence has been committed—(100) A. N. 81
40. (b) order directing the property to be sold and the proceeds to be credited to the Government—9 C. N. 597
41. (c) order directing the forfeiture of property "which has been used for commission of any offence"—34 C. 986
42. (d) order directing the forfeiture of a press upon conviction of the accused under S 124 P. C. [Ibid.]
43. (e) order, allowing one of the parties to a proceeding under S 145 Cr. P. C. (which has been cancelled) to reap the crops to the exclusion of the other—3 C. J. 573.
44. (f) order for destruction of obscene books surrendered by a person convicted for their sale and distribution—8 A. 837
45. (g) ordering the property to be detained until the title of the rightful owner was proved, before a Civil Court—22 B. 814
46. (h) ordering the property to be delivered to the complainant from whose possession it had not been taken—Ibid.
47. (i) order directing that a particular firm should not honour a hundi drawn on it, on suspicion that the parties to the hundi, had been guilty of some offence—1 A. J. 607
48. (j) order to the effect that the accused (who was charged with theft and discharged) be given a part of the property on furnishing security of Rs 100—Cr. R. 244-84

40. (k) An order under S 517 Cr. P. C. directing the party to whom property is delivered to produce it when called upon to do so—19 M. J. 516

50. (l) S 418 (=S 517) does not place the property at the disposal of the Magistrate in the sense of enabling him to bestow it in charity. He is to make such legal disposition thereof as seems right, i.e., to direct its restoration to some one to whom it seems to belong, or permit it to continue in the possession in which it is found or otherwise.—(75) 2 Weir 666

51. (m) A Magistrate cannot under S 517 Cr. P. C. make an order regarding the custody of minor children in as much as children are not property—1 Weir 348

52. (n) A Magistrate cannot in a proceeding under S. 145 Cr. P. C., order boundary marks to be laid down in respect of the disputed lands, as the property cannot be said to be either in the custody of the Court or one in respect of which an offence has been committed within the meaning of S 517 Cr. P. C.—27 A. 300

53. (o) where the accused was convicted of rash driving, the Magistrate cannot pass an order directing the sale of the pony, harness and carriage and order the sale proceeds to be paid to the complainant as compensation—4 P. L. 1904.

(2) Orders within the scope of the Chapter XLIII.

54. Delivery of stolen property on joint daughter and mother—held—the Court had jurisdiction under S. 517 Cr. P. C. to order delivery on their joint receipt. It could make an order in favour of either the daughter or the mother or in favour of both—34 M. 94.

55. Disposal of property without recording any evidence.—An order by a Magistrate for the return of certain stolen property to the complainant without taking any evidence in the case is legal under S. 523.—Rat 305
56. Property stolen in British but seized in Foreign territory.—A Magistrate is competent to pass orders regarding property stolen in British territory notwithstanding that it may be seized in foreign territory and brought into British territory by the police.—20 P. R. 157

57. Money realised by Police from person to whom the same has been lent.—A order of a Magistrate directing that the money obtained by the Police from the persons to whom the same has been lent by the thief, should be paid to the complainant is authorised by S. 517—2 Wei 440.

III. CONDITION PRECEDENT TO ACTION UNDER Ss. 517 AND 522.

58. Commission of offence.—

- (1) Magistrate has authority to make an order for disposal of property only when the record shows that an offence has been committed in regard to it—24 C. 499 39 C. 690 46 P. R. 1888 Rat 981 16 Cr. 811 (M); Contra 31 C. 347
- (2) When there is no proof of the commission of an offence, orders under Chapter XLIII, cannot be passed. The Magistrate cannot direct that certain produce should be delivered to the parties thereto—5 M. II XXI But See 2 A. 276 9 M. 448.

Note.—The section has no application merely because the property was found in the possession of a habitual thief who has been bound down for good behaviour under S. 110 Cr. P. C.—16 Cr. 811 (M)

59. Where an order directing delivery of property is made by a Magistrate without any criminal proceeding but merely on the application of the person in whose favour such order is made, such an order is entirely without jurisdiction. S. 517 Cr. P. C. cannot apply to the case—40 C. J. 70 5 C. J. 229

60. The property must have come into the hands of the Magistrate.—W. R. (Sp) 19 W. R. 3
61. Condition precedent to an order under S. 522.—In order to justify an order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. the Court must find, first that the offence of which the accused is convicted was attended with criminal force as defined in S. 31 I. P. C. and secondly that a person has been dispossessed of immovable property by the use of such force [25 A. 341 12 P. R. 1906] The words "an offence attended by criminal force" means an offence in which criminal force forms an ingredient.—[25 C. 434 27 C. 174 5 C. J. 250 Con 11 C. N. 467 26 M. 49 (50) 21 C. 110 (M)]

IV. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

(1) General Notes.

62. Scope of the enquiry under S. 523 Cr. P. C.

- (1) Magistrate acting under S. 523, may in the enquiry, proceed on such evidence as is available and make an order for handing over the property to the person he thinks entitled—9 B. 181.
- (2) Magistrate bound to hold independent enquiry and to come to a finding as to who is entitled to the possession of the property.—17 B. 748.
- (3) But he is not bound to hold an enquiry simply for the purpose of deciding the ownership of the property.—29 M. 375.

63. Procedure where case falls through owing to the death of the accused.—The accused was charged with criminal breach of trust in respect of certain jewels but died before the commencement of the trial. The complainants thereupon applied for the restoration of the jewels. The Magistrate held that Ss 517 and 523 did not apply and ordered the return of the property to its original custody—held—that the Magistrate's order was right—29 M. 375.

64. Stage of the case at which an order can be passed.—An order under S. 517 Cr. P. C. dis person in whose favour such order is made, such an order is entirely without jurisdiction. S. 517 Cr. P. C. cannot apply to the case—40 C. J. 70 5 C. J. 229

65. No notice necessary.—The accused is not in law entitled to any notice before an order made under S. 523 Cr. P. C.—14 Cr. 172 (C).
66. When the accused is acquitted an claim the subject matter of the charge it cannot be delivered to the complainant (even if it is found that it belonged to the latter) as must be delivered to the accused person in whose possession it was found. 9 C. N. 549 5 W. R. 55 But See 7 M. T. 179 2 A. 276 9 M. 448 14 C. P. 60
67. Time of passing an order under S. 523 Cr. P. C.—It is not essential in law that an order restoring possession should find a place in the actual judgment. It must be immediate that is directly arising out of the Court convicting the case and without any fresh materials having in the meantime been produced—14 Cr. 172 (C)
68. Fresh enquiry not necessary before making order under S. 517 Cr. P. C.—"The Magistrate had before him the evidence given for the prosecution in the inquiry, and there is nothing in the Code which requires that the passing of the summary order under S 517, [which order ought to be made at the time of passing of the judgment in the criminal case itself—19 W R 3] should follow a fresh enquiry after giving opportunity to the party to produce new or further evidence—18 Cr 469(M.).

69. Order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. need not be made in a case where the accused has been convicted in the criminal case and not as a separate proceeding. Where there was a delay of 20 months before the order was passed, but the delay was fully explained, the order under S 522 Cr P C was held to be perfectly legal—15 P R 1914 14 Cr 172(C) 16 A J 489 23 B 494 Con 4 C N 309

70. Where the ownership is uncertain.—Where a case of theft is dismissed on the ground that the ownership of the property is uncertain, the Court should direct that the property be sold and the proceeds be retained by the Court, until they are shown to be payable to one or the other of the parties, either in virtue of a decree of Court, or in virtue of an agreement amongst themselves 16 B R 951

[Note.—Where currency notes etc. were seized in the course of a Police raid on a gambling booth, Held, that if they cannot be traced to their owners, they might be treated as property, the owner of which was unknown.—10 Cr 254 (M)]

71. Loss resulting from the fraud of a third party.—When a question arises between two persons as to who shall bear the loss resulting from the fraud of a third person, the one, who has been guilty of negligence which enabled the fraud to be perpetrated, should suffer.—27 A 630

(2) Stay and annulment of order.
(S. 520.)

72. An illegal order made under S. 517 Cr. P. C., is to be set aside under S. 520 Cr. P. C.—3 C J 373 18 C N 859 (98) A N 40

73. Condition precedent to jurisdiction.—The order of a Magistrate merely directing that a certain property should be handed over to an

74. A Court of Appeal within the meaning of S. 520 Cr. P. C., is the Court to which an appeal lies in the particular case and not the Court to which appeals would ordinarily lie from the Court deciding the particular case—42 B 604

74A. The words "Court of appeal" in S. 520 Cr. P. C.—merely imply the court to which appeal would ordinarily lie and do not mean that an appeal must lie in the particular case in which an order has been passed as to the property.—196 P. L. 1911.

75. Appeal under S. 520, is an appeal in the full sense of the term and must be governed by the rules regulating appeal, generally—(81) A. N. 150

76. The Superior Court under S. 520—may be what is also the appellate Court, but this is not indispensable 17 C P. 107

77. Where the order is annulled, the property which the order was passed.—3 M. 444 See 3 C 379

Note per contra.—Where the accused has been acquitted, the Sessions Judge is neither the Court of Appeal nor the Court of Revision with respect to the case and has therefore no power to make an order under S. 520 Cr P C. in such a case—12 B 664. 35 B. 253

78. Object of enlarging the scope of S. 520.—The intention of the legislature in adding to S 520 Cr P. C. was obviously to enable a superior Court to give effect to an order setting aside the order of the lower court, if that order has been carried out by directing restitution of the property—5 S 153. 1 S. 463.

79. Application to lower appellate Court.—under S. 520 must precede an application to the High Court for the exercise of its revisional powers—2 A 276

80. Modification of order passed by lower Court on acquittal on revision.—Certain properties were found in the petitioner's house which the complainant alleged had been stolen from his house. The petitioner was convicted on 11th March and the Sessions Judge upheld the conviction in appeal on the 21st April. On the 29th April, the trying Magistrate passed an order to the effect that the properties then in the custody of the Court, should be made over to the complainant. Subsequently the High Court set aside the conviction and acquitted the applicant on revision. Held that, after the accused had been acquitted of the offence of theft or burglary, the proper order to make is, to direct that the property found in the possession of the accused should be restored to him.—18 C N. 859

81. District Magistrate.—A District Magistrate is a Court of Revision as regards all Magistrates in his District, and, as such, has full powers to act under S 520 regarding orders of Subordinate Magistrates under S 517—2 Weir 673

82. Mode of restitution.—Where a remedy is allowed by law, it must be assumed that the Legislature intends that the tribunal invested with jurisdiction shall enforce its order in the manner it considers most suitable, even though there is no express provision for doing the same.—19 Cr. 995 (Pat)

83. Where notice is necessary.—Although S. 520 Cr P. C. does not prescribe the issue of notice to any person before an order under that section is passed, yet it is a general principle of law that an order duly passed by a competent authority in favour of any person should not be set aside without that person being heard—20 Cr. 823 (N); See 35 B. 253

84. The words "and make any further orders that may be just" in S. 520 Cr. P. O enable the appellate Court to restore the property wrongly delivered to the complainant.
14 C P. 60. 18 A. N. 40.

85. Order not falling under S. 517 Cr. P. C. is not appealable.—An order directing the restoration of property in respect of which no offence has been found to have been committed to the person in whose possession the property was found is an order passed under S. 517 Cr. P. O and is therefore not appealable.
30 C 690

86. Effect of reversal of lower court's order.—When an order restoring possession has been set aside by a superior court, the lower court is empowered to take steps to recover the property and restore it to the previous possessor.—5 P. R. 1893

87. When no order has been passed under S. 517 (=132 A) the appellate Magistrate has no powers of revision under S. 132 B (S. 520)

(70) 5 M. II xxxi.

88. Order passed before the expiry of time of appeal.—In a case in which the property is wrongly delivered to the complainant before the expiry of the time allowed for appeal, the Magistrate may recover it from the complainant, if need be, by a civil suit.—19 A. 112.

89. Where District Magistrate differs in opinion from the subordinate Magistrate who has made an order under S. 517, he should direct the order to be stayed under S. 520. He cannot treat the property as subject to an order under S. 523 Cr. P. O and set it aside. 8 B 575

90. When the appellate Court (Session Judge) has left untouched the Lower Court's (Magistrate's) order under S. 517—the District Magistrate had no jurisdiction to interfere under S. 520 Cr. P. C.—32 B. 235.

91. Power of High Court to interfere with orders under S. 520 Cr. P. C.—Where a subordinate Court makes an order under S. 520 Cr. P. O directing the disposal of any property regarding which an offence has been committed, the High Court can interfere in revision with that order and make any further orders that may be just—(95) A. N. 40. 27 A. 630

[Note.—But the High Court can interfere only as a Court of last resort—(97) C. P. 47; (04) C. P. 17; 35 B. 253]

92. Power of the High Court.—

(1) The High Court has ample powers under S. 520 Cr. P. C. to pass any order which may be just on the facts of the case with regard to the disposal of property.—16 Cr. 813 (M.)

- (2) An order under S. 517 may be amended by the High Court under cl (4) of S. 423 Cr. P. C.—18 C. N. 859

- (3) Sec. 520 of the Cr. P. C. 1895 differs from the corresponding provision of the Code of 1882 and contemplates that the court of reference or revision shall order restitution if justice so requires.—19 Cr. 995 (Pat)

93. The object of the section.—The object of S. 522 Cr. P. C. is to enable the Court, by a summary order, to restore the state of things which existed at the time of the dispossession by the convicted person or persons.—5 C. N. 374

[Note.—In 23 B. 491, it has been held that the section gives the Magistrate power to order the complainant to be restored to possession and that the section evidently contemplates in the case of a person in possession (the complainant) being dispossessed by force by another person (the accused) and the latter being in possession at the date of conviction]

94. Jurisdiction of Criminal Courts.—The criminal courts cannot go behind the state of affairs at the time of the forcible ejection which led to the prosecution.—5 C. N. 374.

(3) Restoration of immovable property (S. 522.)

95. As to restoration of immovable property of which any person has been dispossessed by criminal force.—See S. 522 Cr. P. C.

96. The words "offence attended by Criminal force"—in S. 522 Cr. P. C. mean an offence of which criminal force forms an ingredient. The words "by such force" mean the actual use of it and not merely the show of criminal force.—25 C. 434. 5 C. N. 250. 432 289 23 B. 494 Contra—26 M. 49. 31 C. 691 (F. B.) Doubtful—11 C. N. 467.

97. The word "criminal force" in S. 522, is the same as defined in S. 350 P. C.—25 C 434 5 C N 250 25 A. 341.

98. When an order under S. 522 is justified.

(1) In order to justify an order under S. 522, the court must find—(i) that the offence of which the accused is convicted was attended with criminal force as defined in S. 350 P. C. and

3 L B. 20 See also: 2 Weir 674. 1 C N. cclvii. 2 C N. clxxvi. 4 C. N. 57.

- (2) The foundation of the order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. should be the finding of the court [23 W. R. 54 14 Cr. 172 (C.)] When there is no finding that the complainant has been dispossessed of any immovable property, an order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. cannot be made [18 C. N. 390]

99. Cases in which orders under S. 522 Cr. P. C. cannot be passed.
- (a) On conviction for being members of an unlawful assembly (S. 143 P. O.)—25 O 431.
 - (b) On conviction for criminal trespass.—12 P. R. 1906; 26 M. 49.
100. Proper time for passing orders under S. 522 Cr. P. C.—An order, under S. 522 can only be made simultaneously with the order of conviction and not subsequent thereto—4 O N 308; Contra 23 B. 491.
101. Restoration of property on order under S. 517 may be set aside.—Where, the Magistrate's order directing the Police to deliver an immovable property, was set aside by the High Court, the Magistrate had jurisdiction, on an application being made, to restore through the Police, the possession of the property in question to the party ousted under the order so set aside.—18 O N 1146.
102. The anomaly due to a narrow interpretation put upon the section in the leading case of Ram Chandra v Jivandara (25 C. 434)—It has been held so far back as in Mohunt Lachmi Das, 23 W. R. 54 that the foundation of an order under S. 534 (corresponding to present section 522) should be the finding of the court to the effect that the person in whose favour the order is made has been dispossessed of a specific property by use of criminal force which forms the material ingredient in the matter of criminal conviction. The leading case of Ram Chandra 25 C 434 reiterated that principle * * * It may be mentioned here that the inequity of such an interpretation of the section and perhaps of the expression used by the Legislature has been felt by more Judges than one, notably in the case of Chhakoo, 11 O N 467, where the anomaly has been fully dealt with. The words in the section put a peaceful man who yields to the threats and show of force and gives up possession of property to a great disadvantage and hardship. The Full Bench case of Mohim 31 C 691 (F. B.) felt that the construction put upon the section is too narrow.—Per Juala Prasad J. in 4 Pat W 329
- [Note.—In 3 U B 111 Saunders J C held that the provisions of S. 522 Cr. P. O are applicable to a case where the complainant, is forcibly dispossessed from land, although no criminal force is used in the sense that no assault is committed, and the complainant is not bodily removed from the land]
- 102A. Contents of the order.—The order under S. 522 must in terms restore the possession of the property to the person who has forcibly dispossessed of the same.—23 W R. 54 23 B 494
- (4) Procedure under S. 523 Cr. P. C.
103. The discretion under the Section must be judicially exercised.—The discretion given by the words "such order as he thinks fit respecting the disposal of such property" in S. 523 Cr. P. C must be judicially exercised.—8 S. 141.
104. Object of S. 523.—It was not intended by S. 523 Cr. P. C to take any final steps only upon the expiry of the six months from the date of the proclamation prescribed by subs (2) can the provisions of S 524 Cr. P. O. come in—See 22 C. 761.
105. The discretion given by the words "such orders as he thinks fit respecting the disposal of such property" in S 523 Cr. P. C. must be judicially exercised and where there is nothing to show the right to the property produced, it should be ordered to be delivered to the person in whose possession it had been at the time of attachment—5 B. R 25.
106. Order before adjudication.—A Magistrate can, in order to avoid the risk of severe loss, make an order under S 523 before formal adjudication, especially when the case has broken down by reason of non-prosecution and when both the parties press the Magistrate for such an order—5 C N 415.
107. Opportunity to show cause must be given.
- (1) Before making an order under S 523, a Magistrate must hold an investigation touching the rights not of property but of possession thereof. No order should be passed without giving a person full opportunity of showing cause why the property should not be delivered to the other claimant instead of being redelivered to him—9 Bur 61
 - (2) Where the petitioner was charged with theft of money and acquitted, and the Magistrate thereupon issued a proclamation for claimants to come in and claim the property but no one came forward and the accused asked the Magistrate to summon certain witnesses in support of his claim, held that the Magistrate was bound to summon the witnesses named by the accused and acted wrongly in refusing to do so—18 W R 5 2 A 276
108. Procedure under S 523 cl (2).—See 523(2) Cr P O does not require a Magistrate to make any inquiry at all. He proceeds on such materials as are available before him and has to decide the question not who was in possession at the time the property was seized by the police but who was entitled to possession—12 Cr. 108 (S) But See 17 B 748.
109. Magistrate need not enquire how the third party came to be in possession.—Where certain property was recovered from the house of a person charged with theft but the complainant disclaimed it and no specific charge was preferred against such person, a Magistrate acts wrongly in entering upon an enquiry of an immaterial nature as to how a third party came to be in possession of the property as to how he came by the property does not satisfy the Magistrate, will not justify an order under Ss. 523 and 524 Cr P O—17 B R 79
110. Scope of the enquiry.—S 523 says that a Magistrate may order its delivery, if he thinks fit, to the person entitled thereto. The Magistrate does not decide the question of title but merely decides the question of possession. The fact that the accused had been in possession of the property when the charge was made is not conclusive. The question is who is entitled to possession—12 B R 232 9 Bar 61; Sec 4 L R 14

111. In case of doubt as to the person legally entitled to the property in question, the Magistrate should proceed under S 523 Cr P C.

Cr R 62 of '89

112. Variation of the order.—When a Magistrate has once passed an order under S 523 Cr P C it is not open to him subsequently to vary the order so made—4 B R 12

113. Scope of the Secs. 523 and 524 Cr. P. C.—Ss 416-17 (1872)

The two sections contemplate proceedings preliminary to a trial.

The Criminal Court, that Court is bound to restore the property in dispute into the possession of the person from whom it was taken unless as provided for by S 418—(S 517) such court is of opinion that "any offence appears to have been committed regarding it when such order appears right for the disposal of the property may be made"—1 B 630, 14 C 834.

114. The discretion given by S. 523.—Clause 1 of S 523 gives Magistrate a power either to deliver the property to a person entitled to its possession or to pass such order as he deems fit respecting its disposal. If he adopts the first alternative, he has to find out the person entitled to possession, and if no one succeeds in establishing his title to possession, the property should be at the disposal of Government. If he adopts the second alternative, the section does not specifically state what the nature of the order regarding the disposal of the property should be. If an order that the property should be at the disposal of the Government would be proper in the circumstances of the case, there is nothing in the section which prevents him from passing such an order. Whether such an order would be proper or not must be decided by the general principles of law and the light derived from other sections of the Criminal Procedure Code—21 M J 1.

115. Magistrate bound to investigate claims of third parties.—Where a third party appears before a Magistrate and alleges that the things seized by the police under a search warrant are his property and are not the subject of the alleged offence, the Magistrate is bound to hear him and if necessary, to restore the property to him. There is a power inherent, apart from S. 523, in every court, to satisfy himself that the things produced before it under a search warrant, are the things which, it is necessary or desirable, should be kept in custody—26 B. 552 [The ruling in 17 B. 718 laying down that in such a case S. 517 only would apply was disented from.]

Distinction between S. 517 and 523 Cr. P. C.

116. Where no offence has been committed—

(1) When no offence has been committed regarding the money produced in a case,—held that the Magistrate rightly refrained from making an order under S 517 but that if necessary, proceedings might be taken under S 521—Rat 536

117. Action on mere suspicion—

(2) A Magistrate acting under S. 517 cannot on mere suspicion that an offence has been committed with respect to the property produced in the course of a criminal trial, order its forfeiture. He can only do so after a separate judicial enquiry in which the complainant has a opportunity to explain all the circumstances. There be any doubt as to the person or persons legally entitled to the property, the Magistrate should proceed under S. 523—Rat 492; 24 M J 14 Cr 27

118. Powers under S. 523.—Sec 523 enables the Magistrate to enquire into the ownership of the property seized by the police and deliver it to the person entitled to, instead of to the person from whom it was taken—S B 333; See Rat 365. See however 22 B 844; 14 C 1, 60

(5) Reference under S. 518, Cr. P. C.

119. Condition precedent.—It is only in respect of property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed or which has been used for the commission of an offence, that an order of reference can be made under S 518 Cr P C—Rat 496

(6) Procedure when the owner cannot be found (S. 524.)

120. Scope of S. 524.—In Sec. 524 Cr P. C. the words "at the disposal of Government" may reasonably be interpreted as meaning that Government shall be free to sell the property or to hold it as a trustee for the true owner. The Statute does not profess to bar the ordinary legal remedies, and there is no reason for reading into it something which is not there. I think the title of the plaintiffs is still alive—Mallik J in 21 Cr. 475 (Pat). 9 B 131; 40 B 200 4 L B 13 See 2 Weir 668

[Note the ruling in 19 B 668—8 W. R. 207 9 W. R. 13 were distinguished in 21 Cr. 475 (Pat)]

121. When S. 524 applies.—It is not intended that any final steps should be taken by the only when those six months have expired that the provisions of S 524 come in and the person in whose possession it was found, can come forward and show that it is his own—22 C 761 [Dist in 3 L R 197.]

[Note.—When the person legally entitled is known, the Magistrate need not wait for six months—3 L R 197] held, the Magistrate was bound to summon the witnesses named by the petitioner—18 W R 5

123. Procedure.—The procedure prescribed by this and the preceding section must be followed before making an order to confiscate the property
9 W R 13

124. What is an unsustainable claim.—No claim as regards property seized by the police under this section can be sustained on the ground that the claimant was the owner of the soil in which the property was found—18 B 668.

125. Presumption should be in favour of the possessor.—When, in spite of a proclamation being made regarding the suspected property over six months ago, no one comes forward to claim it, and there is nothing to show the title to the property produced, it should be ordered to be delivered to the person in whose possession it had been at the time of the attachment. 8 S 141.

126. Meaning of the words "is unable etc."—The words "is unable to show that it was legally acquired by him" in S 524 Cr. P. C. must be read consistently with the ordinary Law of Evidence and not as intended to supersede anything in that law—8 S. 141 [5 B. R. 25 R].

127. Disposal of property which, though not claimed by complainant or proved to be stolen, is not properly accounted for by the accused.—Although under S 523 or S. 524 Cr. P. C., a Magistrate may direct that the property seized by the police, and which though not claimed by the complainant, or proved to be stolen is not satisfactorily accounted for by the accused, be placed at the disposal of the Government, after following the procedure in S 523 Cr. P. C. the mere fact that the accused gave an account of how he had acquired the property, which did not satisfy the Magistrate, would not justify such an order.—17 B R 79

V. WHEN THE ACCUSED IS ACQUITTED OR DISCHARGED.

128. When the accused is acquitted—and some property, the subject matter of the charge found in the possession of the accused was brought before the court—held—the proper order to be made is one under S 517 Cr P C and the property should be returned from whose possession it came—1 C N. 561 14 C P 60

1:0. Effect of discharge by a court of appeal.—

(1) When the Sessions Judge sets aside a conviction under S 411 and acquits the accused, he may order under S 520 the restoration of the property (caused by the Magistrate acting under S 517 to be delivered to the complainant) to the accused—(95) A N 40

(2) Where on a charge of theft of certain currency notes the accused was convicted and the notes were handed over to the complainant but on person who is charged with dacoity, but the accused is found not guilty of the offence charged, the proper order regarding it is one to return it to the party from whose possession it has been produced [1 C N 561 See 16 M. J. (S N) 24] When the court acquits the accused, the property taken out of their possession ought to be restored to them in the absence of a finding that the same belongs to somebody else [3 M. T. 334] Where the accused has been discharged under S 253, Cr P C no offence is proved against him, the property therefore should be restored to the accused from whom it was taken [2 Weir 665 and 666 See also 2 Weir 538 and 669] It would be of considerable interest to note that it was the only order permissible under the old codes, the court not being empowered to deal with the property unless it was the subject of an offence [See 1 B 630 10 B. 197. 17 B 748 22 B 544 5 W R 55 14 C 834 24 C 499 (96) A N 56 (93 '00) L B 20 46 P R 1881 Rat 500 981 (on 8 B 335 2 A. 276 9 M 448 (93) A N 61] The ruling in 30 C 690, proceeds upon a narrower interpretation of S 517, than the express terms of the section justifies Where however the property is not claimed by the accused, it cannot be restored to him even if he is acquitted [37 P. W 1913] It should be noted however that under the Code of 1898, a Magistrate is fully competent to refuse, if he thinks proper to do so, to refuse to restore the property to the accused [16 M J (8h N) 4 7 M T 179] Even where the charge of theft is dismissed and the accused discharged, an order for delivery of property to a party other than the party from whose possession it was taken can be made under this section [34 M 94 See Mad Cr Rev case 477 of 1903] In 29 P R 1573 it was held that property suspected of being stolen can be confiscated under S 517, though the accused may be discharged

A N 26.

130. Property should, in case of acquittal, be ordinarily restored to the person from whose custody it was taken.—Where the accused has been acquitted of the offence of theft, the proper order is to direct that the property found in his possession should be restored to him [18 C N 459] When a Magistrate finds that no act of extortion has been committed, he should make no order for the disposal of the property produced before the court, other than one giving it back into the possession from which it came [14 C P. 60 (61)] Where property is produced from the possession of a

But this ruling is of doubtful authority. In Rat 492 it was held that S 517 Cr P. C. does not contemplate detention of property by Government. A Magistrate cannot order forfeiture of the complainant's money on the suspicion that it had been used for the purpose of purchasing stolen property; he should return it to the person entitled thereto

VI. APPEALS.

- 131. Change of Law.—(1) Under S 423 cl. (d) of the Cr. P. C. of 1898, an Appellate Court has power to make any consequential or incidental order that may be just or proper. Therefore a Magistrate exercising power has jurisdiction to interfere with an order under S. 522 [29 C. 724 36 C. 44 78 C. 23] An accused person may upon his acquittal by the appellate court be restored to the possession of a property of which he has been deprived in favour of the complainant [27 A 415; 3 A J 770. (06) A N 256 See 17 B. R. 922] Under S 423 (d) Cr P. C. which authorises the Appellate Court to make any incidental order, it can set aside an order under S 522 Cr P. C. [19 C. N. 990]

Note.—The case reported in 25 C. 630 to the contrary, was made under Act X of 1882, and is now obsolete 29 C 724 27 A. 415.

- 132. Note per contra.—In confirming a conviction passed by a subordinate Magistrate the District Magistrate cannot pass an order for delivery of possession under S 522 Cr. P. C. when no such order was passed by the trying Magistrate.—39 C. 1050 [The soundness of this ruling was doubted in 14 Cr 172 (174) [C] but followed in 14 P. R. 1919]

- 133. Appeal lies to the Sessions Judge.—An appeal lies to the Session Judge from an order of a Magistrate under S 57 Cr P. C. 14 C P 60 9 M 448. See 17 C P. 107

- 134. Power of the Appellate Court.—"It is argued that the only court which could pass orders under this section is the court trying the case * * It seems to me that S 520 gives the Appellate Court full power to pass such an order" Per Ryles J. in 35 A. 574. 9 C. N. 549; Con 22 B 844

[Note.—"Where a Magistrate has made an order under S 520—2 Weir 674

- 135. First class Magistrate specially empowered to hear appeals.—S. 423 of the Code of 1898 provides for the making by an appellate court of any consequential or incidental order that may be just or proper. Therefore, a Magistrate of the first class specially empowered to hear appeals from subordinate Magistrates have jurisdiction under S 423 (d) to hear an appeal and pass orders with reference to an order under S 522.—29 C. 724. But See M. H. C Cr Rev 525 of 1905 and 84 of 1908.

- 136. Appellate Court cannot interfere with lower courts' order restoring possession without reversing the judgment.—When the property has been restored to the accused on their acquittal, the Appellate Court, when it does not set aside the order of acquittal has no authority to revise the order for its restoration. It could stay the execution of the order by the lower court under S 520, but could not treat property already restored as subject to an order under S 523, infra—8 B 573 [decision under the Code of 1882].

- 137. Acquittal by appellate Court.—High Court's power to revise—An order of a Sessions Judge acquitting a person convicted of theft and ordering restoration of property delivered by the lower Court to the complainant, is an order under S 520 of the Code and not under S. 517. The remedy against orders of the appellate court is by a petition of revision and not by way of appeal (98) A. N. 40 See 27 A. 630.

- 138. Appellate Court cannot treat property claimed by the complainant as unclaimed property.—Where on the conviction of the accused for the theft of certain currency notes the Magistrate handed over the notes to the complainant, but the Appellate Court in the course of appeal, sent for the notes from the Magistrate to whom they were voluntarily handed over, and after acquitting the accused, returned the notes as 'unclaimed' property—held—that the Appellate Court in the circumstances, should have returned the notes to the complainant—(97) A. N. 26

- 140. The words "any proceeding" in S. 435 are wide enough to empower the High Court to revise an order made by a Magistrate under S. 517 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 539.

- 141. High Court cannot interfere with finding of fact.—The High Court cannot in revision interfere with the finding of fact by the District Magistrate, as to the person from whose custody the property was taken.—2 Weir 673.

- 142. High Court declined to interfere with an order for delivery of property under S. 517 Cr P. C. although the order was based on a confession by the accused to a police officer concerning its ownership. Such a confession would be admissible under S. 18 of the Evidence Act—9 B. 131

143. Power to interfere with the order of a subordinate Court under S. 520 Cr. P. C.—See IV (2) Stay and annulment of order.

Remedy against an appellate court's order under S. 520 is by a petition for revision and not by way of appeal—(98) A N 40 See 27 A 630.

144. Power of High Court to pass order under S. 517 Cr. P. C.—When the applicant under false pretences obtained delivery of Rs. 5000 from the Indian Magistrate's Office the Chief Court on the case coming before it in revision, held, that the Court had power under S. 517 Cr. P. C. to pass order as to the disposal of the money, (2) the club was directed to apply to the Magistrate who was directed to proceed to recover from the accused in the manner provided for the recovery of fines, and on recovery to pay the money to the Club—15 Cr. 553 (L B)

145. An order under S. 517 Cr. P. C. is open to revision by the High Court under

S. 430 Cr. P. C.—[1 P. R. 1915]. Although orders under S. 517 Cr. P. C. are discretionary, the discretion is open to correction, where it has been exercised in violation of accepted judicial principles [17 B R. 962]

146. High Court ought not to revise order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. without notice to the complainant.—An order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. ought not to be declared as of no effect without hearing what the complainant who is the party most interested in the maintenance of the order, has to urge in support of it—23 C. N. 862

147. Revision of order under S. 520 Cr. P. C. Where a subordinate court makes an order under S. 520 directing the disposal of any property regarding which an offence has been committed, the High Court can interfere in revision against such order, make any further orders that may be just.—27 A 630.

148. Orders under Ss. 518 and 519.—The High Court cannot interfere with orders passed under Ss. 517, 518 or 519 in the exercise of its powers under S. 520 except as a court of last resort.—17 C P. 107

VIII. POSITION OF INNOCENT PURCHASER OF STOLEN PROPERTY [S. 519].

149. Application of S. 519 Cr. P. C.—It is not competent to a Court to award compensation to innocent purchasers to whom the property stolen had passed out of the fine imposed, but under S. 519, compensation can be awarded out of the moneys found in the possession of the accused.

3 B R 704

150. Application of S. 519.—S. 519 does not confer the power of restoring the stolen property to the innocent purchaser (e.g.,—bullocks) The only power conferred by the section is to award the whole or a portion of such money as has been found in the possession of the thief at the time of his arrest [The stolen property must be restored to the true owner]—(86) A N 291

151. Stolen currency notes.—Where a stolen currency note has been delivered to a bona fide holder for value, the Court will not, on conviction for theft, restore the note to the person from whom it was stolen. It will be delivered to the bona fide holder for value in as much as it honestly came into his hands—3 C 379 18 P R 1905

152. Badshahi Coin.—A badshahi coin not being a current coin of the realm, the property in it does not pass by mere delivery. The principle laid down in 3 C 379=1 C L 339 (above) does not therefore apply—25 B 702

153. Money stolen from Govt. Treasury.—Where a person received money in current coins (stolen from Govt. Treasury) in payment of a lawful debt due to him, held the court cannot direct him to hand over the money to Govt. under S. 517 Cr. P. C.—83 P R 1890

154. Disposal of calf born after the cow was stolen.—A cow stolen from X, was sold by the thief, to Y, who transferred it for value to Z. While in the custody of Z, for about a year a calf was born—Held that no order can be legally made upon Z, to deliver the calf.—10 M 25.

155. Rule in India is different from that in England.—The rule of English law protecting bona fide purchasers for value in market overt does not apply in India, and on conviction of the accused, the property with respect to which the theft was committed should be delivered to the original owner and not the bona fide purchaser. [20 W R 38 2 P. R. 1908 See 9 C N 507 : 4 L B 13 3 Bur T 111 But See 7 P R 1872 : 8 P R 1872] But where the original owner had parted with the property and made it over to the accused to sell it on his behalf, and the latter commits criminal breach of trust, the bona fide purchaser is protected [4 L B 25=12 C R. 407 (L B)] Where the subject of the theft is in the possession of a bona fide purchaser, it should be left where it is, leaving the complainant to seek his remedy in a civil court [21 P. R. 1878]

156. Compensation to the innocent purchaser.—An order on conviction for theft, that the stolen property should be delivered to the owner, after the innocent purchaser is paid a sum out of the fine imposed on the accused, was held illegal on the ground that no such condition can be imposed on the return of the property to the owner—[3 B R 449. See 9 P. R. 1873] An order for compensation cannot be made in favour of the pledgee of a stolen property, as the theft does not cause any injury to the pledgee or give him a right of action [2 Weir 672] S. 519 only authorises payment to a purchaser of stolen property, who buys in ignorance of theft, of compensation out of money found in possession of the party guilty of theft. Where no money is found in possession of the party convicted, the purchaser cannot be compensated out of the fine imposed upon the accused. [2 Weir 671] Compensation can be paid only out of sale proceeds if any, of property found in the possession of the accused and not out of the fine imposed on him. (under S. 545).—Rat 631.

157. Stolen bangles.—One K. R. was convicted by a Magistrate of dishonest receipt of certain stolen bangles, and the bangles were on the same day ordered to be restored to the owner.

On appeal K. R. was acquitted, the court finding that though the appellant had clearly displayed the most gross want of caution in buying such articles of a comparative stranger, it was not proved that he knew or had reason to believe that the bangles were stolen. The appellant then applied for a restoration of the property to him.

IX. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Suit to set aside the order under S. 524 (1).

158. As S. 524 allows an appeal from an order under S. 524 (1), it is doubtful whether the law contemplates a remedy by suit.—19 B. 668

(2) Remedy of the real owner.

159. He may proceed against the holder of the articles handed over, under S. 523, for damages for conversion.—9 B. 131 96 P. L. 1911

(3) Suit to set aside order under S. 522.

160. Third persons affected by the order have their remedy by a civil suit.—23 B. 494.

(4) Suit to recover money wrongly made over by the Magistrate.

161. A suit brought to recover money said to have been taken by the police as stolen property from a person suspected of having committed an offence and not returned to him after he had been acquitted of the charge, but wrongly made over to another person presumably under S. 517 Cr. P. C., is a suit of the nature cognizable by the Court of Small Causes, and where the amount claimed does not exceed Rs. 500, no second appeal would lie.—9 C. N. 485

(5) Failure to report is an offence under S. 217 I. P. C.

162. The failure to report to the Magistrate either directly by himself or through his Superior Officer under S. 523 Cr. P. C. for the recovery of stolen property, found in the course of search by a police officer, constituted an offence under S. 217 I. P. C.—16 Cr. 543 (M.) See 34 C. 123.

(6) Infructuous order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. no bar to order under S. 145 Cr. P. C.

163. An order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. which was infructuous and was never carried out is no bar to the jurisdiction of the criminal court under S. 145 Cr. P. C.—14 C. N. 1088

(7) Revision by Sessions Judge.

164. If the property is, under S. 517 restored to a wrong person by the Magistrate, the Sessions Judge as a Court of appeal, is the proper person to deal with the application for the reversal of the order.—3 C. 379

(8) Where both the original and appellate Courts have failed to make an order regarding the disposal of the property.

165. Where neither the original court convicting a person of theft nor the appellate Court acquitting him, made an order as to the disposal of the property forming the subject of theft, the High Court as a Court of Revision, could only quash the order but make no order as to the disposal of the property. The party aggrieved should be left to have his remedy by a Civil Suit.—(96) A. N. 56 1 B. 630

(9) Effect of orders under Chapter XLIII.

166. When an order has to be made under S. 523, the Magistrate may in the enquiry, proceed on such evidence as is available and make an order for handing property to the person he thinks entitled. This does not conclude the right of any man. As the real owner may proceed against the holder of the articles for damages as for conversion, the High Court would not interfere. 9 B. 131. Rat 365 Cr. R. 11 of '88. But See 19 B. 668 See Bullock v. Daulop, L. R. 2 Ex. D. 43. Director v. Child L. R. 1 Ex. D. 172.

(10) Limitation of Suits.

167. Under Art. 47 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), a suit to set aside an order under S. 522 Cr. P. C. must be brought within three years from the date on which it is passed.

(11) Analogous Law.

168. By virtue of rule made under the powers conferred by S. 29 (N) of the Abkari Act (I of 1886) the Magistrate who adjudges the confiscation has power to direct that the confiscated article may be sold or destroyed. The rule may reasonably be construed as not only authorising the Magistrate to direct the sale of the article but as also authorizing him to give directions as to the mode of sale.—19 M. J. 234.

CHAPTER XLIV.

OF THE TRANSFER OF CRIMINAL CASES.

High Court may transfer case or itself try it. 526. (1) Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court :—

(a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(c) that a view of the place in or near which any offence has been committed may be required for the satisfactory inquiry into or trial of the same, or

(d) that an order under this section will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses, or

(e) that such an order is expedient for the ends of justice, or is required by any provision of this Code ; it may order—

(i) that any offence be enquired into or tried by any Court not empowered under sections 177 to 184 (both inclusive), but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence ;

(ii) that any particular criminal case or appeal, or class of such cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction ,

(iii) that any particular criminal case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself ; or

(iv) that an accused person be committed for trial to itself or to a Court of Session.

(2) When the High Court withdraws for trial before itself any case from any Court other than the Court of a Presidency Magistrate, it shall, except as provided in section 267, observe in such trial the same procedure which that Court would have observed if the case had not been so withdrawn.

(3) The High Court may act either on the report of the lower Court, or on the application of a party interested, or on its own initiative.

(4) Every application for the exercise of the power conferred by this section shall be made by motion, which shall, except when the applicant is the Advocate General, be supported by affidavit or affirmation

(5) When an accused person makes an application under this section, the High Court may direct him to execute a bond, with or without sureties, conditioned that he will, if convicted, pay the costs of the prosecutor.

(6) Every accused person making any such application shall give to the Public Prosecutor Notice to public Prosecutor of appli- notice in writing of the application, together with a copy of cation under this section. the grounds on which it is made , and no order shall be made on the merits of the application unless at least twenty-four hours have elapsed between the giving of such notice and the hearing of the application.

(7) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to affect any order made under section 197.

(8) If, in any criminal case or appeal, before the commencement of the hearing, the Public Adjournment on application under this section. Prosecutor, the complainant or the accused notifies to the Court before which the case or appeal is pending, his intention to make an application under this section in respect of the case, the Court shall exercise the powers of postponement or adjournment given by section 344 in such a manner as will afford a reasonable time for the application being made and an order being obtained thereon, before the accused is called on for his defence, or in the case of an appeal, before the hearing of the appeal.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 526 of the said Code—

(i) In sub-clauses (u) and (v) of sub-section (1), the word "criminal" before the word "case," and in sub-clause (u) the word "such" before the word "cases," shall be omitted

(ii) After sub-section (6) the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely :—

"(6A). Where any application under this section is rejected or dismissed, the High Court may order that any costs incurred by any person opposing the application shall be paid by the applicant. All costs so directed to be paid shall be recoverable as if they were fines."

(iii) For sub-section (8) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :—

(8) If before the commencement of a day's hearing in any trial or inquiry, or before the commencement of the hearing of any appeal, the Public Prosecutor, the complainant or the accused notifies to the Court before which the case or appeal is pending, his intention to make an application under this section in respect of such case or appeal, the Court shall, before the accused is required to enter upon his defence, or before the appeal is heard, adjourn the case or postpone the appeal for such a period as will afford a reasonable time for the application to be made and an order obtained thereon

Provided that, if in any such case, after the accused has entered on his defence, he desires to apply to the High Court for a transfer of such case on the grounds specified in sub-section (1) (a), he shall be entitled to an immediate adjournment of the hearing upon his entering into a bond, either with or without a surety, conditioned upon his making, within fifteen days thereafter, such application supported by an affidavit by himself or by the pleader appearing on his behalf in which the grounds of such application shall be fully set forth.

Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, a Sessions Judge shall not be required to adjourn a trial under this sub-section if he is of opinion that the complainant or accused, as the case may be, has had a reasonable opportunity of making such an application and has failed without sufficient cause to take advantage of it."

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Object

1. One of the most important duties of a High Court is to create, and maintain confidence in the administration of justice and this can only be done by giving to every citizen an assurance that so far as practicable, he will never be forced to undergo a trial by a Judge or Magistrate whom he has reasonable grounds of suspecting to be prejudiced against him 1. S. 8 - 20 C. 857.
2. [Note.—“The law in laying down this strict rule, has regard not perhaps so much to the motives which might be supposed to bias the Magistrate as to the fact that the Magistrate is a ‘titanic’ paragon of the law, and so to promote the feeling of confidence in the administration of justice which is so essential to social order and security”—Per Lord J in Sergeant v. Dale (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 558, (567)]

(4) Application of the Section.

7. The transfer of a criminal case can only be directed from a Court having jurisdiction to receive and try it 10 B 274, 3 B R 121.

(5) Miscellaneous Proceedings.

8. Transfer of proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P. C.—The Chief Court is not empowered under S. 526 Cr. P. C. to direct the transfer of proceedings under S. 110 Cr. P. C. 5 P. R. 1914 25 B 179 [Fd.] See 30 A 47 (07) A N 269 19 A. 291 16 A 9 in his mind that he is not likely to have a fair and impartial trial in the Court below.—12 A J 736]

[See Chapter XVI Transfer under S. 110 supra (p. 160)]

9. Transfer of proceedings under Chapter XII.—The provisions of S. 526 have no application to proceedings under Chapter XII. of the Code. A party to a proceeding under S. 145 is therefore not entitled to an adjournment of the case under sub (4) of S. 526.—15 C N 393 see 28 C 703 25 B 179 2 C J 614 5 S 215 Con 26 M 184 34 A 533

See Note No. 536 under S. 145 supra (p. 252).

10. Proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—A proceeding under S. 107 Cr. P. C. is subject to the application of Cl. 8 of S. 526 Cr. P. C.—41 C 719 8 S 215 Con 5 P. R. 1914 See Note No. 245 under S. 107 supra [p. 129]
11. Proceedings under S. 195 Cr. P. C.—See Note No. 373 under S. 145 supra [p. 251]
12. Does S. 526 apply to extradition proceedings?—“I am not at present satisfied that this Court would have any jurisdiction to act under S. 526 of the Cr. P. C. having regard to the decision in 38 C. 547, but I do not express

(2) Nature of proceedings under S. 526

3. An application under S. 526 Cr. P. C. by an accused in a case for transfer of the case is a criminal proceeding within S. 5 of Indian Oaths Act—2 Weir 686

(3) Meaning of terms.

4. “Commencement of the hearing”.—meaning.—The words “commencement of the hearing” in S. 526 Cl. (8) means the commencement of the hearing in the Court objected to, or in other words, the Court to which the word “notifies” in the clause refers—8 C N 77-4 Bar T 213 35 M 701: See Notes No. 39 to 41 infra
5. The word “hearing” explained.—For the purposes of S. 526 (8) Cr. P. C. the hearing or trial must be taken to include all proceedings taken to determine a case, and the first step in the hearing at a Session trial, is the reading and explaining of the charge to the accused.—35 M 701
6. (1) The expression “Criminal case” in S. 526, includes a proceeding initiated under S. 145. “An accused person” is one over whom a Criminal Court exercises jurisdiction.—34 A 533
- (2) Meaning of Criminal case.—A criminal case means a ‘prima facie’ criminal case—[See 1 M H (Ap) 21]

[As to effect of false affidavit being sworn by accused. See 28 A. 331]

(3) Who may apply for transfer.

27. (1) The Crown, the accused and the parties conducting certain proceedings of a quasi-civil nature are the only persons who can apply for a transfer. The person who merely set the law in motion by lodging an information with the Police (not being the complainant), has no right to intervene under S 526 Cr P. C as a party interested—4 Pat J 676, See 5 B R 869
28. (2) Relation of the accused.—A person merely by his relationship with the accused does not become competent to apply for a transfer

5 B R 869.

29. (3) The complainant in a Crown Case.—

"Any private person, in the absence of statutory provision to the contrary, can commence a criminal prosecution, but the prosecution is always at the suit of the Crown. Hence it is that criminal proceedings were called pleas of the Crown. The Crown only can stay criminal process or remit a punishment awarded by any Court." [Per Bayley J in Burdett v. Abbot (1811) 12 R R 450 Halsbury's Laws of England Vol IX, p 233. See 13 B 389] Where a private complainant applies for the transfer of a Crown case, and the Crown opposes such application, the opposition itself is sufficient to justify the High Court's refusal of the application [4 Pat J. 656. See Hari Prasad Pandey v. Jagannath Singh Misc Case No 96 of 1916 (C)]

(4) Duty to file applications for transfer without delay.

30. "The impression appears to have got abroad, that the processes and orders of the Mofassil Courts can be ignored if the parties chance to telegraph to their legal advisers either that an order has been passed by this Court or that they are ill. We must protest against the practice which has become common in this Court to file these petitions of transfer on the last day, when parties are given a fortnight or three weeks to move. It is the absolute duty of parties to come to us as soon as possible, and we shall be in future unable to stay proceedings ordinarily, unless sufficient time is given to issue a rule and obtain an explanation."—Per Holmwood and Inam J. J. in 17 C. N. 536 8 C N 77 910 31 C 715 19 M 375
31. Application must be put in at the earliest opportunity.—"All applications for transfer under S 526 Cr P C ought to be put forward at the earliest possible opportunity after the occurrence of whatever facts or circumstances are alleged, as affording reasonable basis for such application. If an accused person with materials in his hands, upon which he feels satisfied that he can at any moment make out a good case for an order of transfer, elects to sit quiet and allows the trial to proceed until the examination of all the prosecution witnesses is concluded and order of transfer was expedient in the interests of justice, the application was refused.—15 Cr. 369 (A) See 12 A. J 33: 26 A 636 ('97) A. N. 17.

(5) Miscellaneous Rules of Practice.

32. Must be dealt with in open Court.—Whenever a transfer is considered expedient, the matter is one which should be dealt with in open Court and upon proper evidence—(91) A. N. 154.
33. S. 350 does not refer to cases in which order is trans- under S. 167 See 12 Contra 35 C.
34. S. 350 does not refer to cases in which order is trans- under S. 167 See 12 Contra 35 C.
35. Transfer can be made only from a Court of competent jurisdiction.—The transfer of a case can only be directed from a Court having jurisdiction to receive and try it [Per Birchwood J in 10 B 274 See L R 13 I. A. 134 (144) = 9 A 191 36 M 387] In 8 B, 312 however, the High Court transferred a case from a Sessions Court having no territorial jurisdiction to the proper Sessions Court See 18 A. 350. 6 C. 30 9 M 356 3 B R 121 Con 36 M. 387
36. Where the application is opposed by the accused.—Before a criminal case can be transferred to another District against the wish of the accused, it must be proved by the very best evidence available that a fair trial cannot be had in the District—6 C 491
- (6) Costs
37. Where the case was transferred at the instance of the accused, he was ordered to pay all the costs incurred by the complainant, before the Magistrate from whose Court the case was transferred [8 C N 549 But see S P W 1911]. Where an order for transfer was made at the instance of the accused and the complainant alleged that he was poor and the transfer would involve expenses beyond his means, the Crown was directed to pay the expenses of his witnesses.—[5 C. N. 75]

III. ADJOURNMENTS.

(1) The General Rule.

38. Magistrate should postpone the hearing of a case for the purpose of enabling a party to apply to a higher Court for a transfer and his refusal to do so renders the subsequent proceeding voidable if not void. Although under Subs 8 of S 526 the Magistrate has authority to proceed with the case for prosecution until the accused is called on for his defence, yet it is not desirable that the Magistrate should ordinarily exercise that authority, but he should, unless the case is exceptional in character, grant the prayer for adjournment at once. 33 C. 1183 1 S 35 10 O J 218 See 6 C. N 717 8 C N 77 11 C N 507 21 M J 755

(2) Meaning of commencement of hearing.

39. (1) The words "commencement of hearing" mean the commencement of hearing in the Court objected to—1 Bur T. 213 8 C N 77
40. (2) For the purpose of S 526 (8), the hearing or trial (at the Sessions) must be taken to include all the proceedings taken to determine a case, and the first step in the hearing at a Sessions trial is the reading and explaining of the charge to the accused—35 M 701
41. (3) Where an application under S. 526 (8) was put in after a previous application under S 344 had been rejected, held that an application under S 344, could in no sense be regarded as a commencement of the proceedings within the meaning of Cl (8) so as to justify a refusal [65 F L 1904]

(3) Is the Magistrate bound to adjourn the case?

42. In the leading case of Queen Empress v. Vira-sram, 19 M. 375 the words 'shall exercise the power of postponement were thus explained. Although the words "shall exercise" in S 526 A. of the Code of 1882 (re-enacted as subs (8) of S 526 of the Code of 1898) are obligatory, yet the obligation is not necessarily and under all circumstances, to grant a postponement, but only to give the party a reasonable time for obtaining the orders of the High Court. The postponement is no part of the essence of the obligation. By itself, a postponement might either be useless, if it were for too short a time or superfluous, if there was sufficient time without any postponement. The essence of the obligation is that the party should have a reasonable time to move the High Court and obtain its orders. If he has such reasonable time when the application is made, there is no obligation to grant any further time. The same view is also taken in 6 C. N. 717 and 31 C. 715. The opposite view is taken in 8 C. N. 77 29 C 211, 15 C 455, 38 155 1 S 35; 24 P. L. 1904-42 P. W. 1912 2 Weir 645 21 M J 755, where all proceedings are held under S. 526 (8) and it is held that the an exceptional character, postpone at once. "The proceedings may however go on until they arrive at a stage from which if the proceedings are carried on further, the accused might be prejudiced in his defence." The Punjab Chief Court in 42 P. W. 1912 held that it was competent to a Magistrate to hear and record all the evidence for the prosecution but when the evidence for the prosecution had been completed, it was his bounden duty to afford a fair and reasonable opportunity to the accused to apply for transfer before calling on him for his defence.

(4) Duty of the Magistrate.

43. "I am of opinion that the Court is only bound to give such an adjournment as will afford a reasonable time for the application being made and an order being obtained thereon before the accused is called on for his defence. In the present case* the accused had not been called on to enter into the defence and had ample time to move the Higher Courts for transfer of the case to the Court of some other Magistrate, so that the legitimacy of the proceedings of the Magistrate is not open to question"—Gokul Prasad J. in 22 Cr 88 (A) (12) M. N. 1121. But See 8 C. N. 77 11 C N 507

[Note.—*On the day fixed for hearing of this case and before any witnesses were examined, the applicant put in an application for adjournment under S 526 (4) Cr P. C. The Deputy Magistrate examined four of the prosecution witnesses and took down the statement of the accused on the 23rd July. After this the Deputy Magistrate adjourned the case for the 27th of July. On the 27th the statement of other three accused were taken. On 30th July, the accused applied for transfer to the District Magistrate who stated proceedings till disposal of the application. The District Magistrate dismissed the application on the 12th August.]

44. Where the order for transfer does not reach the Court in time—owing to the laches of the applicant, the Court is not bound to stay proceedings—19 M 375
45. Order for transfer not reaching the Magistrate in time,—the Magistrate proceeded with the case and convicted the accused.—Held, that the Magistrate acted with indiscretion in not postponing the case, but the conviction was not illegal. Rat 16 See 19 M. 375
46. Application for High Court in the final 2 C. N. 476.

(5) Effect of refusal to adjourn.

47. The refusal of the Magistrate to grant a reasonable opportunity for the accused to apply for a transfer, before putting him on his defence is illegal under Cr. P. C 526 (8), and his proceedings subsequent to such refusal are also illegal.

(6) Time for applying for adjournment.

48. (1) The law does not require that an application for postponement under S 526 (8) or an application to the High Court for transfer should be made within any particular period before the date fixed for hearing. If the application is made at however short a time before the commencement of the hearing, the Court is bound to adjourn. The refusal to grant such adjournment is illegal and the whole of the proceeding that follow the filing of the application is void.—29 C 211 · 15 C 455 : 8 C N. 77 · 1 S 35 33 C 1183 · 2 Weir 685 See 5 Bur T. 137

49. (2) It is competent to a Magistrate before granting an adjournment to proceed with the case up to the point at which the accused may be called on for his defence.—6 C N 717. 33 C 1183 But See 4 Bur T. 213

50. [Note per contra.—S. 526 (8) has no application where the application for transfer is sought to be made not at the commencement of the hearing but after the Magistrate has finished the case for the prosecution [4 Bur T. 213] Where at a Sessions trial, the accused applied for adjournment under S 526 (8) to enable him to apply for a transfer of the case after the charge was read and explained to him Held—that the application was made after the commencement of the hearing and the Court was not bound to grant an adjournment [35 M 701]

51. What does not amount to delay in asking for adjournment.—Where the notice of appeal was issued on the 15th July 1914 and served on the 15th and the date of hearing of the appeal was fixed for the 21st July and the petitioners presented an application for transfer to the High Court on the 20th July 1914 Held, that there had been no delay on the part of the petitioners and on being informed on the 21st that an application had been made, and on a petition under S 526 (8) Cr. P. C. being filed, the Court acted most unreasonably in refusing to grant adjournment. 16 Cr 244 (M).

52. Sessions trial.—The hearing at a Sessions trial, if the accused is not present, is not a trial, and the Court is not bound to adjourn. 16 Cr 244 (M).

(7) What is not sufficient adjournment.

53. An adjournment for six days is not reasonable time to allow for application, for transfer within the meaning of S 526 (8)—2 Weir 686

(8) Costs of adjournment.

54. A Criminal Court's order to an accused person to pay costs of adjournment under S 344 Cr. P. C. to the complainant, on an application being made by the former under S 526 Cr. P. C. is obviously improper and unjustifiable—8 P. W. 1911 [6 P. R. 1906 R]

(9) Practice of putting in applications under S. 526 (8) without bona fide intention of applying for transfer.

55. The practice of Vakils obtaining an order from the Magistrate staying proceedings on the ground of moving of the High Court for transfer, which they otherwise can never obtain, and without any idea of applying for transfer, is highly condemnable—3 C N 758.

(10) Adjournment not obligatory pending application to superior Magistrate.

56. ...

IV. "SUBORDINATE COURT"—INSTANCES.

57. Bangalore.—Courts of District Magistrate and the Civil and Sessions Judges of the civil and military station at Bangalore are subordinate to the High Court, Madras, within the meaning of S 526 Cr. P. C.—9 M 336

58. Aden.—The Court of the Resident of Aden who is also Sessions Judge of Perim, is subordinate to the Bombay High Court. The High Court may therefore legally transfer a case from his Court to any other criminal court of equal or superior jurisdiction or to itself.—10 B 273 273 But See 23 B 575.

59. Sonthal Perganas.—The Court of a Magistrate in the Sonthal Perganas is as regards the trial of a European British subject, subordinate to the High Court under S 526 Cr. P. C.—18 C 247

V. GROUNDS OF TRANSFER—GENERAL PRINCIPLES.

(1) Duty of Magistrates to conduct themselves properly.

60. ...

as to inspire in the minds of the parties a confidence that nothing but absolute justice would be done to them"—25 C 709 25 C 727 · 8 C N 57 : 6 B E 824.

61. Magistrate should not make remarks during trial showing that he had already formed a decided opinion.—Where in a case of gambling, the Magistrate remarked that the name of the accused was notorious as that of a man who advertised for persons to join in gambling—held “The position of the accused person must always be one of great anxiety. It is not right that the painfulness of such a position should be enhanced by anything that could suggest to him that his guilt is a foregone conclusion in the mind of the Magistrate who has to try him. Any incident moreover giving rise to such a suggestion is especially in this country, liable to react upon witnesses appearing in this case. Neither the accused nor his counsel should be put to the necessity of removing any impression from the Court, which is not based upon any evidence in the trial.”—Per Batt J. in 6 B. R. 856 See 11 C. N. cdxii 10 C. N. xvi 20 Cr. 559 (Pat.)

(2) Meaning of ‘bias.’

62. “The principle which underlies or is contained in the maxim “nemo debet esse iudex in propria causa” is that a person who has a judicial duty to perform disqualifies himself if he has a pecuniary interest in the decision which is about to give or a bias which renders him otherwise than an impartial Judge. In the latter case the question must be a question of substance and of fact whether he has been an accuser [Leeson v Medical Council (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 558 (367)]. The interest must be substantial [Reg v. Meyer (1875) 1 Q. B. D. 173 (177)], so as to make it likely that the Justice has a real bias, the mere possibility of bias is not sufficient to disqualify. [Reg v. Handley (1882) 8 Q. B. D. 383]. In Allenson v General Council [(194) 1 Q. B. 750 (759)] Lord Esher delivered himself of the following exposition of law. The passage will bear repetition in extenso “Public policy requires that in order that there should be no doubt about the purity of administration, any person who is to take part in it, should not be in such a position that he

persons who cannot be suspected of improper motives” I think that if you take that phrase literally it is somewhat too large, because I know of no case in which a man cannot be suspected. There are some people whose minds are so perverse that they will suspect without any ground whatever. The question of incapacity is to be one of substance and fact and therefore it seems to me that the man’s position should be such that in substance and fact he cannot be suspected. Not that any perversely minded person can suspect him but that he must bear such a relation to the matter that he cannot reasonably be suspected of being biased. I think for the sake of the character of the administration of justice, we ought to go so far as that, but I think we ought not to go any further.”—Per Sir G. Knox J. in 36 A. 239

63. ‘Bias’—Defined.—The most intricate mental tendency is that towards bias. Its ramifications are more extensive than those of impulse or self-love. Bias is that deep-seated mental attachment which is subtle in its self infliction of consoling error. Bias rules where the will is weak and the perception small. While the biased mind may be unaware of its prejudicial tendency, this ignorance exists because logic has failed to be brought to bear. This is the case with those minds which we term naturally biased. Where the mind is utterly biased, or prejudiced against truth, because self-centred and opposed to allowing any opinion to prevail except its own, there is evidenced the unusual will. The abnegation of legal bias requires that there be a thorough mental searching to discover and discard all preconceived notions which have no bearing upon the matter for legal determina-reference of this matter to moral reasons. The most evil form of this vulgar passion is the malignity with which the Judge regards that display of legal ability by the Attorney, which is above his own comprehension. The mind which elects to be biased is a rank foe to both society and the law.—W. W. Brewton on the Legal Mind

64. Incidents which are not sufficient to prove bias.—Where the accused in the first list mentioned only 20 witnesses and in a supplementary list, named 200 persons, and the Magistrate came to the conclusion that the application was one made for the purpose of vexation and delay, he had jurisdiction to reject the application. There is no presumption of bias in such a case and the maxim of “omnis presumuntur rite et solemniter esse acta” applies [36 A. 239]. The rule applies when the Magistrate has disallowed a question transgressing S 155 of the Evidence Act [ibid]. A Magistrate is justified in increasing the amount of bail if in the course of further proceeding, the case turns out to be more serious than at first imagined. An increase of bail in such circumstances—

Magistrate had not declined jurisdiction but having exercised jurisdiction committed an error of law. [2 C. 278]. The impressions recorded in the judgment are impressions derived from the evidence and however erroneous are not to be classed as instances of personal bias which is regarded as a disqualification [6 D. R. 1092 See 18 C. N. 910]

65. Bias—What is not.—Where the impressions recorded in the judgment by a Magistrate are derived from evidence however erroneous they may be, they cannot be classed with instances of personal bias.—6 B. R. 1092; See 10 C. N. 426; 18 37.

68. Accused not bound to prove actual bias.—For a transfer of a case on the ground of bias on the part of the Magistrate, it is rarely possible for an accused person to prove actual bias, it is sufficient to show circumstances which may raise a reasonable apprehension in the mind of an accused person that he will not have a fair and impartial trial although the circumstances may be susceptible of explanation and may have happened without any real bias in the mind of the Magistrate—2 Weir 678 21 M. J. (S. N.) 59 See 2 L. B. 220

[Note.—But when the accused makes a specific charge of corruption the rule will not apply.—2 L. B. 220]

(3) No transfer will be granted in the absence of any allegations against the Magistrate himself.

67. The accused, a Havildar of Police was placed on his trial on a charge of extortion under S. 384 I. P. C. He alleged that certain undesirable restraints were put on him by the Superior Officers of the Police, which hampered him in his defence, held that the application for transfer was not based on any allegation against the Magistrate in whose Court the proceedings were being conducted, an order of transfer could not be made—23 C. N. 179 But See 23 C. N. 481.

(4) What the High Court has to consider.

68. What the Court has to consider, in an application under S. 526 Cr. P. C. for transfer of a criminal case, is not merely, the question whether there has been any real bias in the mind of the Magistrate against the accused, but also the further question whether incidents may not have happened which, though susceptible of explanation and may have happened without there being any real bias in the mind of the Magistrate, are nevertheless calculated to create in the mind of the accused a reasonable apprehension that he may not have a fair and impartial trial—19 A. G. 35 A. 5 23 C. 495 25 C. 727 24 C. 297. 28 C. 709 33 C. 1183 8 C. N. 75 9 C. N. 619 2 Weir 678 25 B. 179 But See 36 A. 239 2 Pat. W. 83

Note.—But in applying this doctrine regard must be had to the circumstances in each case—26 C. 804

69. It cannot be laid down as a general rule that whenever an accused person believes, or says he believes that he will not get a fair trial, that the case should be transferred on his application—10 C. 165

70. Grounds must be strong and clear.—The High Court will not, except on very strong and very clear grounds, transfer a case from one Court to another.—6 B. II 69

(5) Rules to be observed.

71. (1) The High Court will not transfer the case out of deference to the susceptibilities of the accused.

(2) It cannot, when making an order for transfer, take into consideration the effect its order could have on the reputation and authority of the magistrate concerned

(3) The High Court will discourage, unreasoning apprehension and distrust

(4) It will decide whether there is cause for a reasonable apprehension by a reference to the mind of the Court rather than to that of the accused 10 C. N. 141 But See 33 C. 1183 12 A. I 33 : 36 A. 239 cited below

71A. When the accused objects to the transfer the prosecution must prove most satisfactorily that a fair trial cannot be had in the District in which it is ordinarily triable. 6 C. 491.

(6) Meaning of reasonable apprehension.

72. (1) "When an accused person has a reasonable apprehension that he will not be fairly treated his case should be transferred, but at the same time, I am strongly of opinion that apprehension must be a real and reasonable one. The sole question to be considered is whether the facts disclosed in an application for transfer, give rise to a reasonable inference that the Magistrate who is seized of the case may be unwittingly or unwittingly prejudiced against the accused"—Per Broadway J. in 13 P. W. 1917 10 S. 183 See 23 C. 195 33 C. 1183 10 N. 15 4 P. W. 1913 127 P. L. 1915 6 B. R. 556

72A. (2) "In the present constitution of the criminal judicial administration of the country, a sub-divisional Magistrate has to perform some of the functions of the Police as also those of a Judge, and a well balanced mind may not find any bias in the mind of the Judge however incongruous his actions may be. But the appreciation of a mind properly constituted, can not be the standard to judge of the feelings of an ordinary man accused of an offence. If the word used by and the actions of judicial officers, though susceptible of explanation and traceable to a superior sense of duty, are calculated to create in the minds of the accused, an apprehension and not merely a foolish apprehension that he may not have an impartial trial it is expedient for the ends of justice to transfer the case to another Judge for trial. What is reasonable apprehension is a question which must be decided in each case, with reference to the incidents themselves and surrounding circumstances, abstract reasonableness ought not to be the standard—33 C. 1183

72B. "The High Court will not transfer the case out of deference to the susceptibilities of the accused."

"have the applicants any reasonable cause for apprehension?", regard must be had to the degree of intelligence and the standard of honesty and impartiality of the applicant. Facts which may be insufficient to create even a shadow of apprehension in the mind of people who have a high standard of honesty, may, having regard to the low standard of honesty and fair dealing of the class of people to which the applicant belongs, cause a fear which is not unreasonable"—Per Halliday A. J. C. in 10 N. 15 See 37 C. 1183; 15 C. 455

- 72C. "It is important that parties should have confidence in the Court before which they appear. I think it is also important that nothing should be done to encourage any want of confidence. If we only interfere because one of the parties may say that he has no confidence in the court, and urge that as a sufficient reason for transferring the case, I do not see how the jurisdiction to decide whether a case should be transferred or not, is to be exercised; and therefore ordinarily before a transfer is granted, it is well that we should be satisfied if want of confidence is to be alleged, that there is foundation for such want of confidence"—Per Aston J. in 6 B. R. 856.

73. Consideration of the position of the accused.—However proper the conduct of a Judge may be, the state of the mind of the accused is to be considered and any incidents which are calculated to create in his mind a reasonable apprehension that he may not have a fair and impartial trial are good grounds for transfer. In order to test what is reasonable apprehension, the Court ought to place itself in the position of the accused to consider the facts and circumstances attending his position—33 C. 1183 15 C. P. 192 154 P. L. 1913 See 6 B. R. 856

(6A) Improper motive.

74. Unless it is shown that the Magistrate is likely to be influenced by an improper motive in the decision of the case, the High Court will feel bound to support the Magistrate, in as much as, by transferring it a gratuitous slight will be thrown on the Magistrate—Rat 323

(7) Probability of an unfair trial.

75. It is only where there is reason to suppose that the prisoner will not have a fair trial that the High Court will transfer a case from one Magistrate to another—2 W. R. 59. 18 C. 247

Note.—So where the Magistrate did not draw up the order sheet as required by the High Court, and made interpolations in the same—Held that his conduct showed bias and a transfer was ordered—2 C. N. 639

(8) Conviction in a connected trial.

76. Where accused N and four others were at first tried together, the former under S. 411 I. P. C. and the latter under S. 391 I. P. C. and the case was afterwards separated and the case against N. under S. 411 I. P. C. was kept in abeyance pending decision in the S. 391 P. C. case, and all the four accused in the latter case were convicted. Held the mere fact that the Magistrate had found the property in question to be stolen property was not a sufficient ground for transfer, as it did not necessarily follow, that the accused would be guilty under S. 411 I. P. C. for that reason, and there was no reason why the Magistrate should not try the case with perfect impartiality.

—15 Cr. 253(A); See 33 A. 583; 12 A. J. 33 31 C. 715- 11 C. N. cxlxi

(9) The fact that the Judge tried the counter case is no ground for transfer.

77. It is no reasonable ground for apprehension that there will be a fair trial merely because the Judge, in the former proceeding, arising out of a counter case to the one before him, has expressed certain views upon the evidence in the former case as to which of the two versions is correct 1 O. N. 426; 36 C. 904. 8 C. N. 91 33 A. 583; 15 C. P. 192 1 S. 37; 1 Pat J. 39 But See 4 C. N. 824; 8 C. N. 641. 30 M. 22 (10) M. N. 735 6 B. R. 1902

[Note.—The fact that a Magistrate had discharged a cross case between the same parties is a proper ground for transfer. But such order of discharge rested on the evidence which he had heard in both cases, there will be sufficient ground for transfer.—5. S. 264]

- 77A. Presumption of fairness.—Judges are presumed to be upright men who will approach each case from the point of view of that case alone, and not permit their minds to be in any way affected by anything that has gone before that case—1 Pat J. 399.

(10) Trying Magistrate a witness in the case.

78. It has been always regarded as a valid ground of transfer that the evidence of the trying Magistrate is essentially necessary for the accused's defence. But the necessity must be to a bona fide belief that such evidence will benefit the defence. Where the necessity is urged merely in order to create a ground for transfer and good reasons are put forward in support of the allegation, an application for transfer will as a rule be disallowed. [See Note No 101 below] Their Lordships of the Privy Council have laid down in very express terms that "it ought to be known and their Lordships wish it to be distinctly understood, that a Judge cannot, without giving evidence as a witness, import into a case his own knowledge of particular facts." [Harper's 3 I. A. 259=26 W. R. 65.]

(11) The fact that the Court is acting under the direction of the Crown and not using its own discretion.

79. Where a Justice of the Peace sat in a room in the Police Station and on the request of the Crown Solicitor made an order excluding all persons except the representatives of the accused, and gave as reason for refusing admission to other Justices that he was guided by the Crown and directed by the Crown not to allow other Magistrates to be present. Held, that although

(12) Intimidation of witnesses.

80. A witness, after he had given evidence to a certain extent, cannot be made an accused and tried along with the other accused, though his name might have been mentioned in the complaint. A procedure like this is highly calculated to intimidate other witnesses—7 B. R. 472

(13) Transfer from a non-jury to jury District.

81. In transferring a case, no consideration should be had to the fact that by a transfer to a particular district, the accused shall have the benefit of a trial by jury where previously he had none—8 C. J. 59 10 S. 54.

(14) Where Magistrate tries to usurp a jurisdiction he does not possess.

82. Where, the Magistrate has repeatedly endeavoured to dispose, by unauthorised executive action, of matters which the law reserves for judicial determination and has been betrayed into many illegal or irregular acts, some of which are of a highly oppressive character, he disqualifies himself for the discharge of any judicial functions and the case should be transferred from his file 10 C. N. 82

(15) Ignorance of the Magistrate of the language.

83. Where a good deal of evidence in the case, both oral and documentary is in English, and the Magistrate in whose Court the case is pending does not know the language, it may be necessary and perhaps would be advisable to transfer the case to the Court of some Magistrate who knows the language—16 Cr. 73 (A)

(16) Unpleasantness between Court and Counsel for accused.

84. It would be wrong to encourage the idea or create the impression that a quarrel or unpleasantness between Judge and Counsel should be allowed to form the basis of an application for transfer 2 Pat. W. 83

(17) Question of convenience.

85. When a transfer can be made without the risk of any improper interference with the course of justice and without much inconvenience to the parties and witnesses, a transfer would be proper as a fair concession to the accused 5 M. H. 212.

(18) Private information gathered during prolonged enquiry.

86. The fact that the Magistrate had in a complicated case, made a very prolonged and careful local investigation, in the course of which he acquired a large amount of private information with reference to the occurrence in question which

(19) Executive zeal of the Magistrate.

87. Where the executive zeal of the Magistrate appears to outrun his judicial discretion, a transfer is desirable to allay the reasonable apprehensions of the applicant for transfer—1 S. 8

(20) Substantial interest in the case.

88. To justify the transfer of a case from a Magistrate it must be established that the Magistrate has such a substantial interest in the result of the hearing, so as to make it likely that he has a real bias in the matter—Rai 685 See Notes under 556 infra

VI. GROUNDS FOR TRANSFER—WHAT ARE GOOD GROUNDS.

89. (1) The expression of belief by the District Magistrate and the Sessions Judge that a fair and impartial jury could not be obtained if the case was tried in the District 25 C. 727
90. (2) When by reason of the words or conduct of a Magistrate or Judge before whom a case is pending, any party reasonably apprehends that there is a bias against him in the mind of the officer concerned, (though there may not be any actual bias) 24 C. 709 2 Weir 678 19 A. 64
91. (1) Refusal by the Magistrate to adjourn a case in contravention of Cl. 8 of S. 536 1 S. 35 8 S. 341 10 J. 218 17 A. J. 48
92. (4) Where the trying Magistrate in the course of the trial, makes a report to the Subdivisional Magistrate containing aspersions on the conduct of the accused and even suggesting that he might have committed the very theft 2 S. 33
93. (3) The fact that the accused had written against the Magistrate in the newspapers and had been dealt with both by the police and the Magistrate himself, harshly and severely 3 Shome 21.
94. (6) Where a Magistrate in spite of the fact that an application for transfer is pending before the High Court proceeds with the trial, cancels the bail bond and commits the accused to the Sessions,—his conduct shows bias and it is a good ground for transferring the case 50 N. 110 See 2 C. N. 498—16 C. N. 1031
95. (7) Disregard of an order of the High Court staying proceedings although communicated informally to the Magistrate 2 C. N. 138
96. (8) Where a Magistrate was present at a search by the police during investigation and in all probability he came to know of some facts in connection with the case, it is expedient that some other Magistrate should try the case. 5 C. N. 864
97. (3) The fact that the Magistrate had accompanied the prosecutor to the place of offence and there heard from him the facts of the case—32 P. L. 1902
98. (10) Where the defence in a previously tried case forms the subject matter of a complaint to be tried by the same Magistrate—held—the Magistrate having expressed his opinion on the evidence for the defence in the previous case, it was desirable to have the complaint tried by some other Magistrate 4 C N 824

99. (11) Where the District Magistrate had procured the initiation of a number of prosecutions against the applicant—held—that an appeal from a conviction in one of these cases should not be heard by the District Magistrate 24 W R 55.

100. (12) When the procedure as against the accused person is irregular and illegal and the Magistrate is prejudiced against and antagonistic to him 20 W R 23.

101. (13) The fact that the evidence of the trying Magistrate will be required by the accused touching certain matters connected with the case 26 A 536 12 A J 33 15 Cr 368 (A) 1 O J 271

Note.—It is not expedient to order a transfer unless it is clearly shown that the evidence of a Magistrate is essential for the accused's defence and there is a likelihood that he can give evidence which would aid the accused in his defence. 8 S 170. 19 Cr 632 (C).

102. Where none of the grounds by themselves were sufficient, but taken together created the impression that the petitioner might not unreasonably apprehend that he might not have a fair trial.—9 C N 619 4 P W 1913

103. (15) The fact that in a case of theft of bamboos worth Re 1—only, the Magistrate issued warrants in the first instance without provision for bail and on appearance exacted heavy bail from the accused 8 C N 589

[Note.—But where the mistake is bonafide it will not be a sufficient ground for transfer—8 C N 835]

104. (16) The fact that in two previous cases the Magistrate had expressed a decisive opinion on the question of the possession of the property which was in issue in the last case, (case of rioting) 8 C N 641

105. (17) In two cases, in which charges and counter charges have been made, a Magistrate heard the prosecution evidence in one case, and then without hearing the defence evidence in that case, interposed the other case, heard the prosecution evidence in that case, and on that evidence discharged the accused in the former case. In his order of discharge he expressed himself in decided terms, as to the guilt of the prosecuting party in the latter case who are the accused in the former case—held—such prejudging of accused's guilt is sufficient ground for a transfer 30 M 233 see 5 S 264

106. (18) The fact that in spite of an application for adjournment the Court examined 13 prosecution witnesses and then allowed 14 days' time and even after being informed that the High Court had issued a rule under S 526, examined 4 more witnesses and then made an order for adjournment—11 O N 507.

107. (19) Unnecessary delay in disposing of a simple case [2 Weir 679: see 8 M. T. 222]. Where a trying Magistrate showed "deplorable weakness" in allowing himself to be drawn to one side or the other by extraneous or irrelevant matters [12 A J 262], the mere fact of the Magistrate making unnecessary adjournments in the enquiry or trial of such a case, is a sufficient ground for the transfer of the case from his Court [16 A J 294] Inordinate delay in examining the complainant or a disregard of the preliminaries prescribed by the Cr P. C. for dealing with complaint and awaiting the consideration of the evidence in another case with which the accused has no concern, in order to decide whether any action should be taken upon the complaint, are matters which afford reasons to the accused to apprehend that he will not have a fair and impartial trial and such a case is a proper one for transfer—[21 Cr 504 (Pat)]

108. (20) The fact that the Magistrate had previously dealt with the dispute in an informal manner as a private arbitrator.—18 C J 130.

109. (21) Where the Magistrate has issued an order contrary to law and so contrary that it was well calculated to create a reasonable apprehension in the mind of the accused that the Magistrate was biased against him—24 C 495 20 C 857 See Sergeant v. Dale (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 558 (567)

110. (22) Where the Magistrate had been acting on information got out of Court and that he permitted rumours relating to the accused in a pending case before him to reach him out of Court and allowed his mind to be influenced by such rumours—19 A 64

111. (23) Where it appeared that the Magistrate had made private enquiries from persons who were likely to figure later on as witnesses in the case, the High Court directed a transfer of the case from the file of that Magistrate under S 526 Cr P C—17 C N 1218.

112. (24) Where at the close of the examination of a defence witness, the Magistrate asked him if the two accused had been chaffed in any badmash case. It appeared that he asked the question on the assurance of the Police peshi clerk attached to the Court held—that the question asked was in the highest degree improper and the Magistrate's conduct was a sufficient ground for an apprehension that a fair and impartial trial will not be held—12 A J 50

113. (25) Where the proceedings were initiated under the orders of the District Magistrate and hama also regard to the fact that one of the important witnesses for the prosecution is a Deputy Magistrate attached to the District, the case against the petitioner was transferred to another District.—1 O J 271

114. (26) In a case where a Magistrate made a local inspection for the purpose of explaining the evidence that was given before him but failed to make a note of what he had seen, the High Court ordered the case to be transferred to another Magistrate for trial—3 Pat W. 201: see 27 C 310. 19 M 263. See No. 133 below.

115. (27) That the trying Magistrate stopped the cross-examination of the complainant in the case because in his view the complainant had been fully cross-examined for an hour.—20 Cr. 559 (Pat) : 20 Cr. 566 (Pat)

116. (28) The refusal by a Magistrate to permit the cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses after all of them have been examined-in-chief, the cancellation of bail-bonds of an accused person made after an application for stay of proceedings pending an application for transfer of the case, and the refusal to furnish the accused with copies of depositions of witnesses for the prosecution, are good grounds for directing a transfer of the case.—[21 Cr. 630 (Pat) 5 C N. 110]. See 7 C. J. 240.]
117. (29) Where the District Magistrate acting on a verbal statement made to him in his Chambers, has the accused forthwith arrested, although the offence is one in which a summons only should issue in the first instance.—21 Cr. 795 (Pat) : See 8 C N 589 15 C. 217 14 C N. cxxvi
118. (30) Where there is some degree of association between the Magistrate and one or other of the parties to a case as, for instance, where a party has a financial hold on the Magistrate, the case ought not to be tried by that Magistrate.—21 Cr. 843 (Pat).
119. (31) The fact that a Magistrate exhibits haste in recording the statement of an accused person before all the evidence for the prosecution is concluded, is sufficient to create an apprehension in the mind of the accused that he will not have a fair trial and to entitle him to a transfer of the case to some other Magistrate : 22 Cr. 88 (A)
120. (32) Where a District Magistrate admitted in his reply to an application for transfer of a case that he has taken a keen personal interest in the case and was satisfied of the applicant's guilt, held there was sufficient ground for transfer.—32 A. 662.

121. (33) The fact that a prosecution witness was a relation of the Magistrate and was interested in the case, was held to be a sufficient ground for transfer.—13 O N. 1.
122. (34) Where the prosecution was by Calcutta Corporation under Bengal Act IV of 1876 (License) and the trial was being held by a servant of the Corporation as Justice of the peace.—7 C. 322
- 1 3. (35) The fact that the opposite party has engaged all the lawyers available at the place.—7 A. J. (S N) 80
124. (36) Where the trying Magistrate refused an application by the accused (pardanashin ladies of
C N. 1248
125. (37) Where a Sessions Judge in his explanation to the High Court made remarks shewing that he had taken a very strong view of the case against the accused, and that he had in a great measure formed a very strong opinion of his guilt, and also in view of the fact that it might be desirable to examine the Judge as a witness at the trial, the High Court transferred the case.—3 C N. cclxxviii

VII. GROUNDS FOR TRANSFER—WHAT ARE NOT SUFFICIENT.

126. (1) Refusal to grant postponement of case under S. 526, cl 8, where the application has been delayed for nearly two months after the hearing has commenced.—4 S. 42
127. (2) Convenience of parties and witnesses where the accused are themselves in custody and have not disclosed the names of their witnesses.—4 S. 42
128. (3) The mere possibility or probability that difficult questions, whether of law or of fact will arise.—15 W R. 69; See 7 B R. 637 (639) [But See S. 526 (1) (b) Cr P O]
129. (4) The mere fact that the Magistrate of a District is, in his capacity as Collector, concerned in the management of an estate held by the Court of Wards, is no ground for a transfer from that district of a case brought by a servant of the estate.—28 O 297
130. (5) The mere fact that the Magistrate of the District is, in his capacity as Collector, concerned in the management of the Raj Estate is no ground for asking for a transfer of the case from the Court of a subordinate Magistrate in that District.—28 C 297.
131. (6) The mere fact that in another case, on other evidence the Judge may have come to a particular conclusion.—36 C. 104. See 1 C N. 426.
132. (7) That the Magistrate in another criminal case arising out of the same transaction, had expressed decided opinions not only on the facts but as to the credibility of certain witnesses 1 S 37
133. (8) The fact that the Magistrate has personally inspected the locality to test the correctness of evidence and has been made a witness does not disqualify him from trying the case 13 P R. 1901 see 19 A 302 21 C 920 37 C 340 : 12 C N 745 19 M 263 See No 111 above
134. (9) The mere fact that a Magistrate in whose Court a criminal case is pending, is or may be summoned as a witness for the defence, is not itself a reason for the transfer of the case from the Court of such Magistrate.—(37) A. N. 17. 19 Cr. 632 (C) : see Note No 101 above.
135. (10) The mere circumstance that the complainant is a private servant of the trying Magistrate 9 B 172 (11) 2 M N. (four) 110
136. (11) The fact that the Sessions Judge, who as District Judge directed prosecution of the applicants, was to try the latter on being committed to the Sessions Court. (37) A. N. 139
137. (12) The mere fact that the Judge who was to try the case of forgery or perjury had formed an opinion that the document has been forged or perjury committed. 5 M. II 212.

138. (13) The mere fact that the complainant is a man of importance at the place where the trial is taking place. Rat 474
139. (14) Where the Magistrate has acted bonafide from a mistaken view of the law in refusing to give the accused an opportunity to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses before the charge is framed. 8 C N. 838.
140. (15) The fact that out of the two cross-cases pending before the Court, the Court on the trial of one of them had expressed opinions rather unfavourable to the accused in the other case. 33 A. 583 contra 5 S 204. 30 M 233
141. (16) When a case is triable by a Court of Sessions, the fact that the Magistrate holding the enquiry expresses strong views against a party or that the Magistrate is going to be produced as a witness is not a good ground for transfer. 11 A J 741.
142. (17) The fact that the Magistrate is a friend of a remote relative of the complainant is not per se ground for transferring the case to another. 4 P W 1912
143. (17A) The mere fact that one of the Bench Magistrates is a friend of the accused and that it would be better if the case was tried by a Magistrate unacquainted with the parties.—16 A J. 490
144. (18) The mere fact that the Magistrate increases the amount of bail
- Note.—A Magistrate is justified in increasing the amount of bail, if by further proceeding, the case turn up to be more serious than was imagined at first.—4 P W 1912
145. (19) The transfer of a criminal case should not be necessarily ordered simply because an accused person thinks that he will not get an impartial trial. The real question is whether on the facts disclosed in the application there arises a reasonable inference that the Magistrate may be prejudiced against the accused willingly or unwillingly.—11 Cr 666 (A)
146. (20) The fact that the Magistrate does not possess the amount of scholarship in Telugu and Sanskrit as would enable him to correctly understand the book, in respect of which the complaint has been made.—(11) 2 M N 50
147. (21) Where the Magistrate in the previous trial had remarked in his judgment.—“There is ample evidence on the record to show that the two accused and their four companions (meaning the applicants who were absconding when the previous trial took place) took the girl to the complainant's house and represented her as a Brahmin, and after taking Rs. 100 from the complainant married her to his son” held that the incident did not indicate any real bias in the mind of the Magistrate and there was no reason to think that the Magistrate would be prejudiced by his conclusions in the former case.—12 A J 33

148. (22) It is not a sufficient ground for transfer that the case is causing considerable excitement in the District and most of the inhabitants had their sympathies enlisted on one side or the other.—36 A. 239; 6 C 491.
149. (23) It is not a valid ground of transfer that the Sessions Judge on appeal, after setting aside the conviction, directed the committal of the appellants to his court on graver charges.—15 Cr. 367(A)
150. (24) The Criminal Procedure Code does not authorize Magistrates to give compensation, whenever they may think proper, by way of costs for adjournments, and the passing of such an order against a party does not disclose any prejudice on the part of the Magistrate and is not a valid ground for the transfer of the case to another Magistrate.—2 Pat W 218.
151. (25) That the trying Magistrate has committed an error of judgment in admitting a mass of irrelevant evidence or that he has refused to allow the accused confidential police papers.—20 Cr 609 (Pat)
152. (26) The fact that a Magistrate by his attitude shows that he is displeased with an accused person is not a sufficient ground for transferring the case.—21 Cr 809 (A).
- 153 (27) The mere fact that a Magistrate, in whose Court a case is pending trial, is, in his executive capacity subordinate to the District Magistrate who has taken a strong view with regard to the merits of the case, is by itself, not a sufficient ground for transferring the case, under Sec 52b of the Cr. P. C., to some other Magistrate outside the District.—22 Cr. 257 (Pat)
154. (28) Where the irregularities committed by the Judge are due to errors of judgment—allowing a prosecution witness to be examined in chief by the Public Prosecutor after he had been cross-examined by the defence, and empanelling of assessors in spite of their being challenged by the accused, the High Court in the absence of anything to establish prejudice in the mind of the Judge will not transfer the case.—22 Cr. 257 (Pat)
155. (29) The fact that the Sessions Judge as District Judge gave sanction to the prosecution of the appellant under S 193 I P. O. is not a sufficient ground for transferring an appeal against the conviction of the appellant pending in his file to some other Court.—15 B. R. 101 See 6 B 479 16 C 766 (F. B.). 27 C. 452; also 5 M. II 212; 14 A 354 18 M 380 Con 16 C. 121.

157. Where the Presidency Magistrate omitted to record a summary of the evidence in a case in which he should have exercised his discretion and recorded the evidence, committed several irregularities and had made up his mind on merits, the High Court in ordering a retrial transferred it to another Magistrate.—10 B. R. 201.

Chief Presidency Magistrate to that of any other Presidency Magistrate. [The latter Court being of equal jurisdiction].—(11) 2 M. N. 50.

(1) Trial of offence committed in Railway lands situate in Jhind Native State.

[Note.—The High Court has the power to transfer a criminal case from the file of one Presidency Magistrate to another.]

(5) Transfer under the Letters Patent.

164. The High Court's power of transfer of appeals under S. 20, Letters Patent, is not restricted to transfer of appeals to Courts subordinate to itself, but extends also to their transfer for trial before itself. This power has not been taken away by S. 64 of the Cr P Code and it is expressly provided by S. 526 Cr. P. C 1882—6 M 32. See 1 B L. (O C) 15.

(6) Finality of order passed by Divisional Bench.

105. Refusal to transfer.—Where a Bench of the High Court refused to transfer a criminal case from the Session Court of one district to that of another District and did not allow the affidavit filed in support of the application to be read, the legality of the order cannot be questioned by the Chief Justice.—8 C 63

(7) Commitments transferred cannot be quashed.

166. The High Court transferred a case from one Sessions Division to another. The Sessions Judge of the latter place, purporting to act under subs (2) of S. 532 infra, quashed the commitment and directed a further enquiry to be made by the District Magistrate of the former division or by any Magistrate Subordinate to him. Held, the Session Judge had no power to quash the commitment or direct an enquiry by the District Magistrate of another Sessions Division—Cr. Rev. Case No. 42 of 1904 (M).

(S) False and scandalous allegations in transfer petition not privileged.

187. The English Common Law doctrine of absolute privilege has no application to the Indian munsifs; statements made in bad faith are not protected. Therefore a defamatory statement made in bad faith in an application for the transfer of a case is not privileged.—40 C 433 [14 W R 27 23 C.] 567 5 C N 263 Relied on See 36 N 216 (F.B.), 244 P L 1912 But See 40 C 441 (Note)=17 O N. 419 23 M J 39 (F.B.) 39 C 880. also 17 W. 527. (1) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, direct the transfer of any particular criminal case or appeal from one High Court to another High Court, or from any Criminal Court subordinate to one High Court to any other Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction subordinate to another High Court, whenever it appears to him that such transfer will promote the ends of justice, or tend to the general convenience of parties or witnesses

(2) The Court to which such case or appeal is transferred shall deal with the same as if it had been originally instituted in, or presented to, such Court.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In sub-section (1) of section 527 of the said Code, the word "criminal," where it occurs before the word "case," shall be omitted

Notes.

- 1. Scope of the section.—The only person who has any jurisdiction to pass orders binding on different High Courts, is the Governor General in Council under S 527 Cr P. C. The Code does not intend to vest in any High Court powers which are, on the face of them, infructuous or might lead to conflict with another High Court—Per Napier J. in 40 M 385 But See 41 C 195 (F. B.)

[Note.—The point arose in connection with S 185 Cr P C and it was decided that the High Court could not under that section exercise the powers vested in the Governor General in Council under S 185.

- 2. Ss. 185 and 527 compared.—The order under S 527 is an executive order which may be made without opportunity afforded to the accused to be heard. In the second place, S. 527 contemplates an order for transfer and reconnoitre may possibly be had thereto, if an order made by one High Court under S. 185 is disregarded by another High Court. The two sections have therefore entirely different scopes—Per Moonjee J. in 44 C 495 (F. B.)

528 (1) Any Chief Presidency Magistrate, District Magistrate or Sub-divisional Magistrate may withdraw any case from, or recall any case which he has made over to, any Magistrate subordinate to him, and may inquire into or try such case himself, or refer it for inquiry or trial to any other such Magistrate competent to inquire into or try the same.

(2) The Local Government may authorize the District Magistrate to withdraw from any Magistrate subordinate to him either such classes of cases as he thinks proper, or particular classes of cases.

(3) A Magistrate making an order under this section shall record in writing his reasons for making the same.

(4) The head of a village under Madras Regulation IV. of 1821 is a Magistrate for the purposes of this section

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 528 of the said Code—

(i) After sub-section (2), the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely, —

"(2a) Any Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate may, by general or special order, empower any Magistrate subordinate to him—

(a) to transfer for enquiry or trial any case of which he, or any Magistrate subordinate to such Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, as the case may be, has taken cognizance, or in which any proceedings are pending before him, to any other such Magistrate competent to inquire into or try the same, and

(b) to withdraw any case from, or recall any case made over to any Magistrate subordinate to such Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate, and to inquire into or try such case himself;

Provided that no Magistrate other than a Magistrate of the first class shall be empowered by the District Magistrate to transfer, withdraw or recall cases under this sub-section."

(iv) For sub-section (1) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely —

“(4) The head of a village under Madras Regulation XI of 1816 or Madras Regulation IV of 1821 is a Magistrate for the purposes of this section”

I. APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

1. Scope.—The powers conferred by S 528 Cr P C are very wide and undefined, the section merely requiring the District Magistrate making an order of transfer to record his reasons, but it is not intended that they should be exercised without due discretion and really good reasons, which in the interests of the administration of justice demand a transfer.—1 P L 1901
 2. Section applies only to cases actually pending.—It is doubtful, whether the District Magistrate can by general proceeding, direct the transfer of cases, which have no existence, and which are not pending before any of his subordinates.—1 A G 24
 3. Cantonment Magistrates are subordinate to the District Magistrate within the meaning of S. 528 Cr P C (See Sec 7 Act XIII of 1889)—Rat 849.
 4. Magistrate authorised under S. 528 to transfer a case is competent to withdraw it to his own file.—9 Cr 310
 5. S. 528 with reference to proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C.—S 528 does not empower the District Magistrate in a case under S 107 to make over the initiation of proceedings to a Magistrate who has no local jurisdiction over the matter.—41 M. 246 (16) M. N. 751 See 13 C N. 580 31 C 350 24 A 151
 6. Proceedings under Chapter XII.—A proceeding under S 145 of the Code is a criminal case and a Magistrate has power to transfer it under Ss. 192 and 528 of the Code.—26 M 188 3 C J. 614 22 C 898 10 C N. 1095 11 O O 61.—See 28 C. 709 31 C 350 5 C N. 686 Con. 25 B. 179
 7. Proceedings under Chapter VIII.—A District Magistrate has jurisdiction to transfer a case under S 110 Cr P. C. of which he has taken cognizance to subordinate Magistrate [35 C 243.—See 37 C. 91 (100)] A District Magistrate under S 47(=S 528) has power to transfer a case falling under S 107 Cr. P. C. [See 8 C. 851.—See 31 C 350: 24 A 151. 1 S 2]
 8. Proceedings under S. 488 Cr. P. C.—A District Magistrate under the very general terms of subs (1) has jurisdiction to transfer to his own Court proceedings under S 488 pending before a subordinate Magistrate.—5 P. R 1905
 9. Case under the Cattle Trespass Act.—A District Magistrate has jurisdiction after a complaint, under S 20 of the Cattle Trespass Act, had been entertained by a duly authorised Magistrate, to transfer the same to any subordinate Magistrate.—34 C 926
 10. (1) Nature of proceedings taken under S. 350 after transfer.—Where the District Magistrate transferred the case to his own file under S 528 and proceeded to deal with it under S 350 Cr P C, the proceeding before him was a judicial proceeding within the meaning of S 476.—21 C N 755
 11. (2) S. 350 Cr. P. C. is not limited to cases in which Magistrates succeed each other in their offices but applies also to cases transferred from the file of one Magistrate to that of another Magistrate under S 528 Cr. P. C.—36 A. 315. 32 M 218 35 C 457 12 A J. 467: See 13 W R 40 4 W R 3 Con (89) A N. 130: 6 O C. 192 33 C 619 12 C N 140
 12. S. 528 does not apply to proceedings submitted under S. 349.—S 528 Cr P C. has no application to proceedings submitted to a Sub-divisional Magistrate by a second class Magistrate under S 349 Cr P. C.—38 B. 719 But See 2 Weir, 690
- Note per contra. Power to retransfer.—Where the Taluk Magistrate convicted the accused and submitted the record to the Head Assistant Magistrate, in order that heavier sentence might be imposed, held that the District Magistrate was competent to retransfer the case from the Head Assistant Magistrate to another Magistrate.—2 Weir 690 (Chandra).
13. Duty of the Magistrate.—Although a District Magistrate has very wide powers of transfer conferred upon him by S. 528 Cr. P. C. he must, in the exercise of those powers act in a judicial manner and not capriciously or arbitrarily.—20 Cr. 402 (Pat).
 14. Personal allegations against a trying Magistrate.—When personal allegations are

15. Transfer of a case remanded by the Sessions Judge for further enquiry.—The District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to transfer a case from the file of a subordinate Magistrate to whom it has been remanded by the Sessions Judge for further enquiry and less so, if he gives no notice to the other side.—8 C. J. 241 11 C. N. 316

16. Complaints.—The term "case" has not been defined in the Criminal Procedure Code but reading together Ss 192(1), 190(1) (a) and proviso (c) to S 200 it is clear that it includes a proceeding upon a complaint as soon as the complaint has been received by the Magistrate who takes cognizance of the offences complained of.—7 N. 97

17. Order for transfer must be founded on substantial reasons.

(1) An order for a transfer of a criminal case "for the ends of justice" in which no reasons are recorded, is on the face of it in conflict with S. 528(3) Cr P C.—16 Cr 626(M) Rat 590 13 P. R. 1609.

18 (2) The mere omission to record reasons as required by S 528(3) does not necessarily invalidate the subsequent proceedings.—7 N 97 34 C 918. 25 A 421 14 C P 190 3 P R. 1910: 9 Cr. 810(M)

[Note.—In such a case the superior Court will call for reasons.—3 P R 1910]

Grounds on which a case may or may not be transferred.

19. (1) A case may rightly be transferred on the ground that the dispute involves the right to a building (between Mahomedans and Hindus) and should be tried by a European Magistrate.—127 P L 1915

20. (2) Delay in disposing of the case is not a ground for taking action under S. 528 of the Cr. P. C and that if the District Magistrate thought there was delay, he should have asked the Subordinate Magistrate to expedite the trial.—(1915) Pat 78

21. (3) The opinion expressed by the Magistrate in a previous case in which the accused was tried and convicted on a separate and distinct charge, in itself, no ground for the transfer of the case.—4 Pat W. 21

22. (4) The fact that a Magistrate before whom a case is pending is the Treasury Officer and has very little time at his disposal, owing to his duties as a Treasury Officer, is not a sufficient reason for directing a transfer of a case from his Court.—20 Cr. 402 (Pat).

23. (5) Where the District Magistrate, transferred a ground was no ground at all and the second had no force as there was no regular affidavit but simply a statement not duly verified and there was no statement as to the time when the request was made.—2 Weir 686

24. (6) Where a Magistrate in the course of a local investigation, collects evidence and acquires a large amount of information, which, considering the nature of the proceedings, he had to consider in arriving at a judicial determination but which he could not legally use for that purpose, the case ought to be transferred to some other Magistrate even if the Magistrate tenders himself as a witness in the trial and allows the parties to cross-examine him.—21 C. 920-20 W. R. 76

II. STAGE AT WHICH THE TRANSFER CAN BE MADE.

25. Supplementary trial.—Where one of several persons sent up for trial on a charge of rioting had been convicted but the Magistrate had refused to issue process against the others—held—that the District Magistrate had jurisdiction under S 528 Cr P. C to withdraw the case to his own file and issue warrants.—5 C N 455

26. During trial.—A District Magistrate should not withdraw to his file a case which was being tried by a Deputy Magistrate who was about to frame charges and dismiss it. He should leave the case to be disposed of by the latter.—30 C 693 (81) A N 53 2 Weir 691

[Note.—It is not competent to a District Magistrate to transfer a case under S 528 Cr. P. C. on the ground that no offence was made out against the accused and that no charge could be framed as they were protected by the warrant [30 C 693] or that the case was not under S. 500 but under S 501 P. C. and ought to be tried summarily [(1915) Pat 78]. The case must be left to the discretion of the trying Magistrate and it was the latter who was to determine whether the offence charge was made out.]

27. After record.—Taluk submit to the Head Assistant Magistrate for enhancement of sentence

The District Magistrate transferred the case to the Joint Magistrate—Held—that the transfer by the District Magistrate was not irregular.—2 Weir 690 But See 38 B 719

28. Can a complaint be transferred before decision to issue process?—A District Magistrate can upon the application of the accused person, withdraw a complaint from one subordinate Magistrate and refer it to such other Magistrate even before a decision to issue process against the accused has been reached.—7 N. 97 But See 4 N 81.

29. Transfer should not be made after close of the prosecution case.—Where the transfer was made after all the witnesses for the prosecution had been examined, the order was set aside in 6 M. T. 14.

30. Transfer should not be when the Magistrate is about to commit.—Where a certain number of witnesses had been examined by the Magistrate and the case had reached a stage when all that remained to be done was either to discharge or commit the accused to the Sessions—held that a transfer at that stage could not properly be made.—2 Weir 691 (Paleria)
31. Power to call for proceedings at any stage.—The Magistrate of the District has authority to call up to his own Court any criminal jurisdiction of his Magistracy, he would not merely be competent but bound to refuse to proceed further with the case.—21 W. R. 4.

III. PROCEDURE.

32. Transfer at the request of trying Magistrate.—When a case, was in effect transferred at the request of the trying Magistrate, and not on the application of a party no notice is necessary.—24 M. 317
33. After transfer.—The District Magistrate after withdrawing a case from the file of a subordinate Magistrate must proceed de novo. The omission to do so is an illegality which can be cured by the consent of the prisoner or S 537 Cr P. C.—6 O. C. 192. 12 C. N. 140. 33 C. 649. 21 W. R. 52, 53; 14 A. 346. 12 A. 66; ('59) A. N. 130; 2 Weir 152; 690; Con 32 M. 218. 35 C. 457-12 A. J. 467.

[Note.—But when the accused do not object to the Magistrate's acting on the evidence recorded before the transfer, the High Court will not interfere.—14 W. R. 3]

Is notice to the opposite side necessary?

34. (1) The section does not make any express provision for notice but the Courts generally agree that "though the section does not expressly require a notice to be given to the other side, on general principles when one party makes an application for transfer, the other party is entitled to a notice before an order of transfer is made"—8 C. 393. 7 C. 35. (2) It is highly inexpedient to transfer a case from one Magistrate to another after the prosecution had closed its case and the defence is to be begun without giving notice to the complainant or recording reasons—Rat 590. 21 B. R. 270. See 5 S. 190. 6 M. T. 14
36. (3) "It may be, as contended by the Public Prosecutor, that the law entitles the complainant to no notice, when a Magistrate proposes to act under S 528 Cr P. C. At the same time, it is obvious that when the complainant has obtained an order of transfer from a competent Magistrate who made that order after hearing both the parties, a Magistrate of superior jurisdiction should not cancel the order and retransfer the case to the original Magistrate without hearing the complainant in support of the order of transfer which he had obtained"—Per Rahim J. in 22 Cr. 199 (M).

37. (1) When the District Magistrate suo motu transfers a case, no notice to the accused is necessary.—3 P. R. 1910. See 24 M. 317. 22 B. 549; 28 P. R. 1902.

38. (1) Where a District Magistrate withdrew a case without notice and no further proceedings had been taken by him, the High Court refused to interfere in revision, as it was still open to the District Magistrate to consider any objection made to him—20 C. 513

39. (6) When a case is transferred to another Magistrate, notice of transfer should be given to the complainant as well as to the accused—3 C. N. cclxxxv.

40. Effect of omission to state reasons for transfer only an irregularity.—See Note No. 18 abote.

41. Complaints against police officers.—By virtue of Government order, the District Magistrates, have been directed to withdraw all cases in which complaints had been made against a police officer. In such cases no notice to the complainant is necessary. 28 A. 421

42. Opportunity to the trying Magistrate.—In the matter of a transfer application, if there be any allegation against the trying Magistrate, opportunity should be given to him to answer them—5 B. R. 28

43. Transfer of the case—meaning.—A transfer of the case means the transfer of the whole case. After transferring a case, a Magistrate ceased to exercise any jurisdiction and had no power to issue warrants which the Magistrate to whom the case was transferred had refused—32 C. 782; 12 W. R. 53. 3 B. L. (app) cl. See 27 C. 979; 3 C. N. 490. 30 C. 499. 4 C. N. 212. 3 O. J. 57.

Note.—When a case has been transferred to a Magistrate after the issue of process to the accused, the Magistrate to whom it is transferred, cannot dismiss the case under S 203—19 W. R. 28.

44. Note per contra.—In 39 C. 119, a Police Sub Inspector filed a complaint to a Subdivisional Magistrate under S 399 I P C. The facts also disclosed an offence under S 4 (b) of the Explosives Act (VI of 1908). As the cognizance of the latter offence could only be taken after obtaining Government sanction and no sanction had been obtained, the Magistrate allowed time for the production of the sanction. After obtaining had no jurisdiction to entertain the complaint in as much as he had not withdrawn the original case to his own file, held that the Additional Magistrate had jurisdiction to take cognizance of the offence, and that the initiation and continuation of the proceedings by him were legal—39 C 119.

IV. POWERS OF THE DISTRICT AND SUBDIVISIONAL MAGISTRATE.

Subject shall not be

Co-ordinate powers.

46. (1) In the matter of a transfer under S 528 Cr P C, a District Magistrate and a subdivisional Magistrate have co-ordinate authority over Magistrates subordinate to the latter and therefore an order passed by the subdivisional Magistrate cannot be recalled.

as to call for the record and report the matter under S 435 Cr P C for orders of the High Court—26 M, 130 13 Cr 782 (A)

47. (2) Where a Magistrate acts on his own initiative in transferring a case, his order is not vitiated by the fact that another Magistrate of co-ordinate authority has refused it. But if he examines the reasons given by a co-ordinate authority and finds that authority is wrong, that is interfering by way of appeal which he has no jurisdiction to do—14 M 399 5 L W 372

- 47A. (3) Note per contra—There is nothing in S 528 Cr P C to support the view that the subdivisional Magistrate having previously refused to transfer the case at the request of the same party, the District Magistrate was precluded from exercising his power of transfer. The distinction in this respect between orders passed by the District Magistrate ex officio and orders passed on petitions by parties appears to be without foundation—40 M 791

V. CHANGE IN THE LAW.

55. Proposed changes—

- (1) By adding subs (2a) the powers of the Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate is sought to be enlarged. It will be seen that the power of

as a Magistrate within the meaning of S 528 Cr P C

48. In case of village Magistrates—the power to transfer under S. 528 is limited to cases of petty thefts which a village Magistrate is empowered by Reg. IV, of 1921 to try and punish—26 M 394 see 15 M. 94.

49. Village Patel acting under S. 6 of village Police Act (Bombay Act VIII of 1867)—does not act judicially and the District Magistrate therefore is not competent to transfer a case under S. 6 from his file under S. 528 Cr P C. 10 B R. 630.

50. Cantonment Magistrate.—Sec. 7 of Act XIII of 1889 makes the Cantonment Magistrate subordinate to the District Magistrate and the latter can therefore decide under S 528 Cr P C whether a case pending before the former should be transferred or not—Rat 649 [9 B 100 R]

51. Transfer to an Additional District Magistrate.—The Code does not define the relations between a District Magistrate and an Additional District Magistrate. S 12 Cr. P C does not make an Additional District Magistrate appointed under subs (2) of S 10 of the Code, subordinate to a District Magistrate, who therefore has no power under S 528 Cr P C to transfer cases to the former—34 C. 918.

52. Subordination of all Magistrates in the District to the District Magistrate.—A Magistrate who is subordinate to a subdivisional Magistrate is also subordinate to the District Magistrate within the meaning of S. 528 Cr P C—14 M 399

53. Power to transfer to his own file.—A Magistrate authorised under S 528 to transfer a case is competent to withdraw it to his own file—9 Cr 310 (M)

54. Magistrate gazetted as Chairman of a Municipal Board.—See Note No. 58 post

56. Reasons for transfer.—Under the old Code of 1861 [See S 36]. A Magistrate was not required to state reasons for transferring a case [14 W R. 12]. Under the present section [See subs (1)] a Magistrate is bound to record reasons, although a failure to do so does not necessarily invalidate proceedings subsequent to transfer

VI. MISCELLANEOUS.

57. Prosecution for defamatory statements in a petition for transfer.—The allegations are privileged. The English Common law right of absolute privilege in respect of judicial proceedings is applicable to India. 23 M J 39 40 C. 441. But See 40 C 433.

58. Magistrate gazetted to the office of the and the latter has no power to transfer criminal cases to the former for trial.—36 A 513

59. What is not a legal transfer.—Where no order of transfer, as required by S. 523, had been made, but the only intimation of transfer was a letter from the District Magistrate to the Superintendent of Police, held, that the transfer was not a legal transfer.—2 Weir 691 (Lakshminarayana).

CHAPTER XLV

OF IRREGULAR PROCEEDINGS.

GENERAL NOTES ON CHAPTER XLV.

1. Scope of the Chapter.—The word "irregularity" may be defined as a deviation from an established rule of law or practice. Irregularity is serious or grave when it is not merely technical or formal. When the irregularity is so serious that it has led to a deprivation of the subject of a fundamental right, the legitimate inference will be, unless the contrary is established, that a failure of justice has occurred. Such an irregularity is known to law as "material." Irregularity generally be ignored or, in legal parlance, "cured." In the latter case the Superior Court will as a rule interfere, as condonation of material errors or defects in the proceedings may lead to a subversion of the procedure deliberately laid down by the Legislature. The law has laid down certain safeguards, to protect, as far as possible, the liberty of the subject. The rules are framed so as to ensure not only the regularity in the conduct of legal proceedings but also to provide substantial and effective checks on the exercise of those judicial powers which the law has vested in the Judge. The rules are, as it were, well marked channels along which the very large measure of discretion left to the Judge is designed to flow. When a Judge therefore by following an irregular course, has cast to the winds the safeguards and checks provided by law, the Superior Court will presume that a failure of justice has occurred, and the proceedings of the Judge will be set aside as vitiated by serious informality or illegality. The errors which can be cured by the various provisions of Chapter XLV, and in particular by S. 537, are therefore formal defects of procedure and not substantial defects. The Chapter has not the effect of curing material irregularities or absolute illegalities.

2. Duty to observe forms laid down by law.—In all criminal matters, the utmost strictness must be observed and forms must be closely compiled with where the liberty of the subject is

3. The rule where the matter is one of discretion and not of law.—"When a tribunal is invested by Act of Parliament or by rules, with a discretion without any indication in for if the Act or rule did not fetter the discretion of the Judge, why should the Court do so?" (Gardner v Jay 29 Ch D 60(58) Saunders v Saunders 66 L J P 57 41 C 446 (S. B.))

4. Analogous Law.—"No indictment is insufficient nor can the trial, judgment or other proceedings thereon be affected by reason of an imperfection in matters of form, which does not tend to the prejudice of the substantial rights of the defendant on the merits" [N Y Cr. P. Code, S 285. See also, People v Williams 18 State Rep 405.] In England, also, a Court of Appeal will not interfere unless it is satisfied on considering the case as a whole, that an error of law or fact has led to a substantial miscarriage of justice.—[See Statute 7 Edward VII, C 23 S. 4 R. 1 Spec. 4 Cr App R 42.]

5. Privy Council view as to remedying of irregularities.—"The remedying of irregularities is familiar in most systems of jurisprudence, but it would be an extraordinary extension of such a branch of administering the criminal law to say that when the Code positively enacts that such a trial as that which has taken place here shall not be permitted, that this contravention of the Code comes within the description of error, omission or irregularity"—25 M. 61 (P. C.)—L R 28 I A 217

6. Policy of the Chapter.—"I think the policy of the Criminal Procedure Code, as shown by sections 531 to 535, is to uphold, in most cases, the orders passed by the Criminal Court, which was lacking in local jurisdiction or which had committed irregularities or illegalities, unless failure of justice has been occasioned or is to be occasioned through such want of jurisdiction or such illegalities or irregularities."—Per Sadayam Aiyar J. in 42 M. 791.

7. Will consent or waiver cure a material irregularity?—"Criminal proceedings are had unless they are conducted in the manner prescribed by law, and if they are substantially bad in themselves, the defect will not be cured by any waiver or consent of the prisoner. When the irregularities are all unfavourable to the prisoner, it is impossible for any Court to consider a waiver or consent as binding on him. It is the duty of Magistrates and all Criminal Court to follow the procedure prescribed by the law, and there is no law which sanctions their intentional departure from that procedure, and then attempting to protect themselves against the consequences of such departure by getting the accused to say he consents to it. In the mofassil, most prisoners are not properly defended, and would probably assent to any irregularity which the Judge or Magistrate, or even him chosen to suggest. There would be an end of all procedure, if such an assent were held to warrant material and important irregularities"—2 C. 23 6 C 95. 12 C N. 146 10 C J 482. 25 P R 1905. Con 29 M J 329.

8. The rule as to waiver.

- (1) If an irregularity takes place and is allowed to pass unheeded and unnoticed, and a fresh proceeding follows founded upon the irregularity and conviction follows, then after conviction, the accused party cannot raise the intermediate irregularity, in an antecedent proceeding, as a ground for challenging the validity of the subsequent proceeding—Per Antulison J. in 2 Pat J. 533. Bat see 21 Cr. 29 (Pat)
- (2) Where objection to the want of jurisdiction was not taken seriously during the trial and the petition of appeal to the High Court did not show that the petitioner was in any way prejudiced, the High Court declined to interfere [21 W. R. 85]
- (3) A conviction would not be set aside owing to a defect in the initiation of the proceedings, especially when the point was not raised in the first Court—40 C. 360,
- (4) An objection to the trial of a case with the aid of assessors, when it is triable by a Judge and jury should be taken at the trial before the Court of Session and an omission so as to take it is fatal to such a contention when raised in appeal, though the accused had been materially prejudiced thereby, e.g. where the assessors found him not guilty, while the Judge dissenting from the opinion convicted him—23 M. 632.

9. Objection taken in the proper time.—Where a Magistrate, being empowered to commit to Sessions but having no territorial jurisdiction over the place in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, commits a case to the Sessions Court, which has jurisdiction over the place, the commitment is valid, and cannot be quashed under S. 532 Cr. P. C. although the objection to such commitment is taken before the commitment—17 M. 402: 15 A. 350: See B. 312: 16 B. 200.

10. S. 537 is not intended to cover deliberate disregard of law.—(1) "To my mind nothing is clear and that is that S 537 was clearly never intended to allow a Magistrate to overlook the clear provisions of the Code. The section was intended to prevent a mere technicality from interfering with the course of justice, the error omission etc., being one which had escaped the parties at the beginning of the proceeding. Where, however, as in the present case, the want of sanction was at once brought to the attention of the Court, it was clearly the duty of the Magistrate to refuse to take cognizance of the complaint, (and in such case the irregularity cannot be cured by an application of S. 537)—Per Tudball J. in 37 A. 293: [Fd. in 42 A. 12].

[Note.—This ruling is dissented from in 35 M. J. 259, by Sadayam Aiyar J. but with due respect to the remarks of that learned Judge, the editor submits that the dictum of Tudball J. is based on a sounder interpretation of the scope of S 537].

- (2) A disregard of the express provisions of the law is not a mere irregularity which can be condoned or remedied but an illegality and the Court cannot maintain or overlook an illegal order upon any ground of administrative convenience—20 C. 105 (N)
11. Prejudice may be inferred from deprivation from rights.—If it appears that the constitution and procedure of the Court in which the trial ought to have taken place, are different from the constitution and procedure of the Court in which the trial has in fact taken place, the accused would necessarily be prejudiced.—13 B L (appx) 4.

Irregularities which do not vitiate proceedings.

529. If any Magistrate not empowered by law to do any of the following things, namely.—

- (a) to issue a search-warrant under section 95
- (b) to order under section 155, the police to investigate an offence;
- (c) to hold an inquest under section 176;
- (d) to issue process, under section 186, for the apprehension of a person within the local limits of his jurisdiction who has committed an offence outside such limits;
- (e) to take cognizance of an offence under section 190, sub-section (1), clause (a) or clause (b);
- (f) to transfer a case under section 192,

- (g) to tender a pardon under section 337 or section 338,
- (h) to sell property under section 524 or section 525; or
- (i) to withdraw a case and try it himself under section 528;

erroneously in good faith does that thing, his proceedings shall not be set aside merely on the ground of his not being so empowered.

Notes.

1. Meaning good of faith.—(1) 'A thing shall be deemed to be done in good faith, where it is in fact done honestly whether it is done negligently or not' [S. 3 (20) of the General Clauses Act 1897]
- (2) Nothing is said to be done or believed in good faith which is done or believed without due care and attention—"S 52 I P C

Clause (a)—Search warrant.

2. The District Magistrate on receiving information of the commission of an offence—cannot issue a search warrant under S. 96 para (1) Cr P C before he has acted judicially upon the information so received and without making any investigation, inquiry or trial under S 94 Cr. P. C. [22 B 549 F] S 537 cannot give legal effect to a defective warrant—[35 C 1070. See 11 C N 836]

Clause (b)—order to police to investigate

3. When a police officer receives information of the commission of non-cognisable offence—he can instead of referring the informant to a Magistrate under S 155 Cl (1) report the case to a Magistrate for orders under Cl. (2) and the Magistrate can in such circumstances order an investigation without first taking cognizance of the offence under S 190 S 155 (2) read with S 529 (b) and Schedule III II (2) leave no doubt on the point—6 M T 254

Clause (c).

4. Erroneous cognizance of complaint requiring sanction under S. 195 Cr. P. C.—Where one J presented a written complaint to the District Magistrate alleging that from certain proceedings in the Munsiff's Court in execution of a decree it appeared that A J had given criminal case or the execution proceedings and apparently had no personal concern in either case. Held that the District Magistrate had not, in the circumstances, jurisdiction to entertain the complaint under S 190 (1) (a), but in view of S. 529 Cr P C the error would be curable—13 P. W 1913

Clause (f)—Transfer.

5. Transfer of a case under S. 110.—Where a District Magistrate transferred a case under S 110—held—that he had power to do so and even if he had not, it was a mere irregularity covered by S. 529 Cr. P. C. [35 C 243]

6. Cases under S. 145 Cr. P. C.—(1) A subordinate Magistrate cannot be empowered under S. 192 (2) Cr. P. C. to transfer proceedings under S. 145 Cr P Code But such a transfer under S. 192 (2) is a defect curable by S. 529 Cr. P. C. [36 C. 370; See 4 C N. 821] See Note No. 7 under S. 192 Cr P C (p. 331 Supra)

7. (2) A case under S. 145 is a criminal case, and a Magistrate has power to transfer it under S. 192 and 528 of the Code Even if there were any irregularity it is cured by S. 529 (f) of the Code.—2 C J. 614

Transfer by a Magistrate not authorised—

8. (1) A Magistrate having no power to transfer a case under S 192 Cr. P. C. transferred it to another Magistrate Held that the irregularity is one covered by S. 529 cl (f) 36 C. 869. But See 617 P. L 1904.

[Note.—A Deputy Magistrate in charge of the District Magistrate's office at head-quarter, has no power as such, after taking cognizance of a complaint and examining the complainant on oath, to send the case under S 202 Cr. P. C. for local investigation by the Subdivisional Officer to whom he is by law Subordinate. The Effect of S 529 (f) could be only to give the Subdivisional Magistrate jurisdiction over the case, but not to empower the Deputy Magistrate to dismiss the complaint and direct the prosecution of the complainant—16 C. N 885]

9. (2) A Taluq 2nd class Magistrate has no power to transfer a case to a Sheristadar 2nd class Magistrate. But such a transfer does not vitiate the subsequent proceedings—1 Weir 152. See (10) U B 4—q p 70

10. (3) Retransfer.—The transfer by a Subdivisional Magistrate of a case under S 192 Cr. P. C. when the case has already been transferred to him by the District Magistrate is a mere irregularity covered by S 529 Cr. P. C—21 Cr. 96 (Pat): See Note No 1 under S 192 (p 330 Supra).

11. Transfer to Bench Magistrates.—A second class Bench tried regularly a case under S. 456 I P C which was transferred to them by the District Magistrate and acquitted the accused, held that the proceedings of the Bench were not void under rule 4 of the Local Government rules made under Ss. 15 and 16 Cr. P. C.—(10) U. B 4—q-70

Clause (g).

12. Effect of tender of pardon by a Magistrate not having local jurisdiction.—S. 529 deals with acts done by a Magistrate in no way empowered by law to do those acts has no reference to a Magistrate empowered otherwise under the Act to tender pardon, but not possessing jurisdiction over the particular offence. So the Magistrate of Etah was held to be incompetent to tender pardon to one of the accused concerned in a case which was being enquired into by the Magistrate of Mattra—20 A. 40.

Note.—When a pardon has been tendered and accepted in good faith, the fact that the Magistrate has no power to tender such pardon is a defect expressly cured by S. 529 (g) Cr. P. C.—1 P. R. 1898

530. If any Magistrate, not being empowered by law in this behalf, does any of the following irregularities which vitiate proceedings in things, namely —

- (a) attaches and sells property under section 88 ;
 - (b) issues a search-warrant for a letter, parcel or other thing in the Post Office, or a telegram in the Telegraph Department ,
 - (c) demands security to keep the peace ,
 - (d) demands security for good behaviour ;
 - (e) discharges a person lawfully bound to be of good behaviour ,
 - (f) cancels a bond to keep the peace .
 - (g) makes an order under section 133 as to a local nuisance .
 - (h) prohibits, under section 143, the repetition or continuance of a public nuisance ;
 - (i) issues an order under section 144 ,
 - (j) makes an order under Chapter XII ,
 - (k) takes cognizance, under section 190, sub-section (1), clause (c) of an offence ;
 - (l) passes a sentence, under section 349, on proceedings recorded by another Magistrate ;
 - (m) calls, under section 435, for proceedings ;
 - (n) makes an order for maintenance ;
 - (o) revises, under section 515, an order passed under section 514 ;
 - (p) tries an offender ,
 - (q) tries an offender summarily ; or
 - (r) decides an appeal ;
- his proceedings shall be void.

Notes.

1. Scope of S. 530.—The section is not exhaustive. it declares that certain proceedings of Magistrates shall be void but makes no reference to orders of Sessions Judges. Still no judicial officer can try either an original case or an appeal unless he is empowered by law to do so. His authority is derived solely from the Legislature, and his appointment under the law enacted by it. Where therefore a Sessions Judge dealt with a petition for revision as if it were an appeal in a case in which no appeal lay to him, held, that the order of the Sessions Judge was void within the meaning of that term as used in this section.—4 L. B. 49
2. Can an order which is void be treated as a mere nullity without being set aside?—In 4 L. B. 49 (50), it is laid down that an order which is void cannot be treated as a mere nullity so long as it has not been set aside.—But see 8 B. 307 11 C.L. 55; 21 C. N. 518; 29 C. 412; 2 N. 149; also 12 C. N. 240.

Clause (c).

3. See Note No 19 under S. 106 (p. 106 supra) and as to the procedure to be adopted by Magistrates not empowered in that behalf when they think that it is necessary to bind down the accused.—See Note No 15 (ibid)

Clause (d).

4. Issue of notice by Magistrate not empowered.—The issue of notice by a Magistrate without jurisdiction cannot be justified on the ground that it was drawn up under orders from the District Magistrate. A defect in the issue of the notice is not a mere irregularity, but the question is one of jurisdiction and falls under S. 530 Cr. P. C.—(18) M. N. 751. [41 M. 246; 13 C. N. 580; 31 C. 350; 24 A. 151; Relied on]. But see 19 Cr. 226 (C)

Clause (j).

6. When proceedings of a Magistrate under Ch. XII not having local jurisdiction is not void.—Note No 514 under S. 145 (p 251 supra).

(Clause k).

7. Second complaint on same facts.—Where a complaint under Ss 409 and 477-A I P C was by mistake made over to an Honorary Magistrate of the second class and the latter dealt with the case as one under S. 409 and acquitted the accused, held that regard being had to S 530(k) and S. 403 Cr. P. C. the District Magistrate cannot be said to have erred in entertaining a second complaint under Ss 409 and 477-A I P C after the acquittal.—23 C N 518 See 29 C 412-8 B 307.

13. Case under Bombay Act IV of 1863 (Public Conveyances Act).—A third class Magistrate trying an offender under S. 2 of the Act, when not specially empowered by the Local Government, acts without jurisdiction and his proceedings are void under cl (p)—Rat 921 (Ram bin)
14. Irregular proceedings by Bench Magistrates.—A conviction by a Bench of five Magistrates one of whom did not hear all the evidence is illegal [38 M 304 23 C 191 20 C 870: 18 M. 394] For a conviction by a Bench of Magistrates to be legal, it must be by a quorum of the Magistrates as required by the rules, each member of which has heard the whole evidence in the case [13 S 166] It is illegal for a Bench of Honorary Magistrates to convict in a case in which the evidence is recorded and the judgment delivered in the absence of one of the members of the Bench [26 M T. 362] See Notes No 3 and 4 under S 15 Supra (p. 23); also (10) U. B. 4-q 70
15. Acquittal by a Magistrate having jurisdiction.—An acquittal by a Magistrate having no jurisdiction is simply void under S 530 supra. The accused may therefore be retried under S 403 by a competent Court without having the acquittal set aside.—8 B 307. 7 P R 1910 But See 4 L B 49 (50)
16. Commitment without jurisdiction.—Where a commitment was made without jurisdiction the High Court treated the commitment as void and considered it unnecessary that a reference should have been made to have it set aside.—11 C L 55 See however 21 W R 37.
17. Trial of a major offence as a minor offence.—A Magistrate of the second class filed a second complaint before the Additional District Magistrate who took cognizance thereof, held that the proceedings could not be set aside, unless they had occasioned a failure of justice having regard to the provisions of S. 529(c), 530(k) and 531 Cr P C.—39 C 119 See 21 W R 88

9. Meaning of "cognizance of an offence suo motu."—See Note No 17 under S 190 (p 326 supra) also Notes No 38 to 57 (ibid) at pp 327 to 329 (supra) See also Note Mo 3 (ibid) at p 325 supra)

—An order of commitment is an order within the meaning of S 531 [16 B. 200 17 M. 402 36 M. 357: See 7 Bur T 26] Under S. 531 a commitment to a Court of Session which has no territorial jurisdiction, ought not to be quashed unless a failure of justice would be caused by proceeding with the trial [8 B. 312: 16 B. 200: 17 M. 402: 18 A. 350 2 B. R. 394: See 10 B. 274] In S B. 312 and 18 A. 350 the case was transferred to the proper forum

10. The Distinction between defect of jurisdiction and only of venue.—Trying a case in a District which has not local jurisdiction is not a defect of jurisdiction but only of venue and can be cured by S 531 Cr P C [2 P. R. 1902 44 P. R. 1855] The words "other local area" meet the difficulty which arises when an offence is committed during a contiguous journey through a number of local areas [See c g—1 M. II. 193 (drunkenness of a guard in charge of a train)—21 W. R. 66=13 B. L. (ap) 4 (offence committed during a journey by railway from Bombay to Calcutta): See also 25 W. R. 45 Rat 181] As to cases falling within the scope of S 179 Cr P C and 182 [See 18 P. W. 1908 (F. B.) 24 P. R. 1901 (F. B.) 32 A. 397] where it was contended that the accused was found within the Municipal limits and not within the cantonment limits and that his trial by the cantonment Magistrate was consequently illegal, held that there should be no ground to interfere unless it could be shown that failure of justice had in fact been occasioned by the error of venue—[12 Cr. 230 (L. B.)]

11. Magistrate retaining case on his file after transfer.—Cases on the file of one Magistrate in a district does not pass automatically to his successor in the local area merely because the former has been transferred to another local area in the same district and there is nothing in S 12 Cr P C which supports such a procedure. Even if there is any irregularity, the same is cured by S 531 Cr P C. [34 A. 203]

12. Trial of appeal outside the jurisdiction of the Sessions Court.—Where a criminal appeal was presented by a Sessions Judge at a place within his jurisdiction but was heard and disposed of at a place outside the local limits of his criminal jurisdiction but within the limits of his civil jurisdiction, held that the procedure adopted was an irregularity but was covered by the provisions of S 531, and that the finding would not be set aside, unless a failure of justice has been occasioned by it—[17 A. 36 (F. trial before a Court of Session or High Court, the Court to which the commitment is made may, after perusal of the proceedings, accept the commitment if it considers that the accused has not been injured thereby, unless during the inquiry and before the order of commitment, objection was made on behalf either of the accused or of the prosecution to the jurisdiction of such Magistrate or other authority.

(2) If such Court considers that the accused was injured, or if such objection was so made, it shall quash the commitment and direct a fresh inquiry by a competent Magistrate

Notes.

Scope of S. 532.

- (1) Section 532 of the Code applies only to a case where a Magistrate or other authority purporting to exercise powers duly conferred which are not so conferred, commits an accused person to a Court of Sessions. It has no application to a case where the Court of Sessions considers that a commitment made by a competent Court is illegal—43 B. 147.

- (2) S 532 applies only to cases when the Magistrate or other authority who has assumed to commit has not been duly invested with the powers under which he assumes to make the commitment, i. e. when the defect is one personal to the committing officer and not to a defect in his proceeding and that section is not applicable to a Magistrate duly empowered to commit.—[16 P. R. 1890] S. 532 seems to refer to cases in which the Magistrate is competent to deal with the offence as having taken place within the local limits of his jurisdiction but has no power to commit to the High Court or Court of Sessions, either because he is only a second class Magistrate or for some reason other than that of local jurisdiction—[16 B. 200; See 26 M. 640; 17 M. 402]

3. (3) Where a Magistrate inquires into and commits the case regarding an offence which has taken place and has been completed in another District, to the Court of Sessions to which commitments from his district are made, the Sessions Judge of that district should not accept the commitment on the ground that the accused has not been prejudiced thereby. The proceedings in such a case are illegal ab initio—3 A 238. See 10 B. 274
- 3A. (4) See 532 Cr P C does not deal with cases in which the defect in the committal order arises from want of territorial jurisdiction—20 Cr. 416 (M)
4. S. 532 does not apply to commitments under S. 346 Cr. P. C.—A commitment made to the Sessions by a Magistrate acting under the powers conferred by S 346 is not illegal, merely because he has not examined de novo the witnesses who were examined by the Magistrate who submitted the case under the provisions of that section. To the case of an accused thus committed to the Court of Sessions, S 532 has no application—12 C N. 138.
5. Commitment under S. 436 Cr. P. C.—Where a commitment was made to the Court of the Resident at Aden in respect of an offence committed at Perim by the officer in command of the troops stationed at Perim, held that the commitment was illegal and the sentence of death was annulled—[10 B 263] Where however a trial under a commitment made by an erroneous order of Sessions Judge has been held and no actual failure of justice has been caused by such error, S 283 Cr. P. C. would be a bar to the reversal of the judgment—[7 C 663]
6. Commitment under S. 477 Cr. P. C.—A Sessions Judge has no power to commit to itself a person charged with giving false evidence before it under S 193 I P. C. Such a commitment is not curable under this section.—21 W R. 37 4 C 570 But See 3 B L. (A. C.) 35
7. When a commitment should not be quashed.—Where the accused having been wrongly committed has pleaded to the charge, the commitment would not be quashed.—[12 C. L. 120]

But See G C 584] A commitment which is transferred cannot be quashed by the Court to which it is transferred [Cr. R. case 42 of 1904 (M)]

8. Want of the Political Agent's certificate not curable by S. 532 Cr. P. C.—The certificate of a Political Agent is a preliminary requisite to the initiation of criminal proceedings in British India against a Native Indian subject for offence committed in foreign territory. The want of such a certificate is not a defect curable by S. 532 Cr. P. C.—13 M. 423 2 Weir 148 24 B. 257 8 B R. 513; 19 A. 100; 24 A 256. See 5 M 23; 16 C. 667. be prosecuted under S 211 I P. C for information given to him, and gives evidence himself in support of that charge no serious irregularity can arise in the conviction of the accused in proceedings initiated upon that report, and if there is any irregularity at all, it is certainly cured by S 532 Cr P C—40 C. 360 [33 C 20 D]

11. (3) Where an order of the Local Government did not expressly authorise a complaint under S. 121 I P C, held that the Magistrate had no power to commit under that section, and the defect was not cured by an order subsequently obtained while the case was before the Court of Sessions, by S. 532—37 C 487. Con 22 B. 112.
12. (4) A conviction under S. 19 (f), Act XI of 1875 is illegal, where no previous sanction of the District Magistrate under S. 29 was obtained. Where sanction is obtained after commitment, neither S 532 nor S 537 Cr. P. C. can cure the omission—3 M T 162. But see 4 L B. 247

533. (1) If any Court, before which a confession or other statement of an accused person

Non-compliance with provisions of section 164 or 364 recorded or purporting to be recorded under section 164 or section 364 is tendered or has been received in evidence, finds that any of the provisions of either of such sections have not been complied with by the Magistrate recording the statement, it shall take evidence that such person duly made the statement recorded; and notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, section 91, such statement shall be admitted if the error has not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits.

(2) The provisions of this section apply to Courts of appeal, Reference and Revision.

Notes.

1. Change of Law.—It is worthy of note that the word "fully" which stood after the words "have not been" in the Code of 1882 does not appear in the present Code.
2. Oral evidence of confession not reduced to writing not admissible.—See Note No. 117 under S. 164 (p 289 supra): 2 L B 317
3. S. 533 applies to confessions as well as other statements.—The Code of 1899 has placed both the statement of an accused recorded full operation, when not expressly mentioned. Thus when it is enacted "such statement" (i.e., the recorded statement) the meaning is that the document shall not be excluded merely by reason of the error of the recording Magistrate but shall be admitted, as a matter of a criminal procedure, subject to any just exception under the Evidence Act other than an objection under S. 91 of that Act—52 P R. 1887

11. Failure to warn the accused.—Where it does not appear from the record that the Magistrate recording a confession gave due warning to the accused, the confession is defective, but

Scope of the section—

4. (1) The scope of S 533 Cr P C. cannot be limited to any particular kind of non-compliance with S 364. No distinction can be drawn between a neglect to sign the confession or the certificate or to certify the facts requiring to be certified, and a neglect to record the examination in the prisoner's own language. In both cases, the statement would be inadmissible in evidence, if the accused would not be injured by such irregularities.—[21 B 495 See 3 Pat J 291 (F.B.)]
5. (2) No distinction can be drawn between omissions to comply with the law and infractions of it. Section 533 of the Code is intended to apply to all cases in which the directions of the law have not been fully complied with—23 B. 221 (225)
6. (3) As to how far a defective confession may be remedied under this section—See X Rectification of errors under S 164 supra (p 290) See 11 P. W 1915
7. (4) Confession not recorded in the language in which it is made.—See VII, Language in which confession is to be recorded under S 164 (p 287 supra). (91) A N 55 8 C P 21 3 C N cu
8. (5) The provisions of S 164 are imperative, and S. 533 will not render a confession admissible when no attempt at all has been made to conform to its provisions.—Per Parker J in 9 M 224 23 B 221 15 C. 595 17 C 862 See 7 O O 191
9. (6) Under S 533, when a confession or other statement of an accused person is duly made, i.e., made in accordance with the provisions of the law, but in recording it, those provisions have not been fully complied with, oral evidence is admissible to prove that the confession or other statement was duly made, or in other words when the defect, in recording the confession, or other statement of an accused person, is one not of substance but of form only, S 533 applies—2 C N 702 [Per Banerjee J].
10. (7) This section occurs in a chapter relating to irregular proceedings and their effect and it is presumably not intended to override the law of evidence, but to leave the law of evidence in

12. Where the recording Magistrate certifies confession 'not' to be voluntary, S. 533 has no application.—Where the Magistrate in the place of the certificate required by S 164 (3) Cr P C. wrote,—"I believe that this confession is not voluntary etc.", it was not

13. Confession recorded in a narrative form.—Where the Magistrate recorded the confession of an accused person in English in narrative form, though the confession was made in the form of question and answer, and afterwards translated it into the vernacular to the accused who admitted it to be correct, held that there was no irregularity in the manner of the record so as to render the confession inadmissible—(12) A. N 60 9 C J 55 14 C 539

14. Want of certificate.—See Notes No. 136 and 137 under S 164 (p 290 supra) The failure of a Magistrate to make a memorandum at the foot of a confession renders it inadmissible in evidence in the Sessions Court. The Sessions Judge should proceed under S 533 to take evidence that the accused duly made the statement recorded and he should then admit the statement "if the error of the Magistrate had not injured the accused as to his defence on the merits"—22 M 15 8 O C. 395 2 M 5

15. Omission to examine the accused at the trial.—It is not obligatory for the Sessions Judge to examine the accused under S. 342 Criminal Procedure Code, more especially where the accused has not challenged the evidence. Section 254 of the Code makes such examination optional with the Judge and not imperative.—9 C J. 55

16. Defects in examination.—If in an examination of the accused by the Magistrate some of the questions put are inquisitorial or in the nature of a cross-examination, that does not make the whole statement inadmissible.—9 C. J. 55

17. Confession recorded by Munshi.—The mere fact that the statement was actually written not by the Magistrate himself, but by the Munshi, does not in any way injure the accused as to his defence on the merits. Although the terms of Ss. 164 and 364 Criminal Procedure Code are to be strictly observed, i.e. by the Magistrate actually taking down the confession himself, such a defect can be cured by examining the Magistrate as provided by S. 533 Cr. P. C.—2 P. R. 19

[Note.—To avoid needless repetition the word is referred to S. 164; Ch. VII. Language which confession is to be recorded [p. 287]. Admissibility in evidence: [p. 289]; X Recognition of errors [p. 290 supra]

534. An omission to ask any person whether he is a European British subject, in a case

Omission to ask question prescribed by section 454 (2) which sub-section (2) of section 454 applies, shall not affect the validity of any proceeding.

Notes.

1. Duty to inform imperative.—When the accused is a European British subject, he must be informed of his right under the law to be tried according to the procedure laid down for the trial of European British subjects. An omission to do so vitiates the trial.—18 C. N. 385. But see 16 C. 616 (M) 5 P. R. 1885 1 Bur. S. 436 7 N. 93. See Note No. 8 at p. 790 supra

2. Suit for damages for omission to ask. A suit for damages will lie against a Magistrate who, having reason to believe that the accused is a European British subject, does not ask whether he is such, and proceeds to try him if he were not a European British subject. 2 M. I. A. 293

535. (1) No finding or sentence pronounced or passed shall be deemed invalid merely

Effect of omission to prepare charge. on the ground that no charge was framed, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal or revision, a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned thereby.

(2) If the Court of appeal or revision thinks that a failure of justice has been occasioned by an omission to frame a charge, it shall order that a charge be framed, and that the trial be recommenced from the point immediately after the framing of the charge.

Notes.

1. Scope of S. 535 Cr. P. C.—The language used in Ss. 535 and 232 Cr. P. C. shows that the omission to frame a charge is not a ground for revision, unless there has been a consequent miscarriage of justice. An omission to frame an alternative charge, comes under the very comprehensive words "error or irregularity" in any enquiry or other proceedings in S. 537 Cr. P. C.—(16) 2 M. N. 267. 26 R. 533.

2. Failure to frame a charge under S. 75 I. P. C. for previous conviction.—See Note No. 26 under S. 221 (p. 418 supra) also 7 M. T. 77

Omission to frame separate charges.—

3. (a) Fatal.—Two sets of persons cannot under S. 233 Cr. P. C. be jointly tried in the same cases merely because they have on the same date and in order to defraud the same person, executed knabulyats, as the two knabulyats so executed are separate transactions, [31 C. 1053] The miscarriage of charges is not curable by S. 535 Cr. P. C. [21 C. N. 750]

4. (b) Not Fatal.—Where three separate complaints were laid against the accused by the same complainant for cheating three different tenants, while engaged in the collection of rents on behalf of the complainant; Held that the defect of drawing up a single charge for three offences amounted to one of duplicity and not of mis-joinder. [Archbold Ed 1910 p. 76] The accused not having objected at the time of trial and not having been prejudiced in any way, the irregularity was cured by S. 535 Cr. P. C.—41 C. 66

5. Discharge without framing a charge. Where a Magistrate proceeding under Chap. XX called on the accused to produce witnesses without framing a charge, and after examining the defence witnesses, recorded an order which in form was one of discharge. Held that if the order had been one of acquittal, it could have been regular save for the omission to frame a formal charge and under S. 535 (1) the omission by itself would not have affected the validity of the order.—14 Cr. 1006 (L. B.) 29 P. R. 188. See 3 A. 129. 10 W. R. 7.

6. Omission to draw a fresh charge, where the first one is illegal.—An accused person was prosecuted under S. 19 (c) of the Arms Act without obtaining the previous sanction of the District Magistrate under S. 29 of the Act. Held the Magistrate cannot be said to be without jurisdiction to try the case merely because he framed the charge before receiving sanction and did not frame a fresh charge after receiving it. The defect was cured by S. 535 Cr. P. C.—41 C. 1247; but see 5 M. T. 162 (contra).

7. The meaning of "merely on the ground" that no charge was framed."—(1) The words "merely on the ground that no charge was framed" in S. 535 of the Cr P. Code mean a case where the offence being a petty one, and the evidence being fairly taken, the Court framed no charge at all. But where the Court frames a charge however erroneous, then it cannot be said that the conviction is invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed." (To such a case, S. 535 cannot apply).—40 C 164

I. OBJECT AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) The object of the Section.

1. (1) The object of the section is to cure mere irregularities and not to excuse a total disregard of law S 537 being expressly made subject to the provisions before contained in Code, cannot override them.—9 C N. 909
2. (2) S. 537 Cr P C is not intended to apply to a case which has not been finally disposed of.—23 C 943
3. (3) S 537 Cr P C was clearly never intended to allow a Magistrate to override the clear provisions of the Code. The section was intended to prevent a mere technicality from interfering with the course of justice, the error, omission etc., being one which had escaped all parties at the beginning of the proceeding.—37 A. 253 29 M. 237. 33 M. J. 79 13 M J A 77 11 B. H. (c. c.) 237.
4. (4) S 537 can only be used to repair irregularities which have not occasioned a failure of justice. It cannot make legal that which is illegal.—11 N. 36; 24 M J 341; 29 M. J. 101 (F. B.)
5. (5) S. 537 cl (a) which speaks of errors in proceedings before or during trial does not cover cases, where the trial itself is defective.—29 M. J. 101 (F. B.).

(2) Scope of the section.

6. (1) S 537 of the Cr P. C. does not empower the High Court in cases in which a verdict vitiated by reason of misdirection, to do the question whether the conviction is right by going into the evidence of the case. If it does so would be substituting its own decision for the verdict of the jury who have the opportunity marking the demeanour of witnesses.—21 C 955
7. (2) S 537 Cr P C. provides that no conviction shall be set aside merely for want of sanction under S 195 Cr P. C. But it would be going much further than this to pass orders in revising converting convictions under S 199 I. P. C respect of which no sanction is required to conviction under a section (e.g S 182 I. P. C.) respect of which sanction would be necessary (especially as the attention of the Magistrate who tried the case was drawn to the necessity of sanction.—15 Cr. 603 (L. B)

(3) The principle of the section explained

8. (1) There is a distinction between a case, which the trial itself is contrary to law in which event it is not trial at all under the Code as a case in which the trial is within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate and irregularities occur in the method of conducting it. In the latter case, the provisions of S. 537 are applicable and the finding can only be reversed if the irregularity has in fact occasioned a failure of justice—26 B 533

9. (2) Notwithstanding the omission of the particulars which a charge ought to contain, should the accused in fact be not misled by the omission and the omission did not occasion a failure of justice, the High Court as a Court of appeal will not reverse a conviction on the bare ground of irregularity—32 M 3: See 25 B. 90.
10. (3) Section 537 applies only when the irregularity complained of has been committed by a Court of competent jurisdiction. When the order is not made by a Court of competent jurisdiction, S. 537 has no application—16 B R. 84. 4 O J. 492. 16 W. R. 23 C 328 23 C. 422 19 Cr. 961 (C): See 10B 319
11. (4) An omission to frame an alternative charge comes under the very comprehensive words "error or irregularity in any enquiry or other proceeding" in S. 537. Cr. P. C. (16) 2 M. N. 207 26 B 533.
12. (5) Section 537 Cr. P. C. cannot be applied at an intermediate stage of the case so as to allow the error (want of sanction) to remain uncorrected—6 S. 260.

(4) S. 537 does not avail to cure the disobedience to an express provision as to a mode of trial.

13. In Subrahmanya Ayyar's case, a person was tried for 41 separate offences in direct contravention of S. 234 Cr P C and the question arose whether the irregularity in the trial is curable under S. 537 Cr P C. Their Lordships of the Privy Council observed as follows "the effect of the multitude of charges before the jury has not been averted by dissecting the verdict afterwards, and appropriating the finding of guilty only to such parts of the written accusation as ought to have been submitted to the jury. It would in the first place leave to the Court, the functions of the jury and the accused would never have really been tried at all upon the charge arranged afterwards by the Court. Their Lordships are unable to regard the disobedience to an express provision as to the mode of trial, as a mere irregularity. Such a phrase as an irregularity is not appropriate to the illegality of trying an accused person for many different offences at the same time, and those offences being spread over a longer period than by law could have been joined together in one indictment. The illustration of the section itself, shows what was meant. The remedying of irregularities is futile but it would be such a branch of law to say that such a branch here shall not be a part of the description of error, omission or irregularity. Some pertinent observation are made on the subject by Lord Herschell and Lord Russell of Killowen in Smurthwaite v. Hannay L. R. (1894) A. C. 491. Where in a civil case several causes of action were joined, Lord Herschell says that if unwarranted by any enactment or rule, it is much more than an irregularity, and Lord Russell of Killowen in the same case says 'such a joinder of plaintiffs is more than an irregularity, it is the constitution of a suit in a way not authorised by law and the rules applicable to procedure.—L. R. 23 I. A. 237=25 M. 81.=5 O. N. 866=3 B. R. 540.

Note.—This ruling simply deals with the effect of disobedience to an express provision of the law as to the mode of trial and in no way touches on the effect of an error of procedure antecedent to the trial or the jurisdiction of the Court.—36 M. 275 (6 M. 1 A. 134 Dist.).

(5) Distinction between an irregularity and an illegality.

14. "When a thing is directed to be done and the thing is in effect done, but in the wrong way, the error amounts to an irregularity and not an illegality."—Per Beachcroft J in 19 O. N. 972.

(6) Scope of the term "Subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained."

15. "It is clear from the wording of cl (b) of S. 537 Cr. P. C. and the explanation attached to it, that the qualifying words "subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained," do not refer to the entire Code that precedes the section but only the provisions of Chapter XLV, where the section occurs, i.e., Ss 529 to 536."—Per Sharfuddin and Beachcroft J J in 19 O. N. 972 [Fletcher J. contra]. See 31 M. 80. 29 M. 149: 17 M. J. 533. 27 C. 839. See 6 C. N. xlvii. Con. 22 C. 176: 9 C. N. 909. 23 C. 953 (900).

16. When an objection is taken on the ground of omission or irregularity to remain uncorrected,—23 C. 953 (900): See 6 S. 200.

(8) Consent of accused to irregular procedures.

17. Although the consent of the accused or his counsel, is presumptive evidence of the absence of prejudice, it does not prevent the Judge hearing the case, from deciding whether notwithstanding the consent of the accused, his case has been prejudiced by the irregularity—28 M. J. 329: But see 12 C N 140 10 C J 462 25 P R. 1905 2 C. 23 6 C 96 4 B. R. 53 7 B. R. 527 (531): 15 C.P. 66
18. Objection as to jurisdiction may be taken at any stage:—A plea of want of jurisdiction may be taken in the High Court, though not taken below [16 W R. 79]. The Code of Criminal Procedure does not empower a Sessions

Judge to try a case partly on evidence not recorded by himself and the consent on the part of the accused cannot rest in him the jurisdiction to do so [26 B. 50 : See 23 W R 59]

(9) Appellate Court cannot ignore the provision of Ss. 537 (b) Cr. P. C.

II. COMPLAINTS.

(1) Failure to examine the complainant under S. 200 Cr. P. C.

20. Failure to examine the complainant under S. 200 Cr P C is not fatal and amounts to an irregularity covered by S 537. 63 P L 1900 1 Pat J 592 11 P R 1911 9 A 606 11 M 443: Cr Rev case 398 of 1908 10 M. P C 6 C N 840
21. Note (1) The examination of a complainant under S 200 Cr. P C is a very valuable safeguard which the Legislature has provided and must be scrupulously observed and insisted upon, but under very exceptional circumstances the omission to examine the complainant may not vitiate a trial—20 Cr 247 (Pat) 21 Cr. 779 (Pat) See 35 M 606. 8 S 41: 37 A 618 11 A. J. 921. 15 C N 14 23 C N. 484 46 C. 607.
22. (2) "The omission to examine the complainant under S. 203 of the Code of 1882 (=S 200 of the present Code) amounted to only an irregularity of such a character as would be covered by the somewhat extensive provision of S 537"—Per Mahmood J in 9 A. 606
23. (3) Yaddast.—Where a Yaddast was sent by a teshildar to a third class Magistrate requesting him to take action against a person who had failed to obey summons, held, it was a complaint of facts constituting a complaint under S. 174 P. C. and the omission to examine the teshildar under S 200 was only an error of procedure which was cured by S 537 Cr P C 11 M. 443.
24. (7) Omission to examine the complainant.—Even assuming that the law required the Magistrate to examine the complainant, the omission to do so, when it has not prejudiced the complainant amounts only to an irregularity covered by S 537 Cr. P. C—(11) 2 M. N 350

(2) Trial without complaint is illegal.

25. Where a Magistrate convicted a person of an offence under the Railway Act without any sworn complaint before him but acting only on a private note from a Railway officer, held that the conviction is illegal. [4 B H. (C. C.) 4] S 53 does not refer to a total absence of complaint [4 P R 1917 29 P. R. 1883 See (04) A. N. 206]

(3) Omission to record reasons for distrusting truth or dismissal of complaints.

26. (1) An omission on the part of the Magistrate to record reasons for distrusting a complaint and postponing issue of process after having examined the complainant is an irregularity not sufficient for setting aside the subsequent order of dismissal after investigation, in the absence of prejudice [25 M. 546].
27. (2) It is an imperative provision of law that the Magistrate shall briefly record his reasons for dismissing a complaint There can be no question of irregularity when the provisions of the statute are imperative and are directly disobeyed—4 C. 41: See 13 C N. cetrui

(4) Miscellaneous.

28. When objection to defective complaint is not taken in the initial stage—Where a complaint within the terms of S 196 Cr. P. C is merely a colourable compliance with the provisions of S 190 Cr. P. C., held that no objection having been taken to set aside the Magistrate's order issuing process on the ground that on the face of it, the materials on which it was made was insufficient, the case was covered by cl (a) of S 537 Cr. P. C—16 C. N 1103 See 32 M 3 (11) See 37 C. 467 39 C. 559
29. The irregularity due to neglect to comply with the provisions of S. 191 Cr. P. C. is not covered by S. 537.—28 A. 212 : See Note No. infra.
30. Police report is not a complaint.—Where a police report is not intended to be a complaint and is not treated as such, it cannot be said that the report is a complaint. 6 O C 1 27 O 452 32 C. 180

III. SUMMONS AND WARRANTS.

(1) Search Warrants.

31. Defective search warrant—S 537 cannot give legal effect to a defective warrant—35 C 1076

[Note.—A Magistrate is guilty of gross carelessness in not signing his name in full on the warrant, but that in itself is not an illegality which would vitiate the arrest. It is a mere irregularity covered by S 537 Cr. P. C 3 Pat. J. 493]

32. The entrustment of a search warrant under Public Gambling Act III of 1867 to a police officer of a rank not competent to execute such warrants under S 5 Cr. P. C. is an irregularity but it is cured by S. 537 (84) A N 59. (84) A. N 286 291 Sec 4 C. 659. 6 N. 168

33. Defect in the form of a search warrant under Act III of 1867.

(1) A defect in that it did not direct the search of a house but only the arrest of a person is an irregularity but the irregularity is not fatal if it has not caused any failure of justice—(84) A N 291.

(2) Even granting that the law required that a search warrant issued under the Gambling Act should be sealed with the seal of the Court, the omission to affix the seal is a mere irregularity cured by S 537 Cr. P. C.—23 P. R 1910

34. Search without warrant.—For excusable sion of which he had no license—35 A 358 see 11 A. J 933

(2) Omission to send a copy of order under S. 112 Cr. P. C.

35. The omission of a Magistrate to send a copy of the order under S 112 Cr. P. C with the summons issued under S 114 of the Code, does not invalidate the trial. It is an irregularity cured by S 537 Cr. P. C. 11 B R 740 21 Cr 321 (Pat) see S C 724 but see 20 W R 36 15 W R 43 8 A. 243 9 Cr 170 (A)

(3) Failure to record reasons for warrant.

30. (1) It is a necessary preliminary for the exercise of the power under S 90 Cr. P. C that reasons should be given in writing and failure to do so vitiates the warrant. The omission is not curable by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—38 M. 1088 But see 38 C 789

37. (2) The omission by a Magistrate to record, in the first instance his reasons for issuing a warrant of arrest against the alleged abducted woman in a case under S. 408 I. P. C. is a mere irregularity within Sec 537 (a) Cr. P. C.—22 Cr 111 (A).

(4) Omission to notify substance of warrant.

33. The omission to notify the substance of the order of arrest to the arrested men is an irregularity covered by S 537 Cr. P. C.—18 Cr. 666 (A): But see 23 C 896 26 C 748

(5) Irregular warrants.

39. Where the warrant was (1) executed on a date subsequent to the date specified as the returnable date and the fact of extension of the period was not endorsed on the warrant and (2) when the warrant was executed by an officer other than the officer to whom it was directed by name and designation, held that the warrant was illegal [37 C. 122 see 10 C 18 31 C. 424, but see 22 C. 596 22 C 759 as to the latter part].

(6) Summons.

40. Issue of warrant instead of summons.—The error of a Magistrate in proceeding by warrant instead of by summons furnishes no ground for quashing the proceedings—1 W R 16
41. Fresh summons without fresh information.—Where on an information a summons is issued to the accused, and owing to its disclosing no offence, a fresh summons is issued without

"a failure of justice" that is unless it has unfairly affected the accused's defence on the merits—31 B 61

42. For further notes—See Ch III Essentials of a valid warrant under S 75 (p. 76 supra) also 11 P R 1885

IV. PROCLAMATION AND ORDERS.

43. Omission to serve a copy of the initial order in the manner provided by subs. (3) of S. 146 Cr. P. C. on the property in dispute—is not a fatal defect unless there is material prejudice—33 C 68 (F.B.) 33 C 1083 33 C 33 Contra 9 C N 909

44. Defect in publication of proclamation under S. 87 Cr. P. C.—"It was held in 19 M 3 that defects in publication cannot be cured by S 537 Cr. P. C., although with due deference to the learned Judges who decided that case, I am

"not convinced that the decision is sound"—Per Broadway J in 6 P. R 1916

[Note.—Where the proclamation was made and was read and published in the places where the absconders were most likely to hear of it, but a copy was not fixed to the Court house, held that the flaw was cured by S 53 Cr. P. C.—39 P. R 1917

45. [Note.—See Notes No. 12, 15, 16, 17 (a) under S 87 supra [pp 84 & 85] Notes No. 6 and 29 under S. 89 supra [pp 87 and 89 supra].

V. CHARGE.

(1) Joinder of charges when illegal.

46. Joinder of two distinct charges of offence committed on different dates and not forming part of the same transaction is illegal. 33 C. 292; 13 C. N. 1089. 26 M 125; 10 C. N. 520: But see 14 A. 502 27 B. 135.
47. Joinder in one charge of two distinct offences though arising out of the same transaction is an illegality fatal to the trial 10 C. N. 53; 6 C. J 757.
48. Note.—But when such irregularity amounts to an error in form rather than in substance, and the accused has not been prejudiced, it will be cured by S 537. 11 C. N 54. 35 C 161. 4 A. 147 (07) A N 208. 12 P R 1918. 11 C. J 182. See (04) K 21 25 M T. 379 22 Cr. 344 (0).

(2) Joinder of charges when not fatal.

49. The accused forged 11 rent-receipts and filed them simultaneously in 3 suits, having divided them into 3 separate sets and attached each set to a separate written statement. Three charges were framed against him one in respect of each set of receipts. It was contended on appeal that it amounted to a joint trial of eleven offences of using forged receipts,—held—that under the circumstances, there was no valid ground for questioning the correctness of the conviction 20 C 413. But see (04) A. N 223.

So where the act of defamation under S 500 and attempt to commit extortion under S. 385 though committed at different times, are so connected together as to form the same transaction, held—it was legal to convict at the same trial on both the charges. 18 P. R 1904; See 2 N 147.

(3) Omissions which are curable.

50. (1) The omission to mention the wife in the charge in a case of defamation of both the husband and the wife is not fatal—15 M. J 224
51. (2) When the charge is defective in this that it does not give substantial notice to the accused as to the facts on which they are tried, they must be said to have been prejudiced and S 537 does not apply.—33 C 295. [Per Woodroffe and Mukerjee JJ.]
52. (3) The omission to set out the precise object which the accused was alleged to have intended

6 P R 1915 [39 C 781 does]; 21 Cr. 760 (N)
See 11 C 106 22 C. 276. 33 C 295

(4) Omissions which are not curable.

53. (1) A charge framed under S 26 R. 8 of the Madras Forest (Act V of 1882) must clearly state that the place from which the accused sent a tree was a "reserved forest." Omission to state this is a material defect and vitiates the trial—(12) M N 1129.

54. (2) If the charge for dacoity does not set out or indicate which particular dacoity an accused is tried for, the conviction must be set aside

(12) M. N. 49

(5) Disregard of S. 233 Cr. P. C.

55. (1) A joinder of charges, not permitted by S 233 Cr. P. C. and in contravention thereof, is fatal and cannot be cured by S 537.—6 B. E. 735 29 B. 449. 26 A. 195; 10 C. N. 520. 30 M 325 (04) U. 56. (2) The joint trial of two calendar cases is illegal. Sec. 233 Cr. P. C. says that each charge should be tried separately and the failure to conform to it at any stage of the trial renders the proceedings illegal.—29 M. J. 101 (F. B.); 25 M. 61 (P. C) 29 C. 385 41 C. 722; 41 C. 662
57. (3) Failure to draw up a distinct charge for each act, when a person is tried for several acts forming the same transaction, is not a mere irregularity but illegality incurable by S 537.—26 A. 195
58. (4) Omission of the word "dishonestly" in a charge of theft is not fatal and is covered by S 537—9 C N 974

(6) Disregard of S. 234 Cr. P. C.

59. The joinder at one trial, of more charges than three, for offences of the same kind and extending over a period longer than one year contravenes S 234 Cr. P. C. and is an illegality which cannot be cured by S 537.—28 I. A. 257 = 25 M 61 (P. C) 15 C. P. 53; 26 C 560. 26 A. 195 4 B R 433. 14 P. R. 1905.

[Note—The ruling in 25 M 61 (P. C) ^{error} ruled—27 C 839 (F. B.) : 28 C. 7 (9); 28 C 1011]

(7) Disregard of S. 235 Cr. P. C.

60. The joinder of two or more charges for two distinct offences not falling within the scope of S 235 Cr. P. C. is illegal and cannot be cured by S 537.—1 L B 361. 16 P. R. 1902 4 B E 40 29 C 385

(8) Contravention of Ss. 236 and 237 Cr. P. C.

61. Where the Court convicted an accused, tried on a charge of murder, of an offence of which he was not guilty, the conviction is void. ^{omitted} ^{not} ^{S 537}

(9) Disregard of S. 239 Cr. P. C.

62. (1) Trial of several persons for distinct offences of cheating is opposed to S 235 and 239 and is an illegality not curable by S. 537.—013 P. L. 1901

17 P. R. 1903; 16 P. R. 1902. See 18 O. O. 92; 29 B. 449; 33 C. 1256; 29 C. 385; 28 O. 104; 6 C. J. 757; 1 O. J. 475; 4 B. R. 53; 4 N. 71; ('07) U. B. 1-q. 5; But See 11 M. 441.

(10) General Rules.

64. Case of embezzlement.—A general charge of embezzlement mentioning a gross sum misappropriated as laid down in subs (2) of S 232 Cr. P. O. is sufficient; but it is defective and must fall through where the accused appears to have been prejudiced by not having any definite charge to answer—10 P. W. 1007. Charge of abetment as well as commission of an offence cannot be tried together—24 M. 523

64. Note.—See Notes No. 3 to 19A under S. 221 supra [pp. 415 to 417]. Notes No 1 and 2 and II. Effect of misjoinder on the validity of the trial under S 233 Cr. P. C. 66. Addition of charge at a late stage.—Where out of four accused committed to the Sessions under S 302 I. P. C. the Sessions Judge acquitted three, but convicted the fourth accused on a charge under S 326 I. P. C. added by him during the course of the trial, held, that the addition of the second charge was not a mere irregularity but an illegality not covered by S 537 Cr. P. C.—20 P. W. 1909

67. Omission to frame the supplementary charge.—In a charge and finding under S 398 P. O. the substantive S 393 should be mentioned as well as the supplementary S 398. The omission to specify the section would, however, be covered by S 537 Cr. P. C.—12 Cr. 468 (L. B.)

68. Omission to mention S. 34 I. P. C. in the charge.—Where there is ample evidence of common object of an assembly, the mere omission to mention S 34 in the charge is cured by S 537 Cr. P. O. when no failure of justice has occurred by reason of the omission.—18 Cr. 382 (Pat) See 21 C. 527 2 B. R. 1129 (1131)

69. Omission to set out guilty intention.—An objection to set out the guilty intention of an accused in the charge is subject to the provisions of S. 537 Cr. P. C., and before effect can be given to any such objection, it must be shown that the omission complained of occasioned a failure of justice—22 C. 391.

70. Difference between English and Indian Law.—"What are the facts to be proved to secure a conviction is very different question from whether the accused has sufficient notice of those facts necessary to be proved against him. In the latter case an omission to state the particulars which ought to be stated in the charge will not be treated as material, unless it has occasioned a failure of justice. The English rule as to what ought to be set forth in the indictment is modified in India by Ss. 225 and 537 Cr. P. C."—Per Sankaran Nair J in 32 M. 384. 9 C. N. 974 (979)

(11) Serious inaccuracies in the charge are fatal.

70A. (1) Where the common object specified is hurt to one person but the conviction is for causing hurt to a different person, the inaccuracy is fatal, as it amounts to a total absence of charge which cannot be cured—40 C. 168. See 14 C. N. cccix.

70B. (2) Where a charge related to the offence of house-breaking with intent to commit theft, a conviction on the finding that the intention was to commit adultery is bad—41 C. 743.

70C. (3) Where the charges against the accused were under Ss 148, 304, 149 and 320, 149 I. P. O., held that conviction under S 326 was illegal, there being no charge under that section, and the jury having acquitted the accused under S 148 I. P. O.—41 C. 662 16 C. N. 1077 34 C. 698. See 23 W. R. 59.

70D. (4) Where in the charge the offence was at first stated to have been committed on the 3rd January 1909 and evidence to the same effect was recorded but the Magistrate on being satisfied that no offence could have been committed on that date amended the charge and altered the date of occurrence to the 27th December 1909, and re-examined the witnesses with reference to the new circumstances, the High Court set aside the conviction as the mistake was not a mere clerical error and the conviction was based on the evidence of accommodating witnesses 13 C. N. cclxxiii.

70E. (5) Where two distinct offences were alleged against the accused but he was charged with only one, and it was impossible to understand from the charge with which of the two actions alleged, the accused was charged, the conviction was set aside—13 C. N. cclxxii

VI. TRIALS.

(1) Joint trial of two distinct offences.

71. (1) Where the accused was at one and the same trial charged with robbery and murder committed in the course of one transaction and also another robbery committed some hours previously at a place 3 miles off, held—that it was only an error or an irregularity curable by S. 537.—14 A. 502.

72. (2) Joint trial of two persons severally charged with giving false evidence in a trial in the Sessions Court, is in contravention of S 233 and cannot be cured by S 537.—4 B R 53
73. (3) Joint trial of three persons—two accused of offence under S 457 and one of an offence under S 411 P. C. when the two offences are not parts of the same transaction is illegal.—4 P. L 1905
74. (4) Joint trial of a person charged with receiving stolen property with another found to be in possession of property alleged to have been stolen at a different time is illegal.—101 P. L 1904
75. (5) Trials in contravention of Ss 233, 234, 235, 236 237 and 239 Cr. P. C.—See V. Charge (above)

(2) Misjoinder of charges and persons.

76. (1) Where at the same trial an accused person is charged with two offences under S. 178 I P. C. and two offences under S 179 of the Code, held the case was not governed by S 234 of the Crim. Pro. Code and there was no misjoinder. Moreover, the facts having all been admitted, and the sentence passed being practically for only one of the offences, if accused was not prejudiced, the irregularity, if any, was cured by S 537 Cr. P. C.—35 C 161 41 C 66
77. (2) The joint trial of thieves and receivers of stolen properties is illegal unless the offences charged were committed in the course of the same transaction within the meaning of S 239 Cr. P. C.—46 C 741. 33 C 1256 3 P. R 1905 (14) M. N. 352 See 97 P. L 1914

(3) Omissions of procedure.

78. Omission to read over and explain charge.—The omission to read over and explain the charge to the accused under S 271 Cr. P. C. at the trial at the Sessions is a serious error of procedure. The mere fact that S 537 covers an error, omission or irregularity of this kind is not a sufficient answer.—21 Cr 410 (A) But see 5 C 826
79. Failure to examine the accused.—The provisions of S 342 are imperative and failure to comply with them is not a mere irregularity curable by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—(1817) 3 U. B. 18, 21 Cr 705 (Pat). 41 C 743. Cr. Ref. No. of 17 of 1919 (Pat) 17 B. R. 592 2 L B 115
80. Failure to call upon the accused to enter on his defence.—The omission to call upon an accused person to enter on his defence is an irregularity, covered by S 537 Cr. P. C. provided the accused has not in any way been prejudiced thereby.—16 A. J. 41. Con. 21 C 252 2 L B 115
81. Failure to comply with the directions in S. 356 Cr. P. C.—“The direction in S 356 appears to me to be mandatory as also the direction in S 360 Cr. P. C. The non-compliance with the requirements of the section (record of evidence in a language which is not the language of the Court) would therefore, not only be an irregularity but an illegality which would vitiate the trial. 19 Cr 225 (Pat). See 12 C 391. 36 C 925; 29 W. R. 14; (11) A. N. 145.

82. Omission to enquire if accused wants de novo trial.—Whether there was no demand or refusal but only an omission to enquire from the accused whether he wished to exercise the right reserved by proviso (a) to S 350, and the accused had not been materially prejudiced nor was a failure of justice occasioned by the omission, the error in procedure is cured by S 537 Cr. P. C.—(12) U. B. 151. 40 A 307. 3 P. R 1903. Con 5 Pat W. 40
83. Cognizance under S. 351 Cr. P. C.—Where Laws challanged by the police and after examining the investigating officer, the Magistrate issued process against S. and tried him along with L. but did not examine the investigating officer again, held that the mistake did not prejudice S. as the police officer's evidence contained practically nothing but a history of the investigation. The irregularity might therefore be taken as cured by S 537 Cr. P. C.—9 N 65
84. Omission to follow the procedure in S. 191. Cr. P. C.—Where a Magistrate initiated proceedings quo motu but did not inform the accused that he had the option of having his case tried by another Magistrate. Held that it was not a mere irregularity curable by S 537. It was an absolute illegality and vitiated the whole trial.—22 Cr 96 (P). 143 P. L. 1905 13 P. R 1898 28 A. 212 13 A. 345 5 N 113 3 C N cclxxix.
85. Refusal to issue process.—Where a Magistrate, in refusing to issue process for the witnesses named by the accused, did not base his refusal in regard to any particular witness on any of the grounds, which under the provisions of S 257 of the Code are sufficient to justify it, held that the order was illegal and was not such as could be cured by S 537 Cr. P. C.—31 M 131; See 26 B. 418 2 S 5

(4) Irregularities in trying the accused.

86. Trials before Honorary Magistrates.—Act V of 1898 nowhere lays down that it is necessary to validate a judgement of a Bench of Honorary Magistrates that each Honorary Magistrate who decides the case, must be present at every hearing when evidence is heard.—[20 C 870; 23 C. 194 18 M 394 21 M. 216 Dissented from] Even if such procedure should amount to irregularity, it is condoned by the provisions of S 537 Cr. P. C.—17 O C 142
87. Trial by a Magistrate who is personally interested in it within the meaning of S. 556 is not a mere irregularity but an illegality. See—Notes under S 556 Cr. P. C.
88. Trial by the sanctioning officer.—The trial of an offence by a Court which should only have either granted sanction or taken action under S 476 Cr. P. C. is irregular and the irregularity cannot be cured by an application of S 537 Cr. P. C.—4 O. J. 192.
89. Cancellation of trial after recording assessor's opinion.—Where to the charge under S. 392 I P. C. on which the accused was committed, charges under Ss 211 and 111 were added in the Sessions Court and after the assessor's opinion had been recorded, the Judge "cancelled the trial and decided to hold a fresh trial against the accused, being of opinion that the charge under S 214 had been improperly joined, Held that the Sessions Judge had no authority to cancel or set aside the trial and S 537 (4) could not "avail to cure the disobedience to an express provision as to a mode of trial.—17 B R 1074

89A. The ruling in 25 M 61 (F.B.) followed in 29 C 385, cannot be extended to a preliminary enquiry with a view to commit to the Sessions 26 M 592

(5) Irregularities in recording evidence.

90. Examination of prosecution witnesses after defence had closed.—In a criminal trial after the evidence for the defence had closed, the Magistrate examined certain witnesses for the prosecution giving at the same time full liberty to the accused to cross examine them. Held that having regard to Ss 537 and 540, no interference was necessary.—21 O C 95 22 Cr. 58 (B) 13 W R 36. 13 W R 16

91. Irregularity in recording evidence.—A Presidency Magistrate recorded the evidence of some witnesses in the form of indirect narration. Held that such irregularity in the form of recording evidence where no failure of justice has been occasioned is cured by S 537 Cr P C.—18 Cr 336 (M) [19 M 269 F] See 6 M H (11) 45 But see 20 W R 14

92. Record of evidence in the absence of the accused.—Where the evidence for the prosecution was recorded in the presence of the accused but he disappeared when his own witnesses were called, and his personal attendance was not dispensed with either under S 205 or S 366 (2) Cr P. C. and the Magistrate recorded the evidence of the defence witnesses in the accused's absence and convicted him. Held that S 353 applied and the words of the section were clear and peremptory. The procedure adopted by the Magistrate was illegal and the irregularity could not be cured under S 537, even though it had led to no miscarriage of justice. (12) U B 4 q 152

93. Improper use of statements before the police.—Where the Magistrate used the statements made before the chief constable during the police enquiry without (1) complying with the provisions of S 162 Cr P C and (2) giving the accused an opportunity to cross-examine the chief constable, and it was apparent that his decision was influenced by such statements, held—that the irregularity materially prejudiced the accused and could not be cured by S 537 Cr P C.—9 B R 360.

94. Admission of evidence recorded in a previous trial.—Where evidence recorded against the prisoner in a previous trial relating to the same transaction, is admitted in evidence at a subsequent trial under a different section with the consent of both the accuseds and Government Pleader, the procedure adopted though improper, is cured by S 537 Cr P C.—8 B R 538 13 W R 40 see 35 O 457 Con 12 C N 140

95. Note.—Where instead of examining the witnesses for the prosecution the Magistrate caused copies of their examination in-chief recorded at a previous trial without any objection on behalf of the accused to be read out to the witnesses and the witnesses were then cross-examined by the prisoners, held—although the proceedings were irregular, the irregularity was cured by the provisions of S 537 Cr P C as it had not been shown that there had been any failure of justice.—9 A 609

(6) Joint trial of two parties to a riot.

96 Where there is a riot and fight between two factions the members of each party should be committed for trial separately. A joint trial in such a case is wrong and the conviction will be set aside.—[8 W R 47 9 W R 33]. Where two opposite factions commit a riot, it is irregular to treat both parties as constituting one unlawful assembly and to try them together in as much as they do not have "one common object" within the meaning of S 141 I P C [12 W R 75. 20 C 537 O S 75 1 Bur 275. 331 22 P R 1881 15 P R 1882 5 P R 1906 (81) A. N 28]

97. Trial on "parallel lines."—Where a Magistrate in two cases of counter charges of rioting and assault, tried, first of all, one party and having taken evidence for that party, he, without giving his decision in that enquiry, proceeded to take evidence for the other party and in this second enquiry he called as witnesses some of those very persons whose guilt or innocence was the subject of enquiry in the first trial, and as to which he was suspending his judgment, Sir Comer Petheram C J remarked "I think this is a course which is to be deprecated to the last degree. I think it a very great pity that Magistrates should ever adopt it. There is no doubt in my mind that it constitutes a very great irregularity." [14 C 378 See Rat 331] The conviction and trial under similar circumstances was set aside as bad, although the pleaders for the defence were consenting parties to the procedure [6 C 96 See also the following cases—13 O L 275 8 C N 160] In 8 C N 344, a trial "on parallel lines" was declared not to be vitiated as the procedure was an advantage to the accused rather than a disadvantage.]

VII. JUDGMENTS.

98. Where substantial justice has been done.—Where the judgment shows that the appellate Court appreciated the points the prosecution had to establish, and had clearly in view the points for determination, the High Court would not interfere merely because it does not exactly comply with all the requirements of S. 267 Cr P. C.—29 C 353.

99. Absence of written judgment when sentence is passed.—A sentence is illegal when there is no written judgment when it is passed and cannot be cured by S. 537.—14 A 242. 27 M. 237. 21 O 121 [Per Trevelyan J.].

Note—When the Magistrate apparently after full consideration of the arguments addressed to him pronounced the sentence though he had not the judgment ready at the time—Held—the omission to record a judgment under this circumstance is only an omission or irregularity which falls within S 537.—23 C 502. see 21. O 121 [Per Prince and O'Kneally J.J.]

[See Note No 2 under Ss 367—370 (p. 652 supra)].

100. Omission to pronounce.—If a judgment has been written, the omission to pronounce it before convicting and sentencing is cured by S. 537 (a) Cr. P. C.—25 M. J. 445 see 2 Weir 711 (712)

100A. Omission to pronounce portion of the judgment.—The omission to pronounce a portion of the judgment imposing fine which the Magistrate has written, and his omission to date and sign the judgment at the time of pronouncing it are omissions covered by S 537 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 711 (Venkataramanyya).

101. Omission to write judgment in the proper language.—Omission to follow the express direction of S. 367 which lays down that the judgment should be written either in English or in the language of the Court is cured by S 537—4 C. J. 232.

102. Judgment written in defiance of law.—Judgment at variance with the directions given by law and which has materially prejudiced the appellant at the trial of the appeal cannot be cured by S. 537.—10 A. J. 435

103. Judge—
ing order
Cr. P.
be invoked in a case in which there is no question of any omission or irregularity in a judgment but an absence of judgment.—17 B. R. 1085.

[Note—See notes no 73 to 82 A, under S. 367—370 (p. 657 supra)]

104. Omission to find common object.—Where the judgment does not contain any finding as to the common object and the charge does not specify the common object in clear terms and is otherwise also defective the accused are thereby prejudiced and S. 537 cannot cure—33 C 295.

105. Note.—See IX. Effect of non-compliance with the provisions of Ss. 367 and 424 (p. 659 supra)

VIII. PROCEEDINGS OTHER THAN TRIALS.

(1) Proceedings under S. 107 Cr. P. C.

106 (1) Two rival parties to proceedings under S. 107 cannot be tried together. A joint enquiry against both is illegal.—8 O N 180; 11 C. N. 472

107. (2) Joint enquiry against person not associated together, within the meaning of S. 107 Cr. P. C. is illegal.—9 C N 898.

108. (3) Failure to set forth substance of information in the order and to serve the order in accordance with S 112, is not fatal.—50 C. 313.

109. (4) Summons under S. 110.—Where summonses were served under S. 110 Cr. P. C. but the irregularity was cured by S. 537

Cr. P. C.—14 Cr. 65 (M.)

110. (5) Joint enquiry under S. 117 (4).—Where the members of two rival factions were proceeded

111

Note.—See Chap. XVI Irregularities under S. 107 (p. 124 supra)

(2) Proceedings under S. 145 Cr. P. C.

111 (1) The omission to state the ground upon which a Magistrate is satisfied as to likelihood of a breach of the peace in the initial order under S. 145 cl (1) is an irregularity curable by S. 537—33 C. 68 (F. B.); (84) A. N. 317; 23 M. J. 499; 33 C 352 (F. B.); But see (81) A. N. 40; (85) A. N. 302

112. (2) One proceeding involving claims with regard to several plots of lands, claimed to be in the possession of different persons, is not invalid in the absence of prejudice.—5 C N 544. 5 C N 710.

113. (3) Failure to follow the strict provisions of S. 145, when the parties had their cases fully heard, is an irregularity which is not fatal.—30 A. 41.

[Note.—See XIX. Irregularities which vitiate. XX. Irregularities which do not vitiate under S 145 (pp 247-248 supra)].

(3) Proceedings under S. 250 Cr. P. C.

114. It is clearly not the intention of the Legislature that a complainant should be entitled to adjournment in order to enable him to show cause against an order under S. 250 Cr. P. C. much less to an opportunity of producing further evidence. The adjournment of proceedings is an irregularity but the irregularity is cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—30 A 132. [8 B R 847. (05) A. N. 214 FJ: 25 A 315 R.] See Notes No. 39-41 (p. 479) 60 (p. 480) under S. 250 supra]

114A. The omission to make the record required by the proviso of S. 250, in passing an order of compensation, cannot be held to amount to more than "an omission in the judgment or other proceedings during trial" within the meaning of S. 537 Cr. P. C.—2 Weir 711 (Katta)

(4) Proceedings under 481 (2) Cr. P. C.

115. Although the failure to comply with the provisions of S. 481 (2) Cr. P. C. is only an irregularity which may be cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C., it will not be condoned, when it cannot be gathered from the record, what was the judicial proceeding or stage of judicial proceeding at which the offence was committed and when it is doubtful, if the evidence established the fact that the interruption was intentional.—15 Cr. 621 (M.)

(5) Appeals.

- B. The failure of a Deputy Magistrate to state his reasons for ordering fresh evidence, under S 423 Cr. P. C., is an irregularity that is cured by S. 537.—9 M. T. 406

(6) Order of commitment without notice to the accused.

- 7 Where a District Magistrate directs a subordinate Magistrate who has in his opinion improperly discharged the accused to commit the latter to the Sessions without giving any notice, the irregularity is cured by S 537, if the subordinate Magistrate gives the accused an opportunity to show cause before committing him.—Kat 890.

- 117A. A trial under a commitment made by an erroneous order of Sessions Judge has been held and no actual failure of justice has been caused by such error, S 283 (= S 537) Cr. P. C. would be a bar to the reversal of the judgment.—7 C. 662.

(7) Other proceedings.

118. Irregularities under S 141 (p 214 supra) which Irregularities under S. 141 (p 214 supra) orders Irregularities under S 141 (p 214 supra)

IX. SANCTION UNDER S. 195.

(1) Proposed Change in the Law.

- B. The words "of the want of or any irregularity in any sanction required by S. 195" in S 537 are to be expunged. The words will be redundant in view of the sweeping changes to be effected in S. 195. The Code as amended will not permit the granting of a sanction to any private party. The Court will have to make a complaint in writing. All defects of procedure in relation to proceedings under S 195, will fall within the terms of Ss 476 476A, and 476B and will be covered by S 537.

(2) Want of sanction to prosecute.

20. The want is an irregularity and unless the want of such sanction has in fact occasioned a failure of justice a conviction is not bad only on that account.—29 C. 217 29 M. 149 31 M. 80 21 M. J. 753. 27 C. 452 32 C. 180

21. Note—Where the affected party at once took an objection to the case being proceeded with for want of sanction as required by S. 195 Cr. P. C. it would be unfair to allow the case to proceed.—37 A. 283; 22 C. 176. (01) A. N. 151

- 31A. When conviction is bad for want of sanction—

- (1) Conviction of a person of an offence under S. 186 P. C. the prosecution being started on a letter sent by a Civil Court Amin to a police officer without the sanction of the Civil Court.—(04) A. N. 266

(3) Entire absence of sanction.

22. There is ample authority for the proposition that the entire absence of the sanction required by S. 195, does not entail the reversal of a conviction, unless it is shown to have occasioned a failure of justice, and see 537 (b) Cr. P. C. applied as much to a case in which a sanction has been granted and has become ineffective under Cl (b) of S. 195 as to a case in which no sanction has been granted at all.—4 P. R. 1913; (01) A. N. 151; 21 M. J. 753; 31 M. 80. 28 C. 217.

123. [Note—Though want of sanction under S. 195 Cr. P. C. may not vitiate a trial, yet when there has been no complaint under S 195 as regards the offence of which the applicant has been found guilty the absence of a complaint is not a mere irregularity but is fatal to the trial.—20 Cr. 770 (N)]

(4) Defective Sanctions.

124. (1) A defective sanction is cured, when the accused has sufficient notice—"A conviction for perjury cannot be set aside on the ground that the sanction was defective, unless there has been in fact a "failure of justice." Where, therefore, the statements alleged to be false were set out in full detail, in the application for sanction, and they were also specified in the charge subsequently framed - Held, the accused had full notice of the case against him and there had been no failure of justice" Per Jenkins C. J. and Mookerjee J. in 36 O. 803. See 18 A. 203 also 19 B. 362 3 C. N. 35

125. function] would not vitiate the sanction accorded. S 537 would clearly cover such a mistake.—23 P. R. 1916

(5) Failure to give notice.

126. "Proceedings under S 195 Cr. P. C. are of a judicial character, and no order should be passed in such proceedings without giving notice to the party in those proceedings to whose prejudice the Court decides to pass an order, and an omission to give such notice is a defect of procedure resulting in a failure of justice, and consequently the defect is not curable by S 537 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 643 (0)
127. [Note—"Proceedings under S. 195 Cr. P. C. are of judicial character and no order should be passed in such proceedings without giving notice to the party to whose prejudice the Court decides to pass an order unless the legislature clearly dispenses with notice. * * If we were to hold this return to be sufficient, we should decide contrary to one of the first principles of justice audi alteram partem. It is to be found at the head of our Criminal Law that every man ought to have an opportunity of being heard before he is condemned and I should tremble at the consequences of giving way to this principle" [Per Lord Keynon Ch J in King v. Gaskin D. D. (1799) 4 R. R. 633.] S. Wazir Hasan v. J. C. in 21 Cr. 642 (0)

(6) Miscellaneous.

128. Order not amounting to sanction.—Where the District Magistrate expunges a case in accord ance with the request of the D. S. P. who forwards the papers and the Magistrate merely writes—“Expunge, subdivisional Magistrate to take cognizance under S. 182 P. C.” Held, this does not amount to a sanction and a trial based on such order is bad—5 O C. 164

129. The words “subject to the provisions hereinbefore contained”—cannot be construed in such a way as to nullify the express provision of the latter part of the section which in Cl. (b) enacts that no sentence passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be reversed on appeal “for want of any sanction required by S. 195”—31 M. 80.

130. See Notes under S. 195 Nos. 163 to 203 (pp 370 381 supra)

X. OTHER SANCTIONS.

(1) Sanction under S. 196.

131. A complaint under S. 196 even if defective in that it did not set out the dates of the speeches and the nature of the alleged seditious matter, is at most an irregularity within S. 537 (a) — 32 M. 3

Note.—[See Notes Nos. 22 to 24 under S. 196 (p 364 supra)]

(2) Sanction under S. 197 Cr. P. C.

132. See Note No. 64 under S. 197 (p 371) Supra 2 Weir 710

(3) Sanction under S. 339 Cr. P. C.

133. Want of a sanction under S. 339 is a defect of substance and not merely of form and is therefore not covered by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—42 P. R. 1884

[See Note No. 98 under Ss. 337 339 (p 596 supra)]

134. Defective Sanction or complaint.—An accused person, charged under S. 505 (f) I. P. O., was prosecuted upon a letter of the Commissioner, purporting to convey the sanction of the Local Government, required by S. 195 Cr. P. C. authorising the prosecution. Held, that where the most essential part of the sanction has been complied with and the formal sanction to entertain the complaint had been incorrectly treated as a complaint itself, and the intermediate formalities omitted, and no detriment had resulted to any one, the irregularity regarding the complaint or the absence of a formal complaint is cured by S. 537 (a) Cr. P. C.—8 P. R. 1905

(4) Miscellaneous.

- 134A. Sanction under S. 29 of the Arms Act.—S. 537 (b) does not cure the want of sanction in any case, except when the sanction is required under S. 195 Cr. P. C.—4 L. R. 247, See 2 L. B. 302 1 U. B. 2 8 L. B. 452 9 Bur. T. 217 (F. B.).

XI. ORDERS UNDER S. 476 Cr. P. C.

135. Failure to send to the nearest Magistrate.—Where the Court under S. 476 sent up the accused for trial not to the nearest Magistrate first class but to a Magistrate First class, having local jurisdiction, held, the irregularity was curable under S. 537 (b)—1 S. 84 : 37 M. 317 Con 26 A. 219

130. S. 476 Cr. P. C. in 21 Cr. 642 (0)

not followed, but the complaint against the petitioners was heard and a preliminary enquiry held, which showed that there was a prima facie case against the petitioners. Held, (1) that the defect in the procedure in granting sanction was cured by S. 537; (2) where the inquiry in a case has proceeded far enough to enable the test required by S. 476 to be applied, S. 537 will cure any defect not prejudicing the accused—12 Cr. 320 (S).

137. Order without notice merely an irregularity.—The High Court always looks with disfavour upon an order made under S. 476 without notice being given to the persons immediately concerned. At the same time, any irregularity in the proceedings taken under S. 476 Cr. P. C. is not a sufficient ground for reversing or altering an order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction—10 A. J. 217.

138. Omission to hold preliminary enquiry.—Where a Court after very careful consideration arrives at the conclusion that an order under S. 476 Cr. P. C. is called for, and that no preliminary inquiry is necessary, the omission to make such inquiry is a mere irregularity within S. 537 Cr. P. C.—21 Cr. 276 (A)

XII. JURORS AND ASSESSORS

139. Failure to observe the strict procedure, laid down in Ss. 276 and 328 Cr. P. C.—and to select jurors by lot and to obtain a panel as provided in those sections is not a mere irregularity covered by S. 537.—7 O. N. 189
140. Jurors treated as assessors.—In a trial for offences, some of which are triable by a jury and others by assessors and the Judge treats the jurors as assessors, his failure to take the opinion of all the jurors as assessor cannot be treated as an omission or irregularity to which S. 537 Cr. P. C. can be applied.—26 M. 598
141. Absence of a properly constituted jury—Jurors are of a properly illegal. A violation down in S. 276 Cr. P. C., is such as cannot be cured by the provisions of S. 537 of that Code.—33 A. 385.

142. Omission to ask accused if he objected to the juror.—where in a Sessions trial, the accused was not asked if he objected to the juror as his name was called out as required by S. 277 (1) supra, held that though the omission was serious, the error was not more serious than that cured by S. 536 (2) and need not invalidate the conviction.—13 C. N. ex. See S. C. 739.
143. Effect of trial by jury of charges triable by assessors.—See Note No. 39 under S. 309 (p. 577 supra)
144. Trial without assessor or assessors properly chosen.—See Notes—under Ss. 284 and 295 supra

XIII. MISDIRECTION IN CHARGE TO JURY.

145. Scope of S. 537 Cr. P. C.—The provisions of S. 537 require that before the verdict of a jury can be reversed on the ground of misdirection the High Court must be satisfied that the verdict was erroneous or in other words, there has been a failure of justice by reason of the misdirection.—25 C. 230 21 C. N. 33

Note—A material misdirection by a Judge to the jury is not covered by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—4 C. N. 576. 18 M. T. 250 5 M. T. 134

146. Mistakes.—A conviction in a trial by jury would not be bad merely because the charge to the jury was not happily expressed or there was a misdirection. If otherwise, there has been no failure of justice.—14 Cr. 638
147. To allow the jury to pronounce their verdict before the accused is called on to enter on his defence.—is in effect a misdirection and the defect cannot be cured by S. 537.—23 C. 252.
148. Confession made by accused while in police custody.—Where a Sessions Judge misdirected the jury in telling them that confessions to the police, if followed by the production of stolen property were admissible in evidence, and did not warn them to take the case of each accused separately—held—that the misdirection could not be cured by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—18 M. J. 250

149. Failure to lay down the law.—Where the Sessions Judge both before and after summing up the evidence, placed certain questions of fact before the jury and directed them that, if they found certain facts proved, they were to convict and if on the contrary they found certain other facts proved they were to acquit, held (Ormond J. dissenting) that there was no laying down of the law as required by S. 297, as the essential elements of the offence with which the accused was charged ought to have been explained and that there was a grave misdirection which was not cured by S. 537 (d).—5 L. B. 149 [3 L. B. 75 R.] 30 M. 44

[Note.—The effect of misdirection to the jury on the trial has been fully and elaborately dealt with under the heading IV. Misdirection and Non-direction under Ss. 297-304 at pp. 559 to 563 supra]

XIV. OTHER IRREGULARITIES.

150. Assessors.—Where a trial before the Court of Sessions begins and ends with assessor only it is no legal trial and the whole proceeding is vitiated by the error.—25 B. 694.
151. Remand in contravention of S. 564 is illegal but the defect can be cured by the consent of the parties.—28 M. 437

Refusal on demand under S. 350 cl. (a).

152. (1) To rehear evidence is fatal and the irregularity would not be curable by S. 537.—3 P. R. 1903
153. (2) Failure to comply with the strict provisions of S. 350 is illegal.—60 C. 192.
154. Omission to enquire from the accused if he wishes to exercise the right conferred by

S. 350 cl. (a) is not fatal if the accused has not been prejudiced thereby.—3 P. R. 1903

155. Contravention of S. 405 cl. (4) is fatal although no failure of justice has occurred within the meaning of S. 537.—2 B. 533
156. Defective withdrawal under S. 404 Cr. P. C.—Where an accused person is in fact discharged from custody by virtue of a withdrawal of his prosecution, and the Magistrate trying the case takes judicial notice of such withdrawal, the omission to use the formal words, "I discharge this accused," would be at most an irregularity curable by the provisions of S. 537 of the Code.—7 A. J. 82. Can. 33 C. 1353
157. Contravention of S. 454 (2).—The omission to ask the accused if he is a European British subject under S. 454 (2) Cr. P. O. is an irregularity covered by S. 537 Cr. P. C.—16 Cr. 616 (M) : Con 18 C N. 385

158. Restoration of complaint after discharge of accused under S. 259 Cr. P. C.—Where a Magistrate after discharging the accused under S. 259 the complainant being absent, subsequently restored the case on the very same day on the ground that the complainant had arrived by a very late train, Held, that there was no sufficient ground to set aside conviction on the ground of irregularity—37 628

- 158A. Want of certificate under S. 168 P. C.—Where the certificate was not produced during the enquiry but was produced before order of commitment was made; held that commitment was not bad, as it had not been shown that the accused had, in any way, been injured or prejudiced.—8 B. R. 507.

XV. FAILURE OF JUSTICE—MEANING.

Failure of justice.—

159. (1) will be inferred from these circumstances—viz—that the charge did not specify the common object in clear terms and the property in respect of which the offence of rioting is alleged to have been committed—33 C. 293
160. (2) where the accused has not been called on to enter on his defence—a formality which forms an essential part of the trial, it is difficult to say that the omission has not occasioned a failure of justice—23 C. 252
161. When the question of prejudice can not arise.—A direct disobedience of an express provision of the statute as to a mode of trial cannot be regarded as a mere irregularity. The question of prejudice does not arise in a case of this nature.—21 Cr. 29 (Pat)
162. Consent of the accused.—Although the consent of the accused or his counsel is presumptive evidence of the absence of prejudice, it does not prevent the Judge, hearing the case, deciding whether notwithstanding the consent the accused, his case has been prejudiced by irregularity.—28 M. J. 329.

163. to take such action in every case however or scanty may be the necessity or reason adopting such a course, so as to interfere with the conviction in every such case. [5 P. R. 16] Where the accused was charged under the Penal Code with an offence committed before that Code came into operation [15 W. R. 48] or where Magistrate convicted the accused under repealed sections of a law, the High Court refused to set aside the conviction as no substantial injury had been done to the accused and the sentence might have been passed under corresponding sections of the Penal Code. [15 W. R. 49]

XVI. OBJECTION AND OMISSION TO RAISE THEM AT EARLIER STAGES.

164. occurred, though it is a point to be considered as laid down in the explanation to S. 537 Cr. P. C.—4 P. R. 1913.

165. 169. The scope of the explanation.—The explanation is applicable only when the objection raised is an averment of an irregularity, when there is a question of jurisdiction, or

169. The scope of the explanation.—The explanation is applicable only when the objection raised is an averment of an irregularity, when there is a question of jurisdiction, or

170. but raised no objection in the Court of the instance and took up the plea for the first time in appeal, held that the case was a case of omission and fell within the scope of the explanation of S. 537; and also in view of the fact that the accused had not in the slightest degree been prejudiced in his trial, the case did not call for any interference.—11 A. J. 809.

166. Where an objection to misjoinder of parties could and should have been raised at an earlier stage of the proceedings, the fact that it has not been so raised, shows that in fact it had not occasioned a failure of justice and the irregularity is covered by S. 537.—29 C. 7; 29 C. 10

[But it is doubtful if these rulings have now any force in view of the ruling in 25 M. 61 (P. C.).]

167. Accused cannot waive the benefit of legal provisions.—An accused person cannot in a criminal trial waive the benefit of the legal provisions regulating the trial—18 M. J. 330. 2 C. 23; 6 C. 193
168. Objection to be taken at the early stage of proceedings.—Omission to take objection

171. The words "in fact prejudiced."—The words "in fact" were introduced apparently in order to emphasize the duties of the Court to take into the merits before interfering in consequence of a misdirection or other error, though the defect existed just the same, before those words were added.—Per Benson J. 26 M. 1 (15).

538. No distress made under this Code shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any person making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, writ or distress or other proceedings relating thereto.

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 538 of the said Code, for the word "distress" wherever it occurs, the word "attachment" shall be substituted.

CHAPTER XLVI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

539. Affidavits and affirmations to be used before any High Court or any officer of such Court may be sworn and affirmed before such Court or the Clerk of the Court, or the Crown, or any Commissioner or other person appointed by such Court for that purpose, or any Judge, or any Commissioner for taking affidavits in any Court of Record in British India, or any Commissioner to administer oaths in England or Ireland, or any Magistrate authorized to take affidavits or affirmations in Scotland.

Proposed amendment to the section.—After section 539 of the said Code, the following sections shall be inserted, namely:—

"539A. (1) When any application is made to any Court in the course of any inquiry, trial, appeal or other proceeding under this Code, and allegations are made therein respecting any public servant, the applicant may give evidence of the facts alleged in the application by affidavit, and the Court may, if it thinks fit, order that evidence relating to such facts be so given: Provided that no accused person shall be compelled to make any affidavit himself under this sub section.

An affidavit to be used before any Court other than a High Court under this section may be sworn or affirmed in the manner prescribed in section 539, or before any Magistrate.

Affidavits under this section shall be confined to and shall state separately such facts as the deponent is able to prove from his own knowledge, and such facts as he has reasonable grounds to believe to be true, and in the latter case the deponent shall clearly state the grounds of such belief.

(2) The Court may order any scandalous and irrelevant matter in an affidavit to be struck out or amended.

(3) The Court may order the attendance of any person making an affidavit under this section for cross-examination before the Court.

"539B. (1) Any Judge or Magistrate may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial, appeal or other proceeding, after due notice to the parties, visit and inspect any place in which an offence is alleged to have been committed, or any other place which it is in his opinion necessary to view, for the purpose of properly appreciating the evidence given at such inquiry or trial, and shall record forthwith a memorandum of any relevant facts observed at such inspection.

(2) Such memorandum shall form part of the record of the case. If the Public Prosecutor, complainant or accused so desires, a copy of the memorandum shall be furnished to him;

Provided that, in the case of a trial by jury or with the aid of assessors the Judge shall not act under this section unless such jury or assessors have been allowed a view under section 290."

Notes.

1. A convicted person cannot swear an affidavit.—A person seeking by application in revision to get rid of a conviction, standing against him is incapable of tendering his own affidavit in support of such application, and consequently if he does tender such an affidavit, he can not be prosecuted for false statements which might be contained therein—19 A. 200 See 12 M. 451. 28 A. 331.

[Note.—Litigants are not absolutely privileged as it is not to public advantage that they should be free to insert any matter they please with their pleadings, applications and affidavits.—3 L. B. 265]

2. Affidavit to controvert the return to the writ of Habeas Corpus.—The return to the writ of habeas corpus must be taken to be true and cannot be controverted by affidavit. In England 56 Geo 3 C 10 S 4 allows affidavits to be used to controvert the return in criminal matters, but that does not apply to this country.—5 B. L. 418 But see 5 B. L. 557.
3. Affidavit of matters not on record.—An accused person cannot contest the propriety of a conviction by an affidavit containing matters not upon the record [(100) A. N. 8]. A Magistrate recorded that the accused pleaded guilty. In an application for revision to the High Court the accused tendered in evidence his own affidavit setting forth that he did not plead guilty, held that the affidavit was not admissible. If there was any mistake about the matter, it should be the Vakil and not the client who ought to make the affidavit.—19 M. 209.

Use of affidavits.

4. (1) Though affidavits may be used to show a want of jurisdiction in a Magistrate, even though such affidavits contradict for this purpose the finding of the Magistrate, they cannot be used as affording materials for reviewing the Magistrate's decision on the merits.—10 B. H. 102

5. (2) Important statements made in a verified petition to the High Court, if untrue, should be contradicted on affidavit.—8 B. H. 125
6. What an affidavit should contain.—An affidavit must contain nothing but bare facts known to the person who makes the affidavit either personally or upon information from a source which he believes to be a correct source and one on which reliance can be placed. As human beings are liable to make mistakes in reciting facts, the law requires that the contents of affidavits should be carefully read over to the deponents in a language which they understand and should be vouched by them to be correct.—36 A. 13.

Procedure.

7. (1) Deputy Magistrate cannot administer oath for affidavits.—A Deputy Magistrate has no power to administer an oath to a person making a declaration in the form of an affidavit (and such person cannot therefore be prosecuted for an offence of perjury under S. 193 or 199.—[14 C. 653])
- [Note.—An affidavit affirmed before a Deputy Magistrate may be used, in a sanction proceeding before a Civil Court under S. 195 C. P. C.—8 C. N. v.]
8. (2) Rules in Bombay.—Any Court or Magistrate or the clerk of a District Court, shall on application, take such affidavit or statement of solemn affirmation and authenticate the same by signature.—Bomb Gaz 1879 pp. 471-475; also Bomb Bk Cir p. 48
9. (3) Rules in Calcutta.—See Cul. H. C. Rules p. 128.

540. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code.

Power to summon material witness summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in or examine person present. attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined, and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it essential to the just decision of the case.

Proposed amendments to the section—After section 540 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely—

"540A (1) At any stage of an inquiry or trial under this Code, where two or more accused are before the Court if the Judge or Magistrate is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded, that any one or more of such accused is or are incapable of remaining before the Court, he may, if such accused is represented by a pleader, dispense with his attendance and proceed with such inquiry or trial in his absence, and may at any subsequent stage of the proceedings direct the personal attendance of such accused

(2) If the accused in any such case is not represented by a pleader, or if the Judge or Magistrate considers his personal attendance necessary, he may, if he thinks fit, and for reasons to be recorded by him, either adjourn such inquiry or trial, or order that the case of such accused be taken up or tried separately."

Notes.

Scope of the Section.

1. (1) "S. 540 is a section which confers very wide powers upon a Court. But the wider the powers the greater the exercise of discretion required of a Magistrate, and if the Magistrate will, as he ought to do, read S. 252 along with S. 540 of the Code, he will find that by S. 540, it was not intended, that he should exercise his discretion at the bidding of any person, but that the powers are given to prevent any miscarriage of justice just because some particular witness has not been called."—Per Knor J. in 12 A. J. 15; See 20 N. 702 24 C. 167.

2. (2) This section does not enable the Court to examine the accused, as a witness, even in an appeal, as an appeal is but the continuation of the original case—12 M. 467.

Uses of the Section.

3. (1) Magistrates should always be chary of taking upon themselves the duty of deciding on behalf of the parties which witnesses should be examined—28 M. J. 134
4. (2) Calling witnesses after the close of the case at the instance of the Superior Officer.—Where in a case of misappropriation of Government money instituted at the instance of the Assistant Collector, the trying Magistrate, after the close of the case for the prosecution, called at the instance of the Assistant Collector two witnesses, whom the Assistant Collector "had ordered to give evidence" and recorded their evidence held, that when he did so he virtually abdicated his magisterial functions and became a mere delegate of the Assistant Collector who had initiated the prosecution. The trial has been without jurisdiction for a Magistrate cannot be both Judge and a delegate of the prosecution—7 S. 82
5. (3) After recording opinion of the assessors.—S. 540 Cr. P. C. does not authorise a Sessions Judge to summon a witness when no more witnesses remain to be examined for either side and the assessors have given their opinion—4 P. R. 1892
6. (4) Reversing order of examination of witnesses.—It is not intended by S. 540 that a Judge shall reverse the order of a Sessions trial, and call the witnesses summoned for the defence before the case for the prosecution is closed—14 A. 242
7. (5) S. 540 Cr. P. C. is a supplementary provision enabling, and in certain circumstances, imposing on the Court the duty of summoning a witness, material or essential, who would not otherwise be brought before the Court. A Magistrate misuses this section in using it to anticipate the defence of the accused person to his prejudice, and in using it, after satisfying himself that he has a good defence, to discharge instead of acquitting him—11 P. R. 1886
8. (6) A Magistrate cannot properly resort to S. 540 in order to avoid the responsibility of making up his mind as to the value of the evidence for the prosecution. The power conferred by that section upon a Court to summon a witness, does not extend to witnesses named for the prosecution or for the defence—11 P. R. 1886
9. (7) Where one of the witnesses whom the priupon an application being filed before him by the prisoners, directed that the objector should be summoned as a witness whereupon the objector moved the High Court. Held, (per Straight J.), S. 540 is not the only provision of the Criminal Procedure Code which confers on a Sessions Judge powers of the kind exercised by him in this case. Under S. 201, though the summoning of witnesses by an accused person through the medium of the Sessions Judge is not a matter of right, yet the Judge has an inherent power, if he thinks proper

10. the witnesses, unless the pleaders on either side have omitted to put any material question; and the Court should generally leave the witnesses to the pleaders to be dealt with as laid down in S. 139 of the Evidence Act.—6 C. 279
11. (9) This section does not empower a Sessions Judge to fish for witnesses or warrant an order for further enquiry to be made by a Committing Magistrate after the trial has been concluded so far that no witnesses remain to be examined on either side, and the assessors have given their opinions. 4 P. R. 1892
12. (10) The Sessions Judge may, in his discretion, cause any witness to be summoned for the accused, on an application made during the trial, and he is bound to procure the attendance of such witnesses, if he considers that their evidence may be material—19 A. 502. See 11 A. J. 986.
13. (11) Where a witness is not examined by the Crown before the Committing Magistrate, nor under the supplementary powers of S. 219, the Crown cannot demand as of right that such witness should be examined at the sessions trial. 14 A. 242
14. Magistrate not seised of the case cannot act under the section.—A magistrate who is not seised of the case, in the absence of the trying Magistrate, has absolutely no power of any kind to pass an order that certain witnesses required by the accused be summoned—36 A. 13
15. Plea of lunacy.—Where the defence is based on S. 41 P. C. the Sessions Judge may, under S. 540 Cr. P. C. and S. 165 Evidence Act, ascertain the behaviour exhibited by the prisoner during the years of his life previous to the homicide and if the accused has been kept in a lunatic asylum, record medical evidence of facts observed there and of the opinion formed as to the particular form of lunacy—Rat 279. See Rat 229.
16. Medical evidence.—Where there was no evidence regarding the nature of the injuries which formed the subject of the offence under trial, the Sessions Judge was bound under this section to summon the medical officer as a witness—6 C. N. 98
17. Discretion of the Court.—It is entirely within the discretion of a Magistrate conducting a trial in a warrant case to admit evidence on behalf of either side at any stage of the trial, S. 192 Cr. P. 1672 (=540) applying to such a case, but the Magistrate in exercising the discretion conferred on him by the section ought to have good reason for allowing witnesses on the part of the prosecution to be interposed in the midst of the case of the accused—21 W. R. 61.

18. Remedy of the accused.—When the accused has exhausted the power of summoning witnesses for the defence and want additional witnesses to be examined, all that he can do is to move the Magistrate to summon any other witnesses whom he might deem necessary under the powers vested in the Magistrate under S. 540 Cr. P. C.—36 A. 13

19. The General rule.—According to Ss. 251 to 256 an accused cannot be called upon to enter on his defence until the prosecution closes its case. No further evidence can be admitted against the accused except under S. 540 for which there must be valid reasons which must be recorded.—10 A. J. 383

20. Examination of prosecution witnesses after close of defence evidence.—In a criminal trial after the evidence for the defence had closed, the Magistrate examined certain witnesses for the prosecution giving at the same time full liberty to the accused to cross-examine them, Held—that in revision it was not proper for the High Court having regard to Ss. 537 and 540 Cr. P. C. to interfere with the Magistrate's order.—[21 O. C. 95 See 13 W. R. 36 But See 13 W. R. 15]. The practice of examining witnesses for the prosecution after the defence is closed, to bolster up the prosecution, was deprecated in 15 C. N. 414

21. Power to take evidence after adjournment for judgment.—A Magistrate is strictly within his rights under S. 540 Cr. P. C. in receiving fresh evidence after evidence on both sides had been taken, and the case adjourned for judgment in as much as the case can be said to be a pending case at that stage taken.—24 C. 167

22. Duty of the Court to summon necessary witness.—Under S. 540, the Court is bound to summon and examine any witnesses whose evidence seems to be material to the just decision of the case.—[6 C. N. 93]. It is the duty of the Judge not merely to receive and adjudicate on the evidence submitted by the parties but also to enquire to the utmost into the truth of a case [Rat. 531]

23. Court should always form its own independent opinion.—The Court, to which

24. Examination of witnesses before defence is entered on.—When a Magistrate, after the examination of prosecution witnesses, examined certain persons as court witnesses, and relying on their evidence, discredited the complainant's witnesses and discharged the accused held that the procedure was not illegal.—2 Weir 714.

Persons who may be summoned.

25. (a) Witnesses beyond the limits of their own Districts.—Magistrates are at liberty to issue summonses for service upon witnesses beyond the limits of their own districts—3 M. H. (appd) V.

26. (b) Accused discharged for want of evidence.—There is no law or principle which prevents a person who has been suspected and charged with an offence, but discharged by the Magistrate for want of evidence, being afterwards admitted as a witness for the prosecution.—7 W. R. 44: see 25 B. 422

27. (c) Person brought with accused and not discharged.—A person apprehended by the police, and brought before the Magistrate with the accused, accused

28. (d) Accomplice.—An accomplice, if he is not an accused under trial in the same case, is a competent witness and may, as any witness, be examined on oath. If he is not sent up for trial, or if he is tried separately, or if he is convicted he may give evidence admissible on oath.—33 C. 1363: 10 C. L. 553 G. W. R. 92: 6 W. R. 91, 2 A. 385

[Note—Where two prisoners are tried together for different offences committed in the same transaction, it is improper and illegal to examine one prisoner as a witness against the other.—[5 C. L. 574]

29. Power of Sessions Judge to compel Magistrate to give evidence.—A Sessions Judge, while trying a case, cannot compel a Magistrate to answer questions as to his own conduct in Court as such Magistrate.—3 A. 573. see M. H. (appx) 42.

[Note—If the Appellate Court wishes to ascertain any facts relating to the case from the Magistrate who convicted the accused, he should examine the Magistrate on oath or solemn affirmation, in the same manner, as an ordinary witness.—8 B. R. (C. C.) 126 see 18 W. R. 119]

30. Right of both parties to cross-examine Court witnesses.—Where a Judge thinks it necessary to call a witness and examines him motu, he ought to allow the accused an opportunity to cross-examine the witness [5 C. 614]. There is nothing in S. 165 of the Evidence Act from

by the (158)
late C.

to cross-examine them and the Court has no power to put any restrictions on such cross-examination. [5 C. 243]

31. Right of accused to cross-examine witness at first cited but afterwards rejected by him.—An accused person had obtained a process for the attendance of a witness, but before his appearance, asked the Court to countermand the order for his attendance. On the Court refusing to do so, the accused declined him and the witness was thereupon examined by the Court, held, that, under the circumstances, the witness could not be regarded as a witness for the defence, and the accused was entitled to cross-examine him—29 C. 347.

32. Will the High Court interfere when the lower Court has erroneously failed to not under S. 540?—A committing Magistrate failed to record the examination of the prisoners or to attest it as required by S. 205 Cr. P. C. The Sessions Judge refused to admit it in evidence and also refused to postpone the trial for the purpose of summoning the Magistrate and taking his evidence in the matter. Held, that the High Court as a Court of Revision would not interfere or order a new trial.—12 W. R. 44.

541. (1) Unless when otherwise provided by any law for the time being in force, the Local Government may direct in what place any person liable to be imprisoned or committed to custody under this Code shall be confined.

Special rule for Lower Burma.—A criminal Court shall not order payment on the part of Government of the expenses of any complainant or witness whose evidence the presiding officer may consider to be wilfully false, Bur Gaz 12th May, 1894 Part IV, p. 456.

Special rule for Upper Burma.—It is left to the discretion of the Courts to pay the expenses of such witnesses for the defence as they see fit. In exercising this discretion it is for the Courts to satisfy themselves that the expenses are paid, of all witnesses for the defence who are properly entitled to them, that is, of all witnesses, whatever be the nature of their evidence, who attended court on subpoena in good faith and without collusion with the accused. The Court should not pay the expenses of witnesses who give evidence that appear wilfully false, or who have been brought to Court with their own convenience, not because they know anything about the case, but because their presence there is desired by the accused or themselves—Bur Gaz 12th May, 1894, Part IV, p. 458.

Note.—S 350 gives the accused an absolute right to have the witnesses recalled and re-examined. No condition is imposed and it is not within the competence of the Magistrate to require him to pay fees. I. SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF THE SECTION.

(1) Scope of the Section,

1. (1) S. 545 does not authorise a Court to award compensation for offences other than those which form the subject of enquiry in the case in which the order is made, still less for offences of which the accused is acquitted Rat 407 22 B 717 2 Weir 715.
2. (2) S. 545 Cr P C. does not apply to such expenses as are incurred in bringing the person of the offender before the Magistrate Rat 608
3. (3) Stamp paid on a power of attorney is not recoverable under S. 31 of the Court Fees Act Subsistence allowance and cart-hire for prosecution witnesses cannot be ordered to be paid by the accused If the Court intends to make the accused pay for the expenses of the prosecution, a sufficient fine should be imposed, out of which compensation should be awarded under this section—(92 '96) U. B. 7.
4. (4) Where a person accused of non-cognizable offence is convicted of a cognizable offence, the Court cannot legally direct him to pay the expenses incurred by the complainant under S 31 of the Court Fees Act, as that section applies only to cases where the accused has been convicted of a non-cognizable offence The expenses so incurred can however be awarded to the complainant as compensation under S 545 Cr P C.—Rat 307

(2) Principle on which compensation is paid.

5. (1) The compensation awarded under S 44 Cr. P C to the person injured in consideration of the loss which he has suffered, corresponds to damages awarded in civil proceedings.—5 W R 78
6. (2) The injury must be the direct result of the offence—See 2 Weir 716; 3 B. R. 449 764. (97-'01) U B 121. Rat 631; (92-'96) U B. 79.

(3) Nature of the loss for which compensation can be awarded under S. 545.

7. (1) Compensation for loss caused by the inability of the complainant to attend to field-work on account of his time being taken up with the prosecution of the accused cannot be awarded under S 545 Cr P C which deals with expenses incurred in the prosecution and with compensation for the injury only—22 B 438
8. (2) The accused was ordered by the superintendent of the Coast Guard Service to remove certain fishing stakes and was convicted under S 293 I P C for failing to comply with that order, and sentenced to a fine of Rs. 20 of which 15 was ordered to be paid as compensation to the complainant (the Coast Guard) to cover the expenses of removing the stakes Held—that the case not having been dealt with under the obstruction to Fairways Act (XVI of 1881) the order of compensation was illegal as not coming within the terms of S 545 Cr P C—Rat 241.

(4) Excessive compensation should not be awarded.

9. Where the accused was convicted of illegally demanding and receiving money under S 21 (e) of the Fisheries Act, and was fined three times the amount of the illegal receipts, and the Magistrate directed the whole of the fine to be paid to the persons from whom the accused had taken money, Held—that the amount awarded as compensation was considerably in excess of the amounts to be awarded under Cl (b) of S 545 (1).—5 L B. 50. see 335 P L 1913

(5) Compensation if payable when the full amount of the fine has not been realised.

10. It is open to the Court to provide for the proportionate distribution of the amount realised as fine, should the full amount be not realised; in the absence of such direction however, the order cannot be construed so as to mean that "nothing should be paid till the full amount was realised," but the claim to compensation should be given priority over the claims of revenue.—2 L W. 22.

(6) Expenses of witnesses cannot be levied in addition to the fine.

11. (1) A Court cannot issue a warrant for the levy of the fees paid to a medical officer for giving evidence in the case from the accused in addition to the fine. The fees, if any, must be awarded only out of the fine levied from the accused.—24 M 305, 5 B R. 976.
12. (2) When expenses properly incurred in the prosecution of a criminal charge are ordered to be paid by the accused under S. 545 such expenses should be paid out of the fine imposed and a separate order for such expenses is improper.—Rat 341 4 B. R. 877.

(7) Are Court-fees (S. 31 Court Fees Act VII of 1871)—an integral part of the fine?

13. The duty of a Magistrate to order payment of Court and process fees under S. 31 of the Court Fees Act is imperative, whereas under S. 545 of the Code, he has a discretion to award expenses of the prosecution or to refuse to do so. It follows that S. 545 Cr. P. C. must be taken to exclude those expenses in regard to which the Court has no discretion.—24 M. 305 26 M. 421 But see 5 M. H. (appx) xviii. 22 M. 153.

(8) Application of the Section.

14. S. 545 may be applied to non-cognizable as well as cognizable cases.—If a Court imposes a fine in any case cognizable or non cognizable, it may apply S. 545 Cr. P. C.—1 Bur R. 409
15. When the section applies.—Compensation can be awarded only if the injury is the direct result of the offence for which the accused is convicted. Persons remotely affected cannot be compensated. 2 Weir 716. 2 M 286 see 3 B R 764 3 B R. 449; 20 W R. 38; 1 S 2
16. Compensation can be paid only out of the fine imposed.—Under S. 545 Cr. P. C. payment of compensation can be ordered only out of the fine recovered, and it is not competent to a Magistrate to award compensation in addition to the fine imposed upon the accused.—

19. When compensation may be awarded.—If the former was convicted and the accused discharged, the Magistrate was not competent to seize from the thief the money he had with him and to pay it to the second accused as part of purchase money paid by him.—4 M. H. (A) xviii.
20. A Police Patel cannot act under this section.—As the Police Patel's Court, is not a Criminal Court under S. 6 Cr. P. C., he has power to make an order under S. 545 Cr. P. C. Rat 317.
21. Costs which are payable under this section.—All legitimate costs as the pleadings and the stamp and the power of attorney and not merely process fees, may be awarded under this section as well as compensation for injury caused.—(72—92) L. B. 409
22. When compensation may be awarded.—If the accused is convicted and the accused discharged, the Magistrate was not competent to seize from the thief the money he had with him and to pay it to the second accused as part of purchase money paid by him.—4 M. H. (A) xviii.
23. Cr. P. C.
Where a Magistrate convicted the accused of theft of Government teak trees—held—that conviction was for an offence under the Penal Code and not under the Forest Act, the order awarding to the person who discovered the trees was illegal.—Rat 873
24. When the accused is discharged.—Compensation could not be ordered for injury imposed to an offence of which the accused was discharged.—1 S. 78 22 B. 717
25. Sums realised by forfeiture of bonds.
The provisions of S. 545 Cr. P. C. for payment of expenses or compensation do not apply to sums realised by forfeiture of bonds under S. 545 Cr. P. C.—1 Bur S. 412.
26. Rents and profits of the property forfeited to Government.—Compensation cannot be awarded out of the rents and profits of property of the accused ordered to be forfeited to Government.—Rat 146

30. (b) Case under S. 283 P. C.—Where a case of obstruction of a fishery was dealt with under S. 283 P. C. and not under Act XVI of 1881 (Fairways Act), held that the order of compensation was illegal as not coming within S 545 Cr. P. C.—Rat 211
31. (c) Case under S. 144 Cr. P. C.—Where a person was convicted under S 143 I. P. C. for disobeying the order of a Magistrate directing him to repair a well, held, that the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to direct that out of the fine paid the well should be repaired—Rat 50.

43. Compensation in cl (b) should be distinguished from expenses in cl (a) in the order.—When compensation is awarded under this section, the distinction between clauses (a) and (b) of the section should be borne in mind, and the order should show whether it is made to defray expenses of the prosecution, or as compensation for the injury caused by the offence committed—(92-'96) U. V. MISCELLANEOUS.

(1) Refund of compensation

57. If the conviction is set aside on appeal and a refund of the fines levied is ordered, the only remedy, if the person who received a portion of the money as compensation refuses to refund it, lies in a Civil Court.—2 Weir 717

[Note.—There being no provision in the Code for the refund of the money paid as compensation under S 545 Cr. P. C. the directions contained in the last part of the section should be strictly observed.—(72 '92) L. B. 357 See 2 P. R. 1880, 2 Weir 717 Con 19 A. 112]

[Note.—In 19 A 112 it was held that where the High Court in revision set aside a sentence of fine, compensation paid out of it under S 545, may be recovered under S 547 Cr. P. C.—19 A 112 See 25 P. R. 1885: 29 P. R. 1903]

58. Remedy when order of refund of compensation cannot be enforced.—When the order for compensation was reversed in revision by the High Court, and the order of refund becomes unenforceable by reason of the moneys having been paid over to the complainant, before the result of the revision application to the High Court was known, and the complainant refused to refund, the only remedy, open to the person who paid the money and is entitled to its refund, lies in a Civil Suit.—M. H. C Pro 23rd Me 1879 See 2 Weir 717

(2) Second offence as opposed to similar offence.

59. Compensation under S 3 of Act VI of 1861 can be awarded only for a second conviction for the same offence and not a similar offence. 5 P. 1866 54 P. R. 1866: 95 P. R. 1866: 35 P. 1869

(3) Remittance of compensation.

60. When the order awarding compensation has become final, and the amount has been recovered it may be remitted (less the cost of remittance) to the person who is entitled to receive it, by money order.—Punjab, Civ. A.—4—616 G. of 1860

(4) Award of expenses to complainant when compensation recoverable in Civil Court cannot be substantial.

61. Where a complainant cannot recover substantial compensation in a Civil Court, compensation cannot be awarded under clause (b) of S 545 Cr. P. C. but a sum of money may be awarded to him under cl. (a) of the section to defray the expenses of the prosecution.—15 Cr. 555 (L. B.)

546 At the time of awarding compensation in any subsequent civil suit relating to the same matter, the Court shall take into account any sum paid or subsequent suit. recovered as compensation under section 545

Proposed amendment to the section.—After section 546 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"546 A. (1) Whenever any complaint of a non-cognizable offence is made to a Court, the Court, if it convicts the accused, shall, in addition to the penalty imposed upon him, order him to pay to the complainant—

- (a) the fee (if any) paid on the petition of complaint, or for the examination of the complainant, and
- (b) any fees paid by the complainant for serving processes on his witnesses or on the accused.

(2) An order under this section may also be made by an Appellate Court, or by the High Court when exercising its powers of revision in any case in which the Court convicting the accused has by error omitted to make such order."

Notes.

1. Meaning of "take into account."—The expression "take into account" means, that a Civil Court may take into consideration, the compensation awarded by the Magistrate under S 545 and not that the compensation awarded should be deducted from the damages to be awarded.—22 W R 336 (Civ)

2. Apportionment when necessary.—A Court in awarding compensation under S. 545 (1) (b) should, when the compensation is paid to several persons, if only for the purposes of S 546, definitely apportion a certain amount to each.—Cr R 27 of 2-4-03

547. Any money (other than a fine) payable by virtue of any order made under this Code, Money ordered to be paid recover- shall be recoverable as if it were a fine.
able as fines

Proposed amendment to the section.—In section 547 of the said Code, after the word "Code," the words "and not otherwise specifically provided for," shall be inserted

Notes.

1. Any money payable.—e.g. maintenance allowance awarded under S. 459 Cr P C. Compensation under S. 250 Cr P C. or costs awarded under S 344. Cr. P C. or costs awarded under S. 148 (3) supra.—[See 5 P. L 1904]

2. Recovery of compensation on sentence being set aside.—A First class Magistrate fined the accused Rs 25 each and directed half the fine, if recovered, to be given to the complainant. The conviction and sentence was set aside by the High Court who ordered a retrial. The Second Class Magistrate, on retrial, fined each of the accused Rs 10 and said that "as they had already paid a fine of Rs 25 each, the result of the sentence will be that Rs. 15 will have to be returned to each of them." The complainant having already received half the original fine, the District Magistrate called upon him to refund, but the complainant stated that he had already spent the money and was unable to repay. On a reference being made by the District Magistrate as to how the compensation money could be legally recovered, the High Court held that the decision of the second class

Magistrate amounted to an order to the complainant to refund the sum of Rs 15, and was therefore enforceable under S 547 Cr P. C.—Rat 213

3. High Court's power to direct refund.—The power of the High Court, as a Court of Revision, to set aside orders awarding compensation (under S 432 (1) (d) supra) must be taken to include the power to direct repayment of the money paid as compensation.—12 P. R 1885 See 29 P R 1903.

4. No separate suit necessary to recover compensation paid under a sentence subsequently reversed.—When the High Court directs, in revision, that the fines paid by the accused should be refunded to them. The money, in whosever hands it may be, should be payable to them. Where part of the amount has been given to the complainant as compensation, the amount may be recovered by process under S. 547 without having recourse to a Civil Suit.—19 A. 112; 8 & 25 A. 315; G.A. 96 7 M 563; 14 P R. 1884; 29 P. R. 1903.

548. If any person affected by judgment or order passed by a Criminal Court desires to have a copy of the Judge's charge to the jury or of any order or decision or other part of the record he shall, on applying for same, be furnished therewith:

Provided that he pays for the same, unless the Court, for some special reason, thinks fit furnish it free of cost

Notes.

1. All prosecutors entitled to copies.—All prosecutors whose charges are dismissed by the Presidency Magistrate are affected within the meaning of S 170 of the Presidency Magistrates Act (IV of 1877) by the order of discharge, so as to entitle them to obtain copies of the order made by the Magistrate and the depositions —[S C 166] A Magistrate cannot refuse copy of the order of discharge on the ground that the case was sent up by the Police and the complainant not having obtained permission under S 495 to conduct the prosecution, was a mere witness and was not therefore "affected" by the order. Every one complaining of an offence who has been injured is affected by the disposal of his complaint within the meaning of this section —[Rat 305]
2. Rights of the accused.—A prisoner is entitled to have copies, of all documents for which he asks and which he thinks necessary for his defence, and a Magistrate acts contrary to law, in determining whether such copies are necessary or not —[14 W R. 77]. S. 276 (=S. 548) and S 404 (=S 367) are wholly distinct. An accused person is therefore entitled to a copy of the judgment in his own language, unconditionally under S 464 (=S 367) and also to one in the language in which it is written, under S. 276 (=S 548) under the conditions specified therein.—[Rat 73].
3. When the accused is not entitled.—Accused person is not entitled to a copy of record of the evidence and proceedings in case, merely on the ground of an alleged inalienable hardship.—[1 M. H. 138]. A "charge" not an order of a Criminal Court by which accused person could be said to be affected within the meaning of S. 548 Cr. P. C. so as to entitle him to copies of depositions where the trial not advanced beyond the examination of prosecution witnesses —[(192) A N 140]
4. Copies of Judgments.—Copies of judgments should be made out at once without waiting written application from persons under sentence —[3 W R 19]
5. Copies of records.—If copies are wanted, a person in confinement, of records of other depositions of witnesses and the documents of evidence and final sentences or orders passed in Criminal Courts, they can be supplied only stamp-paper —4 M. H. (Appx) 57
6. Power of High Court to revise order of refusal.—On a refusal by a Presidency Magistrate to grant copies to a Prosecutor, the High Court can, certainly under S 16 of the High Courts Charter Act and also under S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act, compel the Magistrate to grant such copies.—S C. 166

549 (1) The Governor General in Council may make rules, consistent with this Code and the Army Act or any similar law for the time being in force as to the cases in which persons subject to military law shall be tried by a Court to which this Code applies, or by Court-martial, when any person is brought before a Magistrate and charged with an offence for which he is liable, under the Army Act, section 41, to be tried by a Court-martial, such Magistrate shall have regard to such rules, and shall in proper cases deliver him, together with a statement of the offence of which he is accused, to the commanding officer of the regiment, corps or detachment to which he belongs, or to the commanding officer of the nearest military station, for the purpose of being tried by Court-martial

(2) Every Magistrate shall, on receiving a written application for that purpose by the commanding officer of any body of troops stationed or employed at any such place, use his utmost endeavours to apprehend and secure any person accused of such offence.

Notes.

1. Civil Courts not subject to control by the Commander-in-Chief.—S. 101 of the Mutiny Act does not deprive the Civil (as distinguished from Military) Courts of jurisdiction of British Soldiers committing offences within the limits of those Courts, nor does it render the exercise of their jurisdiction dependent upon the Commander-in-Chief's action.—[5 C. 124]

2. Conflict of jurisdiction.—Reg. XX. of 1825 has no force in Hazaribagh. Under the Regulation, the Military authorities can require a Magistrate to hand over to them any prisoner who may be apprehended and brought before him for an offence committed at a place more than 120 miles from a Presidency town; but the proceedings before a Magistrate, when taken at the request of and assented to by the Military authorities are not absolutely void, and the commitment so made is not an invalid commitment—20 W. R. 20
3. Rules respecting surrender of offenders to Military authorities.

(a) If, within the fifteen days, or at any time there-should be tried by a Court-martial, the Magistrate shall stay the proceedings before himself, and if the accused is in his power, deliver him, together with the statement mentioned in S. 549 of the Code, to the authority prescribed in that section.

(b) If after a Magistrate has been moved by the Military authorities to proceed against a person subject to Military law for an offence for which that person is liable under the Army Act 1891, S. 41, to be tried by a Court-martial, an officer to whose command the person is subject notifies to the Magistrate that, in the opinion of the Military authorities, the accused should be tried by Court-martial, the Magistrate if he has not, before receiving the notice done or made an act or order, (acquitted or convicted in a summons case framed a charge in a warrant case, issued an order for the trial of the accused by a jury, or made an order for commitment), shall stay the proceedings before himself, and if the accused is in his power, deliver him, together with the statement mentioned in S. 549 of the Code, to the authority prescribed in that Section.

(c) Where a Criminal Court and Court-martial have concurrent jurisdiction, it is, as a rule, desirable that the accused should be tried by the latter, but in cases of thefts of arms, ammunitions or other property belonging to the Government, if there is reason to suspect that persons other than the accused, who are not subject to the Indian Articles of War, are directly or indirectly implicated, it may often be expedient for the officer commanding the troops to decide in favour of investigation by the Criminal Court as more likely to assure the discovery and punishment of all the accessories to the offence.—Govt. of India, Home Department, 30th April, 1897.

550. Any police-officer may seize any property which may be alleged or suspected to have been stolen, or which may be found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence. Such police-officer, if subordinate to the officer in charge of a police-station, shall forthwith report the seizure to that officer.

Notes.

1. Object of the Section.—"We have inserted a new clause giving Police officers express power to seize property which they suspect to have been stolen. This power is assumed in clause 523, which described the procedure to be followed, with respect to such property when seized, but following the precedent of S. 81 of the Calcutta Police Act, 1866 we think it is better to give the power expressly"—Sel. Com. Rep.
2. Powers under this section cannot be delegated.—"When a subordinate Police officer

3. Property mixed up with stolen property.—Sec 550 of Act V of 1898 no doubt gives the police very wide powers with regard to the seizure of cattle alleged or suspected to have been stolen, but it does not extend to the taking away other cattle simply because they are mixed up with the stolen ones

14 P. W. 1909.

4. Claims.—The police seized property on suspicion of its being stolen property under S. 550 Cr. P. C., and the Magistrate issued a proclamation before satisfying himself as to the claim of the person in possession. Held that it was not incumbent on the Magistrate to decide the claim before issuing the proclamation, as the person in whose possession the property was found has an opportunity of making good his claim to the Magistrate even after issue of the proclamation—2 N. 32.

in question: (2) He cannot direct the Station Master to detain the property, and the latter cannot be convicted under S. 184 I. P. C. for disobeying orders which are ultra vires—16 O. C. 371.

551. Police-officers superior in rank to an officer in charge of a police-station may exercise the same powers, throughout the local area to which they are appointed, as may be exercised by such officer within the limits of his station.

Notes.

1. Can a superior police officer who is himself a complainant act under the Section?—Where a Superintendent of Police reported to a police station that five police officers and another police constable had prepared false records, wrongfully confined certain persons and caused hurt to them in order to extort confessions, it is extremely improper that he should himself under S 551 Cr. P. C make the investigation under S 157 Cr. P. C.—25 M. T. 379.
2. Order of dispersal of unlawful assembly by superior police officer.—An order by a Deputy Commissioner of police who is an officer superior in rank to an officer in charge of a police station, directing the dispersal of an assembly of five or more persons likely to cause a disturbance of the public peace is an order by a lawful authority within the meaning of S. 480 (=S 157) Cr. P. C.—7 B 42.

552. Upon complaint made to a Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate on oath of the Power to compel restoration of ab- abduction or unlawful detention of a woman, or of a female child ducted females. under the age of fourteen years, for any unlawful purpose, he may make an order for the immediate restoration of such woman to her liberty, or of such female child to her husband, parent, guardian or other person having the lawful charge of such child, and may compel compliance with such order, using such force as may be necessary.

Notes.

1. Procedure in regard to applications under S. 552 Cr. P. C.—On an application being made by the husband under S 552 for the restoration of his minor wife, alleged to be in unlawful detention by her father, the District Magistrate is bound to examine witness as to
- a child in opposition to the wishes of its guardians.—4 B R 609
4. (3) If a woman is residing with her relatives who are aiding in her endeavouring to procure divorce, such a detention is not unlawful detention.—2 Weir 724

contrary to her wish.—15 Cr. 712 (C)

Meaning of unlawful purpose.

2. (1) S. 551 of the Code of 1882 (=S 552) applies to women and female children only. This combination and the exclusion of male children go to show not only that some definite purpose, unlawful in itself, was contemplated, but that the purpose has some reference to the sex of the person against whom it was entertained. Therefore it should not be so construed as to make it include purposes which, although not unlawful in themselves, might only become so when entertained towards a child in opposition to the wishes of its guardians, e.g.—detention of a female child, against the will of her parents or guardians, who were lawfully entitled to have charge of her, for the purpose of being brought up in a religion which such parent or guardian disapproved of.—16 C 457.
3. (2) The purpose contemplated by S. 552 Cr. P. C must be in itself unlawful, and must not be construed so as to make it include purposes which, although not unlawful in themselves, might only become so when entertained towards
- and those words have been used in all the subsequent Acts, but the Magistrate's power has always been restricted to the case of women and children. The effect of the alteration was to extend the
6. Principles on which a Magistrate will act.—The Court will be guided by a consideration of the present and future welfare of the minor who is detained.—16 B 307.

Procedure

7. (1) A warrant for the arrest of the persons charged with abduction without stating the intent with which the offence is committed is bad.—15 W. R 4

8. (2) Where a Magistrate has reason to believe that a woman is being unlawfully detained but cannot find who so detains her, the proper course for the Magistrate is to issue an order to have the woman brought before him and examine her—2 Weir 724.

9. (3) Where a Magistrate ordered the restoration of a woman to liberty, without any finding that she was unlawfully detained by any one, and without ordering any one to restore her to liberty, held that such an order was not contemplated by S. 552, and that the proper course would be to issue an order to have her brought before him and to examine her.—ibid.

10. Power of High Court to restore, on reversing an order under S. 552 Cr. P. C.—In England, where a superior Court sets aside an order for restoration of a minor girl to the custody of the guardian, it has the power to restore the status quo ante [See Rodger v. the Comptrol D'Escompte-de-Paris, L. R. 3 P. C. 465]. In 16 C. 457, it was however held that it did not follow as a matter of course that the status quo ante should be restored.

553. (1) Whenever any person causes a police-officer to arrest another person in a presidency-town, if it appears to the Magistrate by whom the case is heard that there was no sufficient ground for causing such arrest, the Magistrate may award such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, to be paid by the person so causing the arrest to the person so arrested, for his loss of time and expenses in the matter, as the Magistrate thinks fit.

(2) In such cases, if more persons than one are arrested, the Magistrate may, in like manner, award to each of them such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees, as such Magistrate thinks fit.

(3) All compensation awarded under this section may be recovered as if it were a fine, and, if it cannot be so recovered, the person by whom it is payable shall be sentenced to simple imprisonment for such term not exceeding thirty days as the Magistrate directs, unless such sum is sooner paid.

554. (1) With the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the High Court at Fort William, and, with the previous sanction of the Local Government, any other High Court established by Royal Charter, may, from time to time, make rules for the inspection of the records of subordinate Courts

Power of chartered High Courts to make rules for inspection of records of subordinate Courts

Government,—

(a) make rules for keeping all books, entries and accounts to be kept in all Criminal Courts subordinate to it, and for the preparation and transmission of any returns or statements to be prepared and submitted by such Courts ;

(b) frame forms for every proceeding in the said Courts for which it thinks that a form should be provided ;

(c) make rules for regulating its own practice and proceedings and the practice and proceedings of all Criminal Courts subordinate to it, and

(d) make rules for regulating the execution of warrants issued under this Code for the levy of fines ;

Provided that the rules and forms made and framed under this section shall not be inconsistent with this Code or any other law in force for the time being

(3) All rules made under this section shall be published in the local official Gazette.

Notes.

1. Rule framed by the Madras High Court.—An application for a copy of a Teshidar Magistrate's judgment is governed by rule 188 of the Criminal Rules of Practice framed by the High Court under the powers vested in it by S. 554 subs (2), cl (C) of the Cr. P. C. Such an application need not be accompanied by a search fee of eight annas under the Board's standing order No. 173—35 M. J. 401.

(2) Sonthal Perganas.—The Sonthal Pergana Criminal Justice Regulation V of 1893 S. 4 (VIII) amended by Regulation III of 1899

(3) British Baluchistan.—The British Baluchistan Criminal Justice Regulation VIII of 1893 Sch. 320.

555. Subject to the power conferred by section 554, and by section 107 of the Government of India Act, the forms set forth in the fifth schedule, with such variation as the circumstances of each case require, may be used for the respective purposes therein mentioned, and if used shall be sufficient.

Notes.

1. An order under S. 147 supra—should be made in accordance with Form No 24 of Sch. V.—14 Cr. 303 (C)

Importance of words used in the Schedule. The use of the word "probably" in Form 10 of Sch. V of the Cr. P. C., limits forfeiture to cases in which a breach of the peace is the 'probable' and not merely the possible result of the act of the person bound over.—[22 P. R. 1914]

3. Forms are to be strictly interpreted.—

A bond executed by a surety in the form prescribed by Schedule V. Form No 11. Cr. P. C. cannot be forfeited on the principal committing an offence in an independent Native State, in as much as the principal does not thereby make default in undertaking to be of good behaviour towards His Majesty or His Majesty's subjects

[26 P. R. 1918 See 20 P. R. 1878 37 P. R. 130 P. R. 1889.]

Note.—See the bond construed in 36 C 562.

4. Meaning of the term "if used, shall be sufficient."—An order under S. 144 was made in Form No. XXI. Schedule V without specifying that its operation is confined to two months or some shorter period from the making thereof. Held, that the order is good having regard to provisions of this section [34 C 897 (F. F. See 10 C 937; 26 M. 55; 7 A. 44 (F. B.) & ruling 5 A. 17 [Schedule V Form No. XXV II (4)]]

5. Failure to comply with the forms prescribed by this section.—Where a warrant under S. 100 Cr. P. C. was drawn up in a printed form used under S. 98 with necessary alterations to make it provisions of the section, held it was a valid warrant [39 C 4 But see 11 C. N. 836]. Where summonses under 107 were not in accord with the form set out in Schedule V. No 12, the order requiring bond-keeping the peace was set aside.—[9 Cr. 179 (See 14 C. N. 78)]

556. No Judge or Magistrate shall, except with the permission of the Court to which Case in which Judge or Magistrate appeal lies from his Court, try or commit for trial any case or in which he is a party, or personally interested, and no Judge or Magistrate shall hear an appeal from any judgment or order passed or made by himself.

Explanation.—A Judge or Magistrate shall not be deemed a party, or personally interested within the meaning of this section, to or in any case by reason only that he is a Municipal Commissioner or otherwise concerned therein in a public capacity or by reason only that he has viewed the place in which an offence is alleged to have been committed, or any other place which any other transaction material to the case is alleged to have occurred, and made an inquiry in connection with the case.

1. OBJECT AND SCOPE OF THE SECTION.

(1) The principles underlying the section.

1. As explained in the leading case of Serjeant v. Dale.—"By the Common Law, a Judge, who has an interest in the result of the suit, is disqualified from acting except in case of necessity, where no other Judge has jurisdiction. The law does not measure the amount of interest in the decision of the question on a try, he is disqualified, no matter how small the interest may be. The Law in laying down this strict rule has regard not so much perhaps to the motives which might be supposed to bias the Judge as to the susceptibilities of the litigant parties. One important object at all events, is to clear away everything which might engender suspicion and distrust of the tribunal and so to promote the feeling of confidence in the administration of justice, which is so essential to social order and security."—Serjeant v. Dale L. R. 2 Q. B. D. 558

2. The law is the same as in England.—The principle of the section follows the well-known maxim "Nemo sibi esse iudex vel sui juris dicere debet" (no man can be his own judge or give judgment concerning his own rights) It is one of the plainest rules of justice and of common sense that no man shall sit as judge in a case in which he has substantial interest This is the law of this country as much as it is the law of England.—[2 C. 23 25 W R 57 1 Bur 153 12 C N 140] It is of the last importance that the maxim that no man is to be judge in his own cause, should be held sacred And that is not to be confined to a cause in which he has interest" [Dares : Grand Junction Canal 3 H L case 733] See Note No 62 under S 526 at p. 916 (supra)

Note.—"Whenever there is real likelihood that the Judge would from kindred or any other cause have a bias in favour of one of the parties, it would be wrong in him to act"—Q. t. Band L R.
10 B 230

3. The principle underlying the section.—
It is highly undesirable that a Magistrate should

C J 484

4. The principle explained.—"What the section shows is that if a Magistrate or Judge is merely connected with a case by reason of his discharging some other public function or is connected with it in some public capacity outside his Magisterial or judicial functions, and orders or directs a prosecution or is concerned with it in some public capacity, he is not, on that ground alone, to be deemed personally interested in the case. But if a Magistrate or Judge is connected with a case in some public capacity, and is to be deemed personally interested in the case, and he cannot try it as a Magistrate or Judge. The distinction is between having some public or official connection with a case, and ordering and directing a prosecution in some extra-judicial or extra magisterial capacity.—Per Strachey C. J. in (189) A N 74

(2) Object of the strict rule

5. The law, in laying down the strict rule that if a Magistrate has any legal interest in the decision of the case, however small that interest may be, he is disqualified from trying it, had regards not so much to the motive which might be supposed to produce bias in the mind of the Judge as to the susceptibilities of the litigant parties. The object is to clear everything which might engender suspicion and distrust, and to promote the feeling of confidence in the administration of justice which is so essential to social order and security—20 C 557 2 C. 23 1 Bur 153: 20 B 502.

Note.—A Magistrate by making himself a witness has a legal interest in the decision of the case which disqualifies him from trying it; no matter how small that interest may be"—Sergeant v Dale (17) 2 Q. B. D. 555

(3) Meaning of the word "case."

8. The words "trying any case" in S. 556 Cr. P. C. include the hearing of an appeal—(99) A. N. 74; 23 C. 44; 9 N. 81; 1 S. 95. see 12 C. N. 438; 22 W. R. 75.

The expression "try any case" in S. 556 is wide

635: see Q. v. Miledge (79) 4 Q. B. D. 332; Q. v. Lee (82) 9 Q. B. D. 394.

7. Revision.—A Magistrate who is disqualified from trying a case by reason of S. 556 is also disqualified from interfering in revision to the prejudice of the accused.—(65) U. B. 1—q. 37; 5 S. 137.

(4) When one member of a tribunal is disqualified.

8. (1) If any one member of a Bench or Tribunal is disqualified by S. 556, the conviction and trial is void—2 C. 23; 4 W. R. 86.
9. (2) A conviction for a municipal offence by a Bench of Magistrates, one of whom is a salaried officer of the Municipality is bad in spite of the provisions of S. 555 (=556) of the Cr. P. Code.—10 C. 191
10. (3) Where a justice has such an interest as to give him a real bias in the matter, he ought not to sit on the Bench. It is immaterial what part he really takes and what he ought to take. He takes it unanimously. 3 D. 173; 410 R. 1.

Grady 7 Cox C. C. 247; But see R. v. Lonsdale 18 Q. B. 421; see also 3 N. 67]

(5) Scope of the section.

11. S. 556 does not authorise 'treating acquittal as void because Magistrate was disqualified.—The Court before which an order of acquittal is produced, is not entitled to impeach the competency of the Court who passed the order, on the ground that the presiding officer may perhaps have laboured under a disqualification prescribed by S. 556 Cr. P. C. 8 A. J. 1129; see R. v. Simpson (14) 1 K. B. 100
12. Assessors having personal interest.—a trial with the aid of assessors, it was decreed after the trial was begun, that one of them who interested or otherwise unfit to sit as an assessor held, that in such cases the Sessions Judge ought to choose another assessor and proceed with the trial de novo [(12) M. N. 378.]
13. The illustration to S. 556 Cr. P. C.—The illustration to S. 556 Cr. P. C. cannot be read merely meaning that an officer may not try Magistrate, a complaint which he instituted. Collector its evident intention is to debar him when he is himself the fonset origo of the prosecution.—1 S. 98

(6) Determination of the grounds of objection.

14. In every case, where it is urged that there is a disqualification in the Judge, the circumstances creating the disqualification would have to be clearly determined before effect could be given to the objection, and they ought to be clearly specified in the objection.—48 P. R. 1857
15. Question of fact.—Whether a case falls within the provision of S. 556 Cr. P. C. is a question of fact to be determined with reference to the circumstances of each particular case.—9 N. 51

II. PERMISSION OF THE APPELLATE COURT.

16. Personal interest of the Appellate Court no bar.—The fact that both the Magistrate and the Sessions Judge are members of the club and the accused was a servant of the club, does not stand in the way of the Sessions Judge's granting permission to try the case or to commit it for trial.—20 A. 161.
17. When permission cannot be granted.—The expression "the permission of the Court" refers to the words "try or commit for trial" and cannot be extended so as to include appeals. A Judge who has directed the prosecution, should not hear the appeal.—(11) B. 1
18. Prosecution before a Magistrate whom the accused defamed in his petition for transfer.—The accused in his application before the District Magistrate under S. 628, stated inter alia also that the Magistrate of the second class before whom his case was pending, was corrupt and had demanded money from him. On enquiry the District Magistrate found the allegations false and rejected the application. Thereupon the Magistrate asked from the District Magistrate permission to prosecute the accused and at the same time proceeded with the trial which had been started. "that if whether he was to go on with the case.—2 L. B. 223

19. Commitment must be with permission.—This section disqualifies a Magistrate from dealing as a Magistrate with any case in the police investigation, of which he has taken more than a formal part and unless he obtains the permission of the Appellate Court, he is disqualified from committing the case for trial.—2 L. B. 220

III. CONSENT OF THE PARTY.

20. The General Rule.—The consent of the accused cannot confer jurisdiction upon a Magistrate who is personally interested within the meaning of S. 556.—7 A. J. 719; 32 A. 635
21. Implied assent is of no value.—The implied assent of an accused, to the hearing of an appeal by the District Magistrate who is disqualified by reason of S. 556 Cr. P. C. is of no value. Consent or want of objection cannot cure a defect in jurisdiction.—9 N. 81. 1 S. 98.
22. Waiver or consent cannot cure illegal proceedings.—Criminal proceedings which are substantially bad cannot be cured by any amount of waiver or consent on the part of the accused.—2 C. 23.
23. Effect of waiver.—Where it appeared that a District Magistrate was not only actively concerned in the institution of proceedings against a person under Chapter VIII of the Code, but that those proceedings originated in and with him, in the discharge of his duties as executive head of the District, and responsible in the maintenance of order, held that S. 556 Cr. P. C. debarred him from entertaining an appeal under S. 406 Cr. P. C. without the permission of the Sessions Court, and that the inherent disability of the Magistrate could not be cured by any act of waiver on the part of the accused.—1. S. 98.

24. Where the Magistrate has exceeded his duties, consent is of no avail.—Where the trying Magistrate, with the consent of both parties made a local enquiry in their presence to test the evidence adduced but it appeared that he had done much more than viewing the place for the purpose of following or understanding the evidence and had not placed the facts observed on record. Held (Per Chatterjee and Woodroffe JJ) that he was personally disqualified from trying the case within the meaning of this section.—37 C. 340 See 19 M. 263.

IV. PERSONAL INTEREST—MEANING AND CASES.

(1) Meaning of "personal interest."

25. (1) The word "interest" in S. 556 Cr. P. C. does not merely imply intellectual interest, but something of the nature of an expectation of an advantage to be gained or of loss or of some disadvantage to be avoided, by the person who is said to be interested. The fact that the Magistrate, previous to the trial of the case, had officially reported the matter to the Collector after an inquiry, with an expression of his own opinion, does not make the provisions of S. 556 applicable, though it might be a proper ground for an application for transfer.—8 B. R. 947
26. (2) The words "personally interested" cannot mean that a public officer whose duty it is to see that the law is obeyed is merely, by reason of that duty, a person personally interested in the prosecution and the trial of an offender against the statute law. They cannot refer to any very remote interest in the matter and must refer to some particular and immediate personal interest in the case and its results. The words cannot

27. (3) The term "personally interested" does not mean merely "privately interested" or interested as a private individual but excludes such interest as a Magistrate, as an executive officer, may take in securing evidence and materials leading to the conviction of the accused.—20 C. 857. 23 C. 877. 23 C. 323. 24 M. 239. see 27 A. 33 (3). 3 P. R. 1895
28. (4) The words "personally interested" do not exclude pecuniary interest as distinguished from personal interest.—20 B. 502; 9 N. 81.

29. (5) The words "personally interested" are to be contrasted with the following phrase "concerned therein in a public capacity" in the explanation of the section.—8 S. 41
30. (6) It is hard to define exactly what is meant by "personal interest" and it is difficult to reconcile the various decisions. The question whether a given case falls within the provisions of S. 556 must be a question of fact to be determined by the circumstances of the particular case.—24 M. 238. 9 N. 81.
31. (7) The disqualifying interest must be one attaching to a Magistrate or Judge as an individual, and not one which he derives solely from his official position.—(93) A. N. 79 But see the illustration and note No. 33 below
32. (8) A Magistrate should not entertain a criminal case in which persons indebted to him are concerned either as complainants or accused * *
33. (9) A disqualifying interest may result from a purely official connection with the institution of criminal proceedings.—23 C. 323; 20 C. 857; 24 M. 238. 3 W. R. 29; 22 W. R. 75. 1 Bor 337.

Note.—The mere facts that the Magistrate had authorised the prosecution, is no bar to his jurisdiction.—24 M. 238.

(2) Municipal prosecutions.

34. District Magistrate who is also a member of a Municipal Board.—Is a party interested in the trial of persons whose prosecution he has ordered, for cruelly ill-treating a pair of horses in contravention of the bye-laws of the Municipality.—(86) A. N. 291. (83) A. N. 181. (99) A. N. 74. 9 C. L. 193; 10 C. J. 484. 5 S. 137. Con 27 A. 25. 24 W. R. 25; 21 W. R. 31; Queen v. Handley L. R. 8 Q. B. D. 333

35. Trial by Municipal Commissioner.—A Municipal Commissioner acting as a Magistrate, may enquire into a charge of the breach of a bye-law, and may punish the accused party by inflicting a fine.—24 W. R. 25 See 18 B. 447. 3 P. R. 1895; 5 S. 137.

36. Justice of the Peace also a servant of the Corporation.—A servant of the Calcutta Corporation was held to have such an interest in the result of a prosecution by the Corporation under S. 77 of Act IV of (1876) as to disqualify him from trying it as Justice of the Peace. 7 C. 322; See 4 B. L. (Ap) Cr. 15. 8 B. L. 422 (F. B.). Dumas v. Grand Junction Canal Co., 3 H. L. Cas. 799; Q. v. Gibben L. R. 7 Q. B. D. 168; Q. v. Lee 9 Q. B. D. 304; Q. v. Meyer, L. R. 1 Q. B. 37. The explanation—follows the remarks of Field J., in 10 C. 194. "A gentleman, who, without remuneration, is merely discharging a public and honorary office, and who has no personal interest in the proceedings of the Municipality, may well be supposed to be free from that bias which the jealousy of the law presumes in other persons immediately interested. Such immediate and disqualifying interest, does, we think, exist in the case of a gentleman whose time and services, are in consideration of a salary given to carry on the work of a Municipal Corporation. The jealousy of law must presume that such a person however

38. Rules governing trial of Municipal cases by Magistrate who is also member or President of the Municipal Board.—It cannot be laid down that the mere fact that a Magistrate is President or Vice-President of a Municipal Committee, would disqualify him from trying an offence under the Municipal Act. But as laid down in 18 B. 412, if a President or Vice-President has taken part in promoting the prosecution, as for instance, by concurring in sanctioning it at a meeting of the committee or otherwise, he will be disqualified by reason of the existence of a personal interest over and above what may be supposed to be felt by every Municipal Commissioner in the affairs of the Municipality.—14 N. 11; Sergeant v. Dale [(1877) 2 Q. B. D. 554 Ed.] Where the accused was tried at the instance of a Municipal Committee for an offence under the C. P. Municipal Act and the case was tried by the Treasurer who was also the President of the Municipality, held that despite the provision S. 556, this was a case which the Treasildar should not have tried [20 Cr. 244 (N) & 9 N. 81; 23 C. 328; 23 C. 44.] An accused person was tried and convicted under S. 188 of the Penal Code, of having disobeyed an order of the Municipal Commissioners under S. 236 of Bengal Act V of 1876. The District Magistrate who tried and convicted the accused, was present as Chairman of the Municipal Commissioners at the meeting in which the order was passed. Held that the conviction was illegal and should be set aside.—10 C. 1030 See 10 C. 194. 18 B. 412. 15 M. 83. (05) U. B. 1-q 37; 5 P. R. 1596

(3) Prosecution under the Opium Act or Excise Act.

39. A Magistrate is not debarred from trying a case under the Opium Act by reason merely of his being in charge of the Excise and Opium administration of the District.—(97—101) U. B. 127 (30) 15 A. 192 (F. B.). (08) A. N. 95. 11 A. J. 832

But when he has himself taken proceedings against the accused under the Excise Act he is not competent to try the case.—(96) A. N. 105; 5 P. W. 1912; 14 C. N. 1xix

(4) Active part in the investigation of a case.

40. (1) Where a District Magistrate took an active part in the investigation of a case, he was held not to be competent to have it tried by himself.—14 Bur. R. 335. 24 M. 238; 5 C. N. 864

40.A. (2) Where it appeared from the judgment of a Magistrate and the evidence in the case, that he himself initiated the proceedings under Ss 143 and 150 I. P. O. which he, as Magistrate, had subsequently tried and that he took an active part in the dispersal of the unlawful assembly, and had pursued and directed the pursuit of the members of that assembly, and that subsequently he took pains to collect the evidence, showing the connection of the accused with the unlawful assembly and the keeping of armed men, in which they were afterwards convicted, held that in these circumstances, the Magistrate should not have tried the case himself, as he had initiated and directed the entire proceedings and as he could be regarded as being personally interested in them.—20 C. 857. 20 W. R. 70

41. (3) A Magistrate taking an active part in forwarding the Police inquiries and collecting evidence against the accused is disqualified from trying the accused. A disqualifying interest may result from a purely official connection with the initiation of criminal proceedings.—23 C. 324 (331); See 20 W. R. 76; 15 C. P. 192; 10 C. N. 441.

42. (1) As a general rule, it is undesirable that a Magistrate who by local investigation while on tour, having himself discovered the existence of crime, and collected or ascertained evidence in support of it, there-after directs, recommends or invites the institution of proceedings against it, should try the supposed criminal.—8 N. 1. 9 C. P. 26. 9 N. 81.

[Note.—But the section does not disqualify a Magistrate from dealing with any case in the police investigation of which he has taken not more than a formal part.—2 L. B. 209; 10 Bar. R. 150.]

(5) Effect of granting sanction or making complaint.

43. (1) A Sessions Judge who has given sanction against the accused, that he should be tried for giving false evidence may hear an appeal from conviction of the accused for that offence, but it is not desirable for him to do so.—39 P. R. 1884
44. (2) A Sessions Judge who makes a complaint before a Magistrate is not incompetent afterwards to try it without the aid of a jury, if he has no personal or pecuniary interest in the subject of the charge.—13 W. R. 60=4 B. L. 15
45. (3) A Sessions Judge is not disqualified to hear appeal, when prosecution was ordered by him as District Judge. See Note No 14 under S. 457 (p. 837 supra)
46. (4) A Munsiff sanctioned the prosecution of the accused for offences under Ss 463, 471, 219, 511 I. P. C., and his order was, on appeal, confirmed by the District Judge. The petitioner was thereupon tried by a Subdivisional Magistrate and was convicted. Held that the Sessions Judge ought not to have heard the appeal from the conviction.—17 C. N. xi

(6) Magistrate holding preliminary enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C.

47. A Magistrate holding preliminary enquiry under S. 202 Cr. P. C. is not disqualified from trying the case himself.—4 C. N. 604 24 C. 167 See 13 C. N. ccxviii Con 23 C. 325 1 L. B. 86

(7) Local Inspection as disqualification.

48. Where a Magistrate trying a case of riot, made a local inspection of the scene of the alleged offence and was influenced by such investigation in arriving at his finding in the case. Held that by so doing the Magistrate had made himself a witness in the case and disqualified to try it.—[19 M. 263. 21 C. 920] Where a Magistrate has in the course of the local inspection done much more than viewing the place, for the purpose of following or understanding the evidence, held he was disqualified from trying the case.—[37 C. 340] As a general rule however, a Magistrate is competent to inspect personally a locality in order to test the correctness of the evidence and plans of the locality submitted in the case. Such an inspection would not disqualify him from trying the case.—[13 P. R. 1901. See 15 C. N. 414. 1 P. W. 1910] Where a Magistrate inspected the locus in quo and stated in his judgment what he saw when he inspected, held that, having regard to the amendment of the law by the addition to the explanation to S. 556 of the Code, the present case was not governed by the case reported in 19 M. 253.—[2 Weir 723: see 2 Weir 727 (728)] A Magistrate is entitled to make a local inspection for the purpose of explaining the evidence that has been given before him, but the law casts an obligation on him to make an accurate note on the record of what he has seen and the impression that has been created on his mind relative to the evidence already given. In a case where a Magistrate made a note of the case alleged taking of a bribe, the Magistrate went to the scene of occurrence accompanied by a partisan of the complainant and held a local enquiry into a matter, which though not the subject of the complaint against the accused, could nevertheless be imagined by the accused to be such. In the circumstances, the case was directed to be transferred.—12 C. N. 748

50. Local inspection is not a necessary disqualification.—A case cannot be decided merely on an observation made by the Court locally. But if in looking at the place in order to understand the evidence, the Magistrate comes to the conclusion that the description of the place as given in the evidence is erroneous or false, he is not precluded from holding that the facts

[Note.—Where there is a dispute as to the exact spot where the occurrence is said to have taken place, the Magistrate will be wise to defer his visit until he has heard the whole of the evidence.—21 C. 920]

51. Local inspection should not be in the nature of a police investigation.—“Under no circumstances can it be right for a Magistrate who is trying a case to hold a kind of Police investigation, questioning all kinds of people and hearing all kinds of statements, which must more or less influence his mind, which are made by irresponsible persons and are neither recorded nor made in the presence of the accused.—C. P. C. Cr. Part V, No. 14
52. Local inspections in cases under S. 147 Cr. P. C.—The rule that in Criminal cases, Courts are justified in holding a local inspection, only in order to explain the facts appearing in evidence, does not apply to cases under S. 147 Cr. P. C., nor is there anything in the law to prevent the presiding Magistrate from making an investigation himself, provided that he records what he saw and does not act upon hearsay evidence.—15 C. J. 414.

(8) Double capacity

53. (1) An officer before whom, whilst acting in a particular capacity, an offence under S. 223 P. O. is committed can not in another capacity, take up and try the offence.—12 W. R. 15; 24 W. R. 1.
54. (2) But a Magistrate can try an accused person under S. 174 P. C. for disobedience of a summons issued by him in his capacity of mamlatdar.—Cr. R. 28 of '93. But see 22 P. R. 1879.
55. (3) A Sessions Judge who in his extra-judicial capacity, on perusal of certain records, expressed an opinion that a certain witness might be tried for perjury—held—that the latter should not be tried by that very Sessions Judge on being committed to the Sessions.—2 Shome 38.
56. (4) District Magistrate also chairman of the Municipal Commissioners. See Note No. 39 above.
57. (5) Where the Cantonment Magistrate, as the Cantonment Small Cause Court Judge issued the warrant in respect of which the obstruction occurred. Held that he was not debarred by reason of S. 556 from subsequently trying the case of obstruction under S. 156 I. P. C.—S. S. 41 22 P. R. 1879.
58. (6) Where a District Magistrate, in his capacity as Inspector of Factories, sanctions a prosecution he is disqualified under S. 556 Cr. P. C., from trying the case.—21 Cr. 359 (P).
- 58A. (7) When a District Magistrate sanctions a prosecution under S. 19 (f) of the Arms Act, he is disqualified from trying the case.—9 C. P. 26.

(9) Expression of opinion in the course of departmental enquiry.

59. A Magistrate is not disqualified from trying a case, merely by the fact that in the departmental enquiry in the case, he forwarded the papers to the Collector with his opinion that there was apparently sufficient evidence to justify criminal prosecution.—5 B. R. 542; 2 Weir 729.

Note.—It is generally expedient that a Magistrate who, as an Assistant Collector, had supervised a departmental enquiry against a subordinate, should not try the criminal case against the same person.—Rat 631.

When the servant and the wife of the Magistrate are concerned in the case.—The complainant (a servant of the Magistrate) accompanied the Magistrate's wife driving a dog-cart when the accused passed by driving his tonga recklessly and furiously, held the Magistrate was incompetent to try the case.—14 B. 572; See however—9 B. 172.

(10) Where a Magistrate is the sole Judge of law and fact.

60. Where a Judge is the sole judge of law and fact in a case tried before himself, he cannot give evidence before himself or impart matters in his judgment not stated on oath before the Court in the presence of the accused, and that by so doing he makes himself a witness in the case, and has, therefore, rendered himself incompetent to try it.—19 B. 263; 29 Cr. 45 (Pat); see also 29 C. 257; 21 C. 187; 2 C. 405; 21 P. L. 1904.

(11) Magistrate being himself the initiator of the proceedings.

61. (1) Where on a report being made by a Customment Official, the Cantonment Magistrate wrote "A is to blame. Prosecute A" and then proceeded to try the case, held that the Magistrate should not have tried the case himself.—21 Cr. 354 (P). See 21 Cr. 359 (P) = 1 L. 35.
62. (2) The trial of an offence under S. 48 of the Indian Excise Act (XII of 1896) is liable to be set aside under S. 556 of Act V. of 1899 where the Magistrate himself, in his capacity of Tehsildar, had ordered the prosecution of the accused and the search of his house on the report of an opium contractor who was neither a Collector nor an Excise Officer.—61 P. L. 1912.
63. (3) Where a Magistrate as President of the District Sub-Committee orders a prosecution for evading the payment of Octroi, he cannot himself try the case.—7 A. J. 749.
64. (4) Where the Forest Divisional Officer asked he was disqualified from hearing the appeal and a conviction by the Tehsildar.—9 N. 51.
65. (5) A District Magistrate who sanctions the institution of the proceedings under S. 13 (3) of the Arms Act is disqualified from trying the case.—9 C. P. 26.
66. (6) Where the police reported a case of false complaint for orders to the Magistrate, held that the latter was not precluded from trying the accused under Ss. 211 and 182 I. P. C., the complaint to the police not being a contempt of the authority of the Magistrate.—30 P. R. 1882.
67. (7) Where a Magistrate took active part in the prosecution of the prisoners, and recorded the evidence of the material witnesses preliminary to deciding whether the case should go to trial or not, and by whom it should be tried, it was held that he was not a proper Court to hear the appeal from the conviction in the case.—22 W. R. 75.
68. (8) A Magistrate, authorised by the Collector of a District to prosecute offenders against the Stamp Law is not competent to try them for the same offence.—[3 C. 622 See (84) A. N. 37.]
69. (9) Where a Cantonment Magistrate warned an accused that he must not tie his buffaloes in a certain spot, but the accused persisted, held that the Cantonment Magistrate though not incompetent to take cognizance of the offence was not competent to try the case.—8 P. R. 1905.
70. (10) Where a Magistrate as a Chairman of a Local Board, issued notice on the petitioner to remove a certain obstruction, but the petitioner made representations against the notice without effect and the Magistrate subsequently initiated proceedings under S. 133 Supra; held that the Magistrate's concern with the case was not merely of a public capacity so as to take the case out of S. 556 Cr. P. C.—10 O. J. 484; See 3 P. R. 1875; 5 P. R. 1806.
71. (11) The Sub-divisional Officer who was also the manager of an estate under the Court of Wards drew up proceedings under S. 145 in respect of a piece of land in which the estate claimed an interest, and refused the application of the opposite party for transfer, held that the conduct of the Magistrate showed his lack of appreciation of ordinary principles which should guide judicial officers in matters of this kind.—9 C. N. cccxvi.—See 28 C. 207. 10 C. N. 775.

72. (12) A Magistrate, who takes cognizance of an offence of mischief by cutting timber from the forest has no jurisdiction to pass an order of attachment of trees, which form the subject of the alleged offence.—37 C. 221; See 10 C. N. 775

(12) Cases illustrating the rule.

73. Where the Magistrate is himself the complainant.—The Magistrate and V, the accused, were travelling together in a Railway carriage. The Magistrate requested V to desist from smoking. The latter however contemptuously refused to do so. The Magistrate arrested V and subsequently tried and convicted him under S. 35 of the Railway Act (IV of 1879) Held that the Magistrate was disqualified from trying V.—Rat 330

- 73A. Magistrate who makes an order under S. 144.

Cannot try a person for a breach of that order.—84 M. 262 Rat 904

Note.—Similarly a Magistrate who has made an order under S. 133 Cr. P. C. cannot himself try and convict the person directed to remove the nuisance for disobedience.—(83) A. N. 222

- 73B. Sessions Judge who, as District Judge ordered an enquiry under S. 476—his not legally debarred from trying the case or hearing an appeal nor is he personally interested in the case within the meaning of S 556 Cr. P. C.—7 C. N. 708

74. Trying Magistrate being master of the complainant.—The mere circumstance that a trying Magistrate is the master of the complainant, does not deprive the Magistrate of his jurisdiction, but it is expedient that such a complaint should be referred to another Magistrate.—9 B. 172.

75. Magistrate who gave information to the police and directed enquiry.

(1) under the Excise Act cannot be said to have such connection with the proceedings antecedent to the prosecution as would disqualify him from trying the accused or committing him for trial.—11 A. J. 552. see 15 A. 192 (F. B.)

(2) Where the Magistrate has merely laid before an Inspector of Police, certain information and directed the Inspector to make an enquiry on the basis of that information, and the prosecution was instituted in the ordinary course by the Investigating Police officer, held that the Magistrate has not directed the prosecution of the accused, and his jurisdiction to try the case was not taken away by S 556 Cr. P. C.—(04) A. N. 95 (94) A. N. 74. 32 A. 635

76. Appeal heard by the District Magistrate who directed the accused to be prosecuted.—Where a District Magistrate as Deputy Commissioner on reading the report of a Forest Divisional Officer, formed an opinion that the accused who was a Mucadym had made a deliberately false report and directed his prosecution before a Subordinate Magistrate—held—that under the circumstances he was disqualified from hearing the appeal preferred before him against the conviction by the Subordinate Magistrate.—9 N. 51. see 1 S. 98.

Note.—Where a Magistrate did not take action under S 190(1) (c) or order a local investigation held he was not incompetent to hear an appeal from a judgment ultimately convicting the accused, merely because he, without expressing any opinion hostile to them, summoned them to answer a charge in his capacity as Magistrate in charge of the criminal business of the sudder subdivision.—36 C. 569

77. Magistrate interested as a litigant.—At a special Sessions for appeals against a poor rate, the Chairman of the Magistrates, who was himself the appellant in one of the cases for hearing, took part in the decision of all the cases except his own. When his own case was called on, he left the bench, and went to the body of the Court and conducted the case himself. On objection, held, that the Chairman being a litigant similar to the other matters in Court, was disqualified from acting as a justice, and that the orders were void.—R. v. Great Farnmouth JJ. 5 Q. R. D. 525.

78. When the magistrate was himself obstructed—by reason of the accused driving on the wrong side of a road, he should not have tried and convicted the accused.—Rat 321.

79. A Magistrate being a share-holder of a company—cannot try the case of an employee charged with criminal breach of trust as a servant of that company.—20 B. 502 See 8 B. L. 422 (F. B.) R. v. Hammond 9 L. T. 423

80. Magistrate of the District on account of being the head of the police—of the District, is not debarred by reason of S 556 from trying a person accused under S. 29 of the Police Act 1861, of a breach of the orders of a Reserve Inspector of Police.—22 A. 340

81. Mere initiation of proceedings under S. 190 Cr. P. C. in his magisterial capacity—does not debar the Magistrate (who is also Chairman of the Municipal Board) from trying the case.—39 A. N. 74

- 81A. Judge deciding a counter case whether debarred from trying.—See Note No. 77 under B. 520 (p. 918 supra)

82. Strong opinions passed previously to disposal of the case in his newspaper by a Municipal Commissioner does not preclude him from trying the accused.—21 W. R. 31

83. By omission to record statements by an accused person in open Court.—The Magistrate does not make himself a witness and thereby disqualify himself from trying the case.—24 C. 191

84. Magistrate belonging to a community whose feelings had been outraged.—A Mahomedan Magistrate whose order for closing of a Jhalu shop by a person has been set at defiance by the accused, ought not to try the complaint on behalf of other Mahomedans against such person, especially when the dispute had been magnified into one of a religious nature and the religious feelings of Mahomedans are supposed to be outraged.—20 P. W. 1912.

(13) What does not amount to personal interest.

85. (a) Where certain persons made an oral complaint and the Magistrate, in attending the making of the oral complaint at his house, and he was duly cross examined—held that the Magistrate could not be deemed "personally interested" in the case.—27 A. 33 (15); See 16 A. 102 (P.H.); L. R. 8 Q. B. 383.

86. (b) The proceedings of a Magistrate who tries Practising pleader not to sit as Magistrate in certain Courts.

557. No pleader who practises in the Court of any Magistrate in a presidency-town or district, shall sit as a Magistrate in such Court or in any Court within the jurisdiction of such Court.

Note.

1. Appointment of pleader as Presidency Magistrate.—After the Cr. P. C. 1899, had practised in the Court of any Magistrate of Presidency town or district shall sit as a Magistrate in such Court or in any Court within the jurisdiction of the Code and that the appointment of a pleader to act is not forbidden by any provision of the Code. The Acting Presidency Magistrate, though a practising pleader when he was appointed, gave up practice on his appointment and was not practising at the time the conviction was recorded and sentence passed. The section later applied to him.—21 B. R. 100

558. The Local Government may determine what, for the purposes of this Code, shall be deemed to be the language of each Court within the territory administered by such Government, other than the High Courts established by Royal Charter.

Powers of Governor General in Council and Local Government exercisable from time to time

559 All powers conferred by this Code on the Governor General in Council or on the Local Government may be exercised from time to time as occasion requires.

Proposed amendment to the section.—After section 559 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

"559A (1) The powers and duties of a Judge or Magistrate under this Code may, subject to any other provision therein contained, be exercised or performed by his successor in office.

(2) When there is any doubt as to who is the successor in office of any Magistrate, the Chief Presidency Magistrate in a Presidency town, and the District Magistrate outside such towns, shall determine by order in writing the Magistrate who shall, for the purposes of this Code or of any proceedings in order thereunder, be deemed to be the successor in office of such Magistrate.

(3) When there is any doubt as to who is the successor in office of any Additional or Assistant Sessions Judge, the Sessions Judge shall determine by order in writing the Judge who shall, for the purpose of this Code or of any proceedings or order thereunder, be deemed to be the successor in office of such Additional or Assistant Sessions Judge "

Officers concerned in sales not to purchase or bid for property. 560. A public servant having any duty to perform in connection with the sale of any property under this Code shall not purchase or bid for the property.

Special provisions with respect to offence of rape by a husband shall-- 561. (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Code no Magistrate except a Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate

(a) take cognizance of the offence of rape where the sexual intercourse was by a man with his wife, or

(b) commit the man for trial for the offence.

(2) And, notwithstanding anything in this Code, if a Chief Presidency Magistrate or District Magistrate deems it necessary to direct an investigation by a police-officer, with respect to such an offence as is referred to in subsection (1), no police-officer of a rank below that of police-inspector shall be employed either to make, or to take part in, the investigation

Proposed amendment to the section.—After section 561 of the said Code, the following section shall be inserted, namely :—

561 A Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent power of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court."

Note.

1. Investigation by a police officer below the rank of Police Inspector.—Where an offence to which the provisions of S. 561(1) (a) Cr. P. C. applied had been taken cognizance of by a District Magistrate, the fact that the investigation into the offence had been concluded by an officer below the rank of a Police Inspector was not a material irregularity which would vitiate the subsequent proceeding—(95) A. N. 9.
